$200,000 FOR OLYMPIC WAY

Splendid Work Done by Jefferson and Clallam Representatives Before Joint Committee.

Olympia, Feb. 23

Olympic-Leader:

Joint sub-committee on roads voted unanimously for $100,000 for Olympic Highway, Lake Quinault north; $50,000 Olympia to McCleary; $40,000 extension to Quilcene; $10,000 Lake Crescent ferry.

C. L. BABCOCK.

The above report by the joint sub-committee, representing both senate and house, practically settles the matter of appropriations for the Olympic Highway, as it will certainly be adopted if any road legislation whatever can be adopted.

While none of the money will be spent in this county, with the exception of the $10,000 for the ferry system on Lake Crescent, the $200,000 will go a long way toward the completion of the Highway. Clallam has already completed her portion of this Olympic belt-line road, largely thru the use of a $300,000 road bond issue, but western Clallam and Jefferson people would have preferred the $50,000 set aside for the purpose of making a start on the Forks-Quinault section to have been expended on the Clallam county end, south from Forks. However, it may be the amount may be divided, giving a portion of the settlers at both ends an outlet. As mail routes have been discontinued since the parcel post went into effect, these people have to come out over trails for their own mail and are practically cut off from the outside.

The remainder of the $200,000 will be largely used to build new sections of road, cutting out several bad hills, and to complete the Hood Canal road north of Duckabush, thus giving the best obtainable grades from Olympia to Port Angeles and the scenic Olympics.

MARINE BAND DANCE TOMORROW NIGHT

Remember the dance to be given by and for the benefit of the Marine Band at the Opera House tomorrow, Saturday night. Every public-spirited citizen who can possibly afford it will buy at least two tickets.

Ionian Serenaders Tuesday, March 2nd

The Ionian Serenaders, a company of four versatile young women, who have been brought together to give a unique and new entertainment, will be the next number of the Lecture Course, appearing at the High School Auditorium Tuesday, March 2nd.

They sing, read and play with skill both in ensemble and individual presentations, presenting a program of unsurpassed interest, not alone because of the novelties introduced, but also by reason of the intrinsic value of their work individually and collectively. An interesting feature is this company's revival of the accordian as a concert instrument. For some years this splendid instrument, one of the oldest known, has been practically unknown in concert work, but there has been in the past two years, a reintroduction of the instrument into concert halls. An accordian quartet is a novelty which receives a favorable reception everywhere. Remember the lecture course is given for the benefit of the schools.

CAUSES OF THE GREAT STRUGGLE

Prof. O.H. Richardson Made Great Address on European War at Congregational Church.

Those fortunate enough to have attended the monthly dinner and meeting of the Brotherhood at the Congregational church Monday evening were privileged to hear a rare treat in the scholarly address of Mr. O. H. Richardson, professor of European history in the State University in Seattle. His lecture on the Causes and Effects of the Great Struggle now going on in Europe, was listened to with greatest interest and attention. His presentation of the whole subject was so comprehensive, non-partisan and just and showed such careful thought, that no one could listen to it without gaining a knowledge and insight of the subject, to be had only by those who have given years of study to conditions in these countries now torn asunder with war.

Professor Richardson has put his whole heart and soul into the subject, so much so, as he said to a reporter, that the pull at the heart strings was so great after delivering the lecture, he was often unable to Commercial Club Banquet and Other Social Functions Marked Washington's Birthday.

George Washington's birthday seemed to be the occasion for many social functions in our city and it was a puzzle to know just how to do justice to all of them or part of them. All seemed to have a following and good times and successful meetings are reported from the various affairs.

The Commercial Club held forthwith a banquet and speech-making at the Olympic Hotel. Although disappointed in the non-arrival of Representative McArdle of Jefferson county, and some of the other speakers, the spirits of the fifty or more guests at the banquet board were not dampened and all enjoyed the excellent dinner and the toasts and speeches following.

Mr. Julius Kirschberg, as toastmaster, once again won the laurels for himself, his ready wit and humor keeping everybody in a happy frame of mind.

Dr. Craig, president of the Commercial Club, in his usual booster spirit, made a pleasing address in the interests of Clallam county, Port Angeles and the Commercial Club. Hon. W. D. Higgins, British vice-consul, entertained with personal recollections of the Treaty of Ghent, also with some early reminiscences of Port Angeles, when in 1863, with his bride, he paid it his first visit. In all these years Mr. Higgins' interest in and loyalty to Port Angeles have remained steadfast and true, and we hope he may live to see it progress and develop even beyond his fondest dreams and aspirations. Dr. Lewis, the newly appointed postmaster, and City Attorney G. V. Smith, both early pioneers of Port Angeles, also talked for the good of the city and its varied interests at this time.

A representative of Mr. McCoy, of Vancouver, B. C., talked for him on harbor improvements and the organization of a Port Commission at Vancouver, with reference to something similar for Port Angeles. After the speeck-making, Jensen's orchestra furnished some delightful music, which induced some of the party to trip the light fantastic while others engaged in pleasant social converse.

The dining room was attractively decorated for the occasion of the banquet and as reminders of the celebration of the birth of the Father of Our Country, the place cards were tiny gift hatchets, tied with red, white and blue ribbon.

The firemen celebrated with a well attended ball at the opera house, which was a grand success in every way. The boys were very gay in their new uniforms and received a great deal of flattering attention and everybody had one grand, good time.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ismael Filion in the George Washington Social last Friday evening, given by the study club of the Presbyterian church. A large number of men and women were present. Many features of the life of Washington were presented in the decorations and amusements. The refreshments were a suggestion of the anniversary occasion. As a closing event all were given a trip in an airship.

Miss Florence Pettit was hostess to a very charming party given at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Pettit, on Monday evening. In commemoration of the day, the house decorations consisted of a myriad of flags, small ones being used as favors to each guest. A variety of games and contests furnished the evening's enjoyment until the delicious luncheon was served. The invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Woods, Miss Irene Woods, Miss Reddington, Mr. Regnier, Percy Bork, Lavina Graybill, Florence Gherke, Oliver Ester, Norman Nelson, Mae Brumfield, Mae Forsberg, Olive Goodwin, Beth Webster, Bernice Campbell, Ralph Davis.

THE WEEKLY BULL Jessen—

CAN FRIEND LOSE FRIEND?

Believe It Not! While Thy Soul Lives, Thy Friend Is Thine.

In the passing of Benjamin T. Smith, announcement of whose sudden death of heart failure so stunned and saddened the community Monday morning, the older business men of Port Angeles realize that they have lost one of their best-loved associates. Coming to the back-woods town of twenty-five years ago, when settlement by homestead was in vogue, and entering the newspaper business, Ben shared with the struggling settler all the sorrows, the hardships, and the pleasures of life. His was a quiet, generous and kindly nature—in fact kindliness was his one great characteristic, and by his kindliness will he be remembered long after others have passed away and been forgotten.

Mr. Smith was born in London, England, November 2, 1862, and like all lads of the old country, he was early apprenticed to learn a trade, his being that of a printer. He came to America with his parents in 1881, and worked for a time on the daily papers of Chicago, finally coming to San Francisco, where he worked for a number of years on the Examiner.

In 1890 he joined his parents in Port Angeles, they having taken up a homestead here five years previous. He entered at once into the newspaper field and edited and published for years the "Courier." This paper was finally consolidated with the Tribune-Times, Mr. Smith acting as foreman in this office until a few years ago, when he resigned to start for himself what has since been known as the Acme Printing Co.

The sympathy of the community goes out to Mrs. Smith and the son and daughter who survive him and who will sadly miss the affections of a devoted father. Miss Cecil was taking her first years course in journalism at the State University and her father was watching her progress with the keenest interest and had but recently paid her a visit. Mr. Smith is also survived by his mother and step-father, who live at Burlington, Washington, and who were here to attend the funeral services, which were held Wednesday at one o'clock, from the Episcopal church, conducted by Rev. Zeigler, priest-in-charge.

The funeral was one of the largest ever held in the city, many having to remain out of doors as neither seating or standing room could be had. Deceased was a member of the Elks and Modern Woodmen, and both these lodges were largely represented at the funeral. The local fire departent, of which Mr. Smith was ex-chief, also attended in a body with the exception of six, who acted as honorary pall bearers. Profuse and beautiful were the floral offerings, which expressed, better than words, the affection and sympathy of the many friends of the bereaved family.

The remains were laid to rest in Ocean View Cemetery, Messrs. Butler, Gallagher, Grubb, R. D. Willson, E. E. Day and August Swanson of the Elk's Lodge, acting as pall bearers.

Mrs. Smith's sister, Mrs. Robert Fairley and husband of Portland, Oregon, were here for the funeral.

Can friend lose friend? Believe it not!
The tissue whereof life is wrought,
Weaving the separate into one,
Nor end hath, nor beginning; spun
From subtle threads of destiny,
Finer than thought of man can see;
God takes not back his gifts divine;
While thy soul lives, thy friend is thine.

Thrown From Roof By Electric Shock

Mr. S. L. Prickett had a miraculous escape from death Monday morning when shortly before noon, he fell from the top of the new Morse building a distance of 30 feet. It is supposed that in turning a sheet of galvanized iron, intended for the top of the cornice, it came in contact with the electrical wires strung over the building, causing a short circuit, which gave him an electrical shock, knocking him over the edge.

Mr. Prickett does not remember anything about the fall and remained unconscious for some time after he was carried to Dr. McGillivray's office, but the condition of his feet would indicate he landed on them.

An X-ray film taken by Dr. Hyde of his right foot shows the bones badly crushed and broken and it will be a week anyway before the swelling will permit of anything being done. The extent of the injuries to the left foot have not yet been determined, but with the exception of being badly bruised all over his body, no other injuries have been discovered, and he is resting as comfortably as could be expected.

This is a most unfortunate accident to a man with a large family to support, as it will be many months at best, before he can hope to be able to be around on his feet. He and his family have the sympathy of the community in this affliction.

DIED WHILE SITTING IN HIS CHAIR

Geo. H. Howard, an employe at the mill, died of heart failure Monday morning while sitting in his chair. He was an elderly gentleman, 61 or 62, and had no family here, though there are sons and daughters in the east. An old friend, Mrs. Ada M. Power of Tacoma, was here to attend the funeral, services being held in the Fulmer & Cox Chapel at 1:00 p. m. Tuesday.

LOGGER GETS BROKEN LEG AT CRESCENT CAMP

POPULAR YOUNG COUPLE MARRIED

Abbott-Stakemiller Wedding a Very Pretty Home Affair, Held at High Noon, Monday.

The C. S. Stakemiller home was the scene of a quiet, but very pretty wedding, Monday, at high noon, when their daughter, Miss Flora Stakemiller, became the bride of Mr. Edson Augustus Abbott. The living room where the ceremony was performed, was beautifully decorated in greenery and Easter lilies. The bay window resembled a fairy bower and made a beautiful setting for the impressive ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Zeigler of St. Andrew's Episcopal church. The bride entered the room on her father's arm and was met by the groom and his best man, Benjamin Abbott, and the maid of honor, Miss Frances Hoare, while the wedding march was beautifully rendered by Miss Verna Wolverton.

The bride was lovely in her going away suit of blue gaberdine and a jaunty spring hat. She wore a corsage bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley, and suspended from a gold chain about her neck was an exquisite diamond studded locket, a gift from the groom. Miss Frances Hoare was very charming in a green velvet suit and grey picture hat with pink roses.

After congratulations, an elaborate wedding breakfast was served. The dining room was particularly attractive in a color scheme of pink and white. The table was centered with a basket composed of pink carnations, snap dragons and frezias and tied with a large bouquet of pink tulle. From the chandelier above the table, smilax and tulle were intertwined and festooned to the corners of the table. Covers were laid for fourteen including Mr. and Mrs. Edson Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Abbott, parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Stakemiller, Rev. and Mrs. Zeigler, Mr. and Mrs. John Willson, Mr. Benjamin Abbott, and Miss Emma Abbott, Miss Francis Hoare and Miss Verna Wolverton.

The bridal couple left on the afternoon boat for Seattle, amid a shower of rice and confetti, and with many expressions of good will. Both of the young people are very popular in Port Angeles and will be greatly missed in social circles. A host of good wishes follow them to their new home in Anacortes, where Mr. Abbott goes to take over the management of two moving picture houses, in the capital stock of which he recently invested. Ed has proven a successful manager of the Dream, the local house owned by the Abbott's, and will undoubetedly make a success in their new home.

"SHORE ACRES" COMING

There is no sweeter story of true New England life than James A. Herne's "Shore Acres." This masterpiece of Mr. Herne's has been adapted for the screen by Louis Reeves Harrison, who has retained all the heart interest and stirring scenes in the photo play that made "Shore Acres" such a big success on the legitimate stage. "Shore Acres" was produced by the All-Star Feature Corporation and released through the Alco Film Corporation and will be shown at the Dream Theater Tuesday, March 2.

EMERGENCY CREATED BY POLITICS

McArdle Bills Cause Tempest in the Legislative Teakettle; Court May Decide.

Olympia, Feb. 23.—When is an emergency? This has suddenly become a big question in the State of Washington, and, as a result of Governor Lister's veto of the McArdle bills, which contained the emergency clause provided for in the constitution, the people of the state will hear a great deal of it for some time.

The law books don't answer the question. Emergency, in the law, means almost anything; something unforseen or unexpected, or a sudden need, or any one of a number of things calling for immediate action.

In the constitution of this state any sudden issue involving the health, safety or peace of the people is fairly regarded as an emergency. An epidemic, threatened or existing, a riot or an insurrection, or a disastrous conflagration which has left many people in distress, or some sudden cataclysmic happening, which calls for the exercise of the supreme power of the state, constitutes an emergency within the meaning of the constitution.

Governor Lister's friends declare no such condition is now confronting the people of the state.

"There are no epidemics," said George B. Cotterill, of Seattle, in discussing the matter yesterday, "no disasters of any kind have come upon us. The entire state is in a condition of profound peace, and tranquility, and, except for political raiders, is reasonably safe. For these reasons among others, the governor, according to his veto message, could see no reason for the emergency clause in the bills vetoed by him, and which have been passed over his veto.

"But the matter does not end here. From indications some of those now in office, when an attempt is made to remove them under the proposed new order of things, will see fit to ask the courts whether the removal is a matter calling for exercise of the emergency powers of the legislative department of the government. They will want to know in what way their presence in office endangers the health, peace or safety of the people of the state. And beyond all this the people themselves will want to know at the next election why an emergency clause can be tacked to a bill the manifest purpose of whihh to take patronage from one department and give it to another."

From present indications the legislature will get thru with its work and adjourn one day earlier than the time limit for adjournment. The business of both houses is sufficiently well in hand to permit of this and many of the legislators favor it.

The apportionment of the road fund—which is the biggest melon the legislature will slice—will be held in obeyance until the closing days of the session. The disposition of the fund was held back for two reasons, the main one being that it was feared the apportionment would produce antagonism and bitterness in the smoothly working legislative organization. It is considered certain that many parts of the state will want a great deal more road money than in the nature of things can be apportioned in those directions. The statesmen who will make the apportionment also want plenty of time to investigate the needs of every district and hear all those asking for road help.

Word was received by the Public Service Commission this week that the number of jitneys in Seattle have increased over 100 in the past three weeks. There are now nearly 700 operating in that city.

"The jitney," said a Seattle public utility man, who was here yesterday, "is forcing a solution of the problem of rate-making. Ultimately it will put the science of rate-making on a zone basis, so far as urban interlacements are concerned. In and around urban centers there are well-defined zones of travel, which ought to be recognized as rate-makers. The jitney, I believe, will make these zones so many bases for rate making."

A bill that has a joker concealed in it, according to railroad men, is the one introduced by Representative Winston permitting cities to regulate passenger and freight carrying by other means than railroads.

Surprise and comment has resulted from the action of Speaker Connor who, on the birthday of Abraham Lincoln the other day, ordered the Sergeant-at-arms of the house to instruct the custodian of the capitol to put the flag on the building at half mast. Those criticising the act claim it gave an aspect of mourning to an occasion which had in it none of the elements of sorrow.

Secretary of State I. M. Howell is receiving scores of calls for the work entitled "The Beauties of the State of Washington," edited by Harry F. Giles, deputy commissioner of the state bureau of statistics and immigration. The book is one of the finest pieces of publicity on Washington ever published. It is intended for tourists and to attract sightseers. Subjects are handled mainly from a scenic vantage point, though commercial opportunities and agricultural possibilities are given noteworthy attention. The art work of the book is exceptional and makes it an attractive addition to any library.

Radical changes are foreshadowed in the present irrigation laws in an enactment now being considered. The law, as it now stands, favors enterprises of a doubtful character, and it is proposed to at least make it possible for legitimate irrigation companies to give themselves a good standing before the public. One of the prime features of the law is to give an irrigation company permission to apply to the Public Service Commission for what amounts to a certificate of good faith on the part of the promoters. This would give such company the confidence of the public, obviously, and draws a line between good and bad companies.

With the date for the filing of bills past the legislature has this session 425 bills less than were filed up to and including the fortieth day of the last session. At the session two years ago, 1,069 bills had been filed at the end of the fortieth day as compared with 644 at this session.

Among the novel and noteworthy bills filed is one by Senator Brown, thepurpose of which is to get the government of British Columbia to establish a three mile zone along the international boundry in which liquor may not be sold. With the Washington prohibition law going into effect bootlegging, it is declared, would be minimized by such a zone across the boundry.

Another bill that many speak of partaking of a freakish nature is one introduced by Senator Wells proposing a constitutional amendment to allow the governor to appoint supreme court judges for 18-year terms with retirement provision at the age of 70.

Due to newer demands for relief from the burdensome practices of some of the public utility corporations of the state, the work of the grain inspection department will likely be shifted to the state agricultural department, where it properly belongs.

As a solution of the reputed wheat shortage Senator Campbell introduced a bill asking congress to pass a law that no wheat shall be shipped out of the United States until the price is below $1 a bushel.

The biennial proposition to remove the state capital from Olympia was submitted this session by Senator Hutchinson, of Spokane. The bill provides that the capital shall be located somewhere within twenty miles of Seattle, and leaves the exact site to be determined by submission of the question to the people.

Abolishing direct initiative and making 15 per cent of voters signatures instead of 10 necessary for initiating laws to the legislature is the purport of House Bill No. 212. It is one of the sporadic upheavels against the initiative law, which, from indications, will be promptly squelched.

LUMBER INDUSTRY REVIVAL IN SIGHT

An immediate revival in the lumber industry in this state due to the opening of the Panama canal and to enlarged European markets was predicted last night by J. H. Bloedel, president of the Bloedel-Donovan Lumber Mills, in an address before the Seattle Association of Credit Men in the Butler Hotel. More than 250 representatives of banking and jobbing houses of Seattle were in attendance. Bloedel's topic was "Relation of the Lumber Industry to the Community."

He said in part:

"There are 450,000,000,000 feet of standing lumber in the state of Washington, or one-seventh of the total timbered wealth of the United States. At the rate of 4,000,000,000 feet a year, without taking into account the new growth, which would be considerable, it would take 100 years to exhaust the state's supply.

"We have had a great depression in the lumber business. The causes are many and cumulative. No one thing has been to blame. Overproduction was one great factor. The capacity of the mills of the Northwest, including British Columbia, Washington, Idaho, Oregon and the northern part of California, is approximately 13,000,000,000 feet a year. But the market has never at any time exceeded 9,500,000,000, and 30 per cent of the mill capacity therefore, has remained idle even during the good times

"Then rail rates were advanced 5 cents, which meant $1.65 a thousand feet and this hurt tremendously in competitive areas of our domestic trade. By domestic I mean all shipments to points within the United States, also to Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, or the Phillippines. Foreign business has amounted to only about one-thirteenth of the production of the Coast, and in 1914 the exports fell off to 508,000,000 feet; about 100,000,000 feet less than for 1913. In ten years there has only been an increase of 200,000,000 feet in foreign exports, while the domestic market has more than doubled. Thus will be seen how vitally the lumber industry was affected by an increase in freight rates.

"Another contributing cause was the phenomenal prosperity in 1906 and 1907. Bankers and credit men extending credit too freely in this period and many inexperienced men entered to later fail. Taxes were increased abnormally, practically quadrupled on standing timber, until it amounted to actual confiscation. Adverse legislation—the labor compensation act—further hurt us. And while there is no doubt that such a law is laudable, it placed a tremendous burden on the industry.

"Lumber substitutes have been a further factor in the diminution of our business. Twenty years ago 95 per cent of the materials used in the construction of a house was lumber. Today this has been reduced to 65 per cent. This problem of lumber substitutes has become so serious that a special meeting of representatives of forest producing industries in Chicago on February 24 and 25 to consider means for the exploitation of lumber.

"For the immediate future I see a revival in the lumber industry of Washington. I have been in the business for twenty-five years and have seen worse depressions than that which we are experiencing, yet prosperity has always returned. The Panama Canal has opened a new market on the Atlantic coast. The rate by water is actually one-half that by rail and between August 15, the opening date, to January 1, 30,000,000 feet of lumber was shipped from this coast thru the water-way. I have just returned after spending six weeks in study of the Atlantic Coast market, and on a conservative estimate I would say that between 150,000,000 feet of lumber or 250,000,000 feet will be shipped thru the canal in 1915. The Atlantic coast market will become as large as the Australian market.

"Then, England is now buying freely. The orders have been placed and the timber is now being cut for 35,000,000 feet of lumber from Puget Sound, the Columbia River and British Columbia for the United Kingdom. Ordinarily only 40,0000,000 or 45,000,000 feet have been shipped per annum to the British Empire."

LADIES MOOSE CIRCLE APPLIES FOR CHARTER

Washington's Birthday, February 22nd, falling on Monday this year, the regular meeting night of Port Angeles Lodge No 991, Loyal Order of Moose, was celebrated with a musical program, whist tournament and luncheon, the opportunity being also improved by application for a charter for a woman's auxiliary to the lodge.

A fine program of music was rendered by Theo. Jensen, Mr. Selleck and Mr. C. E. Miles, which was enjoyed by all. Then followed whist until ten forty-five. Very appropriate prizes were given, Mrs. P. J. Williams winning ladies first prize and Mr. Tom Bayton winning first gentleman's prize. Henry Machenheimer won the gentleman's consolation prize.

Following the cards a short address on "The Loyal Order of Moose" was given by L. M. Campbell, secretary of the Order. Judge G. V. Smith gave the speech of the evening on "Woman's Loyal Moose Circle." Hon. E. E. Fisher spoke on "Mooseheart," the Mecca of the Moose. Mr. Chas. Cox, worthy dictator, was chairman of the evening, presenting the prizes to the winners, after which a petition for charter to "Woman's Loyal Moose Circle" was circulated among the ladies and a large number of them signed signifying their intention to become a member of the Circle. Committees will be appointed to further circulate this petition among the wives and daughters of the Moose, with the aim in view of organizing a very strong Moose Circle here.

Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves, and the meeting closed with a fine lunch ample for all; the Moose were all feeding at mid-night.

The charter roll will be held open for several days, giving all an opportunity to join.

CLALLAM LUMBER FOR NEW YORK CITY

Lumber shipments from this city are being made to all parts of the world since the starting of the Earles mill here, cargoes being shipped to Australia, South Africa and Europe. The Grace steamer Cecelia, which completed loading a shipment of 1,400 tons of copper at Tacoma, shifted yesterday to Port Angeles, where she will load a big shipment for New York. This will be the first shipment made from this city to the nation's metropolis. It will, however, be followed by other shipments in the near future, as it is understood the mill has several big orders for the Atlantic seaboard for lumber.

MRS. ESTHER KOENIG DEPARTS THIS LIFE

On Friday, February 12, Mrs. Esther Koenig, wife of Dr. Carl Koenig of Forks, departed this life. Never was there such a gloom cast over the whole community. Mrs. Koenig had one of the most kind and cheerful dispositions it was possible for anyone to have. She was a granddaughter of Mrs. L. M. Ford, having been born at Forks 22 years ago. Mrs. Koenig always had a smile and a kind word and thought for everyone and had a cheerful disposition and was a loving and devoted wife. Everyone here will long remember the acts of kindness which she showed to everyone. Everything was done that human hands could do for another. A physician was brought in from Seattle and a trained nurse, but no power or skill could save her life. On Sunday she was laid to rest in the Forks Cemetery beside the little grave of her babe. The most beautiful flowers and floral pieces ever seen here were sent from Seattle from friends and relatives and also by the Rebekahs of which she was a member. Her bereaved husband and relatives have the sympathy of the entire community and her memory will long live everywhere she was known.

One precious to our hearts has gone,
The voice we love is stilled;
The place made vacant in the home
Can never more be filled.
Our Father in his wisdom called
The boon his love had given,
And tho on earth the body lies,
The soul is safe in Heaven.
Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ere wake to weep,
A calm and undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the last of foes.
Asleep in Jesus, far from thee,
Thy kindred and their graves may be,
But thine is still a blessed sleep,
From which none ere awake to weep.
Oh Esther, thy gentle voice is hushed
And thy warm, true hand is stilled
And on thy pale and peaceful face
Is resting death's cold chill.
Thy hands are clasped upon thy breast,
We have gazed upon thy marble brow
And in our inward hearts we know
We have no Esther now.
Farewell, Farewell,
Peaceful be thy silent rest,
Slumber sweetly, God knows best,
When to call thee home to rest.
Farewell, Farewell,
We must say our last Farewell,
'Till we meet beyond the river,
Happy those with thee forever.

A FRIEND.

All you have to do now to know the time of day or night is to look in the direction of the new Court House, the clock having been regulated and the striking apparatus adjusted. The dial is eight feet across but does not look it, and is well lighted. The hands can be seen at night about 1200 feet from the tower with the naked eye. The bell is quite musical, a duplicate, it is said of the clock and bell in the Colman dock tower, Seattle.

The Lincoln street sidewalk is completed on the west side to 7th street, and nearly so on the east side, including crossings. When it is completed to a good connection to Eighth street, this will be the most popular promenade and artery to the business section from the south, southeast and southwest in the city. Contractor Anderson expects to make a quick clean-up now.

BILLS PASSED DURING THE WEEK

Comparatively Small Number of Measures Were Introduced at This Session.

Olympia, Feb. 23.—Notwithstanding that on the last day for the introduction of bills, which was on the fortieth day of the session, there was a rush of bills and 128 were introduced by both houses in one day, the total number of bills for both houses is only 643, which is much below the record of previous sessions. In the house there were introduced only 261 bills and in the senate 382. The small number of measures at this session is due to the policy adopted by the legislature of having the proposed measures passed upon by the committees before being introduced and in many cases where the bills were not practical they were not introduced at all, so that the legislature at this session was not flooded with bills which had no chance of being passed and only took up the time of the legislators and caused expense to the state. At this session also, the number of bills by individual members asking for special appropriations were unusually small, and a large part of these were killed in the committees. Only about one-half million dollars was asked for in this way.

The passage of the two bills known as the McArdle bills, relating to the changes in the state land board and the state board of equalization over the vetoes of Governor Lister was the event of the week which occasioned the most interest. After the passage of the two bills over the veto of the governor the third McArdle bill reorganizing the state tax commission, placing some of the duties under the secretary of state and some under the public service commission was passed by the senate, so that now both houses have passed this bill, and it is now on its way to the governor.

During the week the Bowman bill, Wahkiakum county, providing for establishment of private preserves was passed; as was also the bill of Marshall and McCoy of Clarke county, to provide for interstate bridge franchises and the bill of Sly of Skamania, to permit the state to regulate interstate ferries The new fish code bill has passed the house along with the bill to abolish teachers' institutes. The bill to allow county commissioners to prohibit destructive traffic over certain highways, and the bill to set aside a part of the public highway for bicycles and pedestrians have passed the house. Speaker Conner has nad his bill passed which authorizes the use of certain harbor area for the construction of a bridge connecting the Indian Reservation with La Conner, and the house has also put thru the bill of Bradley of Ferry county, which makes Laurier on the Canadian border the northwestern terminal of the Inland Empire Railway, together with the bill of Urquhart of Grant which locates the North Central Highway thru Grant county. Rockhill of Columbia county has secured the passage in the house of his bill exempting bequests to schools and charitable institutions from taxation.

The senate has passed the bill amending the primary election law, the amendment eliminating the second choice provision has been rejected and the blanket ballot plan has been thrown out, but provision is made for the holding of party conventions. A bill to reserve the shores and bed of Lake Terrill in Whatcom county for the public, the bill to locate a trout hatchery at Mineral Lake in Lewis county, the Kleeb bill providing for the official naming of farms, the anti-insurance combine measure, the bill to prevent public officers from juggling funds, the bill regulating midwives and the bill providing for registration once in four years have passed the senate.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

A meeting of the High school boys was called to arrange for the base ball teams. There will be two Freshman teams as well as one team from each of the other classes.

Prof. Herbsman and Prof. Twitmyer were here visiting the school the first part of the week. Prof. Twitmyer, who is the state high school inspector, gave a short talk to the students Tuesday morning. At the request of many of those who had heard Prof. Herbsman before, he consented to talk a while Wednesday morning. He seems to be a general favorite with the high school and the Seniors wish to have him for their speaker at the graduation exercises.

The botany class have their herbarium now and are beginning their collection of flowers.

The chemistry classes have studied sodium with its compounds—baking soda, sal soda, lye and common salt; and potassium, with its compounds—caustic potash, saltpeter, potash and gunpowder.

State High School Inspector Twitmyer of Olympia, was here Tuesday, looking over the equipment at the school. He was called to this county by the application of the Sequim schools to be placed on the accredited list.

ANNOUNCEMENT

To the parents and all others interested in the schools. I wish to announce that at the coming school election to be held on Saturday, the 6th of March, I shall be a candidate for the three year term on the school board. If chosen, I shall give my very best efforts for the furtherance of all things pertaining to the welfare of the schools and pupils.

CLUB AND SOCIAL NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Pinyerd were agreeably surprised by their friends and neighbors last Monday evening, Feb. 22nd, the occasion being their twenty-eighth wedding anniversary. Cards and pleasant conversation were enjoyed until a late hour when dainty refreshments were served, after which all wishing the worthy couple another twenty-eight years of happiness adjourned to their homes and agreed that the surprise was a success.

Mrs. E. R. Gherke found herself hostess to a jolly party of neighbors and friends last Friday afternoon, who called to help her fittingly celebrate her birthday anniversary. After Mrs. Gherke had recovered from the surprise, cards and tables were produced and all took a hand until time to serve luncheon, an abundance of which had been provided by the guests. Mrs. Gherke was left a handsome salad bowl as a reminder of her birthday party. The guests were Mesdames James Warren, Mabel Wood, Jennie Clegg, Alice Hayne, Alice Gherke, Mary Peterson, Nellie McIvor, Mary Madison, Margaret Porter, Grace Dilling, Ed Shields, August Swanson, Dorn and Ed Eacrett.

A very pretty affair was the "Cupid Shower," given Thursday afternoon by Miss Ethel Welsh, compiimentary to her friend Miss Marion Clegg, whose approaching marriage it announced. The color scheme, daintly carried out in the decorations and refreshments, was pink and white. Little pink cupids were in evidence everywhere about the rooms and over the center table hung a large pink and white parasol, which served as a receptacle for the many pretty gifts showered upon the bride-to-be. Cards and contests furnished part of the afternoons entertainment. The cupid idea was carried out in both the cards and favors.

The W. L. C. met with Mrs. Lucetta Harding last Friday afternoon, and enjoyed an excellent program and a bountiful luncheon. The attendance was not as large as usual on account of sickness and unavoidable circumstances, only about fifteen members being present. Preparations are now being made for the Club anniversary March 5th. Unlike other years, the committee has decided to restrict the invitations to the husbands of the club members.

A pleasant meeting of the W. L. C. was held Friday, February 12, with Mrs. J. W. Hooker as hostess. Sixteen members responded to roll call with valentine verses, and as souvenirs of the day, each was presented with a red heart. An interesting program was given, including several piano solos given by Miss Porter. Very appetizing refreshments were served at the close of the program.

Mrs. F. E. Warner was hostess to the P. A. Reading Club last Friday afternoon. The program was on the Epic poems of the great European nations now involved in war and was prepared by Mrs. McGillivray. A very interesting paper ond readings and reviews of parts of the poems made an enjoyable program. The next hostess will be Mrs. R. J. White.

The usual pretty custom of entertaining the brides included in their membership, which the ladies of the Maccabees have established in their Hive, was participated in last Tuesday evening at Haning Hall, when a reception was held in honor of Mesdames Zella McLaughlin, Cora Faries and Maud Mullich. The entertainment consisted of music, short stories and elegant refreshments.

DR. BROWN IS NOW AN ANGELES BOOSTER

The impression I gained upon my first arrival in the harbor of Port Angeles thirty days ago, has been more intensified with my continued residence here. Before locating, I made an extensive trip over Clallam county, and I have seen no section of this county (or for that matter of this section of the northwest) that holds forth the promise of the rapid developments as this peninsular empire. To substantiate my belief that all will make good here, I am extending my offer of lower prices and better terms.

Especial attention given to children. If you mother's realized the importance of having your children's teeth in a sound and healthy condition, you would not delay a moment in having this very important duty attended to. In our large eastern cities it is compulsory and dentists visit the schools at regular intervals and examine and keep the teeth and mouth sweet and clean, which is impossible with bad teeth. The ordinary person cannot realize the importance of this or the many ailments arising from neglect of the childs teeth. Would you believe it, if I were to tell you (which I am about to do) that it has been demonstrated beyond a boubt that bad teeth has been the cause of the mental state of the child, cause of his backwardness in his studies and if taken care of in time the expense is a trifle.

Send or bring your children in. I will give an examination free to all children as is my custom in general practice. The care of children has been my study. They are my friends. Let your children's teeth know it is a pleasure instead of otherwise and as a matter of education looking to their future welfare.

Dental work will be given to working people on an installment basis.

My prices will be the same as my Seattle office, which is about one-half of what you have been paying.

Prices: Gold crowns, $5.00; Porcelain crowns, $5.00; Gold alloy filling, $1.00; Porcelain fillings from $1.00, up; Cement fillings, 50 cents. Absolutely painless extracting. Office open Sunday and evenings for the benefit of the working people. DR. BROWN, office over Post Office.

SEPARATE SKIRTS.

NEW SKIRT AND COAT.

The outfit illustrated here is a convenient one for the outdoor girl. It includes one of the new flaring skirts with ample fullness, the skirt being fashioned with the hip yoke and a broad stitched hem. Worn with separate blouses, to suit the fancy, skirts of this type are featured for spring. With this skirt is donned a lightweight wrap of cotton corduroy. It has the high waist line and the directoire collar trimmed with self covered buttons. The natty little hat of straw is turned up very much at one side and adorned with a little feather fancy.

THE LINEN GOWN.

Models That Forecast the Summer Modes For This Type of Gown.

No summer season can be considered altogether complete in a sartorial sense without linen. Linen's great drawback is that it wrinkles easily, but even this defect cannot detract from the high estimation in which it is held by the majority of women. For the Palm Beach costume heavy white linen is combined with embroidered linen, and, following the fashion established last year, there are many attractive examples of colored linen frocks and suits.

A charming dress included in the wardrobe of a belle departing for southern resorts was made of light blue linen of medium weight. It exploited a skirt with a deep yoke, to which was hung the plaited lower section. These plaits had a one inch heading, and they were pressed flatly from top to bottom.

The blouse was fastened with black satin buttons quite to the throat, where there appeared a choker of soft white linen covered with embroideries. The long sleeves had narrow cuffs of the embroidered linen, and the essential belt was introduced in one of black patent leather.

To go with this dress was a hat of fine white straw, faced with black satin. Its shape inclined to poke outlines, turned up at the back to show a narrow bandeau of pin roses.

For Spring Holidays.

Such bewildering assortments of place cards, favors and table decorations are to be found in the shops that the hostess need not lack for suggestions along these lines. Flags, of course, predominate as a decoration for the Lincoln day as well as the Washington birthday celebrations, while the crimson heart holds its own as a suggestion for St. Valentine's day, and nothing yet has been discovered which can take the place of the shamrock and harp as typical of St. Patrick's day.

For the hostess, however, who is striving to find something original one would suggest as a centerpiece for the Lincoln day table a huge bunch of cotton bolls, which are in themselves very dainty and pretty and suggestive of the southland. The whole plan of decoration may be carried out along these lines, using miniature colored dolls, log cabins, banjos, etc.

Then a menu card might be arranged naming the different dishes after the battles of the civil war.

Scheme For Card Party.

At a card party of six tables the hostess assigned the table by colors in this way: She had her little daughter distribute four flowers of a kind, and each table had a vase of flowers in the center of the kind given to the guests.

For instance, four guests received red roses, and they went to the table having the vase of red roses in the center. The four pink roses found their places, the four yellow and the four pink tulips and the four yellow, etc.

Scores were kept, as usual, on flower decorated cards, and at the end of the game the vases and flowers were awarded as prizes. They were removed from the table during the game. One would suggest baskets instead of vases, as they are somewhat newer and much in favor as prizes, or some of the very attractive flower holders might be used.

Middy Blouses.

It may not be amiss to speak of the middy blouses which give such great freedom of movement to the arms for the girl who likes to row or play tennis or golf. For spring there are middies of biscuit color linens, as well as the more familiar sort of white, and the collar and sleeve trimmings may be of any preferred contrasting color. Rather distinctive are the models with hand embroidered insignia on sleeve and shield.

Pongees In Neutral Tones.

The great vogue of putty and sand tones has been responsible for the revival of pongee, which has not been in good fashion repute for several seasons. Both suits and dresses are being made of that serviceable fabric, mostly in tailored or demi tailored effects. Of course this means that the motor coat of pongee will come in for a renewed share of attention.

MILLINERY MODES.

Real metal roses are found on millinery.

Black takes the lead among ostrich plumes.

Glass flowers and fruit appear on some hats.

It is rumored that the spring millinery will be a flat contradiction of the jaunty, the dashing and the military note.

Hats wreathed with flowers, with flapping brims, hats distinctly picturesque, are to run in opposition to the present fashions.

SHACKLETON'S CIGAR.

And Why the Ship's Doctor Could Not Appreciate It.

Sir Ernest Shackleton was once a very junior officer on a passenger boat, and it happened that on one voyage Lord Rothschild was a passenger. He became quite friendly with the young "fourth" and one evening gave him a magnificent cigar. Shackleton knew better than to smoke that cigar. He wrapped it up in silver paper and a silk handkerchief and kept it as a cherished memento of his friendship with the great man.

On subsequent voyages he developed a habit of exhibiting his treasure to favored lady passengers, recounting at the same time how he and Lord Rothschild had been "quite pally, you know." The chief engineer, a dour old Scotsman, thought he would teach him a lesson, so he conspired with the doctor to steal the cigar and replace it with one of a much inferior kind—in fact, with a weed that had cost him twopence at the last port. They wrapped the impostor carefully in the silver paper and in the silk handkerchief, and they bore the real Rothschild smoke to the chief's cabin.

With a five shilling cigar in their possession for the first time in their lives they found it difficult to decide who should have the smoking of it, and so they tossed a coin. The doctor won and bore his prize off in malicious triumph to his own room, there to enjoy it in solitary state. His triumph was, however, short lived, for in five minutes he was back again with the chief, woefully countenanced and swearing volubly. The Rothschild cigar was absolutely rotten, even worse than the one they had left in its place.

Somebody had been there before them!—Chicago Herald.

Faithfulness.

He who betrays another's secret because he has quarreled with him was never worthy of the sacred name of friend. A breach of kindness on one side will not justify a breach of trust on the other.—Emerson.

Eccentric Count Bertrand.

Count Bertrand, who lived in Paris, was a very eccentric man, and to one of his eccentricities he ascribed his long life. Once a year he would betake himself to bed and stay there for three months. On these occasions he would see no one but his servant who brought him his meals, and even him he forbade to speak. Just before the Germans began the siege of Paris the count went to bed, and the servant, true to his injunctions, said nothing of the events going on around him. One day the bread proved so bad the count demanded an explanation, whereby, of course, he learned that Paris was encompassed by the enemy. Springing out of bed, the count paced the floor, repeating, "What should a Bertrand do under such circumstances?" Suddenly he stopped, exclaiming:

"He should go to bed!" and to bed he went and stayed there until the siege was over.

Method In Everything.

A physician who worthily bears a distinguished name occupies an old mansion in the suburbs of Boston. His aunt, who lives with him, tells a laughable story, illustrating his calmness of manner and love of method.

Not long ago his aunt tiptoed into his room on the second floor some time after midnight and told him she thought there were burglars in the house. The doctor attired himself in his dressing robe and went downstairs.

In the rear hall he encountered a tough looking man trying to open a door that led into the back yard. The burglar had successfully unlocked the door and was pulling at it with all his strength. The doctor, seeing the robber's predicament, called to him:

"It doesn't open that way, you idiot! It slides back!"—National Monthly.

The Rib.

At a luncheon in New York on one occasion Dr. Lyman Abbott sat beside a suffragist, who harangued him on the importance of woman.

Dr. Abbott endured the young lady's eloquence till the coming of the coffee. Then he ventured to say mildly:

"The importance of woman—the importance of woman. I have heard nothing but 'the importance of woman' for the last hour. Yet surely Scripture teaches us that woman is but a side issue!"

Pretty Dilapidated.

On a dilapidated narrow gauge railroad in a certain state a traveler was struck with the general air of hopelessness of the entire country. Run down farms, fences falling to pieces and houses unpainted and dismal were seen as mile after mile was reeled off. Finally a countryman got on, and the two fell into conversation. "Country around here looks fearfully dilapidated," remarked the traveler. "Yaas, but jest wait an' ye'll see sumpin' wuss," replied the countryman. The train stopped. They looked out and saw a rail missing ahead. The entire train crew clambered out, crowbars in hand, proceeded leisurely to the rear of the train and in due time loosened a rail and carried it forward. It was spiked into position, and the train proceeded. "Somebody stole a rail?" asked the traveler. "Yaas, abaout twenty year ago, I reckon. Evah since they hain't nobody bought a new one. When the train comes back they've gotter stop an' tear up a rail behind 'em. Ain't that the dilapidatenest thing ye ever see, stranger?"

In Hot Water.

"Typographical errors," said a writer, "are continually cropping up. I called for a magazine editor the other day to take him out to luncheon. As he was getting gratefully into his coat a man entered.

"'Do you read your magazine?' the man asked.

"'I do,' replied the editor.

"'Have you read the new number, the one that came out yesterday?'

"'I have.'

"'Have you read my poem, "To Gabrielle," on page 117?'

"'N-no.'

"'No! Well, in that poem I wrote the line, "I love you better than I love my life."'

"'A neat line—neat and well turned,' said the editor soothingly.

"'And one of the professional humorists of your composing room set it up to read, "I love you better than I love my wife."'

"'How—er'—

"'Than my wife—precisely that. And my wife knows nothing of composing room comedy, and she thinks the line was printed exactly as I wrote it.'"

Witty Foreman.

The foreman of a jury which sat in a New England courtroom possessed a ready wit that served him well in an encounter with a judge of brilliant attainments.

The judge, although a man of abrupt speech and manner, possessed a quick sense of humor. The foreman was late one day, only a few minutes late, but even that was sufficient to irritate his honor, as he afterward owned.

"I overslept, your honor," said the foreman, with due meekness, as he took his seat.

"Fine him," said the judge testily.

"May it please your honor," said the foreman quickly, "I did not dream of that."

"Remit the fine," said the judge, hiding his mouth with his hand for a moment, but his eyes betrayed him for all that.—Case and Comment.

PLAN AIR RACE OVER CONTINENT

Score of Entries Expected In Transcontinental Aeroplane Contest First Week In July—Believed That Winner Will Make 3,500 Miles of Course In Close to Week.

Plans have been drawn up by representatives of the Aero Club of America and the Panama-Pacific exposition to hold the transcontinental aeroplane race the first week in July.

A total of $250,000 in prize money is expected and entries of a score of aviators, a third of them to fly from each of the three starting points selected—New York, Boston and Washington. The Aero club members are determined to make the flight a supreme test of aviation in America.

Each contestant will be required to carry a passenger to further prove the practicability of aviation, and a special prize for efficiency is expected to be offered by a well known New Yorker.

The exposition is expected to put up $100,000 for the race and the rest of the $250,000 is hoped to be raised by the Chambers of Commerce in various cities that bid as stopping places. An entry representing the city of Detroit already is being considered, it was said.

Possible Routes Suggested.

The routes from the three cities may be totally different or they may converge in the middle west. One of the proposed routes from Boston would take the aviators that start there along the great lakes and then through Canada along the Canadian Pacific railway.

The New York flyers may go to Chicago and then over the lines of the Union Pacific. The Washington bird men may be sent over the cotton states to New Orleans and then over the Sunset route.

Distances will be compensated for by required stops at specified places. In the Great Britain circuit race it was compulsory for the contestants to rest for twelve hours during the course of the contest, and rests will be made compulsory in the coming race. Walter Brock, who won the Manchester (England) to Paris race, sent word that the aviators could not be expected to make more than 375 miles a day. It is figured by the Aero club's experts that if the routes are about 3,500 miles the winner will make it in close to a week.

Samuel S. Pierce, the Bleriot instructor, who started the aviation corps for the Servian army, sent on data for the fliers about the Rockies which he collected while living in Denver.

General Plan Agreed On.

Thomas M. Moore, commissioner general of the Panama-Pacific exposition in the Atlantic states, held a conference with Alan R. Hawley, president of the Aero club, and Henry Woodhouse of the board of governors of the club, and agreed on a general plan for the race. The club's representatives promised to endeavor to obtain the cooperation of the twenty-five aero clubs in other parts of the country associated with the Aero Club of America.

Glenn H. Curtiss called at the club and said he could be counted upon to have some of his fliers in the contest. Maximilian Schmitt of Paterson, whose plane won the Fourth of July race, also said he would be glad to have an entry. J. A. D. McCurdy, the aviator, volunteered his services to work out practical details. Captain Thomas Baldwin also offered his.

Pierce, with W. Leonard Bonney, another aviator, mapped out a route from Washington that would take the aviators through Parkersburg, W. Va.; Cincinnati, St. Louis, Springfield, Mo.; Tulsa, Okla.; Childress, Tex.; Carlsbad, N. M.; Tucson, Ariz.; Yuma, Cal. and Los Angeles. They said they considered it a favorable one to flying.

SEES WORLD PHONE SOON.

Morton E. Westlake Sure Talk With Europe Is Near.

It will take only a few years before New York and all the cities of this country are in communication with Europe by telephone, it was declared by Morton E. Westlake, commercial superintendent of the Cincinnati Suburban Telephone company.

"I have the assurance of J. J. Carty, chief engineer, who directed the great work of opening up transcontinental communication by phone," said Mr. Westlake, "that it will be only a few years before the whole world is encircled by telephone wires and will be able to communicate with Paris or London without any more effort than we now talk to San Francisco. But when we have this service we will have to have a universal telephone language," he added.

No Graduations at Princeton Without Passing Water Test.

Unless the students at Princeton university learn to swim before graduation several members of this year's class will not receive their diplomas. A regulation made by the faculty in 1911 required students to test in swimming.

This regulation has not been carried out, but this year it is the intention of the university authorities to see that it is put into effect. Several members of the senior class have not as yet passed the test, which is to swim 200 yards, showing a mastery of two strokes.

KAISER SETS EXAMPLE OF THE SIMPLE LIFE.

Cakes, White Bread and Luxuries Banished From His Table.

The kaiser and kaiserin are cutting down the expenses of the imperial household and teaching the German people a lesson in frugality. The standard of meals at court appears to be no higher than that of many private families in the west end of Berlin. This, at any rate, is the statement published in the German papers and given out officially.

The kaiser's chef has had no opportunity of displaying his inventive genius for new dishes since the outbreak of the war. Very few guests have been entertained at the palace, and the kaiserin has placed a ban on table delicacies. The kaiser ordered a trial meal with "war bread" last November, and since then he has ordered that it be eaten at every meal. A few weeks ago it was placed on the menu at great headquarters, where it is said it was greatly appreciated by the kaiser himself.

The use of white bread for the imperial breakfast table was stopped simultaneously with the prohibition in Berlin of all kinds of night baking. No fresh loaves are baked overnight at the palace, but every morning the court baker delivers a quantity of war bread sufficient for the next day's meals. This is warmed up for the empress and the members of the court at each meal.

The kaiser's breakfast, when he eats it in Berlin, is simple, consisting of an egg, tea or coffee and war bread. Soup is served at 1 o'clock, and this is followed by a plate of meat or vegetables, but nothing else. The evening meal is less frugal. Potatoes are served in their skins, which are also eaten, says the Vossische Zeitung, and the kaiser permits both meat and vegetables to be taken at this meal. The kaiserin's choice is generally a slice of cold meat.

Both at the front and in the palace in Berlin the kaiser lives with Spartan simplicity. His choice is restricted to thick soup containing chopped meat.

The kaiserin visits the kitchen every day, giving orders and superintending the cooking. "One cannot live sumptuously while our brave soldiers in the trenches are making the greatest sacrifices," she is reported to have said.

Cakes, whipped cream and other luxuries are forbidden at court. When the children of the crown prince and other members of the imperial family are invited to afternoon tea a few crackers appear on the table, and even if the crown princess or the Duchess of Brunswick is a guest at dinner no extra dish is added to the simple menu.

WAR HORSE'S BRIEF LIFE.

Twenty days is the average life of a horse during the present war, according to an American horse contractor now in London. But the life of a horse nevertheless, he declares, is twice as long as that of a motor vehicle. The contractor said:

"Some horses last longer than twenty days, but they're exceptions, for the fearful condition of the roads puts a horse out of commission in less than three weeks. Motor vehicles are subjected to terrific wear as a result of bad roads and heavy loads. At the end of ten days the average motor lorrie is ready for rebuilding and often for the scrap heap."

The computation is based on risks from explosives also.

PRIZE RELIGIOUS ESSAY.

Will Be Offered In Connection With Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Through the generosity of a resident of California and in connection with the Panama-Pacific International exposition the National Education association is able to offer a prize of $1,000 for the best essay on "The Essential Place of Religion In Education, With an Outline of a Plan For Introducing Religious Teaching Into the Public Schools."

Religion is to be defined in a way not to run counter to the creeds of Protestant, Roman Catholic or Jew. The essential points to be observed are: "A heavenly Father, who holds nature and man alike in the hollow of his hand;" the commandment of Hillel and Jesus of Nazareth, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself;" the high ethical teachings and spirit of service and sacrifice indicated in the Sermon on the Mount.

Notice of intention to file an essay must be given the secretary of the association by April 1, 1915. Essays will be limited to 10,000 words and must be in the possession of the secretary by June 1, 1915. Six typewritten copies must be furnished in order that the preliminary reading may be done independently.

The right is reserved by the association to publish not only the prize essay, but any others which may be submitted in competition, copyright privileges to be vested in the association for all such.

ONE of the queerest things about some people is that they will not follow GOOD ADVICE when they KNOW they OUGHT TO. Perhaps we are all more or less that way. All the wise men of all ages have urged their fellow beings to PUT AWAY SOMETHING for a RAINY DAY. BEAUTIFUL MOUNTAIN INN BURNS TO GROUND

Mountain Inn, halfway between this city and Lake Crescent, was burned to the ground on Tuesday afternoon of this week. The proprietor, Mr. Sisson, had built a fire in a heating stove and stepped out into the yard for a few moments. When he again entered the house he saw nothing but a mass of flames leaping in every direction. No help was at hand and no water could be had to stop the blaze. Only a few skins, telephone and the top of a piano were saved from the ravages of the fire.

EVERYBODY BOOSTS IN PORT ANGELES

T. T. Aldwell Also Boosts in Seattle or Wherever He Meets Those Who "Want to Know."

"There isn't a single pessimist to be found within the city of Port Angeles and if it is true that optimism spells opportunity this busy little community is in line for real prosperity. This is the opinion voiced by Thomas T. Aldwell, who is in the city today from Angeles and who believes in taking time from his business dutics to boost a little now and then," says the Seattle Times.

"Aldwell sees a number of things that lead him to the conclusion that Port Angeles is going to. be very busy from now on. For one thing the Port Angeles-Port Townsend railroad line will completed by June of this year. The grading is completed to Discovery to a connection with the Port Townsend & Southern. The ties are delivered along the right of way and the rails are in Port Angeles. It is announced by the contractors engaged in the work that the line will be ready for operation by June at the latest.

"Another thing that is filling the bosoms of the Port Angeles people with joy is the recent announcement of James S. Goldsmith and George F. Russell, two prominent Seattle men, that they have become interested in a business way in Port Angeles enterprises that promises big things for the future.

"Building is on the boom in Angeles, also, says Aldwell. W. C. Nelson is laying the foundation for a concrete motion picture theater and the concrete building being erected for Warren Morse is practically completed. In addition to this a number of important street improvements are either actually under way or are being considered."

sleep. All thru his address he was very particular to stick closely to official and historical facts and not to let his own opinions creep in. He stated as the foundations of the troubles the Balkan disturbances and anxiety of the different great powers to gain a foothold there and the old trouble between Germany and France over Alsace-Lorraine.

It is impossible for us to give even a brief review of the lecture, but we are glad to be able to present the closing summary, which will give our readers food for thought, and an idea of what they missed by not hearing the whole lecture.

CAUSES OF THE WAR

Human vanity and greed; plain lack of love of man for fellow men; commercialism run mad, and an equally insane nationalism. Dynastic policies have played a part—less, however, than has been generally supposed, for this is a war of the nations and Czar and Kaiser stand to rise or fall with their respective peoples, while France is a republic. Militarism is still another cause, whether as a system in application, or as supported by philosophic argument; militarism which, I hope, will be utterly destroyed wherever it is found, and I do not consider it an exclusively German possession. Territorial aggrandisement, especially in which England, Germany and Russia are the chief competitors. Race hatreds, too, are there: Slav verses Teuton, Latin verses Teuton, and today, most deadly of all, Saxon versus Anglo-Saxon; and these hatreds are unfortunately combined with exactly such race problems of a territorial and commercial nature as give these passions fullest play. The non-coincidence of racial and political boundaries is a fertile cause of war, and may continue to be so until removed by wise political action at the close of the war and by the healing processes of time. Then, finally, there is the chief efficient cause: The rigidity of the European states-system, which converted Europe into one vast bowling alley. The ball was Austria's attack on Servia; Servia, the first pin hit, touched Russia; Germany, France and Russia felt the shock, and the European states-system fell in absolute collapse.

The issues of the conflict are incalculable and illimitable, and yet are to be determined as the result of brute force. Twentieth century science, raised to the nth power of efficiency and devoted, with deliberation, to the extinction of the fairest portions of the human race. Certainly this ought to be a war against all future wars.

The dinner served by the ladies of the church was exceptionally good, the variety of vegetables particularly appealing to the men, who commented most favorably on the good cooks in the Ladies' Aid. The tables were each centered with large bouquets of pussy-willows, with tiny branches serving as favors at each plate. The names of a number of our new business men were presented for membership and duly elected.

This organization has been of material benefit to the town and we are glad to see it growing and keeping up the interest and enthusiasm of its members.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH ENTERTAINS VISITORS

Mr. Bailey, state superintendent Congregational Sunday schools, and Rev. King of the Plymouth Congregatinal church of Seattle, visited Port Angeles Wednesday of this week, holding meetings at the Congregational church both afternoon and evening. At the evening service most excellent addresses were given by both gentlemen. One of the strong points brought out by Mr. King, was the great part the churches and religion had played in education. His talk was thoroughly practical, and was listened to with a great deal of interest. Before making his address, Mr. King said he could not refrain from speaking about our little church here, as the artistic harmony shown in its interior finish and furnishing had particularly appealed to him and he said he had seldom visited a church which had seemed so restful and satisfying.
