WHICH WAY TO LAKE OZETTE?

Commissioners Decide to Build Thru to Clallam Bay, Beginning at Quillayute.

Port Angeles was privileged to entertain two delegations of West End people this week, Tuesday, each of whom came to present petitions and arguments to the Board of County Commissioners in favor of that route to Lake Ozette which would give their respective sections an outlet.

The members of the Board had tacitly agreed, when sitting as a Board of Equalization last fall, to an appropriation of $20,000 for initial work on a road to Lake Ozette, this small sum being determined upon in response to the universal demand of the West End people for decreased taxation. The question as to the particular route to be chosen was not brought up at the time, nor has it since been considered by the members of the Board, who were awaiting a preliminary report from Engineer R. W. Remp, as to the feasibility of the routes and their respective value to the community or communities to be served. As one result of Mr. Remp's trip, the people along the Hoko river trail, including the Boes, Klaboes, Borseths and the Danielsons, supported, naturally enough, by the Clallam Bay people, petition for the adoption of the route from Clallam Bay to the northeast end of the lake, while the people of Forks and Quillayute back up the Dicky river ranchers in their application for the expenditure of the $20,000 on a road in to the lake from the south. Engineer Remp had only arrived in town a few hours before the meeting of the Board, and had not had time to prepare his report, and the Board was consequently in no position to consider the matter. They refused to be "rushed off their feet" in making promises which they might not be able to carry out, and promised the West End people that they would give the matter a fair and impartial consideration.

Wednesday morning the Board, after further discussion with Engineer Remp, unanimously decided to build from Quillayute, and instructed the engineer to at once commence a survey following the best route to Ozette, the intention being to build down the Hoko later.

The Quillayute people were represented by Joseph Marsh, L. F. Sands, Henry Marshall and John Reed, while Messrs. Rudisile, Fairservice and Ole Boe comprised the delegation from Clallam. The petition presented by the latter was read first and Mr. Boe, speaking thereon, said that he had lived in the Hoko country for 24 years, paying his taxes and developing a dairy farm in the hope that some day he might have a county road. Utilizing such road as there is, thirteen miles of new road would give him an outlet. He would be 17 miles from Clallam, but over 100 from a market, should he be compelled to go around by Quillayute.

Mr. Fairservice said it was not a question of the difference in distance between Lake Ozette and Clallam or Forks. What these people want is a market, and Forks is not a market for them. It would be 17 miles to Clallam and 27 to Forks; these people are in the dairying business and there is a limit to the distance a man can take cream; besides, the price of cream is three cents less at Forks.

Commissioner Hansen said he would like to provide a general outlet for all concerned, not only those who are living there now, but also those who own bottom land and say they would return to their homes and put in dairy farms could they get to them. He would also take into consideration the cost and money available for the work.

L. T. Sands said it was not their idea to build from Quillayute to Ozette, but to build up the Dicky river valley, such route not only giving relief to settlers now in there, but

DIVIDENDS IN KINDNESS

If you see a man, woman or child who seems to be searching for something without success, courteously offer them your assistance. Everyone in our town will be a sharer in the dividends that will accrue through your kindness.

COMPLETION OF MORSE BLOCK IN FEW DAYS

The completion of the Warren Morse building is being watched with a great deal of interest and admiration. It will be one of the city's greatest improvements and a block any city might be proud of. So far, Mr. Morse has signed up contracts for the Citizens National Bank on the corner, Mrs. Mason's Music House and Miss Nason, exclusive ladies and childrens line of suits, coats and millinery. All the other rooms on the lower floor have been spoken for but the contracts not yet signed. A number of the offices have been spoken for and doubtless will all be rented by the time the building is completed and ready for occupancy, as they will probably be the finest office rooms in the city. Charles Owen, the plumber, has secured the contract for installing the heating and plumbing and both work and materials will be first class.

PARENT-TEACHERS' MONDAY EVENING

A Social Gathering with Class Demonstrations; Will Discuss School- and Playgrounds.

The attention of the parents and all persons interested in our schools is called to the meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association next Monday evening at the H. S. Auditorium. The meeting will be in the nature of a social gathering and the committee is arranging for a very novel and interesting program. A special invitation is extended to the H. S. pupils to attend.

Musical numbers will be given by some of the H. S. pupils under Miss Porter's direction, an amusing and entertaining reading will be given by Miss Julia Wiggins, a great favorite with Port Angeles audiences, and then the parents will be given an opportunity to see some of the practical work of the domestic science class under Miss Pazandak, and some manual training work by Mr. Regneir's boys and a class demonstration in chemistry at the labratory under Mr. Failor.

The subject of how to beautify and improve the school grounds and of how best to make an ideal play ground for the little children will come up for discussion in which all who wish may participate.

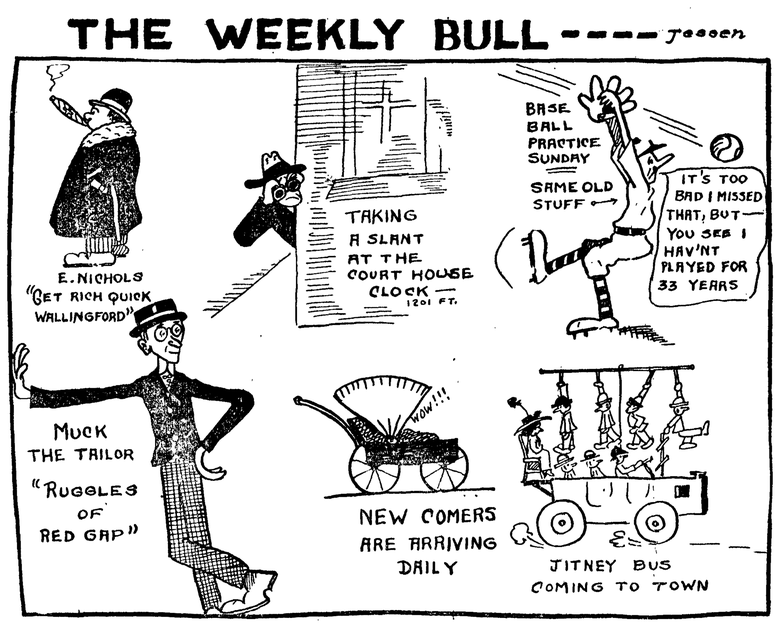
Light refreshments will be served during the evening and a pleasant and profitable evening is promised all who attend. If you are interested in the schools, see to it that you do not miss this meeting.

FRUIT AND PRODUCE HOUSE LOCATES BRANCH HERE

The Pacific Fruit and Produce Co., with headquarters at Portland, and with branch stores and agents all thru the Northwest, have decided that Port Angeles is large enough to support such an institution and have put Mr. F. A. Stiles in charge. He will have his offices for the present with his son in the City Fish Market. This company does a wholesale business only and handle all kinds of fresh fruit, vegetables, nuts, etc. Mr. Stiles says he feels encouraged already with the good orders he has received from the local merchants and he hopes to be able to build up a nice business. Mrs. Stiles and the children will return to Angeles sometime in June.

CAME RIGHT THRU WITHOUT QUESTION

"To Paper containing Most Home News, Port Angeles, Washington," is the way Hans Nelson of Minneapolis, Minnesota, addressed the Olympic-Leader—and the letter came right thru without any question.



MATHEWSON DRUG STORE ON FIRST AND LAUREL

Willis Mathewson has leased the present location of the Citizens National Bank and will move his branch drug store at the Olympic Hotel into the building as soon as vacated by the bank and remodeled to conform to the requirements of an up-to-date drug store. Mr. Mathewson expects to be ready to open up this new store about May first, but will even then still continue to hold forth in his present location, which has been occupied as a drug store for the last twenty years.

MILLINERY EXPERT RETURNS WITH FASHIONS

Leader Department Store Leads in Early Showing of Spring Millinery Goods.

Mrs. Anna McNeil, in charge of the millinery section of the Leader Department store, returned from Seattle the first of the week and now has her beautiful line of spring and summer hats on display. Mrs. McNeil has been working in one of the large wholesale houses in Seattle for the past two months and has had the advantage of trimming under the cleverest of eastern trimmers and designers. This advantage, coupled with the years of experience and natural artistic ability, places her in the front rank of milliners. There is no town of this size in the state can boast of a more complete or up-to-date stock of hats, trimmings, and millinery accessories, or of a better milliner.

ALL BIDS REJECTED ON CLALLAM ROAD

Over six thousand dollars for the construction of less than a mile, or 4800 feet to be exact, of road out of Clallam on the Clallam-Forks Highway, being considered to be too high by the Board of County Commissioners, all six bids submitted were rejected, in accordance with the terms of the call reserving that right, and the work will be done by the road supervisor under direction of the county engineer. The bids were: Charles Welker, $6,871.40; Louis Hahn, $10,219; Jas. S. Anderson, $6,222.19; Govan & Co., $6,871.66; Van Brunt & Myers, $6,599; R. O. Wahlgren, $6,879.95; that of James S. Anderson, while higher than the engineer's estimate, being the lowest bid received.

SCIENCE READING ROOM MOVED

The Christian Science Reading Room has been moved from the Morse Block to the Aldwell Block, room No. 5, on the second floor. These rooms are open to the public daily except Sunday and legal holidays from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Christian Science literature is furnished for free distribution and for sale.

LADY LOST IN ELWHA WOODS

Spent the Night Out, Without a Fire, while Sheriff and Ranchers Scoured the Brush.

Lost in the woods for 24 hours, part of the time within a quarter of a mile of the main road, while all the neighbors, the sheriff and a posse of assistants were searching for her, was the experience of Miss Jones, a stenographer from Seattle, who arrived at the Tom Lauridsen place on the Elwha Monday morning and became lost while taking a walk the next morning.

Miss Jones was suffering from a nervous breakdown as the result of over work and came to the Lauridsen's for a change and rest, learning of them thru an intimate friend of the Lauridsens.

She didn't seem contented after arriving and early Tuesday morning phoned for Clay Wolverton to come for her with his car about eleven, as she wanted to go back to Seattle. She dressed already to leave and told Mrs. Lauridsen she was going for a little walk.

The auto came and waited and waited, but she didn't return. They went in search of her and called and called, but getting no response, finally phoned for Sheriff Bishop. He thought from her tracks she must have gone to the lakes and an automobile was sent to investigate but no trace of her could be found. A search was made all thru the woods to no avail and darkness coming on, they gave it up until morning, when the sheriff and posse went out to continue the search. As she had acted strangely, grave fears were felt that she might have committed suicide. Her sister was telegraphed for and arrived Wednesday morning in company with a friend, Miss Pauline Hill.

About 10:30 her gold bracelet was found by Mr. Bert Herrick and continuing a little farther on the trail, he discovered Miss Jones climbing over a log. She didn't seem startled when he spoke to her and was very calm as she told him how she had gotten lost and wandered around all Tuesday afternoon, and when, late at night, tired out and discouraged, she had lain down in a bed of ferns, gone to sleep and slept soundly in spite of the cold, and she had been wandering around all morning again in search of the road. She seemed calm and all right until she saw her sister in the road, when they came out of the woods, then she collapsed. She was taken to Lauridsen's and after getting something to eat and thoroughly warmed, they came to town and took the three o'clock boat for Seattle. Other than being stiff and lame she showed no bad results from her long exposure to cold and hunger when she left Angeles; but her sister and friend were very much worried and frightened.

In her scramble thru the brush and woods Miss Jones lost her hat, umbrella, purse and bracelet and only the latter was found.

Sheriff Bishop wishes to express his appreciation and thanks to all those who so kindly assisted in the search.

SEATTLE AUTO CLUB TO VISIT MORA

Vice-President Aldwell reported, at the meeting of the Commercial Club Monday night, it to be the intention of the Seattle Automobile Club to take a trip over the Olympic Highway this summer, spending several days in camp at Mora, or at La Push, on the ocean beach. Secretary Teck was directed to offer the facilities and assistance of the Commercial Club toward making a success of the proposed tour.

Upon suggestion by County Superintendent Geisness, five delegates, Dr. McGillivray, G. M. Lauridsen, Guy Dann, B. N. Phillips and Albert Goldwater, were appointed to attend the annual teachers' institute to be held March 31st to April 2nd. Dr. McGillivray was also appointed to act as a member of a joint committee to arrange for a "health meeting," to be held April 1st, under direction of Dr. Eugene R. Kelley.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY THINKS OF SUMMER

They Ask, "What Part Are We, as a Civic Organization, to Take Up, In Making Clean City.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Commercial Club is to be held at the Commercial Club rooms next Tuesday afternoon, March 9, at 2:30.

What part are we as a civic organization, to take in cleaning up and beautifying Port Angeles?. There is lots to be done and we need assistance and suggestions. Every member is asked to be present and to bring a new member with her. It is not too early to lay plans for the annual Flower Show to be held in June or July, and it will come up for due consideration and discussion. The officers would appreciate it if all members would come prepared to pay up their dues before the new Auxiliary year in April, when election of officers will be held.

Final plans for the St. Patrick's Ball to be given the evening of March 17, will be made at this meeting.

AN APOLOGY

We deeply regret that thru no fault of ours, the Ionian Serenaders, who were to appear on the High School Lecture Course last Tuesday, failed to keep their date. Either an equally good attraction will appear later, or that part of the price of the course will be refunded to all who hold a ticket. Lecture Course Committee.

START MADE ON LATERAL SEWERS

Blocks Between Second and Fourth West of Lincoln First to Secure Attention.

Rather tardily and in a piecemeal manner, but still acceptable in that a start has really been made, the council took up the question, Tuesday night, of lateral sewers on South Hill. Resolutions were passed announcing the determination of constructing branch sewers thru the alley from Cherry to Lincoln, between 3rd and 4th, making a district of blocks 69, 70 and 71, to pay for same; and also that the alleys from east line of Oak street to Lincoln between 2nd amd 3rd, blocks 53 and 54 to be assessed. Hearing to be held March 23rd.

The pools of water standing on the north side of First street, between Oak and Lincoln, being deemed a menace, the city marshal was ordered to notify property owners to abate the nuisance at once.

Property owners on north side of Front street, between Oak and Lincoln, were ordered, given fifteen days notice, to put in private sewers extending out to deep water.

Ordinance providing for sewer on First street, Peabody to Lincoln, was passed.

Mrs. C. J. Tucker was granted a permit to build four five-room houses on lots 13, 14, 15 and 16, block 155, 7th and E, to cost $1,450 each.

C. E. Cole, a home to cost $550, on 3rd, between Pine and Valley.

R. B. Stratton a house to cost $250 on lot 3 block 117.

City Attorney was instructed to defend city in the McKinney cases. Hooker and Fisher appointed committee to confer with attorney regarding the securing of counsel, should he deem it necessary. Ordered that a fund of $100 be maintained for attorney to use in defending city in any cases.

Ordered that tax rolls book be indexed at cost of about $150.

Transfer of the gas company franchise from Dann Brothers to the Port Angeles Gas & Oil Co., was approved.

Power line was ordered extended to Ulster's on Fifth, at a cost of $50. Light line extension to Tumwater valley, which was applied for chiefly by owners of tent houses, was not ordered. Requisition for ten meters approved.

Cemetery committee reported an offer for $40 for timber remaining on cemetery; referred to committee to see if they could get further bids.

Bigelow and Brennand appointed a committee to confer with city marshal and look up place where farmers can feed their teams.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

Virgil O. Strickler, C., S. of New York, Will Lecture at Opera House, March 9th.

A free lecture on Christian Science under the auspices of First Church of Christ Scientist, will be given at the Opera House, Tuesday evening, March 9, at 8 o'clock.

The lecturer, Virgil O. Strickler, C. S., of New York City, is a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ Scientist in Boston, Mass., and is a very able speaker. The public is cordially invited to attend. No collection.

PLAYING PEANUT POLITICS

With but another week of the legislative session remaining it can be safely predicted that the 1915 session will pass down as chiefly remarkable for mediocrity of achievement. Fewer bills have been submitted and fewer laws have been enacted than in any preceding session in many a biennium. Early in the session it was tactily recognized that no crying need existed for any large number of new laws. Statesmen who had treked out all the way to Olympia began to feel almost in the predicament of that famous army that resolutely marched up the hill only to ignominiously march down again. Then the leaders, especially the house leaders, became suddenly alive to the political exigencies of the situation and in doing so straightway grew largely oblivious to other issues.

With both houses overwhelmingly republican and a smoothly working organization in the saddle nothing was to be feared in the nature of snags,—even vetoed bills could be passed with a whoop and a hurrah over gubernatorial disapproval. But the administration being democratic and in a fair way—unless radically discredited—to return itself to power,—if so it desires,—the paramount issue with the majority organization evidenced itself immediately in hilarious endeavors to twist the tail of the democratic mule.

Every measure, which, reckoning from any angle, would give Governor Lister's administration a more substantial footing by reflecting credit for constructive handling of the state's affairs was expediously sidetracked, while measures were framed and passed that members of both houses frankly admit were for the sole purpose of taking patronage from and discrediting the Lister administration. In this way the session has likely been more purely political in character than any preceding one since statehood.

With ears to the ground statesmen in Olympia from different parts of Washington have been listening to the tramp of the voters in November, 1916, and trying to so handle issues now that results then would be attained. Of course, all this has been done on the premise that Lister would be a candidate in 1916 on which point he has not yet declared himself. This fight between two houses on one side, and the governor, battling single-handed on the other, has been the feature that, more than any other, has given life and color to the session. The fracas has revealed the Governor as a political fighter with a 42-centimeter wallop of a Jack Johnson brand.

There has been no strictly creative legislation and the fish code is declared to be the only really constructive measure passed.

From the outset the liquor issue has been to the fore, and it likely will remain on the boards in some form or another until the session closes. With a manifest majority of the statesmen numbered in the "wet" contingent, "booze" has nevertheless needed friends at every stage and in each instance seen rough weather when it showed its head. It would have fared immensly better had not Governor Lister been so sharply set against meddling in any form with the initiative prohibition law passed by the people last November.

Remedial and amendatory legislation shows here and there on the surface of the session, but in the main the statute books will be little burdened with the new laws. If there has been no particularly creative, salutory, or fostering legislation, there has been little unsavory, vicious or that could even be classed as statutory novelties.

The session on the whole may likely acquire some such reputation as that king, who, cursed with mediocrity in both morality and vice, was never great enough to do a good act or bad enough to commit a vicious one.

Clallam and Jefferson counties are interested particularly in the adoption of the new fish code which has passed the legislature and which provides a new basis for handling the fishing industry of the state, so far as the state government is concerned. The measure, which is largely the work of E. A. Sims of Port Townsend and Attorney-General W. V. Tanner, is designed to protect the fish, to provide for their propogation and also to furnish an adequate revenue to the state in return for its services. The new fish code not only handles the question but also includes the oyster, clam and crab industries and furnishes a comprehensive law for their protection as well as for the protection of fish. One of the new features of the code is the granting to the Indians living on reservations of the right to fish not only with hook and line but with any kind of gear except traps at any time of the year in the waters adjacent or tributary to the reservations or in the salt water within five miles of the reservation. The only limit on gear for Indians is that their nets may not obstruct more than one third of the width of any stream.

The outcome of the determination of the Board to have the mile of road out of Clallam built by local people under direction of the district road supervisor, rather than letting the contract to the lowest bidder, will be watched with considerable interest. Doubtless, the contract figures being higher than the engineer's estimate, the road will cost the county less than had a contract been let. Not only is the difference between estimate and bids to be taken into consideration, but the extra cost of a superintendent over the work and of frequent trips by the engineer to see that the work is being done according to specifications would mean several hundred dollars. Now, if the supervisor will employ only Clallam county men and teams, men who need the money, instead of bringing in outsiders who have no interest in the county, as has often been done in the past, the decision of the Board will work to the advantage of the tax-payer in two ways.

We residents of Port Angeles are right pleased to learn that the state fire warden is determined to have a clear atmosphere this summer. A little of that same determination would have been very acceptable during the many long weeks last summer when our town fire department had to work night and day to prevent Warden Ferriss' fires from wiping out outlying residences.

The new classification for county school superintendents, which provides sufficient salary to enable such officers to be on duty all the time, has passed the senate. Clallam county schools, spread over a territory nearly as large as some states, would be greatly benefitted by the enactment of such a law.

The senate has passed a bill of particular interest to the farmers and good roads boosters, which prohibits the use of auto trucks weighing more than 24,000 pounds on any hard surfaced roads.

WHICH WAY TO LAKE OZETTE ?

opening up a considerable amount of fine bottom land, which, privately owned, would be cultivated. He would not deprive a single settler of a road. There is not a single soul, he said, from George Sand's to Ole Klaboe's, a distance of nine miles that could be accommodated by the Hoko road. He believed the automobile to be the coming means of transportation and that with a good level road down to Forks, all the settlers would be better off than with a road of steep grades to Clallam.

Mr. Rudisile then asked if Mr. Sands wouldn't be willing to cut out the Neah Bay end of the route, substituting Clallam Bay instead, making a Clallam Bay-Quillayute route, of benefit to every settler and to the touring trade as well. Sands was agreeable to this, but still maintained that if the road be built down the Hoko, the Dicky people would get no relief, while if built the other way all would have an outlet.

Engineer Remp said he had not reached any conclusion as to the choice between the two routes, which had been under investigation by him, and would not discriminate at the present time. But as to Neah Bay, it appeared to him that was out of the question, owing to the peculiar geographical situation. In response to questions he said the so-called slides on the Hoko are of surface material and not foundation slides; that a wagon could go over the road from Ozette to Klaboe's at the present time without cutting the road; everyone that he visited as far south as Borseth's wanted to go out by way of Clallam. We have about six and a half or seven miles of road from the lake; it would take about nine miles of new road to connect this up with the Clallam end. That would be the cheapest and best route to the lake; touching the lake at the northeast corner means covering the whole lake for there would be means of transportation on the lake. But that would not give the Dicky people an outlet. From the south end of Ozette lake to Quillayute prairie is out of the question at the present time; the road should be built via Dicky lake. One objection to the Dicky route would be the lack of good gravel; the Dicky river has a mud bottom mostly; most of the way the gravel is sandstone material and that will not hold.

Mr. Marsh said he had lived in the country 22 years and had had 12 years experience gravelling; Mr. Marshall, he presumed, had done as much gravelling as any other man in the county; they had looked over the route and had discovered many outcroppings of good gravel; the country being covered with such a dense growth of timber, brush and moss, these would not be seen on a brief trip such as Mr. Remp had to take, but they did not believe there would be any difficulty on that score.

Commissioner Dick then asked the West Enders their opinion of a proposition to survey a road thru from Clallam to Quillayute this year, using such money as may be left for construction equally on each end, and with the idea of increasing the levy to complete the road.

Commissioner Clark thought that by making a higher levy this fall, and using the money from both districts, building from both ends, they should be able to complete the road in two or three years at the most.

Mr. Rudisile said they had had enough peace-meal roads in the West End. Their road from Clallam to Sappho was a jackrabbit road; the new road down the Sol Duc was a fine, straight, level road, because it was surveyed clear thru at one time and built on that survey. He was not looking to the interests of Clallam alone, but to those of the whole section and wanted the road built right thru.

Mr. Leonard, speaking for the Commercial Club committee, said he had been over both routes a number of times and that so far as the people of the whole county are concerned, the road up the Dicky would open up the most and best country at the least expense.

A letter was then read from A. W. Smith, stating that there are three ways to reach the Ozette country, viz: via Clallam, Tyee and Quillayute. From Clallam there is a long stretch of expensive road to build over a very rough country, very little of which can ever be cultivated. From Tyee there are high mountains to be crossed to start with and the road would not open up enough of farming country to warrant expense at this time. From Quillayute good grades could be had thru a country capable of supporting a large farming population.

Another letter, from Ole Klaboe, was read, in which was advocated the Clallam-Ozette road. Mr. Klaboe having worked 24 years on his ranch, paying road taxes meanwhile, fully believes that he is entitled to a road if anyone is.

Commissioner Dick, in an effort to bring the matter to a focus, wanted to know, now that all seemed to agree on the through route via the lake, whether or not they could agree upon the question as to where work should be started this year.

Commissioner Hansen thought it was evident that they couldn't. If it was up to the Board to shoulder the responsibility, he wanted to see the country for himself and take time enough to be perfectly satisfied. Forty per cent of last year's taxes in the West End districts remained unpaid and likely the same thing would be true with this year's taxes; until they are paid there would not be enough money to make any appreciable progress. The Board had started out with the idea of building to one end or the other of Lake Ozette, and with the present reduced levy he didn't see how the entire road from Quillayute to Clallam could be built. At any rate nothing could be done now save to acquire information as to what is most needed, and that they would continue to do, taking a trip over the trails as soon as the weather settles.

LIQUOR ISSUE OVERSHADOWS ALL OTHERS

Olympia, March 3.—The feature overshadowing all others in both houses of the legislature this week, notwithstanding the resolution adopted at the beginning of the session not to consider any measure bringing up the liquor question, is, nevertheless, this very same liquor issue. Like the irrepressible ghost of Banquo at the feast it will not down. The fight on now is over house bills 196 and 197, introduced by Representative Winston. The first named provides a graduated excise tax to be collected by an excise commissioner. The bulk of the money so collected goes to the road fund, and the remainder is to be used to enforce the law and defray the expenses of the special election called to pass the bill. Licenses for manufacturing and selling liquors range from $500 to $1,000. Bill 197 repeals the initiative prohibition law passed by the people at the last election and regulates the sale, delivery, holding and handling of alcoholic beverages. The strongest lobby Olympia has seen this session, comprising bankers, merchants, hotel and transportation men of Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane are here boosting the two measures. While the complexion of the legislature is indubitably wet as shown at the outset of the session when a test vote on a motion not to consider or review the liquor question was at first voted down, yet nevertheless, it is as radically certain that members of senate and house fear to cross the Rubicon of recommittal. One of these statesmen in the following words placed the situation in a nutshell Monday:

"If the legislature passes bills recommitting the liquor issue to the people, it gives Governor Lister a big political advantage, which, naturally we do not want him to have. The Governor is 'dry' and what is more he is insistent that the initiative prohibition law passed last fall shall be given a fair trial. If we pass bills for resubmission, he will veto them as sure as guns are made of iron, for they repeal the initiative measure. Such a veto will make him great political capital and it might make him governor again in 1916."

In the face of these anxieties of statesmen who desire in every way, to undermine the governor's strength the liquor interests, driven to desperation by the approach of the time when they must close shop, are determined to force the hands of political leaders in both houses before the session closes.

Chairman Charles A. Reynolds, of the Washington Public Service Commission, has just been notified by President C. Thorne, of the National Association of Railroad commissioners, of his appointment of chairman of the committee on Telephone and Telegraph rates and service,—one of the most important committees of the national organization. Chairman Reynolds' appointment is the first instance in which Washington has been so honored, and as the rates and service of telephone companies comprise one of the biggest and most difficult problems now confronting regulative commissions, the work that will fall to him will be heavy and important.

Citizens of Okanogan county want a stringent enactment protecting Big Horn mountain sheep still found—but in steadily decreasing numbers—in the mountain fastnesses in the northern part of that county. This is the only section of Washington where the magnificent animal is to be found, and but few spots remain in other parts of the United States where it still survives. In the Okanogan region the Big Horn finds an ideal habitat, and due to the rugged character of the country is staving off annihilation, tho their numbers are constantly thinning due to the efficiency of the modern long-range magazine rifle.

Reports on the work of Fish Commissioner Leslie Darwin show a record of achievement out-distancing that of any predecessor of his, it is claimed, since the fish department was inaugurated. In the first 22 months he was in office Darwin collected $40,000 more than had ever been collected by the department previously in any 24 months. The first year in office he reduced the cost of production at the state hatcheries from 88½ cents per thousand fry liberated to 54 cents,—a clean cut of 59 per cent over the cost of production of the previous year. In the 22 months in office he has made more arrests, secured more convictions for fishing law violations and turned more money from this source into the state treasury than was done in all the remainder of the time since the department came into existence.

Darwin is the first fish commissioner that ever systematically went after illegal trap fishing. In one memorable raid he seized traps fishing in illegal depths of water that contained nearly $6,000 worth of fish, which money was turned into the state coffers. While heretofore taxpayers have paid approximately 40 per cent of the upkeep of the state fish commissioner's department, since Darwin took hold the fish department has not only paid all of its expenses but has turned a small revenue into the treasury. And with it all, Darwin's political enemies have been making a fight on him that would keep lots of men busy sixteen hours a day. Some fisherman, some politician, eh?

One bill, the passage of which is causing general satisfaction, is the quadrennial registration act. The measure is a compromise between the demand of those who wanted a decennial registration law passed and those who wanted the annual registration continued. One salutary feature of the new law is that it provides registration be kept operative for the quadrennial term by voting at each election, otherwise registration lapses. This places a premium on regular voting, and politicians claim will get out larger votes.

The omnibus budget for the State of Washington for the coming biennium totals $9,500,403.05, which is just $1,524,283.18 less than the same appropriation two years ago. These figures largely realize the economy propaganda urged by Governor Lister in his message and echoed at the opening of the session by both house and senate. Notable among the many disappointments in the budget to many was the denial of a special appropriation of $300,000 asked for by the state university. This, however is being handled by a bill now in the senate, the joint appropriations committee holding it should stand alone on its merits. There will be no supplemental appropriations budget as there was two years ago, which one then carried more than $2,000,000 additional.

Barring the board of control, the eastern hospital for the insane and the school for defective youth all institutions and departments under Governor Lister are pruned below estimates notwithstanding that these estimates were well below those of two years ago. On the other hand republican state officers received increases in their forces and the state treasurer, attorney general and the land commissioner were given larger appropriations than their estimates called for.

The following figures represent reductions made from estimates submitted by state department heads, the amounts given showing what was subtracted by the appropriations committee:

Secretary of state, $8,600; immigration commissioner, $35,000; weights and measures, $10,000; western hospital for the insane, $17,000; home for the feeble-minded, $6,300; state school for the deaf, $37,500; school for the blind, $15,000; penitentiary, $20,000; training school, $18,750; state school for girls, $43,000; soldier's home, $3,500; highway commissioner, $17,000; welfare commission, $2,000; garin department, $8,400; state college, $19,102; state university, $353,794; Bellingham normal, $141,380; department of agriculture, $13,700; state board of health, $8,200; bank examiner, $600; initiative and referendum election estimate, $150,000; state school superintendent, $2,200; insurance commissioner, $1,600; state reformatory, $87,300; tax commission, $35,000.

If State Fire Warden Ferriss has his way Washington will have a "smokeless" atmosphere the coming summer, something it has not had since the primitive Indian was monarch of all he surveyed. The campaign the fire warden has begun is the most unique in the history of his department and is "especially conducted" for the highest interests of the state and its people as well as for the benefit of the tens of thousands of tourists that will visit Washington this season.

Transportation men agree Washington will have the greatest influx of tourist and home-seeker travel this year it has ever seen, and the most of these will come during the summer when heretofore smoke has spread a blue veil, blurring, if not hiding the landscape. Commercial bodies, railroad men and the state immigration department agree with Mr. Ferriss that it will be a calamity for this smoke nuisance to hide the state of Washington's wonderful topographical features this year.

"Likely not one person in ten," said Mr. Ferriss yesterday, "realizes how stupendous a volume of travel will visit our state this summer and the amount of money this travel will leave behind. Due to the great war tourists this season for the firsttime dare not and will not go to Europe. They are coming west to see the wonderland of this coast together with the California expositions. Tens of thousands of Americans will see our state for the first time, or rather they will see it if we rid it of smoke. All we want is for these travelers to see our mountains, lakes, river valleys, plains, wheat areas, great orchards, forests, and inland salt waters. These features will preach emigration and investment to monied tourist and home-seeker louder and better than all publicity boosting campaigns. This is a half century of opportunity rolled into one season. Let's see to it that these people see the country.

"I am reaching all commercial bodies and every pulpit in the state with letters asking cooperation everywhere in putting out forest fires."

FORKS TEAM DEFEATS SEQUIM QUINTETTE

Before a crowd of 200 very enthusiastic spectators, the Forks Basket Ball team defeated the Sequim boys to the tune of 26 to 24. The game was cool and exciting. Forks threw the winning goal just before time was called. The Sequim team played good ball but Forks out-scored them. The Forks team was out of condition, but nevertheless, played a good game. Alfred Koenig starred at the center post. The game was the third defeat of the season with Sequim. Forks won two out of the three games played. The Sequim boys came out by auto Saturday night and returned on Sunday to their east end homes. They were more than pleased with their reception at Forks. The Forks team will play Dungeness at the former place on March 6th.

BE A BOOSTER

"Each citizen should be a committee of one to make earnest endeavor to locate some good, substantial citizen on a tract of Puget Sound land. It is "back to the soil" that our young men must go. The great cities are now crowded with jobless young men in the various professions; young men who are wasting their days because there is not room in the professional world for the thousands which are being turned out by our various institutions of learning year by year. An education, however, is just as necessary for the farmer, the stock raiser and the dairyman as it is for the lawyer, the doctor and the engineer, but it must be seen that thousands of our young men educated in the professions are left idle because already too many of them have crowded into the cities where there is no longer a demand for them., Back to the soil young men, there is where success awaits you."—Willipa Harbor Pilot.

Leader Department Store

Our Milliner, Mrs. Anna McNeil, has just returned from two months in the wholesale house at Seattle. Her selection of Hats includes all the latest designs with variety enough to suit all styles and kinds of faces. There are the new "perky" hats that tilt jauntily atop the head, the delightful "shepherdess" hats, the narrow and broad brim sailors, and the fetching Tipperrary hats in the new Belgian split braids. Quantities of dainty flowers and foliage, also fruits of all kinds are being used for trimming, with narrow silk and velvet ribbons. But come and see for yourself, it is a pleasure to show you our goods.

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB

Secretary's Report for the Month of February, 1915.

To the Officers and Members,
Port Angeles Commercial Club,
Gentlemen:

I have the honor to report on the work of the Club for the month of February, 1915, as follows:

Correspondence.

Letters received 107
Letters written 81
Literature mailed 167

Publicity.

Scenic and pleasure places and resorts of Olympic Peninsula, article for book entitled "Tourist Attractions of the Pacific Northwest," soon to be published by Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, Chicago.

Article describing scenic and outing features of Clallam county, for Automobile Tourist Edition of Seattle Times.

General descriptive article, for Daily Northwestern, Oskosh, Wis.

Article on agricultural opportunities in Clallam county, for book on Washington agricultural possibilities soon to be issued by Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, printed in Chicago.

Illustrated article of 1,500 words, to be published early in March by the Christian Science Monitor, Boston, Mass.

New Members.

New members of the Club were enrolled in the month of February, as follows:

Active Members—Albert Goldwater, James McDonald Milne, W. C. Nelson, P. J. O'Brien.

Non-resident Members — James Dick, Dungeness; W. P. Elliott, Forks, Wash.

Industrial Prospects.

Further and more detailed data showing the possibilities of Clallam county hemlock bark for tanning purposes, together with authentic reports of comparative analysis of western and eastern hemlock bark for the manufacture of tannic acid, was collected and compiled, and copies were mailed today to eastern concerns interested thru previous discussion of the subject.

Ediz Hook industrial sites are attracting wide attention from manufacturers located at other places in the Northwest and it is urgently important the city qualify its lease by building the road and also that all the details required to make the delivery of the sites practicable, by sub-lease to manufacturers, be attended to as quickly as possible. Industrial Agent R. F. Weeks, of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, is devoting much of his time to the exploitation of this municipal project.

One of the most recent concerns interested in the new industrial area, both thru correspondence and by personal representation on the part of Vice-President Aldwell, is an established sash and door factory business of considerable size, whose plant was destroyed by fire.

Marine Hospital Station.

As a direct result of correspondence of the Commercial Club, both by letter and wire, with Surgeon General Rupert Blue and with the Washington delegation in Congress, the Surgeon General directed the immediate establishment of a marine hospital station, equipped with complete pharaphernalia for the fumigation of ships at Port Angeles, and appointed one of our local medical authorities as acting assisting surgeon, to be in charge of the local station. This matter was first taken up by the Club last November, but was vigorously pressed in January and early February, with such effect that the order for the establishment was issued to District Surgeon Earle by wire by Surgeon General Blue.

State Road Legislation.

Mr. W. B. Ritchie was sent to Olympia, February 3, at the expense of the Club to advocate the interests of Clallam county at the senate and house joint committee hearing relative to the Olympic Highway.

PETITION MEASURES THREE MILES LONG

A pretty picture was that of the twelve little school girls presenting to Secretary Bryan a petition addressed to the rulers of the warring nations, signed by 350,000 school children of forty-five states of the Union, asking for an immediate armistice to lay the troubles of each nation before the Hague tribunal for settlement. The petition with all the names attached measured nearly three miles long.

SHIRRING POPULAR.

This Form of Decoration Featured on Many New Frocks.

SATIN AFTERNOON GOWN.

Novel, yet chic, is the afternoon gown pictured here. It is of satin cut on simple lines that adapt it to the requirements of the young girl. Its only decoration consists of bands of shirring, a form of trimming that is being featured by smart modistes. The girdle itself is formed by a shirred band. The bodice, with its line of buttons running from the straight high collar to the waist, has a quaint, old fashioned appearance. For the St. Valentine luncheon or card party a gown of this sort would be extremely effective.

CIRCULAR SKIRTS.

The Gored Models Are Likely to Win Out in Popularity.

Every woman who remembers the last time that circular skirts were in vogue will call to mind the great difficulty experienced in maintaining an even hem.

The circular sides were bound to stretch and sag despite all the efforts of the skillful dressmaker to the contrary.

And, although the circular sbirt is featured among the new season's models, there can be little question but that the gored adaptations will win out eventually.

For those who do not mind odd devices the hem introduced by Premet of Paris will make a strong appeal.

The hem is the outcome really of the effort to counteract the sagging tendency of the circular model. It is scooped away at the sides, thereby indicating a longer line at the front and back sections.

In the course of time the sides drop a little bit, and the hem balance is thereby maintained.

Light Window Shades.

If in doubt what kind of shades to select for your windows use cream shades, not a dead white, and you will be pleased with the effect both from the inside and out. A good quality of "Holland" shade in cream with no trimming whatever beyond a good cord to raise and lower it by is a good choice in shades. The cream pebble dash with brown trimmings is always good and equally so with dark green trim.

Silks For Spring.

With plain pongee is used flowered pongee, the latter being employed for the long sleeves, the girdle and skirt trimming.

Of course there are foulards in striped, checked and flowered designs, and lovely crapes and soft taffetas lend variety to the choice for spring dresses and demi-tailored costumes.

LINGERIE COLLARS.

Easy Way to Wash and Iron Thin Neckwear.

See that the collars and cuffs are quite dry after washing before attempting to starch them. Place them in a clean, dry towel and have ready a basin of well made cold water starch.

Mix the starch up well from the bottom, lay in as many collars as the starch will easily cover at one time and let the starch soak well through them.

Squeeze them with the hands in the starch; then wring as dry as possible Draw them out straight and lay smoothly on a towel, but do not put one on top of the other; roll each one separately between the towel. Leave for half an hour before ironing, but do not let them get too dry.

When ready to iron spread wrong side uppermost and iron first one side and then the other. Iron slowly at first, then more and more quickly until there is a glossy surface and the collar is dry.

The right side naturally requires the most ironing, but the wrong side must be ironed quite smooth. Lift the collar occasionally when ironing to let the steam escape and dry the sheet under it with the iron. A teaspoonful of powdered borax in cold starch will give an added stiffness to linen.

SPRING GARMENTS.

Fuller Skirts Characteristic of the New Season's Styles.

The fuller skirt is the notable feature of the new season styles. It is accompanied by simple bodices, with high neck, narrow shoulders and long sleeves. The waist line is either normal or raised, says the Dry Goods Economist, speaking of spring fashions.

Suit coats include tailored and demi-tailored effects, with preference for the tailored. Tailored coats with belts placed at a high or slightly raised waist line are particularly strong at present. Flare effects are also emphasized.

Separate coats have considerable flare at the bottom edge and are being shown in three-quarter length or slightly shorter. High waist line effects are very prominent, and belts are being freely used.

Skirts of dresses and suits and also separate skirts include the circular and gathered forms, together with box and side plaited effects. Dress skirts include the ruffled and tiered designs, together with a limited number of voluminous tunics accompanying narrow underskirts. Yokes are used on many of the new skirts.

SPRING HATS.

Manufacturers Are Making Up a Great Line of Attractive New Straws.

In regard to spring fashions the Millinery Trade Review says:

Of straw materials the fine milans, hemps, lisere, leghorn and tagal come in for their usual share of prominence in the development of high priced hats. A new tubular braid that is described as lemon or barnyard straw is prominently featured. This last named material makes up a very smart blocked hat, and there is every possibility of its being extensively used.

New spring hats are shown developed of plaited raffia, which comes in squares and is especially clever in the making up of hand made models.

Gelatin straw braid also promises to be popular. This is of very glossy appearance, with an exceedingly rough surface.

The combination of straw braids with fabrics of various textures is a happy addition to the list of novelties shown, among which faille taffeta and satin are used, as well as chiffon and georgette crape. In the development of midsummer hats this last named fabric makes a strong bid for favor.

Horsehair lace braid was much used last spring, and comprehensive lines show a few of these models, which are naturally of the hand made type.

Leather Belts Again.

Leather belts, by the way, are to be revived. As a matter of fact, they have already arrived, as evidenced in certain of the spring models of morning and afternoon costumes, as well as in some of the linen frocks made for southern wear. The belts are not only of patent leather, but also of dull suede, in dark brown, in blue and green, as well as in the pure white. For early season costumes the smart belt appears to have superseded the girdle.

Neighborhood Courtesy.

"Some years ago we moved from our home town—the town we were born and reared in and where all our friends and kinsfolk lived," said the neighborly woman. "The new town was a railroad and river town. I thought we would soon have neighbors and in time friends. I did get acquainted soon with one woman, but she moved away. She recommended some other friends of hers to me. I intended to call, but never did, my boys, my work and my home keeping me busy.

"After awhile I grew to be like the people around me, tending to my own business and making no calls. But I was lonely. One of my children came down with scarlet fever. We were quarantined. It made little difference, as no one had the habit of coming to our house, anyhow, or I of going to other people's houses. The third day of the quarantine I heard a step in the back yard and rushed to the door, thinking the deliveryman had not seen the sign.

"It was my nearest neighbor. She had a dish of something in her hand. 'For the sick little fellow,' she said. 'I'm sorry I can't come in and give it to him myself.' I stood looking at her amazed. 'I hope you are not offended,' she said.

"Offended! She never can know how good she looked to me.

"We became friends after that. Through her I met other neighbors. We never tire of doing good turns for each other. It has made life a thousand times more worth living for me."

Solving a Social Problem.

A young matron who had asked six friends to luncheon suddenly found herself without a maid. She was equal to the occasion, however, and on their arrival said nothing to her guests about the very important missing member of her household.

Before going to the dining room each guest was handed a ribbon bow, to which was attached a safety pin, and told to find her place by matching the colors at the places. It did not take long to appropriate the pretty aprons with the strings of ribbon to match each bow. They were made of large colored handkerchiefs, and the point forming the bib was pinned up by the safety pin and bow.

Anchovy canapes formed the first course. After they were eaten the hostess turned to the guest at her right and said, "Look under your plate and do what the card says." And the little card bore this request, "Please remove the plates and bring in the soup." Amid much merriment this was accomplished, the bouillon being already on a tray over the gas, which was turned low. Another guest removed the cups and brought in the next course. Minute directions were on each card. The hostess did not find it necessary to leave the table, and the absence of the maid was voted to have made the party a great success. Every one declared that the aprons were the most acceptable of souvenirs.

Etiquette of Mourning.

A widow who intends to leave off her mourning in due time wears a crape bonnet and a long veil and crape trimmed gowns a year. After this dull black, suitably relieved by white and lilac touches, should be worn for a year. When two years have passed colors may be worn.

As long as the crape veil and crape trimmed gowns are worn a woman should refrain from participation in all social gayeties. After six months a widow may attend concerts and matinee performances at the theater. When the crape trimmings are put off small dinners and luncheons and night performances at the theater or opera may be attended.

Of course these are conventional rules, which she may follow if she wishes. They are not adhered to by every one, for people are becoming more liberal about mourning and are following their own inclinations regarding the matter rather than doing as some one else has done under similar circumstances.

Delicious Blanc Mange.

To make chocolate blanc mange take two teaspoonfuls of cocoa in a basin and mix with half a pint of boiling milk; stir well. Then mix two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with half a pint of cold milk. Put all in a saucepan and bring to the boil. Stir well and let boil for half a minute.

Making Barley Water.

To make barley water take three teaspoonfuls of pearl barley and wash in several waters until quite clean. Add one and one-half pint of cold water, boil down to one pint; then strain. Barley water must be freshly made every day. When patent barley is used it can be made in twenty minutes.

Baking a Pudding.

When baking a pudding always place the baking dish within a stew pan or larger baking dish half full of water. You will then have no burned edges, no hard crusts and consequently no waste, and it will be infinitely easier to wash the baking dish.

HOW TO LOOK TALL.

There are a great many things a girl may do which will add inches to her appearance.

The first rule should be to keep the chin up.

Dress the neck either low or with a very high, tight collar.

The second rule should be to wear the hair dressed high on the head. Never wear a wide pompadour.

Wear gowns with long lines. Short girls should effect long gowns whenever the opportunity presents itself.

The short girl should avoid round trimmings, shoulder draperies and plaits. Her wraps should be long and narrow.

Hair ornaments should be worn high and never large. Hats should be narrow, with some smart feather trimming—narrow and straight up in the air.

Tennis will narrow the hips and strengthen the waist of a short girl.

Standing a great deal—well poised, not leaning against anything—will make one appear taller than one naturally is.

Some women believe that stripes add the appearance of height to a short, stout figure. This is not true.

Diana's Wrap.

The athletic girl usually prefers a wrap of some fabric other than her skirt, and her choice usually falls on a Norfolk of corduroy or a knitted sweater, the latter in the new striped or checked designs.

She wears no hat, or if she is of the unusual sort, anxious about her complexion, a chapeau of corduroy, satin or soft straw gives the crowning touch to the costume. The pedal extremities are shod with buckskin or canvas oxfords, with heel low rather than otherwise.

GERMAN DECREE HAS A PARALLEL

Memorandum From Berlin Received From Gerard Evidently Will Stop Hasty Action—Declared Germany Has Executed Clever Move by Taking Leaf Out of English Book.

The long memorandum delivered by the German foreign office to Ambassador Gerard, explaining the German war zone proclamation, has been received at the state department, and perusal of its text, which was cabled to American newspapers, convinced Washington officials that at present no serious issue could be raised with Germany over the creation of the projected war zone without at the same time raising identically the same issue with Great Britain.

The German memorandum transmitted by Ambassador Gerard emphasizes the fact—a vitally important one in the present situation—that Great Britain has declared the entire North sea to be a war area and that if England has not made impossible the passage of neutral shipping through the sea between Scotland and Norway she has rendered it "so difficult and so dangerous that she has to a certain extent effected a blockade of neutral coasts and neutral ports, in violation of all international laws."

The fact that the British government has done identically the same thing with respect to the establishment of war zones in the open seas beyond the three mile territorial limit has been officially certified to the state department by Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador. This was done three months ago, and no protest has ever been made by the United States against the action of Great Britain in establishing such a war zone.

Trump Card For Germany.

It dawned upon officials in Washington that the German government had executed a rather neat and clever counter diplomatic stroke in notifying the world of its intention to create a war zone around the British isles by taking a leaf out of the British book and doing the very thing that the British government had done. The British and German war zone orders as officially communicated to the state department have been compared and closely studied. This comparison was not found to be to the disadvantage of the Germans. It was even suggested that the German government had played a trump card.

The situation resolves itself something after this fashion: For England the official date of the beginning of the war was Aug. 4. England waited until three months of the war had been fought and then served notice on the neutral powers of the world of her intention to establish a war zone. The British war zone was set up on Nov. 5. The Germans waited an additional three months, twice as long as did Great Britain, or until Feb. 4, exactly six months from the official British beginning of the war, and then announced its decision to establish a war zone very similar to that of Great Britain, although somewhat more extensive. However, the principle involved with respect to both war zones is the same.

War Zones Compared.

A comparison of the British and German war zone orders disclosed these striking facts:

First.—The British government on Nov. 4 notified the United States government that its war zone would be effective from Nov. 5—one day's notice.

Second.—The German government issued its war zone proclamation on Feb. 4 and communicated it to Ambassador Gerard on the same day, announcing that the German war zone around the British isles would be effective after Feb. 18—fifteen days' notice.

Third.—The British war zone covers the whole of the North sea.

Fourth.—The German war zone covers the entire English channel and all the territorial and high sea waters around the British isles.

Fifth.—The British war zone order sought to close the north of Scotland route around the British isles to Norway, the Baltic, Denmark and Holland.

Sixth.—The German war zone seeks to close the southern or English channel route around the British isles to Holland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and the Baltic.

Seventh.—The British war zone decree drew an arbitrary line from the Hebrides islands along the Scottish coast to Iceland and warned neutral shipping that it would cross this line at its risk, but that ships of neutral nations might go to Holland and other neutral nations along the eastern littoral of the North sea by taking the English channel and strait of Dover route.

Eighth.—The German war zone declares that neutral vessels will be exposed to danger in the English channel, but routes of navigation around the north of Scotland islands in the eastern part of the North sea and in a strip thirty miles wide along the Dutch coast are not open to the danger zone.

Ninth.—The Germans make the southern channel route dangerous and declare the north of Scotland route safe, while the British declare the north of Scotland route dangerous and the English channel route safe, the effect of this being that neither the northern nor the southern routes around England will be safe for neutral vessels.

Tenth.—The British war zone order was based on the discovery of mines in the North sea, while the German decree is based on England's attitude toward contraband, the Wilhelmina case and England's establishment of a war zone.

BAKE YOUR OWN BREAD! FIVE LOAVES, 21 CENTS.

Six cent bread! Nonsense. It costs only 4.2 cents if made at home according to the directions of the Housewives' League of America.

The first practical move was made when a course of demonstrations was begun at headquarters, 25 West Forty-fifth street, New York city.

"The saving of a cent and eight-tenths, however, is not so important as the saving in nutritive value," said Miss Emily Busong. "The homemade loaves are really worth about twice as much as bakers' loaves."

About fifty women attended the first lesson. There was an actual demonstration in the mixing of dough for both white and graham breads.

ENTOMBED, WITHOUT FOOD, FOR TWENTY-FIVE DAYS

Rescued Earthquake Victim Tells Remarkable Story of His Experience.

Michael Caido, the earthquake victim who, after being entombed for twenty-five days, was dug out alive from the ruins of his house at Paterno, Italy, is rapidly regaining his strength. He is a farmer, thirty-five years old. Neighbors who had returned from Rome to try to recover some of their belongings heard his feeble groans by the merest chance, and efforts at once were made to rescue him. This work occupied two days.

Caido's first exclamation on finding himself free was: "Oh, the light! The light! I thought I had gone blind!"

He showed a ravenous eagerness for food and drink. After taking a little bread and wine he was able to tell the story of his imprisonment. He had had nothing whatever to eat, and the only water he could get was rain and melted snow which trickled down the walls.

"When the earthquake shock came," he said, "I rushed to the middle of the house. The next moment I was precipitated into the stable dug out underneath the house. It was pitch dark, and all means of escape were cut off. I wondered whether I had lost my sight. I kept shouting continuously for what seemed about four days. I often heard footsteps, but no one seemed to hear my calls. I could move about a bit, and I kept feeling around in the hope of finding some food, but there was nothing to be had.

"After a time I lay down, feeling certain I was doomed to die. I prayed I might lose my senses quickly, but I lost consciousness for only a short time. I tried to gauge the time I had been imprisoned and thought it about a fortnight, so that I was surprised to learn it was nearly a month."

After making a good meal the rescued man mounted a motorcar almost without aid and was driven to the field hospital at Avezzano. He asked earnestly after his family and was told not to worry, as his relatives were being carefully looked after in the Red Cross camp. That was a white lie, told out of pity, for every member of his family perished.

AUTO TIRE A LIFE BUOY.

Girl, Tying Line to Motorcar, Hauls Skater From Pond.

As Miss Elsie Ditson of Paterson, N. J., was driving past Bowdin's millpond, in Cedar Grove, in her automobile her attention was attracted by the cries of William Young of Jackson Mills, who had broken through the ice while skating. Young was struggling frantically to pull himself out of the water, but at each effort the thin ice broke beneath his weight.

Miss Ditson tied a piece of rope about an extra tire which she carried and tossed the improvised life preserver to the man. He got it under his shoulders, but a new difficulty arose, for Miss Ditson found that she could not haul him out. She solved this problem by fastening the rope to her automobile.

Jumping into her machine, she switched on the power and soon had Young safely on the shore. Then she drove him to the home of his uncle in Cedar Grove.

DYING JAP SAVES TRAIN.

Shot by Mexicans, Loyal Section Foreman's Last Thought Is Duty.

Mortally wounded by a pistol shot, Kihara, a Japanese section foreman, used the last of his strength to set a torpedo on the tracks of the Salt Lake route near Milford, Utah, to save the eastbound Pacific limited train from possible wreck.

Kihara was shot in the abdomen by Mexicans, who composed his force. They fled, leaving the handcar on the rails. The wounded man tried in vain to remove the car, then dragged himself down the track with a torpedo. The train stopped in response to the signal and carried Kihara to Milford, where he died.

The briefest will ever filed with Surrogate Sawyer of Westchester county, N. Y., is that of Mrs. Bridget Dermody of New Rochelle, which was placed on record at White Plains. The will was written by the testatrix on a sheet of note paper and is as follows:

Feb. 3, 1915. I do hereby leave all my property and what I possess to my son, James Dermody. This is my last will.
BRIDGET DERMODY.

UNTIMELY DEATH OF MISS LEOLA FOSTER

Another family in our midst has been visited the past week by that grim reaper, Death, and forced to part with one who was most dear to their hearts. Miss Leola Margaret Foster, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Foster, after but a few days illness with pneumonia, passed away at her home Friday, February 26.

Miss Foster was well known in Port Angeles, where she had lived most of her life and her untimely death caused sorrow to many hearts. She was an exceptionally bright girl with a happy, cheerful disposition, which made many friends for her. She was a graduate of our city schools, with the class of 1911, finishing when she was just seventeen, afterward she graduated from one of the Seattle business colleges, taking a full commercial course.

Funeral services were held at the Fulmer Undertaking Parlors, Monday, March 1, and were largely attended by sympathizing friends and acquaintances of the family. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful.

Rev. Fulmer's address was filled with words of comfort to the grief stricken family, and of praise for the deceased, whom he had known from childhood. Former school and class mates were honorary pall bearers.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this way of offering our heartfelt thanks to our many kind friends for their aid and sympathy and also for the many and beautiful floral offerings given in remembrance of our loved daughter Leola.

Remember it is your duty as well as privilege to vote.

CORN BREAD AND BEANS— AT HARD TIMES SOCIAL

The hard times social given at the Congregational church last Saturday evening was a very jolly affair. Old clothes and patches seem to put the young people in a most amicable frame of mind and corn bread and beans tasted better than ice cream and cake. Strange how circumstances change our viewpoint.

BELIEVED EPIDEMIC IS DUE TO LACK OF RAIN

Whether or not the epidemic of pneumonia we are having in Port Angeles at the present time really is infectious or contagious, or is due to the extraordinary weather conditions, was discussed at some length by the members of the Board of County Commissioners and Dr. W. J. Taylor, county health officer, sitting as the Board of Health Wednesday. The meeting was brought about by County Superintendent Geisness, who believed that 21 deaths since the first of January, more than we have ever had in a like time, warranted immediate investigation and attention.

Dr. Taylor stated he had had fifteen severe cases, all of which he had diagnosed as bronchial pneumonia, and had lost none. He did not consider it contagious and was very doubtful if it were infectious. He believed the people of Seattle and all other portions of the Northwest were having the same character of epidemic.

The rainfall this winter had been way below normal. Since the four days of heavy rain in October we have had scarcely any rain and no wind. Being out every day in his buggy, he has been in a position to note the difference; only about twice this winter has he had to raise his buggy top. He believed that when we have a continued rainy spell the trouble will be over, and not until then. Regarding the condition of the city as to sewage, he had made a thoro investigation and reported numerous cases of neglect to the city council; they had ordered the places put in sanitary condition but had not enforced their mandates. The city, he believed, was moving very slowly in the matter of providing sewer systems and a number of the citizens were equally negligent in caring for their premises.

Chairman Hansen then stated the case in a nutshell, saying that while there was objection in certain quarters to the undesirable publicity that might result from calling in the state officials, for his part he did not want people to come here to locate if local conditions were prejudicial to health and that he believed our first duty was to our own people.

The Board then passed a resolution asking an investigation by the state health officer, who, having been wired, is expected within a day or two.

MRS. ANNA BOYD DIES AT HOME OF DAUGHTER

Mrs. Anna Boyd passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. A. Albertson, Saturday noon, February 22th, at the age of 75 years. Deceased had been in poor health for the past year, being confined to her home most of the time. She had been a resident of Port Angeles for fourteen years and made a host of friends, and was beloved by all who knew her. A private funeral was held at McKee and La Flower's Chapel, at 11 a. m., Monday morning. Reverend Stephen Smith officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the Ocean View Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks for the many kind thoughts and words of sympathy extended to us in our hour of bereavement, and also we wish to thank the W. R. C. and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Fulmer for the beautiful floral offerings sent to us.

"CITY OF ANGELES" UNDERGOES CHANGES

The home steamer "City of Angeles" has been greatly improved by the enlargement of the ladies cabin, which offers better conveniences for the day passengers. Leaving Angeles as she does now, just at noon, gets the passengers into Seattle in plenty of time for dinner and with every opportunity to take in the shows and other attractions the city offers. The little steamer is being well patronized and has built up a splendid passenger and freight business in spite of keen competition. Note for her new time schedule.

IT'S GOT MY GOAT

By O. Stockmar.

In this grand little town of P. A.
The place is now booming they say,
The lumber they're bringing
To saw mills a-singing,
And all things are humming—
But hey—
It's got my goat.

A great place is this dear old P. A.
Where many things happen each day.
The streets they're improving,
And a house they are moving
For a new business building,
I swan—
It's gettin' my goat.

We all love this climate P. A.
And can't wait until April or May
For sewers a-flowing,
And grass that needs mowing,
Our health we are parting
I say—
I'm losin' my goat.

We leave this for you dear P. A.
Do you want a clean city—or nay?
Just do your spring cleaning
With one thought and meaning,
While leaves are a-greening—
And dump it all into the bay.
I've lost my goat.

INVITATIONS FOR BIG BALL ISSUED NEXT WEEK

Invitations for the St. Patrick's Ball to be given in the opera house the evening of March 17, will be issued next week and all plans are being made to make it the most brilliant social event of the year. The Library Association are working hard to get the assessment on the library lot paid off as soon as possible, and this is the first opportunity they have had for some time to give a large entertainment and they earnestly ask for the co-operation and assistance of all public spirited citizens. Tables and cards will be provided for those who prefer to play cards instead of dancing and some choice vocal selections will be rendered during the evening, consisting of some of the favorite Irish songs and ballads.

DUNGENESS PIONEER PASSED AWAY

Robert Wood, a Leading Farmer of Dungeness, and an Honored, Worthy Citizen.

There passed away at the Sister's Hospital in Port Townsend on February 28, Mr. Robert M. Wood, one of the oldest and most highly esteemed citizens of Clalam county.

Born in Port Chillipa, Nova Scotia, seventy-two years ago, Mr. Wood, or "Bob," as he was familiarly known to his friends and that included all those who knew him, had already passed the alloted span of human life, although very few, even of his most intimate friends ever thought of him as old, due no doubt, to his unfailingly, cheerful attitude under all conditions and circumstances. This is the more remarkable, as he had suffered great physical pain for long, long years. Mr. Wood was a man of sterling qualities, kindly and generous, always ready to extend a helping hand to those who were needy.

In passing away, death has deprived us of an honored and worthy citizen whose place in the community will be hard to fill.

His early life was passed on a farm in his native land, but later he turned his attention to lumbering and was attracted to Puget Sound by its possibilities in that line. In 1869 Mr. Wood located in Clallam county, and shortly after started work for the Port Discovery Mill Co., one of the large lumber concerns of that time. After some years with this company, his inclinations again led him back to farm life, which resulted in his purchasing what is known as the Wood's place, which though unimproved at the time of purchase, has by his business acumen, persisttance and untiring energy, been transformed into one of the most valuable and fertile farms of the county.

Mr. Wood was married in 1875 to Miss Nellie Martin of Dungeness, whose death preceded him about two years ago. He leaves two sons to mourn his loss, Hayzen and Charlie, an aunt, Mrs. C. N. Thompson of Dungeness and a cousin, Mrs. H. J. Lipsett of Port Ludlow.

The funeral services were held in the Methodist Church in Dungeness, the Rev. Johnson officiating. The singing by the choir was very beautifully rendered and the sermon very appropriate. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

The pall bearers, like the deceased, were old pioneers and men who had worked with him in the woods in the early days, viz: Thomas Evans, John Knapman, Fred Ward, Thomas Knoph, David Govan and William Wooding.

Friend Bob, you have crossed the dark river and entered the shadows of the Great Beyond. Your old time friends of the old railroad camp will miss your kindly stories, your cheerful smile, your friendly hand-shake, but your memory will stay with them as long as life shall last. Good bye "Bob." Peace, Peace be with you.

YOEMENY CELEBRATE THEIR 18TH ANNIVERSARY

Mt. Angeles Homestead 985, B. A. Y., celebrated the 18th anniversary of Yomenry Tuesday evening in the large I. O. O. F. Hall. Lady Rowena and her committees furnished the sixty and more present with a most delightful evening.

A good program was rendered and a bountiful supper served. The program was as follows: Opening Remarks, Fred Cooper; Reading, Grand Foreman's Anniversary Proclamation, Mrs. MacKechnie; Violin Solo, (Abbie MacKechnie, accompanist), E. H. Isabell; Reading, Lucy MacKechnie; Piano Solo, Jack Cosser; Reading, Miss Wiggins; Solo, Byron Brock; Reading, Mrs. Mary Hopf; Piano Solo, Polly Hopf; Closing Remarks, District Manager E. L. Snyder.

The Sunday Seattle papers contained the following announcement of the engagement of Miss Porter, the present musical instructor in the Angeles schools.

Mrs. G. M. Porter announces the engagement of her daughter Miss Ethel Mae to Earnest Potter of San Francisco. Her wedding will take place in the near future. She was a student at the University and a member of the Alpha Chi Omega sorority and was popular in musical circles at the U, where she took many leading parts.

ANNOUNCEMENT

To Taxpayers, Parents, and all interested in the best welfare of the schools of Port Angeles.

At the solicitation of a great number of citizens, I wish to announce that I will be a candidate for re-election as school director of district No. 7 on March 6th.

During the period of my directorate we have erected and equipped a fine modern school, have added a number of new departments, and the school system is now rated as one of the best in the state of Washington. Other improvements are contemplated, but our main work now is to adequately provide for the great number of new children constantly coming in. We now require Normal graduates in the grades, and University graduates in the High School.

If re-elected it will be my constant aim to maintain and increase the efficiency of all schools in this district to the utmost of my ability, consistent with strict economy.

DR. McGILLIVRAY.

ANNOUNCEMENT

At the school election to be held Saturday, March 6, I wish to announce that I will be a candidate for the one year term.

STEPHEN SMITH.

O. A. Pettit announces himself as a candidate for the one year term of school director of city schools at the election to be held Saturday, March 6.

FORMER ANGELES MEN ARRESTED FOR ARSON

Two former Port Angeles men, Hugh Priest and Thomas Patterson, are under inditement in the Portland, Oregon, court for burning the mill of the L. B. Menefee Lumber Co., on the night of February 16th. Patterson and Priest or Patterson and Smith, as they were known in Portland, went from Angeles about February 1st, and were employed by the mill company. The union maintained a picket line about a week, and finally a settlement was reached and the differences adjusted and to all appearances, things were coming along smoothly enough.

On the night of February 16, fire started in about seven or eight different places in the mill, and an examination proved beyond doubt, that the fire was started by the use of phosphorus. Suspicion pointed to Peterson and Priest and they were finally arrested on this charge. Priest's hand was badly burned. A bottle containing evidence of phosphorus was found in Patterson and Priest's room, and other circumstances clearly indicate that these men are the guilty parties.
