SEATTLE ATTORNEYS OUTCLASSED

Federal Court Will Wind Up Affairs of Angeles Transportation Company.

The federal court, Monday last, granted the petition of Port Angeles creditors of the Angeles Transportation company to have that concern adjudicated a bankrupt and its affairs wound up.

This is the consummation of a series of actions taken by Trefethen, Grinstead & Laube, on behalf of certain Seattle interests to gain possession of the steamer City of Angeles and the counter actions on the part of the local people to frustrate their plans and save as much as possible for the creditors of the company.

The first move was made last spring by the upSound interests who, using the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company as a blind, attempted to have a receiver appointed and throw the Angeles Transportation Company into the state insolvency proceedings, but they were twice beaten in their efforts by Mr. Trumbull, attorney for the defendant company, and the matter was set over until September. Just prior to time set for hearing in the King county court, G. M. Lauridsen was appointed receiver in behalf of the local interests and the Seattle interests were once more checked in their efforts. The matter was then taken to the supreme court of the state and reversed and a receiver appointed in King county and Mr. Lauridsen discharged.

A petition in bankruptcy was then filed in the Federal court and after a hard fought battle in which every move made by the petitioners was resisted by opposing counsel, the company has been adjudicated a bankrupt and the interests of the local people once more saved from confiscation.

Mr. Plummer represented the petitioners and Port Angeles should be very thankful to the officers of the Port Angeles Transportation Company for the fight they have put up in their efforts to protect all parties interested.

COMMERCIAL ASSEMBLY BALL SPLENDID SUCCESS

The committee in charge of the Assembly Ball last Friday evening at the Davis & Woods pavilion are to be congratulated on the splendid success of this, the first of a series of similar entertainments the Commercial Club will put on during the winter months. Everyone who attended is enthusiastic over the excellence of the floor, music and management.

A pretty feature of the evening's entertainment and one which met with great favor among the dancers was the two moonlight waltzes, when to the accompaniment of the orchestra Miss Taylor sang "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" and "Aloha."

Some very pretty and interesting pictures were framed as the spot light from the balcony rested for a moment on some particularly attractive couple and for a moment the audience was nonplused and were unable to understand how it happened that the light flitted in and out among the dancers until they discovered it had merely chanced to rest for an instant in order upon Edw. Christopherson, Dr. D. E. McGillivray, H. M. Fisher and Hon. J. P. Christensen.

All those present at the dance are hopefully looking to the 17th day of December, the date set by the committee for the next party.

BROTHERHOOD SUPPER A GOOD ONE

Fine Winter Roads Declared Great Aid in Work of Home Missionary Organization.

Those who attended the Brotherhood supper at the Congregational church Monday evening were treated to an especially good supper. Large bouquets of chrysanthemums centered each table making them very attractive.

At the business meeting it was proposed that the time of election of officers be changed from the middle of the year to the meeting just before the last in the spring. This met with the approval of all, including the motion that the old officers hold over until the spring election. Mr. Phillips, who has filled the presidents chair so faithfully and well the past year, wished to pass the honors on, so tendered his resignation but no action was taken upon it.

Rev. Scudder, superintendent of Mission and Sunday school work, in this state, was present and gave a short address. He spoke of how wonderfully they were being aided in their work by the system of good roads, which was making the outlying districts more accessible. He spoke particularly of the fine roads in Clallam county, especially in the West End.

The speaker of the evening, County Agriculturist Mr. McWhorter, was then introduced and gave a very interesting and instructive talk along the lines of his special work. The meeting adjourned after a rising vote of thanks to both the speaker and to the Ladies Aid for their excellent supper.

The new firm of Smith & Webster, Printers, will begin business in this city December 1st, in the new G. M. Lauridsen block, reaching completion this week on Lincoln street, between First and Second. The firm is composed of E. B. Webster, editor and publisher of the Olympic-Leader, and A. A. Smith, editor and publisher of the Tribune-Times. It will do a general commercial printing business, and in addition will print from the same presses, under contract with the Webster Publishing Co., and the Tribune-Times Co., the two newspapers

The two newspapers will occupy separate editorial and business offices, and in ownership, editorial control and business conduct will remain as now.

A third business office, separate and apart from the newspapers, will be occupied by the firm of Smith & Webster, Printers, for the conduct of a job printing business, and will be in charge of Mrs. Alice Boomer, late editor and publisher of the Peninsula Free Press, the business and plant of which recently was destroyed by fire.

The new newspaper block has been built by its owner under contract with Messrs. Smith & Webster, and leased to them for a term of years. It has been built expressly for printing office purposes and according to plans especially drawn and adapted to the business, and the mechanical plant to be installed therein will be the biggest and best equipped printing establishment on the Olympic peninsula. IRON SHIP SMASHED ON VANCOUVER ISLAND

Carel Mapu, Chilean, Driven on the Rocks and 25 Men Lost tho in Sight of Aid.

One of the worst disasters in the history of the Pacific Coast occurred about 2 p. m. today, when the Chilean full-rigged, four-masted, iron ship Carel Mapu was driven ashore before a terrific southwest gale one mile east of Gowland rock, Schooner cove, west coast of Vancouver Island, with the loss of all hands, numbering about 25.

The vessel was battered to pieces within a few hours after being driven on the rocks, the big windjammer being an easy mark for the gigantic breakers sweeping over her.

At great risk to herself the C. P. R. steamer Princess Maquinna, Capt. Gillam, attempted to render assistance to the shipwrecked mariners clinging to various parts of the wrecked craft, but owing to the tremendous seas running inshore she was unable to give aid, and the members of the crew of the Chilean vessel went to their doom with the rescue ship in sight, but helpless to pick them up.

Capt. Gillam did everything within human power to get close in to the ship and render aid, and it was only after a great fight and when it was seen that all had been lost that the attempt at rescue was abandoned.

The Princess Maquinna lost an anchor and sixty fathoms of chain and smashed her windlass. The Carel Mapu was bound from Calet Buena, via Honolulu, to Puget Sound in ballast. She was commanded by Capt. Desolmes.

The Carel Mapu was built at Liverpool in 1877. She was formerly the British ship Kinross and was a vessel of 1,262 net tons. She was owned by Oelckers Hermanos and registered at Valparaiso.

The coast guard cutter Snohomish also left for the scene at 1:15 yesterday, upon receipt of a wireless from Victoria.

SCRATCH "NO" ON CITY BALLOTS AND YOU VOTE "YES"

While it may be taken for granted that every property owner in Port Angeles is interested in the reduction of the annual interest charge and will not fail to take advantage of the opportunity to make a net saving of some $600 per year by issuing six per cent bonds to take up outstanding lighting warrants, as well as to increase the earning capacity of the plant by over $1,200 the year, it is feared the proposed bond issue may fail of the necessary majority by reason of the unusual form of ballot drawn up by the city attorney, wherein the words "Yes" and "No" take the place of the customary square in which one indicates his preference by means of a cross.

In accordance with the instructions, official publication of which was made in the Olympic-Leader last week, if the voter is in favor of either proposition and desires to vote "Yes," he crosses off the "No," a method of voting exactly opposite to that which has always been in vogue in the state.

It is believed that, in order to counteract this blow, it will be necessary to station one or more persons at each polling place to especially direct the attention of the voters to the peculiar form of ballot.

TWO HUNDRED PARENTS ATTENDED RECEPTION

Over two hundred interested parents and friends attended the reception given at Central school last Friday afternoon to the teachers of Port Angeles. A short program consisting of songs and folk dances was given in the Auditorium by pupils from Lincoln Heights, Pine Hill and the old Central and the new Central schools. Mrs. W. J. Ware, president of the Parent-Teachers' Association, made a brief talk urging the parents to attend the meetings and take a greater interest in the association, as she believed it could be made a factor for great good in the community as well as in the schools. At the close of the program all repaired to the upper hall where coffee and wafers were served from a prettily decorated table, presided over by six charming young ladies from the senior class, namely the Misses Gladys Taylor, Bernice Campbell, Marcella Schweitzer, Beth Webster, Florence Pettitt and Thelma Chambers. Parents and teachers mingled together in pleasant social converse during the remainder of the afternoon. It is now the intention of the Parent-Teachers Association to hold afternoon meetings at the school house quite frequently as it gives the mothers and teachers a much better opportunity of making each other's acquaintance, a thing which is very desirable. If you are not already a member of the association come out to the next meeting. The annual dues are only 25 cents.

YOUNG LAD ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Shotgun in Hands of Chum is Discharged, Tearing Hole in Michael Sullivan's Right Lung.

One of the saddest and most tragic accidents which has ever stirred the hearts of our people, occurred in the woods at Morse creek last Saturday afternoon when Clayton Pinyard, a boy of 15, accidently shot his most beloved friend and chum, Micheal Sullivan.

The boys, in company with Clayton's younger brother, Ellsworth, 14 years of age, had spent the day in the woods hunting and fishing, Ellsworth carried a 22 and Clayton a shot gun which he loaned part of the time to Michael. About two o'clock they built a bonfire and sat down to warm and dry their feet before starting home. After they had been there some time Clayton got up to unload the gun, preparatory to starting for home and was standing about ten or twelve feet in front of Michael. When he broke the gun to take out the shells it went off and he does not know whether it was already cocked or whether he unknowingly pulled the trigger. Michael said, "Oh, Tucksy, (his nickname for Clayton), you have shot me." Clayton did not realize what he had done, however, until he went to him and saw the wound. He pulled him into his lap and stopped up the wound with their handkerchiefs while Ellsworth went for water to bathe his face, and then ran to the road in search of help. He saw a man driving along and told him their troubles but he said he could do nothing for them and was in a hurry, and never even went to investigate. His name is John Fgnerly and he lives near Johnson Creek. It is indeed hard to believe that under the circumstances any human being could have refused assistance. In a short time another team came by and an Allen boy was on the wagon and to him Ellsworth appealed for help. He went and looked at Michael and said they would drive to Moss Land's and phone for a doctor, which they did. Mr. Land also notified Mrs. Sullivan. James Page, a cousin of the Pinyard boys, was coming along the road with a load of wood and the Allen boy told him of the accident so he hurried to the scene, and Ellsworth ran once more to the road where he met Sheriff Bishop in his auto, and no time was then lost in getting Michael to the Taylor hospital where Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Pinyard met them and four doctors were in attendance, but nothing could be done to save his life.

He recognized his mother and spoke to her and then lapsed in unconsciousness.

To his chum "Tucksy," to Sheriff Bishop and the others he repeatedly said, "It was just an accident," and for Tucksy not to feel so bad.

The boys were the same age and each was a little over six feet in height, and both had entered high school together this year. They have been neighbors and the closest friends since they were little fellows, always going to and from school together and sharing each other's joys and pleasures. Michael is at rest, but Clayton is burdened with a grief that will take years to assuage, and one in which all his family share.

Mrs. Sullivan's sorrow seemed almost more than she could bear. Only two and a half years ago she buried Michael's father, after a very short illness and she was left with the two boys, Michael and John. They were only her stepsons, but she loved them with all a loving mother's heart. As she had taken Mr. Sullivan's body back to Butte, Montana, their former home, for burial, she decided to take Michael's body there also. She broke up her home here and does not expect to return. They left the city on Monday.

The second number of the High School lecture course will be given December 2.

ELKS NEW HOME TO BE ELEGANTLY FURNISHED

From an inspection of the blue prints showing the designs of the furniture decided upon for the new Elks home, we should say it is going to be very elegant and in the best of taste. The ladies club room is to be a special feature of the home and the furnishings very attractive.

This club room will be open at all times to the Lady Elks and here they can entertain their friends at any private function, also securing the use of the banquet hall and kitchen. The ladies club room will be large enough so that about 150 could be entertained at a card party. It is connected with the banquet hall and kitchen and can be hired by any persons, lodges or clubs wishing to entertain. All the leading furniture dealers in the Northwest have been asked to submit bids on the price of furnishings.

HOLIDAY SERVICE AT POST OFFICE

Shop Early; Prepare Parcels Properly and Mail Before Noon Are Main Considerations.

A word to the Public:

The Holiday season is upon us and already the increase of business is felt at the Postoffice; it will continue to increase until the beginning of the New Year. It is our desire t serve you promptly and correctly, but, if we are to do so, in the rush times to follow, we shall need, and therefore ask, your co-operation.

The daily east bound mail via the Sol Duc closes at this office at 1:30 p. m., one hour earlier than formerly. Therefore, to be sure of getting your mail on this boat it would be well to bring it to the office before noon; for remember, you are not the only one to be served and only one person can write money orders at a time, and the same with registry work.

If you miss getting your mail on the Sol Duc Mondays, Wednesdays or Fridays, it will go east on the Bellingham at 5 the next morning, but if you miss the Sol Duc Tuesday, Thursday or Saturday your mail will not leave this office till 1:30 p. m. the following day.

It will be much help to the office if you bring your parcels done up securely and plainly marked. Your name, the senders name on the upper part at the left and the receivers name and address on the lower right hand corner. Use ink and write plainly.

Those intending to send parcels insured can get the tags at this office in advance and fill them out and attach them at home, thus avoiding delay at the Parcel Post window.

Don't put off your Christmas shopping till the last minute.

Remember—The post office force is no greater than last year but there are more of you to serve.

To sum up, the patrons of the Post Office will confer a great favor on the undersigned as well, we believe, as upon themselves, by—

1. Shopping early,
2. Preparing parcels securely and marking plainly,
3. Mailing before noon if possible.

Respectfully,
The Office Force,
FREEBORN S. LEWIS,
Postmaster.

P. S. Phone calls about mail will not be considered after this date.

Methodist Episcopal

The services for next Sunday, November 28th, will be of usual interest. In the morning the pastor will take for his subject, "The Cross in Human Life.' It will be a discussion of the individualistic versus social interpretation of the atonement. The proposition will be "There is not anything which Christ put in our atonement but what we must put back again in humanity." It is the latest light on the old subject.

In the evening the pastor will discuss one of the deepest mysteries of human experience. The theme will be, "Why I Believe in a Personal Devil."

The only true way of interpreting life is to look all facts in the face. So many folks are like the ostrich who buries his head in the sand thinking that because he cannot see, neither can he be seen by the hunter. Facts are stubborn things and denial and negation will not prove their non-existence.

Sunday evening we will look some facts of life squarely in the face and trace them to their logical conclusion independent of any one or his creed.

The public are most cordially welcome to these services. As this is Thanksgiving week let us come and fill the House of Great Giver to overflowing.

The first quarterly conference held Monday evening was one of faith and encouragement. The church will do better things the coming year. All members are expected to pay their vows to the church. Then we will have the best year.

Again. Come out to the church and you will be benefited.

A BUSY STREET

From Houston Post.

I love a busy, hustling town!
One day they put the paving down,
All nice and smooth and sweet; and then
Next day they tear it up again.
From one end of the street back to
Its other end, that's what they do;
And then they get it smooth and flat,
And give it its last loving pat.
And then there is a shriek of fear
Comes from the city engineer—
He has mislaid his monkey wrench!
And instantly they start a trench
And toss the pavement all around
Until the monkey wrench is found!
And then they tamp the dirt in tight,
And get it leveled off all right,
And surface it with hard concrete,
And make a street as is a street
By putting sand and bricks on that,
And the steam roller makes it flat.
Then they pierce that pavement through and through
To lay a line of pipe or two!
Then they repair that, and it lies
Smoothly beneath the summer skies
For, it may be a day or two;
Then there is a sewer to run thru!
Now, when someone you chance to meet
Talks of the "busy city street,"
That's what he means, in this man's town,
The street that's getting up and down
And rolling over that way, till
It just seems like it can't lie still.

SAVING AND SWIMMING

Saving is like swimming; once you get the "hang" of it it's easy, and you never forget how.

If you ever learn to swim it will be the result of two things; confidence and practice. No man can swim until he has confidence that the water will support him. This is absolutely essential. Until he gets this confidente he will be a "rope hanger," and never know the real exhilaration of bathing. He must then make certain motions with his hands and feet, or lie perfectly still and he will float for an indefinite time. Getting confidence and learning the stroke, he will learn to swim as a child learns to walk, little by little, one or two strokes at first, then a few more, and so on until he acquires proficiency, strength and endurance. And he will never forget how.

If you ever learn to save money, it will be through a similar process—confidence and practice. You must first trust something or somebody, or both. It may be an old tin box under a bed, the familiar teapot on the mantel, the parlor stove, a hole in the attic wall, or a corner under the carpet, but trust you must. You ought to trust a bank. When you get this confidence, you must do certain things, just as you learned to swim. You may begin timidly at first, with only a dollar—but many a bank account has begun with a dollar and ended with a thousand. As you become accustomed to banking your money rather than spending it as fast as you earn it (or faster), you will not be satisfied with small deposits—hanging on to the ropes as it were—but will want to see your account grow—attain a certain goal, as for instance a hundred dollars, just as the swimmer wants to swim across the lake, or to the diving board out in deep water.

As you form the saving habit, acquiring practice in the art of banking your money, this habit will develop the saving instinct and it will be as easy to save as it is to spend.

Once you acquire this saving instinct, you will never afterward be satisfied to waste your money. (You may forget yourself for a time and lose your poise, but the saving instinct will come back strong, and you will have pangs of regret over every foolish waste of money. You will chafe at being in debt, and living beyond your means will have an ever-present horror for you that will save you from many a later heartache.

You may be plunged overboard some dark night and your swimming instinct may save you. You may face a crisis in life some day, and if you get the saving habit you can face it serenely, knowing that you can take care of yourself until the skies clear. Once you acquire the saving habit it will be like swimming—easy when you get the knack, and you never forget how.

ACTIVITIES OF THE STATE'S DEPARTMENTS

WILL RETIRE
OUTSTANDING BONDS.

Olympia, Nov. 24.—Governor Lister's plan of retiring the only outstanding state bonds that are a charge against the general finances of the state—the $206,024 normal school bond issue,—may be carried out without awaiting action by the next legislature. State Treasurer Edward Meath, as chairman of the board of finance, has asked the attorney general for an official opinion on the question of whether these bonds may be retired without legislative assent, and if a favorable opinion is received, the bonds will be called immediately.

These bonds were issued in 1909 with the provision that they might be retired at any time after five years and within 15 years, at the option of the state.

The present excellent condition of the general fund, which has a cash balance of $1,257,003, will make possible the retirement of this debt without inconveniencing the state in any way.

If these bonds are retired the only outstanding state bonds will be $75,000 Wenatchee bridge bonds. These are not a charge against the general assets of the state, but only against the highway fund. However, Governor Lister will recommend that the next legislature take steps to retire them, which will leave the state entirely free of bonded debt and will, in the governor's belief, tend to deter the state from incurring debt in the future, unless necessitated by extraordinary circumstances.

FINE MEALS FOR INMATES OF STATE.

Special "Christmas meetings" of the reformatory board at Monroe December 9 and of the prison board at Walla Walla December 14 have been announced by the board of control. These meetings will allow prisoners whose minimum sentences have expired within the last two months, to have their applications for parole considered so that if granted, they may be released before the holidays, instead of waiting until the regular January meetings for consideration. Dr. Linda Burfield Hazard, the Seatle starvation specialist, is the only noted prisoner whose application for parole will be considered, her two-year minimum sentence expiring next month.

Thanksgiving brought the regulation turkey, chicken, cranberries, celery and other delicacies to the 6,000 wards of the state in its twelve institutions. In most instances the institutions raised their own poultry for their Thanksgiving feast.

At the Douglas county state honor camp roast pork was the piece de resistance for the 60 convicts engaged in road work. A number of young pigs were bought by the state when the camp was first started last summer. These have now developed some 200-pounders on a fare principally of kitchen scraps and are proving a good fresh meat supply for the camp.

GOVERNOR LISTER
ACCEPTS FIRST STATE PARK.

Governor Lister called a meeting of the state park board, created by the 1913 legislature, this week, to accept officially the deed to the first state park, which is on the Waterfront road section of the Pacific highway, south of Bellingham. This park of 25 acres, a natural beauty spot between the highway and the Puget Sound shoreline, was the gift of the Charles X. Larrabee estate.

In carrying out his plan of providing a series of such parks along the route of state highways, Governor Lister is preparing letters to other large land owners, asking donations to the state of small tracts conveniently located on the road systems.

NEW BUILDINGS
FOR FEEBLE MINDED.

The state board of control announces that the excavating for the new buildings at the institution for feeble minded at Medical Lake has been completed by the contractors, Boyajohn & Arnold, and the forms for the new concrete foundations in the administration building are in place. The work has been progressing rapidly up until the recent cold spell and with good weather again will be pushed to completion.

A new root house has just been completed at this institution, which will pay for itself in three years in the amount of vegetables which will be saved through having a suitable place to keep them.

A new ward in the girls' school at this institution, which will accommodate thirty-two inmates, will be opened this month.

Contractor S. C. Erickson also has started work on the new fireproof building for the school for blind at Vancouver.

$120,000 TO BE SPENT
ON EMPIRE HIGHWAY.

The state highway department has called for bids to be opened December 20 on approximately $120,000 worth of work on the Inland Empire highway. Approximately 17 miles of construction work will be on the Eastern Division in Whitman county, 9 miles in Walla Walla county and 12 miles in Benton county.

RAVENSDALE FAMILIES TO GET PENSIONS.

Pensions to families of the 31 victims of the Ravensdale coal mine disaster of last week will be met by special assessments upon coal operators to raise approximately $75,000 according to estimates of the industrial insurance commission. The industrial insurance commission expects to call a meeting of the coal operators to discuss the situation and determine the best means of making the extra assessments.

GROUNDLESS COMPLAINTS AGAINST ROAD WORK.

Laor Commissioner E. W. Olson has investigated and found groundless complaints against conduct of the state road work on the Olympic highway. Overtime was put in only in emergencies, Commissioner Olson found, while the workers appeared to be entirely satisfied with hospital arrangements.

NIGHTRIDERS CAUSE
MUCH SUFFERING TO ONE.

Investigators appointed by the Tacoma women's clubs and by Governor Lister have joined in a unanimous report finding that Earl and Frank Ross are not being ill treated in the Pacific county jail, as charged by their mother, Mrs. Margaret M. Ross, but charging that the Rosses have suffered grievously at the hands of the North River nightriders.

RESIGNATION TENDERED ON STATE MEDICAL BOARD.

The resignation of Dr. Robert Percy Smith of Seattle from the state board of medical examiners was accepted by Governor Lister last week and Dr. D. M. Stone of Seattle was appointed to the place. A successor to Dr. Smith as chairman of the board will be elected at the annual meeting in January.

COMPLETION OF NEW LINK OF HIGHWAY.

The completion of the new Lacey-Nisqually section of the Pacific highway is announced by the state highway department. This section eliminates the dangerous Nisqually hill, the new road, for 8½ miles, running along the former Northern Pacific grade.

L. H. Goerig did the principal work, costing $20,466 by contract, the highway department then surfacing with gravel the new construction and building guard rails along all fills.

CUTTER BEAR BACK
FROM NORTH FOR WINTER

Having spent the summer and fall in the Arctic and Bering seas, the United States coast guard cutter Bear, Capt. C. S. Cochran, steamed from Port Angeles Wednesday morning for San Francisco, to pass the winter and early spring cruising off the southern California coast, thereby switching from the most remote frontier of all to the festive scenes where the wealthy and fashionable seek refuge from the weather of the cold months. "Like all migratory birds, we go north in the spring and flit back south with the last days of autumn," said the officers last night before they left Port.

"Little Visits" No. 7

Dr. Theodore Sharpe.

Last week I was very deeply impressed that I was to receive a very important communication. This was strengthened as I entered the postoffice and took from my box a considerable number of letters among which was one that felt formal and stiff. Eagerly I opened it for I felt one of the most critical moments of my life had come.

I was not mistaken and my heart went flop, flop, flop, as I read with dim and misty eyes the following words which were engraved on a most beautiful purple card:

The Port Angeles Commercial Club
Herewith presents a call
For you and your fair ladies
To attend the Assembly ball.
It isn't often or to all
This town gives sucn event,
So to you and your fair ladies
This proclamation's sent.
It won't be crisp or formal,
Nor yet in careless dress,
So come togged up for gaiety
And Assembled Happiness.

I rushed home. I was so eager to impart the good news to my wife. The door was scarcely opened when I shouted, almost out of breath, "Wife, wife, our opportunity has come at last." Breathlessly I handed her the engraved purple card as I said, "I will keep tnis as an heirloom and it shall be handed down to my children's children.' I watched her as she read it. I expected her face to lighten up with joy unspeakable. To my horror and dismay her face turned an icy color and the atmosphere turned frigid until I thought I was in a packing house refrigerator. She gave me a cold blooded stare as she replied. "I always though there was something wrong with your mind, now I know it." I feebly replied, "Wife, wife, explain yourself." "Why," she said, "This is an invitation to a dance. I am much amazed at your opaqueness. You, a Methodist preacher, thinking of going to a dance." Then with a wild burst of words she exclaimed, "To think that my husband should ever lose his mind like this."

I insisted that it was not a dance. I did not believe that the Commercial club would invite me to a dance. They know I am a Methodist preacher with convictions all my own. "Why," I said, "they have invited me to become a member, they have asked me to speak to them, I have been at the Board meetings. I have boosted for them from pulpit and thru the press, I have been welcomed with the glad hand by many of the members. They seemed to have appreciated my nelp and sympathy, they would not be so cruel and heartless to treat a poor innocent preacher like that."

Her only reply was, "You have lost what little sense you had."

But I would not be shaken from my first and firm resolve that I would attend the Commercial Club ball, and I said to my wife, "I would not miss this opportunity for the world, I will visit tne ball if I go alone."

And so this is my "Little Visit" to the Commercial Club Ball in Davis & Woods pavilion.

The first thing that agitated my trembling mind was the old and eternal question of the female sex, "What shall I wear?" I said to myself, "I must appear my very best for the elite of Port Angeles will be there assembled, the aristocracy of Pine Hill will be out in full force, the "noblese" of Tumwater Hill will will be in gala dresss, the grandess of the Boulevard will dazzle in gold and silk, the squirearchy of Lincoln Heights will be represented by the patricians and "hidalgos" of that residental district, Sixth street will be on the scene with its fashionable and high born citizens. I said proudly to myself, "I will represent the Methodist Parsonage with all my dignity and good looks."

The first thing was the selection of a coat. I scanned my ward robe with the eye of Beau Brummel. Would I wear my frock coat or my tail coat, my sack coat or my Suffock coat, my dress coat or my undress coat, my house coat or my Tuxedo. I finally selected an ordinary coat.

Would I wear breeches or pantaloons, trousers or knickerbockers. I finally selected a pair of pants.

Would I wear a waistcoat or a jerkin, a doublet or a gabardine. My choice fell on a vest.

The selection of my footgear was a severe problem to me.

I had my choice of the following: Boots, shoes, pumps, slippers, sandals, galoches, goloches, pattens, Wellingtons, Bluchers, Hessians, galligaskins, gamaches, gambados, gaiters and spatterdashes.

I finally selected a pair which I bought at a bargain sale at Jensen's Shoe store and which cost me one dollar in good money, the best I had.

My selection of head gear was simpler as I had only the following, a beaver, a tile, a castor, a bonnet, a wimple, and a billy-cock. I wore the only hat I had.

Thus garbed and accountered in my finery, frappery, foppery, and toggery, I stepped forth. I sallied out, I saundered and I sortied in the direction of my approaching triumph. I said proudly, "I will make my entrance spectacular, theatrical and dramatic, I will be the attraction of all eyes."

I hurried along Sixth to Lincoln. I almost ran down Front street. Only once did I pause in my haste and that was when I was passing the magnificent new building of the Elks. As I looked up at the handsome brick structure I murmured to myself, "I hope the Elks will invite me to their opening." I could not hurry fast enough along busy Front street. I wished for a flying machine that I might arrive the sooner at the scene of my approaching social triumph.

Soon I arrived in the vicinity of the well lighted building. I was really looking for a reception committee but was sadly disappointed. I hurried up to the entrance expecting to be welcomed with the outstretched hands of my social cronies.

Alas, the sadnesses and madnesses of life. Just then some one threw a brick and I awakened to the bitterness of life. Some one had busted my pretty little bubble with a pitchfork. Some one had shot a 42-centimeter shell into my little tissue paper house. Life was not what I had expected it to be. As I looked into the well-furnished and lighted building I saw scenes and sights and spectacles and shows which made me pause and shed bitter tears. Do not ask me what pictures fell upon my weeping eyes. I cannot tell. But I saw things which it is unlawful for a Methodist preacher to see. I turned sadly on my heels and with hanging head began my weary journey to my house. As I slowly and sadly paced the walks towards the busy city I mused thusly, "And so the Commercial club ball is no place for me." I must go elsewhere for my social life. I really thought they stood for the community spirit in all things. How I wanted to mingle with those fine fellows of the Commercial club but they have raised the bars against me. They have raised the bars against scores of good folks like myself. In their business and material interests they welcome me. In their social pleasures they have no consideration at all for folks of my tribe and convictions."

"They will call me narrow and old fashioned but really they are the ones who have done the narrowing for they have narrowed things so close that only the select and initiated can enter. It was a class function and not for the average man of Port Angeles."

So many musings did I muse that before I was aware I was at my gate almost in a haze and dream. Suddenly I was aroused to the sense of real old life as I heard my wife say in a peculiar voice, 'So you found some sense on the way, you ought to have taken my advice in the first place and you would not have made a lunatic out of yourself."

Sadly I took off my glad rags. I took some hope when I rememered that perhaps the remaining functions which the entertainment committee has mapped out might contain some bright spot for me and my kind. Eagerly I scanned the program of the social events. Alas, there was no hope, it was hopelessly hopeless, not a ray of light to pierce my social gloom. So I placed my gala garb once more in the cedar chest and covered them with the camphor ball, and moth briquets. As I closed the lid I repeated the words of the dying Caesar, "Et tu mercatorus clubus."

When our family household had been once more adjusted and I had promised never to be wild and giddy again, my wife suddenly said, "Well I should think you would never go near that bunch any more." In astonishment I replied, "Why I will stick to them all tne closer, they will need my sympathy and support all the more. Desert those fine chaps in the Commercial club after all they had done for me, well, I guess not. I will stick with them till the ship comes home and the cows are in the lane in the sight of the old red barn." Her reply was, "Well I suppose you are right for once anyway, it is not often you show any real sense."

It was next morning when I suddenly spoke to my wife in words which stunned her. "I am going to write these things down and publish them under 'Little Visits'—I think I can get past Webster."

She shouted until I looked at her in quiet amazement. "If you write these things they will never speak to you again." My answer was soft and gentle, "That will not make any difference to me, I shall speak to them." Still she persisted, "But they will never ask you any more to speak for them in the club rooms." My answer was easy, "But I will still have my voice left and I can speak everywhere else."

A woman is not easily downed and again she came back at me. "But they will knock you hard." That was easily answered, "I will apply the Golden Rule and boost for them while they knock." Nothing seemed to daunt her, and she replied, "But won't you lose their friendship?" "Well," I retorted, "If they get sore at me because I think a little out of the usual way, why they never were my friends. But whether they cease to be my friends or not they cannot prevent me from being friends with them."

"Well," she replied, "I see you are the same old fellow I married years ago when I wan't in my right mind."

And so I have written down my thoughts and feelings, only a small part of them, which came to me concerning the time when I almost reached the pinnacle of my social triumph.

And thus endeth my "Little Visit" to the Commercial Club ball which I did not make in waking life but only in my sleep and dreams.

THE SUPERIOR COURT

Judge R. B. Albertson of the Superior Court of King County exchanged places this week with Judge Ralston, sitting here while Judge Ralston took his place in Seattle. Judge Albertson was called in to hear the case of Goodwin vs. Goodwin but took up all matters on the docket. Judge Ralston will make a special visit here on the 30th inst. and will be here for the regular early month term December 7.

Final accounts were filed in the estates of Charles Tillman, Edward D. Hines and Henry Oberg, and December 27th set as the date of hearing same. Petition for sale of property in Hines estate was abandoned, heirs paying off all debts.

In appeal of garnishee defendant from decision of justice court in case of Seattle Merchants association vs. J. N. Marshall, same was dismissed with instructions to justice court to pay judgment from funds deposited also that garnishee be absolved from any liability as garnishee defendant.

Mark Gibson was appointed administrator of estate of Dr. W. C. Gibson. Bonds fixed at $4,000.

R. M. Clark was granted a decree of divorce from Lillian Clark on the grounds of desertion. They were married but a few month when she skipped out 2½ years ago. He doesn't know where she is.

Pearl E. Bolles likewise received a decree of divorce from Walter H. Bollee on the same ground and the additional ground of non support. This case has been pending for some months.

Motion to strike affirmative defense in case of Arnold Davidson minor, vs. L. G. Thomas et al for damages for injuries was granted, court holding that the defense of knowledge and contributory negligence was not a defense against a child of tender years.

F. P. Fisher was appointed general administrator of estate of L. N. Brodin, drowned some months ago.

Anna Wilder was appointed guardian of Hazel and Nellie Grimit.

The R. D. Willson Hardware Co. recovered judgment on account against Lee Eck and C. W. White and the Atlas Assurance Co. in the sum of $340.45. The Atlas Co. admit they owe the other defendants $325 and this sum will be applied.

C. F. Seal was appointed executor of the last will and codicil of Lydia Ann Robinson, as named in said will. Attorney Casey of Seattle was here in the interest of one of the heirs and sought to make it appear that the last page of the will had been changed. Court advised counsel that he had failed to submit any proof of any fraud but held that it was immaterial at this time, he could submit further proof within a year if he so desired.

Mrs. Louise Garvin was appointed guardian of the Peterson children, Eda May and John Dalmar, and bonds fixed at $2,000.

Case of Dann vs. Durr was dismissed with consent of all parties.

In Goodwin vs. Goodwin et al, a number of witnesses were heard for both sides. Plaintiffs sought to have a mortgage for $2500 held by Citizens National Bank and a deed to G. M. Lauridsen given after suit was brought but before judgment was rendered in favor of plaintiff, set aside as fraudulent. They only succeeded in establishing that the mortgage was a valid lien for $148 owing at the time it was given and payments made later for $400 or approximately. The deed to Lauridsen the court refused to hold to be given fraudulently in that defendant Lauridsen offered in court to take less than the deed had cost him and no equity was shown. The place transferred is 110 acres of Elwha bottom, with a few improvements and an improved place in town of value of $1800. The property was recently foreclosed against in the sum of $6,300. The court refused to give to plaintiff the right of redemption.

STATE INDUSTRIAL INSURANCE FUND LOOTED

That a systematic series of frauds, running back over a period of months, has been perpetrated, by which the industrial insurance fund of the state has been looted of a sum at present estimated at anywhere from $15,000 to $50,000, are the facts disclosed by an investigation now under way at the state capital. The game has been worked by a gang of three or four talented operators, and the accident insurance fund has been the special point of attack. Dummies have been used to set up a fake statement of facts, procure the necessary reports in official form and secure the warrants properly drawn, which latter have been cashed in saloons in Seattle, Taroma and Olympia. J. F. Gillies, an employe of the industrial insurance commission, has been suspended pending the investigation now being made, but no charges have been placed against him as yet. The stories brought out by the disclosures are now connecting the operations of the gang with those of an opium smuggling ring that has been interesting the federal sleuths for some time past. Official Olympia is all torn up over the disclosures, and the shock has gone abroad over the state.

M. M. Mattison, writing for the Seattle Times from Olympia, Wednesday, says:

"Here is the story of a man in a position to know many of the details of the looting of the industrial insurance commission county road fund.

" 'Three men really handled the job and they cleaned up between $30,000 and $40,000. Probably all of the forged claims upon which warrants were issued never will be located, for it is almost impossible to find them unless each individual item is checked up. It is almost impossible.

" 'In the ring there was one 'inside man, an office employe; a saloon man and another. They used occasional dummies, but these were not necessary very often.

" 'Between the saloon man and the third man the fraudulent warrants were cashed. This outside man posed as an office employe and introduced those who presented the warrants for payment. Inasmuch as the owners of the saloons to whom the warrants were presented had been notified in advance that a claimant was coming to cash his warrant no suspicion was attached to the two.

" 'This same clique of three were the ring leaders in a smuggling game reported to federal authorities last summer. Their activities were investigated, but the evidence necessary to convict them was not found. One of the trio already has left town and I doubt whether the evidence will ever be found to convict the others.' "

"This strange story has an air of probability about it and to some extent is credited by state officals."

AMOUNT OF LOOT MAY NEVER BE KNOWN

A special from Olympia to the Seattle P.-I. Wednesday says in part:

"How much has been stolen from the state industrial insurance fund is not now known and in all probability never will be known. This is the suspicion that is growing in official and unofficial Olympia.

"It is expected that eventually there will be some prosecutions; some accounting of the looting of one or two funds; some change of the system, after which the incident will come to a more or less unsatisfactory close.

"The task of determining the extent of the graft is enormous. A thorough investigation of the transactions of the commission would mean exactly as much work as the commission has done since it come into existence.

"With claims in the vault, which have piled up at a rate of 50 or 75 a day, or 30,000 a year, any one of which may be fraudulent, it is impossible to establish the amount stolen, except at a cost that would be prohibitive. Practically everyone of the thousands of warrants would have to be checked, entailing endless correspondence and investigation all over the state.

"Members of the commission still profess to believe that only the county road fund has been looted. It is pointed iut that this is the easiest fund to loot, but the fact remains that every fund and every subdivision could be looted with practically as much ease, with only a slight additional risk."

APOLLOS BEST NUMBER OF THE LECTURE COURSE

Don't miss this concert, it will be one of the best musical entertainments that has ever come to Port Angeles.

The following are extracts from recent press comments, where this company has appeared.

"The Appollos came to Albion, Illinois, highly recommended and they lived up to the reputation that preceded them. From the opening number on the Appollophone to the closing Saxophone quartet, the company held the close attention of the audience. The committee has received a great many compliments on the concert which certainly gave the course a good start. The Appollos will be remembered in Albion for a long time to some and should they return to this city at some future date they may rest assured of a hearty welcome."

"It was a big success. For many said that the first number was worth the price of the season ticket and others have said that the Appollos are superior to any company that has been offered in the town before on either lecture course or Chautauqua."

"It would be a difficult matter to find a company the equal of these artists anywhere in Lyceum. Each individual is a star, the best in his line. It is a big, well-balanced company, fit to entertain anyone, anywhere. The program offers more variety than that of any other company that visited here, and it is a fact that the Appollos could give another complete program without using any of the same instruments."

The price for the four remaining numbers of this lecture course is $1.50. The board will open for reservation of seats at Mathewson's Drug Store, Monday. November 29.

Under leadership of their class teacher, Mrs. Benj. Phillips, the young ladies of the Congregational Sunday school have organized a "Count On Me" club, adopting as their motto "Memoir et Fidelis" and brown and gold as their colors. The officers are: President, Eloise Fender; vice-president, Elburton Nattinger; secretary and treasurer, Gertrude Martell; organist, Ada Cloukie; class historian, Lenore White; class poets, Frances Prickett and Gertrude Martell; social committee, Frances Prickett, Nina Burdick and Virginia Learnsberry; membership committee, Hannah Lonsdale, Lenore White and Stella Cloukie; athletic committee, Margie Walton, Elburton Nattinger, Frances Prickett and Gertrude Martell; sick committee, Virginia Learnsberry, Margie Walton, Elburton Nattinger and Gertrude Martell.

Preparing and carrying to a needy family a Thanksgiving dinner was one of their first acts of kindness.

E. J. Maynard is having a large brick fireplace added to the McIvor Hotel, Lake Sutherland, which he bought last week. Mr. Maynard intends to spend several hundred dollars this winter in improvements to the cottage and grounds and will make it one of the most attractive places on the lakes.

The Clallam County Medical Society, after dining at the Bungalow Inn as guests of the President, Dr. F T. Hyde, held its regular monthly meeting in Dr. Hyde's offices. Dr. W. A. Hibbs of Sequim read a paper on Bronchitis, and Dr. Hyde demonstrated some very interesting cases with the X-ray.

C. D. Sult of the Cottage Hotel, Forks, was in town a few days this week, having accompanied Messrs. Babcock, Dick and Dwyer on their return.

THE ARMY.

The Americans are a shrewd, wise people, usually gifted with foresight, but they have not shown it in their attitude toward the army and navy policy. Congress continues to be reluctant to maintain an adequate army. It's easy to get money for a militia, for a militia has votes and friends, but a regular army is far different. There is a saying that the Lord looks after children and drunken men. This certainly ought to be extended to the United States. Of course our separation from foreign countries by oceans is cause for not assuming too heavy a burden, but we are very, very much nearer Europe and Asia—many, many times nearer—than we were in Washington's time. Occasionally we get a jar and notice our position, but luck has been with us in the past, and we cannot assume that it will always continue thus.—W. H. Taft.
