RESOURCES AND REQUIREMENTS OF OLYMPIC NATIONAL FOREST

$31,000 NEEDED FOR NEW TRAILS

The talk on the Olympic National Forest, its resources and requirements, and th policy of the government in regard to its management, announced to be given by Chief Ranger Chris. Morganroth at the meeting of the Commercial club on Monday evening, proved the most interesting of any the members of that organization have thus far had the pleasure of listening to.

First stating that the policy of the department is to so manage the national forests that the people who own them may derive the greatest degree of benefit therefrom, Mr. Morganroth took up the question of agricultural lands within the Olympic Forest. Contrary to the oft repeated assertions of the Seattle papers that the existence of the Forest hinders development and that the lands should be thrown open to settlement. Mr. Morganroth stated that there is practically no agricultural land remaining within its boundaries. Here and there there may be a small tract, but the high altitude and distance from market coupled with absence of roads make such of no value. Settlers filing on these limited areas must live thereon the three years required under the homestead law, and at the end of that time must have one-eighth of their claim under cultivation.

Asi e from the sale of mature timbe the chief resource of the Forest will be found in the grazing lands of which there are some 8,000 acres adjacent to Port Angeles, said Mr. Morganroth. Thus far very few have taken advantage of their opportunities in this direction. Eleven permits were issued last year, 280 head of cattle and a few horses being pastured in the knee deep grass in the sub-alpine valleys at the head of Morse creek and adjacent streams, and all came out in good shape in the fall. Mr. Morganroth said he had been urging for years the organization of an association among the ranchers, to the end that they might, by pasturing 500 to 1,000 head, afford to employ someone to look after them; the charge for cattle is 33c and for horses 50c for the season. This summer the old Cox trail from Mt. Pleasant to the Cox Valley on the south side of Mt. Angeles will be improved and rebuilt on easier grades at a cost of $1,200, the work to be completed by the first of July. Later on it is hoped to complete the trail, or to extend it, around to Hurricane Hill and down Salal ridge to Wolfe's place on the Elwha.

The Necessity of Trails and Telephone Lines.

Regarding the opening up of the Forest by means of trails and the extension of telephone lines, Mr. Morganroth said there was a difference of opinion. It had, however, been his experience that while trails have and will further increase travel and camping in the Forest and thereby increase the number of unextinguished campfires left, this increased danger is largely overbalanced by confining travel to common channels where unextinguished fires are soon discovered and quickly put out. A certain number of campers, hunters, prospectors and fishermen go up every stream and into the mountains every year. In remote regions where there are no trails fires are often of considerable proportions before being discovered and reported, and then without trails to get in men and equipment it is usually impossible to control or confine them within reasonable boundaries. These are the most costly fires for one fire will sometimes do enough damage to timber values to equal the cost of a complete system of trails and telephone lines for the entire Forest.

Mr. Morganroth cited the Solduck fire as a good example of the old foot messenger, horse transportation and poorly organized co-operation system. It took ten hours for a foot messenger to report the 1907 fire in Port Angeles and fifteen hours more to collect ten men, get supplies and equipment and get them to the ground where needed, the men being unfit for immediate duty when reaching camp. The result of that fire is evident and well known. Another fire in the same place, in 1915 was reported to Mr. Morganroth in the morning about six o'clock. He notified Mr. Rixon at Beaver 16 miles west of the fire to co-operate for the Lacey Timber Co. and both Mr. Rixon and himself were at the fire with men by 10:00 a. m. Fire tools were available from a tool box right at hand and by 4:00 p. m. the fire was surrounded by a fire line and confined to an area of 25 acres.

Another instance was that of the Little River fire, on the southern edge of Port Angeles townsite in 1914. Had it not been for the Forest trail built through from Coleman's ranch to Ennis Creek, the whole of Mt. Angeles would have been again fire-swept and the hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of timber along the streams would have been lost.

Numerous cases of fire are on record where trails, roads and telephone lines, or the absence of these, have had direct influence on prompt control, cost and damage. In this connection Mr. Morganroth expressed his appreciation of the co-operation they had had from the people generally for their interest and assistance; particularly he referred to the Angles Telephone company, the publicity given by the newspapers, and the assistance of the automobile men, guides, hotel people and

CARL LAURENS, PROMINENT LUTHERAN, HAS PASSED AWAY

Mr. Carl Laurens passed away at the General Hospital Saturday afternoon, February 12, as a result of pneumonia from which he had been sick a number of weeks. He was brought to the hospital from his home at Agnew's Crossing two weeks previous to his death. Mr. Laurens was a native of Germany and was 56 years of age. He leaves a wife and three daughters, Helen, who teaches school at Agnews Crossing, and two youner sisters, Minnie and Francis.

Mr. Laurens owned a home on Lincoln Heights where he lived for many years, but recently he bought the farm, where he was living at the time of his death.

Funeral services were held at the Fulmer chapel, Tuesday morning at 10:30, and were attended by a large body of sympathizing friends. Rev. Gerbich of the Lutheran church had charge of the services, the Knights of Pythias performing the last rites at the grave. The many beautiful floral offerings were testimonials of the high regard in which the deceased was held in the community in which he had lived so long. The Olympic-Leader xtends sympathy to the sorrowing family.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS TO MEET NEXT SUNDAY

While there were several out at the first meeting held last Sunday in Attorney Rose's office for the purpose of taking steps to secure the organization of a camp of the Spanish War Veterans for this county, the attendance was not large enough to make application for a charter and a second meeting has been called for next Sunday, at two o'clock, at the same place. Meanwhile, Deputy Sheriff Cooper is getting the boys properly lined up and it is believed there will be no difficulty this time. Every honorably discharged veteran of the Spanish war and Philippine insurrection is eligible to membership and expected to be present and lend his aid.

The date for the high school play "The Touchdown," has been set for next week, Thursday, Feb. 24.

ALLISON HOME ON HEIGHTS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Mr. J. C. Allison's home on Lincoln Heights and its contents was destroyed by fire Monday afternoon, the cause of the fire supposedly being a defective flue. Mr. Allison owned two houses right close together and only for the splendid service of the fireman would have suffered the total destruction of both of them. Mrs. Allison was away from home and Mr. Allison was sick, so the fire was well under way before the alarm could be given and then when the firemen got there it was found the water pressure was too poor to be of much service.

The Allison family lost everything in their home; but most of the contents of the second home were saved due to the splendid service given by the firemen and neighbors who worked so heroically. It is reported that the second house was rented but the family had not taken possession though their furniture was all there.

UNFORTUNATELY, SHE'S A WOMAN

Councilmen Refuse to Pay Assistant City Treasurer $2 per Day for Expert Service.

The city council held a short, snappy session last night, adjourning shortly after eight o'clock.

The ordinance regulating the salaries of the chief of police and one policeman of the city of Port Angeles, and repealing all former ordinances in regard to this matter was placed on its final passage and adopted. The chief of police will hereafter receive $92.50 per month and the policeman $87.50.

An ordinance authorizing and directing the issuance of local improvement bonds for district No. 37, was placed on its initial readings and referred. This is a lateral sewer contract between Fifth and Eighth streets from 250 feet west of Cherry to Lincoln.

An ordinance authorizing the issuance and sale of bonds on local improvement district No. 22 was placed on its first and second readings and referred to the city attorney and ordinance committee.

This improvement includes the improvement of Peabody street from the south line of Victoria street to Broadway.

An ordinance authorizing and directing the issuance and sale of local improvement bonds for district No. 38 was placed on its first and second readings and referred to attorney and ordinance committee. This improvement provides construction of a lateral sewer in and along alleys running through blocks 35 and 35 of N. R. Smith's subdivision, etc.

A communication was received from the Standard Oil Company by their construction engineer, Mr. F. E. Roper, calling the council's attention to the dangerous condition of the Tumwater waterway, at and just south of Third street. Mr. Roper contends that high water will prove a menace to property owners in that neighborhood. Referred to street committee and street superintendent.

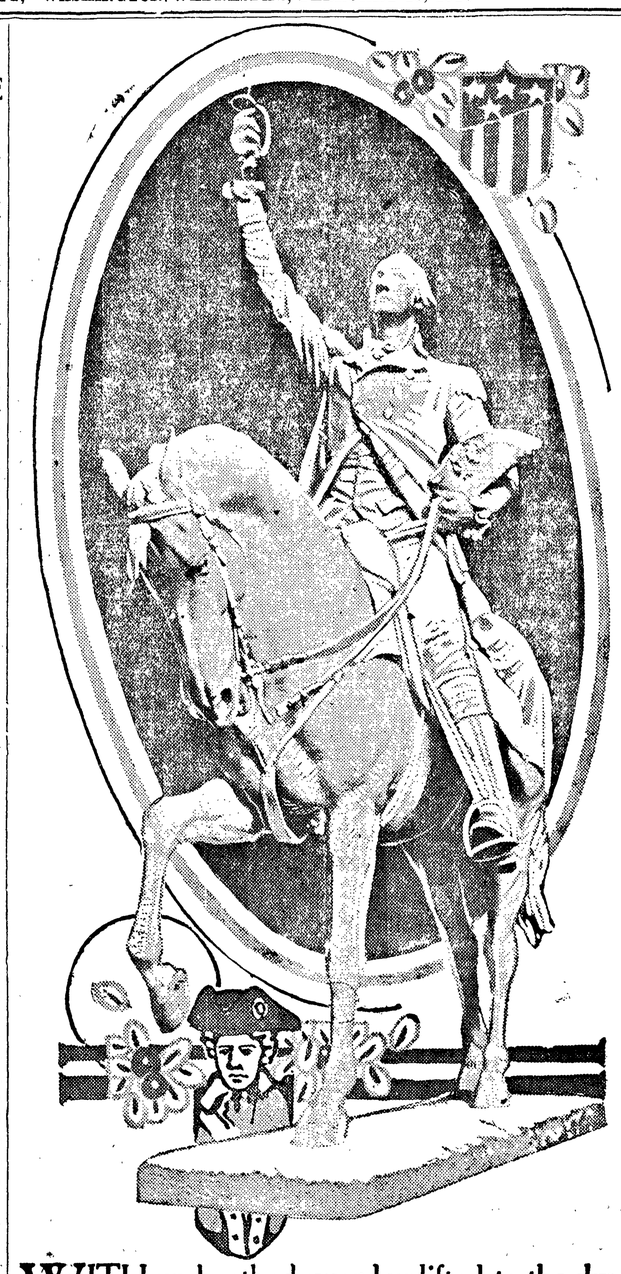
Fire Chief Frank Dilling requested that the council order the draining of water from around fire hydrant at Fifth and F streets, the water being nearly two feet deep. Referred to street superintendent.

G. M. Lauridsen's communication to the city council informing them that he was not opposed to the improvement of I or K street, was read and placed on file.

H. F. Bishop was granted a permit to build an addition to the Motor Inn, to cost about $400.

The bill of Mrs. Julia Harley for assisting treasurer 22 days during month of January, was not allowed. The bill was for $40. Council expected Mrs. Harley to work the entire month for the $40.

The city clerk was ordered to draw warrant for taxes against city's property in block 63, lot 14. The street grading tax is $59.18 and on the trunk sewer $13.63. This is on the Francis street improvement.



WITH unsheathed sword uplifted to the sky,
In solemn thought of all the future bore
Of deadly shock and long drawn battle roar,
He took command as sent him from on high.
No halting look in that imperial eye
That saw the blood red years of war in store,
Nor could the sphinxlike face stern duty wore
Make him afraid to fight for her or die.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO HELP IN A VERY WORTHY CAUSE

Do you want to help a very worthy cause that will be the means of helping some little youngsters to have a good warm dinner at school each day, who otherwise would have to go hungry? Mr. Lively, the principal of the Belleview school has a very energetic wife who has done a great deal to assist her husband in improving conditions in the school as well as the neighborhood. A Women's Association has been formed out in that neighborhood and they have been trying to earn a little money to get some conveniences for the school. They have the use of a cook stove until next June, so are going to take turns preparing something hot for the children's lunch each day. The trouble is they have no cooking utensils and no supply of materials. But that is just the interesting part of this story and I know that already you are wondering how you can help. Well, this is the scheme: this women's organization will give a card party and entertainment at the school house some time soon and the price of admission will be anything you want to bring to furnish this school kitchen and larder. Cooking utensils, dishes of any kind will be most acceptable. Maybe you have some one of these articles in your own home that you can easily spare. If so, watch for the date of the entertainment and see that you are there Johnny on the Spot.

YEOMEN ORGANIZE LADIES' AUXILIARY OF 22 MEMBERS

The local Yeoman lodge held a social session in I. O. O. F. hall last evening to which a number of outsiders had been invited and after the business of the lodge was over, a lunch was served in the dining room and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

A branch of Rowena Circle, a Women's auxiliary to the Yeoman lodge, was organized with a charter membership of 22, and the following officers elected: Mrs. Rose, president; Mrs. Cloukie, vice president; Mrs. Cooper, secretary and Mrs. McCart, treasurer. A meeting of the Circle will be held Tuesday afternoon, February 29, at the home of Mrs. Murray, 6th and Cherry.

CHANGE MADE IN LOCAL UNDERTAKING FIRM

J. P. Jensen, the shoeman, has taken over a one-half interest in the McKee & La Flower undertaking establishment. Mr. McKee has retired and Mr. Jensen will assume the management, though this will in no way interfere with his present shoe business. Mr. Jensen was an experienced undertaker for many years before coming to Angeles.

The outside front entrance to the new Elk home is now almost completed and is strikingly beautiful. It makes one want to investigate further into the building to see if the interior is just as attractive.

CLUB ADVOCATING PUBLIC MARKET

Dollar Day Bargain Feature to Be Presented in Connection Therewith.

The question of establishing a public market where live stock may be sold or exchanged and all other produce disposed of was brought up at the Monday night's meeting of the Commercial club by L. J. Leonard, who advocated the setting aside of some portion of the planked street west of Oak for the purpose. Mr. Leonard's suggestion was enthusiastically received, a committee consisting of Leonard, Ware and M. T. Walton being appointed to formulate a plan and recommend a suitable place for the holding of one or more market days each week. In discussing the matter Secretary Teck stated that the great advantage of a public market would be found in the tendency it would have to establish a better co-operative spirit between the people of city and county. Making an earnest effort to assist farmers in selling their product at a profitable price would help to overcome the spirit of skepticism. He would have one market day, only, each week and would make it a semi-holiday by combining with it the dollar bargain day feature now in vogue throughout the country. He said the best example of such co-operative work was to be found in Prosser, where an annual hog and corn show was being held and the business of raising those products had been revolutionized in the past three years. "The old booster proposition is a dead one," said Mr. Teck, "and real constructive work is what is now demanded of commercial clubs the country over." Mr. Phelps stated that his neice, while visiting in Seattle, had become interested in the public market and had afterwards taken up the matter through the commercial and women's clubs at her home in Calgary, and had secured results of which the people of that city are today very proud. Mr. Grubb believed that booths should be built along the west side of Cherry street between Front and First, and G. V. Smith thought the council should take the mater in hand when the plan was perfected, to the extent at least of issuing permits upon a proper showing, that the city might have a chance to regulate the matter.

In re the routing of tourists via Joyce instead of Port Angeles, the secretary read a letter from Traffic Manager R. M. Calkins which stated that no definite plan had been arrived at. However, he believed the service that delivered passengers at their destination most quickly would prove the most popular and tend to build up the resort business of the county in the shortest time.

A petition favoring the inland route down the west coast, which bore the signatures of ninety-five ranchers of western Clallam and Jefferson counties, was placed on file without discussion, it being considered inadvisable to take up the matter at this time while Johnson's bill for the appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose of building the road is pending. The petition set forth the fact that the road down the beach would prove impracticable for the reason that all the arable land lay along the interior route.

The committee appointed to secure better quarters for the club reported that they had rented the store room in the Warren Morse building for six months at $30 a month, including head, light and water, and had moved. They were instructed to continue their efforts to arrange plans for the building of a permanent home.

A NOTABLE EVENT

Republicanism rejuvenated and rehabilitated! This is the meaning of the great Lincoln Day banquet given under the auspices of the Young Men's Republican Club of King county, says the P.-I. It was an event of deep, far-reaching significance—a demonstration of returning unity and solidarity, and an omen of brightest promise. Never in the heyday of party strength and ascendency was such a notable function held; never was a party occasion marked by such enthusiasm and confidence. It furnished conclusive evidence that the Republican party of the State of Washington, past differences forgotten, is united in opposition to weak governmental policies and a perpetuation of the clumsy, discredited regime at the national capitol. The past three years have shown the heavy cost of party division in making possible a minority administration inept, unalert and impotent to conserve and protect American interests, and emphasized the necessity of restoring to power a constructively progressive Republican party capable of wisely directing the nation's affairs. This great banquet, with its resounding keynotes attuned to Americanism, bespeaks a political awakening conductive to the state's and country's welfare.

"A solid front in 1916," was the slogan adopted at the Lincoln Day banquet held at Mount Vernon, Skagit County, on the 12th, when over 100 Republicans gathered to pay tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln. A feature of the meeting was the presence of a large number of those who joined the third party movement in 1912.

Harry E. Wilson of Seattle, the speaker of the evening, in pointing out the shortcomings of the democratic party, vigorously assailed the democrats for their failure to live up to the one-term plank, Wilson's uncertain and vascillating foreign policy, including the Mexican situation, the party's failure to take constructive action with regard to the development of a merchant marine, the seamen's bill and others.

Concluding his remarks, Mr. Wilson declared that the Democracy, in spite of its broken promises and eternal blunders, probably would win at the next election unless Republicans get together and act like sensible men and let bygones be bygones.

"The history of 1912 left an old sore, but is there any reason why the old sore should be reopened?" asked the speaker. "It matters not who was to blame. The fact remains that the Democrats, by our failure to get together, won. Let us settle our difficulties in our own family. Divided in 1912, we lost; united in 1916 we are invincible and can send the Democratic donkey to its grave, unwept, unhonored and unsung."

"LET THERE BE LIGHT"

The Navy League of the United States favors a bond issue of $500,000,000 to build battleships for "preparedness." Very patriotic! And let us give credit to the Navy League for setting before us such a program of disinterested thought for the welfare of our great and glorious nation—that nation that would never stoop to a war of aggression, but which on the other hand, must be strongly fortified against the vandals that are plotting its downfall! Three rousing cheers! Wrap me around the flag, boys! "Preparedness at any price."

But soft, what is this spectre that rises to confront us? Can it be possible that things are not always what they seem? On page 32 of the year book of the Navy League for the year 1904, we find the "official list of the founders of the Navy League." Here we find the Midvale Steel Co., Chas. M. Schwab, Carnegie Steel Co., J. P. Morgan, Harvey Steel Co., International Nickel Co., sandwiched in between the names of prominent officers of the navy and other big men in public life. And when we learn that the United States government has purchased from these concerns over $100,000,000 worth of armor plate at an average price of $439 a ton, when the best informed men in the steel business estimate that it should cost not to exceed $250 per ton, we come to the conclusion that the "steel" in their names should be spelled differently; also that it is time we got "hep" to these dollar patriots.

President Wilson says that these munitions manufacturers are not the ones who started this move for preparedness, and we are willing to take his word for it, but you can bet your last dollar they are not overlooking any bets in the way of helping to push it along, and it isn't "preparedness" they are after; it's armed militarism and conscription, and the biggest navy in the world.

Truly we must have "preparedness at any price!"—Kent Journal.

The Federation of Commercial Clubs of the state met at Auburn last week, and laid plans for the establishment of a state-wide chamber of commerce. The plan suggested by Secretary of State I. M. Howell, and another plan offered by Frank C. Teck of the Port Angeles Commercial club, were both submitted to a committee which will draft plans for a state organization, and submit them at the next meeting. The idea is to center the work of a state-wide character in a central body, which will wipe out sectional jealousies and work for the state as a whole. The assembly felt that much good state advertising, immigration and new industry was being lost through the local rivalries which have crept into all of the exploitation work of individual commercial organizations.

The joint legislative league has filed with the secretary of state four initiative measures, all of which it hopes to place on the ballot next November. They are a non-partisan election law, a first aid bill, a bill providing for municipal ownership of all public utilities, and an amendment to the fish code provding that a tax be placed directly on the fish caught rather than on the fishing gear used in the industry. The next step will be to circulate petitions to secure the required number of signatures.

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS, NOMINEE FOR SUPREME JUSTICE

Louis D. Brandeis, whose nomination by President Wilson as a member of the Supreme court of the United States has caused such a commotion in certain circles, is said to be the most admired and the most hated practitioner in America. Everybody—friend or foe alike—concede his extraordinary attainments. He is an authority on constitutional law. His knowledge of industrial relations is probably unsurpassed by any person in the country. He is an efficiency expert. He is a religious leader. And, above all, he is in his intellectual prime, says Hamilton Holt, in The Independent.

Among his achievements — and many more could be cited—are the introduction of an industrial insurance into the savings banks of Massachusetts, the adoption of the doctrine of the prefential union shop in the garment industry of New York City, which is a solution of the open versus the closed shop controversy, the introduction in Boston of profit-sharing between corporations and consumers, the establishment of an eight-hour law for women factory workers first in Oregon, then in Illinois, (to be followed in Washington), the battle with Ballinger, the victory over the New Haven railroad, and the recent argument for a minimum wage law before the supreme court.

He was born in Louisville, Kentucky, in 1856 of Jewish parents lately emigrated from Prague, received most of his schooling in Germany and was graduated at the head of his class in the Harvard Law school at twenty. He started his career with only the ambition to be an honored member of his profession and to become prosperous. He was a thorough aristocrat, something of an art critic and esthete, and he found little difficulty in entering the charmed circle of the black Bay elect. Indeed, he became a sort of darling of the rich. But the change came—it was the reading of Henry D. Lloyd's "Wealth Against Commonwealth," and he resolved from that time on to rise from aristocracy to democracy. He then arranged his work so as to give up half his time to public service. So long as he confined his activities to serving as counsel for charities or as meditator in industrial disputes, he received practically unanimous praise from Boston's "best citizens." But when he began to attack privilege in high places and to show up corporate mismanagement, then praise turned to blame and friends to foes.

I shall not soon forget how his dark eyes wistfully rested on the embers, at the conclusion of our little talk, as he said without a shred of bitterness: "And now, if my wife had social ambitions, or if I wanted to join a club, or if I needed to borrow money at the bank, or if I should run for office, they would get me. Fortunately, we don't care for society; I am already a member of the clubs I like, I seem able to earn more money than I need, and I shall never seek public office."

Will "they" now prevent his confirmation to the Supreme court of the United States?

Plans for the fall campaign, and more immediately for the state conventions this spring, will be completed very shortly by both political parties, the Republican State Committee having met at the close of last week in Seattle, while the Democrats will gather late this week at Everett. It seems likely now that the state conventions of each party will send uninstructed delegations to the national conventions, although the Democrats will probably favor the renomination of President Wilson. Efforts are already being felt here to prevent the instruction of the Republican delegation, and it is rumored that Roosevelt influences are back of the movement. The belief that Roosevelt hopes to carry the Chicago convention by storm is gaining ground, and the apparent effort of the Post-Intelligencer to get in line for supporting Roosevelt adds to that belief. Everyone who comes from the east expresses he same idea, that the plans are laid to carry Roosevelt through with a rush at the last moment. There seems to be no real Roosevelt sentiment in the party in this state, but as there is no sentiment for any other candidate strong enough to win him an instructed delegation, it seems likely that Washington's delegates will go to Chicago unfettered.

CAN ROOSEVELT COME BACK?

Who will be the presidental candidate of the Republican party this year?

Who is the man to defeat Woodrow Wilson?

Will Teddy Roosevelt come back?

These are the questions that are bothering the Republicans of this state, and other states as well. Beyond a doubt, a Roosevelt boom is under way. In the celebrated "Teddy," many people see the answer to all three queries. He has many friends and they are working hard for him.

In a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Sam Blythe declares the Republican party is afflicted with the "spotted" fever, and that the spots show a reflection of "Teddy's" face. Several of the big Republican papers have come forth with black type editorials in which they assert Roosevelt is the political Moses needed to lead the Republican party victorious to the polls. Nearly four million Republicans in 1912, who went after the "Rough Rider" hammer and tongs, do not know how they are going to take back all the harsh things they have said and still be true to their honest convictions.

So far no one has had a second guess as to what the former President will do. William Howard Taft is the only one who has spoken his little piece, and he says his former chief is impossible as the Republican nominee for President. Taft was able to control the Chicago convention in 1912, despite "Teddy's" popplarity, but when the voters dropped their ballots in November, Mr. Taft found that he was playing second fiddle to the man he defeated in convention.

There is a feeling among Republicans that they must defeat Wilson, but they cannot get together on the man whom they think is able to do the trick, so every interview begins with Judge Hughes and ends with "Teddy.' Root looked good until the New Yofk Constitutional election; but when that measure was buried under 400,000 votes after being so strongly supported by New York's senior senator, Root's stock was the poorest seller on the Republican market. John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts, held the center of the stage for a short time. He even took a trip around the country, but so far his boom has failed to get larger than a toy balloon. Former Vice-President Fairbanks had his friends feel the pulse of the Republican host, and again the balloon failed to fill. The latest boom to start is one fathered in the New England states. This time the dark horse seems to be Governor McCall, of Massachusetts; as yet, however, his enthusiastic following has failed to get outside the confines of the old "Bay State."

For some unknown reason the people are taking little interest in politics. They simply will not enthuse. The more the papers talk favorite sons, the more their attention is called to "Teddy." It seems to be taken for granted that something is going to happen, but exactly what, no one seems to know.

Former President Roosevelt appears to have lost interest in his own candidacy. He has refused to allow his name to appear on the ballots where delegates to the Republican convention will be elected by a direct vote of the people. It is said the "Rough Rider" will go to Bermuda for six weeks and that he will not influence the actions of the people in any of the states where early delegates are selected. The politicians of the old school are not at all pleased with this action. As one wise one has put it: "Teddy is at his worst when he seems to be doing naught."

Were a direct primary called in Washington to elect delegates at the present writing, "Teddy" would win, for the simple reason there is no combination of men who could get enough voters together to keep him from corralling a majority. It looks now as though "Teddy" will say to the convention, as he did in 1908: "Take Taft or take me!" This time he will say: "Nominate the man I s lect, or take me!" This would no doubt prove a bitter pill for some of the would-be bosses, and they are all at sea. If the Old Guard could come together, they could name the man; but they cannot agree among themselves on any one candidate.

When one comes to think of it, this is a queer position for a party to be in. It is now less than five months before the Republicans will be called together. They have no fixed purpose. They do not even know what their platform will contain. The Democrats are getting credit for the dull times and the Republican press is sounding a warning to the people that hard times and Democrats go together. The full dinner pail will be one of the party emblems of the next campaign, but to fix on a policy that will show the thing in its true light to the people seems to be a job that no Republican is equal to.

In 1896 is was different. Mark Hanna, that great general of politics, took up William McKinley, coupled his name with protection and prosperity, and even long before the convention met, everyone knew that McKinley would be the Republican nominee.

The Republican fight of 1916 will not be unlike the fight of 1896 when it comes to sounding the hard times cry. The war however, has made business so good in certain sections of the country that the voters of those states where war orders are being filled ask themselves: "Where are those hard times?"

Here on the Pacific Coast it is different. These states have three things that bring prosperity: coal fish, and lumber. Lumber cannot be snipped for the reason that ship charters are so high that no one can pay the shipping charges on it. The war has shut the coast fish out of the European markets and the oil discoveries of California have given such competition that coal cannot be mined at a profit.

Washington is a Republican state. A set of popular Republicans would win against the best the Democrats could put into the field. Oregon, California and Idaho are in the same category. Montana and Nevada are doubtful, and it is hard to predict what party will carry these states.

"Teddy" was strong in all the coast states in 1912. He carried Washington, Oregon and California. Undoubtedly he is the strongest man the Republicans could put into the field in 1916, as far as holding the coast states in line is concerned. Utah, one of the two states that Taft carried in 1912, can also be put into the Roosevelt column, for Senator Smoot has already come out for "Teddy."

In 1912 Washington showed 119,000 votes for Roosevelt and 68,000 for Taft. If all the Progressives get back into line and go into the Republican primaries, they will have a majority of the votes. They can select the delegates to the national convention, leave National Committeeman Perkins at home, and send their men to the convention at Chicago.

If the present conditions exist two months from now this state will send either an instructed delegation for "Teddy" Roosevelt or an uninstructed delegation, the majority of which will favor the Colonel over any other man in the field. Whatever "Teddy" wants of the Washington delegation will be given him without the least question.

So it looks like "Teddy" against the field, with no field worth speaking of. Hughes has followers, and Weeks has followers — even Fairbanks has a few supporters in Washington—but Roosevelt has a great army in the state that will follow him from start to finish.

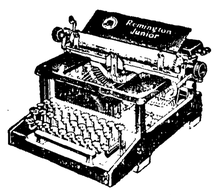
Why this man bought a
Remington Junior
Typewriter



"I have been investigating several of the recent makes of machines, seeking for one of simple construction for ordinary manuscript and letter writing. I was nearly ready to buy a machine of another make when I just happened to see for the first time the Remington Junior, and found it to be the very thing I wanted.

The man who wrote this is the postmaster of a small Southern town. He is only one of thousands who have recently bought a Remington Junior. But his reasons apply to everybody—they apply to YOU.

The Remington Junior is our latest product and the latest idea in typewriting.

It is strictly a high-grade machine.

It has the Remington Name, the Remington Guarantee, the Remington Quality—everything Remington except weight and bulk.

A "Simplified Remington" describes it exactly.

And its price is $50.00

Remington Junior Typewriters will be sent "on examination," without obligation to purchase.

Easy payment terms can be arranged if desired.

A State-Wide Industrial Bureau

A plan for the creation of a state-wide industrial bureau with county industrial agents, the appointment of the latter to be optional with each county, which was submitted by Frank C. Teck at the state federation of commercial club secretaries last week, proved to be of great interest, creating an extended discussion, says the Auburn Globe-Republican. Mr. Teck pointed out that the work of the county agents along industrial lines would be akin to that of the county agriculturist along industrial lines, which have worked out successfully since their institution by act of the 1913 legislature.

Secretary Teck cited as an instance the work of the Port Angeles Commercial Club, which under his plan would be the work of the county agent, in investigating the possibilities for commercializing the vast amount of hemlock bark in that vicinity for the manufacture of tannic acid.

The round table discussion Wednesday night had a number of important subjects. "A State Chamber of Commerce," led by Secretary of State I. M. Howell; "The National Chamber of Commerce," by J. A. Harader of North Yakima; and "Efficiency in County Government" by Gordon C. Corbally of Spokane.

That the capital for the further development of the state of Washington and the Northwest will arrive here in a touring car, primarily attracted by the scenic beauties of "The Land of National Parks," was the prediction of Mr. Corbaley.

The speaker in discussing the previously outlined plan of Secretary of State I. M. Howell for a state-wide chamber of commerce, declared it to be his belief that such an institution could only be of great service by confining itself to one of two lines of endeavor instead of having a scope that embraced all of the various lines of development.

"Last year for the first time people began making 3,000 mile automobile trips. Many of them passed over our highways. The transcontinental automobile tourists have two routes open to them, the Northern route over our highways and the Southern over the Lincoln Highway or the Santa Fe trail. The latter has no allurements during the months of July and August except in preparing for life hereafter."

Secretary Howell's plan as outlined, he declared, was "not to abolish local pride, but to give larger promotion to the state as a whole. It would avoid duplication of effort by the various commercial bodies," said he. "There would be less inclination to overboost and overcolor conditions as they exist. All commercial organizations should be invited to enter with an executive committee from all parts of the state to represent their various interests. The members should be allowed to vote by mail. The establishment of a central bureau would be the first step."

Captain Howell declared that California was the state that Washington had to wage war with commercially and told something of the work in that state. Speaking of the strife for commercial gain between Washington and California he declared that what Washington could not get for herself she should work for Oregon with whose interests the state is more closely allied.

Though the plans of Secretary Howell and Teck were discussed at length the Federation followed its usual policy of refraining from going on record on a question of public policy.

Dr. Ira D. Cardiff, director of the farm bureau at the government experiment station at Pullman, gave an interesting talk on the topic "How Commercial Organizations May Co-operate with County Agriculturists."

He stated that the original experiment farm was the outcome of work done by a commercial organization at Binghampton, New York, and that this work had grown until the work was being done in every state in the Union. The nature of their work causes the merchant and the farmer to be diametrically opposed and through the commercial club and the county agriculturists the two can be brought to a common understanding that will do much good in developing the community.

Over fifty delegates were in attendance at the two days' session, which was pronounced one of the most successful yet held.

"THE TOUCHDOWN," TO BE GIVEN FEBRUARY 24TH

Remember the date!

On Thursday of next week the high school will present The Touchdown in the opera house.

Come and see our young people act. Last year they proved to you that they could sing. This year they propose to make you say that they are equally gifted in the histrionic art.

Just the plot of the play is so interesting as to be worth the evening's time. The story holds you from the rise of the curtain, with a laugh in the most unexpected places.

But the real interest centers in the players themselves. Until you see how cleverly they fill their parts you wouldn't suspect what talent our high school possesses.

Don't miss it. General admission 25c. Reserved seats 35c. Tickets on sale may be obtained from any high school student. Seats may be reserved at Mathewson's drug store, any time after Monday, February 21.

WILL HAVE TO SEND HIM MORE STATE LITERATURE

Lordsburg, Cal., Feb. 5.

Editor Olympic-Leader:

Seems to me that were I living in Port Angeles I would strenuously object to the expenditure of a single cent for grain or other provisions for the robins, blackbirds, or other species of the feathered tribe. Why? Why, because anything that can fly and still persists in staying in a state that boasts—mind you, BOASTS — of the measly brand of weather prevailing in your beloved state of Washington ought to starve to death, or be shot. "Beauties of the State of Washington!" It is to smile. Darned if I am not almost tempted to laugh, and would, were it a laughing matter. And you feed anything that can fly and won't leave. What I am wondering is, as long as you propose to care for them, why don't you buy them mittens or comforters? Sure. Why not?

Was pruning some lemons today, and a meadow lark followed me for some time, looking over the branches I cut off, and after filling up on bugs would fly up on a lemon bush and sing for me. (And his song told of his home in beautiful Port Angeles, to which he would return as soon as the brief month of winter weather is over. Reminded me very much of Colorado in May; had several there that were as tame as chickens, would stay with me as long as I was in the orchard and always nested near the house. Weather has assumed the normal and we are resuming shipments of citrus fruits; delivered 110 boxes Wednesday and Thursday.

Faithfully yours,
C. V. NOBLE.

The Olympic-Leader received this week from Joe King of the U.S.S. New Jersey, one of our regular subscribers, copies of "The Mosquito Log," one of the smallest publications in the United States, being printed on postal cards. Joe is the editor, and the Log is a daily record of happenings aboard ship, the New Jersey being, in this instance, at sea off the West Indies. Though he has been in the naval service for ten years and has passed by Port Angeles several times, that is as near as he has ever come to seeing the property he owns in this city. However, Port Angeles has looked good to him from a distance and he is thinking strongly of locating here upon the expiration of his present enlistment.

Schools of the County

As a result of the State Eighth Grade Examination held throughout the county January 20-21, the following pupils have received diplomas which entitle them to enter the high school:

Name:	No. of Dist:
Allison, Oline	7
Alton, Ruth	302
Brackett, Thelma	302
Brock, Willis	7
Conoway, Hazel	43
Crawford, Thelma	7
Danielson, Viola	47

Parks, Edward	7
Prim, Burton	302
Stahl, Emma	7
Stevens, Ada	12
Swanson, Nancy	7
Tripp, Wesley	301
Waggoner, Alta	302

All the above named students have been notified that the Port Angeles high school will start a mid-year Freshman class this year making it possible for these graduates to enter the high school at once. A number of graduates out of town have already entered including the two graduates from District No. 2, Margaret Eacrett and Norene Eddy. The Port Angeles schools have been closed this week and pupils who can arrange to enter within a week will be able to carry the work of this semester without any difficulty on account of late entrance.

A number of new books have recently been added to the Clallam County Circulating Library. There are now over 500 volumes in the library, the greater number of which are out in the rural districts. There are, however, still a number of books on the shelves that might as well be out among the schools. Teachers are welcome to get these books whenever convenient.

The next annual school election occurs March 4, 1916. The following districts elect three directors for one, two and three years: 61, 59, 12, 32, 56. The following districts elect two directors: 16 for one and three; 29 for one and two; 35 for one and three; 43 for one and three; 300 for two and three; 304 for one and three; 60 for one and three. All other districts in the county elect one director for term of one year. After election, to-wit, on the 27th day of March, the Board of Directors shall meet and organize by the election of a clerk and chairman and after this date the Certificate of Election of clerk and chairman together with signature card should be transmitted to the county superintendent.

Digging trenches through the snow for nearly three-quarters of a mile, in order to get at a small amount of hay stored in another barn, only to see that disappear, necessitating the killing of the cow, without any very promising prospect of getting the meat out to market, was the experience of Mr. and Mrs. Fisher at their ranch in the valley at the foot of Mt. Angeles this past week. Other than that they suffered no inconvenience from the eight and a half foot snowfall, having plenty of provisions on hand. While recent rains have settled the snow very considerably, it is still four feet deep on the bridges and even deeper in the turns of the road, with dozens of trees broken off or blown down, making traveling very difficult.

W. K. CLARK RESIGNS GLENDALE SUPERINTENDENCY

Mr. W. K. Clark, who so ably superintended the Glendale creameries in Clallam county for a number of years, has resigned his position with the company on account of illness.

In speaking of the resignation of Mr. Clark, Mr. Troy, the general manager, said: "Our company greatly regrets the loss of Mr. Clark's valuable services. He has superintended our plants in Clallam county for about ten years in an able and entirely satisfactory way, and the only reason we accept his resignation at this time is on account of illness and hoping taat a long rest will restore him to good health. He has been a tireless worker for the best interests of the farmer and our company, and he will be missed not only by our company but by our customers as well."

Mr. I. F. Sather, of Port Townsend, has been selected to succeed Mr. Clark. Mr. Sather is one of the oldest employes of the company, having started working for them when a boy and has served in almost every department of the business. He will reside at Dungeness, but will make frequent trips to Port Angeles and the West End.

WALKS FROM MT. PLEASANT TO BE PRESENT AT PARTY

The card party at the Catholic Social hall last Wednesday evening was attended by a crowd of about seventy-five people, who braved the slush and snow and amused themselves at the progressive game of whist. What you could call an honored guest, was Mr. Bohall, who walked all the way from Mount Pleasant just to play a game of cards and enjoy himself. He said, although there was three feet of snow on the ground most of the way, he promised to be there, and come he would. There are to be two more card parties given in this series. The third of the series of whist games will be held at the Catholic Social hall Wednesday, February 23rd, Mrs. Paul O'Donnell and Mrs. John Larkin acting as hostesses. The fourth and last of the series will be on Wednesday, March 1st. This will close the card games until after Easter. Miss Constance Hoare and Miss Ada Kelly acted as hostesses at the party last Wednesday night.

BIG SNOW CAUSED BUT LITTLE DAMAGE AT LAKE

The Crescent Hotel, Piedmont, Lake Crescent, which was reported to have been demolished when the roof, under the heavy weight of the snow, caved in, and ruined the furniture and building in general, is now reported to be damaged only to a slight extent. Mr. Christopher, one of the proprietors, came in last week for the letter mail. He stated that the damage was only slight and could be repaired at little expense. Two cabins, belonging to that resort, which had been used throughout the summer months in the past, caved in and were demolished, when their roofs refusd to bear the weight of the heavy snowfall. Mr. Christopher left here Saturday with a bag o. letter mail for the lake, intending to go on the boat from here to Port Crescent, but was advised that the landing was not made at Crescent lately on account of the wharf which is in bad repair. He managed to go from here to Joyce by sled, and from there snowshoed it over to the lake. This was the first mail of any kind to reach the lake since the big snow.

WILL RESUME TRAIN SERVICE BY END OF THE WEEK

A large steamshovel was sent up from the Seattle headquarters and yards of the Milwaukee railroad to start on the work of clearing the east side of the big slide which occurred at Morse creek during the melting of the heavy snowfall. A shovel is also at work on the Angeles side of the slide, and which is kept busy working at Morse creek, Ennis creek and the Elwha river. At the Elwha river the big slides have been removed and train service is in operation to Majestic. The Milwaukee officials hope to get the slide at Morse creek cleared up before the end of the week so that train service will not be paralyzed to Townsend, which will save the Milwaukee tug and barge a longer trip to the slip here. Much attention is being given to the slides at the Elwha river and vicinity on account of the necessity of keeping Earles mill supplied with logs.

The giant pile-driver used by the Milwaukee in line construction work, is now busy driving piles along the waterfront of the city. The new piles that are being placed are expected to stand the teredos, which have eaten and damaged the waterfront piling to a great extent of late.

MT. PLEASANT

School closed again Tuesday evening, the roads being so bad only about half of the scholars could attend. It will not open until Monday, February 2.

ENTERTAINED FIFTY LADIES AT VALENTINE PARTY

Most attractive in all its appointments was the Valentine party given on Monday afternoon by Mrs. Conrad Luppen, when she entertained about fifty ladies. The house decorations were very artistic and beautiful. Around the chandeliers of each room were artistically twined the dainty asparagus fern, studded with scarlet carnations. The dining room ceiling was festooned with scarlet crepe paper and hearts, while the living room and library were festooned with cupids. Four beautiful little girl Valentines greeted the guests at the door and assisted the hostess during the afternoon. These little Misses were all dressed in dainty white dresses decorated in scarlet hearts, cupids and wings. They were Evelyn Geisness, Ruth Smith, Inga Hansen and Hilda Smith and they captured many hearts. Eleven tables of auction bridge were played and some very high scores won, but Mrs. W. J. Ware was awarded the prize for the highest number. Light refreshments were served, the Valentin motif being carried out in table covers, plates and napkins. Favors for each guest were heart-shaped Valentines.

LEAP YEAR VALENTINE PARTY ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

Mrs. Benj. Phillips' Sunday school class of girls entertained Monday evening with a Valentine Leap Year party at their club room. As the girls were to be taxed a quarter if they failed to bring a young man, they all hustled around early in the game and the boys have been living in a state of exultation and anticipation since. Everything turned out lovely and the girls were voted royal entertainers. The eats were a particularly enjoyable feature of the evening's entertainment, heart-shaped sandwiches and cakes being suggestive of this holiday still dear to the heart of youth. Rosy-cheeked apples were hollowed out and filled with fruit salad and delicious cocoa completed the bill of fare.

Lincoln's birthday was fittingly observed at the Congregational church Sunday morning. A very interesting and instructive paper on "Lincoln, the Boy, Father of the Man," was given by Mrs. Thos. Geisness. "Lincoln, the Emancipator," was the subject so well handled by Mrs. Stephen Smith. Prof. R. J. White spoke briefly on Lincoln's literary attainments, and closed his remarks by delivering the famous Gettysburg address. "Lincoln, the Christian," furnished the subject upon which Rev. Smith spoke and at the close the congregation joined with the choir in singing America.

Homer Hart, in town Monday from Dungeness with a sled load of pork, said it was the first time in three years, or since he bought a car, that he had driven a team over the road. He found the going very good west to Chambers, the snow plow having opened out a fair right-of-way, but this side, where no attempt was made to open the road, the going was pretty slow.

PLEASANT SOCIAL SESSION AT EASTERN STAR

After the regular meeting of the Eastern Star last Saturday evening a pleasant social session was held. The program consisted of a very excellent talk on Lincoln, given by the worthy patron, R. J. White, followed by an historical contest, in which Mr. White was awarded the prize, a picture of Lincoln, for guessing correctly the most pictures of men famous in American history. After the program those who wished played cards and later all enjoyed the refreshments served by the committee in charge. Similar social sessions will be held once a month.

The dance given by the "Not So Old Club," at the opera house Monday evening was a very enjoyable affair. The members seem to have discovered the famous "Fountain of Youth" right here in Port Angeles and they have kindly promised to let their guests quaff from the waters at their next happy gathering which will be at the Olympic hotel Monday evening, Feb. 28. After the dance Monday night the Two A. M. contingent adjourned to the Washington Restaurant and refreshed themselves with some of the Washington's good eats.

Miss Mae Brumfield returned home from the hospital last Friday and is rapidly recovering from an operation she underwent for appendicitis.

GETTING YOUR MONEY OUT OF THE BANK

If the bank rendered no other service to the community than to protect its valuables it would render a useful one; but it would be a mousetrap proposition, you could only go one way; but the bank makes it easier to get money out than in, and in the outgoing process assumes risks and renders benefits too often lost sight of in the busy whirl of business.

We take many things for granted and live in a matter-of-fact age. We want our morning paper at the breakfast table with never a delay and with little thought of what it costs to collect, transmit, type, print and deliver the news. We want our train on the dot or we get impatient. We want our milk and our coal, blizzard or no blizzard. We likewise expect the bank to do our business smoothly, efficiently, and without thought of the cost or the risks attending.

When your bank hands you a check book, it gives you license to draw as many checks, in as large or as small sums as you wish, with the only provision (except in certain cases where a minimum balance is required) that you do not overdraw, and promises to honor your checks as presented as long as your balance is sufficient to pay them.

Whether you want to pay your creditor in the next block, or a thouand miles away, the checking privilege of a bank account permits you to make your payment with ease, safety and despatch.

When you mail your check your trouble is over and the bank's has just begun, for the bank warrants to you three things, all for your own protection and at its own risk. It is well to know them.

It guarantees (a) That it will pay only the checks you have signed. If your name is forged and the bank pays the check, it cannot charge the amount to your account; (b) That it will pay only in the sum originally drawn. If someone gets your check and raises the amount, making it apparently a genuine check, the bank can only charge the amount in which you originally drew the check, unless it can show you were grossly careless in so drawing that you invited fraud. Therefore be careful to draw your checks properly; (c) To pay to the party to whom you ordered the amount paid and none other. If the check gets into the hands of strangers who forge the indorsement so that the party to whom you ordered the money paid does not get it, the payment is at its risk, and you are harmless.

All this is ultimately for your good as a depositor. You know that your account cannot be drawn against except on your order. You know that the party you want to receive payment gets it. You get back the most perfect voucher known to the business world. Many a dispute has been settled and loss and law suit avoided by producing bank vouchers that told in no uncertain way that payment had been made according to the intent of the drawer. Therefore for your own good you ought to keep your money in a bank, and draw it out by check.

WEATHER SHARP GIVES CAUSE OF RECENT STORMS

The center of atmospheric action became displaced and the usual moist and balmy rains that trail along one after the other from out in the North Pacific ocean got off their track—the result, fine skating on lakes, coasting on side hills, and then thirty inches of snow, which quickly turned into slush.

That is the gist of the story told by George N. Salisbury, director of the Seattle office of the United States weather bureau, to the Rotarians at their regular weekly lunch meeting at the Washington Annex hotel, says the Seattle P.-I.

"Through some terrestial or cosmic disturbance or change the entire polar region became an enormous high-pressure area persistent to an unprecedented degree. It pressed to the southward, forcing the usual low pressure or storm center and storm track so far south that the northerly winds were forced in upon us. These freezing blasts, with all that high-pressure force behind them, were pressed with a rush into the low-pressure area to the south, and immediately the vapors of the low-pressure area, blown in from the Pacific ocean, were crystallized into snow—and there were thirty inches of it."

This explanation followed an interesting discussion of the storm and an explanation of the theories of the formation of air currents.

At certain places over the earth, he said, there are permanent low-pressure areas, and we of Puget Sound are primarily interested in the low-pressure area in the North Pacific, usually just off the Aleutian Islands. Here the warm Japanese currents gather and rarify the air and there rushes in from the high-pressure areas currents of air, forming storms. The one high-pressure center we are most interested in, he said, is that in the Pacific between California and the Hawaiian islands. Usually the air currents from this area are pressed into the low pressure area and a storm starts eastward, and if it follows its usual track along the international boundary, it brings its warm moisture-laden ocean breezes to us and gives us the balmy winter which Mr. Salisbury said he had been writing about for twenty-one years.

Sometimes, however, he said, like in the recent instance, the low-pressure or storm center is forced southward until it is south of a point off the mouth of the Columbia river; then if the storm tracks southward and gets nasty, as it did week before last, California gets its freshets and floods and we get a rush of wind from the frozen north into that low pressure area.

Below is printed data received received from the United States Department of Agriculture Weather Bureau and gives briefly some of the climatological data about the weather conditions in and around the city of Port Angeles. The compilation of these records by the government weather stations started in the year 1883.

These figures are not to be taken as exact statistics for the reason that the weather bureau has moved once or twice from this city to Port Crescent, and which is now to be permanently situated in this city, starting with the month of January, 1916.

The average hourly velocity of the wind at Port Angeles is 14 miles, this velocity evidently taken from the Ediz Hook sand spit, but in the city proper it increases from five miles in August, the most tranquil month, to 7 miles in January, the most stormy month. In the northern part of the Olympic Peninsula the average number of rainy days is 176.

The total precipitation in Port Angeles for the 1895, was 24.07 inches, this being the lowest amount recorded by the weather bureau since 1883. The highest amount recorded was in 1893, when 36.40 inches fell. The greatest precipitation at Forks in the west end of the county for any one year since 1907, is marked down with the remarkable fall of 121.29 inches. (Year not given.)

The greatest number of days with 0.01 inch or more precipitation, for the past 13 years, in any one year, has been 146 days. The most precipitation occurring in any one month in any one year is December, with 21 inches.

The mean temperature here, recorded by years, averages 46.07, The mean maximum temperature, 53.6 and the mean minimum temperature 39.9.

The highest temperature recorded here (year not given), taken by months, is January 60, February 58, March 59, April 67, May 81, June 83, July 88, August 88, September 78, October 69, November 60, December 64.

The lowest temperature, as follows, (year not given): January .1 below; February 3. above; March 18, April 27, May 30, June 36, July 37, August 38, September 32, October 29, November 12, December 14.

The prevailing wind direction in the city and vicinity is southeast in the colder months and west in the warmer months, with a change once in a great while to northeast and east.

The frost chart accompanying is very interesting. Port Angeles is put down with its first annual killing frost occurring on October 21. The average date of the last killing frost in spring occurring on April 15. The earliest killing frost in autumn coming on September 28. The latest date of killing frost in spring appears on the chart in May, the 13th day. These records, however, give only the exceptions, and which only happen once in many years

The length of the growing season, last killing frost to the first killing frost, during a really cold year, is given 190 days.

A diagram accompanying the chart and pamphlet shows that Port Angeles has a comparative monthly distribution of precipitation of from 5½ inches in December to ½ inch in June of each year. The highest record recorded comes from Aberdeen, Washington, with 15½ inches in November and 1. inch in the month of June.

ORDER FIXING TIME TO HEAR FINAL ACCOUNT AND TO SHOW CAUSE WHY DISTRIBUTION SHOULD NOT BE MADE.

No. 562.

In Probate.

Andrew Chilberg, Administrator of the estate of John Varnberg, deceased, having filed in this court his final account and petition setting forth that said estate is now in a condition to be closed and is ready for distribution of the residue thereof among the persons entitled by law thereto, and it appearing to the court that said petition sets forth facts sufficient to authorize a distribution of the residue of said estate:

It is therefore ordered by the court that all persons interested in the estate of the said John Varnberg, deceased, be and appear before the said Superior court of Clallam county, State of Washington, at the court room of the Probate Department of said court, on the 2nd day of March, 1916, at the hour of 9:00 o'clock a. m. of said day, then and there to show cause, if any they have, why said final account should not be allowed and an order of distribution be made of the residue of said estate among the heirs and persons in said petition mentioned, according to law.

It is further ordered, that a copy of this order be posted in three of the most public places in Clallam county for a period of four weeks prior to said hearing, and published once a week for four consecutive weeks before the said 2nd day of March, 1916, in a newspaper printed and published in said Clallam county and of general circulation therein.

Done in open court this 1st day of February, 1916.

JOHN M. RALSTON,
Judge.

State of Washington, County of Clallam, ss.

I, A. J. Cosser, County Clerk of Clallam county and ex-officio clerk of the Superior court of the State of Washington, for the county of Clallam do hereby certify that the foregoing is a full, true and correct copy of an original order to show cause, made by said Court on the 1st day of February, 1916, in the matter of the estate of John Varnberg, deceased.

Witness my hand and the seal of said court this 1st day of February, 1916.

TEACHERS' COTTAGES IN WASHINGTON

Since the first cottage for teachers was established in Walla Walla by Mrs. Josephine Preston, State Supt. of Schools, the idea has developed until there are now 108 cottages in the state occupied by teachers in the rural schools. It is not necessary to tell of the efficiency of these home places for the rural teachers. In many districts it is impossible to get a boarding place where the teacher can have any conveniences or privacy. The cottage attracts to the district a permanent teacher, a real home can be established, with a garden, poultry and cow. The teacher takes more interest in the affairs of the community if she knows she is to be retained and to have a comfortable home. The idea of a teachers' cottage is not new, England, Denmark, Norway and Sweden having supplied furnished homes for their rural teachers for a long time. Twenty-nine counties in Washington have teachers' cottages.

In January the Regents of the State College elected Mr. R. B. Coglan, county agriculturist of Lane county, Oregon, State Leader of County Agriculturists for Washington. Mr. Coglan was at one time connected with the Department of Agriculture of British Columbia. Later, he was State Leader of Agriculturists in Idaho.

The prediction of U. S. Government officials that the hog market of the country was sure to show signs of strength at an early date has come true. Hogs are now bringing as much as $8.50 in the Puget Sound Market and it is generally conceded that shipments are so limited that it will be necessary in another forty or sixty days to begin shipping from Missouri River points. Freight and shrinkage will add about $1.20 to the price with the result that it is predicted the price will be $9.50 or even $10 or more by early spring.

INSPECTOR HAD NEVER BEFORE SEEN SO MANY DUCKS

Inspector Geo. C. Cantwell, the Northwestern Federal Bird Reservation inspector, speaking of his late trip down this way, says:

"I spent several days at Dungeness interviewing people who had sent a petition to Washington, D. C., asking that the bird reservation, established on Dungeness spit a year ago, be discontinued. I found a majority of the people satisfied. Twice as many ducks are there as at any other time during the last 20 years. There are two classes of people protesting—one the rich Seattle hunters, who wanted to get the bag limit every day, and the farmers, who said the ducks were eating all the grass in their fields and setting back next month's pasturage a month. About nine out of ten of the ducks are wigeons. I never saw so many —millions, it seemed. Those ducks feed mostly on grass, and I don't see how they can be prevented from eating some that belongs to the farmers. But the government has never yet revoked a bird reservation grant. The people of Dungeness will receive a fair deal however."

WILL RESUME MANUFACTURE OF ALCOHOL AT TOWNSEND

The Classen Chemical company, which several years ago, built a plant at the head of Port Townsend bay at a cost of more than half a million dollars for the manufacture of denatured alcohol out of wood and sawdust, the residue of which was converted into bastol, a food for stock, will resume operations in a short time, according to announcement received from San Francisco, the company's headquarters. The manufacture of bastol proved unprofitable and the company devoted its attention to the manufacture of a high grade of alcohol, molasses being brought from the Hawaiian Islands for that purpose. When the change was made from wood to molasses for the manufacture of alcohol the steamer Hyades was fitted up with tanks for the transportation of that commodity from the islands. The product of the Classen company made serious inroads into the business of dealers in alcohol in California, who leased the plant for a period of two years and then closed it. The lease will expire in a short time and the company will reopen the plant. The first shipment of molasses is expected about the first of March, when the plant will resume operations.

RESOURCES AND NEEDS OF THE NATIONAL FOREST

ranchers, and said he wished to thank them all.

Plans and Estimates for Improvement Projects.

Mr. Morganroth then read a synopsis of his recommendation for improvements as made at the request of Chief Forester Graves in November of last year. It concludes some twenty-seven miles of trails, which he estimates can be opened up at a cost of $31,000, and further improved to the Class A standard when travel warrants.

Of these the Mt. Angeles and Hurricane Hill trails comprising the system which will one day connect up the hot springs country with the high mountains of the main divide are of chief interest.

The Mt. Angeles trail, Mr. Morganroth recommends, should start from the ranger station near the end of the Mt. Angeles road and run up Ennis creek to the divide, thence along the south side of the mountain to a connection with the Hurricane Hill trail system. This trail, he says, would not only be a value for look-out purposes because of Mt. Angeles being one of the best look-out points in the northern part of the Forest, but is also of great importance to the people of Port Angeles who are anxious that the Forest Service construct a good trail to the top of this mountain which was visited by fully 300 people the past season. The cost of the four miles would be about $500.

Another trail should be built from the Elwha ranger station up to Hurricane Ridge, four miles of heavy grading at a cost of $500; another from Seibert creek ranger station to Deer Park Lookout, at a cost of $700; the Salal Ridge trail from the main Elwha trail two miles north of the Long Creek ranger station to the top of Hurricane Ridge, and the Hurricane Ridge trail which would cost about a thousand dollars and would connect up all these with existing trails, making a continuous high-line trail, fifteen miles in length, at an elevation of about five thousand feet for mountaineers and campers.

Farther up river he would put in a trail up the Hays, ten miles from the Elwha to the west end of the Doodwallips trail, making it possible to cross over from the Hood Canal country to the heart of the Olympics. The Snowfinger trail at the head of the Elwha would lead from the Basin to the Dodwell-Rixon Pass, that horse opnies might be taken over into the Queets valley. The Scenic trail from the Dodwell-Rixon Pass to the divide between the Elwha, Queets and Hoh rivers, thence down the Hoh to the Mt. Olympus ranger station, the most needed from a scenic standpoint of any in the higher Olympic country. The length of this trail would be 15 miles and the cost $3,000.

Then there should be a trail from Boulder Creek to the Solduck, connecing the two hot springs and furnishing a direct route to the Sol Duc springs from the Elwha; another, the Sour Dough trail, should run from the Solduck ranger station to Aurora camp on Crystal Ridge, where it would connect with the Lake Crescent trail and another to be built down to the Elwha to be known as the Happy Lake trail.

And there are a number of others, equally interesting, the construction of which, in time to be of any advantage to thos of us who are now in the land of the living, will depend largely upon the possibility of securing sufficient appropriations from congress, and this again rests largely with the people themselves—the greater their interest in the scenic possibilities of the country, the sooner will the mountains be made accessible and the Olympics come into their own as the greatest recreational grounds in the United States.

City Has Choice of Three Streams for Water Supply.

Before closing his talk, Mr. Morganroth took up the question of the future water supply of Port Angeles, stating that there are available three watersheds within a comparatively short distance of the city, the Ennis Creek, Lake Creek and Little River, all of which streams have their sources for the most part on Mt. Angeles, their flow being more or less regulated by the depth of the snow banks on that mountain.

Ennis Creek.—This is the present source of the city's water supply, but owing to the confined limit of the watershed within the National Forest, it is perhaps the least desirable of the three. During extended periods of drought, or extreme cold, this stream is liable to furnish insufficient water when it is most needed. Should the city double its population, considerable development work will have to be done for the storing of water to meet requirements. The intake of the city's water mains is several miles outside of the National Forest and much private owned land, some of it now occupied by settlers, is draining into the creek. A few of the smaller tributaries to Ennis Creek have their source in swamps, where, during the dry season, the water becomes more or less stagnant. The main branch of Ennis Creek comes from the central portion of Mt. Angeles; this is right on the route of the travel for mountain climbers to Mt. Angeles and these campers usually make their camps near melting snow, springs or tributaries; 40,000,000 feet of mature, logable timber is now standing on a portion of this watershed; this timber is now on the market, and cutting would perhaps further diminish and perhaps contaminate the flow of the creek.

Lake Creek.—The watershed of this stream lies on the northeasterly side of Mt. Angeles and entirely within the National Forest above the point from where it can be most easily diverted for municipal use. Lake Creek is fed by snow banks in deep canyons, springs and two small lakes. The flow is apparently more regular and somewhat larger than in Ennis Creek. No considerable amount of logable timber would have to be reserved for watershed protection. No private lands, grazing lands or settlers are within this watershed and its protection will be an easy matter. Approximate distance from city hall to the point of intake is seven miles.

Little River.—This is the largest one of the three watersheds; it covers the west side of Mt. Angeles and the east side of Mt. McDonald; its flow is regulated by snow and springs. The entire watershed above the best point of development is within the National Forest; it contains no settlements, private land or appreciable amounts of logable timber. The Gregory mining prospects are located within this area, as are also about 1,000 acres of high mountain grazing lands at the headwaters of the creek.

In the discussion which followed, Mr. Morganroth stated that there is no danger of contamination of the city's water supply at the present time, but with future development of the country there would be such danger. He believed the Little River watershed to be the best, because the largest. If the city were taking its water from that source, no grazing permits would be issued by the Service for the parks at the headwaters of that stream. On the other hand, should the Gregory mine eventually be developed, it would necessitate extending the pipe line and building another intake a considerable distance further up the creek. Were Lake Creek to be utilized, there would be no possibility of contamination. But the city should acquire rights it desires as early as possible; an irrigation company may be formed in the Mt. Pleasant district at any time and by acquiring a prior right to Lake Creek shut out the city from that source of supply.

A "DOROTHY DODD WINDOW" IN THE FAR NORTHWEST

The Dorothy Dodd Dealer, a monthly magazine published by the Dorothy Dodd Shoe Co., of Boston, devotes two half pages of the magazine this month in displaying the fine half tone cuts of the exterior and interior of Mr. Alfred A. Davis' up-to-date shoe store. Accompanying the cuts is the following nice little write-up:

"From Port Angeles, Wash.

"This month we travel to one of the far-off corners of the United States and show the store of a live dealer, Mr. Alfred A. Davis, Port Angeles, Wash. Mr. Davis has a very fine store and believes in using every available window-display space possible. The store is situated in what is really the best location in Port Angeles, being close to the post office and in the same building with the bank, and Mr. Davis receives considerable more than his share of the shoe business of Port Angeles through modern business methods. We are pleased to number him among the wide-awake and ever-growing Dorothy Dodd family.

NOTHING BUT THE BEST

"THE TOUCHDOWN," TO BE GIVEN FEBRUARY 24TH

On Thursday of next week the high school will present The Touchdown in the opera house.

Come and see our young people act. Last year they proved to you that they could sing. This year they propose to make you say that they are equally gifted in the histrionic art.

Just the plot of the play is so interesting as to be worth the evening's time. The story holds you from the rise of the curtain, with a laugh in the most unexpected places.

But the real interest centers in the players themselves. Until you see how cleverly they fill their parts you wouldn't suspect what talent our high school possesses.

Don't miss it. General admission 25c. Reserved seats 35c. Tickets on sale may be obtained from any high school student. Seats may be reserved at Mathewson's drug store, any time after Monday, February 21.

The mayor and chief of police of Centralia have offered rewards for squeals on blind pigs. They have grown weary and disgusted with continuous reports of liquor-law violations out of which nothing more definite comes. The other day a man informed the chief that with a dollar he could buy all the liquor he wanted. The chief at once gave him a dollar. After holding the coin for two or three days the man returned it to the chief. The state is buzzing with stories of speakeasies. Here in Tacoma every street car platform carries at least one loud-talking passenger who tells his audience how easy it is to get liquor. But he never does get down to the exact postoffice addresses.—Tacoma News.

The first of the second series of band concerts was given at the opera house Friday evening and an especially enjoyable program was put on. A large crowd was on hand for the jitney dance given after the concert. The next concert will be February 25. See that you are there.

If your child is pale and sickly, picks at the nose, starts in the sleep and grinds the teeth while sleeping, it is a sure sign of worms. A remin WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE. It not only clears out the worms but Price 25c per bottle. Sold by the Mathewson Drug Co.
