VOL. 2. NO. 5. PORT CRESCENT, WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, JUNE 25, 1891. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

HE WAS TRULY AMAZED

At the Evidences of Improvement that Greeted Him on Every Hand at Port Crescent.

HON. D. W. HIGGINS OF VICTORIA

Tells the Victoria Colonist of the Surprising Changes that Have Been Wrought Here Since His Previous Visit—Transforming an Unbroken Wilderness Into One of the Finest Townsites on the Sound, and an Indian Rendezvous Into the Abiding Place of a Most Progressive and Enterprising Civilization—A Splendid Wharf, the Finest Road in the State, a Hotel that is a Delight, a Big Breakwater Under Successful Construction, Stores, Office and Business Buildings, Residences, the Railway Right-of-way Clearing, a Saw Mill Turning out the Finest Cedar Lumber He Had Ever Seen, and Innumerable Evidences of Extraordinary Thrift, are a Few of the Things that Pleased and Astonished the Eminent Visitor from the Beautiful Capital Across the Straits.

THE LEADER, in its last issue, made mention of the fact that Hon. D. W. Higgins, one of the most prominent citizens of Victoria, both in the financial and political world—being the Speaker of the Provincial Legislative Assembly, the Managing Director of the National Electric Tramway and Lighting Company, and a gentleman of ability and wealth—had been a visitor to Port Crescent, early in the week.

Mr. Higgins, who is a most engaging gentleman, personally, told the LEADER that he was both astonished and pleased at the substantial and surprising progress that had been made here since his first visit to Port Crescent. He saw much that was gratifying to a man of affairs; much that impressed him with the magnitude of the plan that brought Port Crescent into existence; much that told him, in an eloquent, forceful, unequivocal way of the earnestness and rapidity with which the details of that plan have beer and are being carried into permanent effect; and much that gave him added faith in the town's future.

That he was pleased with what he saw here, even beyond the extent of his expressions to the LEADER, was made very apparent in an interview had with him by a representative of the Daily Colonist, on his return to Victoria.

Speaking of his visit to this side of the Straits, Mr. Higgins commented on the wonderful progress that had been made at several promising young cities, "but," said he, "especially at Port Crescent." Continuing Mr. Higgins added:

"At Port Crescent, 16 miles west of Port Angeles, there has been certainly a wonderful change since my last visit of three years ago. Then it was surrounded by an unbroken wilderness, and there were only two houses on the bay. At that time I experienced great difficulty in climbing the hill to get a view of the back country.

"The Port Crescent Improvement Company has built a fine wharf, fully equal to any in Victoria, and has constructed a road up the hillside which is pronounced to be the best road in the state of Washington. A fine hotel has been erected, the Markham House, which in its furnishings throughout, and its cuisine, is fully equal to the best hotel in the state, or in the Northwest. The breakwater is being rapidly pushed, and constructed in a most substantial manner. Some 300 feet of it is now completed, and a tunnel of about 40 feet in length is now ready for another blast. The rock of the hill is tunneled and then blasted out, and the shattered rock is hauled out and dumped into the sea. The work is under the superintendence of Manager John E. Lutz, and the apparatus used in the operations is a very successful invention.

"I was greatly surprised to find on all sides such evidences of civilization and improvement, where only three years before there were few living but Indians. On top of the hill 300 acres have been cleared, and numerous dwellings erected. There are also two stores and an excellent hotel. Further back in the country a sa[illegible] has been located that is cutting ced[illegible] and there I saw the finest cedar pl[illegible] have ever seen, many of them be[illegible] wide and as clear as the cleare[illegible] The right of way for the railroad [illegible]'s Harbor has been graded for a d[illegible]nce of six miles, and the agents of the company have shown an extraordinary thrift in doing as much as they have in the time at their disposal. I don't think any private company in the world has ever done or could do more in the same time than this one has already accomplished. The townsite is one of the finest on the Sound.

"Next week, a new steamer, the Hermosa, will be put on the route, making the journey to Port Angeles and Port Crescent much easier and more agreeable. The new steamer is an elegant and commodious one, from San Diego, and is very swift. She will make three trips per week from Seattle to Port Townsend, Port Angeles, Port Crescent and Clallam and Neah Bays."

And so it goes. Mr. Higgins is a man of keen intelligence and wide experience. He knows a good thing when he sees it, and in his expressed impressions of Port Crescent, and the vast amount of telling work that has been accomplished here, he but voices the opinion of the scores of other strong and well-informed men who have recently visited Port Crescent, to look over the ground and "size up" her prospects for the future. They all reach one conclusion—that Port Crescent is a place of magnificent promise; that the foundation for a city is being laid here, and that it's a good field in which to place investments.

HE KILLED ONE BEAR.

And Would Have Got Its Mate, Had His Ammunition Held Out—The Story Told by an Instantaneous Photograph.

The appended description of a thrilling Sunday-morning event at Lake Crescent is from the pen of one of the LEADER'S staff correspondents, now sojourning at the Lake:

BEAR.—On the 21st inst., old Father Bear was gathered to his fathers. His life was one of strange vicissitudes, he being oft compelled to subsist alone upon the bare necessities of life.

On last Sunday morning, Messrs. Frank Austin and Ernest Boehrig started out to obtain big game. About five hours later, a shout was heard coming from the woods in the rear of Mr. Nollain's house. In a short time afterward Mr. Boehrig was seen emerging from the dense wood with a black bear on his back and shoulders. He was relieved later of his burden by Mr. Austin, who proudly bore it into camp, where the bear was the observed of all observers.

It was learned that after leaving camp they traversed a distance of one and a half miles, when they arrived upon a small knoll on top of the mountain. They suddenly discovered, in front of them, two black bears, quietly and serenely feeding upon sweet pea vines. Mr. Austin, naturally surprised, hesitated, it being the first time he had had an opportunity to form a close acquaintance with a bear. It is fair to say that his face assumed a somewhat ashen hue, but in a few minutes he had regained his usual self possession, and fired, after having selected the larger animal. The first shot struck his bearship in the shoulder, the shock causing him to lose his balance, when he rolled down the hill about three hundred feet. He was closely followed—we will not say cautiously—by his would-be slayer, and was fired upon at every opportunity that offered, until Mr. Austin had exhausted his supply of ammunition, five shots in all, when bruin was found dead.

In the meanwhile, the companion bear had made off. As the lucky huntsmen appeared in camp, visions of juicy steak floated in the air, and soon the aroma of broiling bear meat was wafted to the heavens.

In passing, we would state that an instantaneous photograph of the bear and his captors was obtained by Dr. E. C. Vidal.

It Was a Delightful Occasion.

The Port Townsend Leader has this pleasant reference to the marriage of Mr. Sebastian Downie and Miss Mary E. Kelly, of Gettysburg, which occurred on the 16th inst:

"Rev. T. J. Weekes yesterday morning united in marriage Miss Mary E. Kelly and Mr. Sebastian Downie, of Gettysburg, the ceremony being performed at the Central hotel.

"A pleasant party of Alaskan tourists were present, all of them entering enthusiastically into the festivities. One gentleman of the party presided at the organ and skillfully executed a wedding march. At the close of the ceremony, all united in singing that grand old, inspiring air, Old Antioch, "Joy to the World." Millionaire Hortion, of San Diego, Cal., with his wife, were of the party."

JUSTICE Win S. Miller will go up to Seattle, Saturday, to transact some important business at the Land Office.

MR. E. C. ADAMS, representing the Nolton & Adams Hardware Company of Port Townsend, was here, the latter part of the week.

MR. S. T. PRYOR, one of the pioneer settlers at the Lake, is on a visit to Port Townsend. He came in to Port Crescent, on Monday, for the first time in a year—the first time, in fact, since he settled on the Lake.

THE HERMOSA was expected to arrive here yesterday, on her first trip, but she was beached at Port Townsend, to give her a thorough grooming, and owing to a little eccentricity on the part of the tide, she could not be gotten off in time to make the run. She will be here to-morrow, sure.

THE ELEGANT HERMOSA

Is Now at the Service of Visitors to Port Crescent.

BEAUTIFUL IN EVERY DETAIL,

The New Steamer, of Which the Hastings Company and Captain Horne are Justly Proud, is One of the Most Magnificently Appointed and in Every Way Perfect Boats on This Coast Large and Handsome, Luxuriously Furnished, and Lighted by Electricity, the Hermosa Will be a Delight to the Ever Increasing Tide of Travelers on This Route.

ALOUD, CLEAR, MUSICAL whistle was heard far down the Straits, Saturday afternoon—a strange whistle in these waters. There seemed to be a jubilant tone in the far-reaching notes that issued from the brass-throat of the steamer in the distance, and as the whistling increased as Port Crescent was neared, quite a crowd gathered at the breakwater, the pier and on the beach, to get an early glimpse of the merry new-comer.

The Hermosa, the beautiful passenger steamer recently purchased by the Hastings Transportation Company, of Port Townsend, to be placed on this run, was expected to pass here, that afternoon, in charge of Capt. A. W. Horne, and it was surmised that it was the Hermosa that was so musically heralding her approach.

With the instinct of the true seaman, Manager John E. Lutz, of the Port Crescent Improvement Company, soon had a powerful glass leveled at the still-distant vessel, and long before the naked eye could make her out, he announced that it was the eagerly looked-for Hermosa. That was cheering news, and the crowd manifested a disposition to give Captain Horne a big cargo of compliments, for the unswerving nerve he displayed in sticking to his determination to secure the Hermosa for his company, even when her purchase seemed well-nigh impossible. But the Captain had said that he was going to San Diego to get the Hermosa—and here he came with her.

And a glorious sight the magnificent boat presented, as she passed Gettysburg, and headed for Port Crescent, bathed in a flood of golden sunlight. Capt. Horne ran her in close to the breakwater, and answered the cheers of the crowd there gathered with oft-repeated whistling.

Riding across the harbor, like some beautiful creature of the sea, came the Hermosa, and the flag on the mast at the shore-end of the pier, near the Hotel Markham, was dipped in her honor, by Manager Lutz' order. The Hermosa's whistle answered this graceful salute, as well as the cheers that followed, from those on peir and beach; and the Captain did not fail to recognize and return the salutes of a merry party of pic-nicers, congregated on the beach, near the right-of-way clearing of the Victoria, Port Crescent & Chehalis R. R.

Then on went the Hermosa, out past Tongue Point, and on toward Port Townsend, where she arrived Saturday evening.

Concerning her arrival there, her beauty, commodiousness and conveniences, as well as the magnificence of her appointments, the Leader of that city says:

"The Hastings Transportation Company's new acquisition, the steamer Hermosa, blew the port whistle shortly after 6 o'clock last evening, and thirty minutes later she was made fast at Union dock. The steamer's arrival brought a large crowd to the wharf. She came in under convoy of the Wildwood and the Discovery, both of whom were crowded with people anxious to welcome the boat to her new home port.

"The Hermosa is a beauty. She is without doubt the handsomest steamer of her size afloat on this Coast. Her furnishings and appointments would, in fact, put several of the Pacific coast Steamship Company's steamers to the blush.

"She has eighteen staterooms, of which ten are on the upper and eight on the berth deck. Each room is large and airy and contains two berths. There are electric bells and lights and steam in every apartment.

"The ship left San Francisco last Wednesday, and San Pedro, one week ago today. The trip between San Pedro and San Francisco was remarkably rough, with heavy swells and big seas. Coming this way the voyage was, in the main, all that could be desired.

"The ship's social hall, situated amidships, is remarkably large and comfortable. There is a piano and handsome mirrors and lounging sofas. The saloon contains five tables, which can seat seventy passengers. There are two pantries, both large and roomy. The bar is way forward on the lower deck. The smoking and card room is on the upper deck forward. The bridal chamber is a model ship's apartment. It is situated aft astern, with windows on the starboard and port sides. It is 12x12 and contains two berths, a marble topped washstand, toilet table and settees.

"In the Southern California boom days, when the vessel ran between Los Angeles and San Catalina Island, the directors of the land company which owned the Hermosa, were wont to entertain their friends in this apartment. The last relic of its departed glory, a liquor sideboard, still remains.

"Capt. E. C. Dornfield, of San Francisco, brought the vessel to this port from that city. Her engines were in charge of Chief John Howland, with Otto Sazwen and Daniel Wishman as first and second assistants. Capt. Horne, Mrs. Griffiths and child, Mrs. Al. Wintrode and child came up in her as passengers. She is 249 tons net, and 313 tons gross; her length is 133 feet, her breadth twenty-four feet, and her depths eleven feet. Her kitchen and bakery, located on the lower deck forward, are remarkably large. The former contains three extra big cooking ranges. She was built at San Francisco in 1889, and cost when completed $80,000. Her engines are 550 horse power, and she makes eleven knots an hour. She presented a fine appearance as she steamed into port, being dressed from stem to stern. She was boarded and thoroughly inspected by hundreds as soon as she tied up, and Captain L. B. Hastings received three cheers and a large-sized tiger for his enterprise.

"The vessel takes the Garland's run on the Neah Bay route on Wedensday, leaving here at 2.30 A. M. Captain Horne will command her, and Captain Dornfield goes as first officer."

The Hermosa will make her first regular trip here to-morrow afternoon, and will be given a reception, the heartiness of which cannot fail to be very gratifying to Capt. Horne, whom every one feels like showering with congratulations.

The Hermosa is worthy of all that has ever been said of her, and it is little wonder that Capt. Horne lost his heart to her. She will be a source of comfort and delight to the traveling public, and the LEADER hopes, a gold-mine to the Hastings Company, to which every one in Port Crescent feels very grateful.

The Hermosa will make the run from Seattle and Port Townsend to Port Crescent, and all the points heretofore reached by the Garland, three times a week—Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Her arriving time will be 2:00 P. M.

Praise Ye The Lord.

The Port Crescent Sunday School Association is ambitious. It is only a few weeks old, but still it wants an organ. And it's going to get it. At Sunday afternoon's meeting, Misses Fannie Haswell, Lottie Walters and Mary Elliott were appointed a committee to receive subscriptions for the organ fund, and by Monday night, the musical question was fully settled, the sum necessary to pay for a handsome organ having been subscribed. The instrument has been ordered, and will be here next week. It doesn't take long to accomplish a good thing in Port Crescent. This is a religious community, and then—well, that soliciting committee was simply irresistible.

DEPUTY SHERIFF Frank Fisher was here, to-day, serving subpoenas upon residents of Port Crescent, whose names were included in the special venire, from which an effort is now being made to fill the jury, to try James Wood for the murder of Mrs. Moss. The following gentlemen were summoned to appear in Court at 10 o'clock, Friday morning: Messrs. John E. Lutz, James McFarland, John Everett, Sevren Johnson, W. E. Tower, G. E. Raney, F. H. Wacker, M. L. Hollister, Paul Barnes, Al. Miller and Gus Colman.

MANAGER S. R. Haddock, of the Port Crescent Saw Mill Company's establishment, went to Seattle and Tacoma, Tuesday, on business. He will return to-morrow, on the Hermosa—Captain Horne having reserved the bridal chamber for his occupancy.

A SPLENDID trout, measuring full twenty-nine inches, was caught in Lake Crescent by Mr. George Moore, a few evenings ago. And you know, of course, that a twenty-nine-inch trout is a whaling big one.

A DAUGHTER was born to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johnson, on Sunday—an eleven pound blessing, over which her proud parents are rejoicing.

MR. J. T. MERCER, of Los Angeles, arrived here on Friday, and is now at Lake Crescent. He contemplates making his home at the Lake.

MESSRS W. A. Langley, D. C. Robertson and Seth I. Davis, spent a portion of the present week on their claims in Twin Rivers township.

MR. EUGENE TOWER, Clerk of the School Board, completed the enumeration of this District, the present week.

EARNEST HOME MAKERS,

Who Have Chosen Clallam County for Their Abiding Place.

A KNIGHTS OF LABOR COLONY,

Which Has Established a Large and Important Settlement in the Rich Country About the Lake of the Sun—How the Land Was Located, Cabins Were Built and Claims Allotted - A Happy Condition of Affairs, Each Man Considering His New Home a Paradise, and Eager to Make His Land Yield Him a Little Income.

THE RICH COUNTRY down about the Lake of the Sun, in the western portion of this county, is rapidly filling up with settlers; but probably the most interesting and important movement inaugurated in that section, is that known as the "Knights of Labor Colony," the members of which are now doing a great deal to develop the country in which they have made settlement, and are preparing to do a great deal more.

Some few weeks ago, the LEADER, in an interview with Mr. Albert H. Davis, of the Lake of the Sun, made reference to this colony. That interview caught the eye of Mr. D. O'Brien of Seattle, the Secretary and Treasurer of the Colony Association, and he favors the LEADER with some additional and very gratifying information regarding the method followed in locating the claims, and the good work that the settlers, members of the Association, have done, are doing and propose to do, on their respective possessions. They have gone into the country for the purpose of creating homes there, and as they have good locations and good land, there is every reason for believing that their efforts will be crowned by merited success.

Mr. O'Brien writes as follows from Seattle, under date of June 18th:

"In a recent issue of your valuable paper, I noticed an article headed, "From the Lake of the Sun," which proved to be an interesting interview with Mr. Albert H. Davis, a gentleman who has a beautiful claim near the Lake, and is, I believe, now Postmaster at that place.

"In that interview, Mr. Davis referred to "the colony scheme" that had been inaugurated in his neighborhood, but did not go into details as far as he might have done, with entire propriety; and so, to prevent the possibility of Mr. Davis' utterances being misconstrued, I would like to make a more explicit statement regarding the aims and hopes of our colony.

"Quite a large number of workingmen, principally Knight of Labor, desirous of securing homesteads on government land, hearing that there was some good land in the western part of Clallam county, on the coast and around the Lake, associated themselves together, talked the matter over, and finally sent a committee down there to look the country over, and see what it had to offer to persons honestly desirous of making homes for themselves. This committee went on its mission, and on returning, reported that there was fine land down there, and plenty of it.

"We then sent a crew of nine men down to the Lake country to survey the land into 160 acre tracts; cut necessary trails; build cabins on the claims selected, and to prepare a plat showing the location and number of each claim. All this was done, and the members of the Association held a drawing to determine, by lot, the ownership of the respective claims.

"Numbered tickets were placed in one hat, and the names of the members of the colony in another, and then the drawing proceeded, the tickets and names being taken from the hats by blindfolded men, and the allotments duly announced by tellers. As thus conducted, the drawing was very satisfactory.

"The question of ownership having been thus fairly settled, all of the members of the colony went down to their claims, looked them over and made such improvements as they were able to, at that time; and their visits have been repeated, at every possible opportunity, and clearing, planting and improvements have been going ahead pretty steadily. They all expect to enlarge and better their houses, and as soon as the roads are sufficiently opened up, they will take their families down there, and a school will be promptly established.

"Nearly all of the members of the colony are poor men, intent upon making a home; and while they are compelled to go slow, in the way of improvements, they are going ahead steadily and surely—each member thinking his home a paradise, and longing, with an eagerness that only a poor man can know, for the day to come when he can make it self-sustaining.

"As soon as one delegation returns, after staying as long as their provisions would hold out, others are ready to start; so about one-third of our whole number are on their claims, right along.

"Mr. and Mrs. Davis, as well as several others, went into that country about the same time we did, and I tell you we have a large settlement, and a good one—a settlement of home-makers; of men who know how to and are not afraid of work.

"Since we went in there, quit a large colony of Swedish people have settled on the Lake, across from us.

"Our colony did not take up this land for the purpose of speculating on it, but in order to make homes for ourselves and families. Every man is doing all he can on his claim, this summer, and all of us expect to move down there, to stay, this fall and winter, that we may have enough ground cleared to get in a fair crop next spring. We expended some $2,000, before we had all the preliminary work disposed of, so that each man could go on the claim that he drew by lot. I am very well pleased with my claim, and will move my family down there just as soon as I can get the approach to it sufficiently opened up.

"I saw Mrs. Davis, when I was down there last, and she told me that she reached their claim by canoe, around the coast. She is an educated lady, and a very pleasant personage indeed. My place is a mile or two distant from their claim.

"You will hear more from our colony of home-makers, later on."

Where We are Strong.

"Of the interesting features of the state, which have attracted especial attention, are the facilities for the cheap manufacture of all classes of products," said Mr. Tillotson, one of the prominent members of the Graphic party, to a representative of the Tacoma Ledger. "The water power, which is practically beyond estimate in the greatness of its extent, and which may be utilized in so many localities, together with cheap fuel, insures a future growth of manufactures and varied industrial enterprises for the state, which will soon attain wide importance.

"The development of the mining industry in the state has been a surprise indeed, while the richness, extensiveness and variety of the mineral wealth is wonderful.

"We have been greatly interested in the agricultural resources of the state, and have been investigating the hop industry, grains, fruits and other products with considerable care.

"The yield of the variou[illegible]s and the net returns realized [illegible]en known throughout the East, [illegible]an interest in the state which must [illegible]use an amount of investigation into the advantages of the state and an advancement of its material interests that will make its every valley teem with enterprising citizens and prosperous towns.

"The visit of the Graphic syndicate newspaper party to Washington is for the purpose of acquiring a thor[illegible] knowledge of the resources, deve[illegible] and undeveloped, and possibilities of [illegible] entire state, which knowledge, secured by our own representatives, each in his own line fully acquainted with and fully alive to the value of, will be presented by illustrations executed in the best manner known to the engraver's skill, and by facts and figures gathered with great care by our editors and put into the most attractive and interesting shape.

"Our facilities for doing this are unequaled, as the syndicate represents first-class journals, devoted exclusively to the advancement of agriculture, journalism, finance, trade, iron, lumber, milling, mining, coal mining, railways, and numerous other interests, and more than 4,800 family weeklies, which reach over 5,000,000 people.

"A magnificent special Washington edition of the Graphic, reflecting the advantages o[illegible] state as a whole, and of the various [illegible]alities in detail, will be published, and it is safe to say that in point of thoroughness and handsomeness it will be unsurpassed not only by anything ever done for the state of Washington, but anything that has been done by an illustrated paper for any other state.

"Washington is so comparatively new and unknown to the people of the eastern states, that a presentation of its wonderful climate, acreage and materal resources must certainly attract a degree of attention and comment from both press and people that no other state could."

They Had a Jolly Time.

Messrs. J. R. Forrest and S. J. Murphy returned to Tacoma, Tuesday, after spending several days at Lake Crescent, as guests of Manager Richard McDonnell, of the Hotel Markham. They enjoyed the finest kind of trout fishing during their stay, and found sport at the Lake all that the heart of a fisherman could desire.

MR. U. B. VIDAL has returned to Brookside, Lake Crescent, after a visit to Seattle.

SETTLERS living at a distance—at any of the various points west of Port Crescent—can have their papers, giving the Land Office notice of their intention

TO MAKE FINAL PROOF,

Made out and forwarded to Register Reed, by sending the editor of the LEADER their filing papers, containing the number and description of their claims, the names and places of residence of their witnesses and the date on which they desire to prove up. All filing papers so sent in, will be returned to their owners by the first mail after their receipt, with the required final proof blanks properly filled out and ready for the signatures of claimants. After being signed and returned to the LEADER, they will be at once sent in to the Land Office at Seattle, and a notice for publication will be issued within a few days.

And now, they say that Queen Victoria is in favor of Home Rule for Ireland. These be strange times.

Alaska seems to be becoming a great national pleasure resort. Excursionists are now hieing themselves thither by the hundreds.

The Missouri river is on a terrific rampage, and threatens to abandon its course at St. Joseph, and leave that city an inland town.

On Friday last, the price of silver reached $1.03 per ounce—the first time the price had reached the dollar-an-ounce point since February.

The LEADER is in receipt of a very cordial invitation to participate in the celebration of the one hundred and fifteenth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, at Seattle, on July 3d and 4th.

Supt. Hottowe and his force of willing workers are bravely pushing ahead construction work on the road to Lake Crescent. It is hoped that Whiskey creek will be spanned and bridged by the end of the week.

It will not be long, now, before the Government's telegraph line, from Port Townsend to Neah Bay, will be completed to Port Crescent. The construction party has now reached Freshwater Bay, and is pushing rapidly this way.

"The Hermosa has arrived," says the Port Townsend Leader, editorially, "and is even more than we expected of her. Her owners are to be congratulated, and Port Townsend hopes they will reap a fortune as the result of their enterprise."

And so does Port Crescent—and the larger the fortune the better will we be pleased.

Grave fears are entertained for the safety of Washington's hop crop, on account of the threatened ravages of the hop louse. But sifted down, these fears seem to be, largely, the property of the gentlemen who have vine-sprinkling machines and louse-killing decoctions for sale. Ezra Meeker says that the hop crop is all right; and Ezra generally knows what he's talking about.

Work has at last been resumed on the survey of this district of the new county road. County Surveyor Smith, with an adequate party of assistants, is now in the field, surveying the line viewed through from the Elwha to a point south of Port Crescent; and when this work is completed, the viewers, with the Surveyor's party, will again take the field and complete the location of the road to Clallam Bay.

Senator John B. Allen, who was a visitor to Seattle a few days ago, expressed the belief that the farmers of Eastern Washington are growing more prosperous every year; that the Farmers' Alliance movement will prove to have no permanence, being the outgrowth of temporary discontent; that the nomination of McKinley for Governor shows that the Republicans of Ohio are staunch and enthusiastic believers in his tariff measure, and that his election is among the certainties; that President Harrison's tour has strengthened him immensely with the people, and that he could be re-nominated for the Presidency in preference to any man in America, save Blaine; but that if Blaine should be a candidate he "could be sure of being nominated against all opposition, for he commands a more enthusiastic following than any other man in the party."

Commendation Justly Earned.

Hon. D. W. Higgins, of Victoria, uttered but a simple truth when, in commenting on the surprising and gratifying things that he had seen during his recent visit to Port Crescent, to the Victoria Daily Colonist, he said: "I do not think that any private company in the world has ever done or could do more in the same time than this one—the Port Crescent Improvement Company—has already accomplished."

That is handsomely said, but every word of the praise thus bestowed by Mr. Higgins has been fully, thoroughly and honestly earned by the Port Crescent Improvement Company, that has done so much, and done it so splendidly, liberally, comprehensively and well, toward transforming the country about this beautiful bay; toward subduing a wilderness, and laying, on broad and enduring lines, the foundation for an important city; toward attracting capital, brains, skill and energy to this long-neglected but exceedingly rich section of the state; toward placing this portion of our great peninsula, teeming with nature's wealth, in direct line with the best and most progressive civilization of our day; toward opening up to and acquainting the world with the richness, the attractions, the advantages and the possibilities of Port Crescent and the great territory tributary to it—territory about which the world knew little and cared less, before this Company entered upon its wonderfully successful career of development; a development that has made Port Crescent known in every portion of, and far beyond the state, in the future of which it is destined to cut an important figure.

The vast amount of work that has been accomplished here, and the handsome, substantial and enduring character of the improvements that have been made, by this Company, command the willing admiration of every one who views them; and the more enlightened and comprehensive the view, the greater the degree of commendation elicited.

And while the Company is entitled to the fullest and heartiest measure of praise for the courage, the liberality and wisdom displayed in its policy, the practical results of which are so gratifying, what of the quiet, energetic, ever-watchful, sagacious, brainy and capable man who was in at the birth—that man of unflagging industry, prodigious application, infinite capacity for detail and admirable executive ability, who has been the local soul of the Company; its right arm, and ever-present self—Secretary and Manager John E. Lutz?

It would be difficult, indeed, to mete out to him praise in excess of his deserts, for never did man strive more earnestly, zealously or successfully to do full justice to every interest of his Company; to the community in the upbuilding of which his Company's enterprise has played so vital a part, and to the hundreds of men, of almost every walk of life, with whom he has been brought into direct contact.

All of the vast improvements that have been made here—everything that has been done, since the first effort was made to wrest this splendid townsite from the wilderness; to make it sightly and easily approachable; to give to it the conveniences and advantages that a point of its present and ever-growing importance must have, and to improve its harbor facilities to meet the increased demand that will be made upon it as a shipping port, when the Northern Pacific's transcontinental line is completed to Port Crescent—has been done under his personal direction and supervision. And that everything has been and is being done well, is patent to all men.

Manager Lutz' duties have been multitudinous; but his capacity for responsibilities seems to be well nigh limitless, and aided by a boundless industry, and executive ability of a very high order, he is enabled to dispatch a volume of work, pressing from many quarters, that would fairly swamp a man of ordinary calibre.

But vested with large powers and responsibilities as he is, he is one of the quietest, most unassuming, gentlemanly of men. His whole heart is in his Company's mammoth undertaking, and to its best interests he devotes himself with an assiduity that merits the most unstinted commendation.

He Knows a Good Thing when He Sees It.

Mr. B. K. Hall, a very pleasant young gentleman of Tacoma, was here, Wednesday, looking over the field of business. He took occasion to look carefully into the character of the soil of the territory in and adjacent to Port Crescent, and was astonished to find it of such exceeding richness. Mr. Hall is the owner of a farm in the Puyallup valley, and he says the soil of the land surrounding Port Crescent is wonderfully fertile—as good as the famed Puyallup land, and worth, to-day, $200 an acre for agricultural purposes, alone. It will produce hops, hay, potatoes and all sorts of vegetables, in perfection and profusion.

MR. JOSEPH SHEPHERD, of near Gettysburg, was here, Monday.

Have Your Work Done Right.

It is worth a great deal to know that the title to your property is all right; and the way to obtain this knowledge, is through a perfect abstract. This you can always rely upon securing, if you place your order for an abstract of title with the firm of R. A. Grimes & Co., of Port Angeles. They have their office in the County Building.

AS IT STRIKES THEM.

Some of the Things that Have Impressed the Members of the Chicago Graphic's Party.

The Chicago Graphic's notable party of journalists and artists, now making a tour of inspection of the state, for the purpose of giving it a through descriptive, statistical and profusely illustrated write-up, have found much to occupy and interest them. Mr. Truman G. Palmer, manager of the party and special representative of the bureau of publicity and promotion of the world's fair, in speaking of some of the things that have impressed him, said:

"People in the East have no idea of the wealth, grandeur, enterprise and remarkable growth of the Northwest, and never will till they come out here. The old saying, 'Go West, young man,' is truly prophetic. I believe there will be as great a growth here as there has been in Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul. This country has a glorious future, and just think of it: Your climate permits you to grow almost everything produced in Texas, and yet you are away here to the north! It is truly wonderful."

Mr. Palmer seemed to be truly in love with the country and remarked, among other things, that the people made the country, and where there were so many enterprising citizens there must be a great city. There were bound to be several such on Puget Sound, and the friendly rivalry of the towns would prove beneficial rather than otherwise. Such had been the case in other states—for example, St. Paul and Minneapolis, and he did not believe that St. Paul would to-day be as large as it is, were it not for the growth and rivalry of Minneapolis. Kansas City out-distanced Leavenworth, as Portland did Oregon City, much to the surprise of the older cities, whose citizens believed their beautiful locations would always hold precedence for them. All were benefitted by the rivalry, but the last easily became first in point of growth and prominence."

Mr. Palmer is not losing opportunities as representative of the world's fair and has printed slips and illustrations for distribution and examination in the car. Talking about the fair, he said:

"We are going to have the finest air the world ever saw. I spent the season of 1889 in Paris, and in looking over the water color designs in Major Handy's office, just before coming out here, much to my surprise I found them far grander than the fair buildings erected in Paris. I have been until recently afraid that our designs would not be as complete and grand as those in Paris, but I am now convinced that in point of extent, artistic design and appropriate decoration the Columbian exposition will far surpass anything ever before erected. Paris only had 169 acres where we have 1000 acres in Chicago. We will have $25,000,000 to make the exposition a success. Of this the people of Chicago will contribute $10,000,000 and the city has bonded itself for $5,000,000. The balance we feel sure will be given by the states of the Union, and if we don't have the finest exposition the world ever saw, it will be because the thieves get it all. The landscape artists are now at work, the sites for the buildings have been located, the grading and treeing has been going on for months, and preparations are being made for the lakes. In 60 days there will be 30,000 men at work on the buildings and grounds. Everything points to success and people of Chicago look to the doubling of their population as the result of the exposition."

"I have been in Washington before," said Mr. Palmer to the Post-Intelligencer. "I am sad and yet glad to say I have. I say sad for the reason that my reputation for truth and veracity has never been at so low an ebb as it has been since my return from Washington a few months ago. It is needless to state that like 99 per cent. of the people who have made your state a visit, I am an enthusiast on its present and future. Mr. Chapin and myself came out here a month or two ago in order to familiarize ourselves a little with the state, and the tales which we have since related are characterized by our friends as myths.

"Years ago I possessed a fair reputation for truth, but it has taken wings, and I doubt if it will ever return. Last year I managed a similar expedition through Texas, and that proved to be a sad blow to my reputation for truthfulness. I had, in a measure, recovered from that shock, when the Washington trip completely undid me. Strawberries which will not go in a jelly cup, bearing fruit trees two years from the planting, a ton of hops to the acre, timber 150 feet to the first limb, buildings in Seattle which would be a credit to Chicago or New York, cable and electric lines which are absolutely perfect, and a thousand and one equally marvelous things are incomprehensible to the Eastern man who has not seen them with his own eyes. To back up our assertions in type, we shall use as many half-tone illustrations as possible, as these are made direct from the photographs and cannot be distorted.

"The general plan and purpose of our trip is to extend the circulation and influence of the Graphic and other papers represented. The matter printed in these journals, numbering nearly 5,000 outside the Graphic, will be in the shape of correspondence. The matter in the Graphic will be put in the shape of a fifty to seventy-page special Washington edition, illustrated in the most elaborate manner and printed on the finest enamel paper. This edition will treat everything of interest throughout the state, and will be filled with statistics of interest to Eastern homeseekers and investors. Our entire party is enthusiastic on what they have already seen and are looking for many surprises to-morrow."

WASHINGTON'S FLORAL WEALTH.

And the Way in Which It Has Impressed a Practical Botanist of Note—The Beautiful Gems that Grace Our Woods in Confusing Profusion—The Wonders of a Soil and Climate Extremely Congenial to Plant Life.

MR. JAMES TAYLOR, a practical botanist of note, is the author of the following interesting paper on the flora of Washington, which he contributed to a recent issue of the Seattle Press-Times:

To the outside world—by which term I mean not only the remoter portions of this continent and Europe, but even such near neighbors as California, Oregon, Nevada, etc.—the state of Washington is regarded as chiefly remarkable for its grand forests, from which an apparently inexhaustible supply of lumber is drawn; for its wealth of minerals and its rapidly growing and prosperous cities. This, at least, is the impression of the country with which the average visitor arrives, and with which, I do not doubt, a great many, or even the vast majority, leave it. For my own part, I am free to own that it was not any of the above attractions of the Puget Sound country that induced me to pay it a visit, but the desire—a very natural one, it will be admitted, in an individual the best part of whose life has been devoted to forestry and gardening—to find out the nature of the flora of a country which, so far as known to me, has been hardly begun to be explored in this particular direction.

My explorations, so far, have been but limited, owing to the short time available to me, but I have seen more than enough to satisfy me that even in the immediate neighborhood of the city of Seattle there is sufficient material for a skilled botanist to build up a world-wide reputation by the discovery and classification of plants hitherto unknown and unnamed; and that, moreover, the residents of the city have at their hand an abundant supply of the best possible description of trees, shrubs and flowers for beautifying their grounds, gardens and lawns in a manner which would rival, if not excel, the grandest efforts of the most skillful landscape gardeners in countries claiming to be more highly favored by climatic conditions.

In proof of what I assert I have made a few hurried notes of what I noticed during a stroll along the shore of Lake Washington, premising my transcription of them for the readers of the Press-Times, with the statement that I have merely skimmed the surface, so to speak, of the marvelous vegetable wealth of that beautiful region, and that I hope, hereafter, to go more minutely and carefully into the search for and description of the flora that grow so abundantly by the shore of that truly magnificent sheet of water.

There is quite a large and diversified range of flora in the region referred to, some of them, I presume, peculiar to the district. One has only to take a stroll on the heights overlooking the lake, and in fact, need scarcely leave the walks and trails, to find species and specimens sufficient to convince him that he is in a new country.

First of all come the conifers—the cedars, abies and picea—most of which have been introduced to the older states for forestry as well as for landscape and ornamental effects. One of the grandest species, the picea mertensiana, which grows side by side with the Douglas spruce and rivals it in its proportions, but which has a much more graceful habit, finer foliage and drooping extremities, has not yet been recognized as it deserves for ornamental purposes. Planted singly on a lawn, with room for its natural development, it would make a grand specimen.

Of deciduous trees and shrubs there are also great variety: Ash, elm, alder, elder, willow, cherry, poplar, dogwood, hazel, mock-orange, maples, and several others. Most of those are indigenous to the whole of the Northern states, being generally found along the water courses, but not in the forest proper as they grow here, nor do they grow with such luxuriance. Of the elder, sambucus niger, I measured some leaves a foot across.

The rose family is well represented by two species of rosa (the rose proper,) two or three species of spiræa, the bridal wreath genus, three of rubus, the blackberry cousin, and a prunus, the plum relative. Of these the spiræa is most appreciated and valued as a hardy flowering shrub, and deservedly so, for it is a beautiful sight when in full flower, mostly in graceful, drooping racemes. There is also an herbaceous member of the rose family, geum or avens, some of which are highly prized for garden culture.

There is an arbutus, a splendid shrub with glossy, dentate leaves, as large as a magnolia grandiflora.

The vaccinium has two or three members present, very pretty and berberis glumacea, or mohonia nervosa, with its shining compound leaves and clusters of berries, is a botanical gem. Of the saxifraga family we find two ribes—wild current and gooseberry, and an herbaceous member of the order, resembling tellima, but with deeply fringed petals, a very pretty perennial and worthy of a place in any garden.

Of the onagraceæ, or evening primrose family, there is one exponent, somewhat like both the clarkia and the epilobium, a handsome erect perennial with deep red flower and very dark green lanceolate leaves. There is also the trillium, of which this is a description: The stem has three leaves, the calyx three sepals, the corolla three petals; there are three stamens and the pistil has three styles.

Of the cryptogamia we have in ferns the pteris aquilina or common bracken, six feet high; trichomanes aculeatum, the prickly tree fern; nephrodium filix-mas, the male fern; polypodium vulgare, the common polypody, and an asplenium, one of the spleenworts.

Equisetum sylvaticum, also a cryptogam, commonly called the horse-tail, grows in great profusion and is a very interesting subject, being the only genus of a class.

The stems or shoots are of three kinds, white fertile, green fertile, and sterile. The leaves are arranged in verticels or whorls, springing from toothed sheaths at the nodes or joints, drooping gracefully like green hair, hence the name. The spores are produced on the summit of the fertile shoots and are covered by scales, to which they adhere till ready to perform the functions of reproduction.

A quantity of silica is deposited in the stems, especially in the furrowed bark, which is on this account very gritty and is used for fine polishing under the name of "Dutch rushes." The geological fossil known as calamites are the fossil stems of equisetaceæ.

These are a few of the members of the great vegetable kingdom which confront us on all sides within half an hour's walk of the city. There is little doubt but that there are many botanical specimens on the hillsides and valleys of the state that have never been discovered, for since it was 20 years after the settlement of California before the mammoth sequoias were discovered, it is a safe presumption that a soil and climate so eminently congenial to plant life and production as this is, will yet furnish new specimens and genera to the already extensive flora of the state.

In aquatic, sub-aquatic, and especially in alpine plants, whose habitats are getting more accessible year after year to the collector, there is every reason to believe that the field of discovery has not yet been nearly exhausted.

After the bridal party partook of a sumptuous banquet, a younger brother of the bride got up, and said solemnly, raising his glass:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I have to propose a toast, which, however, must be drunk standing. Please take your glasses and rise up."

The guests, although somewhat bewildered, did so.

"Now," said the young scapegrace, "if you will remain standing for a few minutes, I'll find who has been sitting on my new stove-pipe hat."

Real Estate as an Investment.

General Butler is a man worth millions of dollars. He is a shrewd business man, and no matter how people may differ with him in other matters, no one questions his ability in financial affairs. It is partly because of his standing as a man of business, but largely also because of the merit of the views expressed, that the following letter is printed. It is General Butler's advice to a young man: "All the improved real estate in Boston, as a rule, has paid its interest and taxes and quadrupled in value during the past fifty years, while during the same period 90 per cent. of all the merchants and traders in that city have failed, and 90 per cent. of all business corporations have either done likewise or gone out of business, so that their stock has been wiped out.

"In view of these facts, I think it may be unhesitatingly asserted that nothing else is so safe an investment for small savings as improved real estate Nothing is likely to grow in value faster.

"You had therefore better buy a piece of real estate, however small, that is paying rent. Pay in cash what little money you have, and then give your notes secured by mortgage on the property for the balance in small sums falling due on short intervals, and then use all your extra income from the rent of your property in paying them off. You never incur any risk in discounting your notes and when your friends find that you are placing your money where it is perfectly secure they will be glad to assist you if those notes should come due a little too rapidly. Thus in a short time, and almost before you know it, you will have a considerable and perfectly safe investment.

The Man With a Home of His Own.

The developments in the real estate business of our American cities are attended with some very interesting and significant facts, which perhaps have not escaped the philosophical thoughts of many of the readers of to-day. The cutting up of large bodies of land long held by individuals or corporations, and putting the divided areas in the possession of thousands of others, certainly constitutes a very important feature in the building of a nation, and in the prosperity and stability of society in particular, says the West Coast Trade.

Every man who obtains ownership in a piece of land—however small his lot may be—becomes doubly identified with the interests of his country. Under ordinary circumstances, the laboring man or mechanic, without a home of his own, does not feel that sense of responsibility or fixedness in habitation which inspires one who is the possessor of a house of his own—a home to bless and defend. The floating, transient and roaming population look around and see—or believe they see (which is the same thing)—that a few individuals possess the earth, and they, the renters, are not only indifferent to the financial and social fate of the rest of the world, or to that of the land owners, but they furthermore feel free and ready and willing to "pull up" at a moment's notice, pay their rent and then leave for any other locality which may possibly offer the homeless more inducements in the matter of labor and expenditures. The community losing such men is usually the sufferer in some way.

But let a man once become possessed of his own home, he feels tied to the country and the people around. The bonds that then bind him to his habitation have a touch of the "divine right" about them; the man then has a broader and deeper interest in society and in the matter of property itself. He has no longer any taint of communism in his nature. He does not feel like an outlaw, denied any heritage in the earth. He has something to live for and something to defend. He has a refuge which may be wholly his own—from which he can defy the world itself.

The man with a home of his own has one spot from which he can not be driven, if he support and obey his country's laws, and keep debts paid. He then feels himself to be in league with the very law itself—in league with society, too, for the law and society both stand ready to defend him in his castle, if he has not forfeited the claim upon them by failure to discharge his duty. If that duty has been performed, the individual can defy the world from his home.

Few men ever forget their sensations when first acquiring in their own name a right to landed property. It is a proud and buoyant feeling to know that one is possessed, in his own right, of a genuine foothold on God's earth—that one is a personal owner of a bit of God's creation, an area from which the owner can exclude all the rest of the world if it is necessary for his happiness—where none can molest or make afraid except at the penalty imposed by the very state itself.

Next to a good, loving, true-hearted woman, the best thing on earth which a man can possess is a home of his own. The writer would certainly advise every young man to look forward to the time when he can, through habits economy and industry, lay by enough money to purchase a lot or a parcel of land, if not a home already built. The ownership of real estate constitutes the highest feature of true citizenship, and a home purchased with money acquired by one's own genius or industry will always be more highly prized than any mere heritage or gift of ancestry.

There's Money in Them,

AND BIG MONEY, TOO.

Buy Lots, Singly or in Blocks, in the

Southern Addition

TO

PORT CRESCENT,

WHILE the present schedule of prices is in force. Get in in time, and get the full benefit of the advances in values that are inevitable. We can sell you

LOTS IN THE SOUTHERN ADDITION FROM $40 UPWARD

AND there is no property to be had in PORT CRESCENT, to-day, that commends itself to investors with greater force than the property in this advantageously located addition, and none that will make purchasers more money, or make it more quickly.

The Depot and Station Yards of the Northern Pacific R. R. Co.

WILL be located in the very heart of the SOUTHERN ADDITION. It will be traversed in its entire width by the line of the Northern Pacific R. R., and is the only addition to Port Crescent through which the Railroad will pass. Railroad Avenue is destined to be a great, busy thoroughfare, and property on and adjacent to this avenue must attain great value. The PORT CRESCENT MILL COMPANY'S Saw and Shingle Mill is located near the center of this addition; through which the County Road and the road to Lake Crescent also pass. It is directly in the line of the city's development, and will enjoy a growth in values which will not be exceeded, if equaled, by property in any other portion of the city.

WE CAN POINT YOU TO BARGAINS

IN THE SOUTHERN ADDITION that you can scarcely afford to ignore, unless you are out here strictly for your health, and don't care to make money. If you are living at long range, however, and can't study the situation here on the ground, but want full detailed information about this property, don't hesitate to ask for it. That's what we are here for—to serve you as you wish. Just tell us what you want, and you'll get it, and get it right away.

IF YOU CAN'T handle as much of this property as you may desire, with your own means alone—it dont require a great deal of capital, though, to handle a good block of it—pool issues with your friends,

Organize - a - Syndicate,

AND BY COMBINING CAPITAL, control such property as you want. Barrels of money have been made in Washington realty by well-managed syndicates, large and small. Try a syndicate venture, and pave the way to large results. Excellent property can be had in the Southern Addition for from $40, $45, $50, $55, $60, $65, $70, $75, $80, $85, $90, $95, $100 to $250 and upwards.

YOU ARE SURE to find something to please you, and afford you a good investment. We will be glad to show you locations—money making buys—or to send you maps and prices, and all the information you want.

Lots in the New Saw Mill Addition

ARE GOING RAPIDLY. If you want to get in in season on a good thing, you'll find it good policy to act quickly with reference to these lots. We are agents for the property, and will show you around, or tell you anything you want to know about property and values in this front-rank addition.

WE GIVE SPECIAL ATTENTION TO THE MAKING AND HANDLING OF INVESTMENTS FOR NON-RESIDENT INVESTORS.

FOR SALE.

A BIG BARGAIN.

TWENTY-FIVE ACRES of splendidly located level land, 7¼ miles from Whatcom, the terminus of the Great Northern Railroad. This property is but ¼ of a mile from a Plank Road on one side, and ½ mile from the county road, on the other side. It is but 1¾ miles from the Noosack river; boats run by it regularly, and there is a good wagon road from the land to the river. There is one school house ½ mile from the place, and another one, within a distance of ¾ of a mile. The surrounding country is all thickly settled up, and land in that vicinity is all very valuable. This land will be sold for

$50 AN ACRE,

And is to-day the cheapest property in the vicinity of either Whatcomb or Fairhaven. The land has all been cleared of timber.

TERMS OF SALE—$100 cash, and the balance in easy payments; deferred payments to bear interest at ten per cent. per annum. For full information regarding this prime buy, apply to,
