MAYOR SHORN OF POWER

Court Decision Has Wiped Out Provisions Which Gave Mayor Control of City's Police.

Another round in the marshalship controversy at the Council meeting Tuesday night resulted in another failure to remove the present marshal and the fight goes merrily on. Upon the report of the City Attorney in a written opinion that the Mayor had been shorn of not only his power to remove, but also of appointive power by reason of the fool decison of the Supreme Court which wiped out all law of the past two decades and put the city in the hole on finances, Councilman Shields again moved that the office of city marshal be declared vacant. Councilman Dustman seconded the motion and it was put up to the council by the mayor without protest. The vote resulted in a tie and was declared lost by the mayor, Councilmen Fowler, Bigelow and Fleming opposed the motion and Mr. Wilcox was absent. It takes a clear majority to carry a motion and in a case like this possibly a majority of the whole council which would be four votes.

Councilman Fleming reported that for lack of funds necessary ditches at cemetery had been delayed. Money was now available in the cemetery funds and he asked that the work be done. It was so ordered under the direction of the street superintendent.

Councilman Bigelow having met with the committee from the Commercial Club relative to providing places for farmers to hitch their teams.Nothing, it was decided, could be done until the present condition of streets is changed.

Superintendent Graham reported time up for the construction of walk on Sixth street east of Lincoln. Some walks east of Peabody had been put in. M. E. Church was given two weeks to complete their work and others will be unmolested during that time.

Engineer Filion reported that it would take 100 feet of bridge to connect up the stairway at the foot of Sixth street at $1 per foot. Ordered. Mr. Filion also recommended that drain of surplus water of vicinity be taken down alley from Laurel to gulch between Fourth and Third streets, that being the lowest point. Box drain six feet deep will cost about $125. Street superintendent directed to put in same.

City Attorney Smith reported adversely to claims of Albert McKenzie and father for damages of $50,000 and $5,000 respectively for injuries sustained by reason of latter falling over raised roadway west of Oak street. Report adopted and filed.

W. J. Larkin was given permission to make repairs to building occupied by him east of city hall.

Christ Kuppler addressed a communication to council asking that trail made by him from Pine Hill to vicinity of Brewery be lighted for convenience of public. Referred. He also asked council to force construction of walk on north side of Tenth street, Cherry toward Valley. Council doubted its powers.

Salary ordinance fixing city officials salaries for coming year was read, and referred back to include police. It provides salaries for year as follows: Clerk $1200; Marshal $960; Attorney $900; Treasurer $900; Health Officer $100 Engineer $5 per day; Street Superintendent $2.75 per day.

Two ordinances were offered for the restriction of cows.

One by Councilman Bigelow prohibiting stock or fowls of any kind running at large within the city limits, and one by Councilman Fisher limiting his prohibition to stock alone. Bigelow's ordinance is complete, going into detail as to mode of action, and goes into effect if adopted January 1, 1915.

The ordinance was referred for one week.

Amendment to Sec. 2, Ord. 416, (fire ordinance) to enable council to enforce provision for placing corrugated iron for enclosure of building raised, was offered by Councilman Dustman and referred for one week.

Dedication plat of lands given by Terminal Land Co. by Fisher & Hickok, President and Secretary in lieu of Railroad Avenue, between Chase and Francis streets, vacated by council to accommodate R. R. Co. was read and accepted and ordered filed with county auditor.

Franchise ordinance granting new route to railroad company in lieu of Railroad Avenue vacated, was adopted.

Upon motion of Councilman Dustman street superintendent was directed to repair one-plank walk leading to eastern limits.

Matter of renting lots in Tumwater gulch or selling same to Mrs. Kemmle was referred to special committee of Bigelow and Fisher.

Councilman Fleming asked proceedure necessary to clear up brush on townsite as fire protection another year. Attorney stated proceeding could had under nuisance ordinance. No action for present.

Council canvassed vote at the recent primary election finding as given in tabulation in another column.

Engineer Filion reported that Contractor Anderson of Lincoln street work, had three scow loads of lumber at dock which did not size up to specifications, and that he had refused to accept same. He had agreed however, subject to approval of council to permit the use of the 3½ inch stuff in lieu of 3¾ inch, provided the top or wearing surface made up the difference, with full two inch plank instead of 1¾ inch. It seems to be the practice these days of taking ⅜ of an inch to dress a board and the city engineer refuses to stand for such a slump. The matter was referred to the engineer together with Councilmen Dustman, Bigelow and Fowler.

Notice was also served by the engineer that the Fifth street bridge will likely be closed from now on until the completion of the change in the elevation of the bridge, which must go down six or seven feet on the west end at least. Three bents will be eliminated on the west by the fill of Lincoln street. The cost of the change was estimated at $340. Referred to same committee.

Upon motion of Councilman Dustman, city attorney was instructed to bring in an ordinance fixing licenses for expressmen. Mr. Dustman explained that some of the expressmen desired such an ordinance.

Councilman Dustman moved that marshal notify parties to remove old wagons from street on Laurel street dock, carried. Also that Front street be cleaned up and washed off and marshal notify merchants to throw no refuse in streets.

City clerk was directed to call for bids for some 200 cords of dry wood left over from old light plant.

Question of providing a chute from First street to old pound was referred for report, it being decided that the old pound could be made available about as cheaply as a new one and possibly more cheaply.

Council then adjourned.

AUTOMOBILE ROAD TO OLYMPIC SPRINGS

Will Make Boulder Creek Resort a Great Favorite with Angeles People and Visiting Friends.

An automobile road to the Olympic Hot Springs, 14 miles above the Elwha bridge, which will bring the springs within two hours of Port Angeles, is the latest improvement planned by Everett & Schoffel, proprietors of that resort.

Mr. Schoffel returned from Olympia yesterday where they arranged with the forest service for a twenty-five year lease, conditional upon the improvement. Should there be no unforseen obstacles to the final closing up of the matter, work on the road will be started on the lower end early in the spring, in charge of Geo. Lippert, a nephew of Mr. Schoffel, who will take an interest in the company.

A new trail will be built this winter, to cut out the ups and downs of the last four miles where several deep ravines must be crossed. Ten thousand feet of lumber was cut in the new mill last fall for additional buildings to be put up in the spring.

The hotel will be open all winter for the accommodation of those afflicted with rheumatism; there were nine in all at the springs when Mr. Schoffel came out a week ago.

COLD STORAGE AND WHARF

Plans for Port District Contemplate Making Angeles Headquarters for Cape Halibut Fleet.

Several meetings of the Commercial Club committee having charge of the proposed port district project have been held within the last ten days. It's about time something definite developed out of all the talk and study of the subject.

Whether the proposed port district of Clallam county shall embrace all the harbors and waterways of the county or only part of them is a question that needs to be carefully considered by all the people of the seaboard of Clallam county. The Seattle port district included all the waterways of King county and the commission is providing for their improvement as rapidly as possible.

If we had a cold storage warehouse under the port commission plan a good-sized trainload of Clallam county fruit now going to waste for want of demand in a glutted market might easily be saved by storage till late winter or spring. With a cold storage plant ready to receive it and hold it for small storage charge, there would be opportunity for a considerable industry in assembling the surplus products of the surrounding farms and orchards, as well as dairy and poultry farms. The business of collecting these surplus products, preparing for and placing them in cold storage, and taking them out and preparing them for market at the proper time would likely not only be highly profitable in itself but would at the same time become one of the chief bulwarks of success on the farm.

Practically all the shore front harbor area of Port Angeles has been leased to private parties and corporations by the state, and all the proceeds go to the state. By creating a Clallam county port district, 75 per cent of all this revenue will remain here in the hands of the Port Commission to be used in making needed improvements, and besides, the Port Commission instead of the state land commissioner will nave control of the leasing of the harbor area. That means that the harbor areas of Clallam county would be leased for actual use instead of speculative ventures obviously to a greater extent than is practicable under state control.

As a cold storage plant at Port Angeles would make it possible for the North Pacific halibut and fish fleet to cut out 100 miles of travel, two days' time and two days' waste of ice supply, it seems inevitable that many of the scores of the independent halibut vessels now operating out of Seattle would transfer their headquarters here. This business amounts to millions of dollars annually and scores of vessels with well paid crews and fishermen.

An ocean dock adequate to accommodate the big liners and transoceanic steamships at Port Angeles would make this city the first port of call for the ships from Europe coming to west coast thru the Panama canal; for the Asiatic and Australian steamships now passing by to reach Vancouver, B. C., and Seattle, as well as for the big coasting steamships. On their way back out to sea Port Angeles would also be their last American or British available port of call.

THE SEAL OF THANKSGIVING

OLD COURT HOUSE GETTING NERVOUS

Its on its last legs, is the old court house. Mother earth keeps moving away every day from underneath that graceful hulk. Even the windows are not satisfied in their original places and they too are leaving, and the chimneys, while still smoking in peace, may at any moment take a tumble, for those pesky bomb men never cease their efforts.

Its a busy place, that Lincoln street. Down near Front, on the alley, the earth is being torn up by blasting and sluicing. Near by, a gang is working with pick and shovel in the good old-fashioned way, the gravel, so hard it is almost rock, being hauled in dump wagons for the fill across First, at the foot of what was once Court House Hill. Alongside the court house they have a railroad, with two trains of cars and a gasoline engine, mining the heavy blue clay and completing the fill to Third street. Here the work has been taken up by Woods, whose pile-driver adds a spice of liveliness to the scene. A block farther on, near the Fifth street bridge, they are building crib work in preparation for a fill, and from this point south a bunch of teams and scrapers are having their innings.

In addition to these six gangs and six methods of street construction under way, the planking crew is pushing sidewalk up Lincoln. Access is now had to the court house by a stairway from Lincoln.

Sluicing still continues on First, having reached the block east of Peabody. Fills are being made west of Oak and on Laurel between First and Front. All of which, taken in connection with the railroad work under way in the eastern part of town, evidences continued prosperity.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE

The Union Thanksgiving service will be held at the M. E. Church on Thursday at 11 a. m. Rev. Wait of the Babtist church will preachh the sermon. The choir of the Methodist will furnish the music.

NOTED HARPIST TO VISIT ANGELES

Choral Club Has Secured Elizabeth Barrie Gill for Entertainment Tuesday Evening.

Elizabeth Barrie Gill, harpist entertainer, who is to be here on next Tuesday evening, under the auspices of Choral Club, gave one of the most pleasing entertainments ever given in Port Angeles, and all who were so fortunate as to have heard her last summer are delighted to know they will again have that opportunity. She possesses a beautiful contralto voice, which harmonizes perfectly with the soft, sweet notes of the harp. But she not only sings to the accompaniment of the harp but does that most difficult thing in harp playing; reads a selection at the same time playing a harp solo. The Spokane paper says "whether she sings, reads or plays, Mrs. Gill shows she is an artist."

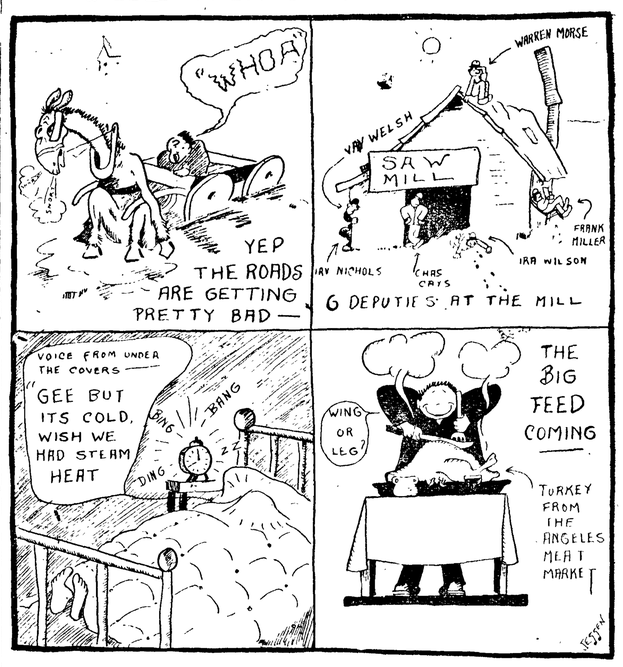
General Leu Wallace, author of Ben Hur, says, "After hearing hundreds of readers and actresses give selections from Ben Hur, I had the pleasure of hearing Elizabeth Barrie Gill's rendition of the Chariot Race at Crawfordsville. It was done to my entire satisfact' and the best I have ever heard. Mrs. Gill's slogan is: "One laugh is worth a thousand groans," and her musical laugh is so contagious you laugh with her in spite of yourself, even though you have just been moved to tears by one of her touching songs or readings. Do not miss this evening's pleasure at the Opera House, Tuesday, November 24. Admission 35 cents, reserved seats 50 cents.

BURNED HOSPITAL WILL BE REPAIRED

The Port Angeles General Hospital which burned on the 25th of September is to be repaired and used as a hospital once more. The third floor will be taken off and a new roof will be added. The building will contain many added improvements when completed and one necessity which has been lacking in the past, a boiler and steam plant will be put in. The hospital is situated at the corner of Peabody and 8th streets. Christ Kuppler is doing the contracting for Dr. McGillivray, owner and surgeon of the hospital.

Elizabeth de Barrie will be the guest of Mrs. F. E. Warner while in the city. The ladies are cousins, but hadn't seen each other for many years until Mrs. Gill came to Angeles last summer to fill an engagement.

THE WEEKLY BULL



MORSE READY TO BUILD

Two Story Concrete at First and Laurel to Cost $20,000. Tenants Already Secured.

Warren Morse now has all arrangements made for the building of his fine block on the corner of First and Laurel streets, for which the foundation was laid last summer. The building will cost $20,000 and will probably be the best business block in the city. Chas. Morse will have general supervision of the structure, which is to be a two story concrete building, modern in every detail. Some of the office rooms are already leased and the store rooms spoken for. Everyone is interested in seeing this fine building go up as it will add greatly to the appearance of our business district.

WILSON R. GAY TO DELIVER ELKS' MEMORIAL ADDRESS

The first week in December will be a busy one for the local Elks. Initiations due November 29, have been postponed to December 3rd. On December 5th, the annual memorial services will be held in the Opera House with Hon. Wilson R. Gay of Seattle as speaker. December 7th will be the ladies social session and dance which will also be held in the Opera House.

DR. THOMPSON TELLS OF CONGREGATIONAL MISSION WORK

An exceedingly interesting and instructive talk was given at the Congregational church Sunday evening by Dr. Thompson, superintendent of the Mission at Cape Prince of Wales, Alaska. Dr. Thompson has spent four years on the Mission and is here on his vacation, visiting his daughter Mrs. Jackson.

He spoke of the country, climates, characteristics of the people and the founding of the Mission by the First Congregational Church of Bridgeport, Conn., in 1880. This church supported the school for the first ten years of its existence. It is now under the management of the Congregational church as represented by the American Missionary Association.

He paid a high tribute to the honesty of the natives and their church going qualities. The whole village attends church and the mid-week prayer meetings, all the meanness the people seem to know is what they have been taught by the whites.

The choir was out in full force. The special musical program added much to the service of the evening.

Dr. Thompson is to remain over Sunday and will address the Brotherhood Monday evening.

The H. S. domestic science class is preparing a banquet for the football team, which is to be paid for by the whole high school and will be served to the boys this evening. Here's hoping the boys survive it.

Red Cross Seals are only a penny each, but each is a bullet in the fight against tuberculosis. Order your seals now.

SHIELDS HAS HANDSOME STORE ROOM

Shields handsome new store building on Front street is nearing completion and will be open to the public next week. The boys are already busily engaged arraying the goods on the shelves and getting things in shape to do business. The front part of the building will be used as the store, where tobaccos, fruits and confectionary will be sold in connection with the news stand. The rear half of the building will be fitted up for a card room and is very light and pleasant. The fine display windows form the most attractive feature of the building. The second story is being furnished off for office rooms, which are already leased. Dr. Taylor, the dentist, will have one suite of rooms.

The basement has been leased by O. A. Pettit for a barber shop and bath and will be occupied by him, about December 1st. It is to be fitted up with everything of the latest and best, a special feature being the ladies bath, which will be open one day a week and in charge of a competent woman masseur.

NEW CASES FILED

The Superior Court will convene again next Tuesday, a number of cases being set for adjudication.

New cases filed this week:

Julius Peterson vs. E. H. Helpenstell, foreclosure. Counter claim alleged in answer.

State vs. W. C. Stanley, family desertion. Stanley skipped to Canada, and it will be necessary to get requisition for his return.

State vs. John and Levi Poquet, charged with assault in the third degree.

Elizabeth Beach vs. Herbert A. Beach, divorce. Non-support.

State vs. Chas. A. McDaniels, assault in third degree, gross mis-demeanor.

Alden Goodwin vs. Walter Goodwin, on promissory note.

Filion Mill vs. Frank Pulice. On account. Pulice came here some months ago, bought a cheap lot and put up a building on it at the mill company's and other workmen's expense, and left it for his creditors to fight it out. E. W. Toffere, Byron Winters, W. G. Martin & Co., Tony Del Guzzo, E. Schearder and R. Eacrett are other claimants against the property for work done. The mill company claims a first lien.

Seattle National Bank vs. John, Cain, foreclosure, $2500 mortgage.

State vs. Wm. Prescott, petit larency. Prescott got goods to the amount of $11.00 at the Toggery by giving a check on the Bank of Clallam county with never any funds to his credit there.

Frank Mays, arrested last week for assault on Mrs. Stratton was released upon bonds of $300.

WISE SOLUTION TO A PROBLEM

The announcement made by the North Yakima Brewing Co. that their plant would be closed to the manufacture of beer and turned into a manufactory of by-products from the apple crop of the county high price by almost prohibitive and state is cheering, indeed, as showing that the owners recognize the force of public opinion and also welcome the opportunity to serve the Community while at the same time serving themselves.

It is their intention to take up the lower grades of fruit and from them put out a product or products that will be of service to the apple producers while at the same time bringing such manufactured product within the reach of many citizens who have been prohibited to a greater or less extent from the use of such food adjuncts as sweet cider, jellies, canned and evaporated fruits because they have been kept at a freights from far-off producing centers. There is a great deal of soft summer fruits grown in this state and in addition thereto there are the culls from the orchards and the low-grade fruits that cannot be shipped. With this part of the apple crop taken care of in a manufactured product, the better grades can be made to pay the grower much more profitable prices. Thus in every way the fruit situation will be improved.

This brewing establishment, therefore, is setting an example worthy of being allowed elsewhere, and one which should appeal to all.—Record Press.

THE RESERVE PETITION.
DR. LEWIS THANKS SIGNERS

On behalf of those settlers on the Reserve whose homes are still in jeopardy, I wish to thank the 555 men and women who have thus far signed our petition. The following is from the letter of Senator W. L. Jones to the Commercial Club referred to in the letter below:

"Where men have settled upon such lands as these and remained upon them for many years it has seemed to me that all should be treated as nearly alike as possible and the Government of the United States should strive to do justice to and between its citizens."

The full history of this reserve proving their rights to purchase their homes and compiled from the Government records is in my possession and I should be glad to have it read by every citizen.

The following letter from Senator Jones explains itself.

DR. F. S. LEWIS.

U. S. Senate, Washington, October 14th, 1914.

Dr. F. S. Lewis,
Port Angeles, Wash.,
My Dear Dr. Lewis:

I herewith hand you copy of letter and resolution which I have just received from the Commercial Club of Port Angeles and also a copy of letter which I have written them regarding this matter. If your people are opposed to the action contemplated it will of course be very difficult to get legislation. I am sending this to you in order that you may be advised as to the situation and to give you an opportunity to take such steps as you may deem best to clear up the matter. The Commercial Club surely misunderstands the situation.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) W. L. JONES.

"THREE TO ONE FOR COWS AND HUMANITY"

The citizens of the sixth ward are again proud of the record they made at the recent election, by voting almost three to one in favor of the cows and humanity. The other wards beat us and we submit gracefully, but we are wondering why the cow ballots were printed: "Against—For," when all other measures had been printed "For—Against." It seemed queer to those who noticed the change. No, Mr. Editor, the councilmen have not been "buffaloed by outlying districts some months ago." They were acting in accord with the will of the majority of their constituents (many newcomers are voters now that did not assist in their election) as any honorable official will do. Has not the vote in the 6th shown very conclusively that the citizens were wanting their councilmen to hold out for the cows? When he made a plea for the children, who would be deprived of the milk they needed, if the cows were banished, he was informed thru the press "that if he or his neighbors are so poor that they could not buy milk for their children, he should be ashamed to admit it." Should any one be ashamed to admit the truth? There are many parents in this ward who say they can't afford to buy the milk the children need, and they are honest in saying so. This is the poor man's ward—the workingmen's portion of the city. The vote on prohibition shows the workers are not lovers of the saloon, but are industrious producers of wealth; therefore their poverty is no disgrace to them. The shame of it rests on those who by their votes uphold a system that enables the non-producer to live at his ease while those who produce the wealth exist in poverty. We are not blaming the citizens of the downtown or more densly settled wards for not wanting the cows to run at large. We know they are a nuisance there but there are others more detrimental to good health and morals. Here it is sparsely settled and many acres of good cow feed will dry up to be food for the fires next fall. Also, the Sixth ward cows belong to dry territory and are not in the habit of going down town.

WHY NOT MAKE THE WIFE THE SALOONKEEPER?

Now that prohibition has carried in this state and we all expect to become good, law-abiding citizens, let us do a little figuring to see if we cannot get some good out of it, to the end that our fair little city may not go altogether to the "bad."

Here is the suggestion—let every drinking man make his wife the bar-tender and saloon keeper of his family, and then let us see what will happen.

Cost of First Supply—

1 case of 24 quarts of beer	$ 2.75
1 gallon of whiskey	2.00
Total cost	4.75

Income from First Supply—

72 glasses of beer	$ 3.60
69 glasses of whiskey	10.35
Total income	13.95
	4.75
Net gain	9.20

Every 20 days for 1 year would mean 18 supplies, or a net income to the family of—

18 times $9.20.....$165.60

If he felt that he should need it twice every 20 days the net income would be—

36 times $9.20.....$331.20

If he wished to make a beast of himself and should be able to get it three times every 20 days, the net income would be—

54 times $9.20.....$496.80

A man drinking at this rate should be able to drink himself to death in about 5 years, this would give the family an income for the five years of—

Allowing $84 for the funeral expenses, the wife will still have a balance of $2400.00 to use in purchasing herself a good home.

It doesn't pay to worry, be optimistic and look on the bright side.

Ammunition for the fight against tuberculosis in Washington has been received by the Washington Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis and a call sent out for additional recruits to handle the Red Cross seals during the coming sale, from November 30th, to Christmas eve. One million bright little stickers are now awaiting distribution by volunteers, who are willing to devote a little time and effort to the sale so that the anti-tuberculosis work in this state may be carried a step further during the coming year. Veterans of former campaigns in several cases have already sent in their orders, but many localities are yet unrepresented. Every community should see to it that the seals are on sale there. Send your orders now to the association, 915 Cobb Building, Seattle, Washington.

Holland begins to stir uneasily. Shipping is idle at its docks. Idle men roam the streets of its cities. Hunger is not far off for its people, who have the additional burden of feeding Belgian refugees. Holland's ports are practically blockaded by British ships, though Holland is not at war. If free intercourse with neutral nations were permitted, Holland might live, but England blocks the way, regarding Holland as nothing but a port of entry for Germany. In fact, England is trying to force Holland into the war on the side of Germany. If that could be done, England could continue her blockade of Holland ports with some show of reason. The situation as between England and Holland is nearly the same as that between Germany and Belgium, except that England has not yet invaded Holland.

A recent copy of "Life" contained a picture that told a most pitiful story at a glance. A little girl, looking up to her father in his soldier uniform, ready to go to the front, asks him: "Oh, are you going to kill some other little girl's father?" It told a whole story. Killing little girl's fathers should be made an international crime but never will be until rulers become human beings.

NEWS FROM THE CAPITOL

Olympia, Nov. 17,—In his annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation, Governor Lister calls especial attention to the need of European war sufferers, stating:

"We still have further reason for rejoicing in the knowledge that God's graciousness has given us ability to render practical aid to those who have been less fortunate than we. With the feeling that truly 'It is more blessed to give than to receive,' we should share from our bursting graneries and laden cellars with those on whom war has lain a heavy hand, taking away from them completely their ability to provide for themselves.

"We, thru the wisdom of those to whom the guidance of our country's welfare is entrusted, have been spared the horror, heart pangs and desolation brought about by armed conflict. Verily, never was there a time when, as a people, we have had a greater cause for giving thanks to our Creator than today."

In addition the Governor has issued a special appeal for help for Belgian war sufferers. Donations of foodstuffs, particularly cereals, ham and bacon are needed and should be forwarded to Belgian Relief Committee, care New Chamber of Commerce, Seattle, Wash. This organization, thru co-operation of railroads, will be able to deliver donations promptly to the Atlantic seaboard where they will be taken in charge by the American Relief Committee for Belgium.

Hopes that the coming legislature will make a better economy record than the last legislature are voiced by Governor Lister, in replying to a widely copied interview by Dr. P. H. Carlyon, holdover Republican Senator from Thurston county, in which Dr. Carlyon declared that two years ago "Democrats and Bull Moose upset the Republican economy program."

Governor Lister says that the only way in which he interfered with the Republican program two years ago was by vetoing measures calling for appropriations totalling several million dollars, adding:

"There is a need for a reduction in the cost of government, not only state, but also county and city. It is not a partizan question but one affecting all alike. A large number of men have been elected to the next legislature, many of whom are republicans, who are coming to the legislature for the purpose of assisting in holding down expenditures to the lowest possible point consistent with the proper management of state affairs. It would be much better, as I view it, for Dr. Carlyon to work with these members to that end and in doing so to refrain from endeavoring to convince the public that he followed the same line two years ago.

"The records do not bear out his assertion."

Labor Commissioner Olson recommends to the legislature provision for state operated employment agencies to take the place of private employment agencies, legislated out of business by Initiative Measure No. 8.

The foot and mouth disease which has alarmed the middle west, has kept the department of agriculture busy for the past ten days watching every avenue leading into the state. Up to the present time no evidences of the plague have been found in Washington, and it is the intention of Dr. H. T. Graves, acting commissioner of agriculture, that none will, if precautionary measures avail. During the past week the department has sent orders to all railroads to admit to this state no shipments of live-stock except for immediate slaughter and then only after inspection has been made and all cars carefully disinfected. Orders have also been sent to all transportation companies to move no cattle in the state, and the entire veterinary force at command of the department is supervising the disinfection of all places where cattle are handled. Several cars came into the state early in the week from eastern points, but as they were destined for slaughter, they were allowed to proceed after examination showed no trace of the plague and the cars were disinfected.

In accordance with his statement during the recent campaign that if Initiative Measure No. 9, the "first aid" bill, were defeated, he would appoint a commission of employers to draft a carefully considered measure of this kind, Governor Lister has asked the following men to act on such a commission:

Employers — J. P. McGoldrick, McGoldrick Lumber Company, Spokane; William Pigott, Seattle Car & Foundry Company, Seattle; Alex Polson, Polson Logging Company, Hoquaim.

Employes—Ernest P. Marsh, president Washington State Federation of Labor, Everett; Martin Flyzik, president District No. 10, United Mine Workers of America, Seattle; J. W. Clark, editor Grays Harbor Post, Aberdeen.

Governor Lister has transferred T. E. Skaggs from the state tax commission to the board of control, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Herman W. Ross, and has announced his intention to recommend the abolition of the tax commission and the placing of its duties in the hands of one man, to be known as state tax commissioner. For this reason no successor to Mr. Skaggs will be appointed.

Chairman H. T. Jones of the board of control has announced that he will retire from public life at the end of his present term, March 31, 1915. Mr. Jones already has served longer than any other state official and the completion of this term will end 12 years work for the state on the board of control, under five different governors.

The state of Washington must look forward to an acute labor problem with the completion of the present war, when unskilled laborers in numbers, seeking to avoid the rising European taxes, may be expected to flock direct to this section by way of the Panama canal, Labor Commissioner E. W. Olson says in his biennial report to the legislature.

OPEN SATURDAY EVENING

It is claimed by The Index, the paper published by the Washington State Reformatory, that seventy per cent of the inmates trace their troubles of the saloon. In view of which fact Mr. Webb's little story, told by a senator of the United States who was addressing a crowd of people who were dedicating a reformatory back East, may prove interesting The senator said: "If you save one boy this place will be worth the money spent." And a woman asked him if one boy was worth a million and a half dollars, to which the senator replied, "I was thinking of my boy." And that made a difference; so if you have a boy perhaps you also think of him sometimes and don't want to see him in a "University of Another Chance;" if you feel that way keep her dry.

ABOUT THE COUNTY

EDEN VALLEY

A meeting was held in the Eden Valley school house Saturday evening, November 11th, for the purpose of reorganizing the Rain or Shine Club. Both Eden and Eden Valley districts were well represented, about thirty-five members being present. The following officers were chosen: President, R. M. Johnson; Vice President, O. H. Babcock; Secretary, Stella Erickson; Treasurer, WalterJensen. The meetings are to be held bi-monthly, alternating between the two districts and interesting programs in the way of debates, discussions of community interests and social times are to be planned throughout the year. The next meeting will be held at the Eden schoolhouse November 21st. Everybody welcome.

Henry Bradshaw has brought his wood sawing machine into the neighborhood and is cutting wood for several families.

Thursday night's storm brought about three inches of snow to Eden Valley. Hunters have been out for several days but little game has been killed.

Orin Kelly, who has been working near Fairholm, is home for a few weeks.

A special director's meeting was held at the Van Horn ranch Tuesday evening.

O. H. Babcock has built an addition to his house.

Geo. Aldrich, of Dry Creek, was a Saturday visitor at Jay Gould's home.

MT. PLEASANT.

Guy and Rollo King, former Mt. Pleasant boys, were visiting in this vicinity last Wednesday.

Mr. Albert Jacobson and family moved back to Angeles last Wednesday; ranch life is evidently not to their liking.

Burrell Vail, who has been laid off from work on account of cutting his foot, spent a few days at home the past week.

Mrs. Harrington went to Angeles Tuesday, and will take charge of her daughter Myrtle's children while she is at the hospital.

Tony Krajewski was in Angeles Wednesday having his throat lanced and is doing nicely now.

Mrs. Hall visited in Angeles Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Agnew visited at Oscar Lee's Sunday.

DE FUCA

Mrs. Heuhslein's sister, Mrs. John Solf, and her two little girls Ella and Emma came out from Port Angeles last Tuesday and spent the remainder of the week, returning to Angeles Sunday evening.

Mrs. Wm. Wooding, Sr., and Lucy, spent Saturday in Sequim. They returned Sunday, accompanied by Mrs. Ware, who spent the afternoon at the Wooding home.

Mrs. C. A. Laurens and Minna took Mrs. Dan Gasser to town on Thursday and stayed there a few days on business.

The railroad bridge crew which has been camped at Seibert creek for over a month, has completed work there and moved to McDonald creek Saturday, to begin work on that bridge.

Mr. F. A. MacDonald surprised his friends here by calling in unexpectedly Wednesday evening. He came up from Fairview with Mr. Chambers, returning the same evening as he left the next morning for British Columbia.

Mr. Alfred Stevenson was down at Mr. Agnew's last week from Blue Mountain after a load of hay.

The Thorpe boys started Monday to plow up the fields over on the Troy place.

LINCOLN HEIGHTS

Mrs. Mathews has recovered and Mrs. McRoberts is improving at the hospital since her operation.

The three hunters, who went out last week with Mr. Burgman's pony, came in Monday evening with five deer and another hunter got a black bear.

Mrs. Hattie Harding is the happy owner of a fine new sewing machine.

Mr. Orson Boyd has erected a tent on the corner of B and 8th streets. The wind Thursday night hit it hard.

Miss Peters who was staying at her brothers in the Grubb house, was called home on account of sickness.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming and Mrs. Bashline spent a very pleasant time at Mr. Harley Clark's, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hallwere on the Heights Tuesday, supplying some of their friends with potatoes from their ranch.

Mesdames Jacobs and McKee of Pine Hill, N. L. Harding and Daisy Fleming, visited at J. B. Fleming's Wednesday.

The Olympic-Leader and Today's Magazine (with free pattern) both one year, $1.25.

FAIRVIEW.

Ere another Friday's paper comes from the press, Thanksgiving will have come and gone, and every man and woman who has had so much to be thankful for in all the past Thanksgivings will still have more this year, and when the morning sun rises from the horizon and spreads the silvery rays of light over our grand and peaceful nation, let us thank our Maker that it is so, and that our noble boys in blue who stand ever ready to shield and protect us, are not led out to the battlefield to meet the fate of the brave and manly brothers who dwell on foreign shores.

Mrs. Page is very ill and her mother, Mrs. Winters, Sr., came out this week to care for her and see to the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Pellerin are staying for a while at the Chambers' home. Ed is getting out ties for the railroad.

Mrs. Harbaugh and daughter Climena, who has been cooking for a mill west of town, came home a few days ago.

Mrs. McDonald of Vancouver, was a guest at the Chambers home one night last week.

Rown Luke came home last Thursday to stay for the winter.

Two covered wagons now bring the children to and from school. A long felt want in this large district.

Mr. Bushnell who has the contract for getting out ties, expects to finish about December first.

On November 5th, Mrs. S. P. Cary entertained the F. L. C., at her home at Pikes Peak. There were eight members and three visitors present.

Mrs. Kilmer's recipe for ginger cookies. 1 cup baking molasses, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup melted lard, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1teaspoon soda in 1 cup boiling water, a little salt and enough flour to make a soft dough. When rolling out, handle as little as possible.

ONE OUT OF EVERY TEN DIES OF TUBERCULOSIS

The investigation recently conducted by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis thru the churches shows some interesting results. The extent of the tuberculosis problem in the average church is indicated by the fact that 10.3 per cent of all funerals reported were caused by tuberculosis and that there is one case developing each year for each twenty church members. Since ministers come in such close contact with those suffering from this disease, Tuberculosis Day, November 29th, when a full discussion of the facts about the case is invited, is generally regarded as a real opportunity to join in a nation-wide educational campaign on the subject. Outlines may be secured by addressing the association, 915 Cobb Building, at Seattle, Washington.

RAILROAD WORK

Reports of rapid work in grading for the Port Angeles branch of the Milwaukee railroad, come from the scene of operations quite frequently. Visitors to the grading camps west of Discovery Bay say that owing to good weather the past few weeks work has gone ahead of the expectations of contractors, and the road will be connected up with the main line, runing from Quilcene to Port Townsend, ahead of the date set for it at the beginning of construction. Contractors are also making the same predictions. The beginning of train service between Port Angeles and Port Townsend will be hailed with enthusiasm by the people of the two cities, followed by greater confidence in the future of the Olympic Peninsula, as it will mark the beginning of real railroad development. It means that upon the completion of the Angeles branch work of building to the Milwaukee's transcontinental line by extending southward along Hood Canal will begin, and this will inaugurate a period of the greatest prosperity the Olympic Peninsula has ever witnessed. The plan of the Milwaukee is to belt the Olympic mountains in time, and first will be the connecting up of the two principal cities of the Peninsula with the Milwaukee's eastern line. Such railroad connection has been all that was needed to start the Olympic Peninsula upon the greatest campaign of development we have ever known. —Quilcene Megaphone.

Declare War On Colds

A crusade of education which aims "that common colds may become uncommon within the next generation" has been begun by prominent New York physicians. Here is a list of the "don'ts" which the doctors say will prevent the annual visitation of the cold:

"Don't sit in a draughty car."
"Don't sleep in hot rooms."
"Don't avoid the fresh air."
"Don't stuff yourself at meal time. Overeating reduces your resistance."

To which we would add—when you take a cold get rid of it as quickly as possible. To accomplish that you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy most excellent. Sold by all dealers.

ALONG THE WATER FRONT

The Schr. Wilmington which was due to arrive here last week from Seattle was caught in a squall off Possession Point, near Point No Point. The booms swinging wild, smashed everything they hit and the gale continued thruout the night, so the booms could not be secured until morning. Capt. Ramselins ran the ship into Mukilteo. She belongs to the W. C. Dawson Company.

Capt. Carter of the Iroquois is taking Kulstroms run to Bellingham and the Iroquois takes the Sol Duc's run for two days this week.

A Union Oil boat was in the harbor the first of the week.

The U. S. L. H. T. Heather dropped anchor in the harbor a few hours this week, on way to the banks.

The Diamond Head is still laying in the harbor waiting for tank steamer.

The first class cruiser U. S. S. Maryland dropped anchor in the harbor last Saturday night at 7:30, laying over until 10 a. m. Sunday morning and then proceeding south to Mare Island for repairs. The Maryland passed Angeles at 2 p. m. on Saturday afternoon on her way to Tatoosh from Port Townsend, and at that time was making a speed run, testing Alaska coal, the run of 80 miles being made in 4 hours. She came back to Angeles to lay overnight and get mail. The Maryland has crew of 875. Only a few officers visited ashore, no liberty parties being allowed to the sailors.

The Schr. Oceanea Vance is in port and loading a full cargo of lumber at the mill for the Hawaiian Islands.

During the heavy wind of last week, the Contractor Anderson's scow load of timbers broke loose of its moorings at the City Dock and drifted down towards Ennis Creek. The tug Florence J. towed it back the following morning. Swanson's launch was blown under the dock and slightly damaged. Launch Energy had her cabins stove in. A man in a row boat drifted against the Snohomish and was taken aboard. Capt. Soderman of the Sol Duc says it was the worst wind he had seen for twelve months.

The Str. Sol Duc is arriving about 7:15 a. m. now.

The Str. Santa Cecelia arrived yesterday at Earles mill for a cargo of lumber and shingles for the east. The Santa Cecelia is one of the most up-to-the-minute tramps afloat. Her length is 425 feet. Some boat, what?

The A. H. Str. Iowan took on Pilot Duffy for Seattle yesterday morning.

"BON VOYAGE"

Mr. Herman Mitchell and Chas. Watts expect to leave on the Str. Olsen for the west coast of South Africa this coming week. Mitchell expects to ship at cabin boy, his hardest duties being to cut cake for the cook. Charlie will ship as deck hand, his main duty being to look after the ladies. The boys will go from here to Seattle, where they expect to join the schooner. Schooners are very numerous upSound and none but good sailors can ride the Wm. Olsen. The Str. Wm. Olsen will carry load of dried herring as cargo. Bon voyage, boys.

A Good Reason for Thanksgiving

Here and there you will find some fortunate woman who has stronger reasons to be thankful this year than twelve months ago, before she started to measure up accurately her household and personal expenses through a checking account at this safe Bank of Courteous Service. Surrounded by many conveniences, as it is, banking is made easy and pleasant and crisp new money is always willingly provided.

Why not make YOUR Thanksgiving a happier one in 1915?

Jas. M. Tiffany returned Monday from his extended visit with relatives at Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, and other places. He had a splendid time but the pleasure of the trip was somewhat marred by finding upon his return that someone had been thru his house and stolen everything in the line of furniture except two or three pieces.

Surprisingly interesting and very instructive were the picture films shown thru the courtesy of the Dream theater last Friday afternoon and evening by Miss Bethesda Beals, of Seattle, executive secretary of the Washington Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis. The school children and their teachers attended in a body in the afternoon and no one who heard the children's conversation about the pictures could doubt of the impression it had made on their minds. Months of studying in school books, couldn't have taught them so effectively the lessons they learned from these wonderful pictures.

THANKSGIVING OYSTERS

Warren Cooley has received word this week of the death of his cousin, H. M. Cooley, editor and owner of the Crofton, Nebraska, Journal, in an auto accident. Four men were returning from Yankton when the auto swerved, jumping from the pontoon bridge into the Missouri river. Two of the men managed to swim out, but Mr. Cooley and Mr. Cass, a druggist, were not to be found. Editor Cooley's death was a great shock to his cousin here, as they were as close to each other as brothers.

Broulette and Greaves have just finished a fine job of painting on the parsonage of the Congregational church. Other improvements are being made by the R. D. Willson Hardware Co. The money to do this work, $225.00, is a gift to Mrs. Smith from an old friend of New London, Conn.. The Ladies Aid are putting new range and water into the chapel this week, so as to be better able to take care of the Brotherhood dinners.

Speaking about dishes, have you seen that pretty line of English ware they have just put in at the Baker & Co's store? They are certainly as dainty as any china and will not chip as easily. Yes, they have a fine line of dishes of all kinds, including fancy china ones for holiday gifts.

CHAPTER XXII.

The House Divided.

Alone in that strange place of silence and shadows—that den of the devil's livery, crimson and black—chained to the invalid chair wherein, day in, day out, for years on end, he had suffered the Promethean torments of the life that would not die out of his wretched, wrecked carcass, though without ceasing sharp-beaked envy, hatred, malice and all uncharitableness pecked insatiably at his vitals: Seneca Trine sat waiting, with the impassivity of a graven figure waiting on the imminent hour of ultimate avengement for the wrong that had made him what he was.

"Another hour! . . . In sixty minutes more they will be here, Judith and Marrophat and Rose—poor fool!—and him! . . . In sixty minutes more they will put him down before me, bound and helpless, if not dead . . ."

A slight pause prefaced words that were a whimpered prayer: "God send that he be not dead! Have I lingered here in anguish all these weary years, for the fulfillment of my revenge only, to be cheated at the end by Death? God grant that Alan Law may be laid down still living here at my feet! . . . Then . . ."

Rose Turned on Her Passionately.

A bitter smile twisted his tortured features: "Then shall my will be done to him! And then, when I have seen him die as his father died—then—Ah, God!—then at last I too may die! . . ."

There was a long silence, then a groan of exasperated protest: "Why do they not come? Why does Judith delay, when she knows how I suffer? Why have I been put off from day to day with her telegrams that begged for more time and promised everything—but told nothing!—until yesterday. . . . Where are those messages she sent me yesterday?"

His one sound hand groped out like a claw and sought a mass of papers on the desk beside him, sorting out from among them two yellow forms. Painfully he blinked over these and slowly his pain-bent lips conned their wording;

"'Alan and Rose safe with me—will bring both home tomorrow night without fail,'" he read the first aloud; and then the second: "'Have motorcar waiting for me tomorrow morning from three o'clock till called for. New Bedford waterfront—Judith.'"

"No!" he affirmed with the fervor of one persuaded by his own desires: "I must not doubt the girl! She has promised, she has performed:

So still was he, indeed that he seemed to sleep, but so deceptive was that semblance that he was alert for the least sound. The girl entered softly, as if fearful of disturbing his slumbers; but she found him with head erect and eyes a-blaze.

"Judith!" he cried, his great voice vibrating like a brazen bell. "At last! Where is he? You have brought him? Where is he?"

With no more answer than a sigh, the girl drooped her head and let her hands hang limply with palms exposed.

After an instant of incredulous disappointment the man shot a single, frigid question at her:

"You have failed?"

"I have failed," she confessed.

"Why?"

She shrugged slightly. "Who knows why one fails? I did my best: he was too much for me, outwitted me at every turn. Time and again I thought I had him, but always he escaped, either by his own wit and courage or with another's aid. Only yesterday night they were all three in the hollow of my hands—but now I bring you only Rose."

She faltered, awed by the glare of his infuriated eyes. "Let me explain," she begged.

He snapped her short: "You cannot explain. The thing is impossible, that you should have failed. There is something beneath this, something you will not tell me."

She endeavored to speak, but he enforced silence with a sonorous "No!"

His hand sought the row of buttons on the desk and pressed one long.

Almost instantly a servant glided noiselessly into the room.

"My daughter Rose—have her brought here to me at once!"

In another moment the replica of his daughter Judith was ushered into his presence.

Upon this one he loosed the lightnings of his wrath without ruth.

Rose suffered him in silence. His most galling recrimination educed no retort from this one.

In a lull in Trine's tirade, Judith chose to interject: "Don't be so hard on the silly fool: she's not responsible; she's sick with love for that good-looking simpleton!"

"And you!" Rose turned on her passionately—"what about you? If I love Alan Law, at least I love him openly. I am not ashamed to own it—and I don't pursue him, as you do, pretending I mean to sacrifice him to a wicked family feud, and then spare him every time I meet him, to lead him to believe I haven't the heart to injure him—as you do, hoping so to work upon his sympathies and earn a kindly word and a pat on the head from his hand!"

Fiercely she leveled a denunciatory arm at her sister. "There!" she cried to her father—"if you need to know—there stands the daughter who has betrayed your faith—as I have not, who have never even pretended to approve your villainy!"

"I think," Trine announced in a voice of ice—"I have learned now what I needed to know."

His fingers sought the row of buttons; and when a servant responded, he inquired:

"Mr. Marrophat has returned?"

"He is in the waiting room, sir."

"Conduct Miss Judith to him and tell him I hold him personally responsible for her safe-keeping. He will understand."

And for a long time thereafter the father, alone with the daughter who had been estranged from him since birth by every instinct of her nature, essayed in vain to break down her mutinous silence.

At last Trine summoned two of his creatures and had her led weeping from the rooms to be held prisoner in her bedchamber on the topmost floor of the house.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A Sporting Offer.

Some two hours later, that same evening, Mr. Alan Law, very much alive and, in spite of a complete new outfit of ready-made clothing, looking much more like himself than he had in a fortnight, issued forth from the Grand Central station, hailed a taxicab, and had himself conveyed to the Hotel Monolith.

But if he looked his proper self once more, it speedily was demonstrated that his wish was otherwise: for after learning from the room-clerk of the Monolith that a suite was being held in the name of Arthur Lawrence, that was the name Mr. Law inscribed on the register.

On the other hand, it was his true name that he gave to the person whom he called upon the telephone immediately after being shown to his rooms. But then he was speaking to his old friend and man of business, Mr. Digby.

Within another ten minutes this last was in conference with his employer:

"I think you must be out of your head," he insisted nervously, once their first greetings were over. "You might just as sensibly throw yourself from the top of the Metropolitan tower as come to New York while Trine lives and knows you're this side the water."

"Nonsense!" Alan laughed. "Remember this is New York—not the backwoods of Maine!"

Alan paused and smote his palm with a remorseful fist. "By the Eternal, I'm forgetting Barcus!"

"Barcus?"

"Chap whose boat I chartered in Portland—sheer luck on my part: he's one of the salt of the arth. First, something must be done for the boy. You've got influence of some sort in New Bedford, surely?"

Digby reflected: "Some. There's George Blaine, justice of the peace—"

"The very man. Telegraph him in Barcus' interests immediately. And telegraph Barcus as well—send him a hundred for expenses, and tell him to join me here in New York as quick as he can!"

"Your friend's address?" Digby inquired, mildly ironic as he sat down at the desk and fumbled with the supply of stationery.

"New Bedford jail, of course!" Alan chuckled—but cut his laugh in two as something fluttered from the pack of envelopes which Digby had disturbed, and fell to the floor between the two men.

Face up, it grinned sardonic mockery of Alan's confidence: it was a trey of hearts.

With an ashen face and a trembling hand, Digby stooped to pick the damned thing up; but Alan was beforehand with him, and got his fingers first upon the card.

"Now will you believe?" Digby demanded huskily.

"In what? A simple coincidence?" Alan flouted. "Not I! Who knows I'm in New York—or that the Arthur Lawrence for whom your agent engaged these rooms was Alan Law. No, my friend: it's a bit too thick for me. Take my word for it, this is nothing more nor less than a souvenir of a poker party held by yesterday's tenant of this suite."

"Perhaps—perhaps!" Digby assented, stroking tremulous lips. "But I'm afraid for you, my boy. Who knows that Trine's spies were not watching my man when he made this reservation? Who knows but that 'Arthur Lawrence' was too thin a disguise for Alan Law? I tell you, I'm frightened to the marrow of my old bones! Do me this favor at least, my boy: now that you've been warned, whether by accident or design—we won't argue that—do leave town—go incognito to some quiet place near by and wait there for the sailing of the next transatlantic steamer. Oh, surely you can't deny me this one wish of my fond old heart, my boy!"

With a gesture of unfeigned affection Alan dropped a hand on Digby's shoulder.

"There's nothing on earth I would not do for you," he said: "you've been a father and a mother to me ever since I can remember, even if we were separated, most of the time, by three thousand miles of salt water. But this thing—I can't do it, even for you. I can't do it even for myself. Rose Trine is here in New York, in the hands and at the mercy of her father and sister: and you may judge what their mercy will be when you learn all that she has done for me. I won't go and I can't go until I find her and take her with me. And that is final."

"Then," Digby struck in, grasping wildly at a straw of hope, "I have your word you'll go, providing I find and restore Rose to you?"

"You have my word to that, unquestionably. Bring Rose to me, and I'll gladly shake the dust of New York from my shoes, and never return till Trine is put away comfortably in his grave."

"It shall be done," Digby promised. "It must!"

"You believe that?"

"In twelve hours Rose shall be restored to you."

"Will you make a book on it? I'll bet you something happens—and hope I lose into the bargain. If you believe you can carry out your promise, wire the White Star line to reserve the best available suite on the Oceanic, sailing tomorrow morning at ten—and make arrangements for a marriage before the boat sails."

"I'll go you," Digby agreed: "and if I fail, I forfeit the cost of the reservation. But about this marriage—"

He hesitated.

"You'll have to have a license in this state—and can't get one except by applying in person with your bride-to-be. There won't be time—"

"Then we'll marry in Jersey!" Alan insisted. "Dig up some clergyman over there, if you don't know one yourself—"

"Oh, I'm well acquainted with the very man!"

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Time o' Night.

Not ill-pleased to be left to his own devices (whose proposed character Digby would never have approved had he so much as suspected them) Alan none the less deferred action until after midnight.

And espionage was all he feared—save and except always, of course, failure to find his Rose.

It was about one in the morning when he arrived inconspicuously (but not so much so as to seem deserving of police surveillance) in the neighborhood of the Riverside drive home of his mortal enemy, a grim white house that towered, stark and tall, upon a corner.

His preliminary reconnoisance provided little more than comfortless exercise. Huge, still, its wall bathed in the milk and ink of moonlight and shadow, all its windows dark but one—and that one, in the topmost tier, showed only a feeble glimmer, so slight that Alan almost overlooked it.

But once discovered, it focused upon itself his thoughts with a power little less than hypnotic.

He believed with small doubt that Rose was a prisoner within those walls; that Judith must have conveyed her there with all speed.

And, this being the presumptive case, that small, high window of the light might well be hers.

Directly across the street from the Trine residence, on the opposite corner, a colossal apartment structure stood half-finished, stonework to its second story, gaunt iron skeleton rearing above.

To his infinite disgust, Alan found the guardian very wide awake, very much on the job: no chance here to steal unseen into the building.

This in itself might have been deemed a suspicious circumstance: not for nothing does an honest night watchman so deny the laws of nature and the tenets of his craft. But Alan merely praised the man while cursing the very fact of his existence; and, accosting, overcame with bank-notes what seemed an uncommonly stubborn reluctance, and got his way.

He could not know that another skulked behind a barrier of lime barrels and overheard all that passed and, when Alan had ducked smartly into the unfinished building, rose and stole after him with footsteps as noiseless as a cat's and a face that had the savagery of a tiger's when it was transiently revealed in a shaft of moonlight.

At length Alan gained the gridiron of girders on a plane with the lighted window across the way, and crept along one of these, gingerly on his hands and knees, until he came to its end and might, if he cared to, look down a hundred feet to the sidewalks.

That view, however, did not tempt; he kept his eyes level; and was rewarded with a bare glimpse of a prettily-papered wall, framed in the lace of half-drawn curtains.

And of sudden—whether through fortuity, or instinct, or the psychological attraction of his steadfast concentration—the tenant of the room came to the window and stood there for a little, looking pensively out, altogether unconscious of the watcher in his aerial coign.

Again a horrible uncertainty harassed him. Was the woman Rose or Judith? That she was one of them he could plainly see. But which? Dared he assume his hopes fulfilled?

With difficulty he detached his hungry vision from her, and drawing from his pocket a small notebook, tore out a blank page, placed this flat on the girder, found a pencil, and with the assistance of a ray or two of moonlight scrawled a message of almost stenographic brevity.

When he looked up from this task, she had vanished.

Sitting up, astride the girder, he took his watch—a cheap affair he had picked up when reclothing himself in the garments of civilized society, at Providence, that morning—opened the back of the case, and closed it upon the folded message.

Then drawing back his arm, he breathed a silent prayer to the god of all true lovers, and cast it from him with all his might—with such force that it almost unseated him at the end of the swing. But nothing less would have served to bridge that yawning chasm.

And the watch flew straight and true, squarely through the lighted window and to the further wall. . . .

At that very instant of his exultation over an obstacle overcome, he heard a sound behind him of heavy breathing.

The assassin had come that close upon his prey when Alan turned and discovered his peril.

The same moonbeam which had aided Alan in the composition of his message struck across the other's face, and showed it like a hideous Chinese mask of deadly hatred, with its eyeballs glaring and its lips drawn back from the naked blade gripped between its teeth—a stiletto nothing short of a foot in length.

With a sharp, startled movement, Alan swung himself bodily about, so that, seated again astride the girder, he faced the assassin who sat up, straddling the girder, his feet hooked beneath it a stiletto poised in his right hand to strike.

But even now Alan was in little or no better case than before. If he faced the thug, he faced him with no arms other than his bare hands. He had not even a pen-knife in his pockets.

With a low cry of desperation Alan snatched off his hat, a soft and shapeless felt affair, and flung it squarely in the fellow's face.

Before he could recover—before, that is, it dropped away and cleared his vision, Alan had bent forward and grasped the wrist of the hand that held the knife.

He snatched simultaneously at the other hand, but it eluded him.

Alan had this advantage, as long as the knife might not strike—that his right arm was free, while the assassin had only his left. With this he strove persistently to reach his knife-hand and possess himself of the weapon. As persistently Alan foiled his purpose by dragging the knife-hand toward him and swinging it far out to one side. At the same time he struck repeatedly with his clenched right fist at the other's face. His blows did little damage beyond disconcerting the other; but this proved a very considerable factor in the duel. In the end, they served together with that steady, resistless downward and outward drag, to break the grip of the man's locked legs.

Abruptly he pitched forward on his face along the girder, kicking wildly, grasping at the air. The stiletto fell from an instinctively relaxed grasp, and disappeared. And before Alan could release his hold, or ease the strain upon the right arm of the assassin, this last had slipped bodily from the girder and hung helpless in space, dangling at the end of Alan's arm—with no more than the grip of five fingers between him and death.

The shock of that unpresaged turn brought Alan forward and flat on his stomach. And the strain on his left arm was terrific. He doubted if he could maintain it for another minute. Nor was there any reason why he should retain it. The end he had designed for his victim was merely his just desert.

And yet Alan could not let him go.

Thus the battle began anew—but now it was a battle with a man half-crazed and struggling so madly that he well-nigh frustrated the efforts of his rescuer.

In the upshot the assassin lay like a limp rag across the girder, head and arms dangling on one side, legs and feet on the other, spent with his terrific exertions and physically sick with terror.

And in this state Alan left him: he had done enough; let the man shift for himself from this time on.

CHAPTER XXV.

Changeling.

In the vague, chill gray of that dull and desolate dawn, Judith stirred abruptly on the couch of a sleepless night, and with the rapidity of one who has arrived at a settled purpose after a long period of doubt and perplexity, rose and bathed and dressed herself in negligee.

In the adjoining room she could hear small, stealthy noises—the sounds made by her sister moving about and preparing against the unguessable moment when her rescue would be attempted, according to the information conveyed in that midnight message.

For chance had conspired with her insomnia to station Judith in the recess of her darkened window, idly viewing the gaunt framework of the unfinished building from an angle which, when Alan edged out along the girder, showed him plainly in silhouette against the sky.

In Judith's eyes his identity was unmistakable. She had hardly needed the night-glasses which presently she brought to bear upon him at the moment when he was laboriously inditing his message—while grim death stalked him from behind.

She had seen him throw the watch and had heard the double thump of its impact with the wall and floor of Rose's bedchamber.

And she had witnessed with wildly beating heart that duel in the air—able to surmise its outcome only from the fact that the victor spared the life of the vanquished.

The clock was striking six as she left her room: across the street workingmen were streaming into the building to begin the labors of the day.

Brushing unceremoniously past the drowsy and indifferent guard in the corridor outside the door to Rose's room, Judith turned the key that remained in the lock on the outside, removed it, entered, and locked the door behind her.

Without any surprise she found her sister already dressed to the point of donning her outer garments.

Rendered half-frantic by this unexpected interruption, threatening as it did the perilous scheme that Alan had proposed, Rose greeted her sister with a countenance at once aghast and wrathful.

"What do you want?" she demanded tensely.

"To come to an understanding with you," Judith told her coolly.

"There is no understanding possible between us: you know that as well as I."

"Yet one there must be."

"I insist that you leave this room at once!"

"Insist by all means—and be damned! I may leave this room—and I may not, dear little sister. But one of us will never leave it alive."

With a start of terror, Rose shrank back from this strange, wild thing that wore the very shape and semblance of herself.

"What do you mean? You cannot mean to murder me in cold blood, Judith?"

"Not I!" Judith laughed harshly. "But, since it has pleased Destiny to decree that we must both love one man—let Destiny decide between us and bear the blame of murder!"

"Judith!"

"One moment!" Crossing to a side table, Judith took up a glass from a tray that held a silver water-pitcher, and returned with it to the table that occupied the middle of the floor. At the same time she opened a hand till then fast clenched and disclosed a small blue bottle with a red label shrieking the warning "POISON!"

"Strychnine," she explained composedly, "in solution." And emptied the bottle into the glass.

A measure of courage returned to Rose. "Do you expect to be able to make me drink that?" she demanded contemptuously.

"Not I—but Destiny, if it will! See here." From a pocket of her dressing-gown Judith produced a sealed deck of playing cards. "Let these declare the will of Destiny toward us. I will break the seal, shuffle the cards, and deal," she explained, suiting action to word.

"The one who gets the trey of hearts will drain that glass. Is it a bargain?"

"Never! Oh, now I know that you are altogether mad!"

"Perhaps. Are you ready?" And Judith made as if to deal.

"No—never! I tell you I refuse!" Rose chattered, terrified.

"You dare not refuse."

"Why?"

"Because of this."

Whipping a small revolver from another pocket of her dressing-gown, Judith placed it on the table, ready to her hand.

"You will shoot me if I do not consent?"

"Not you—but him. If you refuse, little sister, I will shoot Alan Law dead when he comes to keep his appointment with you."

"Ah!" Rose cried in mingled fright and amazement. "How did you find out?"

"Never mind. Is it a bargain, now, about the trey of hearts? Remember, I shall keep my word about this pistol."

With a shudder Rose bowed her head.

"Deal," she muttered fearfully, "and may God judge between us!"

One by one she stripped the cards from the top of the deck, dealing first to Rose, then to herself.

One by one they fluttered to the table on either side the glass of poison, and fell face uppermost.

The trey of hearts fell to Judith.

There was an instant of silent dread, ended by Rose, as Judith's hand moved steadily toward the glass.

"Judith!" she implored. "Don't—I beg of you—I didn't mean it—I take back my consent—"

"Too late!" said Judith, lifting the glass and eyeing its contents with a strange smile.

"Judith! you cannot mean to drink it?"

"Can't I, though?" the other laughed mirthlessly. "Just watch me!"

With a strangled cry Rose covered her face with her hands to shut out the sight, stood momentarily swaying, and dropped to the floor in a complete faint.

Delaying only to recognize this phenomena with a pitying smile for the weakness of spirit that caused it, Judith's glance darted through the window and saw that which caused her to stay her hand an instant longer.

On the topmost tier of girders of the building opposite, Alan Law stood amid a little knot of amused and animated laborers, one foot in the great steel hook of the hoisting tackle, both hands clasping the chain that linked it to the gigantic block.

And as Judith stared, he smiled at something said by one of those about him, looked back, and waved a hand to some person invisible.

Immediately the arm began to lift, the tackle to move slowly through the blocks. Very gently he was swung up and outward. . . .

With a cry Judith flung the poison heedlessly from her, leaped across the room, and snatched up the street garments Rose had dropped at her sister's entrance.

In another moment she was struggling madly into them.

Before the shadow of Alan, clinging to the hook and chain, fell athwart the window, she was dressed and clambered out upon the sill.

"Not I—but Destiny, If It Will!"

"Sweetheart! My bravest little woman!"

The hook hung steadily within six inches of the window-ledge. Alan extended his arm.

"Nothing to fear, except lest I hold you too tight, dear one!"

Without a word Judith set her foot beside his in the hook, surrendered to his embrace, and closed her eyes.

Immediately they were swung away from the window, over toward the opposite sidewalk, and gently lowered to the street.

"Maybe this isn't a good scheme!" Alan exulted in the innocence of his heart. "But I think it is. And those workingmen think it a great lark—I told them the simple truth, you see: that we were eloping!"

By way of answer Judith breathed only a word of tenderness.

And that instant the hook paused and Alan stepped off upon the sidewalk.

"Safe and sound—and not a soul over there the wiser as yet!" he declared with a derisive nod toward the home of Trine. "Come along. Here's a limousine waiting. In twenty minutes we'll be at the ferry, in forty over in Jersey, within an hour married, within four hours safe at sea!"

Proceedings of the Board of County Commissioners.

From Page 6.

Board on an adjournment date set for hearing on October 7th, 1914, the Board examined and considered the information before them.

It appearing to the Board that the census of school children in said County on July 1, 1914, was 2081, and that the ratio of the school population to the general population in similar localities is in a ratio of from four to five times the number of school children, and it further appearing that there are a considerable number of permanent residents within the county in the lumber camps etc., who have recently located here, and are without families, and it appearing from the vote throughout the County at the election on November 3, 1914, that 3338 voters voted at said election, and from the registration in Port Angeles that there were 294 people registered in said city who did not vote, and from all the information before the Board it appearing that Clallam county now has, and for sixty days past, has had a population of more than 9,000 people.

Therefore be it resolved, That the Board of County Commissioners, after thorough investigation of many facts and estimates and reports, and of the question generally do hereby declare that on October 7th, 1914, Clallam County did have a population of over nine thousand people and that on said date Clallam County was and now is a county of the sixteenth class under the classification provided for by the laws of the State of Washington.

The Board then adjourned until Wednesday, November 11, 1914, at 9:00 a. m.

Wednesday, November 11, 1914, at 9:00 a. m.

PRESIDENT LANDES ASKS FOR NEW BUILDINGS

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF WASHINGTON:

Your university needs buildings. Since your original outlay (1893-'95) on the present site, you have appropriated from taxes but $175,000. In twenty years you have built Denny Hall (1893-95), two dormitories (1899), and Science Hall and the old power plant (1901). Since 1901 you have appropriated from tax money nothing for buildings, altho the University has experienced a growth unprecedented in the history of universities, the enrollment increasing 497 per cent, the faculty 424 per cent.

The relief which came in connection with the buildings secured thru the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition was greatly needed and very much appreciated, but did not come from the revenues of the state raised by taxation and has not taken the place of a carefully worked out building program, such as some of the older states have, which provides for a practically continuous building operation. Counting the buildngs valued at $600,000, which were built from the special fund secured thru the Exposition from the sale of the Lake Washington and Lake Union shore lands, the increase in the building equipment has been only 185 per cent, as compared with an enrollment increase of 497 per cent.

A comparision with other universities and colleges of the country shows the University of Washington in an unenviable light in respect to its building equipment. An examination of the last report of the United States commissioner of education shows Washington's building valuation lower than such colleges as Bowdin, Amherst, Dartmouth, and Williams, whose enrollments are but a fraction of that of the university. The valuation of the buildings at some of the state universities follows: Michigan, $2,178,443; Ohio State, $1,930,837; Minnesota, $4,900,000; Illionis, $2,178,735; Nebraska, $1,302,950; Iowa, $1,882,497; California, $7,801,005; Wisconsin, $3,321,749; Missouri, $1,524,880; Washington, $876,334.

It should be remembered that in your university several of the departments, notably, German, Scandinavian, law, physical training, home economics, military science, journalism and education, are housed in temporary staff structures and in cheap shacks, the expensive upkeep of which from the standpoint of economy is a waste, but for which there is no remedy until they are replaced by permanent structures. With these temporary structures utilized to their utmost capacity, the University is still in desperate need of more room. A faculty committee, composed of men thoroughly familiar with the schedule of recitations and problems of economical use of the University plant, recently reported that they found, after a careful examination of the extreme possibilities for utilizing the present building equipment, that 3,600 students was utilizing the full six days of each week. In the second semester of the present year the regular enrollment wil reach 3,200, and in another year the full capacity of the recitation rooms and laboratories will have been reached. When that time comes all registration in excess of 3,600 students will have to be refused.

It is time now to plan to meet these demands if you wish your University to go on and meet the high responsibilities you have placed upon it in sending your sons and daughters to its campus for higher education of citizenship.

HENRY LANDES,
President, University of Washington.

CLUB NEWS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Women's Auxiliary to the Commercial Club has been in the habit each year of calling thru the newspapers for all cast off or outgrown clothing that could be used by needy families, and has always met with a most generous response. Dolls, toys, books, etc., can also be used at the holiday time. Often something your children have grown tired of will delight the heart of a child who has but few playthings. Any articles of either clothing or toys, may be left at the Commercial Club room with Mr. Teck and will then be taken charge of by the Auxiliary women. A needy family of motherless children have already put in a call for clothing. The family consists of three girls, aged 14, 10 and 6, also two boys, aged 12 and 8. For further information phone Mrs. R. D. Willson, president; or Mrs. Jessie Webster, secretary.

Mrs. Ed Ramsey was given a most pleasant and complete surprise Tuesday evening by a number of the members of the Rebekah Lodge. Learning it was her birthday, they went to her home in a body to see that this important event was properly celebrated. Caros and games made the evening pass all too quickly and after partaking of the excellent refreshments the guests depart d, wishing Mrs. Ramsey many happy returns of the day. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Pegram, Mr. and Mrs. Miles Wait, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey, and Mesdames Pearl Wold, Dollie McRoberts, Mabel Cosser, Maude Abell, Eliza A. Falk, Celia Merritt, May L. Jeffrey, Sadie Brownrigg, Amelia Goldwater, Mary Hopf, Isadore Thompson, Reed and Miss Marie Johnson, also Messrs. E. A. Prickett, P. J. Harley and John Rychner.

The Three Link Dancing Club gave their first of a series of dances Wednesday evening in I. O. O. F. Hall. There was quite a large attendance who came in response to invitation given and the Club looks forward to many pleasant and profitable evenings during the season.

The W. L. C. held a very pleasant and interesting meeting last Friday at the home of Mrs. Lizzie Fleming. The stormy day prevented many from coming but a larger attendance is expected today, when it is hoped Mrs. Goldwater will give a ttalk on her recent European trip. Mrs. Minnie Fuller is hostess.

The P. A. Reading Club met with Mrs. Jessie Webster last Friday afternoon and for the nature study lesson were given a talk on birds by Mr. Webster, who spent many years studying birds when a resident of Iowa. His talk was illustrated with birds and pictures from his collection. The Club voted to purchase two good records to be presented to the school for their Victrola and other clubs of the city will be asked t donate. The next meeting of the Club will be in the nature of a Thanksgiving social session, November 27th, with Mrs. Willson as hostess.

The Choral Club are very enthusiastic over the progress they are making under their Seattle director, and cordially invite all interested in music to join the class, which meets every Wednesday evening in the Elks' Hall.

The Thursday Auction Bridge Club was pleasantly entertained this week by Mrs. J. C. Delabarre.

Reading room in Morse building, corner Front and Laurel; room No. 310; open daily except Sunday from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Subject for Sunday, at 11 a. m., "Soul and Body." The Thanksgiving Services will be held Tuesday, November 26.

The H. S. pupils were addressed Tuesday afternoon by Dr. Thompson, who has been in charge of Cape Prince of Wales Medical Mission at Wales, Alaska, for the past five years. His talk was very interesting and instructive and gave the pupils quite a different idea of the Eskimo from what they had learned in their school books.

L. M. Harrington is having the interior of his store building remodeled and the front room enlarged. New shelving and fixtures will add greatly to the general appearance and will make it less crowded.

Mrs. E. W. Wright and little daughter go to Seattle Saturday and hope Mr. Wright will be able to accompany them home the last of next week.

The interior of both the Citizens National and the Clallam County Banks has been greatly improved by fresh coats of calcimine.

CONGREGATIONAL LADIES ENTERTAIN

In spite of the inclemency of the weather, the Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational Church conducted a most successful dinner and sale at the church Thursday afternoon and evening. They took in over seventy dollars and have a number of aprons and fancy articles still for sale, which they hope to dispose of before the holidays. Their dinner was exceptionally good, due probably to the splendid new steel range they had installed in their church kitchen this week, and of which they feel justly proud. It was purchased from the Willson Hardware Company, Mr. Willson making a generous donation toward the buying of it. It was quite a burden for the ladies to assume at this time, but the old stove had outlived its usefulness and something had to be done. We hope an unusually prosperous year will make it possible for the Aid Society to soon pay off this debt. A short but pleasing program was given in the evening. Particularly good was the prophecy written by Mrs. Stephen Smith, which foretold the wonders accomplished, not only for the church but for the city as well, by the untiring efforts of the Ladies Aid. Leslie Jackson sang a very sweet solo, and an interesting reading was given by Mrs. Lonsdale, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Smith.

In the first ward councilman contest, J. W. Hooker won, receiving 72, L. T. Haynes 55, C. C. Dobbs 22.

In the third ward J. Brennan won over J. Wooley 15, E. G. Lowry 28, receiving 46 votes.

The surprise was in the sixth where Felix Filion received the nomination on the Citizens ticket by stickers over W. L. Smith, who was on the regular ticket, 53 to 30. Councilman Fleming received 12 votes on the Citizens ticket.

Messrs. Harley, Smith, Beam and Filion also received the nominations on the Socialists ticket.

E. W. Merrill, with a party of his friends, is enjoying the week-end at his summer home on Lake Crescent. They have hopes of roast venison for Thanksgiving dinner.

S. E. Stakemiller has built a very neat little bungalow on the rear of his home lot, the corner of Eighth and Laurel.

The Lady Maccabees entertain their husbands and sweet-hearts with a social session next Tuesday evening.

The Angeles Marine Band go to Port Townsend today for a big dance to be given there in the evening.

Robert Gould returned home from his government survey work, the first of the week.

Ben Abbott is expected for a home visit the first of next week.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Turning the Tables.

Here is a West Point story, told about one of the awe inspiring sentries who halt everybody who approaches after 11 o'clock at night.

Old black Rob, the servant of one of the academy instructors, gave his version of it thus:

"Mis' Margaret, yo' knows dat culud girl w'at works fo' Captain Smif? Waal, she were comin' home late las' night from der city, an' when she clomb up to der top ob dis yere tall hill one ob dem dere little sentry boys yell out loud to her an' say: 'Halt! Who comes yere?' Josephine, she's not a bit feared ob anything, so she jes' speaks up sorta quick-like an' say: 'Now, don't you be scairt, honey. Nobody ain't gwine to hurt yo'!' "—Woman's Home Companion.

His Farewell.

"Farewell!" he cried sadly. "I may, perhaps, never look upon your face again!"

No, it was not a parting scene between lovers. 'Twas in a pawnshop, where a young man was getting something on his watch.—London Telegraph.

Profitable Roses.

Roses, though generally admired as the most beautiful flower, are not universally recognized as the profitable article of commerce that they really are. Trade roses are grown in various parts of Europe, but chiefly at Grasse, in France, and Kasanlik, in Bulgaria, where great stretches of rose gardens provide the chief supply of roses for the markets of the world. The highly cultivated roses are useless for commercial purposes, and both at Grasse and Kasanlik it is the cabbage rose that is chiefly grown—"the rose of a hundred petals," as they call it in southern France. The Grasse roses are used chiefly for pomades, soaps, rose water, and such commodities, and the demand made by the manufacturers of such on the rose growers of Grasse can be partly gauged from the fact that more than 2,500,000 pounds of roses are annually gathered in the district. Essence, or, as it is called, attar of roses, is rarely made in France, on account of the expense of production, but nearly all the Bulgarian roses are used for this purpose.

History Made by a Postage Stamp.

A postage stamp which played a part in history is told about by M. Bunau-Varilla in his book on the Panama canal. The incident occurred when the discussion over the relative merits of the Panama and Nicaragua routes was at its height. Bunau-Varilla had been working vigorously for the Panama route, making use of the two arguments of less cost and immunity from active volcanoes. One day he recalled that Nicaragua had issued a handsome stamp, showing a volcano in full activity. He at once sent to the dealers in foreign stamps in Washington, and obtained ninety of these stamps, which he forwarded to the ninety senators, along with bits of paper bearing the words, "Postage stamp of the republic of Nicaragua; an official witness of the volcanic activities of Nicaragua." The catastrophe at St. Pierre took place about this time, to deepen the impression of volcanic danger, and the Panama route was adopted by the narrow margin of four votes.—New York Post.
