ALL CITIZENS REQUESTED TO DISPLAY FLAG.

All patriotic citizens are respectfully requested to begin the day by displaying the American flag from your home, or room. Old Glory should float from every housetop on June 14th, jubilantly to wave in the breeze of love and liberty to all the sons of men, to indicate patriotism, loyalty and a love in the hearts of our people that they may show a greater respect to the flag we love and for which our heroed bled and died. We pledge allegiance to our flag and to the Republic for which it stands, one indivisible with liberty and justice to all.

MRS. LILLIE WINTERS,
Corps Patriotic Instructor.

FINED FOR LEAVING CAMP FIRES UNEXTINGUISHED

Carelessness in leaving unextinguished a camp fire on the trail two miles above upper Elwha bridge, cost three young men from Seattle $45 this week. They were out enjoying a little fishing trip and moved into another camp without thinking of the fire. While no damage was done, the laws require forest rangers to make arrests in all cases and the boys were brought before Judge Davis, who fined them $10 and costs each.

SCHOOL CENSUS INDICATES POPULATION OF 5,000

That we now have 1,000 children of school age in Port Angeles, as shown by the school census just completed, is the statement made by Secretary Stakemiller of the school board. This would indicate a population of 5,000, on the generally accepted basis of five times the school census. One year ago there were 802 children of school age, and two years ago 740, an increase of 200 or 1,000 in population in the past year. As each scholar means $20 added to the district's income from apportionments made by the state, the board will have something like $4,000 additional income for running expenses next year.

A letter from J. A. Falconer, written June the 4th, states that contrary to reports put out by Hanson's friends, he, Mr. Falconer, will be in the race for the senatorship this fall, Mr. Falconer has made one of the best, if not the best representatives this district has ever had, and ne will receive a hearty support here for U. S. senator.

You will be sorry if you miss hearing the pretty little girls choruses and seeing the tableaux at the Rose Show entertainment Friday evening, June 19th, at the auditorium.

BEAUTIFUL FEATURES MARK COMMENCENENT EXERCISES

Amid a Profusion of Beautiful Roses the Class of 1914 Took Farewell of Port Angeles High School.

Port Angeles justly feels proud of the large number of bright young people it graduated from both the high school and eighth grade this year, the largest we believe in the history of the school. There were fifteen in the graduating class and thirty-seven in the eighth grade.

Seniors' Class Day Program.

On Friday evening the Seniors gave their class day program in the auditorium to a large audience of interested parents and friends. The stage was prettily decorated in ferns and vines interspersed with white roses, the class flower. On the wall at the rear of the stage in class colors, maroon and gray, was the year 1914 and the motto "Ever Higher." The program opened with an enjoyable piano solo by Laura Bradbury, followed by the salutatory address by Mabel Geist, which was well rendered and showed originality and tho't on the part of the writer. Two readings, "Tho't for the Discouraged Farmer" by Margery Draper, and "The Wrong Train" by Edna Kelly, added variety to the program and were excellently given. Charles Beam read the Class History, Carl Marquardt the Class Prophecy, and Elmon Guernesy the Class Will; all of them were cleverly written and were very much enjoyed. Helen Isbell was the author of the Class Poem, which she gave in a very pleasing manner, receiving the hearty applause of the audience. A piano solo, "Humoresque," by May Brumfield, and a vocal solo, the Spring Song," by Alice Beam were splendid demonstrations of the musical ability of the class. Miss Alice's voice rang out clear and sweet and was a pleasant surprise to many of her friends who had never heard her sing alone. A beautiful tribute of appreciation was given by Georgia Hooker, in the name of the class, to the H. S. principal Robert Gilmore, and as a token of remembrance presented him with a sterling silver match safe.

A time honored custom in the Port Angeles high school is the presentation of a miniature spade, tied with the class colors, by the outgoing class to the succeeding one. Wilmot Woodcock made the presentation speech for the class of '14 and Percy Bork, the president of the class of '15, gracefully accepted it, promising to make as good use of it as have the preceding classes.

Laura Bradbury closed the program with a well rendered valedictory address. She expressed in a pleasing manner the gratitude and appreciation of the class of 1914 to their parents, teachers and board of education for the educational advantages they had been permitted to enjoy. In conclusion she bade farewell to her class-mates, admonishing them thru life to strive to live up to the class motto, "Ever Higher."

Union Baccalaureate Sermon

Union Baccalaureate services were held Sunday evening with special musical numbers furnished by the Methodist and Congregational choirs. A very eloquent address was delivered by Rev. F. A. Heath of the Lincoln Heights Presbyterian church, replete with kindly admonition and advice to the members of this class who have just passed their first important milestone in the journey of life.

Commencement Exercises of the Graduating Class

Monday evening, June 8th, in the H. S. auditorium, were held the commencement exercises of the graduating class, the closing chapter in their career as high school students, when they are presented with their diplomas which are their passport to higher schools of education. Never before at this time of year have the roses been so plentiful and each member of the class was showered with these beautiful emblems of affection and good will, besides receiving many other gifts from admiring relatives and friends. The stage never looked so attractive, being literally banked with roses, ferns and other greenery, forming an appropriate back-ground.

On the stage with the graduates sat the high school faculty, members of the board of education, Rev. T. A. Hilton of Seattle and Rev. Stephen Smith of the Congregational church, and Prof. Trevor Kincaid of the U. of W., who made the address of the evening. Prof. Kincaid has been a teacher of science in the university for 20 years, and enjoys a national reputation as a result of his discoveries made in his experiments and study of animal and plant life. His subject for the evening was "The Triangle of Life" and dealt with the influences of heredity, environment and training on the human being. These three factors he represented as forming an equilateral triangle, of which heredity formed the base and environment and training the other two sides. Having stated his theory, he then proceeded in scholarly fashion to prove it in detail. To those who have kept abreast of the times and have given this important subject some thought and study, the address was most interesting and in-

NEW ASSESSMENT DISTRICT

Peabody Street Bridge Must Be Rebuilt; Will Cost Not Less than 5 or $6,000.

An extended and quite important session of the city council was held Tuesday night. All members present except Wilcox.

The street committee recommended that B street between 8th and 12th be repaired to care for the traffic west, while C street is being graded. This brought on quite an argument as to scarcity of city funds. Fleming moved the adoption of the report, but found himself alone on the final vote, the council taking the position that the city would have to retrench and C street would soon be open to accommodate this travel.

Special committee named to look into matter of replanking the Peabody and 8th street bridges, reported recommending that the latter be replanked at a cost of approximately $250, and that a new bridge be built on Peabody street. Asked as to where the money was coming from for the new structure, Engineer Filion suggested an assessment district. If a $5,000 or $6,000 bridge is put up, Peabody street could possibly carry the load; if a more substantial structure is desired an enlarged district would be advisable. Upon motion of Dustman a committee of three was named to look into the matter and report findings to council. Dustman asked if 8th street bridge could be patched up. Yes, $50 would make it passable for this year. Dustman moved to expend this amount but received no second, and the matter went over. Dustman, Fowler and Fisher was named as special committee.

Graveled Roadway on Spit Will Be Satisfactory if Oiled.

Letter to Mayor from Inspector Henry Beck of Portland was read, acknowledging receipt of ordinance empowering mayor to accept lease of spit, which is satisfactory and will be forwarded. Mr. Beck also states that the mayor's suggestions that in building roadway up spit as directed by the lease, of the natural material of the spit, namely, gravel, first clearing all debris from the right of way will be satisfactory with the additional provisions that same may be rolled and smoothed and sprinkled

FLOWER SHOW TO BE HELD FRIDAY NEXT

Great preparations are now under way for the Third Annual Rose Show to be held in the H. S. Auditorium the afternoon and evening of June 19, under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary. The premium list which appears on page seven of this issue, is unusually attractive and more entries are expected than ever before. The object of these flower shows is to create a greater interest in the cultivation of roses and other flowers, and they have served as one of the best advertisements for our little city. Strangers visiting here have been wonderfully impressed with the great variety of beautiful roses exhibited each year and as yet only a beginning has been made.

The Flower Show entertainment has always proven a big attraction and will doubtless draw a full house again this year, as a very excellent program is being prepared, featuring a number of our most talented young people. A general admission of 25 cents will be charged for the evening entertainment. The afternoon will be free and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend. A number of musical selections will be given and a reception committee will be on hand to welcome all strangers.

COMING TO SEE A LIVE TOWN

Everyone Should Turn Out Sunday to Assist in Boosting for the New Port Angeles.

The steamer Iroquois will bring to Port Angeles next Sunday a crowd of excursionists from Seattle, arriving at 1:30 p. m. There is every reason to believe and it is confidently expected by both the steamship company and the citizens of Angeles that several hundred people will be included in the passenger list.

It is but fitting and proper that our citizenship should manifest their appreciation of this large concourse of visitors by the presence at the wharf of a representative delegation of business and professional men and all others who are interested in the commercial advancement of Port Angeles.

These excursions will, of necessity, have among their number some who will make inquiries concerning the possibilities of Port Angeles, and its advantages as a place for investment.

The Marine Band will meet the boat, and will discourse music during the visit of the excursionists.

CLEVER ENTERTAINERS TO BE AT THE DREAM

Blanchard and Marlin, the clever entertainers, are on at the Dream Theater Friday, Saturday and Sunday. They have a new and entertaining sketch every day. Queen, the world famous high diving dog, shares the Dream program with Blanchard and Marlin. Along with the vaudeville are four rattling good reels. The prices are 10 and 20c. Matinee Saturday and Sunday 5 and 10c.

Monday, Zingo in Africa. A comedy drama in three parts.

The Lucille Love series is becoming quite popular on Tuesday evenings. The fourth installment of two reels will be shown next Tuesday. Prices 5 and 10 cents.

Wednesday, "The Sea Wolf," in seven reels by Jack London. Special matinee 2:00 p. m.; prices 10 and 15c. Evening shows 7 to 9; prices 15 and 25c.

CRUSHED UNDER CAR WHEELS

Aged Man Caught By Flying Switch On Wilwaukee's Tracks Near Brewery.

T. Hague, a man of about sixty years of age, was killed at 7:30 Wednesday morning while crossing the track at Third and Tumwater. He had been working here on the railroad for about a month and it was at first reported he was crushed between the cars while coupling, but later reports say it was a flying switch of which he did not know and that the flat cars ran over him, breaking his legs and crushing his chest. He died before the ambulance reached there and the remains were taken to the Fulmer undertaking parlors. Word has been received that some of his people will arrive here today from Seattle and that he has a wife and daughter in Ireland.

TO GIVE TERMINAL RATES

Milwaukee Will Operate Barges Pending Completion of Peninsular Branch.

Who are the sponsors for the Milwaukee Terminal Company asking a franchise from the city, and identify demanded by the council was quite effectively answered in a letter to that body by Mr. Shank, as follows: "The Milwaukee Terminal Railway Company is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Washington, with a capital stock of $250,000; all of this capital stock is owned by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Co. The Terminal Co. is a public service corporation operating railway barges, steam tugs and other means of transportating freight on Puget Sound. It is in every way qualified as a public service corporation. The Seattle, Pt. A. & Lake Crescent Ry., has a contract with the Milwaukee Terminal Co. by which thru rates are established from any point on the line of the S., Pt. A. & L. C. Ry. This contract requires the Terminal Co. to connect up with our eastern terminus at Oak Bay, but inasmuch as we will not have the eastern end of our road completed until the first of next year, we desire to give shippers the benefit of this connection in the meantime. The purpose of the Milwaukee Terminal Co. putting in a slip at Port Angeles at this time is to give terminal rates and advantages. This slip will serve the dual purpose of taking freight and also enabling the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway to land rails upon our line which it is under contract to do. You may therefore treat the Milwaukee Terminal Co. as a part of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Co. for all practical purposes.

The Erickson Construction Company received two more steam shovels this week, and the Earles mill another locomotive-hoist, being part of a barge load of cars brought down for the road, the equipment of which already includes over eighty cars of all kinds, or nearly four to the mile of completed railroad.

D. D. Huddleston, proprietor of the St. Francis Hotel, was operated on at the General Hospital Sunday night for appendicitis, and is now convalescing.

HIST! THE COW IS DOOMED!

Councilman's Cow-to-Be Demonstrates Impossibility of Enforcing New Ordinance.

The cow is doomed in Port Angeles! This is the latest apparent virdict of the city council. Take down your fences and beautify your lawns and set out your shade trees, for it is decreed that bossie must not roam the city at will any longer. The only question in doubt now seems to be whether the several owners will be allowed a reasonable time in which to dispose of the city herds or whether the proposed ordinance against all stock running at large within the city, will go into effect upon its passage and publication. The city attorney has been directed to bring in such an ordinance at next meeting and it looks as though the necessary four votes are at hand to pass same.

It all came about on the taking up of Councilman Bigelow's cow-to-be, and the marshal's report that some owners of several cows secured permits to various members of the family, continuing to stable them and care for them as before. Eight head of young stock was reported having been impounded during the week.

Bigelow had a permit from the city clerk to run his "cow" which will be giving milk next month. The marshal and city attorney held she was not a "cow used for milking purposes" within the ordinances and therefore not entitled to a permit. Bigelow and Mr. Mitchell were practically given a special permit by the council to run these to-be cows at last meeting, but in the round-up the Bigelow heifer got into the pound because she had not yet begun to give milk.

To settle the whole matter, said Shields, I move that the city attorney bring in anordinance next meeting prohibiting all stock from running at large within the city limits. Seconded by Dustman and carried, seemingly unanimous.

Dustman then moved that the Bigelow cow be allowed to run pending the passage of the new ordinance. Fisher and Shields secured amendments to this that all the other cows be allowed to run in conformity with present ordinance. Fisher then raised a point of order that the motion was out of order. The mayor refused to rule, wishing to pass the matter up to the council, finally ruling the motion in order for this purpose. Shields appealed from the decision of the chair and the chair decided the motion out of order by the chair not being sustained the vote being a tie.

This ended the matter until later in the evening when a motion carried allowing the Bigelow cow and others in like condition to run pending the passage of the proposed ordinance.

THE FOURTH OF JULY EXCURSIONS TO VICTORIA

Arrangements for a Fourth of July excursion between Victoria and Port Angeles have been perfected, thru the efforts of the Fourth of July committee, of which Mr. Lewis Levy is chairman. The following schedule for the day has been announced by the steamship company.

Steamer Sol Duc will leave Victoria at 9 a. m., 1 p. m., 8 p. m. and 1 a. m., July 5th; leaves Angeles at 11 a. m., 6 p. m., and 11 p. m.

A large crowd of Victorians will no doubt visit Port Angeles during the day, and ample arrangements for their accommodation and entertainment will be made.

FORT WORDEN JUNE 18TH

The Fort Worden base ball team gave the Angeles boys a bad whipping the last time they visited us on May 17, but our boys have been doing some practising since then and are going to show the Fort Worden boys what they can do. It will be a great game, don't fail to see it June 14th. Playing begins promptly at 2:30.

Bank of Clallam County

Established April, 1895 Port Angeles, Washington

Proceedings of the Board of Clallam County Commissioners.

Monday, June 1, 1914, 9:00 a. m.

The board met pursuant to adjournment, all members being present.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The board entered into a contract with Mr. Francis W. Grant, of Seattle, to act as architect on the proposed new Courthouse building.

The Superintendent of Schools filed his report of expenses incurred at the County Institute, amounting to the sum of $246.00, and as he had been provided with the sum of $200.00 out of the Current Expense Fund in addition to $115.00 in the Institute Fund, there was a balance of $69.00 to be returned to the County Treasurer, which was done.

The board adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas, the following numbered County General Fund Warrants, to-wit: No. 491 and 492, issued Nov. 23, 1894, for the sum of $100.00 each, were on or about Dec. 8, 1897 ordered cancelled by the then Board of County Commissioners, based upon a report of one Douglas Young, who was employed to expert the County Books and which order was made without notice to, or hearing by the owners and holders of them, and

"Whereas, litigation over the payment of some of such has been had in our Courts, and litigation threatens over the payment of the warrants herein mentioned, and

"Whereas, the County Treasurer has been offered a settlement by the owners and holders of them whereby they will accept the face of them, together with one-half of the accrued interest, and

"Whereas, it is the judgment of the board that is for the best interests of Clallam county that the offer be accepted, and that no further litigation be had concerning them.

"Therefore be it resolved, that the said order heretofore made by the former board of county commissioners in so far as it affects the within described County General Fund Warrants be and the same is hereby revoked and the County Treasurer be authorized to redeem the said warrants by the payment of their face and one half of the accrued interest."

The board examined the following claims and ordered warrants drawn for same as follows:

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

Olympia, June 9.—During the last year the average cost of hatching and rearing the salmon that later will become the great food fish supply of this state has been reduced from 88.8 cents per 1,000 to 56 cents per 1,000.

This last year has seen the construction of a new salmon hatchery, on the Nooksack river, Whatcom county, and a new trout hatchery on Lake Crescent.

These and some other interesting facts are stated in a report rendered by Fish Commissioner L. H. Darwin to Governor Lister, who is chairman of the state fish commission.

The reduction in the cost of hatching and rearing salmon, made by the new administration, has enabled the state to construct the Nooksack salmon hatchery, for which the last legislature made no provision. This hatchery has been completed, and a second is being constructed at Leavenworth, on the Wenatchee river, both being paid for with money saved from the maintenance funds through economical administration.

The Stillaguamish hatchery, which was abandoned in 1912 when a report of the bureau of inspection showed the cost of hatching and rearing fish there was $7.79 per 1,000, was reopened during the year by direction of Governor Lister, and operated at a cost of only 69 cents per 1,000 fish.

More fish were reared in the state last year than ever before, Commissioner Darwin's report shows. When the Wenatchee hatchery, now under construction, is completed, the state of Washington will have 27 hatcheries in operation, three more than the federal government has west of the Mississippi.

The importance of the hatcheries is indicated by the fact that the fish caught and canned last year were worth $14,000,000. For these fish, principally reared by the state, the state received at $1 per 1,000 rate from traps and fish wheels, only $24,554.08, though licenses, fines, etc., brought the total receipts of the department to $94,553.76.

By placing in the state general fund revenues derived from sales of tide and shore lands, the state of Washington is showing bad business judgment by dissipating the principal of its rich legacy.

T. E. Skaggs of the state tax commission, and ex-officio member of the state land board, called attention to this situation recently. As a better policy, Mr. Skaggs recommends that the state either retain its tide and shore lands, leasing them to bona fide improvers and using only the else, upon selling the lands, place the money in a permanent fund and use only the interest for current expenses.

It is probable that the state land board will make recommendations to the next legislature along these lines.

A recent inspection of the eastern hospital for the insane, made by J. J. Higgins, head of the pure food division of the state department of agriculture, shows that scrupulous cleanliness is a feature of all departments in which food is prepared. The slaughter house, dairy and kitchens, Mr. Higgins declared in a report on the hospital were in cleanlines and general sanitary condition, unequalled by any other place in the state that he has examined, where food is prepared for public consumption.

The racing program conceded to be the principal drawing card at any fair, will be larger and better at the Washington state fair this year than ever before in its history, according to the list of entries just made up by J. E. Shannon, secretary of the fair. The list shows 73 entrants, representing the best harness horses of the Northwest, and trotters and pacers from Winnipeg to California. In the 2.25 pace 18 horses are entered for the $1,000 purse.

S. P. Wilson, state oil inspector, in a report filed with Dr. H. T. Graves, acting commissioner of agriculture, for the first year since the organization of the department, shows a total of $67,422.05 collected in oil inspection fees, which exceeds collections of any previous year by $21,000.00. This excellent showing is attributed by the department to the fact that every shipment of oil sent to this state is now being inspected and fees collected.

A complete exhibit of wood products of the state of Washington, collected and prepared at a cost of more than $5,000 by the West Coast Lumber Manufacturer's Association, has been placed by that organization at the disposal of the Washington state exposition commission, as a feature of this state's forestry display at the San Francisco fair. Every variety of lumber cut in this state is included in the exhibit, put to some practical use and in a variety of finishes.

Vote trading by public officials constitutes misfeasance or malfeasance in office, and is sufficient grounds for recall if not for criminal prosecution, the supreme court held in ad ecision rendered last week. While the cases in question were those of two Wenatchee councilmen the decision will be equally applicable to members of the legislature who by vote trading attempt to build up a machine to pass appropriation billls over the governor's vetoes.

WASHINGTON CANNOT BE A LAW UNTO ITSELF

In weighing the proposed universal eight-hour initiative law and the various other initiative measures which the voters must adopt or reject next November, wisdom and prudence require the keeping in mind of two fundamental principles, says the Spokane Spokesman-Review:

First—That the individual state will suffer that enacts legislation and forces conditions which are materially out of harmony with the laws and conditions that govern industry and business in the other states of the Union. Washington is but a small part of the nation. It can't make itself a law unto itself. Its products must be marketed in competition with the products of many other states and many foreign countries. Its producers labor now under a threefold handicap—high freight rates inseparable from the long haul to distant markets, high taxes and relatively high wages, and higher interest rates on money borrowed to carry on enterprise and production.

Second—That any radical general lessening of the sum of energy that is put into any given industry like agriculture, horticulture, live stock, dairying, lumbering, mining or manufacturing, must be followed, as the night follows day, by reduction of the quantity of the product. The state will have less to sell, and with less to sell will receive less money for distribution among its people.

By no possible ingenuity can a three-pound loaf be made to go as far as a five-pound loaf. If the attempt should be made it will surely be found that all the interests dependent on any given industry will have to go on three-fifths rations. Labor will have to accept less. There will be less for spending with the butcher, the baker, the grocer, the druggist, the shoe dealer, the clothier, the dry goods merchant, the doctor, the nurse. There will be less to spend on education.

All our industries are carried on under competitive conditions. The socialist may say that it should not be so, but the fact remains that it is so and will continue so thruout our lifetime and generation. We face a fact, not a theory.

The State of Washington can't set the pace for the rest of the world. If they are to have good times and prosperity for the wage earner they must do their share of the world's work. They can not sharply reduce the going hours of labor and not reduce the volume of their products. If they ease off and grow 20,000,000 bushels of wheat instead of 30,000,000 bushels, and cut down in similar ratio the products of their orchards, their dairies, their mines, their sawmills and their factories, they will simply pinch themselves and labor will suffer most of all.

THE CITY COUNCIL

The engineer submitted plans and specifications, together with estimate of cost, $22,000. The assessed value of property affected is $29,160. Average assessment of property affected $111 per lot, that abutting Lincoln street of course will be much greater than this amount.

Shields brought up the question of excessive police service suggestion to the mayor that possibly a reduction could be made. He alleged that there are seven police officers on duty now, enumerating four regulars, two specials paid by merchants, and night watch at city hall. The marshal denied he had anything to do with city hall watchman, and claimed only three regulars with a fourth on temporarily. He suggested that all but himself and one other be dispensed with. Left to solution by the mayor.

Fisher suggested a concrete vault in rear of city hall for all city records and thus do away with watchman. Referred to special committee of Fisher and Fowler and city engineer as to cost.

Marshal was directed to see that fire hydrant at First and Laurel is not covered up with lumber, or surrounded.

Council adjourned.

LEPER COLONY ON PROTECTION ISLAND.

According to the Washington correspondent of the Tacoma Ledger, Dr. Blue, surgeon-general of the public health and marine hospital service, has informed Representative Falconer that the government is seriously considering beginning negotiations for the purchase of Protection island, lying off the entrance to Discovery Bay, for a permanent home for lepers. Falconer served notice that he will fight any effort of the kind. It is also understood the entire Washington delegation will oppose this move.

It is declared that the city of Washington has not yet recovered from the shock which Early gave it by going back and stopping several days as a guest at one of the prominent hotels. It is needless to say that the hostlery has been fumigated from cellar to garret and the newspapers have kept its name out of print.

The ravages of the scourge are plainly written on Early's countenance. His forehead and face are severely furrowed, his nose, ears and lips are bloated, his eyes sunken and blear. He has lost much hair and his hands are large and swollen. But in some ways there is an improvement in his condition.

Protection island comprises about 700 acres, and lies north of Discovery bay, protecting the harbor from the winds blowing up the Straits. It is at present owned by William Grinishaw, and it is understood it can be secured for a reasonable price. It is to be doubted, however, with the united opposition of the Washington delegation, whether the plans of the department will carry.

Working men will do well to see our goods and get our prices before buying, as we have stocked up with a line of goods suitable to all their needs. Rubber boots, heavy shoes, overalls, jumper coats, over shirts and gloves of all kinds can be bought at bed rock prices. Lutz Clothing Co.

ANNUAL MEETING CHILDREN'S HOME SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the Washington Children's Home Society will be held on the lawn of the Receiving Home, Seattle, Tuesday, June 16, from 5 to 7:30 p. m. Last year nearly three hundred visitors were entertained, and preparations are being made to receive more this year.

All friends of the Society, foster parents and former wards, pastors of churches, teachers, vocal workers and others interested, are cordially invited to visit the Home at any time, to see the children, and to hear short reports of the work done for the year. The children will give an entertainment, and refreshments will be served.

In eighteen years, 2571 children have been happily placed in good homes. Last year's work is in some respects the most interesting of any, as special effort thru the Aid Department, has saved some homes from breaking, and many parents from parting with their children.

Take Plenty of Time to Eat.

There is a saying that "rapid eating is slow suicide." If you have formed the habit of eating too rapidlyyou are most likely suffering from indigestion or constipation, which will result eventually in serious illness unless corrected. Digestion begins in the mouth. Food should be thoroughly masticated and insalivated. Then when you have a fullness of the stomach or feel dull and stupid after eating, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets. Many severe cases of stomach trouble and constipation have been cured by the use of these tablets. They are easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Sold by all dealers.

JUNE 12TH AND 13TH TO BE CLEAN-UP DAYS

I hereby appoint June 12th and 13th as a time for all loyal citizens to cooperate in a general joint effort to put our city ship-shape by trimming lawns, removing debris, burning brush, painting fences and doing all that lies in our power to enhance the beauty and to establish the cleanliness of our homes as well as the streets and public places, with special effort to the elimination of all unsightly and unsanitary vacant lot accumulations.

If you have no means of getting rid of any accumulation notify Street Superintendent William Graham and he will see that everything is carted away. HORACE WHITE, Mayor.

The Chehalis merchants, in arrangfor the installation of hitching posts and rails, are doing themselves a good turn. Rest rooms for the ladies and little children, bargain days, agricultural street fairs, convenient hitching places on dry ground with shelter for teams in rainy weather, and similar courtesies, indicate a spirit of fairness and a desire to give somethng more than value received in return for trade favors. Just because Port Angeles has no near competitor it does not follow that the merchants are enjoying their full share of trade.

Apropos of Mayor White's call for a clean-up-day, the Olympic-Leader would like to suggest that what is really needed is an ordinance requiring owners of business property to clean up the old boxes, pieces of board and other inflammable rubbish under and in the rear of their stores. stores.

It would "help some" if the council would have the city team haul off the old broken pieces of sidewalk boards that litter the zig-zig and other public places. There is small encouragement in the cleaning up of vacant lots while the city allows its streets to remain in a disgraceful condition.

SAME IN THIS STATE.

From Wisconsin comes a piercing cry to rise and regain political liberties that have been lost. Shackled voters of that state are told:

"Under the old caucus rule, with all its faults, you could come together in district and county conventions and voice your opinions. Under the primary you are as silent as the dead. Then, when it came to making a platform your delegates set forth what you stood for. Now you have not a word to say. Formerly every legislature was master of itself. Now we have forty-six rings called commissions, in which is concentrated control over every law."

And, to remedy this appalling political serfdom:

"If a Progressive shows his head for office anywhere, spot him! Vote out the Progressives in either party. Put up conservative men. Then, whether Democrats or Republicans win, you will have a safe, reliable lot of hired men in the legislature."

This is only one among many passionate demands for a revival of the precious caucus, convention and boss regime under which Wisconsin's legislature did indeed comprise a safe, reliable lot of hired men. No doubt the demands are very comforting to gentlemen who did the hiring.

For the ruthless destruction of their former liberties the bosses very properly lay much responsibility on the State University. In the campaign that seems to be shaping a return to the old regime, Progressives and university professors are coupled in denunciation.

"The university," says one spokesman for the safe and sane, "should devote its entire time to education." But education is exactly what killed his crowd.—Saturday Evening Post.

At the present rate of growth—25 per cent a year, as shown by the school census just completed, on the generally adopted basis of figuring the entire population at five times the school census—Port Angeles will be a city of just fifteen thousand five years hence.

The Olympic-Leader $1 per year.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY

DE FUCA

Last Thursday evening the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. MacDonald entertained them with a little farewell party at the school house. The ladies made the schoolroom appear real cozy and home-like with rugs, easy chairs and numerous potted plants and vases of flowers. The evening was spent in playing cards, singing, dancing and of course, plenty, of talking. Shortly before midnight Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald were asked to seat themselves at the long table which had been set in the center of the room and a dainty lunch was served which washthoroughly enjoyed by all. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Willis Chambers, Miss Esther Chambers and Francis and Clark Chambers, of Fairview, Mesdames Wooding, Richards, F. Laurens, and the Misses Minna and Helen Laurens. Messrs. Wooding, Richards, F. Laurens, C. A. Laurens, Drumb, Agnew and the children making twenty-five including Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald. This very pleasant evening was closed by singing "Home Sweet Home" and everyone telling Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald to some day come back to their home in De Fuca.

The Ladies of De Fuca took a day off Friday and all went on a shopping and sight seeing trip to Port Angeles with Mr. Chambers in his auto.

McKee's camp, which has been down at Mr. Agnew's for nearly two months, has moved to the Tripp place beyond McDonald creek.

Mr. Edwin Champion and Misses Hazel and May O'Brien were calling on MacDonalds one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald were calling on Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Haggard in Sequim Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall and daughter from Pasco, Washington, are visiting at the camp with Mrs. Faust.

Mrs. Sullivan has her sister, Miss Hastings visiting with her this week.

Several from De Fuca attended the dance at Fairview Saturday and report a pleasant time.

Mrs. MacDonald left Monday morning for Vancouver, B. C., where she will remain indefinately with her mother who is ill. Mr. MacDonald leaves next week.

Mrs. Wooding has her neice, Flora McDougall visiting with her, from Sequim.

The Laurenses are moving from the Troy place across to their own place this week.

A party of young people from Lost Mountain planned a picnic at McDonald creek for Sunday but the rain spoiled their outing.

Miss Lucile Bunnell is entertaining at her home in Lost Mountain, a lady friend, Miss Sorensen of Everett.

Jeannette and Marie Broughton are home from school at Port Angeles; glad of the vacation rest. Master John Summers accompanied them, his mother being away from home, called to the bedside of a sick father at Spokane.

Dorothy Broughton is also enjoying a vacation at home. Dorris and Merton Mathewson are with her.

Mr. and Mrs. McMillen and daughter, Mrs. Dorr, were Sunday callers at the Emery home:

Chas Cary spent Sunday, week, with his sister, Mrs. J. D. Jackson.

The officers of the Cemetery Board held a business meeting last week, at which they decided to fence the cemetery grounds, a needed improvement. They will put a substantial wire fence entirely around the plat.

Last week Wednesday, Miss Mabel Jackson started a singing class at the school house. Not much progress reported but the organizing of a choir. They meet every Wednesday.

Lucile Bunnell and Lena Sorrenson were guests at the Broughtons Wednesday and Thursday.

THE WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

The Women's Auxiliary to the P. A. Commercial Club held their regular monthly meeting last Tuesday afternoon in the CommercialClub room. Most of the afternoon was taken up in the discussion of plans and arrangements for the Rose Show which promises to be as successful an undertaking as in previous years, if not more so. The premium list is published in another column. The ladies extend a hearty vote of thanks to all the merchants who so kindly responded to the call for donations to help out with the list. They hope the entries this year will be more numerous than ever and that those who can will send flowers to help with the decorations.

A resolution endorsing Mayor Whites's proclamation for a general clean up day June 11 and 12, was unanimously adopted. Plans for reciprocating the hospitality of the ladies of Port Townsend Civic Club, who so delightfully entertained the Auxiliary ladies two years ago, were talked over and an invitation will be extended to them for some time in July.

Word come from Mrs. AtLee, wife of Captain AtLee of the life saving cutter Snohomish, that the Captain's health will not permit of his returning to duty on the Snohomish, so she will come up from California this month and sell off her house-hold goods.

structive. It is only recently that people have wakened up to the fact that the human race can be improved, under much the same laws as have been so successfully applied to the raising of fine stock, and with the same methods as Burbank has applied to his wonderful creations in plant life. In emphasizing the importance environment plays in character building, Prof. Kincaid expressed the thought that young people born and raised in the environment of this great Northwest had much to be thankful for, as he considered the climate, scenery and location all conductive to creating the highest type of an American citizen. He was glad the day had come when woman had assumed her rightful place as the equal of man in all respects, and was given the same opportunities in an educational way, the doors of all our institutions of higher learning having been thrown open to her.

The musical numbers of the evening were a piano solo by Mrs. C. P. Brown, violin solo by Miss Florence Elliott and a vocal solo by Miss Edna Holt, all of them being very enjoyable. The invocation was delivered by Rev. T. A. Hilton, Rev. Smith pronouncing the benediction. Dr. D. E. McGillivray, on behalf of the board of education, made a short address, presenting the class with their diplomas and the congratulations and best wishes of the board.

Eighth Grade Exercises Especially Pleasing.

While a great deal of interest and pride has always been taken in the graduating exercises of the high school, the last few years this pride and interest has been shared by the graduates of the eighth grade. And here in Angeles we are especially favored in having had as an eighth grade teacher for a number of years, the highest type of a womanly woman. One whose ability as a successful instructor and disciplinarian, has only been equalled by her beautiful christian life and character. We doubt not that in years to come, when these eighth grade pupils have become successful men and women of the world they will say: "To Miss Watson, our eighth grade teacher in Port Angeles school, we are indebted for much that has enabled us to attain success in life, and while we have not yet reached the top, we are still climbing and holding to the high ideals she pointed out to us long, long years ago. What an inspiration and incentive this is, to know that the lives of many, many girls and boys are better because you have lived and worked? And so each year since Miss Watson has been with us, more and more interest centers around the graduating exercises of the eighth grade and one always feels rewarded for attending them. The class roll this year included 37 members, twenty of whom were boys. A very unusual occurrence was the fact that the girls allowed the boys to carry off all the honors, Willie Bugge being Valedictorian and Oscar Nelson, Salutatorian. Both these boys deserve especial mention for the creditable manner in which they filled their part on the program, the former delivering an oration on "Our National Resources" and the latter a declamation on "The Message of the Nineteenth Century." In spite of the confusion and noise in the room which kept some of the numbers from being heard in the rear of the auditorium, these two boys made themselve heard and showed marked ability as future orators. Willie Thompson in his delivery of Patrick Henry's famous oration and George Cowan, who gave an oration, entitled "Some Important Legislation" also won laurels for themselves and their class. A recitation, "Nanhart the Deacon," was well rendered by Mabel Whitmore, while the Class History was interestingly told by Mary Neal. A unique setting was given the class prophecy, which was very pleasing. The stage was transformed into a homey looking room, and seated in a large easy chair was Ethel Geist, mistress of the house, who, after the lapse of many years had just received a letter from a former classmate which she was excitedly reading to her friend Mabel Johnson, who was her house guest. The letter was cleverly written and briefly told of the history of the class members since they parted in Port Angeles.

The presentation of Jean Ingelow's beautiful poem "Songs of Seven," was one of the best features of the program. Hazel Fairservice represented childhood, Mabel Jackson, girlhood; Leslie Jackson, maidenhood; Mabel Hennings, motherhood; Evalyn Gasser, widowhood; Edith Sanderson, giving in marriage; Vina Graybill, Longing for Home. The class is fortunate in having some very sweet singers and here the girls won honors. In addition to the class songs which were very pretty, Vina Graybill sang a solo, responding to the hearty encore she received with another selection. The quartet by Vina Graybill, Mabel Johnson, Leslie Jackson and Cora Wolverton. was another pleasing number. The diplomas were presented by Superintendent White with a few congratulatory remarks, and the wish that all the class might keep climbing in the educational world until they reached the top, and thus live up to their class motto; "Not to the Top but Climbing." The invocation and benediction were pronounced by Rev. M. B. Phillips of the Methodist church.

The congratulations and good wishes of a host of friends was expressed to these young people in the profusion of beautiful roses with which they were presented.

with petroleum, making a good surfaced road. He also suggested steps be taken to incorporate spit in city limits. The letter was filed.

Mayor White in this connection thought these conditions could be complied with, and that after the fourth a big picnic at the spit, whereas everybody works and everybody is fed, this roadway can be completed in one day.

Letters to the Mayor were also read threatening mandamus proceedings unless the judgment of the Klipsun Lumber Co. is paid and threatening suit against city by Chase Eng. Co. unless settlement is made for sub-station without further delay. The letters were referred to the city attorney, that officer protesting that he had no business with them.

Want City to Establish a Minimum Wage for Laborers.

As directed, the city engineer reported on the matter of Ferch & Gass, sub-contractors doing the work of Third Street North. The eight-hour law is being violated, and the city attorney had been notified. City attorney stated that as he understood the matter, the crew on the city job were only working eight hours on city work and the other two on railroad work. The workmen receive $2 per day for 10 hours. He thought this might be legal, on the ground that it is only public work in which the state law fixes the eight-hour day. The city could not follow the workmen up to see if they worked elsewhere after working eight hours for city. Shields moved that Ferch & Gass be directed to appear; later this was withdrawn and Johnson & Co., the contractors to whom the work was awarded, were cited to appear, forthwith. L. J. Leonard was found by the marshal and later appeared, and stated to council that his firm and Ferch & Gass bid on work on basis of an eight hour day, and if it was up to them he would see that the state law was upheld. Council advised Mr. Leonard that city looked to his firm as the original contractors to see that the work was done in compliance with the terms of the contract and the state law, and he was given a few days to see that this was done before the State Labor Commissioner was notified.

This discussion evidently called to the mind of Fleming a possible reduction of wage on an eight-hour day, and he asked if city had any authority to fix a minimum wage. The attorney was doubtful, but was directed to look matter up and if so empowered, to bring in an ordinance fixing the minimum wage on public work in the city.

Ordinance committee reported back building and repair ordinance with recommendation that penalty clause be included and that plans filed also include estimated cost of building or repairs proposed to be made. The ordinance was referred back for the incorporation of these provisions by city attorney.

No Further Extensions of Electric Light Lines.

Mr. Dustman of light committee stated that upon investigation of city finances he was convinced that further extensions of light lines were impossible without sufficient revenue in sight to pay for same, and would recommend that hereafter the lines be simply maintained, only new business adjacent to present extended lines being taken. In the past few months a lot of work has been done and a lot of territory covered and considerable money spent. Fisher moved the adoption of the report, which prevailed.

Dustman also called attention to his opposition to minimum power rate as fixed by ordinance and recommended that same be fixed at $1 per h. p. instead of $2 as per ordinance. He called for a recommendation from the electrician, and the clerk read a communication from that official making the same recommendation. Upon motion of Shields the recommendation was adopted. Answering a question, the electrician stated that all power under one h. p. would be on light rate.

The light committee stated they would get along with a half dozen poles in place of the 17 asked for last week.

Fisher of the Fire committee reported that request for permit to build from Dann Bros. was too meagre to base a report upon and asked that the clerk notify the gentlemen to file more detailed information. So ordered.

Government Willing to Release All But City Hall Lots.

Attorney Smith presented and had read a letter from Senator Jones to the effect that he and Representative Johnson had in mind the introduction of bills in the houses of congress to the end that the settlers on block 32, with the exception of lots 8, 9, and 10, might secure title to their claims. If this program was satisfactory to the city he would like a resolution by the council endorsing such action.

Dustman objected to city working for any but city. Favored any action which would get city the property occupied by city hall. City attorney which would get city the property ocnose off by adopting such a resolution. Fisher thought city's nose off now. City is occupying lots 9 and 10 under a revokable lease from the government, and will get in no worse by allowing other settlers to get their propetty. Government has sent word here that they have made a technical examination of the property and are willing to release all but the 150x140 feet named. Government might use this land some day and might not, and if not, city would undoubtedly be given first right to same. He thought it very important to city as well as to claimants that all the rest of the block be put on tax rolls so that improvement tax could also be levied. Fisher moved that a committee of two with city attorney, be named to draft a suitable resolution for adoption by council, carried. Fisher and Dustman named.

The Angeles Water Co., replying to request of city, offered to sell water plant to city for $80,000, one-half cash and balance in bonds. Filed.

Mary Cochran presented a claim for $92 for horse killed by breaking a leg in Valley street extension. Referred to city attorney.

Property owners abutting Front street west of Oak for 100 feet asked that they be declared in on assessment district. No. 11 and that additional cost of improving the 100 feet in front of their property be charged against said property. granted.

Warren Morse asked the privilege of removing the building now on lot 20, block 15, to lot 3, same to be used for storage purposes until completion of new building covering all of lot 20 then to be torn down. Granted provided same is remved facing alley.

Lew Thompson appeared before council for information as to whether abutting property on Lincoln street is assessed specially for the piling and planking of Lincoln street full width and as to whether property abutting Laurel will have to pay additional for like work. Advised yes, in both instances. Laurel street will be improved under present plans only 140 feet north of Front street, dock people will have to care for 30 feet wharf approach and property owners balance, if full width street is desired.

Plans and specifications for improvement of First street west of Oak and Valley, First to Second, were approved.

Ordinance was presented by Shields, fixing carnival licenses at $50 per day. Read twice and referred.

The franchise of the Milwaukee Terminal Co. went over one week. After reading Mr. Shank's letter giving the identity of the petitioners, the engineers produced plat and ordinance stating that he was unable to work out the points. Laid over for correction. The franchise is absolutely unintelligible to the most attentive listener, but the engineer advised council that it was simply for a crossing of a couple of streets and alleys in vicinity of Front and Tumwater streets, rest to be secured by purchase or condemnation.

The time of hearing objections as to the improvement of Lincoln street having arrived, Clerk Beam notified council there were no objections filed.

Take Plenty of Time to Eat.

There is a saying that "rapid eating is slow suicide." If you have formed the habit of eating too rapidlyyou are most likely suffering from indigestion or constipation, which will result eventually in serious illness unless corrected. Digestion begins in the mouth. Food should be thoroughly masticated and insalivated. Then when you have a fullness of the stomach or feel dull and stupid after eating, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets. Many severe cases of stomach trouble and constipation have been cured by the use of these tablets. They are easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Sold by all dealers.

WILL OPEN UP A MILLION ACRES

Milwaukee's Olympic Branch Opens Vast Area of Uncultivated Lands.

Within the next few weeks the first arrivals of coming European immigration will land on these shores looking for that which is a cherished aspiration in the European heart, but which in Europe is practically unrealizable— land. Land for a home, land on which to bring up a family, land on which to perfect citizens for the state.

Despite the efforts made by the last state legislature no concerted effort has been made to place unreclaimed land upon the market in sufficient quantities and at such prices as will accommodate the newcomers. Here and there are several parcels of land fitted for such settlers, some in this and some in adjoining counties, some farther afield. But whether the settler takes up land within a mile of the city limits or whether he is 150 miles from this city, Seattle, as the Gateway of the Northwest, is equally benefitted. The one drawback to the Coast is the difficulty of the return cargo to ocean vessels bringing in the imports. The only way to obtain exports which will inure altogether to the permanent well being of the city and state is to produce them. Looking to that end land is the primary factor.

Not too Far Afield.

Up till quite recently the Olympic peninsula, owing to the lack of direct rail transportation, was considered too far afield. The northern edges of Jefferson and Clallam counties have been partially peopled for two generations. This has limited the domestic market and the lines of successful industry, and further because of that lack of a local market, has cut down to infinitesimal proportions the export trade. This condition of affairs is now coming to an end, first by the establishment oftheMilwaukee branch into the Olympic peninsula, now under construction and being pushed to completion, and next by the construction of a power plant on the Elwha which has rendered the successful prosecution of large industry possible. Thus the building, as one example, of the million dollar lumber and shingle mills of Michael Earles at Port Angeles.

With power and transportation everything would seem to be provided except the land and the resources of nature. Those are also to be had. The Olympics are a treasure house of mineral and of oil. Their slopes are covered with a forest which is unexcelled in the Northwest, a statement fully borne out by the facts and noteworthy inasmuch as it is the last grand stand of timber left upon this continent.

Over a Million Acres.

Land is there also. Streching from the junction of the Straits of Juan de Fuca with Puget sound to the open Pacific ocean, lying between the foothills of the Olympics and the narrow seas, there is a strip of well watered land averaging twenty miles in breath and running 100 miles westward from the Sound to Cape Flattery the westernmost point of the United States. That is to say over a million acres, enough to provide a home for many thousands of settlers.

Owing to the topography of this country the climate widely varies. At the westernmost point, on the Neah Bay Indian reservation, the rainfall is greater than anywhere else in the United States. At its eastern extremity the rainfall is insufficient except it be supplemented by artificial irrigation. Yet everywhere the climate is mild and to realize winter the dweller therein must look to the snows of the Olympics to the south.

Many Flourishing Towns

Naturally the first settlements have come at the eastern end, nearer to the great centers of population upon Puget sound, and thus to a market. Here are flourishing towns such as Port Townsend and Port Angeles, with Sequim, an entireiy agricultural section with but 2,000 acres of land productive out of a cultivable 30,000, lying between. Westward lie Port Crescent and many a smaller town. Here is the natural home of the settler. The land is there, the climate mild, the prices reasonable, irrigation procurable, cheap power and light and transportation to the Sound markets accessible within three or four hours. Here land may be procured in greater quantities together than elsewhere upon Puget sound, and yet possess the same facilities. Today it is largely a dairying country, but the new transportation will make possible intensified farming, for it is bringing the market and the land together.

The Board then adjourned until Tuesday, June 2, 1914, at 9:00 a. m.

Tuesday, June 2, 1914, at 9 a. m.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment all members being present.

At 10 o'clock, the Board proceeded to the consideration of bids for road work as called for, first opening bids for that section of the bonded road from Blyn to the County line, finding the same as follows:

Henry,Brothers, $14,424.90; Myers & Myers, $17,691.64; Rowan & Anderson, $15,889.40; Mattson & Carleson, $14,857.56; Ferch & Gass, $17,494.95; Dunn & Hogan, $14,985.98, and Sloane Brothers, $14,647.96.

The bid of the Henry Bros. being considered the lowest and best bid received, they were awarded the contract.

Bids upon Permanent Highway No 3 were as follows:

Henry Brothers, $10,100.00; and Ferch & Gass, $12,584.30. The contract was awarded to Henry Bros.

Bids for the construction of a bridge across Freshwater Creek on the Port Crescent road were as follow:

Henry Brothers, $1,823.00; P. J. Woods, $2,606.70; Harry A. Cotton, $2,252.00; Angeles Pile Driving Co., $2,007.00; G. A. Marsh, $1,991.39; Ferch & Gass, $2,454.25. Contract was awarded to Henry Brothers.

Bids for the construction of 4½ miles of the Port Crescent road were as follows:

Ferch & Gass, $13,449.40, and Sloane Brothers, 13,835.40 These bids were deemed to be too high and the Board rejected same, giving until Thursday, June 4th inst., at 10 o'clock a. m., for amended bids to be filed.

The Board then adjourned until Wednesday, June 3, 1914, at 9:00 a. m.

Wednesday, June 3, 1914, at 9:00 a. m.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment, all members being present.

The Board went in a body to Blyn, there being several matters to be investigated and attended to pertaining to roads and right-of-way for roads.

Upon returning, the Board adjourned until Thursday June 4, 1914, at 9:00 a. m.

Thursday, June 4, 1914, at 9 a. m.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment, all members being present.

At 10 o'clock the Board took up the matter of bids on the Port Angeles-Port Crescent road, finding same as follows:

Ferch & Gass bid $13,449.40; Harry A. Cotton bid $11,834.50,and Sloane Bros. bid $11,806.50. The bid of Sloane Bros. being considered the lowest and best, and a reasonable bid, they were awarded the contract.

The health officer reported that there are now no cases of contagious diseases in the County, and that the quarantine in the East End of the County on account of diptheria, and in the West End on account of smallpox, had been lifted. He also reported having looked into the matter of toilets on boats plying on Lake Crescent, and into the matter of sewerage at the Sol Duc Hot Springs.

The Board entered into contracts with Henry Bros. for the road from Blyn to the County line, for Permanent Highway No. 3, and for the bridge across Freshwater Creek on the Port Angeles-Port Crescent road.

Bonds furnished by Henry Bros. upon the above named contracts were duly approved by the Board.

The Board examined the following claims and ordered warrants drawn for same as follows:

FEELING THE TARIFF

Among business men nowadays we often hear it remarked that from this time forth, for at least a twelvemonth, the country will feel the effect of the new tariff law as it has not been felt hitherto. Probably this is true. Obviously a tariff change, the effects of which were entirely imperceptable, would have been entirely useless. There is no reasonable doubt that a majority of the people of this country had reached a firm conviction that the tariff was too high and should be radically revised. Certainly they did not expect the revision to go no further than to change some figures on the statute book. They expected it to have some effect on prices. Probably that effect is now beginning to be felt, says the Saturday Evening Post.

Oddly enough the loudest complaints we have encountered come from the South, where steel men declare that English, German and Belgian bars and billets are coming in at prices they can not meet. The Democratic answer is that, possessing such natural advantages as we do, if we cannot compete with English, German and Belgian manufacturers, after they have paid the freight, we had better shut up shop and buy our steel abroad.

More is made of the importations of corn from Argentina into the Mississippi Valley, resulting in a considerable depression of the price of the cereal at Chicago. Our corn crop in 1913 was twenty per cent smaller than in the year before. As compared with the average of the three preceding years, it fell short about twelve per cent, and the average of the three preceding years was only about equal to consumption. With a deficit in home production the price of corn might have gone somewhat higher than it has. A greater number of immature food animals might have been rushed to market because the owners would not buy the higher-priced corn with which to feed them, which would have resulted in a greater shortage of beef and mutton in the future and still higher prices for meat; but certainly all that would have been no economic gain to the country. Importing some of Argentina's surplus corn is a more rational and profitable arrangement. And at this writing corn at Chicago is fifteen per cent higher than it was a year ago.

Probably in the next twelvemonth we shall feel some effects of the new tariff; but that is no condemnation of the act. On the contrary it was for precisely that it was passed.

Proposals --- Notice to Contractors.

Notice is herby given that sealed bids will be received by the City Clerk of the City of Port Angeles, Washington, until June 16th, 1914, until 8 o'clock p. m. (and not later) at the Clerk's office in the City Hall in said City, for the furnishing of all necessary labor and material for the Improvement of the following named streets: Albert street, Eunice street, Race street, Washington street, Chambers street, Jones street, Liberty street, Ennis street, Columbia street, Caroline street, Georgiana street, Front street, First, Second, Third Fourth and Fifth streets.

Said work to be done in strict conformity with the Plans and Specifications now on file in the City Clerk's office.

Blank forms of proposal and contract may be seen and obtained at the office of the City Clerk.

All bids must be accompanied bya certified check in a sum of not less than five (5) per cent of the amount bid, and must be made payable to the order of the City Treasurer of the City of Port Angeles, Washington.

Bond for fifty (50) per cent of the amount of the contract price must be furnished by the successful bidder.

Plans and specifications may be obtained from the City Clerk upon depositing a sum of $10.00 for the return of same, which sum will be returned if plans and specifications are returned to Clerk's office before time of opening bids.

All bids must be accompanied by certified check as called for or bid will not be considered.

The City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

By order of the City Council of the City of Port Angels, May 26, 1914.

J. L. BEAM,
City Clerk.

The Abysmal Brute

By JACK LONDON

Copyright, 1913, by The Century Co.

PROLOGUE.

Few authors living today have the force and directness, the rugged strength and vitality of style of Jack London. This new novel is one of his best. It is a story of the prize ring, a real man's story, big and vigorous and thrilling. Behind the tense life, the excitement of the fight itself, one can see in reading it the crookedness, the devious ways of the keen witted men who stage the big fight and reap the profits. More than this, one can see into the soul of the Abysmal Brute himself, one of the strangest, most human and fascinating characters London has ever drawn, a bruiser who is a scholar as well, who is honest and clean and innocent up to the moment of his disillusionment—a veritable cross section of a strange phase of American life.

CHAPTER I.

SAM STUBENER ran through his mail carelessly and rapidly. As became a manager of prize fighters, he was accustomed to a various and bizarre correspondence. Every crank, sport, near sport and reformer seemed to have ideas to impart to him.

From dire threats against his life to milder threats, such as pushing in the front of his face, from rabbit foot fetishes to lucky horseshoes, from dinky jerkwater bids to the quarter of a million offers of irresponsible nobodies, he knew the whole run of the surprise portion of his mail. In his time having received a razor strop made from the skin of a lynched negro and a finger, withered and sun dried, cut from the body of a white man found in Death valley, he was of the opinion that never again would the postman bring him anything that could startle him.

But this morning he opened a letter that he read a second time, put away in his pocket and took out for a third reading. It was postmarked from some unheard of postoffice in Siskiyou county, and it ran:

Dear Sam—You don't know me, except my reputation. You come after my time, and I've been out of the game a long time. But, take it from me, I ain't been asleep. I've followed the whole game, and I've followed you from the time Kai Aufman knocked you out of your last handling of Nat Belson, and I take it you're the niftiest thing in the line of managers that ever came down the pike.

I got a proposition for you. I got the greatest unknown that ever happened. This ain't con. It's the straight goods. What do you think of a husky that tips the scales at 220 pounds fighting weight, is twenty-two years old and can hit a kick twice as hard as my best ever?

That's him, my boy, Young Pat Glendon, that's the name he'll fight under. I've planned it all out. Now, the best thing you can do is hit the first train and come up here.

I bred him, and I trained him. All that I ever had in my head I've hammered into his. And maybe you won't believe it, but he's added to it. He's a born fighter. He's a wonder at time and distance. He just knows to the second and the inch, and he don't have to think about it at all. His six inch jolt is more the real sleep medicine than the full arm swing of most geezers.

Talk about the hope of the white race. This is him. Come and take a peep. When you was managing Jeffries you was crazy about hunting.

Come along and I'll give you some real hunting and fishing that will make your moving picture winnings look like 30 cents. I'll send Young Pat out with you. I ain't able to get around. That's why I'm sending for you.

I was going to manage him myself, but it ain't no use. I'm all in and likely to pass out any time So get a move on. I want you to manage him. There's a fortune in it for both of you, but I want to draw up the contract. Yours truly, on the face of it, a joke—the men in the fighting game were notorious jokers—and he tried to discern the fine hand of Corbett or the big friendly paw of Fitzsimmons in the screed before him. But if it were genuine, he knew it was worth looking into.

Pat Glendon was before his time, though, as a cub, he had once seen Old Pat spar at the benefit for Jack Dempsey. Even then he was called "Old" Pat and had been out of the ring for years. He had antedated Sullivan in the old London prize ring rules, though his last fading battles had been put up under the incoming Marquis of Queensberry rules.

What ring follower did not know of Pat Glendon?—though few were alive who had seen him in his prime, and there were not many more who had seen him at all.

Yet his name had come down in the history of the ring, and no sporting writer's lexicon was complete without it. His fame was paradoxical.

No man was honored higher, and yet he had never attained championship honors. He had been unfortunate and had been known as the unlucky fighter.

Four times he all but won the heavyweight championship, and each time he had deserved to win it. There was the time on the barge, in San Francisco bay, when, at the moment he had the championship going, he snapped his own forearm, and on the island in the Thames, sloshing about in six inches of rising tide, he broke a leg at a similar stage in a winning fight. In Texas, too, there was the never to be forgotten day when the police broke in just as he had his man going in all certainty.

And finally, there was the fight in the Mechanics' pavilion in San Francisco, when he was secretly jobbed from the first by a gun fighting bad man of a referee backed by a small syndicate of bettors. Pat Glendon had had no accidents in that fight, but when he had knocked his man cold with a right to the jaw and a left to the solar plexus, the referee calmly disqualified him for fouling. Every ringside witness, every sporting expert, and the whole sporting world knew there had been no foul.

Yet, like all fighters, Pat Glendon had agreed to abide by the decision of the referee. Pat abided and accepted it as in keeping with the rest of his bad luck.

This was Pat Glendon. What bothered Stubener was whether or not Pat had written the letter. He carried it downtown with him.

"What's become of Pat Glendon?" Such was his greeting to all sports that morning. Nobody seemed to know. Some thought he must be dead, but none knew positively. The fight editor of a morning daily looked up the records and was able to state that his death had not been noted. It was from Tim Donovan that he got a clew.

"Sure an' he ain't dead," said Donovan. "How could that be—a man of his make that never boozed or blew himself? He made money and, what's more, he saved it and invested it. Didn't he have three saloons at one time? An' wasn't he makin' slathers of money with them when he sold out?

"Now that I'm thinkin', that was the last time I laid eyes on him—when he sold them out. 'T was all of twenty years and more ago. His wife had just died. I met him headin' for the ferry. 'Where away, old sport?' says I. 'It's me for the woods,' says he. 'I've quit. Goodby, Tim, me boy.' And I've never seen him from that day to this. Of course he ain't dead."

"You say when his wife died—did he have any children?" Stubener queried.

"One, a little baby. He was luggin' it in his arms that very day."

"Was it a boy?"

"How should I be knowin'?"

It was then that Sam Stubener

The Fight Editor Was Able to State That His Death Had Not Been Noted.

reached a decision, and that night found him in a Pullman speeding toward the wilds of northern California.

Stubener was dropped off the overland at Deer Lick in the early morning, and he kicked his heels for an hour before the saloon opened its doors.

No, the saloon keeper didn't know anything about Pat Glendon, had never heard of him, and if he was in that part of the country he must be out beyond somewhere. Neither had the one hanger on ever heard of Pat Glendon.

At the hotel the same ignorance obtained, and it was not until the storekeeper Stubener struck the trail. Oh, yes; Pat Glendon lived out beyond. You took the stage at Alpine, which was forty miles and which was a logging camp. From Alpine, on horseback, you rode up Antelope valley and crossed the divide to Bear creek. Pat Glendon lived somewhere beyond that. The people of Alpine would know.

Yes, there was a young Pat. The storekeeper had seen him. He had been into Deer Lick two years back. Old Pat had not put in an appearance for five years. He bought his supplies at the store and always paid by check, and he was a white haired strange old man. That was all the storekeeper knew, but the folks at Alpine could give him final directions.

It looked good to Stubener. Beyond doubt there was a young Pat Glendon, as well as an old one, living out beyond.

That night the manager spent at the logging camp of Alpine, and early the following morning he rode a mountain cayuse up Antelope valley. He rode over the divide and down Bear creek. He rode all day through the wildest, roughest country he had ever seen, and at sunset turned up Pinto valley on a trail so stiff and narrow that more than once he elected to get off and walk.

"Jeffries could 'a' worried the young un a bit."

It was 11 o'clock when he dismounted before a log cabin and was greeted by the baying of two huge deerhounds. Then Pat Glendon opened the door, fell on his neck and took him in.

"I knew ye'd come, Sam, me boy," said Pat, the while he limped about, building a fire, boiling coffee and frying a bear steak. "The young un ain't home the night. We was gettin' short of meat, and he went out about sundown to pick up a deer. But I'll say no more. Wait till ye see him. He'll be home in the morn, and then you can try him out. There's the gloves. But wait till ye see him.

"As for me, I'm finished. Eighty-one come next January an' pretty good for an ex-bruiser. But I never wasted meself, Sam, nor kept late hours an' burned the candle at all ends. I had a dashed good candle an' made the most of it, as you'll grant at lookin' at me. And I've taught the same to the young un. What do you think of a lad of twenty-two that's never had a drink in his life nor tasted tobacco? That's him.

"He's a giant, and he's lived natural all his days. Wait till he takes you out after deer. He'll break your heart travelin' light, him a-carryin' the outfit and a big buck deer belike. He's a child of the open air an' winter nor summer has he slept under a roof. The open for him, as I taught him.

"The one thing that worries me is how he'll take to sleepin' in houses an' how he'll stand the tobacco smoke in the ring. 'Tis a terrible thing, that smoke, when you're fighting hard an' gaspin' for air. But no more, Sam, me boy. You're tired an' sure should be sleepin'. Wait till you see him, that's all. Wait till you see him."

But the garrulousness of age was on old Pat, and it was long before he permitted Stubener's eyes to close.

"He can run a deer down with his own legs, that young un," he broke out again. "'Tis the dandy trainin' for the lungs, the hunter's life. He don't know much of else, though he's read a few books at times an' poetry stuff. He's just plain pure natural, as you'll see when you clap eyes on him. He's got the old Irish strong in him.

"Sometimes, the way he moons about, it's thinkin' strong I am that he believes in the fairies and such like. He's a nature lover if ever there was one, an' he's afeard of cities. He's read about them, but the biggest he was ever in was Deer Lick. He misliked the many people, and his report was that they'd stand weedin' out. That was two years agone—the first and the last time he's seen a locomotive and a train of cars.

"Sometimes it's wrong I'm thinkin' I am, bringin' him up a natural. It's given him wind and stamina and the strength of wild bulls. No city grown man can have a look-in against him. I'm willin' to grant that Jeffries at his best could 'a' worried the young un a bit, but only a bit. The young un could 'a' broke him like a straw. An' he don't look it. That's the everlasting wonder of it. He's only a fine seeming young husky; but it's the quality of his muscle that's different. But wait till ye see him, that's all.

"A strange liking the boy has for posies, an' little meadows, a bit of pine with the moon beyond, windy sunsets Baldy. An' he has a hankerin' for the drawin' o' pitchers of things, an' of spouting about 'Lucifer or night' from the poetry books he got from the red headed school teacher.

"But 'tis only his youngness. He'll settle down to the game once we get him started, but watch out for grouches when it first comes to livin' in a city for him."

CHAPTER

"A GOOD thing; he's woman shy. They'll not bother him for years," continued Old Pat. "He can't bring himself to understand the creatures, an' few of them has he seen at that. 'Twas the schoolteacher over at Samson's Flat that put the poetry stuff in his head. She was clean daffy over the young 'un, an' he never a-knowin'.

"A warm haired girl she was—not a mountain girl, but from down in the flat lands—an' as time went by she was fair desperate, an' the way she went after him was shameless. An' what d'ye think the boy did when he tumbled to it? He was scared as a jackrabbit. He took blankets an' ammunition an' hiked for tall timber.

"Not for a month did I lay eyes on him, an' then he sneaked in after dark and was gone in the morn. Nor would he as much as peep at her letters. 'Burn 'em,' he said. An' burn 'em I did. Twice she rode over on a cayuse all the way from Samson's Flat, an' I was sorry for the young creature. She was fair hungry for the boy, and she looked it in her face. An' at the end of three months she gave up school an' went back to her own country, an' then it was that the boy came home to the shack to live again.

"Women ha' been the ruination of many a good fighter, but they won't be of him. He blushes like a girl if anything young in skirts looks at him a second time or too long on the first one. An' they all look at him. But when he fights, when he fights! It', the old savage Irish that flares in him, an' drives the fists of him.

"Not that he goes off his base. Don't walk away with that. At my best I was never as cool as he. I misdoubt 'twas the wrath of me that brought the accidents. But he's an iceberg. He's hot an' cold at the one time, a live wire in an ice chest."

Stubener was dozing when the old man's mumble aroused him. He listened drowsily.

"I made a man o' him! I made a man o' him, with the two fists of him, an' the upstanding legs of him, an' the straight seein' eyes. And I know the game in my head, an' I've kept up with the times and the modern changes. The crouch?

"Sure, he knows all the styles an' economies. He never moves two inches when an inch and a half will do the turn. And when he wants he can spring like a buck kangaroo. Infightin'? Wait till you see. Better than his outfightin', and he could sure 'a' sparred with Peter Jackson an' outfooted Corbett in his best. I tell you, I've taught 'm it all, to the last trick, and he's improved on the teachin'. He's a fair genius at the game.

"An' he's had plenty of husky mountain men to try out on. I gave him the fancy work and they gave him the sluggin'. Nothing shy or delicate about them. Roarin' bulls an' big grizzly bears, that's what they are, when it comes to huggin' in a clinch or swingin' roughlike in the rushes. An' he plays with 'em. Man, d'ye hear me? He plays with them, like you an' me would play with little puppy dogs."

Another time Stubener awoke, to hear the old man mumbling:

"'Tis the funny think he don't take fightin' seriously. It's that easy to him he thinks it play. But wait till he's tapped a swift one. That's all—wait. An' you'll see 'm throw on the juice in that cold storage plant of his an' turn loose the prettiest scientific wallopin' that ever you laid eyes on."

In the shivery gray of mountain dawn Stubener was routed from his blankets by old Pat.

"He's comin' up the trail now," was the hoarse whisper. "Out with ye an' take your first peep at the biggest fightin' man the ring has ever seen, or will ever see in a thousand years again."

The manager peered through the open door, rubbing the sleep from his heavy eyes, and saw a young giant walk into the clearing. In one hand was a rifle, across his shoulders a heavy deer, under which he moved as if it were weightless.

He was dressed roughly in blue overalls and woolen shirt, open at the throat. Coat he had none, and on his feet instead of brogans were moccasins. Stubener noted that his walk was smooth and catlike, without suggestion of his 220 pounds of weight to which that of the deer was added.

The fight manager was impressed from the first glimpse. Formidable the young fellow certainly was, but the manager sensed the strangeness and unusualness of him. He was a new type, something different from the run of fighters.

He seemed a creature of the wild, more a night roaming figure from some old fairy story or folk tale than a twentieth century youth.

A thing Stubener quickly discovered was that young Pat was not much of a talker. He acknowledged old Pat's introduction with a grip of the hand, but without speech, and silently set to work at building the fire and getting breakfast.

To his father's direct questions he answered in monosyllables, as, for instance, when asked where he had picked up the deer.

"South fork," was all he vouchsafed.

"Eleven miles across the mountains," the old man exposited pridefully to Stubener, "an' a trail that'd break your heart."

sour dough bread and an immense quantity of bear meat broiled over the coals. Of this the young fellow ate ravenously, and Stubener divined that both the Glendons were accustomed to an almost straight meat diet.

Old Pat did all the talking, though it was not till the meal was ended that he broached the subject he had at heart.

"Pat, boy," he began, "you know who the gentleman is?"

Young Pat nodded and cast a quick, comprehensive glance at the manager.

"Well, he'll be takin' you away with him and down to San Francisco."

"I'd sooner stay here, dad," was the answer.

Stubener felt a prick of disappointment. It was a wild goose chase after all. This was no fighter, eager and fretting to be at it. His huge brawn counted for nothing. It was nothing new. It was the big fellows that usually had the streak of fat.

But old Pat's Celtic wrath flared up and his voice was harsh with command.

"You'll go down to the cities an' fight, me boy. That's what I've trained you for an' you'll do it."

"All right," was the unexpected response, rumbled apathetically from the deep chest.

"And fight like ——," the old man added.

Again Stubener felt disappointment at the absence of flash and fire in the young man's eyes as he answered:

"All right. When do we start?"

"Oh, Sam, here, he'll be wantin' a little huntin' and to fish a bit as well as to try you out with the gloves."

He looked at Sam, who nodded. "Suppose you strip and give 'm a taste of your quality."

An hour later Sam Stubener had his eyes opened. An ex-fighter himself, a heavyweight at that, he was even a better judge of fighters, and never had he seen one strip to like advantage.

"See the softness of him," old Pat chanted. "'Tis the true stuff. Look at the slope of the shoulders an' the lungs of him. Clean, all clean, to the last drop an' ounce of him. You're lookin' at a man, Sam, the like of which was never seen before. Not a muscle of him bound.

"No weight lifter or Sandow exercise artist there. See the fat snakes of muscles a-crawlin' soft an' lazylike. Wait till you see them flashin' like a strikin' rattler. He's good for forty rounds this blessed instant, or a hundred. Go to it! Time!"

They went to it, for three minute rounds with a minute rests, and Sam Stubener was immediately undeceived.

Here was no streak of fat, no apathy, only a lazy, good natured play of gloves and tricks, with a brusque stiffness and harsh sharpness in the contacts that he knew belonged only to the trained and instinctive fighting man.

"Easy, now, easy," old Pat warned. "Sam's not the man he used to be."

This nettled Sam, as it was intended to do, and he played his most famous trick and favorite punch—a feint for a clinch and a right rip to the stomach. But, quickly as it was delivered young Pat saw it and, though it landed, his body was going away.

The next time his body did not go away. As the rip started he moved forward and twisted his left hip to meet it. It was only a matter of several inches, yet it blocked the blow.

And thereafter, try as he would, Stubener's gloves got no farther than that hip.

Stubener had roughed it with big men in his time, and, in exhibition bouts, had creditably held his own. But there was no holding his own here.

Young Pat played with him, and in the clinches made him feel as powerless as a baby, landing on him seemingly at will, locking and blocking with masterful accuracy and scarcely noticing or acknowledging his existence.

Half the time young Pat seemed to spend in gazing off and out at the landscape in a dreamy sort of way. And right here Stubener made another mistake. He took it for a trick of old Pat's training, tried to sneak in a short arm jolt, found his arm in a lightning lock and had both his ears cuffed for his pains.

"The instinct for a blow," the old man chortled. "'Tis not put on, I'm tellin' you. He is a wiz. He knows a blow without the lookin', when it starts an' where, the speed an' space an' niceness of it. An' 'tis nothing I ever showed him. 'Tis inspiration.

Once in a clinch the fight manager heeled his glove on young Pat's mouth, and there was just a hint of viciousness in the manner of doing it. A moment later, in the next clinch, Sam received the heel of the other's glove on his own mouth.

There was nothing snappy about it, but the pressure, stolidly lazy as it was, put his head back till the joints cracked, and for the moment he thought his neck was broken. He slacked his body and dropped his arms in token that the bout was over, felt the instant release and staggered clear.

"He'll—he'll do!" he gasped, looking the admiration he lacked the breath to utter.

The Abysmal Brute

Life among two fisted men is Jack London's text, and he sticks to it.

He tells of existence and of men as he has found them—from the Bering sea to the south sea islands.

The experiences of his characters have been his own. That is what makes them real men.

Add to his contact with life and his capacity of keeping vivid impressions of it a power to make his readers feel with him and you catch hold of the secret of his great power over his readers.

Few living men equal London in "getting down to facts." He has the ability of making the word fit the scene, of telling a story in a phrase, of revealing a life in a chapter.

When you finish a London story you have lived with the characters. They are not men and women of straw, set up to fill out an idle hour.

They are living, breathing, feeling, suffering, triumphant human beings.

Jack London is only thirty-eight years old. In twenty years he has crowded more real life than most men do in a long lifetime.

He left college to go to the Klondike, and his farewell to book schools was permanent. Since then he has learned his lessons before the mast, in Japan, seal hunting in the arctic, tramping through the United States and Canada and as a war correspondent in the Russo-Japanese war.

Thousands of men and women have heard him lecture and have felt as they heard his strong, sincere voice that they were listening to a real man among men.

In "The Abysmal Brute" he has chosen a novel theme and handled it with an art that holds the reader's interest from first word to "finis."

LINCOLN HEIGHTS

What a splendid rain we had last Sunday and how much we needed it to enliven vegetation and wash off some of the dust; this street improving has given us more than we usually have.

There was quite a surprise and a very enjoyable time at Mr. A. H. Hall's last Sunday when twenty-five (not including the babies) of relatives and friends congregated there with baskets well filled, wishing to have another dinner with them ere they left us for their new home. Some were detained at home on account of the rain and surely missed a good time. Mr. Hall is moving this week and Mr. Burgman getting things fixed ready for his relatives who are expected to arrive soon and who will occupy the house during their stay here.

Mrs. J. A. Epperson was in town Tusday visiting her daughters, Mrs. Haworth and Mrs. Jackson.

Miss Lorena Ester went to Bellingham Sunday to attend Normal.

Little Miss Alice Ristine is enjoying a birthday party to-day (Wednesday,) with a number of her girl friends, it being her third anniversary.

Some of our boys rode their wheels over to Central to attend the school exercises Friday evening but were obliged to walk home. Why? Because their wheels were tampered with; the wind let out. Perhaps the ones who did the deed called it fun, but the victims view it differently and hereafter will leave their wheels at home or have a watch.

One of the men working on C street was rather seriously hurt Wednesday afternoon and was taken to the General Hospital.

EDEN GRADUATION

Eighth grade graduation exercises were held at the Eden school, district thirteen, last Tuesday night. The graduates, Lucy Blater, Ethel Long, Edith Larson William Long, and Joseph Marletti comprised the entire eighth grade class of the school. The exercises were not planned until Monday, when examination returns were received, but the preparation would have justified a longer period. The ladies, under the leadership of Mesdames Larson and Johnson, Tuesday afternoon transformed the school room into a veritable bower of beauty. Climbing vines, ferns and flowers were arranged in tasty and orderly profusion. Class of 1914 motto was worked in cedar boughs at the front of the room. The following program was rendered: Instrumental music by Miss Clarke, recitations, Ethel Long, Lucy Blater Lester Johnson, Hilda Larson, and readings by Miss Ida Robinson, Ethel Long and Willie Long. After the usual manner in Eden, a number of songs were sung, in which all participated. Mr. R. M. Johnson, clerk of the school board presented the diplomas. After the program, the ladies served a delightful refreshment of cake and lemonade.

FAIRVIEW.

Mrs. Claude Lewis and children are visiting at the Berlingeutte home this week.

Every one enjoyed the dance last Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winters, who are now making their home at Eden, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Winters for a couple of weeks.

Mrs. Danz of Weaver, was a guest of Mrs. O. Winters for a couple of days last week.

Sam Emery, the new Fairview and Blue Mountain lineman, was repairing telephones here a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlow of Mt. Pleasant spent last Tuesday at the Luke home.

Mr. Ralph Chambers of Seattle spent Saturday with his brother, Willis and family.

Mrs. Chapman and son arrived from Morton, Washington, for a few weeks visit at the Fosset home.

Mr. W. P. Nicholls of Port Angeles spent a couple of days at his ranch here last week.

Jim Jacobs has gone back to his summer work on the forest reserve.

Mr. and Mrs. Chambers spent last Sunday at Lake Sutherland.

A large cooling tank and concrete floor has been put in the cooling and bottling room at the Fairview Dairy. Mr. O'Brien is making every effort to give his customers good, clean, pure milk and cream.

On June 4th, Mr. Phillip McCumber and Mrs. Robert Winters entertained the F. L. C. at the McCumber home at Eden, Mr. Caskey's auto was hired by the club and Mr. and Mrs. Chambers very kindly donated the use of their auto for the day. Both cars were well filled. The ladies arrived at Eden at 12:30 where they found a heavily laden table awaiting them. After a few minutes of greetings, etc., all were seated and the load on the table immediately began to grow lighter. Time passed quickly and soon the ladies of Eden began to gather to meet the ladies of Fairview, when all had arrived, about 3:30, another luncheon, fit for a king, was served. Time for departure came on wings and as the ladies made their way homeward they each declared that outing to be the best ever and one not to be forgotten soon.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY

WEST END NEWS

Miss Sophie Schutz, who has been attending high school at Port Angeles, returned to her home on the Soiduck last Saturday. She walked over the trail from Lake Crescent.

Dan Shearer, bridge builder from the West End, returned from a trip to Portland, Oregon, and brought himself back a bride, a young lady from Oregon. His many friends in the West End are wishing them a prosperous and happy journey thru life.

Earnest Fletcher brought an auto in to the West End and is now ready to make trips between Clallam and Forks at any time. Jake Hahn also makes trips for parties but has no regular schedule fixed as yet.

Bids have been made by several parties from the West End for the mail contract between Mora and Clallam Bay. This will be the third time this job has been bid on and most likely will be let now as the present contract expires July 1st, 1914, and the present contractors are anxious to complete their job.

Wahlgreen Bros. have the contract to gravel the section of the Beaver-Fairholme road extending from the Lacy farm to the end of the Fair-service contract, and it is reported that a goodly job is being done by these men. They are having some difficulty in finding a good gravel pit on the section across Bear creek toward Fairholme.

John C. Grader returned last week to Forks with a bran new seven passenger Cadillac motor car, the first one of its kind to arrive in the West End. Mr. Grader intends to use his car for himself and family in touring across the country during the summer months.

Mr. James Clark returned to the West End after a week's session at Port Angeles, transacting business for the County.

The forest fires which have been raging for the last two weeks in the vicinity of the Solduck and Bear creek are considerably quenched by the last heavy rain which fell last Saturday and Sunday in the West End. There are hundreds of snags smoldering in various sections but the different fire wardens are at work felling these snags and extinguishing the fires so that after the timber dries out in July and August there will be no fire to start a forest fire again later in the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cowen from Neah Bay are the proud parents of a baby boy. The young man will be named after his two grandfathers, John Nels. Mrs. Cowen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Nelson and before her marriage was very popular among the younger set.

Miss Elizebeth Oberg, who has spent the last few years in Hoquiam came into the West End to spend a few days with her mother and other relatives at their home on Bear creek.

Miss Selma Carlson returned to her home after spending the school year in Port Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rainy had an accident which proved quite serious, in a run-away last week. Mrs. Rainy was badly bruised and is unable to be around. The team became frightened on a down grade and Mr. Rainy was unable to control them.

John Schutz, Jr., spent a few days at Quillayute last week looking over some timber sections.

Mrs. Remp is spending a few days with her husband who is the inspector on the Bear creek bridge. Mr. and Mrs. Remp are the guests at the Sappho Hotel while in the West End.

Joseph Hamilton from Beaver was a business visitor to Port Angeles last week.

Mrs. Morgan Terwillegar spent last Thursday as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ross at Beaver.

Mr. Arthur Quay from the Lacy farm left last week for Port Angeles where he was summoned to attend his father, who has been seriously ill but is now on the road to recovery.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. George Brooks are glad to hear of their recent marriage at Port Angeles. Both young people are well known in the West End and they have the best wishes of every one for a happy and prosperous journey thru life.

Mrs. Rudisile from Spokane, mother of J. F. Rudisile from Clallam Bay Hotel, is spending the summer with her son and many friends at Clallam Bay.

Clallam Bay is having a boom in the shape of a new logging camp which is just being installed and is expecting to operate in the near future by Goodyear Logging Co.

C. J. Schnieder is busy on his farm on Bear creek getting in his garden and getting plans ready for his new residence.

Miss Hazel Murray closed a successful term of school at Clallam Bay last week. Miss Murray is contemplating attending the State College at Pullman this fall, but the school board is anxious to sign the contract for the coming year, making it her third term at the school at Clallam Bay.

READING CLUB CLOSES VERY SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Mrs. R. D. Willson and Mrs. John Willson were hostesses to the Port Angeles Reading Culb last Friday afternoon, at the home of the latter. After the election of officers, and delegates to the State Federation at Raymond in July, Mrs. R. J. White gave a very interesting and instructive talk on Economic Influence of the Balkan War upon the Nations of Europe, which closed the year's study of Mexico and the Balkan states. After some discussion it was decided that next year's program would include a short course in nature study and a discussion of some of the important political, social, and civic questions of the day. A pleasant little surprise at the close of the afternoon was the treat of ice cream and cakes served by the hostesses.

The club's annual social function will be given this year, the evening of June 26th, at the Congregational church where the club members and their invited guests will be entertained with an informal talk by J. P. Christensen on "Reminiscencies of His Recent Visit to Hawaii," illustrated with pictures and souvenirs.

Club officers for next year are Mrs. Jessie Webster, president; Mrs. D. E. McGillivary, vice-president; Miss Gilmore, recording secretary; Mrs. John Willson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Thos. Geisness, treasurer. Delegates elected were: Mrs. R. D. Willson and Mrs. Charles Filion, with Mrs. D. E. McGillivray and Miss Jessie Gilmore as alternates.

A party of Bellingham gentlemen consisting of a Grand Army veteran, D. Betts, his son Frank, and stepson Fred Nichols, and Mr. Edward Stiffley have been here from Bellingham this week looking for ranching land. They are Michiganders, having lived two years in this state, at Prosser and Bellingham, and not liking either place. Port Angeles, however, takes their fancy and they will locate here as soon as their crops are harvested this fall. Mr. Stiffley is a dairyman and according to Mr. Betts one of the biggest eaters in the Northwest, so that the exceeding productivity of Port Angeles land particularly appeals to him. Of course they are readers of the Olympic Leader.

Mrs. Dinsmore made a pleasant call at the Olympic-Leader office this week, and talking about walking stunts, informed us that she used to walk over any kind of roads from Clallam Bay to her ranch a distance of 47 miles. She also said that when she was living in the West End she made eight trips on foot to Grays Harbor where her husband was working. Believe me, that was some walking in those days when but little work had been done on the roads.

Ralph Berrill, of Fox & Berrill, architects of Victoria, was here yesterday arranging for a branch office. They planned the Dominion Hotel extensions, the Windsor Hotel, as well as many residences in Victoria, being among the older firms in their line in that city. Mr. Berrill will visit Angeles from time to time and hopes to secure a good business here.

A number of neighbors and friends learning that Monday, June 8th, was the tenth wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. Dobbs, planned a little surprise party and tin shower for them which was most successfully carried out and a delightful evening was enjoyed.

MUSICAL CLUB MEETING

The P. A. Musical Club, instead of holding its regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon, secured the services of Mrs. Curtis, who lectured on the opera Lohengrin at the Olympic Hotel. The interpretation of the opera was delightful and highly appreciated by forty ladies who listened with rapt attention for almost two hours. Mrs. Curtis explained the motif and different characters represented telling the difference between Christian and Pagan religions as symbolized by th Swan and Dove. She then read the legend and gave the opera in a recitative manner accompanied by Mrs. C. P. Brown, who while not having any previous practice has the perceptibilities of an artist. Mrs. Curtis gives a number of operas and dramas.
