RAILROAD TRAFFIC INTERFERES WITH USE OF CITY'S STREETS

$30,000 Allowed on Street Work for Month of June. Eighth Street Bridge Claims Ordered Paid. Current Expense Fund $5,522 Behind.

All members were present at Tuesday's council meeting.

The Klipsun Lumber judgment against the city came in for another inning by the presentation to council of a writ of mandate for the mayor and clerk to appear before the Superior Court on the 22nd inst and show cause why the judgment should not be paid. The city attorney had recommended the payment to save further costs. Fisher moved that same be paid. Dustman recorded an eloquent plea for the other workmen on the job who were not paid, reciting with choking voice the case of Mr. Subic, whom he pictured as a poor man with motherless children and he laid up in the hospital with a broken leg. City has owed him for over a year for piling put into the 8th street bridges. It was finally agreed that all claims filed in time to protect lien and city, aggregating some $350, in addition to the judgment of $2,500, be paid on warrant from current expense fund, all voting aye.

Shields moved that city clerk call for bids for Lincoln street improvement to be opened August 4. Carried.

Treasurer's report for June showed current sold for month $1,152.31, collected $1,028.91, uncollected $123.40.

City attorney reported the Bolanger claim for damages sustained invalid in a report to the council.

New watchman to do janitor work, care for fire apparatus, answer alarms, take out fire auto, and be under supervision of fire chief. Mayor later named Leroy O. Woods as new watchman. Council took no action.

New Rail Road Franchise Asked

The Seattle, Port Angeles & Lake Crescent Railway submitted a new franchise ordinance embodying all their grants in the city, conditions to be performed within one year. The purpose of the new grant is to get all the various privileges in one new franchise, with subdivision W of course eliminated. The new grant is also in the nature of an extension of time for the completion of the railroad, though transcontinental connections and terminals rates are already in vogue. The new ordinance was read twice and referred to the franchise committee and the city attorney.

Will Sue Young & Denio

The city attorney was directed to begin suit against Young & Denio to cover the payments made by city by their default in 8th street bridge contract. Such order subject, of course, to payment within a reasonable time of the compromise agree-

FRONT VIEW OF KUPPLER BUILDING ON LAUREL STREET.

The forms for the concrete walls on the two-story fireproof building, which is being constructed by Chris Kuppler on the west side of Laurel street between Front and First streets, have just been completed and the mixing of cement and gravel will begin immediately. The joists on the main floor were laid Thursday forenoon. Mr. Kuppler will rush the work as much as possible and still see that the structure is carefully erected, as he intends to have the best constructed building in the city.

The specifications call for two well lighted and ventilated stores on the main floor with plate glass and marble fronts and modern sanitary equipment installed thruout. There will be 17 business offices on the second floor with doors connecting one with the other so they may be rented in suites as well as singly. The entrance to the stairway will be in the middle of the building between the stores, and the staircase as well as the floors will be of composition. The basement, which is 50 feet square, has its entrance from the alley. Steam heat will be used entirely.

Harold Ginnold of the Melhorn Building in Seattle, who drew up the plans, has arranged to have the building present a fine appearance. The walls above the sidewalk will be finished off with brick, and the cornice and the front of the lower story will be of stippled cement plaster with beam projecting a few inches above the store fronts.

COURT HOUSE PLANS ADOPTED RED BRICK; TILE TRIMMINGS

Ornamental Structure, Having Tower Reaching 82 Feet Above Street Level. Cost, Including Furniture and Cells, Possibly $75,000.

"It will be a handsome structure," seemed to be the unanimous opinion of those who inspected Architect Grant's drawings of the new court house building Tuesday, when the design and plans were accepted by the Board of Commissioners and the auditor instructed to issue a call for bids, to be submitted at the next meeting, August 1st.

The building will have a frontage of 100 feet on Lincoln street, thus facing the west. In order that the foundation may rest wholly upon solid ground, it will be set 100 feet from Fourth street, or across the alley between Third and Fourth. The present surface of the lots will be lowered five feet, making a fill to the south and giving a level site. Taking advantage of the high school grounds adjoining on the east, the new building, 70 feet in width, will be set well to the back of the lot, or 50 feet from the sidewalk line.

Being surmounted by a tower the entire height will be 77½ feet and as the excavation will be only three feet, the grounds being terraced eight feet above the sidewalk line, the real height above the street will be 82½ feet.

Burlap brick, red, having a rough surface, with terra cotta columns and trimmings, and a raised roof, together with the 16 foot square tower, will give not only a handsome building, but one in decided contrast to the High School.

The main feature of the first floor, which will have a 12 foot ceiling, will be the vestibule and rotunda, the walls of which will be of scagiola marble. From the vestibule, 19 by 20, access will be had by means of wide stairways to the second floor, while all the main offices will open off the rotunda. This rotunda, 32 feet square, will be well lighted by sash in ceiling and leaded skylight in roof. The commissioners and auditor, with a room for abstractors between, will occupy the south side of this floor, while the assessor will have the northwest and the treasurer the northeast office rooms. Space has been allotted at the rear of the rotunda for public toilets.

A court room 32x58 with arched ceiling 14 feet high in the center, and having witnesses' and judge's chambers adjoining, will take up the south side of the second floor. On the north, the engineer, school superintendent and clerk will have offices.

Vaults will be provided for treasurer, assessor, clerk and engineer, those for the treasurer and auditor being double, or extending by a stairway into the basement. The auditor's vault will be 18 by 26 feet in size. Indirect lighting, reflected from the ceiling, will be used thruout.

In the basement eight feet of which will be above ground, provision has been made for the sheriff's office, a jail, etc. The basement will have a concrete floor and this and the first story will be fireproof.

The tower, surmounted by columns supporting a dome, will be not only ornamental, but by reason of the enclosed clock and bell, decidedly useful as well. A 2,000 pound bell, four feet in height, is to be used and the striking of the hours and half hours will be plainly heard all over town. The dial will have a diameter of eight feet, and will be illuminated at night, the lights being automatically turned off and on. All the Timber Owners Allege Combination and Conspiracy in Attempt to Force Building of Railroads and Logging Operations.

It appearing to Judge Neterer of the Federal Court, before whom Judge Cochran argued a motion to dismiss a few days since, that the cases brought for a reduction in taxes on West End timber lands are of too great importance to permit of hasty consideration, they have gone over until the middle of the month when the present rush of business will have been disposed of.

In reading the complaint made in the case of Ruddock & McCarthy, owners of some 8,000 acres, and which is about the same as the complaint of the Clallam Lumber Co., only that the latter's holdings are much larger, we glean the following allegations:

That the controversy in the first case involves an excess payment of $9,000, exclusive of interest and costs; plaintiffs have been the owners of these lands for the past four years; the lands are in one continuous body in the interior of the county along the Solduck and Calawa rivers; that for the purpose of assessment the officers of Clallam county have for the past five years caused timber lands to be cruised, and assessed upon the basis of these cruises, in zones with different values to each zone.

One of these zones thus abitrarily laid out, the complaint reads, abuts immediately upon the Straits, extending back from 3 to 8 miles, with timber of the greatest value because of accessibility; within this zone for the year 1913 fir, spruce and cedar was assessed at 80c per m, and hemlock at 40c, with an additional valuation of $1 per acre placed upon the land. This, too, was done, "arbitrarily, unreasonably and unlawfully." "Many of the lands owned by the plaintiffs are of no value whatsoever independent of the timber thereon." Another zone embracing the lands of the plaintiffs the timber values are 70c and 35c with a range of mountains between the lands and the straits. According to the assessor's figures plaintiff's own here 7,941.6 acres, assessed at $479.990, or approximately $61 per acre.

It has been the practice thruout the state of Washington for several years past to assess lands at from 35 to 50 per cent of the true value and the assessor in this case and the Board of Equalization claim that this assessment is on a basis of 35 per cent, but this plaintiffs aver that their lands are assessed far in excess of 53 per cent and that other properties, both real and personal, in said county are valued at far less than 53 per cent and that these plaintiffs were grossly and intentionally discriminated against, their lands being valued in cash not to exceed $550,000, making the basis in their case of 87 per cent. Such assessment upon the lands of the plaintiffs at so large a percentage of the true value was not accidental, but intentional and wilful, in pursuance with a concerted effort and corrupt and unlawful combination and conspiracy between the assessor and the Equalization Board, against these plaintiffs, and other timber owners in the interior.

The timber lands are situate for the most part in the westerly end of the county, lying west of range 8 and extending to the Pacific ocean forty miles westward. This territory is sparsely settled. The county seat is Port Angeles in range 7, has a population of approximately 5,000, while

NEW TELEPHONE MATERIAL HERE

50 Tons Cable Containing 6 Miles Wire; $20,000 Worth Material; Nine Operators Necessary.

The telephone office on Fourth street will be ready for occupancy by Saturday, and the installation of a portion of the four carloads of material and equipment, which arrived recently by barge from Seattle, will be commenced by the first of the week, according to a statement made Wednesday morning by Manager A. L. Phillips. The building is thoroughly modern in every respect and is constructed for the convenience of all the departments connected with the business.

President Farmer is highly elated over the new equipment and the outlook for the telephone service in this community. He says that when the switch boards and other office fixtures of the best quality are installed, Port Angeles will have one of the best and most up-to-date systems in the state. The company has already expended a large amount in erecting the new establishment and in extending the lines and service, but Mr. Farmer and Mr. Phillips have confidence in the success of the venture and both believe that the quickest and surest way to build up a town or a business is to begin with the project itself instead of waiting for others to make the first move.

The new building has five large rooms on the main floor for the various departments and a fine, large basement where extra materials may be stored. It will be heated by hot water. The main office will be caged off like the interior of a bank, and in there the cashier and treasurer will have their desks. To the right is Mr. Phillip's private office and to the rear of this is the large room where the local switch boards will be placed.

To the left of this room are two smaller rooms, one of which will be

THIS IS THE LIFE

SPECIAL FEATURES AT THE DREAM

Two big vaudeville acts will be staged by the popular Harrity Family at the Dream Theater for three days beginning Sunday. They have made a hit wherever they have played, and the local management considers itself fortunate in being able to book the members of this troupe. The management has also made a contract for movie productions with the World Film Corporation, the largest of its kind in the world, and will show the first film, "The Outlaw Reforms," a four-reel western comic drama, on Friday evening.

Saturday's program consists of "The Governor's Veto," an Eclair political drama in two parts, and a Universal Ike picture in which he has a battle royal. The Harrity Family will open on Sunday with plenty of good comedy, singing and dancing. A man dancing on his head will furnish a novel feature. In addition to vaudeville there will be four reels of pictures on Sunday, "The Double Reward," a premier detective story, on Monday and Tuesday. Jack Barrymore will appear the following day in "An American Citizen," a fine five-reel Famous Player production.

ANGELES WINS FROM CANUCKS

Reardon Takes Up Burden Twice to Check St. Francis Sluggers; Reilly Stars With Bat.

Port Angeles took both games from St. Francis nine of Victoria last week by a margin of two runs in each contest, the score of Saturday's game being 9 to 7 and that of Sunday's, 5 to 3. Pete Reardon pulled off the life saving stunt on both occasions, while Reilly directed the artillery attact with the usual results. In the eighth spasm of the second game the star first-sacker O'Erin put his team in the lead by driving a smashing single to left center with three men on.

For four innings of the Independence Day game, McGregor and Hooker twirled shutout ball, but in the fifth round a score was obtained off each. The Victoria boxman became wild after that and blew up so far that the local team was able to put four runs across in the sixth and as many more in the following inning before Morrill was sent in to stop the merry-go-round. Morrill was effective during the remainder of the game, making five strikeouts in two innings.

Reardon Relieves Hooker

Hooker caught the aviation spirit toward the close of the afternoon performance, and was touched up for six runs. The fans were showing signs of uneasiness until Reardon was sent to the mound. The later part of this game was marked by loose fielding as well as by heavy hitting. McDougall of the Canadians walked off with the best batting average, having clouted out three hits out of four trips to the plate. Catcher Grubb picked out a double and a single in three chances.

Sunday's battle was the better of the two. Hooker started again for the home team and Morrill opposed him. Both men pitched good ball but were given poor support at critical moments. The visitors again scored the first run on a pass in the third inning, followed by a passed ball, a sacrifice and a single with two down. They put two more over in the fifth on three errors, a stolen base and a hit.

Clarke Scores for Angeles

In the second half of this round, Clarke scored the first run for Angeles by driving the ball to left center which the fielder could not return to the diamond before the runner had crossed the plate. Up until this time Morrill had allowed but one hit, and under ordinary conditions the batter would have been held at first base. Two errors and a hit brought in another score in the seventh. With the game standing 3 to 2 against

OLYMPIC CAFE CUTS PRICES FOR SUMMER

Realizing that there are many families in town who would like to take their dinners out during the hot weather provided they could patronize some popular priced eating place, the management of the Hotel Olympic Cafe has decided to cut its prices and will serve four-bit dinners daily during the summer and early fall beginning Sunday.

Proprietor Clifford C. Hancock, who has managed the cafe for the past three months, has arranged to serve these dinners from 12:30 to 7:30 o'clock, and wishes to announce that his patrons are welcome to the use of the hotel auto which will leave Fry's drug store according to the schedule posted in the pharmacy. Preparations have been made to provide five-course meals to be served table de hote.

For the last eight years Mr. Hancock has had charge of his own business in Seattle and has been employed for 12 years as chef at the Rainier Club of that city. His experience qualifies him for first class service for special dinner parties, party luncheons, collations, banquets and weddings, and he also fills orders for excellent salads and punches made for private families.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

Prohibition and Eight Hour Bills Have Secured Ten Per Cent of Voters' Signatures.

Olympia, July 8.—The state of Washington in time will have a yearly income of $4,150,250, derived from its permanent school fund, for current school expenses is the estimate of T. E. Skaggs, member of the tax commission and of the state land board.

"The state has been endowed with natural resources of almost fabulous values," declares Mr. Skaggs, "Title to eighty per cent of the original grants remain vested in the state. This state owns an empire in its own right larger than the state of Connecticut, containing billions of feet of lumber and hundreds of thousands of acres of fertile land."

Mr. Skaggs points out that the original area of school land granted to the state was 3,035,025 acres of which 2,509,000 acres has been retained. This does not include the special grant for capitol buildings.

"By intelligent conservation I mean ordinary sense and business prudence. Conservation does not mean the sealing up of resources. It means that the resources shall be disposed of when the time is right.

"At the present time, the proceeds from the money now at interest, and the amounts received from rentals, amount to nearly a million dollars per year. A conservative estimate based upon past experience in handling our property, places the probable value of the present lands together with the amounts already in the permanent funds at $92,250,000.

"With $92,500,000 in our permanent school fund, we can readily see that the reduction in taxation will be a very considerable sum. This permanent fund will produce a yearly income of $4,151,250, which will be used to defray the current expenses of the various institutions for which they are set apart. Were this fund available now, all the state's part of the entire expense of education could be paid out of the income. I do not mean to infer that this fund will ever be adequate to take care of all the expenses of the various educational institutions in the state, for we all understand that these expenses must increase as population increases."

Time for filing initiative petitions ended last week. The prohibition bill and the eight-hour bill admittedly have enough signatures to insure them places on the ballot. Petitions bearing about 35,000 signatures each were filed for the "seven sisters" measures and until the final count is completed it will be impossible to determine whether these bills will have the 31,836 certified signatures required.

Governor Lister and his administration have avoided taking stand that might appear as an attempt to interfere in any way with securing signatures for these measures or urging such signatures. When it isfinally determined, however, whether these measures will go before the people, it is expected that the governor will announce the attitude of the administration, if the measures are to be voted upon, or will propose, in several instances, substitute measures carefully drafted if the "seven sisters" prove to have insufficient signatures to find places on the ballot.

Amendments to the state horicultural laws, designed to give the state greater power in dealing with serious epidemics such as the present fire blight situation, are being preared at the direction of T. O. Morrison, in charge of the horticultural division of the state department of agriculture, for recommendation to the next legislature. One of the proposed amendments would declare maintenance of a disease infected orchard a public nuisance, giving state inspectors full authority to disinfect or destroy trees, at the expense of the owner, if the latter failed to do so after notice. The difficulty of compelling cleaning of orchards of nonresident owners has been one of the greatest difficulties met thus far in the state's anti-blight campaign.

A smaller percentage of state liquor licenses became delinquent July 1 this year than ever before, due, it is believed, to the prosecutions instituted against delinquents last year by the state tax commission and the disinclination of the liquor men to stand prosecution during the prohibition campaign.

The state tax commission has completed the draft of the proposed constitutional amendment which the next legislature will be asked to submit to the people, to allow amendment of the state's present admitted-archaic tax laws. The chief feature of the proposed amendment is Section 2, which provides that taxes shall be equal on all property of the same class, a substitution for the present provision that taxes on all property shall be "uniform and equal." The proposed amendment would allow segregation of sources of revenue, so the state could derive its income solely from railroads and other public service corporations, leaving all other property to be taxed solely by the political subdivisions of the state. This would eliminate the present annual process of attempting to distribute fairly the state taxes between the different counties.

During the first six months of 1914, a total of 7,486 accidents were reported to the industrial insurance commission a reduction of almost 10 per cent from the number reported during the first six months of 1913, which was 8,252. That even a better proportionate showing may be made during the next six months under the "safety first" campaign of the industrial insurance commission and Labor Commissioner E. W. Olson, is the belief of these state officials. Employers and employes in most of the manufacturing and other industrial establishments are co-operating splendidly toward accident prevention, the state authorities state, the work of the "shop safety" committees being entitled to great credit.

Honor camp No. 1, working on the Hood's canal road, and Honor camp No. 2, on the Pacific highway near Kalama both are to be moved immediately to Skamania county, to work on State Road No. 8, while additional honor convicts will be taken from the state penitentiary to bring the total working force 120 to 150, so that the work on this road may be completed before wet weather begins. This will constitute the most extensive use of convict labor in this state under the honor system, and while good results have been obtained thus far, both the welfare of the convicts and in enconomical administration, even better results are expected on the Skamania county work.

Report of nursery stock shipped from foreign countries into the state of Washington, just issued by assistant Commissioner T. O. Morrison of the department of agriculture, shows that there were 808,102 imported plants shipped from seven countries in the last year. There were 426 cases of infection discovered, the most serious diseases encountered being upon chestnut trees shipped from Japan, over 1,200 of which were burned. The report is made to the federal horticultural board for whom the state department of agriculture acts in all such cases.

Over 45,000 cans of salmon were condemned last week in Seattle by J. J. Higgins, head of the pure food division of the department of agriculture. The pack was opened and tested by the state chemist and found unfit for human food. There were 975 cases for which the Pacific Coast and Norway Packing Co. signed waiver, 441 cases they refused to waiver and will have tested by another chemist. 101 cases of the condemned pack was "Do over" Salmon.

The unique forestry exhibit which is being assembled by the forestry department of the University of Washington, expressly for the Washington display at the Panama-Pacific exposition, will be shown at North Yakima this fall at the state fair. This makes the fourth large Panama-Pacific exhibit, which the department of agriculture has secured from the fair commission to be shown at North Yakima.

The number of motor vehicle licenses issued during the month of June represented an increase of 41 per cent over the number issued during June, 1913, leading to an estimate that the total number of motor licenses issued this year will be about 40,000 as against 24,148 last year.

MUST NOT USE NETS OF ANY DESCRIPTION

State Fish Commissioner Darwin has notified all county game and fish wardens that they must enforce the new law prohibiting the use of nets of any description in the fresh waters of the state above tide water for the taking of either food or game fish, all nets to be taken and destroyed. In a decision by the Supreme Court rendered June 18th, in the case of State vs.Allen, the above is declared to be the governing enactment, and all nets are absolutely barred.

The Supreme Court has also made a decision holding that the statute provides a penalty for the law which makes it a gross demeanor to run deer with dogs, it having previously been held by Judge Claypool that the law was ineffective because of the lack of penalty. All parties using dogs for the running of deer will be subject to arrest.

TIMBER ASSESSED AT 87 PER CENT

in the East End are prosperous farming communities with approximately 1,500 population. The voting power is therefore in the east and middle portion of the country, the voters in the West End being so few that they have no voice in county affairs. The assessing officers with the exception of the West End commissioner are elected by these voters and for the purpose of ingratiating themselves with their constituents, and serving their selfish ends, this conspiracy against the timber land owners of the West End, who are mostly non-residents, is made, to empower them to lower the assessments around Port Angeles and within its corporate limits.

In the years 1912-13 and prior thereto gross discriminations were practiced by the assessing officers against plaintiffs and other owners of timber in the interior of the West End and in favor of other property owners. These discriminations were aimed in particular against plaintiffs and other timber owners for the reason that they own large bodies of timber but control no votes and exercise no political influence therein. The plaintiffs have caused dilligent and careful examination to be made of the assessment rolls for the years 1912 and 1913, and find that the lands and other properties situate at Port Angeles are valued at not to exceed 10 to 20 per cent of their true value. The county Board of Equalization comprizes three residents of Port Angeles, one from the East End and one from western Clallam. These members at Port Angeles are property owners and in order to favor themselves and their constituents, have combined and conspired with the East End commissioner to put low valuations upon the property at Port Angeles and vicinity and high and unequal valuations upon the timber lands situate in the West End.

As a result of said examinations plaintiffs find that the farming lands and other properties in the West End of the county are valued at not to exceed 10 per cent to 15 per cent of true value.

Lands of plaintiffs lie in Solduck and Calawa valleys and upon the benches and ridges between same and are wholly destitute of facilities for transportation and it is impossible to bring the timber thereon into market. In order to get this timber to market it is necessary to provide transportation to Gray's Harbor on the south or the straits on the north. This expense is beyond the means of the plaintiffs, and is now as heretofore prohibitive. In view of these facts and the fact that better timber in the zones along the straits adjacent to available markets are valued at little more, plaintiffs aver that the latter timber lands are worth at least double that of the interior, thus discrimination is again shown.

Various of the inhabitants of Port Angeles, including the assessor, have complained to these plaintiffs that because they failed to build saw-mills and railroads to Port Angeles they have pursued a policy hostile to the true interests of the county and especially to Port Angeles and that such interests would be promoted only by building saw-mills and railroads, and plaintiffs aver that the purpose of the assessing officers is to assess the timber lands at exorbitant sums as a means of compelling the erection of mills at Port Angeles, the construction of railroads into the interior of the county and the commencement and carrying on of logging and lumbering operations within the county, and thru influential citizens of Port Angeles these plaintiffs have been assured that, if they would begin to operate and employ a large number of men, they might rely that henceforth they would be fairly and equitably treated as respects taxation.

Therefore, plaintiffs pray that defendants answer this bill without oath; that this Federal Court decree that the assessments for 1913 upon lands of plaintiffs are fraudulent and void, that the same are contrary to and in violation of the 14th amendment of the constitution; that this court determine and decree what sums in taxes against plaintiff's lands are uniform with those taxes against other property in said county; that it be decreed that only $9,250 tendered by the plaintiffs to the Treasurer of said county be sufficient for all sums equitably due, and said lands freed from the balance assessed for said year 1913; that defendants be enjoined from attempting to collect more or to cloud title to said lands or to sell said lands to pay more, and that any additional sums be removed as a lien against said lands; that defendants be enjoined in all things herein until the further order of this court."

Some of the allegations in this complaint will make home owners and other property owners of Port Angeles smile.

MARVELOUS GROWTH OF THE FRUIT INDUSTRY

Puyallup, Washington,
July 5th, 1914.

Editor Olympic-Leader
Port Angeles, Washington.

Dear Sir:

It may be of interest to the readers to know something of the Puyallup summer school. We have now enrolled one hundred and sixty-two pupils coming from all over the state and some from outside. The work which I have is taking up a line of investigation of the industries of the valley, one of which I will describe.

The Puyallup Fruit Growers Association have fourteen hundred fifty-two members and a capital stock of twenty-three hundred dollars. No one member may hold over fifteen dollars in stock; the association was organized to save the middleman's profit and also to save all their fruit. Last year one day's shipment of red raspberries was twenty-three carloads and when you know one carload is three hundred crates you will understand how great the supply and yet they are buying from all over the West to fill their orders. One carload was shipped to Chicago and sold for three dollars a crate, the cost of delivery being seventy-five cents per crate, fifteen cents brokerage and sixty cents for all other expenses thus netting the owner one dollar and fifty cents per crate. The members of the association are receiving ten thousand dollars per day as part payment for berries. The heighth of the raspberry season is expected to be reached this week; the raspberry crop is in first class condition this year although the strawberry crop was short. The volume of the business of the assocition is expected to exceed the one million dollar record of last year. The berries are inspected and separated into three grades, No. 1, finest and firmest, that will ship any distance, No. 2, that will ship forty-eight hours, No. 3, that will ship twenty-four hours, and those too ripe for shipment are barreled. Last year they shipped one thousand barrels strawberries, fifty gallons to the barrel, East. This fruit in barrels is placed in cold storage first to thoroughly cool, after which they are shipped to destination and used as desired. Raspberries that are too soft for shipment are barreled with sugar two pounds fruit to one pound sugar. These in turn are placed in cold storage and later shipped East where they are made into jams and jellies. Last year they shipped thirty-five hundred barrels of such fruit. They have also a great demand for cooked strawberries in barrels, one firm in Chicago alone placing an order for one hundred and thirty-two. To put this fruit up it required a thousand bags sugar at four and a half per bag. Another line is their canning department. Last year they sold seventy-eight thousand cans of which ninety per cent was labeled under various wholesale house labels; about five per cent of this was placed on the Pacific Coast. At the present time their future order for canned goods is two hundred and seventy-five cars, this means forty cars to the train load or seven trainloads of fruit. The plant is valued at about fifty thousand dollars and employes about six hundred boys and girls daily; their wages average from one to two dollars and a quarter per day. They employ from twelve to fifteen thousand pickers in the fields, thus we see they are the largest employers of la- in the state. The association runs a co-operative store for the benefit of all it's members, buying all kinds of groceries and chicken feed supplies in carload lots which they sell to members at ten per cent on cost merely to pay cost of handling; thus far the actual cost has been about eight per cent. The shipping of this immense amount of fruit means a rapid system of transit so they have built a pre-cooler which thoroughly cools the car after loading. The cars are loaded in tiers one half the heighth of the car leaving air chambers surrounding the crates, if left in this condition the fruit sweats and the moisture gathers on top of the car thus causing mould but the pre-cooling plant drives a current of cold air in at one end of the car and draws it out at the other thereby cooling fruit to a temperature of about forty degrees. They are now shipping fruit in this state as far as Dallas, Texas. This pre-cooling pant is a room six by ten by twenty-eight feet and contains 3,358 feet of piping in which ammonia is used as a cooling agent. The air is drawn from this room into the car, the cost is fifteen dollars per car. This pre-cooling plant also manufactures ice for the city, its capacity being eighteen tons in four hundred cakes every thirty-six hours. Here we see one of the most complete berry plants in the world and we wonder where all the berries are grorn so we drive out into the valley past the experimental farm from there to Sumner where they have a larger plant still, and everywhere you find berry fields by the acre, but the secret of it all is the care which they receive. As I studied conditions in the Puyallup Valley and saw what is being done in developing this wonderful industry, I at once began to see the man behind it all without which the berry industry would have never been developed. First and foremost the guiding wisdom of Senator Paulhamus is seen in every detail and only thru his absolute fidelity to the work has the industry achieved the wonderful success.

Yours truly,
J. W. FAILOR.

(Written for last week.)

Married, Saturday, June 27, at 6:30 o'clock, Emily Campbell and Charles Lewis at the home of the bride's brother, Alfred Stevenson.

The dining room and parlor were thrown into one large room which was artistically changed into a bower of roses where were gathered relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom. Mr. Fulmer officiated using the impressive ring ceremony. The bride looked beautiful in white, carrying a bouquet of white roses and orange blossoms. She was attended by her sister, Earline, and Goldie McNamara, the groom by Francis Stevenson and Guy McNamara.

Many useful and valuable presents were received. After congratulations were over, all enjoyed the bountiful wedding supper.

In the evening neighbors and friends assembled and enjoyed until the wee sma' hours of morning an old time dance and with Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Sutter present it surely seemed like old days.

Best wishes for a long and happy life and another good time on their golden wedding day.

Kelly Epson captured the bridal bouquet so look out for announcement.

Mabel Jackson spent the week with relatives in town.

Mrs. Stewart, who was with her mother, Mrs. Brauer, doctoring a severe attack of tonsilitis is sufficiently recovered to return to the lakes where she is assisting Mrs. Littleton. She left Monday.

There was some excitemen for a few minute at H. C. Breckenridge's when a spark fell upon the roof causing quite a blaze. Fortunately water was at hand and the fire was quickly extinguished.

Mrs. Cary and children are with her daughter, Mrs. J. D. Jackson. They are glad to get back to a delightful summer climate. It is too awfully hot in California. Tally another for the Olympic Peninsula.

Blue Mountain is to have a Fourth of July celebration at the school house grove, with a short program, picnic dinner, races and sports, and baseball.

Nat and Marie Broughton started bright and early Thursday morning for Deer Park on Blue Mountain. They met the Peterson boys and their sister, Leon Cays and his sister and Mr. and Mrs. Tippe at Mr. Brunnell's, Lost Mountain, where they will load their pack horses and start for the summit via Slab Camp. Howard Putnam will accompany them as chief chef.

THE LEADER DEPARTMENT STORE

TO MY FRIENDS, CUSTOMERS AND PEOPLE OF ANGELES

I have tried for a number of years now to sell off my business and take a trip to the land of my birth and the home of my forbears. I feel that I am getting old and that I really need a rest, more especially since my accident, and since then I also realize that life and health and the spirit and time given to enjoy same is at best very short, hence this letter. My sale, which is still going on has reduced my stock very materially, but before I can get away I must get rid of all, and it is my intention to further reduce my prices on Tuesday. This will mean my closing the store on Monday in order to rearrange and re-ticket all my goods. I am just cutting my original prices right in half and offering what is left of my stock at ridiculously low prices and away below cost. Now I am appealing to my old friends, customers, and the people of the town and district to come along and help me out by purchasing my goods and at the same time help yourselves by getting bargains positively unheard of before in this town. If I did not dispose of my business before I left I should get no real rest during my visit and holiday as I should be continually worrying and wondering how things were going and the business was being conducted, whereas, if I dispose of all my interest I am then free and have nothing to trouble me and in that way my holiday would be a real benefit. Now good friends all rally round the old man and give him a send off that you, he, and Port Angeles will talk of in the days yet to come. Thanking you for past patronage and thanking you again in anticipation of a real bumper clean up next week.

Yours,

them, the local players filled the bases in the eighth on two errors and a pass. Reilly stepped to the plate with none out and delivered a single which brought two men home. Herb came in with the fifth run a moment later.

The game was delayed by the customary wrangling together with the time taken out by injuries to players. Catcher Gardiner was hit by a thrown ball in the fifth inning, and McIlmoyle was sent to run for him. This started a row shortly afterward as to whether Gardiner could stay in the game. Reilly was spiked on the next to the last play, but did not quit.

A close decision at the plate in Victoria's half of the eighth started an argument. Spectators in the stand were divided regarding the fairness of the decision. It was no fault of the umpire. He was on the opposite side of the catcher and could not see whether the runner touched the plate. An umpire behind the catcher could have called the play without difficulty, and this instance shows the necessity of having two umpires on the field.

Reilly and Gravelin obtained two hits each. Reilly also made 17 put outs, two of which were unassisted.

The Abysmal Brute

By JACK LONDON

Coyyrigt. 913, by The Century Co.

SYNOPSIS

Sam Stubener, manager of boxers, hears about a wonderful unknown boxer called Young Pat Glendon. He finds the boy in the wilderness.

Glendon, innocent of the world's ways, goes to San Francisco and is matched with "Roughhouse Kelly."

He whips Kelly and other boxers so easily that he is called "One Punch Glendon." He meets the Flying Dutchman.

Glendon wins again. He nears the top in pugilism. His manager, Stubener, engages in crooked ring practices, unknown to Glendon.

Through Maud Sangster, a reporter, Glendon first learns of these crooked practices and first suspects Stubener.

CHAPTER VI.

THE abysmal brute! It certainly must be worth seeing. From what she read of him she gleaned that he was a man monster, profoundly stupid and with the sullenness and ferocity of a jungle beast.

True, his published photographs did not show all that, but they did show the hugeness of brawn that might be expected to go with it.

And so, acompanied by a staff photographer, she went out to the training quarters at the Cliff House at the hour appointed by Stubener.

That real estate owner was having trouble. Pat was rebellious. He sat, one big leg dangling over the side of the armchair and Shakespeare's "Sonnets" face downward on his knee, orating against the new woman.

"What do they want to come butting into the game for?" he demanded. "It's not their place. What do they know about it anyway? The men are bad enough as it is. I'm not a holy show. This woman's coming here to make me one. I never have stood for women around the training quarters, and I don't care if she is a reporter."

"But she's not an ordinary reporter," Stubener interposed. "You've heard of the Sangsters, the millionaires?"

Pat nodded.

"Well, she's one of them. She's high society and all that stuff. She could be running with the Blingum crowd now if she wanted to instead of working for wages. Her old man's worth $50,000,000 if he's worth a cent."

"Then what's she working on a paper for—keeping some poor devil out of a job?"

"She and the old man fell out, had a tiff or something, about the time he started to clean up San Francisco. She quit, that's all—left home and got a job. And let me tell you one thing, Pat. She can everlastingly sling English. There isn't a pen pusher on the coast can touch her when she gets going."

Pat began to show interest, and Stubener hurried on:

"She writes poetry, too, the regular ladedah stuff, just like you, only I guess hers is better, because she published a whole book of it once. And she writes up the shows. She interviews every big actor that hits this burg."

"I've seen her name in the papers," Pat commented.

"Sure you have. And you're honored, Pat, by her coming to interview you. It won't bother you any. I'll stick right by and give her most of the dope myself. You know I've always done that."

Pat looked his gratitude.

"And another thing, Pat, don't forget you've got to put up with this interviewing. It's part of your business. It's big advertising, and it comes free. We can't buy it. It interests people, draws the crowds, and it's crowds that pile up the gate receipts."

He stopped and listened, then looked at his watch. "I think that's her now. I'll go and get her and bring her in. I'll tip it off to her to cut it short, you know, and it won't take long." He turned in the doorway. "And be decent, Pat. Don't shut up like a clam. Talk a bit to her when she asks you questions."

Pat put the sonnets on the table, took up a newspaper and was apparently deep in its contents when the two entered the room and he stood up. The meeting was a mutual shock.

When blue eyes met gray it was almost as if the man and the woman shouted triumphantly to each other, as if each had found something sought and unexpected. But this was for the instant only.

Each had anticipated in the other something so totally different that the next moment the clear cry of recognition gave way to confusion.

As is the way of women, she was the first to achieve control, and she did it without having given any outward sign that she had ever lost it. She advanced most of the distance across the floor to meet Glendon. As for him, he scarcely knew how he stumbled through the introduction.

Here was a woman—a woman. He had not known that such a creature could exist. The few women he had noticed had never prefigured this. He wondered what old Pat's judgment would have been of her; if she was the sort he had recommended to hang on to with both his hands.

He discovered that in some way he was holding her hand. He looked at it, curious and fascinated, marveling at its fragility.

She, on the other hand, had proceeded to obliterate the echoes of that first clear call. It had been a peculiar experience, that was all, this sudden outrush of her toward this strange man.

For was not he the abysmal brute of the prize ring, the great, fighting, stupid bulk of a male animal who hammered up his fellow males of the same stupid order? She smiled at the way he continued to hold her hand.

"I'll have it back, please, Mr. Glendon," she said. "I—I really need it, you know."

He looked at her blankly, followed her gaze to her imprisoned hand, and dropped it in a rush of awkwardness that sent the blood in a manifest blush to his face.

She noted the blush, and the thought came to her that he did not seem quite the uncouth brute she had pictured. She could not conceive of a brute blushing at anything.

And also, she found herself pleased with the fact that he lacked the easy glibness to murmur an apology But the way he devoured her with his eyes was disconcerting.

He stared at her as if in a trance, while his cheeks flushed even more redly.

Stubener by this time had fetched a chair for her, and Glendon automatically sank down into his.

"He's in fine shape, Miss Sangster, in fine shape," the manager was saying. "That's right, isn't it, Pat? Never felt better in your life?"

Glendon was bothered by this. His brows contracted in a troubled way, and he made no reply.

"I've wanted to meet you for a long time, Mr. Glendon," Miss Sangster

"I'll have it back, please, Mr. Glendon," she said.

said. "I never interviewed a pugilist before, so if I don't go about it expertly you'll forgive me, I am sure."

"Maybe you'd better start in by seeing him in action," was the manager's suggestion. "While he's getting into his fighting togs I can tell you a lot about him—fresh stuff too. We'll call in Walsh, Pat, and go a couple of rounds."

"We'll do nothing of the sort," Glendon growled roughly, in just the way an abysmal brute should. "Go ahead with the interview."

The business went ahead unsatisfactorily. Stubener did most of the talking and suggesting, which was sufficient to irritate Maud Sangster, while Pat volunteered nothing.

She studied his fine countenance, the eyes clear blue and wide apart, the well modeled, almost aquiline, nose, the firm, chaste lips that were sweet in a masculine way in their curl at the corners and that gave no hint of any sullenness.

It was a baffling personality, she concluded, if what the papers said of him was so. In vain she sought for earmarks of the brute. And in vain she attempted to establish contacts.

For one thing, she knew too little about prizefighters and the ring, and whenever she opened up a lead it was promptly snatched away by the information oozing Stubener.

"It must be most interesting, this life of a pugilist," she said once, adding with a sigh: "I wish I knew more about it. Tell me, why do you fight? Oh, aside from money reasons." (This latter to forestall Stubener.) "Do you enjoy fighting? Are you stirred by it, by pitting yourself against other men? I hardly know how to express what I mean, so you must be patient with me."

Pat and Stubener began speaking together, but for once Pat bore his manager down.

"I didn't care for it at first"—

"You see, it was too dead easy for him," Stubener interrupted.

"But later," Pat went on, "when I encountered the better fighters, the real big, clever ones, where I was more"—

"On your mettle," she suggested.

"Yes, that's it; more on my mettle. I found I did care for it—a great deal, in fact. But still it's not so absorbing to me as it might be. You see, while each battle is a sort of problem which I must work out with my wits and muscle, yet to me the issue is never in doubt"—

"He's never had a fight go to a decision," Stubener proclaimed. "He's won every battle by the knockout route."

"And it's this certainty of the outcome that robs it of what I imagine must be its finest thrills," Pat concluded.

"Maybe you'll get some of them thrills when you go up against Jim Hanford," said the manager.

Pat smiled, but did not speak.

"Tell me some more," she urged—"more about the way you feel when you are fighting."

And then Pat amazed his manager, Miss Sangster and himself by blurting out:

"It seems to me I don't want to talk with you on such things. It's as if there are things more important for you and me to talk about. I"—

He stopped abruptly, aware of what he was saying, but unaware of why he was saying it.

"Yes," she cried eagerly. "That's it. That is what makes a good interview—the real personality, you know."

But Pat remained tongue tied, and Stubener wandered away on a statistical comparison of his champion's weights, measurements and expansions with those of Sandow, the Terrible Turk, Jeffries and the other modern strong men. This was of little interest to Maud Sangster, and she showed that she was bored. Her eyes chanced to rest on the sonnets. She picked the book up and glanced inquiringly at Stubener.

"That's Pat's," he said. "He goes in for that kind of stuff and color photography and art exhibits and such things. But for heaven's sake don't publish anything about it. It would ruin his reputation."

clocks in the building will be controlled by this tower cock. It is also probable that the city will have wiring installed for fire alarm purposes.

The estimated cost of the building is $55,000, and Architect Grant is positive he is well within the bids which will be received. This does not however, include the clock and bell system, which would cost about $6,000, nor the jail cells. If it is desired to include the jail within the courthouse, an additional expense of something like $10,000 will be necessary.

The details of the building have been worked out by the architect after consultation with each of the county officers, to get their respective requirements, and it is believed everything is as complete as possible and the arrangement most economical. In fact, Auditor McLaughlin, who looked into court house provisions in upsound cities, says the proposed building will compare very favorably with that at Everett, which cost $109,000.

Separate proposals are required on general construction, heating, plumbing, electric wiring, clock system and jail work, bids to be in by August 1st. It is believed that six months will be required for completion.

It has been decided to continue using the old court house until the new building is completed, contractors cutting half the street thru and the county completing the work after removal. Steel cases, said to be fire proof under reasonable heat, have been received by the auditor to take the place of the vault which will have to be torn down.

TO THE VOTERS OF CLALLAM

My determination to enter the field as a candidate for the office of county commissioner from the eastern district of Clallam couny, emanates from a desire to concentrate my energies and whatever ability I may possess—in event of my election— towards the general betterment of conditions, not only in my own district, but thruout the entire country.

I have been earnestly solicited by leading citizens of all political complexions to become a candidate, and have therefore deferred to their wishes.

A careful study of the situation leads inevitably to the conclusion that the time for retrenchment in the administration of the county's business affairs, has come. It is obvious to all who take the slightest interest in matters affecting the economical conditions in their present state that rigid adherence to the principles of safe and sane expenditures is vital to taxpayers of Clallam county.

Actuated by the belief that curtailment in the disbursement of the public funds is essential, and in the further belief that greater efficiency and more substantial results may be attained by intelligent manipulation of said funds, I pledge myself, if elected to this important office to use my utmost endeavors towards reducing the present tax rate from one third to one fourth of that now prevailing.

I may add in conclusion that it is not my purpose to halt the present program of public improvement, but to introduce and inaugurate such methods as shall reach the same end at much smaller expense to those who bear the burden. J. A. ADAMS.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO VOTERS

Any citizen, who thru inadvertence, or misapprehension as to their real import, signed the "Seven Sisters" Initiative Measures, may withdraw their signatures from the same by applying to registration officers of their respective districts, who will furnish blanks for each withdrawal.

Prompt action is necessary in this matter, in order that voters who wish to have their names stricken from these petitions may do so before the petitions are checked and certied by the Secretary of State.

In towns and cities the blanks will be certified by municipal clerks, and non-registration districts by postmasters, road supervisors etc., who have a supply of the blanks on hand.

NOTICE TO LIGHT USERS

All electric light bills must be paid by the 20th of the month or light will be shut off on the 21st without further notice, by order of the city council. P. F. HARLEY, City Treasurer.

The Placing of Water Mains

Mr. Kay, construction manager of the water company, responded to council's citation to appear in regard to water mains on Front street. Council desires that when the planking is put in place on Front street that it shall not be torn up to install water mains and service connections. It was agreed that main shall be placed under sidewalk on north side of Front street in business section, and that satisfactory service main be placed on south side of Front street, thus doing away with necessity of removing planking or puncturing the retaining walls of the new improvement. It was also agreed that main on Laurel and Oak be put in place before planking is laid.

Don't Like Looks of New Grade

A petition signed by Messrs. and Mesdames W. B. Gould, M. Bell, Geo. Welsh and L. C. Lonsdale was presented asking that the present grade under way in district 11, on Front street, between Chase and Albert, be discontinued at Vine street. Referred to city attorney for an opinion as to whether council has such power.

Bigelow of light committee called attention to parties desiring to purchase wood at old power station. Committee was given power to act upon motion of Shields.

Bigelow by request brought up matter of renewing sidewalk on south side of Sixth street from Cherry to Albert. Upon motion of Shields street superintendent was directed to notify property owners to build new five-foot walk under city specifications on south side of Sixth street between Cherry and Lincoln.

Upon motion of Wilcox city attorney was directed to bring in ordinance governing and regulating handling steam boilers within city. Wilcox stated that had an inexperienced man been able to do what he was trying to do recently, put cold water in a hot dry boiler, he would have taken his final leave.

Railway Ordered to Keep Street Clear

Fowler called attention to dangerous crossing at Third and Tumwater streets where box cars are loaded with shingles. Box cars shut off view and pedestrians are unable to see approaching cars. Considerable flying switching is done at this point, one man killed recently and another narrowly escaped. Railroad uses roadway for storage, should provide a siding. Upon motion of Dustman Railway Co. was ordered to keep street clear at point.

Fowler called attention to appropriations having run out and hard to find work for city team. Supt. Graham stated he could find work for three teams if council can find the funds to pay for work.

Council adjourned without taking any action, and immediately went into executive session, from which ye scribes were excluded together with the rest of the populace. It is understood that police difficulties were discussed, but no agreement reached.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY

LINCOLN HEIGHTS

Another Fourth of July has come and gone with its usual amount of entertainments of various kinds. Whether all were truly patriotic—for the betterment of the people—is a question for the promoters and the participants to think about.

The Kansas visitors and friends here, have been enjoying themselves hugely, visiting and dining at the different homes in crowds of from sixteen to twenty-four, recalling incidents of the pioneer days in Kansas, when the older ones among us had no grey hairs and the younger ones were but school children.

Wednesday of last week a merry lot of eight women went out in the country and visited at George Critchfield's, spending a day that will not soon be forgotten. Although very near the longest of the year, it was too short for us.

July 5th wasn't J. B. Fleming's birthday anniversary, but as his oldkest son, O. B., was obliged to leave home that evening, twenty-four of his children, grandchildren, and friends surprised him and celebrated just one day ahead of time. Two sons, O. B. and E. B., and two daughters, Mamie McMillen of Kansas and Ruth Burgman, were at home. Another daughter lives in Killanning, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hall came in for the Fourth and left their daughter, Eleanor, to visit her cousins until Tuesday when Olive Fleming went home with her to spend the remainder of the week. This is Olive's first taste of country life.

Little Theodore Hopf was a very sick baby a few days bu tis recovering.

Mr. John Thompson has built a nice home on 6th west, of D street, and Mr. DeRousie has a large tent house; we think about 15th and A.
