BETRAYING THE PEOPLE

For the Protection and Benefit of the Burlingame Company and Its Allies.

AN OUTRAGE UPON THE TAX-PAYERS

The Commissioners, for a Reason Satisfactory at Least to Themselves, Are Determined to Clear the Timber from the Burlingame Company's Road, at the Expense of the People—The Peremptory Written Command That Has Been Issued to the Various Road Supervisors, That Ineffaceably Brands the Commissioners as Traitors to Their Public Trust.

IF ANYTHING further was needed to convince the tax-payers of the county that a deliberate, wholesale swindle is being perpetrated upon them, in the manner in which the building of the new county road has been and is being manipulated in the interests of the contractors, the Burlingame Company, it would be found in the appended letter, in which the County Commissioners command Road Supervisor August Petterson "to IMMEDIATELY proceed to clear the timber" from what they are pleased to call "the new county Road," but which, according to their own assertions, is still the Burlingame Company's road, and for the condition of which the Burlingame Company is still responsible.

A similar letter has been sent to every Supervisor in the county, through whose district any portion of the partially-completed new road passes. A verbal order, to the same effect, was "grape-vined" to the same officials about three weeks ago. The LEADER cautioned the Supervisors against acting upon this verbal order, urging them to not touch a stick of timber upon Burlingame's road until the Commissioners had given them written instructions to do so; for if they did, they were apt to find themselves, at the wind-up of the work, "holding the bag" for the expense incurred in doing that illegal work. The warning was heeded, and not an axe or a saw or a peevie was put to the timber with which the storm had littered the uncompleted and unaccepted road.

The Commissioners waited and chafed and chafed and waited, for the Supervisors to begin work. But not a man lifted a hand to carry out the outrageous order they had cowardly given by word of mouth, fearing to put themselves on record, in writing.

But something had to be done. They had betrayed the interests of the people who placed them in office; they were determined to save Burlingame from the expense of clearing the road from that timber, and so, smoked out of their hole by the defiant stand taken by the Supervisors, they were finally compelled to show their hand in a way that the people can understand. Here is the letter that brands them as traitors to the people whose interests they have sworn to serve; that brands them as servitors of Burlingame's interests:

AUDITOR'S OFFICE,
PORT ANGELES, WASH., DEC. 30th, 1891.

August Petterson, Esq., Road Supervisor District No. 12:

DEAR SIR:—You are hereby notified to IMMEDIATELY proceed to clear the timber from the new county road, clearing it out entirely between the ditches, but nothing more. Your attention is called to the fact that the law imposes a fine of $200 for your failure to comply with this order. Take due notice thereof.

By order of the Board of Commissioners, Clallam County, Washington.

B. JOHN BAKER, Auditor.

BY W. R. HOOLE, Deputy.

What do the tax-payers think of that order?

The word "immediately" in the order is heavily underscored, and the Supervisors are threatened with a fine of $200 if they do not at once get out and obey this peremptory command.

Why this mad haste to perform this dishonest, illegal work? Why not, at least, let it go until spring? The road is of no use to any one, and is liable to be again filled up with timber, before settled weather.

Wouldn't it seem that, instead of Burlingame being under contract to the Commissioners to build the county road, that it was the Commissioners who were under contract to Burlingame to do that work?

The Lake Road Again Open.

The task of re-opening the road to Lake Crescent was completed Tuesday; and a big and laborious one it was. In some places, a regular jam of logs blockaded the roadway, towering high in the air and presenting a most forbidding aspect to the men who had volunteered to cut their way through them. The great trees lay in every conceivable position, some having fallen lengthwise in the road; others straight across it, and others again spanning it diagonally, making an immense criss-cross pile, most difficult to successfully manage; and this difficulty was greatly increased by the large quantities of boughs and limbs that "filled in" the jam, the boughs being both annoying and confusing, and the limbs, often driven deep into the soft earth, serving to anchor the logs in their eccentric positions.

The trees were piled so high, one upon the other, in stretches, that it was frequently next to impossible to find a place to dispose of the logs that had to be rolled out.

In one instance, where a tree-jam like this had to be cut through, the road now passes between a wall of logs twenty feet high.

The labor necessary to re-open the road was contributed by some of the settlers on the Lake; some of those in the Solduck; some of the settlers between here and the Lake, and the business men of Port Crescent. Had all of those directly interested in the matter of again getting the road in usable condition, put their shoulders to the task, the burden of work would have fallen more lightly upon those who saw the undertaking through. But, unfortunately, considerable "soldiering" was done.

A Magnificent Number of the Century.

A portrait of Gounod, the celebrated French composer, forms the frontispiece of the January Century, and along with the portrait is a charming paper of reminiscence of the early life of the musician. His experience as a student of music in Rome, and his later acquaintance with Mendelssohn, are delightfully narrated. This paper by Gounod is one of a musical series which will make the Century especially attractive to lovers of music during the coming year.

The first of the series on "The Jews in New York," by the Rev. Dr. Wheatley, is given with numerous illustrations, and there also appears a brief article on "The Jewish Question" in general, treated from a very lofty point of view by an anonymous writer, who uses the signature "Josephus."

Another timely subject is treated in an essay by Mr. J. R. Dodge, of the Agricultural Department, on "The Discontent of the Farmer," in which an attempt is made to give the various causes which have led to the more recent exhibitions of discontent. Mr. Dodge also briefly gives reasons why this discontent has diminished, and puts forth some optimistic views on the general subject.

The "feature" of this number is an article by Capt. E. S. Godfrey, one of General Custer's troop commanders, on the massacre of the Little Big Horn, "Custer's Last Battle." Capt. Godfrey advances a new and conclusive theory with regard to Gen. Custer's movements, which is based upon his own knowledge at the time, and also upon information derived directly from the chiefs who led the attack. Capt. Godfrey's article is followed by a critical review of the events of the campaign by Gen. James G. Fry.

The Kipling-Balestier very original novel, "The Naulahka" is continued, and the second instalment is given of Dr. Weir Mitchell's "Characteristics." The shorter stories are Viola Roseboro's "Bentley's System," with Gibson's pictures, and a story by the author of "Two Runaways" (Harry Stillwell Edwards), called "A Battle in Crackerdom," with pictures by Kemble.

Dr. J. M. Buckley, editor of "The Christian Advocate," prints a very full and interesting essay on the subject of "Witchcraft" in general, and the Salem witchcraft in particular, in which he makes the startling statement that "witchcraft is, at the present time, believed in by the majority of citizens of the United States."

Cole's "Old Masters" series is continued, with some fine examples of Andrea Del Sarto's work.

The poetry of the January Century is unusually interesting, Mr. Aldrich contributing five short poems in a group entitled "Interludes," and a great variety of poems appearing in the body of the magazine and "In Lighter Vein," one of these being a New Year's Eve piece by Alice Williams Brotherton.

In the series of pictures by American artists, a full-page reproduction of a painting entitled "Dolce Far Niente," by Will H. Low, is given. Mention also should be made of an illustrated article on "The Alligator Hunters of Louisiana."

In the "Topics of the Time," two editorials appear in the series on "Cheap Money" movements, one describing "Alabama's Thousand-dollar-a-day Blunder," and the other telling of the "Mississippi Crop-Moving Currency." Other articles in "Topics of the Time" and "Open Letters" are on "The Progressive Discovery of America," "Attacks Upon Public Parks," "M. Gounod and his Ideals" and "The Camp Morton Controversy."

If This Concerns You, Give it Immediate Attention.

The subjoined letter, which was received by the LEADER, a few days ago, from Mr. S. G. Yerkes, the Port Townsend Agent of the Northern Pacific R. R., will be of direct interest to a number of experienced hunters and guides in this vicinity:

OFFICE OF THE
NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY,
PORT TOWNSEND, WASH., DEC. 29th, 1891.

Editor Leader, Port Crescent, Washington:

DEAR SIR:—The passenger department of this Company is preparing a pamphlet devoted to the hunting and fishing interests along and tributary to its line, to be issued soon, and it is desired of you to give all the information possible relative to reliable sportsmen in your vicinity, as to whom are capable and willing to act as guides for tourists who may visit your place, desiring to spend a little time hunting and fishing.

I shall consider it a great favor if you will kindly write me fully on the subject, giving the names and addresses of all such parties in your neighborhood, stating what charge they would make for their own services, with an equipment, such as horses, tents, etc.; also without equipment, and any other information that may be useful. Also state what they will charge per day and per week. An early reply will greatly oblige,

Yours Truly,
S. G. YERKES,
Agent.

The matter to which Mr. Yerkes thus directs attention is an important one, and the LEADER desires to furnish him the fullest possible information on the subject in hand. The country adjacent to Port Crescent comprises one of the finest hunting and fishing resorts on this continent—one of the few resorts, in fact, in which elk can be found in easily accessible localities; and so, Port Crescent should be properly represented in the publication soon to be issued by the Northern Pacific Company, for the benefit and guidance of sportsmen seeking attractive localities in which to hunt and fish. All sportsmen in this vicinity who are willing to perform the services indicated by Mr. Yerkes, should prepare schedules of charges, at once, and send them in to the LEADER. We will see to it that they reach Mr. Yerkes promptly, with such other information as it is important that he should possess, touching the attractions of this section, to sportsmen.

A LITTLE BOUQUET FROM FORKS,

In Which the Commissioners and the Tribune Will Find No Flowers of Consolation.

The following report of an indignation meeting held at Forks, was received by the LEADER, Tuesday. In a spirit of irony that the public will vastly appreciate, the report was written on the back of ballots used at the county road bond election, a year ago!

FORKS, WASH., Dec. 30th, 1891.

At a meeting called to discuss county road matters, at which Mr. L. M. Ford presided, the following resolutions were passed:

We, the citizens of Forks and vicinity, in mass meeting assembled, have passed the following resolutions, viz:

Resolved, That we, as citizens of Clallam county, disapprove of and protest against the manner in which the Burlingame Company is building the county road.

Resolved, That we object to the County Commissioners paying for the same, or for any part of the contract, until the road is completed according to specifications.

Resolved, That we object to the citizens clearing off the timber from the right of way of said road.

It was further resolved that the action of the Citizens' Protective League of Port Crescent be endorsed.

It was ordered that a copy of the report of these proceedings be furnished the LEADER of Port Crescent and the Democrat of Port Angeles.

L. M. FORD, Chairman.
J. E. CRAWFORD, Secretary.

Off for an Elk Hunt.

Messrs. George C. Icke, Edward Worthylake, Ernest and Henry Bœhrig and Frank Austin started out for an elk hunt, Monday. They will establish a camp up on the Solduck, above the Hot Springs, from which forays will be made into the localities through which the elk are now ranging.

CAPTAIN MORGAN, who for years ran the old Evangel, and also the Dispatch, on this route, and who is known from Port Townsend to Cape Flattery as the great "accommodation Captain," went through to Neah Bay on the Hermosa, Monday. He was just taking a pleasure trip, and renewing his acquaintance with his old friends along the route.

MR. F. C. DRUM, who was in from Indian Valley, Sunday, says that the recent big windstorm laid down hundreds of acres of fine timber, in his locality. In some instances, not a tree has been left standing, in stretches a half mile in length.

A PLEASING PROPHECY,

Touching the Future of the Richly-Endowed Olympic Peninsula.

A MAGNIFICENT DAIRY COUNTRY,

In Which the Butter and Cheese-Making Industries Can be Carried on on a Mammoth Scale, Under Conditions so Singularly Favorable as to Insure the Realization of the Largest Possible Profits—Climatic Peculiarities of the Greatest Economic Value to Dairymen and Stock-Growers, That Those Interested Cannot Afford to Ignore—The Expensive Folly of Sending Abroad for Food Products That We Can Produce in Abundance and Perfection at Home—Why Some Men Fail to Make the Poultry Business Profitable.

"LET ME MAKE a prophecy," said a recent visitor to Port Crescent—a gentleman of intelligence, wealth and information; one who has traveled extensively, both in this country and abroad, and who, having resided on this coast for years, and having made important investments in Western Washington, has taken the trouble to acquaint himself with the peculiar advantages of every section of the state—"as to the future of this particular portion of Washington. The time is coming, and I don't believe it's far away, when the western slope of the Olympic peninsula, from Port Crescent, and for miles east of here, southwestward to Gray's Harbor, will be known as the greatest dairy country on this continent; that a great dairying interest will spring up here, and that Olympic peninsula butter and cheese will become famous all over the Pacific coast, and possibly far beyond."

"On what do you base this pleasing prophecy?" asked the LEADER.

"On the fact that this peninsula is, by reason of its natural endowments, the finest dairy country on this continent; that here, all the conditions necessary to make dairying profitable, in the highest degree, exist in perfection. Let me call your attention to a few facts, which you, and every one who knows anything about this section of the state, know to be true. Washed by the waters of the Pacific ocean and the Strait of Fuca, as the ocean slope of this peninsula is, and with a background of majestic montains, that admirably perform the work of condensing the vapors arising from the sea, that are carried within the area of their "influence" by the atmosphereic currents, the rainfall here is always, and must always continue to be, abundant. Nature has so decreed it; and such a thing as a drought is absolutely impossible here. You will always have plenty of rain, and consequently, all sorts of vegetation will prosper, especially grass.

"The soil throughout this whole peninsula, from well up on the foothills to the coast, is rich. Much of it—hundreds of thousands of acres of it, as I personally know—is as good as the best land in the Puyallup or White River valleys. The formation is the same, and the day is coming when an acre of the deep, fertile, inexhaustible soil, so abundant between here and Gray's Harbor, will be worth as much, for agricultural or dairying purposes, as the Puyallup lands. This will be a great hop, as well as a great dairy and stock country. With good land, that produces all the nutritious grasses most luxuriantly; with an abundance of rain to nourish them, and plenty of running water everywhere, perfect pasturage can be had—not for a few months in the year, but for eleven months out of the twelve. Grass remains green and sweet all the year round, and is available for pasturage, at all times, save when covered with snow; and it is a rare thing for the fields to be covered with snow for more than four weeks in a year.

"The climate, owing to the genial influence of the Japan current, is so mild and kind that the question of "wintering stock" can never be a serious or expensive one. Stock will thrive out of doors, all the year round, and very little winter feeding will be required. In fact, you can turn a bunch of steers out in the woods in the fall, and without any sort of care from you, they will not only get their living off of the natural forage, but will turn up in fine condition in the spring. I mention this merely to remind you that the climate here is so mild that stock can be successfully "wintered out" without any care whatever.

"With unfailing pasturage eleven months in the year; with a soil that produces the finest grasses—and notably blue grass, red-top clover and alfalfa—in perfection; with an abunhance of running water, and an ideal, all-the-year-around climate for stock—why should this not become a great dairy country? Where can dairying be carried on more economically and sucessfully than here? Where can it be carried on with less work and less worry and less expense to those engaged in it—for mind you, keeping up stock during severe winter weather, and feeding and caring for animals under cover for long weeks and sometimes months, is a heavy drain not only upon the purse, but upon the time, energy and industry of the owners of the stock; and all that sort of thing cuts down the profits of dairying. Here, the business can be carried on on the most satisfactory basis, economical not only of means but time, and the largest possible profits of the industry realized. After you get a railroad through the peninsula, from here to Gray's Harbor, the question of "getting to market" with the products of the dairy and the farm will have been happily solved; and when this railroad ontlet is afforded, I expect to see this country develop, and develop rapidly and prosperously, on the lines I have indicated. This will always be a great agricultural country; it will be a great hop country; but it also be a great dairy country, and I would not be surprised to see many comfortable fortunes built up here, with rolls of golden butter as their bases; for as I said at the outset, this is the finest dairy country on this continent, and its advantages will be utilized by the butter and cheese makers, as soon as a proper outlet to market is afforded. We are now importing hundreds of tons of California, and even Eastern butter, to Washington every year. There is no earthly reason why we should do this, save that Washington is still very young, and we have not yet prepared to supply our people with our own staple products. But we are developing rapidly, and this condition of affairs will be remedied in a few years."

This matter of producing here at home the food necessary to "feed ourselves," in so far as we are albe to produce it, is beginning to attract the attention it deserves at the hands of the press. It is a matter that concerns the prosperity of every resident of Washington, for it must be patent to every thinking person that we are not bettering our own condition, or enriching ourselves, by sending hundreds of thousands of dollars out of the state, every year—and sending them out to stay—for food that can be produced here in abundance and perfection. Referring to this subject in a recent issue, the Seattle Telegraph forcibly says, editorially:

"Thousands of dollars are being sent out of this state every year for produce that could as well as not be raised at home. This constant drain of money is not felt so much in time of great prosperity, but when things begin to tighten up a little, it makes a very great difference to business in general by reducing the amount of money in local circulation. Every dollar, or nearly every dollar, that the cities pay out for produce to farmers in the state finds its way back into the cities again; but the money sent to Oregon and Calfornia for produce never returns to our merchant's tills. Prices of produce have, generally speaking, been low this year. They are improving and will continue to improve; but low as they were, they were not below the line of profit. Some lines kept at a top price. Eggs and butter, for example, always bring a figure which pays well for their production. To-day butter from Minnesota and eggs from Iowa are sold in our groceries. It is a fact which cannot be successfully disputed that both these articles can be produced here just as cheaply as in the states mentioned. Butter at from 30 to 40 cents per pound and eggs at from 35 to 50 cents per dozen are as profitable produce as any farmer can desire to raise. The question of butter supply is well worth close consideration by farmers generally. An investment of a few thousand dollars in a butter factory would be found to realize a handsome profit. Possibly near the cities the supply of cream would not be steady enough, owing to the sale of milk; but there must be many localities in the state where sufficient cattle are kept to keep a factory well supplied. Any point where the milk of three hundred cows could be collected within a radius of from six to eight miles, would be suitable for a butter factory. The building and plant could be supplied for $2,500 or $3,000. Factory-made butter always commands a ready sale, and contracts could be made in this state for the output of as many factories as the cows of the state could supply. In some localities in the East, co-operative dairies have been established, each farmer taking stock in proportion to the number of gallons of milk supplied. These are found to pay very well. They meet the objection often raised by home butter-makers, that it entails too much labor on the women of the family, and that wages are too high to warrant the employment of help for the purpose. We commend the idea to our country readers. They will find it well worth very close examination."

"Is there any reason why chickens cannot be brought to as fine a stage of perfection in the Northwest as in the East?" was asked of Colonel Green, the Seattle commission merchant, by a representative of the Press-Times.

"None whatever," was the reply.

"Why is it not done?"

"Because there are too many amateurs at the business," was the reply. "The great trouble in this country is that poultry raisers overstock their acreage and do not allow the fowls sufficient run to keep them in good condition. Chickens should be compelled to earn half their own living by scratching, and anyone having sufficient acreage should put it under cultivation, so that they could raise enough grain for their stock without depending upon the markets for it. To any person having a knowledge of the business, who will give it a proper amount of attention, there is money in raising chickens. Poultrymen should understand how to take care of their stock and prevent sickness, and to cure it should it occur. A great many failures are due to the fact that people have the idea that chickens do not require any more attention than a field of grain.

"Heretofore the question of food has been the chief stumbling block to the poultry raisers, as it costs a good deal to purchase grain and haul it to the ranches. Now, however, there need be but little feared on this, score as the shipping facilities have been vastly improved, and grain can be secured at reasonable rates. Chickens should always be kept dry and their coops should be kept clean, and if this is done there is no reason why our poultry should not rival, if not excel, the eastern production. This country is favorable to the business, owing to the equitable climate, which is in sharp contrast with the cold of the eastern and Mississippi valley states. It is a business that requires more common sense than capital.

"Fresh ranch eggs are usually a scarce commodity in our markets, for the reason that there are but few people in the immediate vicinity of Seattle who are successful at the business. Fresh eggs sell the year round for never less than 25 cents per dozen, and sometimes they are double that price. It seems strange that eastern people can raise chickens and sell both the meat and the eggs for half the price we get, and still make money in the business. If they can ship these products 2,000 or 3,000 miles, pay the freight charges and then make a profit upon them, it looks as if it should be a good business to be taken up here. The outlook is that the market will never be overstocked within the next five or six years. A chicken does not eat much, if fed the right kind of food. It should be the best, and the chicken should be of the best breed. The best breeds, if proper care is taken of them, will yield much larger returns than the more common grades."

A Delightful Number of St. Nicholas.

The January St. Nicholas begins with a charming frontispiece described by a no less excellent poem written by Helen Gray Cone: "The Little Maid of Spain"—a little lady, every inch of her. The number, by the way, is rich in verse, as there are poems by Celia Thaxter, Edith M. Thomas, Anna M. Pratt, Mrs. Bumstead, Jack Bennett, and others. The "Admiral's Caravan" is continued, and should be quite as popular as the same author's "Davy and the Goblin," being equally clever and even more humorous. Another excellent serial is Lieutenant Fletcher's "Two Girls and a Boy," a successful attempt to write for young readers what is known as a "story of character." A long "short" story which girls especially will enjoy is Mary Davey's "The Pink Gown," supposed to be told by a good old grandmother who has long since repented the little fit of vanity and extravagance of which the pink gown was the comparatively harmless outcome. Birch illustrates the story very appropriately. Eliza Ruhamah Scidmore, so favorably known as a writer on Japanese subjects, tells of "Two Queer Cousins of the Crab"—namely, the giant crab, familiar to readers of "Allan Quatermain," and the little mask-crab that carries the impress of a human face upon its shell.

Perhaps the most attractive article in this most attractive number is Mrs. Richard's account of the childhood of her sisters, her brother and herself, called, "When I Was Your Age." In reading of their healthful, ennobling bringing up, one cannot wonder at the subsequent success of the Howe family in all its undertakings.

Joseph Jefferson introduces to the St. Nicholas public some clever silhouettes by Katherine Robertson, whom he gladly claims as a protegee because he presented to the artist her first pair of scissors! He is justly proud of this patronage of art.

There are, besides, Brander Matthews' serial, which will earn its own praise from young folk, and the cheerful and inspiring departments, pictures, and other attractive features which your boys and girls will no doubt bring to your attention, providing you take St. Nicholas—as, no doubt, you do.

SETTLERS living at a distance—at any of the various points west of Port Crescent—can have their papers, giving the Land Office notice of their intention

TO MAKE FINAL PROOF,

Made out and forwarded to Register Reed, by sending the editor of the LEADER their filing papers, containing the number and description of their claims, the names and places of residence of their witnesses and the date on which they desire to prove up. All filing papers so sent in, will be returned to their owners by the first mail after their receipt, with the required final proof blanks properly filled out and ready for the signatures of claimants. After being signed and returned to the LEADER, they will be at once sent in to the Land Office at Seattle, and a notice for publication will be issued within a few days.

Editor Ulmer will have to furnish his organ with a new set of airs. The old ones are played out.

The advance zephyrs of a political cyclone are beginning to toy with Commissioner Gray's luxuriant whiskers.

It would be interesting to know, now, wouldn't it, just what sort of New Year's gifts Burley gave the Commissioners?

Five thousand one hundred and thirteen acres were planted to hops in this state the past year, which yielded 8,113,280 pounds.

There will be no war with Chile. President Montt's new cabinet wants peace—peace with honor; and the way to the obtainment of what is desired is now being cleared.

Governor Humphrey of Kansas has appointed Ex-Congressman B. W. Perkins to fill the vacancy in the United States Senate caused by the lamented death of Senator Plumb.

Commissioner Davis is a dandy. He is quoted as saying that "the people have no business to kick about the new county road. If there is any kicking to be done, the Commissioners will do it."

Mr. Davis is a church-going man, and this is his religion-tempered way of saying "the people be damned."

Jerry Simpson, the sockless Kansan, has shuffled off his jeans trousers, combed the hayseed from his hair, donned genuine silk hose that were presented to him, and has indeed become a congressional dandy, who can shine now with any of the swell members. His clothes are now of the latest cut, his hat the latest shape, and his silver-headed cane the newest there is.

Jerry has indeed been led astray by his wicked colleagues. To add to his other stylish acts that would make his constituency blush, Jerry has purchased a bicycle, and can be seen chasing over Washington's smooth pavements every afternoon. In his jaunty little cap and bicycle suit, not even the most intimate constituent would recognize him.

But Jerry will not go home that way. He has his old suit and hat packed carefully away.

The editor of the Port Angeles Tribune, the officially designated mouth-organ of the County Commissioners, affects to believe that "the people" are not much interested in the county road swindle, after all; that they don't care, particularly, whether they get anything for their $100,000 or not; that they rather enjoy being robbed by a rascally contractor, with the kind permission of a faithless Board of Commissioners; that they are not unreasonable enough to expect to get value received for their money; that they are happy at having the chance to shoulder a heavy load of taxation, in order that Burlingame and his friends may be enriched at their expense; that, in short, the LEADER is endeavoring to create the belief that the people throughout the county are greatly dissatisfied over the manner in which the county road has thus far been built, and amazed and indignant at the attitude of the Commissioners, in permitting the perpetration of this outrageous fake upon the public, when in fact the people are delighted to know that they have been and are being so successfully bunkoed in this road business. The Tribune also intimates that the LEADER is guilty of an impertinent assumption when it claims to speak for "the people," for it doesn't believe that the people are kicking about the road at all; but on the contrary, that they are satisfied and happy.

If the editor of the Tribune would get out from under the shadow of the Commissioners' office long enough to mingle and talk with "the people" whom he thinks haven't sense enough to know when they are being robbed, he would speedily find how sadly he misunderstands and underrates their attitude toward this county road brace game. He would find, too, that he can't blind the eyes of the people with the inconsequential drivel with which he has been attempting to defend the Commissioners, since their action in this road business has provoked public comment. He can't sneer cold facts out of the public mind; and he can't justify the reprehensible conduct of the officials whom he seeks to defend, by airily assuming that "the people" are not kicking about the county road.

If the Tribune's editor could spend an hour looking over the LEADER's mail from all parts of the county, bearing on this subject, he would speedily abandon his silly position. The people are kicking about this county road swindle, and kicking with both feet; and not the people of one locality, either, but of every section and every community in Clallam county. For the benefit and enlightenment of the Tribune solely, the LEADER takes the liberty of presenting the two letters appended—one from the eastern and one from the western end of the county. The are but fair specimens of "the voice of the poeple" that every mail brings to the LEADER.

Says a well-known tax-payer, writing from Rena, on the Dungeness river:

RENA, CLALLAM CO., WASH., December 28th, 1891.

Editor Leader, Port Crescent:

DEAR SIR:—Your article on "A Few Plain Facts," of December 17th, strikes the "key note" and is the talk of this whole neighborhood. We all admire your course. Your description of the road in your section of the county is a good sample of the condition of the road here.

Hoping that you will continue to show up the swindle that is being perpetrated on the citizens of Clallam county, I remain yours

Very Respectfully,

And this one is from Forks, in the western portion of the county. It is from one of the oldest and best-known residents of Clallam—a man who is everywhere honored and respected:

FORKS, WASH., December 28th, 1891.

Mr. M. J. Carrigan, Editor Port Crescent Leader:

DEAR SIR:—Please find enclosed $1.00, in payment for your paper for six months. I think that a newspaper that has the courage to expose and denounce rascally officials, as the LEADER has done, deserves both credit and support.

The people of this section are to hold a meeting here on Wednesday evening, December 30th, to publicly express their sentiments regarding the county road swindle.

Respectfully,

Another claimant for another quarter-section of the holdings of the Everett Land Company has "bobbed up serenely." His name is William Smikes, an aged negro, who for many years past claims to have run a small garden within a few miles of Bothell. Smikes alleges that he settled on the northwest quarter of Section 19, Township 29, in 1864, and that in the early '70's he secured a patent from the United States government for the land in question. He asserts, in the most emphatic terms, that he never parted with his homestead, nor was he ever asked to sell it or deed it away. Nevertheless, the Everett Land Company now holds the deed of the land. The old negro strongly intimates that the suit which he proposes to institute for the recovery of his land, will unearth a sensational case of forgery. The land involved is estimated to be worth, at prevailing prices, over $1,000,000.

Scribner's Magazine.

An Exceptional Year.

THE YEAR 1891 has been marked by a greater advance than any similar period since the Magazine was established. Not only has the literary and artistic excellence been maintained and increased, but a corresponding gain has been made in the sale and influence of the Magazine. At the end of 1891 the circulation has risen to more than 140,000. It may justly be promised that the further improvements for the coming year will be proportionate to these largely increased opportunities.

For Next Year.

It is not possible to give, in a brief space, an account of all the features in preparation, but the material is deficient in neither importance nor range of subject. Among the subjects treated:

The Poor in the World's Great Cities.

It is proposed to publish a series of articles, upon a scale not before attempted, giving the results of special study and work among the poor of the great cities. The plan will include an account of the conditions of life in those cities (in many lands) where the results of research will be helpful for purposes of comparison as well as for their own intrinsic interest. While, from a scientific point of view, the articles will be a contribution of great importance, the treatment will be thoroughly popular, and the elaborate illustrations will serve to make the presentation of the subject vivid as well as picturesque.

Washington Allston.

UNPUBLISHED REMINISCENCES AND LETTERS of this foremost among early American painters. A number of illustrations will lend additional interest to the articles.

Important Moments.

The aim of this series of very short articles is to describe the signal occasions when some decisive event took place, or when some great experiment was first shown to be successful—such moments as that of the first use of the Atlantic cable, the first use of the telegraph and telephone, the first successful experiment with ether, the night of the Chicago fire, the scene at the moment of the vote on the impeachment of Andrew Johnson, etc., etc.

Out of Door Papers.

In the early spring will be begun a number of seasonable articles, among them being:
SMALL COUNTRY PLACES, how to lay out and beautify them, by SAMUEL PARSONS, JR.
FISHING LORE FROM AN ANGLER'S NOTE-BOOK, by DR. LEROY M. YALE.
MOUNTAIN STATION LIFE IN NEW ZEALAND, by SIDNEY DICKINSON.
RACING IN AUSTRALIA, by SIDNEY DICKINSON, with illustrations by BIRGE HARRISON.
The illustrations are made from original material.

so fully and fairly presents the opinions of the leading writers and thinkers on all questions of public interest as THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW. — Boston Journal.

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW

is essential to every American reader who wishes to keep up with the times. The New York Sun says of it: "The NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW constantly offers to the public a programme of writers and topics that excite the reader and gratify the intellectual appetite. In this respect there is no other magazine that approaches the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW."

It is neither a partisan nor a sectarian publication, but in which intelligent readers are interested are promptly discussed in its pages, and facts and arguments are presented with all the ability and logical force of the most eminent writers in the world.

ALL SIDES OF ALL QUESTIONS

Among contributors to early numbers will be

The Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone,

His Eminence, CARDINAL GIBBONS, Hon. DAVID B. HILL, Hon. THOS. B. REED, Hon. R. Q. MILLS, Col. R. G. INGERSOLL, Archdeacon FARRAR, Professor RODOLFO LANCIANI, and other distinguished writers.

The Presidential Campaign.

During the coming year, the REVIEW will be of special interest and value to every American voter, as it will lay before its readers discussions of the important issues of the Presidential campaign by the recognized leaders in the several political parties.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE.

Twenty-Fifth Annual Prospectus.

A QUARTER OF A CENTURY has elapsed since LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE was first presented to the reading public. By adding new and original features it has kept in advance of the times and now occupies a unique position among magazines. It was the first to abandon serial stories, and by publishing a complete novel in each number, the magazine has wonderfully increased its popularity. This popular feature will be continued, and leading American and English authors have been engaged to contribute novels for the ensuing year. The January number will contain a remarkable novel dealing with newspaper life, entitled, "The Passing of Major Kilgore," by YOUNG E. ALLISON, late Managing Editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal. This number will fitly inaugurate The Journalist's Series, which will consist of a number of contributions from prominent newspaper men who will tell their personal experiences, and give glimpses of the editorial sanctums and inner workings of various leading newspapers throughout the country. An insight into the lives of newspaper men at work and at play will be given, and the methods of getting out the great dailies will be illustrated. A series of articles on Athletics will also be commenced in the January number, the initial article being one on "Boxing," by DANIEL L. DAWSON. The articles will be prepared by experts in such sports and exercises as rowing, fencing, base-ball, cricket, walking, swimming, archery, tennis, foot-ball, riding, sailing, golf, la crosse, polo, etc., as well as articles on Physical Training and In-Door Exercises. New Talent will be heartily encouraged as heretofore, and writers from every section of the country will be represented in the pages of Lippincott's during 1892. A series of articles dealing with reminiscences of men famous in our political history, and giving hitherto-unpublished correspondence, will form a feature. Among such articles may be mentioned "Personal Recollections of Abraham Lincoln, Andrew Johnson, John C. Calhoun," etc., the Clay-Randolph Correspondence and Duel, Social Life in Philadelphia during the Administration of John Adams, etc.

MRS. M. E. W. SHERWOOD will contribute a series of papers entitled Collections and Recollections. These will include reminiscences of many famous people in "society," also recollections of the Brook Farm Community, and other interesting data. Leading Actors have been engaged to contribute articles on the modern stage, and an initial paper by E. S. WILLARD, the English actor, will be published in and early forthcoming number. It would be impossible to mention in detail the wealth of material that has been secured for 1892, in the shape of Short Stories, Essays, Sketches, Poems, etc., by well-known writers.

THE BEST OF

CHILDREN'S MAGAZINES.

THE publishers of St. Nicholas, that famous young-folks magazine, are offering to send a sample copy, free of charge, to any father or mother who would like to consider the question of taking a children's magazine during the year to come.

Certainly if that question is up for discussion in any household St. Nicholas will be the magazine selected. From its first number, in 1873, the pens of the greatest writers of the English world, and the pencils of the most famous illustrators, have been at its service. Tennyson, Longfellow, Bryant, Thomas Hughes, Whittier, Bret Harte, Bayard Taylor, Mrs. Burnett, Miss Alcott, Donald G. Mitchell, George Macdonald, Mrs. Oliphant, Professor Proctor are a few of the many great names which have been upon its list of contributors. Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge is the editor. Everything in it is illustrated.

there are to be serial stories by Brander Matthews, Lieutenant Robert H. Fletcher (the author of that charming book, "Marjorie and Her Papa,"), Laura E. Richards, William O. Stoddard, Charles E. Carryl (author of Davy and the Goblin"), and Frances Courtenay Baylor. There will be short stories by Thomas Nelson Page, Mary E. Wilkins, Mary Hallock Foote, Richard Malcolm Johnston, Octave Thanet, General O. O. Howard and many others, with papers of travel and adventure by J. T. Trowbridge and Lieutenant Schwatka, and useful articles on "How Columbus Reckoned," 'William the Conquerer,' "Volcanoes and Earthquakes," Straight Lines and Circles," etc. In "Strange Corners of Our Country," the Great American Dessert, the Cliff-Dwellings of Arizona, and other interesting places, will be described, and in "Honors to the Flag" and "Boys and the National Guard" the patriotism of the young readers will be aroused and stimulated. Julian Ralph is to describe "The Making of a Great Newspaper," and the arc and incandescent electric lights are to be clearly explained.

APPLIED CHRISTIANITY

is what St. Nicholas teaches;—unselfishness, faithfulness, courage, truthfulness—these things are taught is a hundred ways by stories, poems and pictures. Do you need such an assistant in your work with your boys and girls? If so, and if you are not already familiar with St. Nicholas, send a postal card to The Century Co., Union Square, New York, N. Y., and ask to see a sample copy. A year's subscription to St. Nicholas makes a splendid Christmas present, for it brings Christmas twelve times a year.

BABYLAND.

Baby's delight and mother's relief.

Gay jingles, sweet little stories, dainty pictures will make BABYLAND for 1892 a charming magazine for the little ones. Among the many good things will be NURSE KAREN'S NORWAY TALES—stories told by a Norwegion nurse to little Americans—by EMILIE POULSSON, whose "Finger Plays" and "Toy Closet Stories" have made her our fairy godmother.

THE SWEETHEART STORIES by BELLA D. CLARK, a new friend, but one who knows all about baby folks.

THE TIPTOE TWINS, and their doings, will be described by MARGARET JOHNSON, whose "Toddlekins" and "Boofer Kitten" have never been forgotten.

Only 50 cents a year.

A GREAT MAGAZINE.

The Century's Programme in 1892—A New "Life of Columbus" — Articles for Farmers, etc.

THAT great American periodical, THE CENTURY, is going to outdo its own unrivaled record in its programme for 1892, and as many of its new features begin with the November number, new readers should commence with that issue.

In this number are the opening chapters of a novel by Rudyard Kipling, the famous author of "Plain Tales from the Hills," written in collaboration with an American writer, Wolcott Balestier. It is the story of a young man and a young woman from a "booming" Colorado town, who go to India, he in search of a wonderful jeweled necklace, called "the Naulahka" (from which the story takes its name), and she as a physician to women. The novel describes their remarkable adventures at the court of an Indian maharajah. Besides this, the Century will print three other novels during the year, and a great number of short stories by the best American story-writers.

The well-known humorist, Edgar W. Nye ("Bill Nye"), is to write a series of amusing sketches which he calls his "autobiographies," the first one of which, "The Autobiography of a Justice of the Peace," is in November. This number also contains a valuable and suggestive article on "The Food Supply of the Future," which every farmer should read, to be followed by a number of others treating especially of the relations of the Government to the farmer, what it is doing and what it should do. This series will include contributions from officers of the Department of Agriculture, and other well-known men will discuss "The Farmer's Discontent," "Co-operation," etc., etc.

A celebrated Spanish writer is to furnish a "Life of Columbus," which will be brilliantly illustrated, and the publishers of the Century have arranged with the managers of the World's Fair to print articles on the buildings, etc.

One of the novels to appear in 1892 is

by the author of "The Anglomaniacs," and the magazine will contain a great deal about the metropolis during the year—among other things a series of illustrated articles on "The Jews in New York." In November is an illustrated description of "The Players' Club," founded by Edwin Booth, and one of the features of the splendidly illustrated Christmas (December) number is an article on "The Bowery."

To get the Century send the yearly subscription price ($4.00) to The Century Co., Union Square, New York, N. Y.

"THE KING OF NINETEENTH-CENTURY REVIEWS."

THE ARENA FOR 1892.

"The boldest, ablest, and most original magazine in America."—Jewish Times and Observer.

Subscription price . . .	$5.00
Arena Art Portfolio . . .	4.00
	$9.00
We send The Arena and Portfolio, postpaid for	$5.20

THE ARENA for 1892 will eclipse its previous brilliant record in the strength and ability of its contributions. As in the past, it will continue to be the most aggressive, fearless, and outspoken review of the age. All great living issues will be fully, freely and impartially discussed by the foremost thinkers of our day. Great wrongs and growing evils will be unmasked without fear or favor, while the root problems underlying civilization will be more fully discussed than in the pages of any other review.

Some Special Features for 1892.

I. "A Spoil of Office," by Hamlin Garland, which opens in the January ARENA. This is, without question, one of the greatest novels ever written by an American author. It deals with the social, economic and political condition of the modern West, and is characterized by beauty and strength. A golden thread of love runs through the woof and web of this great story, which opens in Iowa, shifts its scenes to Kansas, and closes in the National Capitol. "A SPOIL OF OFFICE" will be the most talked-of story of 1892 and you should read it.

II. Popular Social and Economic Problems. It will be an encyclopædia of social, economic and political information, giving its readers a masterly exposition of the true conditions and needs of the present, depicting the evils of the hour, and suggesting remedies calculated to secure a wider word of justice and liberty for the great toiling millions of our land. From its inception THE ARENA has been THE STEADFAST OBJECTION OF THE PEOPLE, absolutely fearless in its denunciation of plutocracy, monopoly and all means and measures which wrong the multitude or infringe upon the liberty of the humblest citizen.

III. Psychical Science. During 1892, THE ARENA will have the ablest, most authoritative, and brilliant series of papers ever published on psychical science, by leading thinkers of the new world and the old.

IV. The Condition of Woman Throughout the World. Recognizing the fact that the present is the cycle of woman, THE ARENA for 1892 will contain a brilliant and powerful series of papers on the condition of woman throughout the world. The opening paper appears in the January number, by Professor A. N. Jannaris, Ph. D., of the National University of Greece. It is on "Women in Mohammedan Lands."

V. Scientific Papers. Popular papers on scientific subjects by the most profound thinkers of the age will also be a feature of THE ARENA for 1892. The first paper of this series appears in the December ARENA, by the eminent French astronomer, Camille Flammarion, on "Recent Discoveries in the Heavens." The second is by the great English scientist, Alfred Russel Wallace, on "Human Progress, Past and Future."

VI. Religious and Educational Problems and Social Conditions will be fully and freely presented by the master spirits in each department of thought.

VII. Short Stories and Biographies. Each issue will contain, in addition to Mr. Garland's great novel, a brilliant short story or a biography of some eminent person; thus every member of the family will hail the arrival of THE ARENA with delight.

VIII. Full-page Portraits and Illustrations. Each issue will contain superb full-page portraits of distinguished personages, with autographs, printed on heavy plate paper.

PORT CRESCENT.

THE POINT at which the American Continent most nearly approaches Vancouver Island, the distance being LESS THAN TEN MILES. The most favorable point for

DIRECT - INTERNATIONAL - COMMUNICATION

Between the two countries.

The Harbor is already, to a large degree, protected by natural headlands, but

Breakwaters which will Encircle it and Double its Capacity are Being Provided,

At a cost of $350,000. The more important one is in full progress and partly completed.

PORT CRESCENT is the extreme western port of Puget Sound, and THE FIRST DEEP-WATER HARBOR north of San Francisco, without a bar, a shoal or a sandbank. It will accommodate 120 ships at cable length, besides 100 more alongside wharves. A short and clear waterway of 43 miles to the ocean, enables ships to dispense with the heavy charges necessarily incurred for tugs and pilots on the Columbia river and the upper ports of Puget Sound.

Its unique geographical position secured for it the attention of the officials of the Northern Pacific R. R. Co.,

And in view of its capacities, it has been selected as an Ocean Terminus, in preference to any other point.

THE PRESIDENT of that corporation, Mr. Thomas F. Oakes, of New York, and other influential officers of the Northern Pacific, are Trustees of the Victoria, Port Crescent & Chehalis Railroad Company, with a Capital of $4,000,000.

This Line Will Run from Port Crescent

WESTWARD of the Olympic Mountains and connect with the existing Northern Pacific system on Gray's Harbor. It will traverse a series of river valleys of the richest agricultural character, INTO WHICH SETTLERS ARE FLOCKING IN GREAT NUMBERS; lands especially fitted for Hops and Fruit Culture, with a climate, induced by the genial warmth of the Japan current, equal to that of California, without its aridity. The timber is unexcelled, inexhaustible and very accessible. The clearing of the first section of the Right-of-way from Port Crescent is completed; the preliminary surveys of the whole line made, and its early completion is now assured.

An essential feature of the project now being developed at Port Crescent is the

Ferrying of Solid Northern Pacific Trains

Over to Port Beecher, on Vancouver Island, and thence

Into the City of Victoria, B. C.,

Conveying freight without breaking bulk and passengers without change of vehicle.

Immediately adjoining Port Crescent, and connected with it by a good road, is

LAKE CRESCENT,

TEN MILES in length, from two to three miles in width, and of surpassing beauty. This Lake, with its wonderful coloring and magnificent surrounding scenery, was visited by hundreds of delighted pleasure seekers, the past summer, and is destined to become one of the most famous resorts in the Pacific Northwest. It is without a rival in Western Washington. Its waters abound in trout, and it is an ideal rendezvous for fishermen and sportsmen.

A Mail Route has been recently established between Port Crescent and the west end of Lake Crescent, for the accommodation of residents of the rich valley of the Solduck—which valley, now conveniently reached by way of Port Crescent, is being rapidly filled up with a fine class of settlers. In addition to thousands of acres of choice Agricultural and Timber Lands, the valley possesses

HOT - MINERAL - SPRINGS - OF - GREAT - VALUE.

A LUMBER MILL has been established at Port Crescent, and stores, hotels, warehouses and residences built, and all indications go to show that a city of the very first rank must arise here—and one backed by one of the largest and richest agricultural regions in Washington. No point in the State offers Sounder Opportunities for Safe Investment on the part of the most conservative, and further particulars, with plans, prices of City Lots and Desirable Acreage, will gladly be afforded on application.
