CLAIM ASSIGNMENT MADE WITHOUT CONSIDERATION

ITALIAN FIRM MAY BRING SUIT

Antonio del Guzzo and C. W. Coit, the successful bidders on the east end grading work, presented at the council meeting Tuesday a protest against the acceptance of any assignment of their contract with the city to Lindsay & Redden, and stating that they were able and willing to proceed in carrying out the contract, asked to be allowed to do so.

Del Guzzo and Coit assert that the assignment of August 2nd was made at the request of Lindsay & Redden, who had been acting as their attorneys, under an agreement whereby they had agreed to pay said attorneys a large sum of money for their services, and that the assignment was made without any consideration whatever and upon the insistent demand of Lindsay & Redden that the assignment be executed. Del Guzzo and Coit further assert in their protest that they were given the alternative of paying to Lindsay & Redden for their services a sum greatly disproportionate and in excess of the value of said services, although at the time no money was due from them to Lindsay & Redden. They further stated they had been advised that the assignment is not only void for want of consideration but is invalid in law and of no effect.

The protest was filed and Lindsay & Redden's bond of $47,000 accepted.

An ordinance providing for a lateral sewer along the alley between blocks 35 and 36 and one along Caroline street to accommodate block 33, both connecting with the Francis street trunk sewer, was passed.

Three ordinances were introduced, given two readings and referred:

Authorizing the issuance and sale of local improvement bonds to pay the cost and expense of the improvement of First from the west line of Peabody to center line of Lincoln by constructing thereon a subsewer.

Confirming the assessments and assessment roll for L. I. D. No. 29 for the cost of a lateral or subsewer along Front street from the westerly line of Vine to Lincoln street.

Authorizing the issuance and sale of local improvement bonds of Lincoln street from the north line of 3rd street to Broadway.

Lindsay & Redden requested that buildings on Eunice street between Front and First be removed as it would otherwise be impossible to grade the street to full width.

Ordered that a warrant for $509 be drawn in full satisfaction of the balance due on the judgment of Ray L. McKinney for injury received at Valley street.

City attorney instructed to draw up two ordinances providing for improvement of I street and starting condemnation proceedings on the property to be crossed.

Sidewalk ordered on both sides of Fifth between Laurel and Oak.

Frank Plummer was granted a permit to build a one-story house, 30x41 on lots 15 and 16, block 265, Ninth near Cherry, cost $1,500.

D. E. Zent obtained a permit for an $1,800 house, of the same size, on lot 4, block 87, Fourth between Oak and Cherry.

Hear Ye the Words of Wisdom

Nels Darling, expert on town and community building, and one of the best informed men in the country on these matters, recently spoke at the chatauqua in Raymond, Washington. Mr. Darling calls himself the "town doctor" and below we publish a few of the stray jolts he handed out:

"Most of the people who say they can't buy what they want at home wouldn't be satisfied in New York City."

"The power of anticipation makes some people patronize mail order houses. They do it hoping that what they get will be a little better than the catalogue says it will be. Others do it because they like to write out orders and feel the pleasure of doing business."

"No catalogue house ever sold pure paint. I have tested hundreds of samples from mail order houses and not one of them contained pure linseed oil and pure lead."

"Twenty year guaranteed watch cases sold by catalogue houses are ten year cases in reality."

"Submit your list of proposed mail order purchases to your local dealers and save money. A man saves ten per cent on his groceries by buying in quantity at home."

"The trouble is that most people buy in small quantities of their home merchant and in bulk out of town."—Kent Journal.

THE CROAKER

(Our Compliments to the Herald)

Once on the aidge of a pleasant pool,
Under the bank where 'twas dark and cool,
Where bushes over the water hung,
And rushes nodded and grasses swung,
Jest where the crick flowed outer the bog,
There lived a grumpy and mean ole frog,
Who'd set all day in the mud and soak
And jest do nothin' but croak and croak.
Till a blackbird hollered, "I say, yer know,
What is the matter down there below?
Are you in trouble, er pain, er what?
The frog sez, "Mine is a orful lot;
Nothin' but mud and dirt and slime
For me ter look at jest all the time.
It's a dirty world!" so the ole fool spoke,
"Croakity - croakity - croakity - croak!"
"But yer lookin' down!" the blackbird said;
"Look at the blossoms overhead,
Look at the lovely summer skies,
Look at the bees and butterflies;
Look up, ole feller. Why, bless your soul,
Yer lookin' down in a musrat hole!"
But still with a gurglin' sob and choke
The blamed ole critter would only croak.
And a wise ole turtle, who boarded near,
Sez to the blackbird, "Friend, see here:
Don't shed no tears over him, fer he
Is low down jest 'cause he likes ter be;
He's one er them kind er chumps that's glad
Ter be so mis'rable-like an' sad;
I'll tell yer somethin' that ain't no joke,
Don't waste yer sorrer on folks that croak."

FARMERS' INSTITUTE TO BE HELD NEXT TUESDAY

SPECIAL INTEREST TO WOMEN

Arrangements for the Clallam County Farmers' Institute have been completed by the Port Angeles Commercial Club. The Institute will be held in the Port Angeles Opera House on Tuesday, August 31, beginning at 10 a. m. and closing with motion-picture demonstrations of the work at the state agricultural college in the evening. Director James A. Torney of the Extension Department of the State College of Washington, Pullman, will personally conduct the institute, assisted by four of the professors of the College.

The program offers promise of immense value, as it includes practically all the larger phases of farm management and development most important to this county, as well as two periods devoted to home economics, which will appeal as strongly to the women of the city as to those of the farm homes. The program follows:

FARMERS' INSTITUTE PROGRAM

Tuesday, August 31, 1915.

10:00 a.m. "Care of Farm Animals" by James N. Price, dairy and livestolk specialist. This will be in the nature of an open discussion of local livestock problems.

11:00 a.m. "Labor-saving Devices in the Home" by Mary E. Sutherland, specialist in home economics.

1:30 p.m. "Poultry Talk" by Mrs. Helen Dow Whitaker, head of division of poultry.

2:30 p.m. "Home Economics—Demonstration" by Mary E. Sutherland.

3:30 p.m. "Horticulture" by J. L. Stahl, horticultural specialist.

8:00 p.m. "Moving Pictures"—showing the various branches and activities of the State College of Washington.

There will be no charge for admission, nor for any advice or consultation desired by any citizen of Clallam county.

It is expected that the producers of Clallam county will take advantage of this unusually profitable opportunity and it is hoped at the same time to come to a final understanding on the final arrangements for the Clallam County Fair to be held in this city on September 23, 24 and 25.

LACY TIMBER SUIT TO BE CALLED WEDNESDAY

J. E. Frost has been in Port Angeles this week lining up the county's evidence in the suit brought by the Lacy Timber interests for lower assessment. Trial has been set for next Wednesday, September 1st. County Commissioners Hansen, Clark and Dick,, Ex-commissioner Lotzgesell, Assessor Prickett and Ex-Assessor Hallahan, Treasurer Wood and Ex-Treasurer Babcock will be in attendance, as also will C. L. Haggith, G. M. Lauridsen, Lewis Levy and several expert timber men, the latter going as witnesses for this county. The Lacy people claim their assessment of 80c is too high in comparison with other timber lands and other classes of property and are asking a reduction to 60c. The county claims the assessment should really be at the dollar rate. The annual tax is about $55,000.

The Knocker tells the rancher that the "road of olden times which was passable during good weather" is good enough for him. Perhaps so, perhaps so, but as he is just getting his first good roads after paying taxes for 30 years, it would be hard to convince him that such is the fact.

BRUSH FIRES ENDANGER HOMES ON BOULEVARD

Hardly had State Forester E. W. Ferris congratulated himself and the people of the state over the fact that fire losses had been only 5 per cent of those sustained during 1914, when a dense pall of smoke settled down over the entire Puget Sound country, and even for a distance of 250 miles north of the international boundary line there has, until the last two or three days, been no rift in the dense pall. Vancouver and Bellingham have been the principal sufferers, lumber mills, shingle mills, schools, dwelling houses and barns having been wiped out. Telephone and telegraph lines are down in every direction.

Many families after having fought the fire up to the last moment were compelled to flee with such household effects as could be loaded onto the wagons and in one or more instances even the loaded wagons were abandoned, the ranchers being gl d to get out of it alive on their horses' backs.

Here at Port Angeles the dense smoke, contrary to general custom, has not come from fires set by the logging roads but from those burning on private property. Those on the Port Crescent hill and on the

Although the amount of building and improvement work has slackened somewhat throughout the country the past few months, the city of Port Angeles can still boast of rapid growth and development. Just now the center of interest is in the construction of one of the largest enclosed natatoriums on the Pacific coast, being that of Davis & Woods, which will be erected on the west side of their immense dance hall on Front street extension, between Cherry and Valley.

The pool itself, sloping from a depth of four to twelve feet, will be constructed entirely of concrete, set on the naturally sloping beach. This will save the builders considerable expense. Its size will be 50x100 feet and will be enclosed with sides and roof similar to that of the dance hall. It is to be up-to-date in every respect, will contain heated water and showers for men and women. The actual construction work will begin within 30 days.

On Saturday, September 4, the largest dance hall on the peninsula will be opened unofficially to the public. There will also be dancing Labor Day, when Davis & Woods expect to have a five-piece orchestra playing in the evening. The hall will be officially opened after two or three dances have been held on the floor.

A double floor is being laid, the dancing floor of the best rock maple, cut in four foot strips, which alone cost $800. The joists upon which the floor was constructed are 4x12 fir planks, making the building very substantial. There is not a single post or column holding up the roof, which of course makes dancing a delight. There is a rest room for the ladies and a smoking room for the men. A balcony circles the entire four sides of the hall and is elevated at a height of twelve feet. Nitrogen electric lights will be used. These lights are becoming very popular because of the white rays which they throw. A refreshment and card room are directly behind the front Balcony. Taken all in all a more complete dancing pavilion could not be built nor found at the present time on the west coast, so Port Angeles should be well satisfied with its newest place of enjoyment.

The Knocker, owned by and published in the interest of the timber men and wildcat speculators, has discarded its pretense of deep concern for the rancher and comes out this week in its true colors, using six columns of space in an appeal for the relief of the poor speculator.

It denies that there are dairying districts in Clallam county aside from those of Sequim and Forks and says the building of branch roads to dairy farming centers is "not required and is a very unjust charge on the property owners in those districts."

It quotes Chairman Hansen as saying various things which he did not say, and then proceeds to knock down the straw men thus set up. Exaggeration, misrepresentation and plain, unvarnished lying are to be expected of the Knocker, but they will accomplish nothing more than to give this community a most undesirable and unwarranted line of advertising.

The speculators bought their holdings at a time when assessments and taxes were very low, and such

NEW SCHEDULE FOR THE SIOUX

Effective Monday, August 30th, the schedule of the steamer Sioux will be changed to leaving Port Angeles at 7:00 a. m., daily except Sunday, calling at all points on the route and arriving at Seattle 1:00 p. m. Returning she will leave Seattle at 6:00 p. m., daily, except Saturday, making the usual calls and arrive at Port Angeles 11:30 p. m. This will afford a double daily service between Olympic Peninsula points and Seattle and will make it possible to visit Seattle, transact business and return the same day with a small loss of time and at a minimum cost.

DRUMHELLER TO BE COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS

F. C. Harper, who has been collector of customs of the Puget Sound district for several years, will be succeeded by R. M. Drumheller of Walla Walla, leading democrat and compromise candidate for the position.

ACTIVITIES OF THE STATE'S DEPARTMENTS

Olympia, August 24.—Stopping what it considered an unfair practice from the subscribers' standpoint, the public service commission has issued a sweeping order forbidding telephone companies in the state exacting deposits from subscribers to secure payment of bills and observance of contracts with the phone companies for service.

The order applies to 159 telephone companies in the state, of which 12 were practicing the system now forbidden. The largest corporations affected are the Bell companies, which have been holding the subscribers' deposits amounting to $58,000 in the state of Washington. It is estimated that the amount of money to be returned to subscribers by the 12 companies which have required deposits will be over $100,000. This must be returned within 20 days under the order.

The commission's order puts in effect rules governing collection of bills also. Companies may collect bills in advance, as they have been doing and may shut off service of any subscriber who does not pay by the tenth of the month, ten days after the bill falls due in advance on the first of the month. Companies are permitted to collect two months' telephone bill in advance on the initial installation of a telephone, but such advance collection shall not exceed $5.

The rules were formulated after a hearing at which the commission heard the evidence and arguments of the telephone interests.

The state tax commission has won two important victories in the supreme court in the matter of estates which the commission believed should be escheated to the state and in which hard fights were put up by alleged heirs.

In the estate of Theodore Miller of Spokane, who died in California in 1911, leaving $7,000 cash in the bank, sets of supposed heirs from European countries and all parts of the United States laid claim to the money. The tax commission secured the escheat of the estate before Superior Judge Sullivan at Spokane, being opposed by about 20 lawyers, representing the alleged heirs. Three sets of heirs, from Kentucky, New York and Idaho, appealed to the supreme court, which affirmed Judge Sullivan.

In Ferry county it was attempted to probate a defective written will of C. T. Warren, leaving a $5,000 estate to persons who were not of his blood. When the court refused to accept this will it was attempted to probate a nuncupative will, incorporating a dying statement of Warren leaving the property to the same persons. The lower court upheld the tax commission's contention for an escheat of the estate, and this is affirmed by the supreme court.

Labor Commissioner Edward W. Olson has been honored by being placed on a committee of 12 labor commissioners and public labor agents from all parts of the United States, to confer with United States Secretary of Labor W. B. Wilson from time to time on problems and matters of importance to labor of the United States.

The committee is composed of four state labor commissioners, four government employment agents and four city labor agents, thus representing all classes of labor bureaus in the United States. One of the chief things to be discussed with Secretary Wilson in the near future is the free employment agency, especially important in Washington now that private agencies have been abolished.

The state board of control has named a prominent Spokane lawyer, O. J. Saville, to the position of parole officer at the state training school at Chehalis. Mr. Saville formerly was deputy prosecutor in Spokane county and made a fine record. He assumes his new duties September 1.

The position is an important one in that the work consists in watching and checking up on boys paroled from the school and finding homes and "first friends" for boys about to be released, so that they will have every opportunity to make good when freed.

An important move for the convenience and protection of the traveling public has been taken by the state public service commission. The commission has initiated an action against the railroads looking to the formation of a rule which will prevent the changing of timetables without ten days notice posted in all stations affected by any proposed change.

The almost universal practice of railroads is to place the following sentence on timetables: "This company reserves the right to alter this schedule at pleasure, without notice."

Railroads are given 20 days to object to the commission forming the order contemplated, and if any objections are made a hearing will be held. Otherwise the order will be effective in 20 days.

State Tax Commissioner J. W. Brislawn has returned from the session at San Francisco of the annual conference held under the auspices of the National Tax Association. He was appointed by Governor Lister to represent the state at the meeting and served in an important capacity as a member of the committee of five which drafted the resolutions adopted by the association.

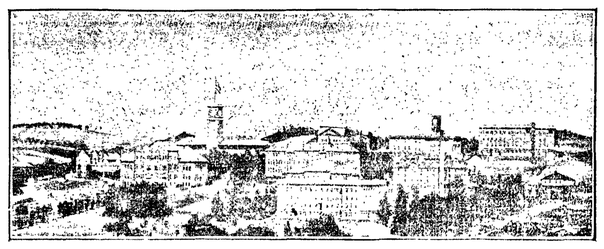
Other Washington citizens at the meeting were Ralph E. George, head of the department of economics of Whitman College, also a delegate named by the governor, and John M. Thatcher, assessor of King county, and Charles R. Collins of Seattle, unofficial delegates.

Reports received in the office of State Fish Commissioner L. W. Darwin are to the effect that Canadian fishermen are crossing the international boundary line during the night and fishing in American waters. The commissioner has dispatched one of the state's patrol boats to make an investigation.

The commissioner has called the attention of Collector of Customs F. C. Harper of Seattle to the report, to the end that he might send a United States revenue cutter there in case he sees fit.

The American fishermen complain bitterly because of the fact that the moment an American fishing boat crosses into British Columbia waters it is promptly seized.

The department of agriculture has been successful through the state insurance commissioner in solving the problem of obtaining for commission houses the $3,000 bonds required to be filed with the state under the state law now being enforced. Bonding companies at first refused to write the bonds required and commission men had difficulty in complying with the law. The department of agriculture now announces that four or more companies will take the risk at a charge to the commission men of $5 per $1000. The department therefore will no longer accept the excuse for failure to comply with the law that the bonds cannot be obtained.



THE STATE COLLEGE OF WASHINGTON.

The above view of the campus of the State College, showing the two new buildings, canot help but cause a feeling of pride to surge through the heart of every citizen of the state. That we should have an agricultural school in this young and sparsely populated state, which compares favorably in wealth, buildings and usefulness with the older institutions of the East, is surely a matter in which we can take pride. High school students cannot do better than choose our Pullman institution for carrying on their education.

ABOUT BEING "DUNNED"

The Rockford, Illinois, Register thus sensibly explains a matter that many people look at through the wrong glasses:

Some folks seem to entertain an odd idea when it comes to receiving statements from other people whom they are owing—in more common language, "being dunned." It is possible that folks of this sensitive nature do not know that the business men or others who send them statements of account always receive such statements from the houses with which they do business. If the account is paid within a specified time, a cash discount is usually allowed. If the account is not paid by the first of the month following, a second dun is sent, while if it is not paid by the fifteenth, the account is sent to the local bank for collection in the shape of a sight draft. The folks who manufacture the stuff that the merchants buy have to have pay for the goods they sell, and it follows pretty naturally that the merchant who sells the same goods to the local consumer has to have pay for the things he sells if he is to stay in business. A truth that a good many people ought to take to heart somewhat seriously is that the breach of etiquette in this dunning business, if there is one, is not made by the person who sends the dun but by the person who has let an account run so long that a dun is necessary.

The August haze which makes brass of the sun, copper of the moon, and fills the nostrils with the biting tang of fir incense, is not an omen of waste and neglect altogether, by any means. Much of it is due to the use of burning permits; it is the time of year, just before the first rains, when the farmers are increasing their tillable acreage. They are burning away the stumps and brush, preparing for the plow. An accidental fire, filling the air with smoke, is taken as the signal that now is the time, and the match is applied to all nearby slashings. The more smoke, the more butter; the more farmers, the better the community. It is just as logical as it is smokey.

"Nothing the allies have done has lightened by a feather's weight the pressure maintained on Russia," says the Petrograd correspondent of the London Post, which bears out, in a way, the joke now going the rounds to the effect that England will fight until the last Russian, Frenchman, Italian, Belgian and Serbian is dead!

The Russians have good grounds for joy over the victory at Riga. It was a job well done, and somewhat of a surprise to the world.

"It would seem that President Wilson can hardly ignore this cool defiance of his recent note," says the London Standard, of the Arabic incident. This is in line with the taunts of all the English papers. They are humorously diffident for the moment on the "cool defiance" of the latest English note to this government, which practically told President Wilson that English violation of the rules of the sea is not a matter that need deeply concern him.

A CYCLONE OF PRUNES

John Schweitzer has a prune tree, an old tree with a trunk six inches in diameter, which broke square off one day last week under the immense weight of the "millions of prunes" which it carried. Many trees throughout the city are loaded to the breaking point of the limbs, all of which have to be propped up, but for the trunk of the tree to snap off with a noise loud enough to wake up the family, wondering if a cyclone had passed through the yard, is rather unusual.

THE SUPERIOR COURT

The Superior Court Thursday last heard the application of Peter Grubb for the appointment of a Receiver for the Port Angeles Transportation Co., owners of the steamer City of Angeles, which has, as the most casual observer must have noticed, been up against pretty stiff opposition for some months past. Mr. Grubb alleges in his complaint that the steamer is the chief asset of the company and worth not to exceed $30,000, that he has a claim of $6,-095 unsecured, that there is a mortgage for $7500, and that the company is in debt to the extent of $12,-000 additional. That unless a Receiver is named to conserve the assets they will be sacrificed by reason of their not being easily sold, as creditors are pushing their claims, especially a certain pledge, undoubtedly the bonding company holding the Janecke interests. Testimony of the president A. I. Filion was taken, and the debt and conditions acknowledged. It was also shown that the appointment of G. M. Lauridsen as such receiver would be satisfactory to all creditors of the defendant corporation, and he was thereupon appointed and directed to continue the operation of the steamer pending further orders of the court. His bond was fixed at $5000. Mr. Lauridsen qualified at once. It is said the Receivership will be quickly wound up and that the creditors will be paid in full.

The charge against George and Robert Priest has been changed to selling liquors without a license, and the other case dismissed. Like in former case they plead not guilty, and their counsel pleads an estoppel by reason of the dismissal of the former charge, which the Prosecutor scorns. The plea of bar to further prosecution will be argued at next term of court. Defendants were released under bonds of $500.

G. S. Stirtan, convicted some weeks ago in Justice Severyn's court, of dismantling a sewing machine, taking the parts and rendering the machine worthless, has appealed to the Superior Court and will be given a hearing at the coming jury term.

The next term of the Superior Court will be held August 30 and 31, followed by September 7 to 10, and 14 to 24. All cases to be tried by jury, some 16 to 20 in number will be set for trial on September 7, the jury term commencing September 14, at 9 a. m.

B. E. Tilden vs. Nellie A. Glasford, promissory note.

The boys out on the Elwha have a new one on Garfield Davis, the city farmer, as they call him. It seems Garf is rather tidy by nature and insists on having things kept clean. Every Monday a wagon load of sawdust is brought out for use as bedding—and it was this that caused the trouble. Going out into the stable late in the evening, after giving the family a day off to visit friends, Garf mixed up a nice mash out of the sawdust box by mistake and fed it to the cows. They merely supposing that the hard times had come and they were all going to economize, meekly ate their supper and Garf never discovered his mistake until milking time the next morning, when the first cow let down a half gallon of turpentine, a quart of shoe pegs and a bundle of lath.

Farmers have found a new use for the automobile. They back their motors up to a gopher or woodchuck burrow and, through a hose, slip large quantities of gas exhaust from the engine to the farm pests. One sniff, they say, is about all that is necessary. Wonder how it would work on the mountain beavers, or chehalis, which infest every hillside and are undermining so many of the outlying roads?

An English writer declares that the English army of 750,000 is really 4,000,000. Maybe, but its fighting like 750,000—or less.

There are some who think the kaiser will have difficulty in getting his eastern armies back to the border, but maybe he doesn't intend to.

SWAT THE WEEDS

Timely warning is given by the botanist of the state agricultural experiment station at Pullman of the menace of noxious weeds to next year's crops. Nature has varied and complete facilities for transporting weed-seeds to new beds that will produce prolifically. Neglect now will cause untold drudgery hereafter, to say nothing of the loss they cause by drawing substance from the sail, says the Tacoma News.

Fence corners, the roadside and unused land are nurseries for millions of weed seeds and they never know a crop failure. No matter how vigilant the tiller of the soil has been in keeping weeds out, the work will have to be done in increased measure next year unless attention is given to the breeding places of the pests. The law makes it a duty. The minimum penalty for permitting weeds to ripen and go to seed is $20 and costs.

The burden of controlling the weed pests is not alone on the property owner or occupant of the land. The law makes county road supervisors and foremen responsible for the destruction of weeds along the public highways. A casual observation along the roads must show that some of the officials have forgotten.

It has been found that the most effective time to "swat the fly" is before the egg is hatched, and the time to swat the weeds is before the seed ripens. This is a case where an ounce of prevention is worth a ton of cure.

SCHOOL DISTRICT AT SEQUIM IS CENSURED

School district No. 302, at Sequim, Clallam county, has violated the law in not keeping its expenses within its revenues, according to a report of an audit of the district by the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices. This district is warned against letting this happen again and in making estimates of expenditures which it will take more than 10 mills to raise, as this is the limit allowed except by a vote of the people.

350 PEOPLE ENJOY MARINE BAND EXCURSION

One of the most successful excursions of the season was held last Sunday morning by the Port Angeles Marine Band. Over 340 people enjoyed the boat ride on the steamer Sioux to Seattle. About 50 people were turned away from the ticket office at the Peoples' Wharf, due to the limited capacity of the Sioux, which is 350. Many of the joyous crowd, after arriving in Seattle, went out to the Alki bathing beach, where they all had a bath in the surf. Others stayed in the city and enjoyed the many theaters. Only about one-third of the excursionists returned to Angeles on the Sioux, the other two-thirds leaving Seattle at 12 o'clock Sunday night on the Sol Duc. Not a stateroom or a berth was left when the Sol Duc steamed away from the Colman dock in Seattle.

Sunday, August 29, the Puget Sound Navigation Company will run an excursion to Bremerton. The round trip fare will be $1. Sunday, September 5th, the Port Angeles Marine Band will give another excursion to Seattle. The S. S. Chippewa will most likely be chartered so that there will be room for a large crowd and also better accommodations. This trip bids fair to outclass any other held around the Sound for many a day.

NOT TOO STRAIGHT.

Paths that are both straight and narrow
Keep the feet that long to stray.
Let your course be like the arrow,
Holding to the certain way.
Yet, my brother, walk not blindly
In your tense and righteous pride.
For the deed that's fine and kindly
Never fear to turn aside.

If a brother, weak and willful,
Stumbles from the beaten path,
Though your steps are firm and skillful,
Do not turn from him in wrath.
Stretch a hand and raise and cheer him.
Do not scorn him, do not chide.
If the straight path isn't near him
Never fear to turn aside.

RAPID INCREASE IN ANGELES' POPULATION

"Never quite so happy in our lives" is what "grandma and grandpa Stakemiller" say about the arrival of that first grandchild, born to their daughter Mrs. John Willson, last Sunday morning. He is named Charles Robert Willson, in honor of his two grandfathers. Mother and baby are both doing nicely.

Just arrived! On Wednesday morning of this week a bran-new Overland salesman arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Fred Bishop. Mother and son are doing nicely—and father—?—well, he's passing the cigars and wearing that "just sold another Overland" smile. We extend congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ustler had a nine pound girl arrive at their home Monday, August 23rd.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Clark had a 9½ pound baby girl born to them last Wednesday, August 18th.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Lewis became the parents of a baby girl last Friday, August 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Schaible have a twelve pound boy, born the 13th.

Dr. McGillivray and his faithful Ford car have at last parted company and we hardly recognize the Doctor in his new Dodge.

Bushels of 5 cent articles at Brewster's 5, 10 and 25 cent store.

Mrs. Anna McNeil, the popular milliner for the Leader Department store, will return Sunday from Seattle where she has been studying the fall and winter styles and trimming in the large wholesale house. She will have her hats on display next week and a more handsome or better selected stock cannot be found in any town of its size in the state. The Angeles ladies are indeed fortunate to have the services of a milliner of Mrs. McNeil's ability as she is considered one of the very best by the wholesale houses.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Paulson spent the week end at the Olympic Hot Springs, returning Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Paulson were given a grand chiveri by the guests at the springs Saturday evening.

THE RETIREMENT OF DR. E. A. BRYAN AT PULLMAN

Resigns From Presidency of State College After Twenty-two Years' Continuous Service.

The approaching retirement of Dr. E. A. Bryan from the Presidency of the State College of Washington brings to mind the resources in educational equipment which the institution and the state owe to him.

Oddly enough, not a building now is on the Campus that was standing when Dr. Bryan arrived in 1893. Then the institution had one rather questionably built dormitory — old Ferry Hall, burned down in the later nineties —and less than $18,000 in buildings for instructional and experimental purposes. There was a scant $10,000 invested in working equipment. The College Farm had never seen a crop of corn, alfalfa or red clover. Agricultural experimentation of any kind was scarcely begun.

DR. E. A. BRYAN.

[He has served for thirty-five consecutive years as college president. Twenty-two years of this period have been devoted to the State College of Washington.]

The instructional equipment now in use by the twenty-one collegiate departments of the State College inventories slightly above $300,000. Buildings now in use and put on the Campus by President Bryan inventory at slightly above $1,000,000. In other words, the State College has developed from a $50,000 institution in 1893 to a $1,300,000 institution in 1915.

The land and timber endowment of the State College, which has been conserved rather than exploited during Mr. Bryan's administration, has reached a present value of not less than $10,000,000. Very little of this is yet realized upon. The student body now coming from all counties of Washington and all cities and towns of any size averages above 1,600, 1,300 of whom have collegiate standing. In 1893, when President Bryan arrived, there were fewer than 100 regularly enrolled students, none of whom were of collegiate rank. Few of the students were from beyond eastern Washington, and the majority came from the near vicinity of Pullman.

Of the 150 graduates of last June one-third were in different branches of agriculture. One-third also were from western Washington. Approximately 40 per cent of the present student body is from the western half of the state.

Dr. Bryan will retire in the beginning of his twenty-third year as President of the Agricultural College of Washington. He already has served longer as President of a state institution than any other man in America. Last winter in Washington, D. C., he was elected President of the American Association of Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations.

At the June meeting just past the Board of Regents named the largest and most beautiful building on the Campus "E. A. Bryan Hall." This is the library and auditorium building.

The auditorium part of the building seats 1,200 people and contains stage facilities for first class dramatic productions, which often are given. The library end of the building contains upper and lower reading rooms capable of seating hundreds, seminar rooms for advanced study and a quadruple decked, fireproof library stack containing over 60,000 volumes for student and faculty use.

WINTER SCHOOL AT PUYALLUP

At the June meeting of the Regents of the State College Superintendent W. A. Linklater of the Western Washington Experiment Station at Puyallup was made Principal of the Western Washington Winter School, which henceforth will be held annually at Puyallup. Puyallup is the seat of the Western Washington Experiment Station. The agriculturists of the Experiment Station at Puyallup and members of the State College faculty will give the major part of the instruction.

The newly established Winter School at Puyallup is to be a "school" in fact as well as name. Regular class instruction will be given upon regular enrollments. Credit will be given based on the academic preparation of the students and the character of the work done. Records of student enrollment and studies undertaken and completed will be kept at Puyallup and Pullman.

It is the purpose of the State College to co-ordinate the work of the Puyallup Summer Section—already established—the lately founded Winter School and the uninterrupted work of the Western Washington Experiment Station in a way to meet, virtually, the recommendation made last winter by U. S. Commissioner of Education P. P. Claxton in behalf of increased facilities.

FARMING HILLTOPS.

Inability to Retain Moisture Is Chief Fault of Such Places.

Experiments made to determine the important factors governing the evaporation of soil moisture show greatest losses of soil water from hilltops and the smallest, excluding shade, from the north slopes. These results were noted recently in the work of the Washington Experiment Station at Pullman. In this connection a prevalent error among farmers is pointed out.

"Most people think that the inferior crop returns from the hilltops are due to depleted soil fertility in such locations," says Professor C. C. Thom. "This, however, is unlikely to be the case. It is a question of lacking moisture. The snow melts, and the water runs down the hill. Heavy evaporation occurs during the growing season. Result, the hilltops burn and produce inferior crops.

"Farmers who apply manure to the hilltops benefit the soil, but not in the way they often believe. They think they are adding fertility to the soil. They are, of course; but, equally important in this case, they are adding humus to the soil. Humus in soil tends to check evaporation. So by manuring the hilltops farmers simply enable them to hold their soil water for the crops that grow later. We know, for instance, if non-humus fertilizers—bonemeal or acid phosphate—are added to the hilltops scant benefits are secured, showing clearly that the moisture question is of leading importance.

"If there is an insufficiency of manurial fertilizers rich in humus such of these as are available should be reserved for the hilltops. Put the commercial, or non-humus, fertilizers on the lower slopes, where moisture is more abundant."

In the course of this investigation at the State College the question arose as to why evaporation on hilltops is heavier than on the low land. To determine on this question a pole forty-five feet high was erected, and all the way to the top at intervals of several feet were placed crossarms bearing pans of water. Daily observations were taken as to rate of evaporation from the different pans. The results were somewhat surprising. Approximately twice the evaporation occurred from the top pan, forty-five feet in the air, which occurred from the pan on the ground. It was noted that there was a steady increase in the rate of evaporation as one ascended the pole.

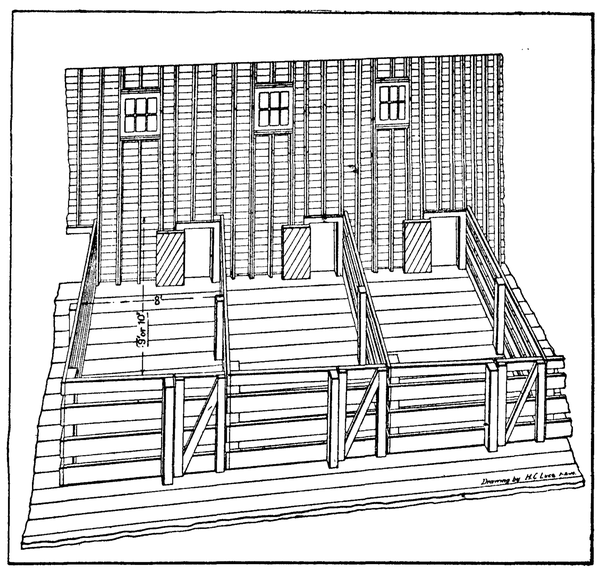
The explanation of this was sought and found. From June 5 to Sept. 5 16,000 miles of wind passed over the top pan. Six thousand miles of wind passed over the ground pan.

Thus is shown why hilltops lose their moisture so rapidly and must be safeguarded by liberal applications of humus bearing fertilizer. Their soil is situated somewhat as was the top pan on the pole, while the soil on the low land, like the ground pan above mentioned, is reached by the wind in a less degree; hence evaporation is less.

From this lesson has sprung the activity of the college in introducing windbreaks and tree plantations in the dry belt, which is annoyed by wind, soil blowing and lack of moisture. Mr. Thom declares that windbreaks properly used to check the drying sweep of the wind across the fields will more efficiently retard evaporation than will any form of mulch that can be used.

If flies are annoying about the house —as they usually are—set out a saucer of milk into which a few drops of formaldehyde have been dropped. This will slay them in hosts. A saucerful of milk treated in this way and set in a barn or dairy will quickly rid the entire building of flies. The insects seek milk in preference to almost any other food, and the formaldehyde does not make it unpalatable for them. When chickens pick up such flies they will not be injured, as the amount of the formaldehyde swallowed by the fly is too slight to affect the chicken. A good way to rid a house of flies is to shut it up and uncork a few bottles of formaldehyde. One such exposure of this drug in a room which is closed will kill the flies in it, even though a person in the room would scarcely notice the odor of the evaporating formaldehyde.

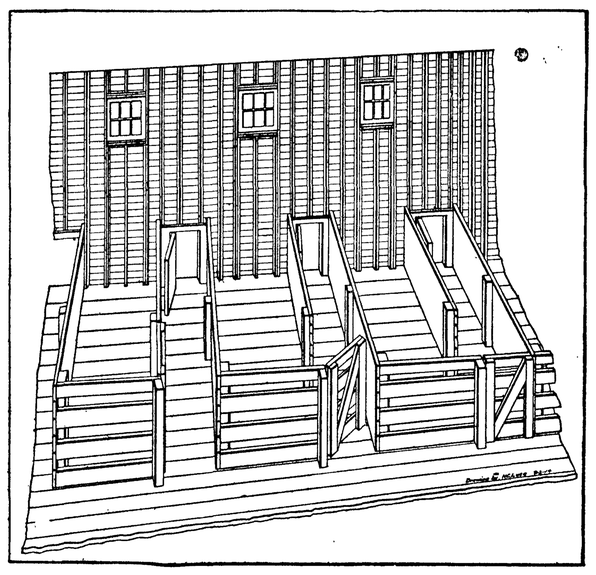
To keep pancakes from being greasy and flabby do not have the batter too thick, and be sure that the fat is piping hot.



PEN 1.—IMPROPERLY BUILT HOG HOUSE.

PEN 1 in the illustrations shows an interior view of a hog house. Hogs kept in such a house cannot get fresh air and be removed from exposure to drafts; hence rheumatism may be counted upon as a certainty.

Pen 2 shows pen 1 slightly remodeled. By the addition of a short partition leading from the right of each doorway to nearly the far end of the pen the hogs are protected from drafts. The partition is closed. Wind entering the doorway or the window higher up is made to circulate above the sleeping hogs by the solidly built partitions. Thus, while the swine get all the benefits of fresh air, they do not get the discomforts of having drafts of wind blow upon them while they are sleeping. The style of pen indicated by 2 is used on the state farm at Pullman with good results.



PEN 2.—SHOWING PEN 1 REBUILT SO AS TO PROTECT HOGS AGAINST DRAFTS.

COUNTY CLERK COSSER AT TRAINING CAMP

A. J. Cosser, clerk of court, is Port Angeles representative at the Business Men's Training Camp at American Lake, where are gathered a hundred or more "bankers, business men and society leaders," engaged in drilling eight hours daily and doing other routine work similar to that of the National Guard. The Seattle Times which published interviews yesterday with twenty of the leading participants, quotes Mr. Cosser as saying: "Had I known what I know now, there would have been many more Port Angeles men here. It is too important to be missed."

STOCKWELL HOUSE BURNED

The Stockwell house, home of Stockwell's bread, 8th and Peabody, was completely gutted by fire early Tuesday morning. The cause remains unknown but a defective flue was probably the reason for the blaze. Mrs. Stockwell was sleeping in the house and had she not been wakened by one of the nurses from the hospital across the street, she would have burned to death. The fire caught near the stove in the kitchen and spread rapidly to all parts of the place. Although the fire alarm was not turned in until the building was a mass of flames, the fire department made quick work of putting it out.

The regular meeting night of Angeles Camp No. 697., Woodmen of the World, has been changed from 1st and 3rd Wednesdays of each month. The next meeting will be the 2nd and 4th Saturdays to the Wednesday, September 1.

investments appeared especially desirable. Having, for the most part, been born and bred to city life, they cannot for the life of them see why people who live on the edges of civilization should want decent roads, schools, or improvements of any kind. But, unreasonable as it may appear to the man of wealth, the small home owner does want some of the advantages of life for himself and his family and being in a position for the first time in the history of the county where he can force the speculator to pay his proportionate share of the taxes, he proposes to have those advantages.

BRUSH FIRES ENDANGER HOMES

Govan ranch near Joyce have been the worst to the west, while an area fully a mile square has burned over directly south of the city limits. A number of families living near the Boulevard between Oak and Valley streets have been considerably worried, on occasions remaining up all night to fight back the flames. Monday night the fire department was called out to lend its assistance, there being a number of cottages set back in the brush, surrounded with a mass of inflammable stuff.

No fires have so far been reported from the National Forest and it is said the mountains are fairly free from smoke.

ABOUT OUR CLASSIFIED ADS

Generally speaking, the Olympic-Leader refuses to accept classified ads for publication when the inquirer is directed to phone or call at the newspaper office. Last week, however, we made an exception in the case of our good friend Myerding who wanted to sell his furniture and rent the house. Myerding had no phone. Up to the present time we have sent sixteen people to look at the house and presume his investment of 25c did the business. A good range advertised for sale by another party also found a buyer from among the half dozen who called. Classified advertising pays when in a paper that reaches the people.

CHARGED WITH STEALING GASOLINE TANK

The stealing of a tank of gasoline from J. A. Grossman, within an hour after he had left his launch and come up town, resulted in the arrest, yesterday, of Bill Sparks, charged with complicity in the theft. Grossman, having a record of the number of the tank, looked up Marshal Dustman and together they at once left for the spit where a brief search resulted in finding the tank hidden under an old hogshead. Immediately upon the discovery being made, a half breed in a launch near by took to his heels, easily outrunning Dustman, who got away a bad second owing to the time taken to first handcuff Sparks, the half breed's companion. The arrest being made in the reservation, the captain of the Snohomish was called upon to bring the man over to the city.

Grossman asserts he is confident these two men are but individuals of a gang of water front pirates, who have been stealing engines, pumps, oil, lights, oars and everything else removable for the past six or eight months.

WILL YOU DO THIS?

The Olympic-Leader will consider it a favor if the officers and members of the various fraternal societies, lodges, social clubs, churches and allied societies, and all other civic and social organizations of the city and county will furnish it with brief news items concerning their work or entertainment. The information may be given over the phone or sent by mail.
