A TRADE-AT-HOME CAMPAIGN

Commercial Club Plans Establishment of Cordial Trade Relations with All Sections of County.

"I was surprised to see an attendance here fully as good as that at a number of meetings of the Seattle Commercial Club which I have attended," said Donald McInnes of Dungeness and Seattle, at the regular meeting of the Commercial Club held Monday evening.

Mr. McInnes expressed himself as pleased to see that the Club was starting out on broad lines which would surely result in great good for the county. The future of Port Angeles, he said, depends upon the development of the surrounding country. The Port Angeles Club should be the center of public activity for all of Clallam county's promotion work, irrespective of locality; it is important for the Club to have non-resident members, members living in other sections of the county, as provided for in the by-laws. The legislature is considering some very drastic dairy laws which if passed would cripple the business. He would have the Club appoint a legislative committee to work against this and other harmful legislation, as a duly authorized committee from a commercial organization could get a hearing where an equal number of farmers could not. The Clubs in Seattle are very intent upon aiding the country districts and those of other cities should do the same. He was pleased to see such manifest enthusiasm for the county fair, which be termed a good thing in that it stimulates rivalry among the people of the farming districts and furnishes better advertising to the man on the ground than does printed matter. He thanked the Club for selecting him to represent the county at the Panama Exposition, but thot it would be impossible to accept.

Following Mr. McInnes' address, the president was instructed to appoint a legislative committee and the secretary to take the necessary routine steps to have such committee provided for in the by-laws.

Revised By-Laws Adopted.

The revised by-laws, in which had been incorporated the suggestions of the special committee report of September 9th, were adopted. They are published in another column, together with President Craig's standing committee appointments.

Industrial Exhibit and Fair

"Incident to this project, the preparatory work of which has been successfully handled by sub-committees," says Mr. Teck, "the standing committee on Transportation and Harbor succeeded in obtaining a $1 round-trip steamboat fare from Victoria and all points in Clallam county, tickets good a day before and a day after the fair. It is the first time in the history of Clallam county that excursion rates were ever obtained for the people west from Port Angeles, and the Fair excursion rate is a cut of about 80 per cent."

New Industries

In an industrial way, the Secretary reported that propositions had been received for a vegetable cannery, a wood pulp mill, gas plant and Postal Produce Exchange and are now in charge of the committee on industries, while assisstance has been rendered W. S. Clark who is establishing a furniture factory and The Straits Lumber Co., which will be ready to operate within a few days. Also that "The Puget Mills & Timber Co., plans to add to its plant by about the first of the year a sanding plant for smoothing lumber and a box factory employing about thirty men and turning out 5,000 salmon boxes, or 40,000 feet of lumber, daily."

Publicity

"R. F. Weeks, division freight agent, and J. G. Thompson, manager of the advertising department of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company, were in the city and county September 22, 23, 24 and 25, on preliminary data work for a book descriptive of the Olympic Peninsula to be published by the Milwaukee company and circulated throughout the east early in the coming year. The Commercial Club is co-operating in the work of collecting information for this purpose."

Olympus National Monument

"On September 16, after careful consideration, this Club initiated the effort of Olympic Peninsula Clubs to entertain Chief Forester Henry S. Graves and confer with him relative to the Mount Olympus National Monument, which isolates twenty-seven townships of land. This was initiated by correspondence with the Aberdeen and Hoquiam Clubs and Seattle organizations, and terminated with Mr. Graves' visit to Port Angeles and Clallam county, October 1, 2, 3 and 4."

Headquarters for Forest Service

T. T. Aldwell, reporting on the conference with Chief Forester Graves and the fact that the department had been greatly embarassed in the furtherance of its plans, moved that the proper resolution be drawn up requesting Congress to permit the forestry department to take the desired lots for their own use, and at the same time that a committee of

CELEBRATED SILVER WEDDING

Congregational Pastor and Wife Given Ovation by Their Many Admiring Friends.

About one hundred guests gathered at the Congregational church last Friday evening to help Reverend and Mrs. Stephen Smith celebrate their twenty-fifth marriage anniversary, or Silver Wedding.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the color scheme being pink and white. Pink crepe paper shades were on all the lights and a handsome basket of pink and white flowers was suspended from the center of the ceiling. A profusion of autumn leaves and ferns were banked upon the rear of the platform, and bouquets decorated the pulpit and organ.

Assisting in receiving were Mesdames Wescott, Spencer, Wright and Campbell, while the little Misses Ruth and Wilda Smith opened the door for the guests. The bridal couple were attended by Judge and Mrs. Cochran and Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Geisness. The bride looked very sweet and lovely gowned all in white with the exception of the pink rose buds in her hair. The lady attendants were very charming; in evening gowns of Alice blue.

After everybody had been presented to the bride and groom and extended to them congratulations and best wishes for many more years of happy wedded life, Dr. McGillivray called the meeting to order, and announced the program which was opened with an anthem by the choir, "O, Be Joyful in the Lord." Rev. Smith then offered up a beautiful and inspiring prayer. A quartette

Forester Graves Believes Clallam County Should Have Quarter Million for Road Work.

H. S. GRAVES

That H. S. Graves, chief forester of the United States, is in favor of abolishing the Mount Olympus Monument and would so recommend to the department, was the impression received by members of the Commercial Club in attendance at the dinner given the forest service officials at the Olympic Hotel Saturday night.

Mr. Graves expressed himself as being particularly pleased with his trip to the Sol Duc springs country, saying he believed the scenery of the Olympic mountains is one of the greatest if not the greatest resources the country has and that he had written friends in the east to the effect that if they would come out here on a trip they would be fully repaid, even tho they saw absolutely nothing between the Atlantic and the Pacific. "The national forests," said Mr. Graves, "are being administered so that their natural scenic beauty may be maintained to the best advantage. Trails are built up the mountains and along the streams and camping places established for the thousands of persons who spend their summers in the woods.

Bonding the National Forests

However, Mr. Graves was chiefly interested in his scheme to bond the national forests for the purpose of building roads, as outlined in the last issue of the Olympic-Leader. "The national forests are not a separate national dominion," said he, "or domain handled without any regard to local conditions. They are handled with the special purpose of helping development of local communities. We are selling the timber as the market can absorb it, and cutting it away that the forests will be renewed. The bulk of the timber in the national forests in Washington is not now marketable, and we cannot now dispose of this timber unless we sacrificed it, and sold it far below its real value, or under conditions that would not only be detrimental to the national public interest but of the strictly local community interest as well. This we will not do."

By bonding the timber, the present generation would obtain a portion of the benefit to be derived from the development of the forest reserves as a national playground, as well as the opening up of new country of considerable agricultural possibilities; it was his opinion the department should have between a quarter and a half million for the development of roads in this county.

Port Angeles the Headquarters

Port Angeles is the point from which he would like to have these expeditions handled; the department had selected lots 16 and 17, block 32, to be used as headquarters for the service, but it had been greatly em-

PROCLAMATION

In view of the fact, that the laying of the corner stone of the new court house and the Clallam County Fair and the Industrial Exhibit of Clallam County will occur on October 16 and 17 I hereby proclaim those days a public holiday and request the business men and employers of labor generally to allow as many of their employes as is consistent with their interests to take a holiday on on those days.

THE TREY O' HEARTS

Greatest Photo-play Story of Love, Adventure and Mystery that Has Been Written.

The first installment of "The Trey O'Hearts," Louis Joseph Vance's great serial which has created such a sensation in the moving picture world, is published on page seven of this issue of the Olympic-Leader. It is said to overshadow all the late novels for romance, adventure, love and mystery. Action, plot and telling have combined to push The Trey O'Hearts into the top notch of the best sellers. A full page will be published in each issue for several weeks to come. There will be no synopsis of preceding chapters; you will not be able to obtain back numbers; each installment should be read as it appears.

In connection with the story as printed in the Olympic-Leader, the Dream Theatre will show the Universal Film Company's $200,000 production—a set of pictures that are more than remarkable—they are simply extraordinary. The first installment, the four chapters published in this issue, will be shown at the Dream next Thursday night. You will have to secure your seats early; standing room will be at a premium before the first reel is finished.

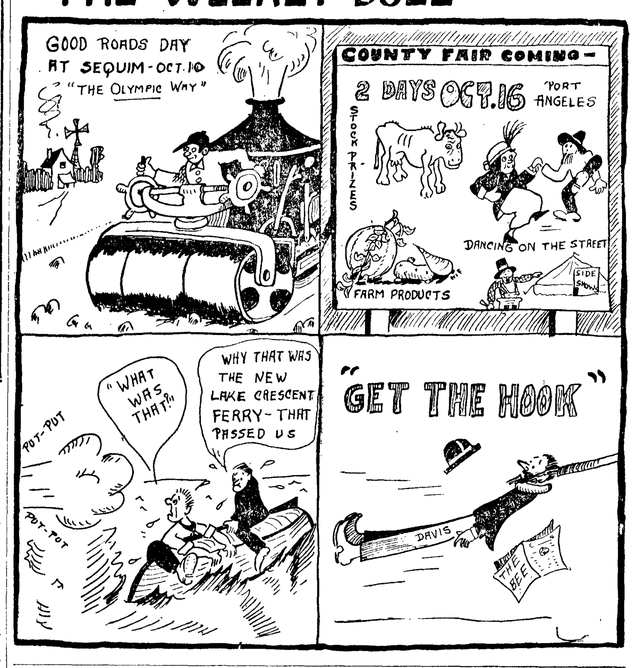
THE WEEKLY BULL---BY JESSEN



COUNTY BOARD CUTS LEVIES

Ranchers on Side Roads in East End District Can Have No Hope of Relief.

Tax payers will pay approximately $34,000 less in taxes in the year 1915 than for the year 1914.

At the meeting of the county commissioners Monday to fix the tax levy for 1915, there was a general scaling down of all the estimates with the result that in Road District No. 1, which had a levy of 13 mills for the year 1914 and which raised a tax of $17,389.00, the levy was cut to 5 mills which raises a tax of only $7,710.00.

In road District No. 2 the levy was cut from 10 to 9 mills, which produces a slight increase in the amount to be raised over last year.

In No. 3 the levy was cut from 9 to 5 mills reducing the tax from $36,510.00 for this year to $21,126.00 for next year.

In Road District No. 4 the levy was cut from 8 to 5 mills, which reduces the tax from $25,973.00 to $18,214.00.

The total reduction for all road purposes will be about $30,000 as compared with the amount levied last year.

The current running expenses of the county were reduced from $197,765.00 to $162,000.00, a reduction of about $36,000.00.

The amount of taxes which this county will pay the state next year will be $100,000.00, or about $11,000.00 more than this year, while the total taxes levied for all school districts is $67,000.00 as against $46,855 last year, a raise of over $20,000.00.

The commissioners have no jurisdiction over the amount charged by the state or the taxes levied in the several school districts. The directors of each school district submitting the amount of money required to run their several districts, it is mandatory on the Board to fix the levy accordingly.

The Board estimated that $40,610 will be necessary to pay the office and other current expenses of the county, for which purpose a levy of 2.781 mills was agreed upon. The items follow: For Superior Court $3060; Clerk $1950, Sheriff $3000; Treasurer $4400; Auditor $4400; Attorney $ 1700; Engineer $4500; Assessor $3500; Superintendent $1,900; Commissioners $1200; court house $3300; health officer $1400; justice court $150; prisoners $500;

AUSTRIAN COMMITS SUICIDE BY HANGING

Cliff Stokalo, an Austrian who had been in the employ of the Erickson Construction Co. for some time, committed suicide by hanging, at the Lyre river railroad bridge Tuesday. He had been batching by the depot and having laid off on account of a sore finger, went out to the Lyre river camp. He seemed cheery when he left town, had money, and was in good health, hence no reason can be assigned for the act. He had no relatives as far as known, though letters were found from a friend in Nevada; word sent the friend has so far failed to bring response.

THE CITY COUNCIL

Another extended session of the city council was held Tuesday night. All present except Councilman Dustman.

Mr. Wilcox, under report of street commissioner, asked that a stump be taken out of Race street at 10th to assist Messrs. Pardoe et al who had, he said, practically built all the road in that section. Granted by vote of 4 to 2.

A miscellaneous collection of light poles was offered to council for 8c a foot or, as the report stated, at a saving of $180 to the city if the bunch was taken. Upon motion of Bigelow city electrician was authorized to purchase poles at 7c a foot. Meters asked for by the electrician was ordered brought.

Payments Ordered on Contracts

Engineer submitted his estimate of work done in district 11, down town, by Lewis, Wiley & Morse, total to date $93,000, previous estimate $77,799. Payment of $12,-692.84 ordered.

In district 12, east Front street estimate allowed at $1,975.

In district 20, west First and Valley, estimated amount due contractor $3,009.02. Allowed.

Changing Grade of Victoria

Engineer Filion also recommended that grade of Victoria street east of Vine be reduced to 18 feet above datum, from approximate 60 feet, the change being necessary, it was reported, to accommodate the abandonment or vacation of Railroad avenue between Chase and Francis, making the grade of Victoria street take the place or Railroad avenue. It was also stated that it was necessary to take prompt action, as the railroad people were desirous of getting to work under the new arrangement but did not wish to do any work until the new grade was agreed upon. The city attorney was directed to bring in an ordinance changing the grade, upon motion of Mr. Fisher.

The city engineer's report as to Francis street sewer in effect that the loose dirt about same had been washed away by flood waters, and should be filed. Sewer was built by private parties under agreement with city. Parties now want city to take over and maintain same, creating a special sewer district for the purpose. Referred to clerk for data as to nature of agreement under which built.

Trenches dug by water company on First street at Chase and Peabody ordered filled.

Answering Bigelow as to width of parking strips in the city, engineer reported that same was fixed in grade ordinances, 18 feet each side of Francis, including sidewalk area, 20 feet on C and Lincoln streets which in 70 foot streets left 30-foot roadway.

Fair committee of Commercial Club asked council for full control of streets during the coming fair, to aid in controlling objectionable features. Granted.

D. W. Morse asked mayor and council to provide a scale of $800 of warrants issued to him on special assessment district. Filed.

An ordinance was presented by Mr. Shields amending section 2 of ordinance457, or Railroad ordinance. It is a lengthy affair, but Mr. Fisher assured council there was nothing new in it except the allowing the the changing from Railroad avenue to Victoria street east of Chase street. Referred to franchise committee and city attorney for checking.

Assessment Roll Approved

Ordinance approving assessment roll for district 10, for improvement of Third street, Third street extended and Third street north, also K street, excepting as to certain lots in block 23, was adopted.

Ordinance allowing commission of certain work on Railroad avenue and directing engineer to accept said partial work as full compliance with contract on pro rata basis, and releasing property east of Chase on Railroad avenue from all assessments were read and adopted, all voting aye, except Mr. Fisher who refused to vote. $1,200 had been spent on this improvement before abandonment and it was stated that this amount would be paid by abutting property.

Answering Mr. Shields, city attorney stated that city had agreement with Mr. Young of Young & Denio, for payment of$1,250 as per settlement, and that only through this agreement could city collect. Mr. Young is now suing to have his property released from bonding company so he can raise money to pay city.

Bids for meals for city prisoners for coming year opened. R. Manning 25c per meal; W. E. Brown will furnish good substantial meals and render itemized statement for 20c each. Latter accepted.

Bond of Jack Wood, $3,000 for completion of Peabody bridge accepted.

Peabody Bridge Dangerous

In this connection Mr. Wood asked extension of 60 days or to March 1, to complete bridge, asserting that it was desired to complete Lincoln street to Fifth before closing Peabody. Street Supt. Graham stated that unless Peabody was closed shortly it would have to be replanked. Mr. Wilcox stated that the way the bridge was being used with 7 to 10 ton loads going over same it was absolutely dangerous and he has been expecting to see one go down. The bents are 18 feet apart and the full load is between caps. Motion to allow extension of time withdrawn and street superintendent directed to place signs at once that persons using said bridge do so at their own risk.

Resolutions were ordered brought in prohibiting tying teams to fire plugs, and directing all trap doors in sidewalks to have inlaid hinges. On motion of Bigelow fire chief was ordered to have tested all new hydrants not already tested.

Mayor White called attention to use of alleys for areaways, and the legality of the grants was questioned. The discussion also brought in the grants of areaways on sidewalks and the matter will doubtless take form by ordinance or resolution later prohibiting any further grants.

Health Officer McGillivray in a report to council stated that he had inspected the two blocks on Front street Lincoln to Oak, on both sides and found same to be in a disreputable and unsanitary condition. Recommended be ordered cleaned up, and dumping of further refuse prohibited; that sanitary closets be ordered put in. Filed.

Questions as to whether crossings on C street had been put in according to specifications was ordered looked into before payment is made.

barassed by the sending in of a report signed by the city council asking that these lots be taken away from them; they had been unable to make the proposed improvements and he requested the Commercial Club and Council to fortify them in their claim on the property.

There were forty-six Club members and guests present at the dinner to assist in entertaining the forest officials, Mr. Graves, Mr. Fromme, chief state forester, and Mr. Morganroth, in charge of this portion of the forest. Mayor White welcomed the guests on behalf of the city, while President Craig acted as toastmaster introducing T. F. Trumbull and John Hansen, Mr. Trumbull presenting the argument of the Club in favor of abolition of the monument as well as reviewing the history of the reserve, while Mr. Hansen, as chairman of the Board of Commissioners gave a brief account of the county's work in road building.

REGULAR AUTO SERVICE PORT ANGELES TO FORKS

Messrs. Taylor, Hahn and Merrill are putting on a regular automobile service between Port Angeles and West End points, leaving both Port Angeles and Forks every morning in the week. Their enterprise in starting in to build up a regular business just at the beginning of winter will be greatly apreciated by those who have had to spend two days going in or out via Clallam Bay. One can leave Seattle at midnight and be in Forks shortly after noon the same day, whereas a full day is required to get to Clallam Bay by steamer and a good part of the day following to make Forks by auto. The fare by auto stage will be five or six dollars, or rather less, than by steamer and stage which is six dollars plus meals and lodgings.

DECLINES THE NOMINATION

To My Friends, the Voters of Clallam County.

It is evident, to me from the results of the primaries that the majority vote of our county is largely non-partisan, Progressive Republiccan.

I was honored with the nomination for county treasurer by the Progressive Party. Herbert H. Wood, the successful Republican candidate, also received a number of Progressive votes. I believe Mr. Wood to be eminently qualified to fill the office of county treasurer, and is deserving of the vote of all Progressives, regardless of party.

I therefore decline the nomination and ask for Mr. Wood the support of all my friends.

GEORGE H. GALE.

The Olympic Leader will have to acknowledge it was a little premature in tying the can to the Knocker's tail a couple of weeks ago, but the stockholders were evincing so great an anxiety in their efforts to get someone to take the paper off their hands that it seemed they might be successful. The fact is, we did not realize, at that time, how complete a failure Doctor Davis had made in his management of affairs.

The Puyallup Herald says: Increased opposition to the proposed eight-hour law is being encountered among the farmers of the state, who are now awakening to the harmful results that would follow for them if it were adopted. The ridiculous and impracticable results of such a compulsory law are more and more becoming apparent. The farmers know that, for instance, their farm work does not stop from 5 p. m., on Saturday until 8 a. m. on Monday. The stock must be cared for and fed on Sunday as on week days and if the help the farmer has during the week is prevented by law from doing this necessary work on Sunday, he will have to hire help just for Sunday.

Angeles High School Football Team Hold Their Own, But Lose Game, 6-0

Last Saturday afternoon the first game of the season was ushered in out at the Ball Park and a good sized crowd turned out with their colors to root for the home team. A few moments before the game, in sizing up the team, one would have thought it would be a miracle for Angeles to win. The Port Townsend team weighed at least 10 pounds more to the man than the Central High School team. Dodge, quarterback for Angeles, deserves credit for the way he handles the pigskin and the quickness in getting started from the defensive, while the Port Townsend quarterback, Deleo, is slow and exactly the reverse from Dodge.

Mr. Andy Severns acted as referee and he is there, neither side being treated to any favors by him. He understands the game thoroughly as he played on the University of Washington eleven for three or four years.

At 3:30 p. m., the whistle blew and Port Townsend kicked off. Dodge caught the ball on the 50-yard line, gaining ten yards on the play. Through a succession of line bucks and end runs the home eleven managed to place the ball on the visitors' 15-yard line. Dodge kicked the goal in the first half but missed the narrow opening by 8 feet.

The ball was again put into play. It was Townsend's ball on Angeles' 8-yard line. On the last down the former failed to gain and Angeles took possession of the ball. Angeles then gained two yards and fumbled the pigskin, Townsend taking the ball, was penalized 5 yards a moment later for offside. During the third quarter, Port Townsend was penalized 20 yards for offside. In this, the latter part of the game, Angeles found it impossible to gain any ground through center rushes, on account of the heaviness of the Townsend team. They were soon encouraged, however, when they found that end runs were their last resort. It was to no avail when only a few moments of play were left. At the end of the last quarter, Townsend had the ball and gained 10 yards from Angeles 25-yard line, and on the second down worked a forward pass and an end run and went across the Angeles goal for the only touchdown of the game, the fatal score standing 6 to 0.

The line up of both teams in as follows:

Angeles—Dodge, q., Bork, lh., Fitzgerald, rh., Dixon, f., Fisher, le., Perkins, lt., Nelson, c., Isbell, rg., Freeman, rt., Davis, re.

Port Townsend—Deleo, q., Warren, lh., Dobler, rh., Leslie, f., Baker, le., Deleo, lt., King, lg., Carter, c., Ruehle, rg., Olson, rt., Daly, re.

HIGH SCHOOL LECTURE COURSE

A lyceum course of entertainments will be given here again this season under the management of the high school. The course was so popular last year, that a much better one has been arranged for this season. There will be five entertainments instead of four, as formerly, and higher priced talent has been secured.

The course will consist of two lecturers, two musical companies, and an impersonator. The first number will appear October 26th, and the last one April 2nd. The following is a list of the attractions in the order in which they will appear:

Mr. B. R. Baumgart will give an illustrated lecture on "An Evening with the Stars."

The International Operatic Company, consisting of three ladies and two men, will give selections from the best modern popular operas.

Mr. Dudley Wagner will impersonate Richard Mansfield's "Beau Brummel" and other characters from literature and life.

The Ionian Serenaders, consisting of four young ladies, will give an evening of songs, instrumental selections, and readings.

Dr. Thomas Green, a traveler, author, and lecturer, will lecture on "The Problem of the Nations."

A canvass for subscriptions for season tickets is now being made, and is meeting with good support. It is hoped that enough tickets can be sold in advance to almost cover the cost of the course. Let every good citizen support the enterprise, as it is only by acting together that good entertainment can be secured.

THE BAZAAR OF NATIONS

Owing to the decorative scheme of flags of all nations at this year's Catholic Fair, the name has been altered to Bazaar of Nations. It will be similar to the previous undertaking, only more elaborate and on a larger scale. Preliminary work has been going on for the past two months and everything will be in readiness for the Bazaar at the Opera House on the 22nd, 23rd and 24th of this month, as announced on the tickets that have been on sale for some time.

The booths will be in charge of members of the Catholic Social Club. The Fancywork and Domestic Booths will be stocked with articles made by the members of the Club at their regular bi-monthly meetings. The Refreshment Booth will have on sale home-made candies, ice cream, cider, punch,etc. The Fishpond, Lucky Paddle Wheel, Chance Booth, Canerack and Dutch Kid will afford all kinds of exciting amusements; while the Boys' Athletic Goods Contest and the Watch Guessing Contest will not be secondary features of the great Bazaar.

Chicken dinner will be served at the noon hours and a tempting supper from 5 to 7 in the evening.

NEW RECORD IN PILE DRIVING

Jimmie McGill, in charge of the pile driving gang for Dickenson & Johnson, has certainly made a record for himself this summer. With a crew of eight men, Jimmie has driven from 50 to 70 piles a day on the railroad trestle. The average drive is about 30 or 40; some speed, what!

The contractors, D. & J., expect to be through with the driving about Wednesday, when they will hit the bank going west. The job of driving the piles has taken about eight months, but they have been tied up many times with right-of-ways, etc. After driving is finished the job will have to be gone over again and decked for the railroad.

RITCHIES HOME FROM THEIR EUROPEAN TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ritchie reached home last Saturday after spending several months in Europe. They first visited their old home in Glasgow, finding many changes, not only in the city but also in the people, and it was some time before they realized that they, too. had changed and that they were looking at people and things through different eyes than they were twenty years ago. They spent five weeks in London finding much to interest and entertain them. While there, Mr. Ritchie says he was interviewed by some suffragettes, who were anxious to learn all about how suffrage had worked in Washington, and to make inquiries about Hi Gill, the mayor whom the women recalled. We trust Mr. Ritchie's gallantry to have said nothing but praise for Washington women and their use of the ballot. He says the Britishers are all very optimistic about the final outcome of the war and are keeping very cheerful. Miss Angie Ritchie remained in Boston to continue her studies at the Emerson School of Dramatic Art.

GARRISON MEAT MARKET HAS CHANGED HANDS

Another important business change this week was made Tuesday, when A. W. Roth, late of Los Angeles, became proprietor of the Angeles Market formerly owned and run by James Garrison. Mr. Roth is an old friend of Mr. DeSwarte's who we understand also has more than a passing interest in the market.

They say "school teachers are born not made" and this seems to be true also of the butchers for Mr. Roth's ability in that line seems to be inherited. His father, Mr. Roth of Pittsburg, is a retired butcher having quit the business fourteen years ago. His uncle, John C. Roth of Cincinnatti, is a prominent packer, his celebrated brand of Dove goods being sold in both Canada and the United States. Mr. Roth has been in business for himself a number of years and understands the meat business thoroughly. His market will be found as clean and sanitary as it can be made and the service will be the best, always assuring courteous treatment and a square deal. Phone your orders and be assured they will receive prompt attention. Phone 9.

PITY 'TIS, 'TIS TRUE

Doctor Davis says the Olympic-Leader advertised the fact that he was a poor collector of medical bills, with the result that next day he secured two new patients. Did they pay in advance?

Muck, the Tailor, returned this morning from his business trip.

WEST END ROAD ALREADY POPULAR

A bunch of politicians, some huntsmen and fishermen and some enthusiastic motorists were among the passengers carried across Lake Crescent last Sunday by the new ferry, Marjory, on their way to the West End. Ten of the party took dinner at Sappho with Mrs. Weldrick, introduced to the strangers as the best cook in the county, and she surely is entitled to the distinction judging by the dinner she set up to the crowd on very short notice. The trip over the new road to Forks is one that must be taken to be appreciated as it defies description. But it is easy to imagine what the traffic over it will be next summer when the autoists realize what it has in store for them—the most superb scenery, the finest timber, the most bracing and exhilarating air, the best hunting and fishing in the world, the most hospitable and congenial proprietors at the hotels, and last but not least the grandest roads in the state.

MRS. GEO. DRAPER HAS PASSED AWAY

Mrs. George Draper passed away at her home Tuesday morning, October 6th, at the age of eighty-two. She was born in Mutford, Suffolk Co. England, March 3, 1832, and was married October 4th, 1859. She is survived by her husband and six children: Chas. D. Draper of Seattle, Mrs. S. G. Morse of Mora, Hannah C. Draper, Mrs. Joseph Pearson, Albert S. Draper and Mrs. Emma Stevens all of Port Angeles, besides eighteen grand children and two great grand children. The funeral was held at Fulmer's undertaking parlors Thursday morning and was largely attended by old friends of the family. The services were conducted by Rev. Lake of the Babtist church.

SULT AND LESURE JOIN COMMERCIAL CLUB

C. D. Sult took occasion when in the city this week to become a member of the Commercial Club, the first non-resident to take advantage of the new bylaw which allows a non-resident to become a member by paying $2 a year dues. Guy Lesure, also from the West End, became a member and it is hoped many more of the ranchers will avail themselves of this privilege, as much benefit can be derived to the Club as well as the rancher by being bro't in close touch with each other, and together working out difficult problems for the good of all.

Ole Boe, postmaster at Royal in the West End for the past fifteen years, and a pioneer there for twenty-five, was doing business in Angeles Thursday on his return from Medical Lake where he had been to see his son.

county home, $2100; indigent relief $1500; printing $1000; inspection $300; 3 per cent rebate of taxes $500; tax rebate $5000; fire protection $850; mother's pensions $5000.

School District Levies

A substantial downward tendency of percentages as compared with valuations is shown in the school district levies. The cry has been to show a low levy for the benefit of intending investors; this has been accomplished, even in the face of the fact that over $20,000 more will be raised for the school districts the coming year, by an increase in the assessed valuation of the county. The reductions are as follows:

City No 2	from 52 mills to	39

Sequim Wanting.

A comparison of the 1914 and 1915 levies, given herewith, shows that it was possible to make a decrease in taxes only at the expense of the county's development. While there is an apparent cut of $36,000 in the current expense fund, it must be remembered that the county cruise being completed, there could be no more money used for that purpose; the same is true of the engineering expense in connection with the new roads, which has been paid out of the current expense fund. Of course reductions have been made where possible, but it may be even they were inadvisable, as the furnishing of the new court house and completion of the grounds has yet to be undertaken, while the demands of the destitute and those incident to the mothers' pension law increase rather than diminish.

There remains over $50,000 to be paid on old indebtedness, each dollar of which now draws down two-fifty. The rapid cancellation of this has been partly responsible for our increased taxes, and it would have been possible to have wiped it all out this coming year, but the levy was placed at 3.188 mills to make the combined state and county levy an even 18 mills for office convenience. The increase in the bond redemption fund was made necessary by the building of the new court house.

Thirty thousand dollars was cut off from the general road fund. The $50,000 raised this year was used in graveling the new road east from Morse Creek, in road work in the East End, in approaches to the new Elwha bridge and in building a portion of the new road to Port Crescent.

The howl for tax reduction has come almost wholly from the Milwaukee Timber Co., and smaller companies who are opposed to any and all road improvements, and from a few of the East End ranchers—notably McInnes and Adams—people who have had the benefit for years of practically all the road money raised by taxing the entire territory from the city limits of Port Angeles to the Jefferson county line, as well as a very considerable amount of the bond money. Having good roads themselves, which have been largely paid for by the small rancher off on the side roads, they now demand that only sufficient money be raised to keep the present roads in repair—they refuse to assist the small rancher as he has helped them. In accordance with this demand from the East End ranchers the Board cut their levy in half, tho openly expressing doubt of its being sufficient to keep up essential repairs. As there was an additional three mill levy in No. 1 last year for the purpose of paying off the last of the indebtedness in-off by the commissioners of five years ago, the reduction has been very material.

In the Port Angeles district, while the road levy has been reduced one mill, the money available will be raised from $25,400 to $27,500. The people of this district are standing solidly behind Commissioner Hansen in his good roads program for they realize that to build up the county, we need not only main trunk lines but equally good side roads. Within the next two years all the dairying districts about Port Angeles will have had equal benefit from the money raised for good roads and taxes will be cut down to provide for maintainance only.

In the West End districts, with the increased valuation due to the cruise and assessment, it was possible to cut the levies from 8 and 8 mills to 5 each, and still raise enough money for upkeep besides making a start on the Lake Ozette road.

TO THE VOTERS OF CLALLAM COUNTY

The following is what I believe. If it meets with your approval, I ask your support at the coming election.

1. A thorough investigation and a conscientious vote on all measures introduced in the coming session.

2. The advocation of economy in state and county, also in state appropriations and the expenditure of same. (Look at your tax receipts and see how much you pay toward the state's expenses; then notice the substantial salaries the members of the numerous commissions are drawing.)

3. The introduction of an efficient and satisfactory school law regarding industrial and agricultural education.

4. To stand for a working legislature as against political machines, and the insidious threats and tactics of the lobbyist.

5. State road appropriation for Clallam county, and all necessary improvements that will benefit the people at large.

6. While I am a firm believer in the basic principles involved in the Referendum, the Recall, and the Primary law, I believe that these laws as they now stand, can and should be improved.

7. I am in favor of a public administrator appointed by the Court, whose fees and compensation are regulated by law.

8. I am in favor of a law that will protect the people of the State of Washington from the numerous fake stock selling concerns and schemes.

9. I agree to stand for and give my support to such laws as will benefit the people as a whole and not to special interests.

Yours respectfully,
ROBERT A. GILMORE.

CHAPTER I.

The Message of the Rose.

Lapped deep in the leather-bound luxury of an ample lounge-chair, walled apart from the world by the venerable solitude of the library of London's most exclusive club, Mr. Alan Law sprawled (largely on the nape of his neck) and, squinting discontentedly down his nose, admitted that he was exhaustively bored.

Now the chair filled so gracelessly stood by an open window, some twenty feet below which lay a sizable walled garden, an old English garden in full flower. And through the window, now and then, a half-hearted breeze wafted gusts of warm air, sauve and enervating with the heavy fragrance of English roses.

Mr. Law drank deep of it, and in spite of his spiritual unrest, sighed slightly and shut his eyes.

An unspoken word troubled the depth of his consciousness, so that old memories stirred and struggled to its surface. The word was "Rose," and for the time seemed to be the name neither of a woman nor of a flower, but oddly of both, as though the two things were one. His mental vision, bridging the gap of a year, conjured up the vision of a lithe, sweet silhouette in white, with red roses at her belt, posed on a terrace of the Riviera against the burning Mediterranean blue.

Mr. Law was dully conscious that he ought to be sorry about something. But he was really very drowsy indeed; and so, drinking deep of wine-scent of roses, he fell gently asleep.

The clock was striking four when he awoke; and before closing his eyes he had noticed that its hands indicated ten minutes to four. So he could not have slept very long.

For some few seconds Alan did not move, but rested as he was, incredulously regarding a rose which had materialized mysteriously upon the little table at his elbow. He was quite sure it had not been there when he closed his eyes, and almost as sure that it was not real.

And in that instant of awakening the magic fragrance of the rose-garden seemed to be even more strong and cloying sweet than ever.

Then he put out a gingerly hand and discovered that it was real beyond all question. A warm red rose, fresh-plucked, drops of water trembling and sparkling like tiny diamonds on the velvet of its fleshy petals. And when impulsively he took it by the stem, he discovered a most indisputable thorn—which did service for the traditional pinch.

Convinced that he wasn't dreaming, Alan transferred the rose to his sound hand, and meditatively sucked his thumb. Then he jumped up from the chair and glared suspiciously round the room. It was true that a practical joke in that solemn atmosphere were a thing unthinkable; still, there was the rose.

There was no one but himself in the library.

Perplexed to exasperation, Alan fled the club, only pausing on the way out to annex the envelope he found addressed to him in the letter-rack.

It was a blank white envelope of good quality, the address typewritten, the stamp English, and bore a London postmark half illegible.

Alan tore the envelope open in absent-minded fashion—and started as if stung. The enclosure was a simple playing card—a trey of hearts!

As for Alan Law, he wandered homeward in a state of stupefaction. He could read quite well the message of the rose. He would not soon forget that year's parting with his Rose of the Riviera: "You say you love me but may not marry me—and we must part. Then promise this, that if ever you change your mind, you'll send for me." And her promise: "I will send you a rose."

But the year had lapsed with never a sign from her, so that he had grown accustomed to the unflattering belief that she had forgotten him.

And now the sign had come—but what the deuce did the trey of hearts mean?

When morning came, London had lost Alan Law. No man of his acquaintance—nor any woman—had received the least warning of his disappearance. He was simply and sufficiently removed from English ken.

CHAPTER II.

The Sign of the Three.

Out-of-doors, high brazen noon, a day in spring, the clamorous life of New York running as fluent as quicksilver through its brilliant streets.

Within-doors, neither sound nor sunbeam disturbed a perennial quiet that was yet not peace.

The room was like a wide, deep well of night, the haunt of teeming shadows and sinister silences.

Little, indeed, was visible beyond the lonely shape that brooded over it, the figure of an old man motionless in a great, leather-bound chair.

His hair was as white as his heart was black. The rack of his bones, clothed in a thick black dressing-gown with waist-cord of crimson silk, from the thighs down was covered by a black woollen rug. He stared unblinkingly at nothing: a man seven-eighths dead, completely paralyzed but for his head and his left arm.

Presently a faint clicking signal disturbed the stillness. Seneca Trine put forth his left hand and touched one of a row of crimson buttons embedded in the desk. Something else clicked—this time a latch. There was the faintest possible noise of a closing door, and a smallish man stole noiselessly into the light, paused beside the desk and waited respectfully for leave to speak.

"Well?"

"A telegram, sir—from England."

"Give it me!"

The old man seized the sheet of yellow paper, scanned it hungrily, and crushed it in his tremulous claw with a gesture of uncontrollable emotion.

"Send my daughter Judith here!"

Two minutes later a young woman in street dress was admitted to the chamber of shadows.

"You sent for me, father?"

"Sit down."

She found and placed a chair at the desk, and obediently settled herself in it.

"Judith—tell me—what day is this?"

"My birthday. I am twenty-one."

"And your sister's birthday: Rose, too, is twenty-one."

"Yes."

"You could have forgotten that," the old man pursued almost mockingly. "Do you really dislike your twin-sister so intensely?"

The girl's voice trembled. "You know," she said, "we have nothing in common—beyond parentage and this abominable resemblance. Our natures differ as light from darkness."

"And which would you say was—light?"

"Hardly my own: I'm no hypocrite. Rose is everything that they tell me my mother was, while I"—the girl smiled strangely—"I think—I am more your daughter than my mother's."

A nod of the white head confirmed the suggestion. "It is true. I have watched you closely, Judith, perhaps more closely than even you knew. Before I was brought to this"—the wasted hand made a significant gesture—"I was a man of strong passions. Your mother never loved, but rather feared me. And Rose is the mirror of her mother's nature, gentle, unselfish, sympathetic. But you, Judith, you are like a second self to me."

An accent of profound satisfaction informed his voice. The girl waited in a silence that was tensely expectant.

"Then, if on this your birthday I were to ask a service of you that might injuriously affect the happiness of your sister—?"

The girl laughed briefly: "Only ask it!"

"And how far would you go to do my will?"

"Where would you stop in the service of one you loved?"

Seneca Trine nodded gravely. And after a brief pause, "Rose is in love," he announced.

"Oh, I know—I know!" the father affirmed with a faint ring of satisfaction. "I am old, a cripple, prisoner of this living tomb; but all things I should know—somehow—I come to know in course of time!"

"It's true—that Englishman she scraped an acquaintance with on the Riviera last year—what's his name?—Law, Alan Law."

"In the main," the father corrected mildly, "you are right. Only, he's not English. His father was Wellington Law, of Law & Son."

She knew better than to interrupt, but her seeming patience was belied by the whitening knuckles of a hand that lay within the little pool of blood-red light.

And presently the deep voice rolled on: "Law and I were once friends; then—it came to pass that we loved one woman, your mother. I won her—all but her heart: too late she realized it was Law she loved. He never forgave me, nor I him. Though he married another woman, still he held from me the love of my wife. I could not sleep for hating him—and he was no better off. Each sought the other's ruin; it came to be an open duel between us, in Wall street. One of us had to fail—and I held the stronger hand. The night before the day that was to have seen my triumph, I walked in Central park, as was my habit to tire my body so that my brain might sleep. Crossing the East drive I was struck by a motor-car running at high speed without lights. I was picked up insensible—and lived only to be what I am today. Law triumphed in the street while I lay helpless; only a living remnant of my fortune remained to me. Then his chauffeur, discharged, came to me and sold me the truth; it was Law's car with Law at the wheel that had struck me down—a deliberate attempt at assassination. I sent Law word that I meant to have a life for a life. For what was I better than dead? I promised him that, should he escape, I would have the life of his son. He knew I meant it, and sent his wife and son abroad. Then he died suddenly, of some common ailment—they said; but I knew better. He died of fear of me."

Trine smiled a cruel smile: "I had made his life a reign of terror. Ever so often I would send Law, one way or another—mysteriously always—a trey of hearts; it was my death-sign for him; as you know, our name, Trine, signifies a group of three. And every time he received a trey of hearts, within twenty-four hours an attempt of some sort would be made upon his life. The strain broke down his nerve. . . .

"Then I turned my attention to the son, but the distance was too great, the difficulties insuperable. The Law millions mocked all my efforts; their alliance with the Rothschilds placed mother and son under the protection of every secret police in Europe. But they dared not come home. At length I realized I could win only by playing a waiting game. I needed three things: more money; to bring Alan Law back to America; and one agent I could trust, one incorruptible agent. I ceased to persecute mother and son, lulled them into a sense of false security, and by careful speculations repaired my fortunes. In Rose I had the lure to draw the boy back to America; in you, the one person I could trust.

"I sent Rose abroad and arranged that she should meet Law. They fell in love at sight. Then I wrote informing her that the man she had chosen was the son of him who had murdered all of me but my brain. It fell out as I foresaw. You can imagine the scene of passionate renunciation—pledges of undying constancy—the arrangement of a secret code whereby, when she needed him, she would send him a single rose—the birth of a great romance!"

The old man laughed sardonically. "Well, there is the history. Now the rose has been sent; Law is already homeward bound; my agents are watching his every step. The rest is in your hands."

The girl bent forward, breathing heavily, eyes aflame in a face that had assumed a waxen pallor.

"What is it you want of me?"

"Bring Alan Law to me. Dead or alive, bring him to me. But alive, if you can compass it; I wish to see him die. Then I, too, may die content."

The hand of hot-blooded youth stole forth and grasped the icy hand of death-in-life.

"I will bring him," Judith swore—"dead or alive, you shall have him here."

CHAPTER III.

The Trail of Treachery.

But young Mr. Law was sole agent of his own evanishment; just as he was nobody's fool, least of all his own. The hidden meaning of the trey of hearts perplexed him with such distrust that before leaving London, he dispatched a code cablegram to his confidential agent in New York.

What do you know about the trey of hearts? Answer immediately.

The answer forestalled his arrival in Liverpool:

Trine's death sign for your father. For God's sake, look to yourself and keep away from America.

But Alan had more than once visited America incognito and unknown to Seneca Trine via a secret route of his own selection.

Eight days out of London, a second-class passenger newly landed from one of the C.P. steamships, he walked the streets of Quebec—and dropped out of sight between dark and dawn, to turn up presently in the distant Canadian hamlet of Baie St. Paul, apparently a very tenderfooted American woods-traveler chaperoned by a taciturn Indian guide picked up heaven-knows-where.

Crossing the St. Lawrence by night, the two struck off quietly into the hinterland of the Notre Dame range, then crossed the Maine border.

On the second noon thereafter, trail-worn and weary, as lean as their depleted packs, the two paused on a ridge-pole of the wilderness up back of the Allagash country, and made their midday meal in a silence which, if normal in the Indian, was one of deep misgivings on Alan's part.

Continually his gaze questioned the northern skies that lowered portentously, foul with smoke—a country-wide conflagration that threatened all northern Maine, bone-dry with drought.

Only the south offered a fair prospect. And the fires were making southward far faster than man might hope to travel through that grim and stubborn land.

Even as he stared, Alan saw fresh columns of dun-colored smoke spring up in the northwest.

Anxiously he consulted the impassive mask of the Indian, from whom his questions gained Alan little comfort, Jacob recommended forced marches to Spirit lake, where canoes might be found to aid their flight; and withdrew into sullen reserve.

They traveled far and fast by dim forest trails before sundown, then again paused for food and rest. And as Jacob sat deftly about preparing the meal, Alan stumbled off to whip the little trail-side stream for trout.

Perhaps a hundred yards upstream, the back-lash of a careless cast by his weary hand hooked the state of Maine. Too tired even to remember the appropriate words, Alan scrambled ashore, forced through the thick undergrowth that masked the trail, found his fly, set the state of Maine free—and swinging on his heel brought up, nose to a sapling, transfixed by a rectangle of white pasteboard fixed to its trunk, a trey of hearts, of which each pip had been neatly punctured by a 22-caliber bullet.

He carried it back to camp, meaning to consult the guide, but on second thought, held his tongue. It was not likely that the Indian had overlooked an object so conspicuous on the trail.

So Alan waited for him to speak—and meantime determined to watch Jacob more narrowly, though no other suspicious circumstance had marked the several days of their association.

The first half of the night was, as the day, devoted to relentless progress southward; thirty minutes of steady jogging, five minutes for rest—and repeat.

No more question as to the need for such urgent haste; overhead the north wind muttered without ceasing. Thin veils of smoke drifted through the forest, hugging the ground, like some weird acrid mist; and ever the curtained heavens glared, livid with reflected fires.

By midnight Alan had come to the bounds of endurance; flesh, bone and sinew could no longer stand the strain. Though Jacob declared that Spirit lake was now only six hours distant, as far as concerned Alan he might have said 600. His blanket once unrolled, Alan dropped upon it like one drugged.

The sun was high when he awakened and sat up, rubbing heavy eyes, stretching aching limbs, wondering what had come over the Indian to let him sleep so late.

Of a sudden he was assailed by sickening fears that needed only the briefest investigation to confirm. Jacob had absconded with every valuable item of their equipment.

Nor was his motive far to seek. Overnight the fire had made tremendous gains. And ever and anon the wind would bring down the roar of the holocaust, dulled by distance but not unlike the growling of wild animals feeding on their kill.

Alan delayed long enough only to swallow a few mouthfuls of raw food, gulped water from a spring, and set out at a dog-trot on the trail to Spirit Lake.

For hours he blundered blindly on, holding to the trail mainly by instinct.

At length, panting, gasping, half-blinded, he staggered into a little natural clearing and plunged forward headlong, so bewildered that he could not have said whether he was tripped or thrown; for even as he stumbled a heavy body landed on his back and crushed him savagely to earth.

In less than a minute he was overcome; his wrists hitched together, his ankles bound with heavy cord.

When his vision cleared he found Jacob within a yard, regarding him with a face as immobile as though it had been cast in the bronze it resembled.

Beyond, to one side, a woman in a man's hunting costume stood eyeing the captive as narrowly as the Indian, but unlike him with a countenance that seemed aglow with a fierce exultancy over his downfall.

But for that look, he could have believed hers the face that had brought him overseas to this mortal pass. Feature for feature, even to the hue of her tumbled hair, she counterfeited the woman he loved; only those eyes, aflame with their look of inhuman ruthlessness, denied that the two were one.

He sought vainly to speak. The breath rustled in his parched throat like wind whispering among dead leaves.

Thrusting the Indian roughly aside, the woman knelt in his place by Alan's head.

"No," she said, and smiling cruelly, shook her head—"no, I am not your Rose. But I am her sister, Judith, her twin, born in the same hour, daughter of—can you guess whose daughter? But see this!" She flashed a card from within her hunting shirt and held it before his eyes. "You know it, eh? The trey of hearts—the symbol of Trine—Trine, your father's enemy, and yours, and—Rose's father and mine! So, now, perhaps you know!"

A gust of wind like a furnace blast swept the glade. The woman sprang up, glanced over-shoulder into the forest, and signed to the Indian.

"In ten minutes," she said, "these woods will be your funeral pyre."

She stepped back. Jacob advanced, picked Alan up, shouldered his body, and strode back into the forest. Ten feet in from the clearing he dropped the helpless man supine upon a bed of dry logs and branches.

Then, with a single movement, he disappeared.

CHAPTER IV.

Many Waters.

Overhead, through a rift in the foliage, a sky was visible whose ebon darkness called to mind a thunder-cloud.

The heat was nearly intolerable; the voice of the fire was very loud.

A heavy, broken crashing near by made Alan turn his head, and he saw a brown bear break cover and plunge on into the farther thickets—forerunner of a mad rout of terrified forest folk, deer, porcupines, a fox or two, a wildcat, rabbits, squirrels, partridges—a dozen more. . . .

Two minutes had passed of the ten. Something was digging uncomfortably into Alan's right hip—the automatic pistol in his hip pocket, of which Jacob had neglected to relieve him. Then a sharp, spiteful crackling brought him suddenly to a sitting position, to find that the Indian had thoughtfully touched a match to the pyre before departing. At Alan's feet the twigs were blazing merrily.

It would have been easy enough, acting on instinct, to snatch his limbs away, but he did not move more than to strain his feet as far as their bonds permitted. Conscious of scorching heat even through his hunting boots, he suffered that torture until a tongue of flame licked up, wrapped itself round the thick hempen cord and ate it through.

Immediately Alan kicked his feet free, lifted to a kneeling position, and crawled from the pyre.

As for his hands—Alan's hunting-knife was still in its sheath belted to the small of his back. Tearing at the belt with his hampered fingers, he contrived to shift it round until the sheath knife stuck at the belt-loop over his left hip. Withdrawing and conveying the blade to his mouth, he gripped it firmly between his teeth, and sawed the cords round his wrists against the razor-sharp blade.

Before Alan could turn and run he saw a vanguard of flames bridge 50 yards at a bound and start a dead pine blazing like a torch.

And then he was pelting like a madman across the smoked-filled clearing, and in less than two minutes broke from the forest to the pebbly shore of a wide-bosomed lake, and within a few hundred feet of a substantial dam, through whose spillway a heavy volume of water cascaded with a roar rivaling that of the forest-fire itself.

Two quick glances showed Alan two things: that his only way of escape was via the dam; that there was a solitary canoe at mid-lake, bearing swiftly to the farther shore Judith Trine and the Indian—the latter wielding the paddle.

In the act of turning toward the dam he saw Jacob drop the paddle. The next instant a bullet from a Winchester .30 kicked up a spurt of pebbles only a few feet in advance of Alan.

He quickened his pace, but the next bullet fell closer, while the third actually bit the earth beneath his running feet as he gained the dam.

Exasperated, he pulled up, whipped out his pistol and fired without aim. At the same time, he noted that the distance between dam and canoe had lessened perceptibly, thanks to the strong current sucking through the spillway.

His shot flew wide, but almost instinctively his finger closed again upon the trigger, and he saw the paddle snap in twain, its blade falling overboard. And then the Indian fired again, his bullet droning past Alan's ear.

As he fired in response Jacob started, dropped his rifle and crumpled up in the bow of the canoe.

Simultaneously earth and heavens rocked with a terrific clap of thunder.

He turned again and ran swiftly along the dam, toward two heavy timbers that bridged the torrent of the spillway.

Then a glance aside brought him up with a thrill of horror; the suck of the overflow had drawn the canoe within a hundred yards of the spillway. The dead Indian in its bow, the living woman helpless in its stern, it swept swiftly onward to destruction.

His next few actions were wholly unpremeditated. He was conscious only of her white, staring face, her strange likeness to the woman that he loved.

He ran out upon the bridge, threw himself down upon the innermost timber, turned, and let his body fall backward, arms extended at length, and swung, braced by his feet beneath the outer timber.

With a swiftness that passed conscious thought, he was aware of the canoe hurtling onward with the speed of wind, its sharp prow apparently aimed directly for his head. Then hands closed round his wrists like clamps; a tremendous weight tore at his arms, and with an effort of inconceivable difficulty he began to lift, to drag the woman up out of the foaming jaws of death.

Somehow that impossible feat was achieved; somehow the woman gained a hold upon his body, shifted it to his belt, contrived inexplicably to clamber over him to the timbers; and somehow he in turn pulled himself up to safety, and sick with reaction sprawled prone, lengthwise upon that foot-wide bridge, above the screaming abyss.

Later he became aware that the woman had crawled to safety on the farther shore, and pulling himself together, imitated her example. Solid earth underfoot, he rose and stood swaying, beset by a great weakness.

Through the gathering darkness—a ghastly twilight in which the flaming forests on the other shore burned with an unearthly glare—he discovered the wan, writhen face of Judith Trine close to his and he heard her voice, a scream barely audible above the com-three be appointed to look into the rights of the squatters to the end that they might be reimbursed. He said it was contemplated that the property would be improved if secured by the service and that they had had an appropriation for the purpose. Mr. Morganroth explained that the lots really belong to the forest service now, Congress having been asked to take them away; they had an appropriation of $800 to improve the lots and this year would have had a further appropriation for building purposes. A committee was appointed to confer with the council in regard to the passage of a similar resolution, both to be wired to Washington.

Reduction in City Levy

W. B. Ritchie, chairman of the committee on taxation, reported having been in conference with the city council relative to the levies being made, and that a very considerable reduction was decided upon for both districts.

Sequim Club's Banquet

T. T. Aldwell, who had been a member of the committee attending the recent meeting of the Sequim Commercial Club as representatives of Port Angeles Club, stated that over eighty were present at the banquet which he termed the most enthusiastic and spontaneous success he had ever known. Mr. Aldwell was particularly pleased that Mr. McInnes, who has had no little experience in gathering prize-winning exhibits, had agreed to take two members out on a trip for the purpose of securing exhibits for the coming Fair.

Reports were also made regarding arrangements for the forthcoming Club dance, also the successful outcome of the dinner served in honor of Chief Forester Graves, participated in by 46 members and guests, the latter including Thos. G. Mortland, J. M. Grant and A. E. Pierce of the Sequim Commercial Club and H. M. Delany of Aberdeen.

Good Roads Celebration

The importance of a large attendance at the Good Roads Celebration to be held at Sequim Saturday, was urged upon the club membership by several speakers and the celebrations committee was instructed to organize an excursion selling tickets therefor.

Krumrie Brick Plant

The committee on local trade reported having made a thoro investigation of the Krumrie brick plant, collecting important data concerning the plant, as well as conservative and expert estimates of obvious prospects for expansion and profitable permanent operation on a much larger scale. They found that while Mr. Krumrie is an expert brick maker, he needs additional capital and a business manager to take charge of the selling end of the game.

Visitors Asked for Remarks

W. S. Clark of Boise was extended the right hand of fellowship by Pres. Craig, who requested a few remarks. Mr. Clark said he had traveled over the country the last 15 years looking for a location for a furniture factory; he had decided to remain with us and would start in a small way first.

A.W. Smith of Mora,one of Clallam county's pioneers, was called upon for a few remarks, but begged to be excused. He spoke very highly of the new road improvements, contrasting the four and a half hours necessary to reach Port Angeles with the old days when he carried mail down from Neah Bay. Mr. Smith reads the Olympic-Leader and is a very well informed man on affairs thruout the county.

A "Getting Acquainted Campaign"

Fred Farmer, chairman of the entertainment committee, brought up what was really the most important matter of the evening, i. e: The establishment of cordial trade relations between the people of Angeles and the smaller towns of the county. It costs $25 per ton to transport goods from Clallam Bay to Forks, he said, whereas a very much lower rate might be had via Lake Crescent now that the new road is opened. As a member of the Bremerton Commercial Club, he had assisted in a "getting acquainted" campaign that had been an unqualified success and he believed a number of our business men, four or five auto loads, should take a trip to the West End, enjoy the beautiful scenery, get their eyes opened as to the resources and spend a couple of days making the acquaintance of the people.

Mr. Farmer spoke particularly of his line of business, stating that he had learned automobile owners were sending to Seattle and even to Sequim for supplies. J. C. Grader had said when in Angeles Sunday—his first through trip with his car—that he did not know supplies were handled here. Mr. Farmer believed the same condition would be found to apply to other lines of business.

W. B. Ritchie endorsed Mr. Farmer's suggestion of a business men's excursion, saying he had spent some of the most pleasant days of his life in the West End of the county and wanted to be counted in on the trip. He believed a plan should be worked out for the economical handling of freight via the lake, but he said it was up to the merchants themselves to advertise in the county newspapers. He believed there was no reason why people would not buy here instead of sending further away if they were asked to do so.

As J. C. Grader and in fact all but two of the fifteen automobile owners of the West End—the same being Messrs. Stange, Jordan, Kidd, Hahn, Maybury, Peterson, Merrill, Sigfreid, Grader, Palmer, H. B. Smith, Harvey Smith, A. W. Smith, Taylor and Marshall—are readers of the Olympic-Leader, it is very evident Mr. Ritchie has the correct idea.

The matter of a trade excursion was referred to the regular committee and Mr. Farmer expects to have details complete in a few days.

Added Attraction for Sol Duc

Mr. Farmer also said it might not be generally known that the Sol Duc Transportation Company is rebuilding two of its large stage cars, providing greater fuel and water capacity, in anticipation of maintaining a daily service between the springs and Mora next summer, giving guests an opportunity to enjoy the ocean beach.

BUY AT HOME

If you live in Port Angeles and buy your goods elsewhere, can you claim to be a good citizen, doing your share to develop and maintain your home town? There are people in Port Angeles who are sending to Seattle, Chicago, Omaha and other cities to buy a piano without even consulting or considering either of their home dealers. We have three dealers right here at home, all of whom are factory representatives of good reliable makers, Mr. Lange, Mr. Harris and myself, and all of our expenses combined for six months would not pay the expenses of some of the big Seattle stores for a single day. Then why can not either of us sell you a piano cheaper (quality considered, which is the first thing any wise person will consider) than one of these houses? And I am sure we would be satisfied with a much smaller profit.

I have had 19 years experience in the business, and have seen it from all sides. Have had charge of some very large stores where we sold dozens of pianos daily and I am convinced and I can convince any other reasonable person that the small dealer with small expense can sell cheaper, (and yet make for himself a fair margin of profit) than the big store with big expenses.

Mr. Lange, Mr. Harris and myself are all citizens of Port Angeles; this is our home. Then would it not be fair to ask that you at least give us a chance to figuse with you before you buy from some out-of-town firm? I am positive that should you buy from either of us, you will not have cause to regret it, as the goods that each of us handle are well known; and we are your neighbors and will treat you as such. I am the factory representative of the Kohler & Chase line, established in New York in 1850. I carry a nice assortment of pianos and player pianos at my home, 11th street between Vine and Albert. Will trade for live stock or anything of value. Easy terms.

consisting of Mesdames Luppen and McMahen, and Messrs. Broulette and McNutt sang two most enjoyable selections, responding to the hearty encore with an amusing little ditty which was very much appreciated.

In a few well worded remarks Mr. Cosser extended the greetings of the members of the church and church workers to Mr. and Mrs. Smith, also giving a short report of the splendid progress of the church since they had taken charge six years ago. In the twenty-five years' history of the church it has never been self-supporting until now. Miss Julia Wiggins delighted the company with two pleasing readings; one from Browning; the other from Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and for an encore she gave the amusing little selection "And She Liked Him Rale Weel." "The blushing bridegroom" was then called upon and made a very humorous little talk which was much enjoyed, while the bashful, nervous little bride asked to be excused from speaking. Mr. Broulette added to the evening's pleasure by singing "Love's Old Sweet Song" and for an encore "Silver Threads," his wife playing the accompaniments. Some particularly beautiful letters received by Mr. and Mrs. Smith from eastern friends were read by Mrs. J. C. Hansen and Miss Sarah Brown.

At the close of the program the guests were invited to the dining room, which never looked so pretty and attractive. Presiding at either end of the artistically decorated table were Mrs. W. B. Smith and Mrs. A. J. Cosser who served the ice cream. Each guest was given a piece of the bride's cake wrapped in tissue paper and tied with pink ribbon to take home. The ladies of the Aid Society had charge of the decorating and refreshments and were assisted in serving by the Misses Cora Tillman, Jessie Gilmore, Inez McLaughlin and Mae Black.

A bag containing forty silver dollars was presented to Mrs. Smith by the Ladies Aid, an uncle sent fifty and other gifts of silver dollars brot the sum total up to one hundred. The members of the choir, who more than any one else can appreciate the splendid service Mrs. Smith has given to the church in a musical way, presented her with a silver coffee service as a token of their regard and appreciation. Numerous other exquisite pieces of silver were presented by the many admiring friends of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, who have endeared themselves to the whole community, and we hope they may live to celebrate their golden wedding as joyously and successfully as they did their silver one.

"BUNGALOW INN" AT TOP OF ZIG-ZAG

One of the finest small dining rooms in the State of Washington is situated at the top of the Laurel street zig-zag, affording a fine view of the Straits. This home-like place, where they will serve Quality food, is conducted by Mr. Halberg and Mr. Slattery, the latter a man of twenty-five years experience in the hotel and restaurant business, has let not the smallest detail slip by in the construction of the "Inn." The kitchen itself is complete in every detail, everything the best and absolutely new, and made strictly sanitary to comply with the regulations of the state. The refrigerator is set off from the kitchen and is well ventilated and contains a chopping block made of Washington fir.

The dining room contains 12 tables,room at each table for six people, The ceiling is enameled in light yellow and can be washed easily; the same can be said of all the woodwork in the dining room, therefore making it as sanitary as possible. Meals will be served only at meal times, and not thruout the 12 hours of the day. Mr. Halberg and Mr. Slattery are running the palace of eats on the Table de'Hote plan, realizing that it is better to have several meats from which to order than serving one dinner at one price.

Mr. Halberg and Mr. Slattery hope to succeed in this venture and should for they have gone to no little expense in preparing for the comfort of their patrons. The Inn will be open for business Monday evening.

First Church of Christ, Scientist. Services every Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.; Sunday School 12 m. in the church edifice at Eighth and Laurel. All are welcome. Reading room in Morse Building, cor. Front and Laurel, room No. 310; open daily except Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

THE COUNTY SCHOOLS

A meeting was held in the school house in District No. 21, Saturday, September 26th, for the purpose of a hearing on the petition praying for the consolidation of districts numbered 8, 39, 21 and 30. Nearly all the residents of the four districts were present at the meeting. After a spirited discussion a vote was taken which resulted 4 to 1 in favor of consolidation. In view of this sentiment and the advantages that consolidation would give, the county superintendent has ordered the four districts consolidated. The new district will be known as consolidated district No. 303, and the directors until the next school election are: Mrs. J. A. Rainey, Henry Dorst, Mrs. R.Wahlgren, Anna Lesure, May Ross, Geo. Weldrick, Louis Hahn, H. Grosklaus, Johannah Schutz, John Schutz, Mrs. Myra Terwillegar.

The chairman and clerk of the new district will be elected at a special meeting called for that purpose.

The attention of directors of the third class is called to the dates of regular meetings of the Board in 1914-1915. The law specifies that the regular meeting of the Board shall be held on the first Saturday in February, May, August and November, which falls in 1915 on February 6, May 1, August 7 and November 7.

The following districts have announced their intention of taking part in the Clallam County Fair and Industrial Exhibit, October 16th, and 17th. No. 7, Port Angeles; No. 302, Sequim; No. 29, Dungeness; No. 301, MacCleay; No. 300, No. 43, No. 2, No. 58, No. 42, No. 13, and there are others not heard from. Exhibits sent to Port Angeles should be sent in care of the county superintendent and should be marked: School exhibit from District No., Name of Pupil, age, grade, nature of exhibit. The exhibit will be labeled in the superintendent's office for Tacoma and sent without any further trouble or expense to exhibitors.

It looks as though Clallam county will go 50 strong to the W. A. E., in Tacoma. The teachers in the city schools, Sequim, Dungeness and possibly MacCleay, No's. 2, 43, 30, 42 and 13, and others have expressed the intention of attending.

Excursion rates have been secured on the City of Angeles for the Tacoma trip. The City of Angeles will leave at 2:30 p. m., on Wednesday, October 28th, instead of 1:00 p. m., as usual. This change has been made to accommodate the teachers. The fare for round trip to Seattle will be $2.00; same rate from Dungeness and Port Williams. Remember the time and date, Wednesday, October 28th, at 2:30 p. m.

The county office would suggest to teachers who reside at a distance from Port Angeles that they teach half or full day, Saturday, October 24, and take Wednesday for preparation for the Tacoma trip.

There are now 83 teachers in Clallam county.

FRESH SALMON TO BE SHIPPED BY MAIL

"All the salmon caught in the Quillayute this winter is to be shipped out by parcel post," said C. D Sult, proprietor of the Cottage Hotel at Forks, when in town this week. Heretofore the fresh steelheads, he said, have been shipped in crates, but this year paraffined bags are to be used. It is expected that four or five tons will be shipped each week, and a peculiarity of the business is that Palmer Bros., who have the mail contract, get nothing additional for the work. They receive $3,000 for carrying the regular mail and $1.45 per hundred for inbound parcel post. Outbound parcel post will come under the former rate.

Freight rates to Clallam Bay are $2.00 per hundred, while by parcel post, freight costs, Seattle to Forks $1.08 per hundred. The road contractors have shipped in all their supplies by mail this year, 3,800 pounds of bolts and spikes going in in one load. On the other hand Palmer's have a decided advantage in the handling of groceries. Instead of having to pay freight from Seattle to Clallam Bay and the expenses of hauling from Clallam Bay to Forks, they pay the government $1.08 per hundred for shipment from Seattle to Forks and the government pays them $1.45 for hauling the same in from Clallam Bay. It will be some time before they will have competition in the grocery business. When Mr. Sult left Forks, a pack train of ten horses had just come in from the Hoh for groceries, all of which were handled as mail.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY

LINCOLN HEIGHTS

In the garden of J. B. Fleming is a cabbage plant, that if it were possible to take it to the fair, would certainly attract much attention as a curiosity, if not eligible to a premium. This is the eighth year of its life. Four heads have matured and have been taken off during the last two months and there are now ten more in various stages of development that will be of catable size and some new tiny shoots starting. Last year it produced eleven heads, the largest two weighed five and one half pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Zimmer dined last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Roy La Flower.

Mrs. J. H. Chamberlain spent Saturday night and Sunday at J. B. Fleming's. Mr. Chamberlain had gone to hunt deer, the preceding Wednesday, saying he would stay two weeks unless he found meat sooner, but he failed, and was home inside one week.

Ernest Harding and comrades were more successful, getting three deer during their expedition.

Mrs. Gordon, who has been a faithful employe at the laundry many months, was taken ill one day last week and is confined to her home.

Mr. Peter McGoff tired of an idle life and bought a ten acre ranch where he will have plenty of work.

Mr. McMillen and family moved into the Dunn house as soon as they vacate it.

Mrs. Whitmore received a letter from Mrs. Oakes, saying they had arrived safely at their new home and she thought she would like it well.

Mr. Victoria Kelly of Pine Hill, was a caller at the Fleming home Tuesday.

DE FUCA

Mr. J. A. Reeve had Mr. Land's threshing machine and a crew of about a dozen men from the neighborhood threshing his grain last Thursday.

Mrs. Wooding had three of her sisters visiting her this week. Mr. and Mrs. MacDougall and family came Saturday to attend the dance and stayed until Sunday evening. On Sunday Mrs. Ware and Mrs. Pilcher also came out from Sequim. Mrs. Pilcher stayed until Monday and went from here to Angeles where she will stay for a while.

The men of the neighborhood all turned out Tuesday, to help Mr. C. A. Laurens raise his barn.

Mr. Chester Hamilton, the Watkins' man, was making the rounds in the neighborhood this week.

There is a new neighbor in the valley. An old gentleman named Smith, who formerly lived down on the Tripp place, has moved to the Troy place for the winter.

Mr. N. Heuhslein, Jr., had his friend, Mr. Michael Fey, out from Angeles, visiting him Monday.

Miss Helen Laurens went to Angeles Friday evening, and returned Saturday, bringing her sister Minna and her friend Miss Evelyn Gasser, out to attend the dance.

The dance was a success and was enjoyed by all, especially after supper. The lunch seemed to revive everyone and made them feel more like dancing.

mingled voices of the conflagration and the cascades:

"You fool! Why did you save me? I tell you, I have sworn your death!"

The utter grotesqueness of it all broke upon his intelligence like the revelation of some enormous fundamental absurdity in Nature. He laughed a little hysterically.

Darkness followed. A flash of lightning seemed to flame between them like a fiery sword. To its crashing thunder, he lapsed into unconsciousness.

When he roused, it was with a shiver and a shudder. Rain was falling in torrents from a sky the hue of slate. Across the lake dense volumes of steam enveloped the fires that fainted beneath the deluge. A great hissing noise filled the world, muting even the roar of the spillway.

He was alone.

But in his hand, tattered and bruised by the downpour, he found—a rose.

VOTE FOR FRANK DUSTMAN FOR SHERIFF

Frank Dustman, democratic nominee for sheriff, is one of the old timers of Clallam county, having come to Port Angeles from Ohio (where he was born in 1872) in 1891, twenty-four years ago.

While, like all newcomers, he worked at various things these first years, for the past eleven years he has been with the Angeles Telephone Company, resigning his position as superintendent a few months ago to accept that of lineman with the Olympic Power Company.

He was city marshal for three years, and for the four years ending December 31st next, has been city councilman.

Mr. Dustman has made good in all positions, private as well as public. As a member of the council, he has always worked for public improvements . Commencing his first term at a time when street assessment districts were unknown in Port Angeles, he has worked faithfully with the more progressive element of council and city to the end that we have now a quarter of a million of street improvements under way.

He has the respect and esteem of every citizen of the county with whom he is acquainted, any of whom will freely say there is no question of his ability and that he would fulfill the duties of the office satisfactorily, giving everyone a square deal.

NEWS FROM THE CAPITOL

"Safety First" Campaign Has Resulted in Considerable Decrease in Number of Accidents

Olympia, Oct., 6—Statistics for the three years of this state's experience under the workmen's compensation act shows conclusively that accidents are being reduced in number at the present time.

During the first year under the law, ending October 1, 1912, there were but 11,896 accidents reported. During the second year, ending October 1, 1913, the number of accidents was 16,336. On account of the sharp increase the commission and the state labor department, at the direction of Governor Ernest Lister, started an inquiry into the causes of the increase, which resulted in the launching of the "Safety First" campaign, working toward accident prevention, under guidance of the state authorities.

During the third year, ending October 1, 1914, the number of accidents reported was reduced to 15,089. Since January 1, 1914, at about which time the "Safety First" campaign was set in motion, the diminution in number of accidents has been particularly noticeable, only 11,196 accidents being reported for the nine months of the present calendar year, as compared with 12,723 for the corresponding nine months of 1913. Every month this year has shown less accidents than the same month of 1913. The September accidents this year totalled 1,127, as compared with 1,574 in September, 1913.

During the three years operation under the law the commission has collected for the accident fund $4,232,311.29, which has gone to pay claims of injured workmen and pensions to dependents, in addition to which $1,084,329.49 has been invested in interest bearing securities as reserves to insure the payment of pensions already obligated.

The total expenses of the commission to date, met by legislative appropriations, have been $317,027.93, or 7.49 per cent of the total collections. This is declared to be a lower expense ratio than that shown by any other state or government in administering a workmen's compensation act.

The question whether or not street railways may charge more than a five cent fare within the limits of any city, irrespective of whether or not that fare would be less than the cost of the service to the company is before the state public service commission in a hearing which began at Seattle, October 1, and which is on again this week after a recess of a few days to allow assembling of additional testimony.

The Seattle, Renton & Southern is attempting to increase rates above five cents, contending that under the law it is entitled to a reasonable return upon the value of the property and that such return is impossible under the five cent limit.

In addition to selections made from the various county displays at the Washington State Fair, the Washington state exposition commission selected the Lewis county exhibit in its entirety and the display of grasses and grains shown by W. A. Hughes of Colville, all of which will be sent to the Panama Pacific exposition at San Francisco. The display of noxious weed seeds and of grains and grasses prepared by Miss Katherine Stone, seed analyst of the state department of agriculture, was also chosen, and will be remodeled to show only weeds found in Washington at the present time.

The Percival dock case, which has been in the files of the state land office for more than 19 years, was settled by the state board of land commissioners last week, payment for the past 19 years being made by the user of the harbor area and a satisfactory lease for the coming 11 years arranged.

During the biennium ending September 30, 1914, the collections of the state tax commission totalled $550,759.78, as shown by statistics compiled for the department's report. Of the $291,888.68 consisted of inheritance taxes collected from a total of 1,100 estates, a larger number by several hundred than handled during any previous two year period. Privilege taxes collected from express companies, after carrying suits for their collection twice to the state supreme court, totalled $114,284.75 with an additional $3,466.71 from private car companies.

Liquor license collections totalled $114,129.98, a decrease from the total of the previous biennium, as the operation of the local option and abatement laws has served to reduce by nearly 1,000, the number of retail liquor licenses in effect. The total collections for liquor licenses include, however, more than $5,000 collected from old licenses, due from the previous biennium.

During the biennium cash escheats of $26,989.66 and other property, real and personal, valued at $32,268, also has been collected.

The expenditures of the commission during the 18 months ending September 30, have been at the rate of $1,504 a month. The legislative appropriation for the biennium was at the rate of $1,816 per month, which will allow the commission to return $7,000 or more of its appropriation to the state treasury.

The closing of a number of state banks has brought out the fact that under the law as it now stands State Bank Examiner W. E. Hanson has no discretion whatever in determining whether he shall grant a charter to a bank or trust company. If the company has been properly organized and has the required capital it is compulsory that the examiner issue a certificate authorizing the bank to do business. In the matter of closed banks the examiner simply reports them to the attorney general and that latter official applies to the court for a receiver. The receiver, not the bank examiner closes up the business of the failed institution.

At the emergency potato convention held last week in Stockton, Cal., this state was represented by T. O. Morrison, assistant commissioner of agriculture, who assured the growers and shippers of California that no potatoes infested with tuber moth would be allowed to enter this state. The convention was attended by some of the greatest authorities on potatoes of the world, including leading government and European scientists.

The resolutions committee recommended an official inspection of seed potatoes to secure clean seed, destruction of all culls to prevent infection, rotation of crops for the purpose of cleaning grounds and inspection of potatoes at digging time so that nothing may be sacked but potatoes absolutely free from the pest, and finally use of only new or well fumigated sacks.

Mr. Morrison, who was on the resolution committee, pointed out that this would fully insure not only a clean product shipped into this state, but would be watched with great interest, because at some future time if this state should become infected, the value of such a clean up policy would be incalculable to Washington.

Total bond holdings of the state aggregated $12,390,328.62, October 1. In addition the state had available in the six permanent funds 428,272.32 for the purchase of additional bonds. Most of this money already is obligated, the state board of finance having bids out for county, city and school district issues. With the general demand for bond issues quiet at the present time, on account of the European war, the state funds provide one of the principal aids in placing small b/ l issues.

SEATTLE AND THE NORTHWEST

Alex Polson, a prominent lumberman, in an interview in the Hoquiam Washingtonian, says:

"If I understand the eight-hour law correctly, and that we cannot employ any-one more than forty-eight hours in any one week, except in extreme emergencies, wages will have to conform to the eight hours and the conditions it brings about, in order to compete with other states that have no similar law. As we have free trade in lumber, other countries, such as British Columbia and the Eestern Canadas, which have enormous forests of untouched timber, can supply all the lumber the market will require for many years. Competition is so sharp and keen and the margin so small—and there has been none this year except on the wrong side of the ledger—that it is easily seen the greatest business in Western Washington must close down or labor must be paid for eight hours only in proportion to what it is now being paid for nine and a half or ten hours. There is no alternative; we will have to me·t the conditions or quit business.

"The eight-hour law would be absolutely satisfactory to us if it were universal, at home and abroad, whereby we could meet the competition of others in the same business. We will take our chances with any competitor; all we ask is an equal chance.

"This law will affect the farmer and the business man in the state of Washington more than they realize.

"How are the hotels and restaurants going to arrange this matter? The cooks and waiters will have to work for less or the boarders will have to pay more. A restaurant that stays open all night, or the whole twenty-four hours, will have to have three sets of cooks and waiters for six days in the week and three extra sets for Sunday. They will have to work for a great deal less wages than they are getting now, or, as I have said above, those who eat will have to pay more.

"If you are sick and have to hire a nurse you will have to have three sets of nurses for every day in the week, and three extra sets for Sunday. It may be that the nurses will consent to work for less; if not, it will cost whoever is unfortunate to be sick and require their services a great deal more.

"It surely is lowering the wage-earner's income and increasing greatly his cost of living, but some may say, "We will make a minimum wage for labor;" well and good; but can you make the consumer in these United States and other parts of the world buy your products at a price to justify it? Can you make him pay from one to three dollars per thousand more for lumber than he can buy it from Canada and the other states that have no similar law? If you can, I have no further argument, and the eight-hour law will suit me.

"Some may say that the coal miners are working but eight hours; that is true; the coal miners work but eight hours, but those on the outside must work nine or ten hours in order to enable the miner to work eight. Besides, we consume his product locally and we have not yet to compete against sharp competition."

The teachers of the state are asking the voters to ratify the Teachers' Retirement Fund law, which has been passed by the legislature, but is up before the state on referendum measure in November, because they believe it will attract better men and women to the work of teaching, help retain the able teachers now in the schools and recognize long and faithful service for the welfare of the public. The teachers are in reality asking the privilege of providing this retirement fund themselves, repuesting only that the state participate to the extent of 20 per cent per annum for each census child, or about $60,000. The fund is to be established by assessing the teachers one per cent of their salary during the first ten years' service, two per cent during the second ten years and two and one-half per cent during the third ten years, the total payments by a teacher being limited to $1,000. Any teacher may retire after thirty years' service, fifteen of which must be in Washington, and a female teacher may retire after twenty-five years of service. Membership of present teachers is optional, while those appointed after March 1, 1915, become members automatically. The law is retroactive, in that, present teachers may be entitled to annuity retirement by paying up assessment covering the period they have already taught. The annuities will be one-half of the salary of the last five years of teaching, but shall not be less than $300 nor more than $600.

In the granting of a restraining order prohibiting the union picketing of a Seattle restaurant owned by M. Jacobi, Judge J. T. Ronald of the King County Superior Court, rendered a decision that is epoch-making in its establishment of the right of the employer to hire whom he pleases so long as he obeys the law and of the right of the employe to work when and for whom he pleases without the interference of the closed-shop union labor. Jacobi has been paying his help the highest union wages and gave his employes all the conditions that unions demand. This the latter admitted. What they wanted, however, was to establish a closed shop and sought to compel Jacobi to force his employes to join the union, which they did not want to do. As a result they picketed his establishment and almost ruined his business. In his decision Judge Ronald said in part:

"The employment of non-union men is not unlawful—it is one of the most sacred rights of a person to pursue his lawful occupation in a lawful way, unmolested.

"The common law has long recognized as part of the boasted liberty of citizens, the right of every man to freely engage in such lawful business or occupation as he himself may choose, free from hindrance or obstruction by his fellow men, saving such as may result from the exercise of equal or superior rights on their part.

"So long as the plaintiff is conducting a lawful business, in a lawful manner, and by the aid of faithful and efficient employes, no man with equal or superior rights has a right to hinder or annoy him by picketing, or in any other manner, merely because he refuses to discharge such employes, whom he wants, or refuses to employ others whom he does not want."

The office of the State Attorney General has ruled, in an opinion given to the agricultural department, that every soft drink stand, as well as every milk wagon, must have a state license from the dairy department, if it sells or offers to sell milk in any form. The license costs one dollar. The department is now working on a system to collect this fee from every saloon and soft drink stand.

SIOUX AGROUND AT DUNGENESS

During the dense fog prevailing over the Straits Tuesday afternoon, the steamer Sioux, on her way to Seattle, went on a bar off Dungeness spit at high tide. The forty passengers aboard were transferred to the Sol Duc and taken on to Seattle. One or two boats were lowered on the weatherside of the Sioux, but one capsized and smashed, badly injuring the mate by breaking several of his ribs. After hitting the bar, the surf pushed the Sioux about 300 feet farther along, where she still is in spite of tsrenuous efforts of the tugs Tyee, Tatoosh and Prosper assisted by the Weary Willie. It is now reported from parties who went down in a launch to see her last evening that a ditch is being dug which they hope will let in enough water to float the Sioux, but grave doubts are entertained by some as to whether this scheme will work.

She sustained no injuries from her contact with the beach.

JEFFREY HAS BOUGHT SEEVERS CASH GROCERY

G. N. Jeffrey, formerly of the Gate City Mercantile Co., has purchased from Seevers & Baskins the Seevers Cash Grocery on First street and will continue to run the store on the same general plan followed by Mr. Seevers and under the present name. The store is one of the neatest and most attractive groceries in the city. The shelves always well stocked with the freshest and best of groceries and everything about the place looks sanitary. Mr. Jeffrey is a young man of splendid business appearance, courteous and obliging and will doubtless continue to make a success of this well established business. Mr. Baskins will remain with Mr. Jeffrey for the present as will also Mr. Cooper. Mr. Seevers has been in business in Port Angeles for the past twenty years and has made for himself a reputation for honesty and square dealing, two requisites that always make for success. He and his estimable wife are contemplating a trip to Oregon, after which they may try ranch life for a while.

DR. LEWIS OUT FOR STATE SENATORSHIP

The State Auditor has certified to the county auditor the nominations of Dr. F. S. Lewis as nominee of democratic party for state senator, for Clallam, Jefferson and San Juan counties, and F. A. Jensen as nominee of Progressive party, in addition to A. A. Smith, the republican nominee, who was thought to have a clear field. This makes four candidates for this office, all from this county, R. M. Johnson of Freshwater being the Socialist nominee. In addition to these the state returns show that former Senator John H. Blair of San Juan county received 5 votes on the Progressive ticket for this office.

CLUB NEWS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the P. A. Commercial Club will be held next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 p. m., in the Commercial Club room. The ladies are desirious of increasing their membership and invite all who feel interested in the work for a better and more beautiful Port Angeles to come and join us. There is no initiation fee or ceremony, and the dues are $1.20 a year or ten cents a month. All old members are requested to bring with them at least one new member next Tuesday, October 13th. The Commercial Club has asked for our co-operation in making a success of the fair next week. What shall we do? A mother and four children are left destitute in our city. What can we do to assist in putting her in a position to earn a living? Show your interest by coming out to the meeting and giving your opinion.

Through a mistake of the local editor, the Parent-Teachers' meeting was advertised for last Monday night, instead of next Monday night, the second Monday of the month. Superintendent White notified the parents through the school children and we trust nobody made the trip to the schoolhouse. A good program has been prepared for next Monday and we hope there will be a large attendance. The subjects for discussion will be "The Teachers' Retirement Fund Bill" and "The Big Brother Movement."

Friday, October 2nd, Mrs. Elizabeth Cloukie was hostess to the W. L. C. The splendid program was rendered in a very able manner and enjoyed by all. In response to roll call each member gave her husband's favorite recipe, one of which we print for the good of some other house wives: Mrs. F. N. Cloukie—Four eggs, separate yolks and whites. Beat the yolks and add one tablespoonful of flour, four tablespoons of sweet milk and salt and pepper to taste. Whip up the whites and fold into the mixture and turn into frying pan containing hot butter, brown lightly on both sides and serve at once on hot platter.

Much interest is being taken in the initial ball of the Commercial Club which takes place in the Opera house this evening, and promises to be a great social success. A committee of ladies from the Women's Auxiliary is assisting with the decorating and and supper and will also act on the reception committee.

The remaining members of the San Souci Card Club of last year have reorganized into a Sewing Club. This seems more appropriate in view of the fact that a number of the girls are wearing a diamond on the left finger. Miss Flora Stakemiller was hostess to the Club last Friday evening, but in the future they will meet on Monday evenings.

Mrs. C. P. Brown was hostess to the Thimble Club last Thursday, a pleasant afternoon being enjoyed by all.. Mrs. E. E. Fisher will be the next hostess.

Lewis Cays came up from Dungeness in his auto last week and bought a cow from Hile Jacobs and what's more he took her home in the car. 'Twas a comical sight, a cow riding in an auto. Bessy didn't seem to appreciate her joy ride very much but she got there just the same.

Each week there will appear a tried and true recipe, a good household hint or something of interest to all housekeepers. Be sure you get the Olympic-Leader so you will not miss a one. This week will be Mrs. Fossett's apple sauce cake.
