FIRST PASSENGER TRAIN TO PORT TOWNSEND

MILWAUKEE HEAD OFFICIALS HERE

Many of the old timers long ago gave up the idea of ever seeing a passenger train running out of Port Angeles, so often had their fondest hopes met with disappointment. But had they been down on Railroad avenue shortly before two o'clock Wednesday afternoon they would have seen the realization of their long cherished dreams—for a passenger train, consisting of three coaches, one of them President Earling's private car from St. Paul and another No. 93 from Seattle, left for Port Townsend, carrying the following well-known railroad officials: President A. J. Earling and his assistant, C. A. Goodnow, Vice-President H. B. Earling and his assistant, A. M. Ingersol, R. M. Calkins, traffic manager and their guests, Emil Earling, a coal magnate of Chicago, G. H. Russell, President of the Milwaukee Insurance Company, A. F. Taylor, of the Seattle P.-I. and Local Superintendent W. H. Molchoir and Engineer C. C. Donovan. At Port Discovery they were joined by C. J. Erickson, railroad contractor, who accompanied them to Port Townsend, where the train was met by a large delegation of Port Townsend citizens who enthusiastically greeted the railroad party and the first train in from Port Angeles, an event of considerable moment after these long years of waiting.

After a short stay in Townsend the party took a boat for Seattle after expressing their satisfaction and pleasure at the work this far accomplished.

The railroad party arrived in Angeles Tuesday and in company with Michael Earles, motored to Joyce. where they took the train and went to the end of the line west, on a tour of inspection. They then made a trip through to the ocean to look over the country and returning to the lake, were guests over night at Singer's. Wednesday morning they motored in to Joyce where they boarded the train for the return trip to Angeles.

While no information was given out as to the occasion of their visit at this time, other than a tour of inspection of the road, still their visit helps to confirm the rumors afloat that further development work is to be undertaken soon on the Olympic peninsula by the Chicago and Milwaukee railroad.

It is expected that work on the new railroad stations at Valley and Francis streets will begin in a couple of weeks. The plans are all drawn up but contracts have not yet been awarded. It is now expected that regular passenger service between Port Townsend and Angeles will be instituted by December first. In regard to the completion of this piece of work the Port Townsend Daily says:

Now that the Seattle, Port Angeles & Western railroad has been completed from its western terminus in the big timber belt of Clallam county to a junction with the Port Townsend & Puget Sound road, completing the line as devised by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul company, people of this city are becoming convinced that some sort of a celebration should be arranged to mark the overcoming of the biggest handicap ever experienced by the West Side—the lack of a physical connection with transcontinental railroads. Many local citizens have advanced the idea that something fitting the occasion should be done, but to date very few suggestions have been made concerning the manner of doing it or providing the means for accomplishing the desired result.

The most sensible suggestion yet advanced has been made by Mr. Klocker. His idea is that a date should be selected about the time the railroad company begins a regular service, when all railroad people and others interested in the growth of the different communities of the peninsula can be invited to Port Townsend. After a lunch has been served the guests and all residents of Port Townsend who care to make the trip can board a train and travel as far as Angeles, at least, with stops at the different communities along the route. After a little entertainment at Angeles, preferably a big dance or banquet, the return can be made to this city.

To the average citizen, the most desirable feature of the plan is its simplicity, coupled with the inclusion of every community along the railroad line, giving everybody a chance to get acquainted with neighbors who will be brought much nearer by reason of the completion of the line.

It is generally admitted that the advanced season does not offer opportunity for anything in the nature of an outdoor event, while general business conditions do not warrant anything involving a heavy expenditure of money. So far as the people of this city are concerned, they will probably have all they can comfortably attend to in providing right of way across the two blocks from Jefferson to Water streets. By the plan suggested, it would be possible to provide acceptable entertainment to a large number of upSound people who are directly interested in the peninsula, while at the same time giving residents of Port Townsend a chance to fraternize with their neighbors, as well as learn the magnitude of the enterprise, which is now being brought to a conclusion.

FLOATER FOUND AT JAMESTOWN

Evidently a Fisherman; Indians Refuse to Bring "Evil Spirit" Near Their Village.

An unidentified body was found floating in the waters of the strait in front of Jamestown by two of the Indian inhabitants of that village about nine o'clock in the morning of October 21st. Mr. Taylor, the Indian agent, attempted to get the Indians to bring the body ashore but they refused to bring the evil Spirit near their dwellings so the corpse was towed down the straits until it had passed the outskirts of the settlement and was there finally landed. An inquest was held by Mr. Fulmer and Justice Severyns but nothing could be learned by a summary examination of the witnesses and an investigation disclosed that the deceased had evidently been a fisherman, a man of middle age, of sandy complexion, no fillings in the teeth, possessing only a pocket knife, a cake of Ivory soap and a purse containing two ten dollar bills and a page of the New Story magazine, containing a poem entitled "The Blessing." The only mark or clew was a laundry tag fastened to the shirt and bearing the initials D. R.

TOWN OF CARLSBORG GOING AHEAD FAST

Emil Nelson, who sold the townsite of Carlsborg to Erickson, was in town Wednesday on business. He reports that the new town is going ahead; the big store is finished, two car loads of goods have arrived and things are taking a business-like look. Mr. Erickson expects to have a large mill and other machinery going soon.

ALDWELL COMPANY WILL BUILD CONCRETE GARAGE

The Aldwell Company will very soon start the building of a large concrete and brick garage on their lots on the corner of Front and Lincoln, which will be occupied the first of the year by Fred Farmer.

Halloween goods, trimmings, etc., at Brewster's.

MASONS TO BUILD TEMPLE NEXT YEAR

The Masonic order of this city purchased last week of Judge J. J. McClinton his corner lot on Lincoln and Third streets, where it is hoped before another year a Masonic Temple or home will be erected. Judge McClinton is a member of the Port Angeles Masonic lodge and was anxious to see them have this desirable location for their permanent home, hence he made them a low enough price to make it possible for them to buy—$2,300, which includes the assessments. It is the plan of the committee in charge to form a corporation and sell stock to raise the money for building purposes, but no definite action has been taken as yet. Judge McClinton was down from Seattle last Friday and Saturday and personally took charge of the sale of the lot.

SMALL BOND ISSUE FOR PARK TO BE SUBMITTED TO VOTERS

ADJOINS HIGH SCHOOL GROUNDS

Petition from the Congregational Brotherhood asking that council submit to voters at next election the issue of park bonds of not less than $5,000 nor more than $10,000, was referred to Park Committee. The Brotherhood, which has had the matter of parking the gulch between First and Fourth streets and Lincoln and Peabody, which includes the present Civic Park, under consideration for some time, recommended that lots 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16 of block 30, 1 to 6 inc. of block 55, and 10 to 15 inc. of block 56, be purchased. This takes in all the gulch, within three lots of Peabody, outside of the High School grounds. $10,000, it is believed, would purchase all of said lots and leave a balance for beautification. A bond issue of $5,000 would provide for purchase of the lots in blocks 55 and 56, both being south of Third street, and leave quite a margin for improvement.

An ordinance was introduced by Councilman Fisher authorizing issuance of local improvement bonds to pay for sewer work in district No. 29.

Ordinance providing for tax levy was passed; official publication in another column.

Street superintendent was ordered to patch up Second street, Valley to Tumwater.

Street superintendent was ordered to put walks on south side of Front street, between Eunice and Francis, in repair, Mrs. E. H. Mason having sent in a complaint concerning condition thereof.

Warrant of $7,261 ordered issued to Mettler & Coit, as further payment on sewer contract.

J. O. Morse sent in a communication calling council's attention to danger of booming logs between Lincoln and Chase streets, where in event of a northeast storm, his warehouses as well as the street piling would be endangered. Councilman Bigelow's motion to require cessation of logging operations at this point until next spring failed for second, the coming election evidently looming larger in the eyes of the councilmen than the danger to the city's property.

An ordinance to regulate wagons or other vehicles for hire for the transfer of trunks, packages and express matter and providing a semi-annual license fee of $3 for one horse rig, and $5 for two horse rig or motor power, was introduced by Councilman Wolverton.

Ordinance providing for submission to voters of proposition for the validation of election light warrants was referred back to the committee.

The following were selected as judges and inspectors for the primary election:

First Ward—Chas. Woods, Sr., insp; Julia McMahon and Mrs. C. S. Stakemiller, judges. Polling place, east room of old central school, down stairs.

Second—C. P. Brown, insp; W. J. Ware and Mrs. M. E. Troy, judges. City Hall.

Third—John Schweitzer, insp; Mrs. May Pinyard and Mrs. J. B. Simpson. De Swarte's office.

Fourth—H. S. McLeod, insp; Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Wise, judges. Dermul building, Eighth, between Peabody and Vine.

Fifth—John Hitch, insp; J. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Littlefield, judges. J. Nicholson's store.

Sixth—Wm. Maxfield, insp; Mrs. Hopf and Mrs. H. Anderson, judges. Polling place not decided upon.

72 ATTEND FIRST BROTHERHOOD DINNER

Lecture by Prof. J. N. Bowman on The White and Yellow Perils.

There was a good attendance at the Brotherhood dinner given at the Congregational church Monday night, 72 being seated at the tables.

Resolution was adopted favoring the securing of the grounds of Civic park, and the submission of the matter of securing same at this city election, while the land can be secured cheaply.

Prof. J. N. Bowman of the University of Washington addressed the assemblage on "The White and Yellow Perils" which he set out in such an intensely interesting manner that his talk of an hour and a half passed all too quickly. He left it with his hearers as to which was the greater peril, the white or yellow, rather holding that for the present at least the white peril predominates; but woe to the white race if they succeed in awaking the entire yellow people as they have Japan. The yellow people are now a contented and sleeping people, but Japan has been awakened by the persistence of the whites, and China is showing signs of awaking. The yellow race outnumber the whites, and economically will overwhelm the white race because they can exist upon one-fourth what the white race can live on.

Summarizing, he said: No European will make his home in Asia, while the Asiatic will make his home in white territory; whites therefore are more of a menace to Asiatics. Asiatic at present is severely economical because he has to be on account of numbers and means of providing; confined making intensive development necessary; then it is a struggle for existence, here a struggle to keep up appearances; restriction of immigration and Asiatic goods a recognition of the peril of the cheap labor there; and now the truce between the two countries whereby Japan has agreed to keep her subjects at home. The Seaman's act here another recognition of the peril of cheap labor on foreign vessels. The Asiatic is a great imitator, he can take the product of another, take it to pieces, and reconstruct it, sometimes improving upon the product; then he can produce it for less, and sell it for less and pay the duty. He is naturally the most peaceful of the peoples of the earth, but the white man insisting upon prying him loose from his customs, largely in the interest of commercial enterprises, we will be to blame if a real yellow peril such as Emporer William described some years ago rises. Economically the peril is yellow to white; politically the peril is white to yellow, and this is the most apparent peril at this time. Time alone will tell if the great struggle between the two races will come.

Prof. Bowman is a fluent talker, and his lecture would have to be heard to be appreciated.

The next meeting of the Brotherhood will be November 18, at which time election of officers will take place.

"SLIPPERY GULCH" TO BE PUT ON BY NAVAL LODGE

NEW STUNT A BIG WINNER

The members of Naval Lodge No. 353 are sure some live bunch—their latest stunt is a sure fine winner, for they have secured the services of O. A. Ray of San Francisco to cooperate with them in producing "Slippery Gulch," in the "Days of Gold"— a reproduction of a mining camp, when gold nuggets were as plentiful as bullets now are in Europe.

Each store, each building and every character typical of those good old mining camp days will be accurately reproduced and every person, man, woman or child, entering the new dancing pavilion the nights of November 2, 3 and 4th, cannot fail to enter into the spirit that pervades this good time joy camp.

So put on your soft shirt and high-heeled boots and join in the merry-making and joy-congress that the Elks have promised will be the three best and brightest nights of the year.

Everywhere this entertainment has been put on, the inhabitants of the towns were loud in their praise of its amusement features, for there never has been a street carnival or fair where the opportunities for having a good time were so numerous.

This kind of a good time gets beneath the surface, makes one go away with a feeling of satisfaction, that they have done their part in the evenings entertainment and have been well repaid.

So let's all go, and forget we are living in the year of our Lord 1915, and imagine we are transplanted back into the good old days, when one could whoop'er up occasionally without any fear of losing one's reputation.

This attraction is one of the leading features of the Exposition's joy street, ',The Zone," and thousands of sightseers are daily paying it a visit.

The only difference between this one and the one at the exposition is, that here, you will know all the "main guys" and that will lend an added charm, which the one at the exposition lacks.

The admission price is four bits for grown-ups, two bits for kids—and all patrons are given their money back at the door, in Slippery Gulch currency—with which they can play roulette, shoot craps, play faro, dance and have the dandiest time of their lives.

DEWEY SISSON ACCUSED OF ARSON

Floyd McGoff Plead Guilty to Firing Sisson's House, Claiming He Was Hired to Do the Job.

Harry Garber, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gerber, was ordered to Chehalis Training School, upon application of Mr. Garber, who stated that he practically lived at pool rooms and that he was beyond his control.

Judgment of foreclosure was granted John Coppinger against C. D. and Mollie Norton and Chas. Gordon, on a Promissory note, for $750, and interest and costs, for which execution has issued.

Decree of divorce was signed in case of Catherine Woolery vs. Ira Woolrey, at instance of defendant. This case was heard some time ago, after which plaintiff seemed to lose interest.

The National Grocery Co. secured a judgment against R. F. Bateman for approximately $100 on account of goods sold.

Alice M. Hunter was granted a decree of divorce from Jesse Hunter and granted her former name Alice Radley. Mrs. Hunter stated that when she married she had a good farm, well stocked, now she has nothing; that it all went to support her husband.

A decree was also signed in case of Mary Holden vs. Gilbert Holden, Neah Bay Indians, heard some time ago The decree is given to defendant, who will pay plaintiff $260 on division of property.

DeWitt C. Sisson and Floyd McGoff were arrainged Wednesday upon the charge of Arson in Second degree, in causing the firing of the former Sisson home at 6th and B. streets for the insurance thereon September 5 last. Sisson entered a plea of "Not Guilty" and bail was fixed at $3000, in default of which he remains in custody. McGoff entered a plea of "Guilty." Sentence has been deferred for time being.

ROYAL ARCANUM INITIATES CLASS OF 14 CANDIDATES

Port Angeles Council, No. 1596, Royal Arcanum, initiated a class of 14 candidates at their meeting last night, the degree work being conferred by Thomas D. Hitchcock, Grand Regent, Geo. O. Snider, Supreme Representative, W. Palin, Grand Warden, B. Stevens, Grand Orator, and W. York, Grand Sentry, all of Tacoma, who came overland in machines, and J. L. Beckwith, Grand Guide of Victoria, B. C.

Brother D. J. McMillen, Deputy Supreme Regent, of St. Louis, has been assisting the local council officers for the past two weeks in getting this class of candidates.

The Royal Arcanum is one of the oldest and most favorably known fraternal insurance orders in the country. Its membership consists of professional and business men and its personel ranks with the best in the land.

After the degree was conferred the Committee on Refreshments, Bros. Lyman Johnson, Herbert Wood and C. E. Beam, reported everything in readiness and all repaired to the dining room where a tempting luncheon was waiting.

The Grand Regent and others gave instructive and interesting talks on fraternal insurance.

Brother McMillen and his wife leave Saturday for Bellingham where he takes up the work for that council.

PUBLICITY AND ADVERTISEMENT KEY WORDS TO SUCCESS

It has already become very apparent that the "Little Visits" by Dr. Theodore Sharpe of the First Methodist church, No. 2 of which is published in this issue, is to become one of the most popular features of the Olympic-Leader. When we first met the Doctor we were impressed with his nervous, live-wire manner: he talked and acted like a booster; he looked like a booster, and after reading the first of his series of "Little Visits" we have become convinced that he IS a booster—a real live specimen of that rare species, the Western Community Builder, a half dozen of whom, working together, invariably make a town out of a village, a city of a town, and a metropolis of a city. Dr. Sharpe says he is going to create a new job in the city of Port Angeles, and he is going to fill it himself—and you can bet your life he's able to do it.

RALPH PARLETTE

Don't fail to hear his famous lecture "The University of Hard Knocks," at the High School Auditorium Monday evening, October 25. This is the first number of the Lecture Course. Seats open for reservation at Mathewson's Drug store at noon Friday, October 22nd.

If you spend your money with your neighbor, he'll spend it with you. The merchants in this town can fill your every want. Why bid your money good-bye by sending it out of town.

ACTIVITIES OF THE STATE'S DEPARTMENTS

State Would Get Rid of "Non-paying Boarders"

Olympia, October 20.—One-third of the 175,000 dairy cows in Washington eat food of more value than the milk they produce, is the estimate of Agricultural Commissioner H. T. Graves. Dr. Graves is urging the importance of the co-operative work being done by the Washington state college and the Federal department of agriculture, under the Smith Lever bill, in organizing cow testing associations, by which dairymen, by pooling their stock, can obtain annual tests of milk production at a cost of about $1.50 a cow, with a view toward obtaining information that will enable them to eliminate these "non-paying boarders."

Another Law Now in the Traveler's Favor

Judge John R. Mitchell of the Thurston county superior court has quashed the writ of supersedas previously granted against the "drawing room" order of the public service commission. This has the effect of putting the commission's order into operation immediately.

The commission's order requires railroads to discontinue the practice of requiring two full-fare tickets from a passenger before he is allowed to negotiate for drawing room accommodations.

Accidents Decrease Materially, Awards Increase Slightly

Statistics collected by the industrial insurance commission for its forthcoming annual report indicate that while the number of accidents is decreasing materially, the average amount of awards is showing a tendency to increase slightly. During the last 12 months, in cases of temporary total disability, the average period of disability was 30.9 days. and the average award $40.38, as compared with an average disability period of 28.3 days and an average award of $38.83 for the preceding year.

Employers have not, during the dull year experienced in the lumber industry, sought to reduce industrial insurance costs by giving shingle men preference in employment to men of families, the fatality statistics indicate. Of the fatal injury cases settled during the last year, pensions were payable in 138 cases, only 78 of those meeting death being single men, on whom no pensions were payable.

In the preceding year, however, with 172 deaths calling for pensions, there were 178 deaths, not requiring pensions.

New Board of Commissioners For Yakima County

At the request of Yakima county citizens Governor Lister last week appointed two county commissioners, to start the work of reorganization necessitated by the recall, two weeks ago, of the entire board of commissioners. The governor's appointees, W. E. Coumbe and W. L. Dimmick, completed the work of reorganization by selecting a third commissioner. Both men appointed by the governor were chosen by a conference of citizens who had supported the recall movement, which carried by a four to one vote.

Insane Hospital Most Profitable Institution in State

A report of the state bureau of inspection indicates that the Eastern hospital for the insane has the most profitable institution farm of the state. On 444 acres in the last biennium were produced food valued at $52,987.55, used by the institution, hay, grain and ensilage to the value of $11,828.45, used on the farm and $3,878.29 in food which was sold. Eliminating the value of the hay, grain and ensilage used on the farm, and charging the farm with all operating costs and with 3 per cent interest on the farm land and equipment investment, the bureau finds that the farming operations netted a profit of $26,635.22, exclusive of increases in the amount of live stock on hand.

Marked Decreases in Spring Fruit Tree Plantings

Marked decreases in spring fruit tree planting are shown in compilation of nurserymen's reports, issued by the state department of agriculture. The principal plantings this spring were: Apples, 100,509 trees; pears, 31,531 trees; peaches, 7,256 trees; cherries, 21,298 trees; plums and prunes, 14,761 trees; strawberries, 436,385 plants; raspberries, 14,734 plants; blackberries, 13,273 plants.

In 1914 apple trees planted numbered 555,962. The decrease in new plantings is due principally, the department of agriculture states, to the halt called in the planting of large acreages for sale by promoters in small orchard tracts. What planting has been done this year represents genuine development on the part of established commercial orchards.

Clallam County on Delinquent Liquor License List

County prosecutors are responding to the requests of the state tax commission by starting criminal actions against liquor dealers who have failed to take out licenses for the current year. The commission sent to 29 prosecutors the names of 338 delinquents. A considerable number made payment as soon as they learned that warrants were about to be issued. There were no delinquents in Columbia, Cowlitz, Douglas, Garfield, Grant, Island, Klickitat, Mason, San Juan or Wahkiahum counties.

180 Square Miles of Land Burned Over

Under a total of 12,520 burning permits issued by the state forester and his deputies during the summer of 1915, 117,728 acres, or more than 180 square miles of land were burned over, as a first step toward putting it under cultivation, this being a much greater area than during any previous year. In addition, of 12,135 acres burned over for forest protection, 7,962 acres are listed as agricultural land, suitable for cultivation.

The largest acreages cleared under burning permits were in King county, 15,026 acres, Lewis county, 14,440 acres, Snohomish county, 12,902 acres and Spokane county, 12,527 acres.

Last of Highway Contracts for This Year Advertised and Awarded

The last highway contracts advertised for the present calendar year were awarded by the state highway commission last week, both being for work upon the Inland Empire highway. Contract for graveling, 17.3 miles, Rosalia to Colfax, went to W. G. Mulligan Co., Spokane, for $21,120, while contract for construction, 6.8 miles, Dayton westerly, went to General construction Co., Spokane, for $13,242.90.

Statistics on the status of road work compiled by the state highway department indicate that more than 60 per cent of the road work outlined for the biennium, will be completed by the close of the present calendar year.

Boy Receives Bronze Medal For Growing Best Corn in State

Governor Lister has received from the Panama-Pacific exposition management a special bronze medal for presentation to Joe Harris of Prosser, champion boy corn grower of the state of Washington. The governor expects to be able to make a personal presentation of this medal during the Prosser corn and hog show, the week of November 22.

The Harris boy's feat consisted in raising 114.79 bushels of corn on one acre of land, beating all other contestants in the state.

The Thurston county superior court has declined to issue a writ of supersedeas against the reconsignment case order of the public service commission, which requires railroads to discontinue the recently established practice of charging $2 a car for diverting from Seattle to Tacoma, or vice-versa, hay and grain shipments while en route, and during the progress of litigation on the question, the railroads cannot collect these charges.

DOUGLAS FIR 1350 YEARS OLD, IN OLYMPICS

The receipts for timber sales on the National forests in Washington and Oregon during the first quarter of the present fiscal year, show a marked increase. In fact, the receipts for this first quarter are more than half what they were for the entire previous fiscal year. This indicates a very decided increase in cutting operations on the Government Forests.

A forest ranger on the Olympic National forest has reported a Douglas fir tree which is over 1350 years old. Hitherto the oldest Douglas fir of which there was an accurate record had 740 annual rings. Does any one know of an older tree of this species?

Professor H. A. Winkenwerder of the University of Washington Forest school, who has charge of the work being done to preserve the forestry building at the A. Y. P. grounds in Seattle, was in Portland recently and took a trip to the forestry building at the Lewis & Clark grounds to learn what Portland is doing to preserve from decay the columns in this great building. He seemed to think that it will require great skill to preserve both the Seattle and the Portland forestry buildings, for it is a difficult problem to combat the decay which has a strong foothold in the logs.

"Little Visits" No. 2

Dr. Theodore Sharpe.

This Methodist-Parson scribe had not planned on the pilgrimage described in this little article but it was forced on him by circumstances over which he seemed to have no control.

All last week my boy Duncan kept looking towards the forests and the mountains and there would come a strange and peculiar look into his eyes. I knew that the primitive instinct of his ancestral huntsmen was calling him to the woods and the hills and the mountains.

The father was easily persuaded to accompany him and so in hopes of getting some grouse which might accidently roost on the barrel of his gun we started for that wonderful mountain peak of the Olympics, "Mt. Angeles."

Time and space will not permit even a brief mention of that beautiful mountain road which led us up and up until we were up indeed. Perhaps a future visit will result in a more detailed description of that marvelous pile of tree and stone.

Turning on our tracks we looked eagerly out on the distance. The opening gates of Paradise must be wonderful indeed if they surpass in glory and grandeur the scene that spread itself like heaven's carpet before our eyes. There was Canada, the land of my birth, there was the Sound, there was the Strait, there was the Pacific and there was the magnificent city of Port Angeles nestling in one of the most natural and beautiful harbors of the world. I said "Surely this is the Port of the Angels."

Merely as to scenic glory and wonderment this city stands unsurpassed, in the opinion of this scribe. I have visited many of the beauty-spots of North America, from Hudson Bay to the Gulf of California. I have travelled the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence from Duluth to the French city of Quebec. To my mind if the Rhine is more sublime than the picturesque Hudson then indeed must that famous and much travelled German river be the wanderer's delight

I have been up and down the Pacific Ocean from Canada to Mexico, passing through the Golden Gate and among the far-famed islands of Santa Catalina and Santa Crux and the wonderful bays of Southern California and the Peninsula. I have passed and the Peninsula. I have passed up and down the glories of island and inlet of the Puget Sound. I have looked with wonderment at the rugged grandeur of the Columbia from the Snake to Baker's Bay. After seeing all beauty spots and more, there was not a question in my mind at all that I stood in the presence of the most magnificent and splendid sight in all my experience with Mother Nature.

The glory of all these are not to be compared with the glory of Port Angeles. Like Jerusalem of old it is beautiful for situation and soon the tribes and people of the whole world will gather here at nature's most beautiful shrine.

As I looked and looked I saw the city of Port Angeles of the future, a mighty city with a mighty port clasping in one hand the trade of the Orient and in the other hand the trade of the Occident. My visions of the future Port Angeles will not be given here as I know that every man of Port Angeles must have felt the same somewhere in his past experience.

As I stood there I said I will take a text and with my feet firmly planted on the mountain of stone and rock and timber and make a preachment and hurl a homily across the foothills and the valleys to the good folks of Port Angeles.

And that text was easily found and though it was not exactly a quotation from the Old Book yet it was deeply religious and full of harmony with the teachings of the Master which are always in accord with human progress and development.

The text was "PORT ANGELES. HAVE FAITH IN THYSELF, HAVE FAITH IN THY PRESENT, HAVE FAITH IN THY FUTURE."

This is the lesson that all must learn. The learning of this lesson means growth and advancement. Port Angeles must have faith in herself, faith in one another, faith in the old men, faith in the young men, faith in her business men, faith in her doctors, faith in her lawyers, faith in her newspapers, faith in her city council, faith in her officials, faith in her laboring men, faith in her women, faith in her schools, faith in the banks, faith in her churches and preachers, faith in her Commercial Club, faith in everybody and everything that makes for civic and personal good. Above all, Port Angeles must have faith in "There is a destiny that shapes our ends, rough hew them as we may."

It does not take the trained mind of the scholar to discover that a mighty wave of social and civic progress is sweeping over our nation and people. Changes are coming so rapidly that it fairly takes one's breath as reform after reform takes possession of our life and customs. The man who thinks and acts as he did even ten years ago has been relegated to the rear of life's battles; men are not doing things as their fathers did, as great as our fathers were. The man who has lived all his life in a rut and then abuses another man for climbing out of that same rut is not a modern man. Port Angeles is going to become the best city on the Sound or Strait, because her people are going to make it thus. Let us have a great funeral and bury all the hammers which have been knocking human progress. Let every man boost for his native city. Let us welcome all that come to us with the Glad Hand if they come for good. Let Port Angeles hold fast to the tried and true and take hold of the new by faith.

Since I have started this little article I have determined to create a new job in the city of Port Angeles. I will have to adopt a new term. I have been appointed pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. I am going to appoint myself "Civic Evangelist" for Port Angeles. Perhaps the good Mayor will confirm this appointment. My job will be to boost for all good things in our city and my salary will be the good will of as many folks as believe in me. There is the matter with me at all. I am simply a human being who loves folks and who loves to see all people happy and prosperous. "DO YOU GET IT?" This is classical and not slang.

I hope this little article will help some good person to increase their faith in their own town and community. If I have helped anyone I will be delighted to have you ring me up and tell me so. I may not know your voice but you are my friend whether you are mine or not. If one person shall say "You have helped me," I will be well paid for it all.

In the near future I will take up the Commercial Club, the City Council, Earles' mill and others.

The case occupied all Wednesday forenoon. The Court found that plaintiff was entitled to a decree and the custody of the child, with the privilege of defendant seeing child at all reasonable times. By agreement of all parties no alimony or costs were assessed against the defendant.

In the case of P. Grubb vs. Port Angeles Transportation Co., Corut ordered $3000 check submitted with $30,000 bid of Inland Navigation Co. for steamer City of Angeles returned to bidder, case having been taken from this court to the Federal Bankruptcy court.

NOTES

The congregations are still rapidly growing. The church was about filled last Sunday. This is a sign that the people of Port Angeles still love the gospel and the church.

The subject for next Sunday morning will be "The Christian with the Crank Omitted." In the evening the pastor will discuss a theme that has never failed to touch the hearts of men, the subject will be "The Home Instinct of Man."

The pastor has just been thinking of some of the great businesses of this country. Their success is almost miraculous. How has that success been attained? Publicity and advertisement are the key words. The church which wields the largest success today are churches that believe in publicity. People cannot know about a church or a preacher any more than they can know about Grape Nuts without folks talking and advertising them. This preacher is not ashamed of any publicity which he brings to his church because this is his secret of getting folks to hear him.

One more thing just now. Let some folks learn this lesson. If all men who have helped this old world to better things put money first in their lives then the best things of life today would be lacking. There are men still living who would rather do good than make a million in money or something else.

The Methodist Episcopal church invites you to its services. You will be welcomed and blessed. The pastor will be delighted to call on any one who may need him. Come out to the services next Sunday.

THEODORE SHARPE,
Pastor.

U. S. R. C. SNOHOMISH BUSY SAVING LIVES AND BOATS

The U. S. Coast Guard cutter Snohomish is making a splendid record in the way of rendering assistance to disabled vessels. During the past ten days the Snohomish has been busy in that line. When the big Blue Funnel liner Calchas went on the rocks at Point Wilson the cutter rendered valuable assistance in floating the vessel and towing her into the harbor and later to Seattle. During the time she first stood by the Calchas and the date set for the attempt to float the steamer, the Snohomish hurried to the Cape to bring in the Peruvian bark Stella, whose crew was too weak to work the ship. As soon as the Calchas had been safely towed to a berth up-Sound, the cutter responded to a call for assistance from the power fishing schooner Puritan, which had dropped her propellor about twenty miles off the coast of Vancouver island, starting a leak at the same time. A heavy sea was running and was carrying the disabled craft far out to sea. The captain and crew of the vessel took to the dories and after a hard fight with the wind and sea succeeded in reaching Hisquoit, sending out a call for assistance. The Snohomish hastened to the scene and with the aid of her powerful searchlight located the disabled vessel, succeeding, after considerable heroic work, in getting a line aboard and towed her to Neah Bay, where she was turned over to the tug Prosper, which took the schooner to Seattle yesterday morning, being delivered to her owners, the Booth Fisheries company.

A short time after the Snohomish had turned the Puritan over to the Prosper she received a report that a derelict had been sighted, drifting with the tides off Swiftsure lightship, off Cape Flattery. She located the derelict, which will be blown up or towed to Neah Bay. The report of the sighting of the derelict caused much speculation among shipping men as to the identity of the craft. Some claimed there is a remote possibility of it being the steam schooner Graywood, abandoned two miles inside the Cape some days ago by the steamer Hilonian. This does not sound plausible, as the Graywood had a cargo of copper ore, which would cause her to sink, unless the bottom had dropped out of the craft, liberating the cargo. The identity of the craft will not be known until the Snohomish makes a report.

Since the cutter has been stationed at Neah Bay she has rendered very valuable assistance to shipping, saving many thousand dollars' worth of property. She has hauled from the beach many shipping craft that had gone ashore during fogs or from a breakdown of the power plants. Many of these would have become total losses had it not been for the prompt assistance rendered by the government craft.—P. T. Leader.

NOTES OF THE COUNTY FAIR

A. W. Smith of Mora was the exhibitor from the greatest distance, and his was one of the most interesting exhibits, including the only sugar cane or sorghum at the fair, the second largest Hubbard squash, some fine white corn and a big head of cauliflower. He won the fine parlor lamp offered by E. Christopherson & Co. Mr. Smith has been a resident of Quillayute since 1877, and he conveyed his exhibits to the fair on his own automobile over the Olympic highway.

Mrs. P. B. Chambers contributed for display in the Women's Department thirty-four varieties of Dahlias.

One of the novel exhibits in the Women's department was two enormous lemons grown in Port Angeles by Mrs. H. Malchau.

In the Agricultural department among the novelties were lemon cucumbers and excellent citrons grown on Pine Hill by Mrs. H. Hawkins.

Photos of Mrs. S. E. Cole's remarkable rose tree, 118½ West Second street, a single rose tree twelve feet high and bearing twenty different kinds of rose bloom, surprised most people.

There were nearly 3,000 paid admissions to the fair and the total attendance must have been close to 4,000, as exhibitors and concessionaries received free season tickets and children were admitted free on Saturday.

The only article missed from the Women's department, so far as known now, is the white centerpiece of Italian relief work exhibited by Mrs. Charles Owens of this city. This was evidently taken away by mistake and it is hoped that the centerpiece will be returned, either to the Commercial Club or to Mrs. Owens direct.

KLAHHANE CLUB DANCING PARTY AT PARISH HALL

The Port Angeles mountaineers, known as the Klahhane Club, gave a delightful dancing party at the Parish hall Wednesday evening of this week. The hall was tastily decorated in autumn leaves and greenery. Mrs. Benj. Phillips made a charming hostess and was graciously assisted by a number of the young lady members. A goodly number of newcomers to our city were in attendance and evinced a real interest in the work and pleasure of the Klahhane Club and were anxious to become members. The club hopes to raise enough money to make its mountain lodge a real home where the members can go and enjoy a week-end either in summer or winter.

C. E. Cole moves this week into his handsome little bungalow—not so small either, being 22x40—on Third street at the north end of Pine Hill. He has a very attractive home and an unobstructed view of the town and harbor.

FARM TO TABLE MOVEMENT AND PARCEL POST

Now that the warm summer months have passed and the people have become more or less settled for the winter, it is my desire to encourage a more general use of the "Farm-to-Table" service which has been conducted in the Seattle Post Office through the medium of the Parcel Post for the past year.

During the summer it was realized that produce could not carry any distance through the mails and arrive at destination in first-class condition. However, during the cool weather there need be no fear whatsoever but that all parcels containing articles of a perishable nature will be properly delivered to the respective addresses in condition for use. Such mail matter is given special attention both in transmission and in the post offices. Postal employees are instructed to expediate and it is seldom that irregularities occur.

The Parcel Post, probably the greatest innovation ever inaugurated in the postal service of the United States, was provided for the convenience of the public. This "Farm-to-Table" movement is simply for the purpose of extending the facilities of the service and to furnish the public every possible advantage in connection therewith.

Lists of producers, and the class of produce each producer has ready for sale, are printed each month. Copies are posted in the lobbies of the Main Office and Stations; also mailed to those patrons of the Office who make application for them.

All producers are requested to make a monthly application before the 20th of each month for entry on the list for the succeeding month, giving such produce as will be on hand for sale during that particular month. Prices to be charged should be included and made as reasonable as possible. Producers should bear in mind that they cannot expect to obtain market prices for their articles of produce if it is the desire to encourage the movement which has for a purpose, bringing the producer in contact with the consumer. This service offers an opportunity for the producer to obtain a price somewhat better than he would from a produce broker and still furnish the articles to the consumer at a less cost than the latter would be forced to pay otherwise, and at the same time, the consumer will find the parcel post article fresher and better than can be obtained in the Public Market.

A careful study should be made of the manner in which to sufficiently and securely wrap, or prepare, articles for mailing. A well prepared parcel arriving with the contents in first-class condition instills a greater confidence in the patron and the producer will benefit accordingly.

Consumers will be best served, and obtain more reasonable price quotations, by selecting names of farmers putting out the respective articles of produce and dealing with them regularly. Act on our advice and try this experiment, and see if it will not bring satisfactory results. Select some producer from the list and correspond with him and after a trial we would be pleased to get your opinion.

Information concerning the service may be obtained from any post office, post office station, or letter carrier. This office will be pleased to enter into correspondence with anyone interested in the service or who desires to be included in the list of producers or wishes to take advantage of it.

EDGAR BATTLE,
Postmaster.

STYLES in job printing have undergone many changes in the past few years. The gaudy type, fancy borders and big ornaments have been replaced with more simple designs. Present-day advertisers realize that the old out-of-date designs have no connection with modern business methods. # STORIES OF FLAGS

Origins of Some of the Emblems of European Nations.

THE TRICOLOR OF BELGIUM.

It Was Originally the Standard of the Duchy of Brabant—Complex Colors of Austria and the Flags of Germany, France, England and Russia.

Prior to the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 the German empire was little more than a group of scattered states. When they combined into a single empire, however, traces of all their flags were combined in the resultant standard.

To be sure, the colors of Prussia—black and white—and the Prussian eagle enter very largely into it, but it must be remembered that this country became at that time the head and ruler of all the others. Besides the smaller states, there were also the flags of East and West Prussia to be included. That of West Prussia was black, white, black, three stripes of equal diameter, running the length of the flag. That of East Prussia consisted of two such stripes, the upper black and the lower white. The "jack" of the imperial navy consists of three horizontal stripes, the upper black, the middle white and the lower red. The much prized iron cross (dating back to the end of the twelfth century) is in the center. This red stripe appears in the final war ensign of the empire, in which the tricolor (black, white, red) appears in the upper quarter, with the iron cross upon it, while the remaining three-quarters are white, with the royal arms in the center. A black cross divides the whole flag into quarters.

The flag of Austria is a very complex affair. To begin with, the various Austrian provinces have their own flags. Bohemia is red-white, Tyrol is white-red, Dalmatia is blue-yellow, Galicia is blue-red, Croatia is red-white-blue and Istria is yellow-white-blue. Then again, Austria-Hungary being a dual monarchy, both Austria and Hungary must be separately represented—and fully—on the flag. Fortunately, this combination was rendered more easy by the fact that portions of the flags of both countries were already the same. Thus, the Austrian flag was red-white-red, the Hungarian was red-white-green. Compromise was effected by dividing the lowest horizontal stripe in two, and leaving half red while the remainder was green. The arms of both countries also appear on the flag. This was decided upon March 6, 1869.

The imperial standard of the czar of all the Russias is of brilliant yellow, in the center of which is a large double headed black eagle. This flag dates from the year 1472, when Ivan the Great married Sophia, a niece of Constantine Palaeologus, and thence assumed the arms of the Greek empire. On the breast of the eagle is an escutcheon bearing on its red field in silver the figure of St. George slaying the dragon, the whole being surrounded by the collar of the Order of St. Andrew. On the displayed wings of the eagle are other shields bearing the arms of Kiev, Novgorod, Vladimir, Kasan, etc. The Russian union jack is very similar to that of England, save that the principal crossbars are blue instead of red. This is the well known Russian war flag. The cross is that of St. Andrew, the patron saint of Russia.

The well known tricolor of France is made up of three stripes—blue, white and red—running not the length, but the width of the flag. It dates from the era of the French revolution and came into existence in 1789. It has been the national flag since, with but slight variations. In 1794 the tricolor was also made the jack of the French navy.

The union jack of Great Britain is composed of the three crosses of St. George, St. Patrick and St. Andrew. That of the first was a broad red cross, dividing the white flag into four white squares; the white cross of St. Andrew, on a blue background, ran from corner to corner diagonally, while the red cross of St. Patrick ran in the same direction. If the union jack be examined it will be found to be composed of these three crosses, as stated. The flag was first unfurled in 1801, on the union in that year of Great Britain (England, Scotland and Wales) and Ireland.

The flag of Belgium is composed of a tricolor—black, yellow and red—running up and down—that is, the width and not the length of the flag. The royal standard has the arms placed in the center of the yellow strip. This was adopted as the national flag in 1831, being originally the colors of the duchy of Brabant.

From 1477 until 1506 Belgium belonged to Austria, but on the latter date it fell into the hands of Spain. In 1795 and for some years following it was held by France, and in 1814 was handed over to the Prince of Orange, but in 1830 the Belgians rose against the Hollanders and established their independence. The flag which is now flown was then adopted.—Washington Post.

Why She Liked It.

Anna—How do you like being engaged to Jack? Agnes (a literary girl)—Oh, it's wonderful! The dear fellow calls me a poem, envelops me in his arms and seals with a kiss!—Judge.

UNCLE SAM'S NAVAL EXPERT.

One Who Does Nothing but Play With Toy Battleships.

In a long, low building down near the river in Washington there is a man who plays with toy ships on a toy ocean. And as a result of his play he can foretell exactly how the big battleships of the United States navy will behave in a storm at sea, and he can predict to a nicety how much horsepower will be needed to drive the great transatlantic liners laden with their passengers and freight. He does this before even the keels of the ships have been laid down.

He is a naval constructor in the United States navy, and the toy ocean on which he works is the United States experimental model basin. The sheet of water in the basin is 500 feet long and fifty feet wide, with a maximum depth of fourteen feet.

But in this limited space the naval expert, working with a wave maker, a dynamometer, a towing bridge and other apparatus, can solve all the mechanical problems connected with the construction of a ship, its probable roll when struck by giant waves and the horsepower needed in its tremendous engines to drive it through the water. He works with wooden models twenty feet long. Some of them weigh 1,000 pounds, none of them more than 2,000. The other countries of the world use paraffine models, but he works entirely with the miniature ships of wood.

The drawings and plans of the battleships to be built by Uncle Sam are turned over to the constructor by the navy department's bureau of construction and repair. In a little shop adjoining the building which covers the model basin the models are made and painted. Bags of shot, each weighing twenty-five pounds, are kept on hand to bring the model up to the corresponding weight of the big ship. The final tests are made in the "toy ocean" near by.—Popular Magazine.

UNSEEN COMPANIONS.

Familiars That Are Born and Dwell In Our Imaginations.

Real men and women are not the only people. Our minds are inhabited as truly as any other country. Every child has his invisible playmate, to whom he talks more freely than to his parents and with whom he goes upon strange adventures—a tiny Columbus, with whom he embarks upon the waters of the bathtub to discover a new land, or a roving De Soto, with whom he slips through the garden gate unattended and unafraid, always before he is three years old, bent upon an excursion into the wilderness which lies across the brook in the field or in the woods.

If you are the father or mother of this child you never can understand that—how the timid baby who was never before out of your sight could have gone so far alone. Why, when you found him, stained with his travels, very tired, almost nodding, he was still confident, preoccupied and bent upon a further pilgrimage into the unknown. It is because he was not alone. He was accompanied by another whom he knows better than he will ever know father or mother, one of those companions of his own fancy, about whom he never tells you or any one else.

These people grow up like other people. The little child has his familiar, and the young man his his "ideal," always a woman—not the one he marries nor even the one he might have married, but one whom he never saw in the flesh, a veiled and inscrutable presence who never forsakes him. And when he grows old and the wife he did marry grows old she remains young, fairer than the lilies, sweeter than honeydew upon the leaves in June.—Corra Harris in Harper's Magazine.

Romance.

They were at a tea on Morningside—she extremely pretty and engaging despite the fact that she was in Teachers' college and he an earnest student of the law. They had really gone quite far along the pleasant road of romance. He inquired civilly what degree she pursued.

"I aspire to an M. R. S.," she replied demurely.

"I dare say it's hard," he answered absentmindedly. Hours afterward under the green shaded light in his own room it all came to him suddenly.—New York Post.

Wires Near Houses.

The sight of a man trimming a tree suddenly falling to the ground, killed by a shock from an electric wire against which the branches were blown, leads Philip E. Edelman to suggest in the Scientific American that not nearly enough care is taken in stringing high power wires to keep them far away from trees, barns and houses. Mr. Edelman says that every municipality should require high voltage wires to be separated from all neighboring objects by a distance of not less than eight or ten feet.—New York World.

A Rebuke.

"Mary followed Edward," mumbled the high school girl who was trying to fix the sovereigns of England in her mind.

"What's that?" spoke up grandma, who had been dozing.

"Mary followed Edward."

"Then you keep away from Mary. I don't want you to go with them kind. Girls is getting too bold."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

ONE HUNDRED FAVORITE RECIPES

By Prof. Mary E. Sutherland of the Washington State College.

ICES, ICE CREAMS, AND OTHER FROZEN DESERTS

Ices and other frozen dishes comprise the most popular deserts. Hygienically speaking they cannot be recommended for the final course of a dinner, as cold mixtures reduce the temperature of the stomach, thus retarding digestion until the normal temperature is again reached. But how cooling, refreshing and nourishing, when properly taken, and of what inestimable value in the sick room.

Frozen dishes include:

Water Ice—Fruit juice sweetened, diluted with water, and frozen.

Sherbet—Water ice to which is added a small quantity of dissolved gelatine or beaten whites of eggs.

Frappe—Water ice frozen to a consistency of mush. In freezing equal parts of salt and ice being used to make granular.

Punch—Water ice to which is added fruit juice and spices.

Sorbet—Strictly speaking, frozen punch. The name is often given to a water ice where several kinds of fruit are used.

Philadelphia Ice Cream — Thin cream, sweetened, flavored and frozen.

Mousse—Heavy cream, beaten until stiff, sweetened, flavored, placed in a mold, packed in salt and ice (using two parts crushed ice to one part salt), and allowed to stand three hours; or whip from thin cream may be used folded into mixture containing small quantity of gelatine.

HOW TO FREEZE DESERTS

The prejudice of thinking a frozen desert difficult to prepare has long been overcome. With ice cream freezer, burlap bag, wooden mallet or ax, small sauce pan, sufficient ice and coarse rock salt, the process neither takes time nor patience. Snow may be used instead of ice, if not readily acted on by salt, pour in one cup cold water. Crush ice finely by placing in bag and giving a few blows with mallet or broad side of ax, if there are any coarse pieces, remove them. Place can containing mixture to be frozen in wooden tub, cover, adjust top. Turn crank to make sure can fits in socket. Allow three level measures of ice to one of salt, repeat until ice and salt come to top of can, packing solidly, using handle of mallet to force it down. If only small quantities are to be frozen, the ice and salt need only come a little higher in the tub than the mixture. These are found the best proportions of ice and salt to insure smooth, fine-grained cream, sherbet, or water ice, while equal parts of salt and ice are used for freezing frappe. If a larger proportion of salt is used, the mixture will freeze in shorter time and will be of granular consistency, which is desirable only for frappe.

The mixture increases in bulk during freezing, so the can should never be more than three quarters filled. By overcrowding can, cream will be coarse grained. Turn crank slowly and steadily to expose as large a surface of mixture as possible to ice and salt. After frozen to a mush the crank may be turned more rapidly, adding more ice and salt if needed. After freezing is accomplished, draw off salt water, remove dasher, and with spoon pack solidly and cover. Repack freezer using four measures ice to one of salt. When serving time comes, remove can, wipe carefully, and place in vessel of cool water, let stand one minute, remove cover, run knife around edge of the cream, invert can on serving dish and frozen mixture will slip out.
