HOST OF THE QUILLAYUTE--Ghostly shapes lie upon the waters of the Quillayute boat basin as the salmon season ends. Most boats have left the harbor. A few remain to greet the winter, such as this ghost of the Quillayute. ---Lonnie Archibald berations and actions of public bodies should be open.

 Gorton said that the law applies to all boards and commissions which are in fact governing bodies of public agencies. It does not cover agencies headed by individual directors, the legislature, legislative committees or the courts, or some advisory committees.
 In a key holding, Gorton said the act does apply to informal gatherings or briefings, even though no formal vote is taken. Citing court decisions and attorneys' general opinions based on a similar act in California and Florida, he concluded:
 "It is our considered opinion that if a majority of the members of a governing body should meet, even informally, in order to consider matters which are within the ambit of the agency's official business, then there will occur a 'meeting at which action is taken' under the... act. From this it follows that such informal meetings... are subject to the act."
 The attorney general also said that secret ballots would violate the purpose of the act. Executive sessions are prohibited by the law except for matters affecting national security, a proposed real estate transaction when publicity would cause "a likelihood of increased price," and the appointment, employment or dismissal of a public officer or employee, or a disciplinary matter concerning such an employee.
 In addition, Gorton said a governing body can meet privately with its attorney, but only under very limited conditions. This will allow private conferences on "sensitive areas of legal advice, particularly with reference to pending or contemplated litigation, settlement offers and similar matters..."
 "This privilege, "the attorney general noted, "cannot be asserted by the body for all legal advice which it receives, particularly that which fits within the concept of deliberations of the body."

She has worked seriously at the craft since 1967, and shown her work at Angeles Arts in Action for three years, and at the Pacific Northwest Arts and Crafts festival in 1971. She works mostly with silver, also with gold; using the techniques of lost wax casting, fusing and forging. She works with faceted, cabochon and baroque stones and also combines glass beads in her designs.
 She says of her work "I try to combine originality of design with the wearability function of jewelry."

BROWNS CELEBRATE 25TH
 A reception was held for Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brown in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary October 23 at the Alder Grove Recreation Hall. Mrs. Brown wore a floor length gown of gold panne velvet and a white gardenia corsage with yellow rosebuds (similar to the one she wore at her wedding).
 The Browns were married in the name of her parents, Mrs. Leta Klahn and the late Henry Klahn, October 26, 1946.
 The hall was decorated with silver streamers and white balls. The three-tiered cake, made by Mrs. Richard Lohnes, was cut by Mrs. Charles Fox and Mrs. Ralph Robertson.
 Lorena Armour poured, and Babe Klahn ladled the punch. Mrs. Leta Klahn was in charge of the guestbook. The honored couple was presented a money tree, decorated with pictures from their wedding day.
 Among the 40 guests who attended the happy occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Robertson who stood up with the Browns at their wedding. During the day, the couple also received calls from Mrs. Brown's two brothers who were unable to attend. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hassbrock and family from Enumclaw.

ATTNY. GEN. EXPLAINS OPEN MTG. LAW

With only minor and specific exception, all meetings--even informal ones--of the multi-member governing bodies of public agencies are subject to the state's new Open Public Meetings Act, according to Attorney General Slade Gorton.
 That was the thrust of a sweeping, 44-page formal legal opinion which Gorton issued answering 20 questions about the new law. The opinion is designed to carry out the legislature's intent that the act should be "liberally construed" so that the deli-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

NOTE: Letters to the editor, in order to appear in print, MUST be signed by the writer. If not signed, they will not be accepted.

Editor,

A copy of the following letter is being sent to the Washington State Department of Game in hope of enlightenment. In 20 years as a resident of this area, 15 years of hunting and 12 years as a logger, I apparently lack enough formal education to find an answer myself.

I wish this to appear in this paper hoping perhaps someone might have the answers, should the Game Department choose to ignore the following:

(1). How was it decided that the deer population in areas 10A and 10B warranted a doe season? Was it perhaps fear of over browsing?

(2). Which organization or group of affluent people exerted the most pressure to have opening day of elk season fall on a Monday, thereby eliminating the local hunters who could not miss work for various reasons?

(3). How long will the state continue to consider revenue intake more important than conservation? Aren't cow permits just a gimmick to attract more hunters and more revenue?

(4). How is this revenue dispersed to help the deer and elk herds in THIS area?

(5). Who appoints the officials of this agency, how long have they held their positions and what are their qualifications?

I have no grievance with the wildlife agents, as they have little control over departmental policy and perform a thankless job, against impossible odds. They get all the blame and receive all the complaints. It is not their integrity I am questioning, but the administration's!

Respectfully,
Gail Garbrick

TYEE-SAPPHO-BE AVER NEWS LETTER

MRS. J. E. MERRITT

Correction: In the account, last week, of the hunting and fishing trip to Eastern Washington of the Konopaski brothers, the names of Carl and Raleigh Konopaski were written as though they were one person. Instead, the names should have been written Mrs. and Mmes. Carl, Raleigh and Warren Konopaski. If it was I who omitted the comma, I'm sorry. Sybil Merritt.

Late last Tuesday afternoon, as is my custom on election days, I stopped at the Beaver school to check on the number of votes cast up to that time, and I slipped and fell with my foot under me. Marge Cowan and her father, J. L. MacDonaid, helped me up into the schoolroom where Eleanor Scarlett, Betty Munson and Louella Everett helped brush the dirt off my clothes. To make a long story shorter, Mary Johnson took me down to the hospital, waited for me until X-rays were taken (no bones were broken) then brought me home. I am very grateful to her and to all who helped me, and I know they, and others who heard of my accident, will be pleased to know that, except for some slight soreness, my foot is practically well again.

Don Bardsley, youngest son of Mrs. Lucille Bardsley, returned home last week after a two-months' stay in Seattle, most of it in different hospitals, the result of a 35-foot fall at one of the mills at Tyee, September 1. He has almost completely recovered, except for impaired vision in one of his eyes.

OUTDOOR LORE

By Lonnie Archibald

THIS, THE ELK SEASON
Hemlocks bending with the wind, rain dripping from the red hunting cap and swamp mud up to your knees. This is a part of that which we know as elk hunting here on the west Olympic Peninsula.

Hunters take to the swamplands, river drainages, logged hill-sides and timber in search of the Olympic elk. Approximately one out of every seven hunters will take elk this season. Local areas which will yield the largest percentages of these popular big game animals are Hoko, Dickey, Goodman Creek, Upper and Lower Hoh, Upper Calawah and Bonidu. Actually, there are very few areas which will not produce elk.

FEEDING
Looking at a few elk habits, we find breakfast, lunch, and dinner, composed mostly of grasses, broad-leafed herbaceous plants, sedges, salmon berry, and huckleberry. These eating habits fall in two categories; grazing and browsing. Grazing seems to be the more popular of the two with browsing a must during winter snows.

MIGRATION
It was at one time believed that the elk migrated each summer to the Olympic high country where they would graze until the following autumn when the Roosevelt elk would then begin their return to the low lands. Today, studies show that a large percentage of the herds do not migrate. Less than half the elk population could be classified as migratories.

FROM RADIO KVAC
For those who missed the hunting and fishing show Sunday evening on KVAC, some good news was that only six illegal cow kills have been found so far this season. Thirty were found last season. The Monday opening contributed to these

'WORDS EYE VIEW'

By Don Squire
Before an enthusiastic homecoming mob last Friday night, the Spartans completed the 1971 gridiron season and, as expected, were defeated 38-6 by Port Townsend. The win for Townsend ended the Olympic "A" crowd for coach Jim Parker's eleven, who finished the campaign with an unblemished slate for the season.

The Spartans were looking to be the spoilers of the Red-skin's bid for a first place finish, but the third ranked team in the state was not sympathetic before the home town folks.

Townsend opened the scoring in the first quarter when George Suderland, an all-state football player last year and a definite shoe-in for all-state honors this year, rumbled in for the first score and added two more on the conversion. The visiting bench jockeys were just settling back in their seats, un-suspicious of what was to transpire next. In what has to be the most exciting moment for Spartan followers. This year, an electrifying kick-off return on the pursuing play put the Spartans back in the ball game and the fans went wild. Harrison Davis, the recipient of the football on the triple reverse kick-off return, raced with the wind 85 yards for the score, and flashbacks of previous grandeur of Spartan heroics were eminent.

With the score 8-6, Townsend went to work in the second quarter. Suderland, the unstoppable fullback, scored two more times in the second quarter and added another in the third stanza. Rock Fountain, another all-state candidate, also chipped in on the scoring spree in the second quarter with a keeper.

Congratulations to Jim Parker and the Port Townsend football team for a successful season.

Next week in "Words Eye", we'll look at the Spartans.

Last year the National 4-H Service Committee distributed at cost, more than 2-million copies of publications designed to increase project learning of 4-H members.

JOYCE 14 SPARTANS 12

The Forks Spartans Junior Varsity played the Joyce Log-gers Junior Varsity team Nov. 6 in a close game at Joyce. The two teams were pretty well matched and it was a close game all through the four quar-ters.

The first touchdown came with a run by Larry Spencer in the second quarter, and the extra point attempt was no good to make the halftime score 6-0. During the third quarter, the Joyce Loggers scored a touch-down but they also failed to score their extra point. The score was tied 6-6.

During the last of the third quarter, the Spartans scored another touchdown by Dave Ctos with a 60 yard run to make the score 12-6, Spartans. With about three and one-half min-utes left in the game, the Log-gers scored a touchdown and made their extra point. The score was then 14-12, Joyce.

Two of the Spartan's drives in the second half were stop-ped by costly fumbles both of which the Loggers recovered. The final score: Joyce Loggers 14, Spartans 12.

Mrs. Justis, Mrs. Swalling, Mrs. Jacobs (who was taking the place of Mrs. Horton who is now back) and Mrs. Baldwin are third grade teachers who are taking part in a program to individualize the instruction of third grade students in reading and math.

The entire third grade enrollment has been divided into ability groups for reading and math. The children change classes so that all the high readers are in one room, all the medium high readers in another, etc. This enables the teacher to plan a program specifically suited to the children in her class. The high students progress rapidly while the lower students, who would be left out or frustrated with the work expected of them in a mixed class, are able to meet with success at their own level and compete with their peers.

Later in the day the children change classes for math. The grouping is not the same for each subject because some poor readers are good at math and some good readers are not so good at math.

The change of teachers and classmates seems to be welcomed by the children. They appear to be fresh and ready to work when they get to their different classrooms.
