BEAR SEASON NOW OPEN

Bear hunting opened April 1 in Clallam, Jefferson, Mason, Pacific and Grays Harbor counties.

Bear are now classified as a game animal statewide, thus a hunting license is required to hunt them. Also, a bear tag ($2.00) is required for each bear harvested. This tag is required to be in the hunter's possession while hunting.

The most efficient way to hunt bear is to hunt with good bear hounds. Bear are very elusive and, even under the best conditions, the hunter often only gets a fleeting glimpse of the animal. For the best hunting, it is recommended that bear hunts be made between late April to the middle of September.

The following areas in Clallam and Jefferson counties should provide good bear hunting:

Clallam Bay area near the old Honor Camp.
Pysht area, low swampy areas, early spring and summer.
10-K North, Upper Hoh and Octopus Mt. areas, open clear-cuts in late summer, after the berries have ripened.
10-A, Lake Dickey area.

All roads open year-round, exceptions: Fire closures and areas of active logging. (Such areas are adequately posted by the Department of Natural Resources and private logging companies.)

THIS SPRING ALONG THE SOLEDUCK--The waters of the Soleduck are illuminated by the morning sun forming a backlight for these newly formed leaves. Hummingbirds hurry about, the drumming of grouse can be heard across the river, and wild trilliums display their white petals contrasting with the green of the forest floor. PROHIBITED PARKING AREAS ANNOUNCED

The Town Council met at City Hall on Monday, April 12. The first order of business dealt with bids submitted by Halmor Ford Co. in Forks for the city's purchase of one police car and one pickup truck for the water department. Both bids were tabled pending further study by the Council. The subject will be discussed further at the next regular Council meeting.

Marshal Dave Huson voiced his study of parking conditions which had been brought to fore at the last regular meeting. The Council discussed and voted unanimously to prohibit parking in the following designated areas: on the north side of Division Street from Forks Avenue N. to First Avenue; both sides of Division Street from First Avenue East to the

DECADE OF PROGRESS AT PENINSULA COLLEGE

By designating the week of April 26 through May 2 as the "Decade of Progress" week, Peninsula College President E. John Maier officially approved the start of planning for the 10th anniversary observance of the founding of the college.

From its inception in 1961 to its current status, E. John Maier has been at the helm, said Dr. Werner Quast, chairman of the anniversary committee, "guiding it through sometimes very rough financial seas."

Developing a calendar of events to fill the week which includes open house and open classes, one of the highlights will be a program featuring television personality Don McCune, host and writer of the weekly TV series "Exploration Northwest". Another feature attraction will be the presentation of the Peninsula College drama class of "High Tor", directed by Miss Margery Avalon. A special anniversary edition of the "Buccaneer", under the supervision of Journalism Instructor Earl Clark will contain a pictorial history of the college since its inception, Quast added.

DON'T LEAVE YOUR HOME DEFENSELESS

With residential burglary up nearly 300 per cent in the last decade, the Insurance Information Institute cautions vacationers to beware of summertime thieves, who regard a vacant house as an open invitation.

For most people, summer has become the get-away-from-it-all time of the year when cares, worries and work are left behind. For the home-burglar, though, summer is a busy season--the time of year he can walk into a house and clean it out without the worry of someone coming home and surprising him.

The Insurance Information Institute offers some tips for those planning summer vacations or overnight trips this year, to minimize the chance of losses to their home from theft, fire or storm:

1. Notify your local police department of the dates that you'll be away from your home and how you can be reached.
 2. Leave this same information and the keys with a neighbor or the building manager for emergency use in case there is a burglary or a fire.
 3. Stop all home delivery, newspapers, milk, etc. A home with papers piled high on the front porch is like a formal invitation to a burglar. Mail can also be a telltale sign and can be resolved by arranging for a neighbor to pick it up daily.
 4. Leave a small light burning on one of the rooms or install an automatic timing device which will turn lights off at dawn and on at dusk. A small radio playing will give your home or apartment an occupied touch.
 5. An uncut lawn is an obvious clue to a burglar that there is no one home. Make arrangements to have your lawn cut when you are away.
 6. Never close all your shades or blinds.
 7. Never tell a stranger about your vacation plans or address, and never inform a local newspaper that you'll be going on vacation. Even novice burglars will scan the newspapers for such an item.
 8. And just before leaving, take time to double check everything, including the locks on all doors and windows and all gas outlets, electric appliances and water faucets to make sure they have been turned off. A utility check such as this will not only save high costs of damage but also needless worry during your vacation.
- When you are backing out of your driveway for your vacation this year, remember those cases where a moving van has pulled up to the home of a family on vacation and cleaned them out. Your vacation can be more care-and-worry-free this year if you have taken a few of the above suggestions to heart.

THE LOST ART OF LEGS

By Al Clarke

Ever since I was old enough to muster a whistle of male appreciation in the direction of the million dollar legs of Betty Grable, shapely calves have been high on my list of things to admire most about the opposite sex. Feminine pins have done more for sore eyes than three gallons of Murine on a hot Sunday afternoon during a dust storm, stopped more traffic than a New York cop, and have probably sent more guys into orbit than Mission Control could possibly comprehend. I could say more in their behalf but it would only add moisture to the tear that is already inching down my cheek. Alas and alack! The glamour of the gam is gone. Standing on the corner watching all the girls go by today is like recess at Yale before it went coed.

Who is responsible for this lack of leg luster? (you should excuse the expression) the fashion experts. Because of their hemline whims, the male eye has had more ups and downs than a yo-yo at Boy's Town. Discouraging as it sometimes became, the girl watchers (leg variety) took these semi cover-ups in their stride.

Regardless of the hem length, the ingredient that made legs what they used to be was the high heel. Nothing can ever replace it in accentuating the feminine calf. Have you ever taken a close look at what women have to wear on their feet these days? True, we can only progress so far fashion-wise, and in many cases styles have started over, but in the ladies' shoe department I have to believe some designer lost an election bet. The styles are as close to femininity as Henry the Eighth enjoying Sunday dinner. They do for madam's leg what Ethel Mermon would do for Brahms Lullaby.

The age of the pants has put a large crease in man's favorite pastime but in all due respect has managed to cover the hunks of leather that Mamma has to pack around.

Will the art of legs ever come back? The question staggers me. I tell myself, "of course it will, Albert", but down deep I know that is wishful thinking on my part. A couple of weeks ago I took Baby out for dinner. To my utter amazement, she wore a two-piece dress. "You've got legs," I gasped. "No kidding," she responded, "how do you think I get around?" It was just like the old days. I got to admire my wife's legs, but not for long. It was dark out there and she kept them under the table all during dinner; didn't get up once. One thing for sure, old leg watches never die, they just keep staring at old Betty Grable pin-ups with the help of Murine, of course.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor,

Recently throughout the United States the deplorable conditions and practices of sewage and industrial waste disposal have come to the attention of all citizens.

As a citizen of the West End of the City of Forks, you may wonder what this has to do with you.

I do not represent myself as an expert in waste disposal methods. Rather, this is a letter of a concerned citizen and some observations that I have made in the three years that I have been stationed in the service of our country on the East Coast where the largest part of our nations citizens reside.

It recently came to my attention that the City of Forks, after consultation with a group of "experts", had decided to install a sewage system in the city limits area of Forks. This does not include the county area of Forks in which a good many citizens reside. The point of processing of this sewage system would be in the valley immediately below the Valley View housing addition.

The reasoning behind locating the sewage treatment here being one of the least expense and the "best drainage".

Having been born in Forks and raised in the valley that possesses such good drainage, I am naturally concerned.

1. The area selected as treatment area is largely a swamp, with the Bogachiel River and Mill Creek coming together in this area. (Go take a look or look at a map).

2. Sewage disposal is done by organic decomposition methods. The atmospheric conditions in the area immediately about a sewage "treatment" area can be most simply described as "stinking".

3. Several springs come out of the hillside and ground in this area of "good drainage".

4. The Valley View addition is immediately above the probably treatment area and the atmosphere could not be described as "rosey".

5. This partial city plan does not take into consideration any of the housing areas other than the city limits proper. It appears as though there is no cooperation with Clallam County officials in this areas or even thought of.

6. The possible contamination of both the Bogachiel River and Mill Creek and the possible result of fish kill.

7. There are other areas better suited that are not close to a housing area such as Valley View and the City of Forks, and certainly possessing better drainage than the "swamp" now probably. This area being out on the old burn, which can be described as a "pile of gravel" rather than a muddy, clay, river bottom swamp.

8. The citizens of this area have not been consulted. Rather, it seems to be a select few who are making the decision after hasty consultation and no thought for the majority.

9. Can the City of Forks and its citizens afford the cost of this system?

Since January of 1968, I have been stationed in Norfolk, Virginia on board both a destroyer and now on a guided-missile cruiser. Since I've been here, I have traveled both North and South seeing our country.

On the U.S. Naval Base at Little Creek, Virginia, adjacent to Norfolk, Virginia, and, I might add, several large housing and apartment developments is a system of holding tanks, settling vats, and sprinkling tanks all for the treatment of the Naval base's sewage. The Naval base does this rather than dumping the untreated sewage into the Atlantic Ocean as is done elsewhere on the East Coast.

Much to the disgust of the large amount of people living in this area of Norfolk, it stinks undescribably and nothing can be done about it.

Of course, the homeowners in the Valley View area have complained to Mayor Kennedy and the City Council since they seem to be making the decisions. Of course, they can't do much as the council seems to have made up its rather questionable mind. At last word, the council was going to take a "telephone survey". True, this is the quickest way, but a telephone conversation leaves no record as the ballot does. If this is done, I guess the concerned citizens will have to accept the "word" of the council.

Rather suspicious way of taking an opinion poll on a matter of such consequence and expense to you, the citizen.

So, in closing: "Know you more than I made public knowledge; Mayor Kennedy and the City Council". The specter of outside affluent pressure on the council and the mayor seems extremely possible.

CAUSES OF FISH KILL AT DAMS EXPLAINED The nitrogen that causes fish kills in the pools below a dam is not nitrogen fertilizer that has escaped from agricultural land and found its way into the rivers, A.R. Halvorson, Extension soil scientist at Washington State University, said today.

"It is atmospheric nitrogen gas that has become entrained (dissolved) in water," Dr. William H. Funk, aquatic biologist in the sanitary engineering section of WSU's College of Engineering, reported. He explained it is the turbulent action of the water as it goes over the spillway of a dam, plus the increased pressure that the air-water mixture is subjected to as it plunges into the depths below the spillway. This results in the water becoming supersaturated with nitrogen gas.

Funk said fish also are subjected to this pressure and in their process of extracting oxygen from the water, they absorb more than normal amounts of nitrogen. This nitrogen, as well as the oxygen, is transported throughout the body tissues of the fish.

Then, as fish move away from the areas of high water pressure and excess dissolved nitrogen to areas of less pressure, the nitrogen gas begins to escape from the blood and tissues in the form of little bubbles. Dr. Funk said this reaction in the fish is similar to the "bends" in man when he surfaces too quickly after being submerged at great depths for a prolonged period of time.

CANINE AND EQUINE

BY SHARON CLARKE

"Talk about humiliating!" Thought the big, red gangly gelding, "especially for a grandson of Man-O-War!" He'd felt extremely indignant since his arrival at the huge old, gray, riding academy barn. "I'll show them I'm too good for this degradation!" He gave his riders an exciting hour's worth. Lots of spirit, but in the meantime he was wearing himself out and began to look like a rack of bones. Every day was the same--going in circles, with a different rider every hour. Evenings it was to a narrow tie-in stall, some grain and hay. Then he would think back--born in Washington to a Quarter Horse mare and sired by a son of Man-O-War. His dad, Warrior Son, was a chestnut Army Remount stud in Eastern Washington, and so gentle that his handler's children rode him. He thought then of the years of training, and finally the stock horse races. He was good. With his bloodlines, he had to be. There were the scrapes with rope burns on his heels; the gash across his tongue from misuse of a Spade bit--life hadn't been easy, but the spirit was still strong and he was still young at 7 years of age. Then came the day when a lady took him from the riding academy onto the trails for an hour. This was a pleasant change. The lady knew how to ride and was easy on his mouth. While returning to the barn, he heard her speak to her riding companion, a man on a seal-brown gelding called Cactus. "He has nice gaits and is easy to handle with lots of spirit, too, but he's so skinny. Maybe he'll do until I find a horse that will replace little Scotty."

Hopefully, this was his chance for a comeback to respectability.

The next he knew, it was a nice roomy box stall, with lots of feed--the lady groomed and rode him and she started calling him "Sandy". He began to fill out and soon became one of the most admired horses in the place.

A girl would come and ride him sometimes, or meet him and the lady along the trail. She always had a treat and loving pats.

Sandy had a name, a nice owner and a friend. He'd come to his own now. He never did anything mean like kick, bite, or buck, life was too good for that sort of thing. One idiosyncrasy of his was to blot when the saddle was put on and walk in circles while being cinched, but that never harmed anyone. Sandy knew when an inexperienced person was around. He stood very still for fear of scaring them. He'd take offerings of carrots or sugar very carefully, never using his teeth. If someone was put on him that was scared, or a child, he walked as if on eggs. When the girl was trying to learn bareback riding, he was very careful not to unseat her. If he felt her slip, he would slow or stop until she regained her balance. One time she fell anyway. He didn't quite realize it until he'd taken a few steps. Then he stopped, turned his head around quizzically as if to say, "what on earth are you doing back there?" The girl sat and laughed.

One time he discovered by chance that if he limped a little, he had a pretty easy life, so he'd do this until the lady would get worried and turn him toward home. This was a fine idea except when the barn came in sight, and the thought of that feed entered his mind--the limp was forgotten!

Sandy is now retired at approximately 30 to 35 years of age, as is his lady. The girl doesn't come around anymore, but I'm sure he still remembers her love. He heard that she now has her own horses, has grown up, and moved a long ways away. It appears that the lady never found a better replacement for her lost "Scotty". Now its Sandy that can never be replaced in the hearts of the lady and the grown-up girl. I know, because I'm that girl.

LONG DISTANCE STEELHEAD

On March 5, 1971, Fred Peterson, of Montesano, caught a 6-pound female steelhead on the Wynoochee River. This in itself is not unusual, but the orange-colored dart tag, attached near the dorsal fin, subsequently revealed that this fish was tagged 2,200 nautical miles from its parent river... the farthest-known distance a steelhead has been known to travel from the Northwest coastline.

Fishermen are urged by the Game Department to report any tagged or fin-clipped steelhead. It is through these reports to fisheries biologists that more knowledge about the steelhead resource can be gained; knowledge that ultimately will benefit the state's legions of steelheaders.

BUYERS WARNED TO CHECK SEALS

Persons buying jars of baby food should check to make sure the seal on the jar has not been broken, Marie Burnes, Clallam County Extension agent warned this week. She said jars of baby food sometimes are opened by grocery store customers to inspect or taste the contents before purchase. Often the jar with the broken seal is returned to the grocery shelf and later purchased by an unsuspecting customer.

For consumer protection Mrs. Burnes noted, during the processing of baby food a vacuum is produced in the jar. The vacuum seals the container and keeps the product wholesome. In a properly sealed jar, the center of the lid is firm, without springiness. But in a container which has been opened, or was not sealed properly, the center of the lid is springy and can be worked back and forth with thumb pressure.

"Customers need to be aware of this safeguard for family health, and are advised to take the time to check jars of food they buy. Any container with a springy lid should be taken to a clerk or store manager to be withdrawn from sale, since the contents may not be safe to eat."

Congregational church news

Next Sunday, April 18th, the adult study class will continue, led by Fred Rosmond. The class begins at 9:30 a.m. New members will also be welcomed into the church next Sunday, during the worship service.

Another creative project for children begins next Sunday and will continue for three weeks. This will be a special program for children from first grade and up. Colorful banners of various sizes will be created, using felt on burlap and children should bring $1.00 to cover the cost of materials. This program is scheduled from 11:00 to 12:00 so their parents may come to church.

FILM LIST AT FORKS LIBRARY

The free films available at the Port Angeles City Library for both county and city residents may be ordered by mail. Check with the County Library bookmobile or your local county branch, the Forks Memorial Library, where a list is on file.

Hope Hodges, county librarian, reports that the County Library trustees at their meeting on April 8, passed on the policy and procedures for the use of the films as agreed to jointly by the Port Angeles City and the Clallam County Library. No charge is made for borrowing films, but special care should be taken in handling them. Charges on damaged film can be expensive. Likewise will continue for three weeks. This will be a special program for children from first grade and up. Colorful banners of various sizes will be created, using felt on burlap and children should bring $1.00 to cover the cost of materials. This program is scheduled from 11:00 to 12:00 so their parents may come to church.

There is a fine selection of films, but as the number is limited clubs would be wise to list a substitute or two when ordering by mail. The list is annotated, telling you what the film is about, how long it is and whether it is in black and white or color. Films may be booked a month ahead of time.

OUTDOOR LORE

By Lonnie Archibald

LET'S GO FISHIN'

By the time the sun has risen Sunday morning, local fishermen will have already gobbled down their breakfast and hurried off to their favorite lakes where huge lunkers await the angler. The young and the old will try out their favorite gear in hopes to fill their limit showing Ma what great outdoorsmen they really are. For the young it will be the excitement of a new fishing outfit while for others it will be a trip in which years of fishing knowledge will be used in an attempt to completely out-wit those native whoppers.

It matters not what burdens the weatherman may place upon them for they are true sportsmen, and true sportsmen are not effected by small things such as cloud bursts, winds and cold. About the only factor which drives the outdoorsmen from the alke is the fact that guide and party have limited.

Local lakes which will produce trout this Sunday are Crescent, Beaver, Pleasant, Wentworth, and Undi. According to wildlife agent Jim Aggergaard, Beaver Lake received a plant of fry cutthroat last summer as did Lake Wentworth. There is also a good chance of anglers finding silvers in Beaver Lake. Undi Lake is perhaps a little tricky to fish, due to the many snags which it holds, and the fact that it is extremely hard to launch a boat from its bank. Those who do fish Undi, however, usually find both cutthroat and silvers. Nice sized natives have been taken from this swamp-like lake in past seasons and there is no doubt that there are still a few lying beneath the lily pads. Lake Pleasant usually has very little fishing pressure yet this large lake holds some of the larger native cutthroat in the area. Silvers are also plentiful. The best bet here, perhaps, is to talk with one of the oldtimers who has fished this lake with great success and learn of his fishing habits before launching the boat. Many species of large fish lie in the deep waters of Lake Crescent where trolling seems to be the better producer. Smaller fish, however, are taken frequently from the banks.

JUVENILES ONLY

Although many will venture to the lowland lake opening day, the most popular spot in this area will no doubt be Mill Creek. A fishing derby will once again be sponsored by the Sportsmen's Club. Mill Creek, just south of town, is open only to those under 14 years of age. The Washington State Department of Game has planted the stream with rainbow trout and there is always a good chance of picking up a few native cutthroat.

HERE AND THERE

Fred Cline, I suppose, is getting his gear ready for the Mill Creek fishing derby. Go get'em, Freddy, you're only young once.

It was Wayne King with a 16-pound steelie from the Sole-duck recently. A nice bright one at that.

Lonnie Archibald, that's me, found some nice steamers in the sands of Sequim Bay last Sunday. Nice goin', Lonnie.

Ernie Springer and Wayne Haag scored on another bear over the weekend while the snow laid upon the ground.

Seen: Craig Hunley half asleep in his jeep parked on main street early this week. No fish and no logical excuse.

It looks as though those who prefer high lake fishing will have to wait a while longer this year as the snows are extremely deep. Those fish will sure be hungry when finally reached by the angler. There's your chance, Ted. You all know Rev. Ted Ringsmuth, don't you? What a competitor.

Did you know that hunters and shooters pay excise tax on all their sporting arms and ammunition? In 1970, this accounted for more than $30 million for wildlife restoration.

WEST END DEMO CLUB MEETS

Two main subjects were discussed at the April 1st meeting of the West End Democratic Club: (1) An outline to change the Industrial Insurance Program, (2) A method whereby the people will gain more control of government costs.

This will be a two part report, first on Industrial Insurance.

Three general areas are involved.

1. To extend coverage to more workers.

2. To increase the benefits and modify the procedure for claims, particularly the matter of settlement adjustment procedures.

3. The three-way split proposal for providing the insurance, self-coverage, private insurance, or State. We question the justice of this proposal as self coverage allows the large companies to set aside paper expenses and keep the money which puts smaller concerns at a disadvantage because they would have to actually pay out the premiums. Private insurance has a notoriously low ratio of premiums paid in to benefits paid out. The State would get stuck with the high risk industries and firms, and consequently show up bad in comparison which would allow further pressure to "get the State of the insurance business." The present system doesn't charge everyone the same, but rather the rates are adjusted according to the industry and the company's experience within that industry; and that there are maximum premium rates, so that the cost is limited to an extent for a firm with very bad safety records.

This final point, that whenever a government requires something of people, then it should provide the service and not push people into the hands of private business who are then and thus given a forced customer.

Second part of this article will appear in next week's Forum.

MONDAY 4-H NEWS APPROVED

Departing from setting a traditional weekend opening date, the State Game Commission last week approved Monday, November 1, as the start of the 1971 general bull elk season.

Recognizing public support for such an opening at the well-attended meeting in Olympia, the Commission gave heavy consideration to the Monday opener as a means to thin first-day crowds in heavily-hunted elk areas--especially Yakima and Kittitas counties.

The general bull elk season this year starts eight days earlier than in 1970, another effort by the Commission to reduce hunter congestion by opening the season while east-side elk are still in timbered areas on their summer and fall range.

Recognizing there would be some problems connected with a Monday opening, the Game Commission still felt strongly that emphasis should be placed to consider the resource first--in this case the elk.

The Country Kids held their fourth meeting April 6th. Under the treasurer's report, Lori Carter gave a report of the bake sale we held April 3rd. We made $10.37.

Under unfinished business, we discussed the scrapbook. We decided to make one. Don Whitehead, who is taking woodworking, was appointed to make the scrapbook.

Mr. and Mrs. Del Huggins shown with the Roan they shot during their recent 21-day safari in Central Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. Del Huggins returned recently from a 21-day safari in Central Africa. The trip over took two days with one stop-over. At Fort Archambault they were met by their professional hunter, Claude Vasselet, and traveled for 3 1/2 hours by landrover to their hunting camp. During the time they stayed there, the Huggins lived on a house-boat on the river Auk and hunted in two countries, Chad and the Central African Republic. The temperature went up to 100 degrees on the river and not a drop of rain fell during the time they spent there. They hunted buffalo, lion and different kinds of antelopes. The biggest antelope is the Lord Darby Eland and the second biggest, the Roan. Altogether, Mr. and Mrs. Huggins are bringing back 13 trophies, three of which have been recorded with the taxidermy firm of Rowland and Ward in London. There are only 25 trophies of the Lord Darby Eland in the United States. They also brought back tusks from the wart hog. The trophies will be mounted on the walls in the Department and Variety Store in Forks. Some of the other souvenirs the Huggins brought home were carved ebony statues, knives, spears, bow and arrows, python skin, a "home-made" guitar and a drum, made of African mahogany. The drum head is made of animal skin.

The natives were eager to sell to the visitors because it was time for the tax collector to come around. Chad is about 3 times the size of Texas with a population of 3 million people. The national budget for the whole year is 16 million dollars. The people live in round houses with cone-shaped roofs and do their cooking outside. They live mainly on meat, fish and bread made from a grain they raise. The tools are home-made and for fishing they use nets, spears and hooks with raw meat for bait. "The Auk River was so full of fish," said Muriel, "that when you went in for a dip, you had to hop around because the fish were nipping at you." (No wonder, when they use raw meat for bait).

Del told about an unusual happening. One evening they had gone down by a pool with hippos and Muriel spotted a male and female eribe (small antelopes). Del decided to use the male for camp meat. He shot and the animal disappeared. He went looking for it and found the stomach on the ground, and about 100 yards from there, the rest of the antelope.

The Huggins had a very successful trip and are planning to make another one in the near future.

Pearl Elizabeth Walls and William Morris Allman were married on March 28, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Walls in Forks. Reverend Howard Stockman performed the single ring ceremony in the presence of the immediate family and close friends. The bride wore a beige dress with green accessories and a corsage of white orchids. Her attendant was Mrs. Bart Bloomstrom, daughter of the bride. Mrs. Bloomstrom wore an orchid dress with a corsage of red baby rosebuds. Best man was Norman Walls, son of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony. The table was centered with an all-white wedding cake, decorated with a bride and groom centerpiece and floral decorated candleholders with white candles. Mrs. Bart Bloomstrom cut the cake. Laurie and Sandy Walls and Valerie Hunter, granddaughters of the bride, served the refreshments. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Chris Morgenroth from Port Angeles, Kerry and Valerie Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Bart Bloomstrom and children, Calvin, John and Debbie from Raymond.

The newly married couple is at home at 513-7th Street, Raymond, Washington.

TRAIL RIDERS NEWS

By Barbara King

There were many admiring glances out in the old barn this past weekend after the arrival of two new Appaloosas. The big gelding, Chief Cheyene B, was a surprise birthday gift to Mike Clark. The mare, Goldie, is for Mike's mother, Mrs. Claude Clark. The Appys are a beautiful pair to look at as well as to ride. Both are well trained and Chief has been shown for 4-H in both halter and performance classes, and has several ribbons and trophies. It looks like the Clark's will ride in style from now on.

The Easter bunny came a day early and hid eggs all over in our barn this last Saturday. Four of the eggs were marked with gold tape; lucky finders of those received 25¢. Bobby Mack was the big winner finding three of the prize eggs, and his sister Suzie, found the other one. Bob and Sue are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Al Clarke. Others finding lots of eggs and having a good time in general were Roger Ford, Sherry Haffner, Corinia, David, and Larry Cline.
