Clallam Co. To Receive Forest Funds

Oregon and Washington counties with National Forest lands will receive $41.6 million in receipts from National Forest earnings in fiscal year 1972, an increase of $12 million from the previous year.

Regional Forester T. A. Schlipfer said the 1972 allocation is just $1.3 million short of the record $42.9 million allocated to the concerned counties from fiscal year 1969 earnings.

Payments made to treasurers of the two states represent 25 percent of the receipts from all resources and use of the National Forests, including timber harvest, grazing minerals, recreation, power, and other land use.

Payments are proportioned according to National Forest acreage, with counties using the money for public roads and schools.

This year's total -- $41,667,349.49 -- will be divided among 31 Oregon counties receiving $31,571,209.25, compared with $33,854,177.33 last year, while 27 Washington counties will receive $10,096,140.24 compared with $8,829,224.98 a year ago.

Lane County continued to receive the biggest share in Oregon, $7.5 million, while Skamania county was high in Washington, with $2.5 million.

Oregon counties since 1966 have received a total of approximately $225.6 million, while Washington counties have been allocated $142.2 million as their share of National Forest earnings.

County totals: Clallam, $629,654.49; Jefferson, $865,201.66.

JEWETT SETS WORLD RECORD

Tom Jewett, age 48, set a new shute sawyer world-record last week by cutting 322 bundles in an eight-hour shift.

The previous record was held by Henry Walker with 317 bundles. Tom said he announced the night before that he was going for a record and added, "I'm sure to mention my partner, Gary Lewis, and my splitter-man, John Ashley, in the paper. They worked so the sweat was just pouring off them."

Tom was born and raised in Marysville and has 16 years experience as a sawyer. He also files the band-saws. About three months ago he moved to Forks with his wife, Patricia, and three children, Tracy and Steven Tom. They will move into their home on Evergreen Loop in the near future. Tom works for Sol Dac Shake Company.

On August 30, the Board of County Commissioners conducted a public meeting in Forks for the purpose of discussing revisions to the Olympic Health District's moratorium on lasting building and sewage disposal permits in the Forks area.

During this meeting the health department staff presented a brief history on the development of sewage disposal systems in the area that led to the common use of deep city wells and the reasons for concern of a public health nature regarding the continuance of such practice. A representative of the State Division of Health confirmed the validity of this concern and quoted laws and regulations

BUILDING MORATORIUM MODIFIED

The following letter was written to the Board of County Commissioners by Donald A. Morrison, R.S., Olympic Health District Superintendent, August 31, 1972

Editor:

I would like to give my opinion of the article in the August 31st issue of the Forks Forum about the Forks Sparta.

The author of the article made the mistake of writing without first investigating. The general thought carried out was hitting below the belt.

If we have a problem here in Forks as the article indicated, then it is the function of the school administration to take the necessary action. If the action taken by the administration is opposed by the majority of the people, this then becomes the issue in our elections. The elected officials must please most of the people most of the time. Nobody has a right to judge the action of students who may or may not choose to turn out for football. The choice of these young men is theirs and therefore action that opposes this freedom is a violation of their individual rights.

Principals David Fazio stated that the article did not represent Forks High School policy. Let us never forget, individual rights always have the highest priority in America, and equally let us never forget to defend these rights.

All other rights come second in this situation, football and all the action that goes into the formation of a team is only second best.

POLITICS '72

By Tony Dillman
Have you taken a look at the Primary Election Ballot for Clallam County on September 19th?

It's confusing to say the least. Or, as a relation of mine said, "Who did you say to vote for?" Her confusion was understandable as there are only 20 different offices being run for and 80 people running for them. Most of the offices are hotly contested.

The 14. Governor is in the same position as the Vice President of the U.S.; he is kind of the non-voting understudy to the head man. Both the 14. Governor and the Vice President have another thing in common, that being President of the Senate when it is in session. His only real power here, though, is in having the vote that breaks any ties.

Another interesting thing about this office is that the 14. Governor need not be of the same party as the Governor as is exemplified by the incumbent John A. Cherberg who first served under Albert Rosellini and is now running for re-election after serving 2 terms in office with the incumbent Republican Governor Daniel Evans. Cherberg is a Democrat, of course.

The race for Secretary of State is interesting in that there are some 5 Democrats running against the incumbent, A. Ludlow Kramer. In the race for Superintendent of Public Instruction there are some 8 men running. I can't tell you what their party affiliations are as this is a non-partisan office.

Contrary to the aforementioned race there are two judgeships that are uncontested. I guess you could say these are the only two individuals who know that their election is already won.

Incidentally, don't forget to vote in the Primary on September 19th. Then you too can examine the unique ballot. If you think the Primary ballot is confusing wait until the November election as this ballot has all those different referendum Proposals as well as the Federal, State and County elective offices. I shall, in the future months, examine the Referendums, too.

FOOD STAMP PROGRAM

A new procedure has been developed in the food stamp program to allow a food stamp user to purchase a smaller amount of food stamps than was previously allowed. That arrangement is called the "Variable Purchase Option". It can be an advantage, in that it allows a person to use his money according to the priority he sets for himself.

Beginning September first, eligible persons who elect to purchase federal food stamps twice a month (semi-monthly) may buy them in one-half month or one-quarter month allotments each time they purchase, according to the Department of Social and Health Services. Those who elect to purchase stamps only once a month may buy the full month's allotment, or three-quarters or one-half or one-quarter of the monthly allotment.

The new regulations apply to all clients receiving Food Coupon Authorization (ATP) cards. At the time the client is certified to receive food stamps, he must decide if he wishes to buy food stamps once a month or twice a month. Depending on his choice, he will receive one or two cards for that month. If he elects to purchase stamps once a month and purchases only a one-quarter month allotment with that card, he may not change his mind and receive additional stamps for that month.

Those recipients who elect to receive their food stamps by mail are not given the variable purchase option. If they wish to receive less than a full month's food stamp allotment, they must notify the local office and also to receive their stamps by mail from the State Office.

must be readily accessible. However, the real problem is getting people to wear them.

It's become a frustrating situation for the Coast Guard because the time and money expended to publicize the importance of wearing lifesaving devices has had little impact on boaters. It's upsetting to know that people might be alive had they heeded the Coast Guard's advice.

Frankly, the Coast Guard is stumped—it doesn't know how to make boaters more aware of the importance of wearing lifesaving devices.

Now, the Coast Guard is asking for ideas on getting boaters to wear their life jackets.

If you have any suggestions how the Coast Guard can save its (and your) lifelines, send them to the Coast Guard Boating Safety Branch, 618 Second Avenue, Seattle, Washington 98104.

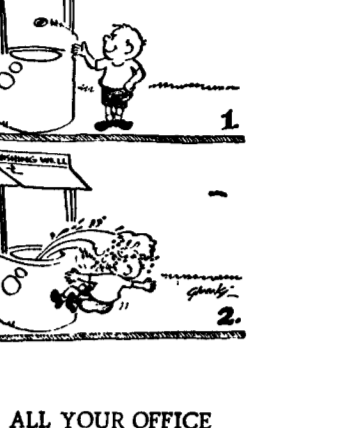

There are no prizes given for the best idea—except for may be saving someone's life.

HELP THE COAST GUARD SAVE A LIFE
The Coast Guard need to think that life jackets could save lives—now it's not so sure anymore.

With an ever-increasing number of drownings, it's apparent that many who might have been saved by life jackets weren't worn.

Recently, an elderly couple fishing in a 14-foot boat off the Oregon coast lost their boatings in the fog. They became trapped in the surf and their boat capsized. There were life jackets aboard and had the couple worn them, they would probably be alive today. A few days later, in an almost identical situation, two fishermen survived a capsizing in the surf because they were wearing life jackets.

Federal law requires all recreational boats, regardless of size and population, to carry one Coast Guard-approved lifesaving device for every person on board. The law also says that lifesaving device

The start of school signals the need to take a good look at the area you provide for your young students.

According to the Better Light Better Sight Bureau, you should select fluorescent light or one of the incandescent lights that provide a wide spread of light. Avoid high-intensity lights, pole lamps and goose-neck lamps.

Adequate illumination is important. The bulb should provide about 3,700 lumens (usually 150 or 200 watts in an incandescent bulb). But, the light should be diffused to avoid glare and soften the lighting.

Ideally, the shade should be white and have an open top.

The light should be to the side opposite the writing hand. The bottom edge of the lampshade should be at eye-level.

Also, make sure your study area is quiet and comfortable. The table or desk should have a smooth, flat surface.

Make sure your students have a lighting environment for their home studying.

which govern sewage disposal. The County Director of Public Works outlined the methods available to residents outside the Town of Forks to join with the Town in providing a sewage collection and disposal system.

The County Commissioners agreed unofficially to participate in and coordinate a study with the Town of Forks and fringe area residents for the purpose of determining feasibility, possibility and preliminary cost estimates of severing an area bordering the Forks City limits.

With this commitment on the part of the County Commissioners the Olympic Health District agreed to modify the moratorium on building and sewage disposal permits to the following extent:

1. Permits will be issued only where conventional drainfields can be installed or where drywells will function satisfactorily at a maximum depth of ten feet.

2. Existing approved subdivisions will have only to meet the above criteria.

3. Subdivisions having preliminary approval where roads have already been constructed to county standards will have only to meet the above criteria but the developers will be encouraged to construct a system of dry sewers or a subdivision collection and disposal system.

4. Subdivisions having preliminary approval but where roads have not been constructed to County Standards will be required to install dry sewers or a method of collection and disposal of sewage from the subdivision.

5. On new home construction, if the septic tank is located on the opposite side of the house from where a future community sewer will be located the owner will be encouraged to stub a building sewer in that direction beneath the building to minimize the problem of sewer connection in the future.

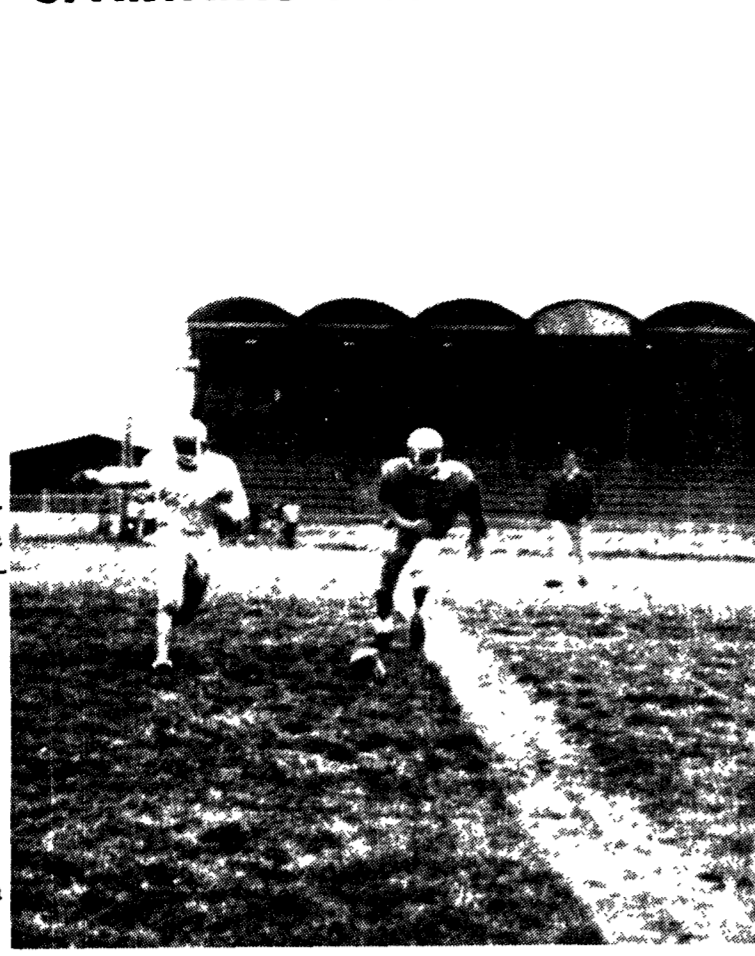

6. The health department, with as much consultation as possible with residents, will draw a map indicating the proposed service area of a sewage collection system where use above criteria.

will take the recommendation of passing a formal resolution in accordance with the unofficial agreement made to participate in the sewer.

SPARTAINS GETTING READY

During one of last week's practices David Otso pulls in a pass and streaks toward the goal line.

Youth and inexperience are visible on the team but the guys are all fighting very hard for the starting assignments for the 8:00 PM showdown.

The game, first of the season for both teams, could very well be a great morale booster for the Spartans if they can put everything together, and stay healthy.

For those persons planning to attend this week's opener at Spaxton Stadium, it is advised there will be parking adjacent to the field and behind the grandstand. Parking will not be permitted next to the Elementary School.

The Spartans, having lost several key players due to injuries, are preparing for their opener Friday night against Chimacum.

AUXILIARY TO MEET

Forks Orthopedic Auxiliary will hold their first fall meeting Tuesday, September 12, at 8:00 p.m. in the Forks Congregational Church Fellowship Hall. A list of names will be available at the church at 5:00 p.m. The Auxiliary is interested in obtaining new members. You are invited to attend, in thinking about the bazaar scheduled for November.

SCHOOLS OPEN

With the start of September, the sound of ringing school bells can be heard throughout the State of Washington. For once again, schools are open. Washington State Patrol Chief O. C. Fureth reminds motorists, "With the start of a new school year, it is a time to adjust driving habits. Keeping your eye on all small fry is an excellent way to begin."

Be alert for school children along the roadways and as they cross streets. School children are taught safe walking habits to be doubly cautious in school zones."

Notice the new school signing? Some signs indicate reduced speeds when children are present or when a red flag is attached to the sign post. Be alert for the posted limit and drive accordingly.

Many bicyclist riders will pedal to school. This can be a real challenge to motorists. In 1971, fourteen bicyclists under the age of 15 years were killed on Washington streets and highways. This tragic loss can be lowered if all motorists would be more alert for the mistakes of cyclists.

School buses are painted a special yellow color for easy identification, and school buses carry very special passengers, our children. School buses are well maintained and their drivers specially trained. But the ultimate safety of the bus and passengers rests with all drivers.

NEW EXTENSION AGENTS

Jefferson and Callan Counties have new leadership in Washington State University's Cooperative Extension offices at Fort Townsend and Port Angeles.

Director John P. Miller said Palmer (Jack) McCarter, 51, a former eastern Washington rancher, and Dr. Jack L. Wand, 40, a geneticist who has been with industry, have accepted chairmanships in the respective counties.

McCarter, in Port Townsend, will carry out area agent work in dairy and livestock besides handling local 4-H activities. Wand, at Port Angeles, will be responsible for horticulture and forestry work in the two counties besides his chairmanship and 4-H work.

McCarter, who replaces the recently retired Ray Hale, moves to his new job from New Mexico State University where he has been a county agent. He holds his master-of-science degree from that school in agricultural economics. He was a farm and ranch owner in Washington and New Mexico from 1946 until 1957.

Dr. Wand, who earned his Ph. D. in genetics and plant breeding at Purdue University in 1954, has most recently been with the Gulf & Western American Corporation in the Dominican Republic as that firm's head agriculture research geneticist. He is a native of Oregon and received two science degrees from Oregon State University. His work in the register case enterprises of Gulf & Western in the Dominican included heading up a professional staff of five other scientists plus more than 30 technical assistants and field supervisors.

Dr. Wand will take over duties handled by Andrew Krutsvyk before his recent retirement.

Unfortunately we found it! It was called the Fremont House and was something we had never seen before. We had the best room in the house; it was the only room with a "diner."
"After resting awhile we took the subway to Piccadilly Circus. From there we walked to Clapham Street and on up to Brompton Palace. We had a nice view of BIG BEN (he was quite tall, dark and handsome, not the same Ben you're thinking of!). Then we went to Green Park and eyed the guys playing soccer and were even asked to play."
"The next day we left England and arrived in France. We had a couple of hours till our train left, so we nervously stepped out into the streets of Paris! We were in the lower district of Paris, so there wasn't a great deal to see to stroll, just a few shops. They had a lot of open meat markets, which were not to appetizing. After getting on our train, we were on our way to Switzerland. The countryside of Switzerland was quite beautiful, what we saw in between each tunnel. When we got to Bern, we found a room and went up town to eat. It was a tiny restaurant and they had the best spaghetti. No one could understand us, but everyone was most friendly. When we went to pay for the meal we commented on how good it was — and it worked; we didn't have to pay for it!"
"From Bern we went to Bonn, Germany. Most of what we saw there reminded you of the war. Everything was very drab colors and there was a lot of military to be seen. On our way from Bonn to Hamburg we were awed by all the castles along the Danube River. We continued on up through to Copenhagen, Denmark and on over to Sweden. When we arrived in Stockholm, we spent the night in a quaint, little hotel in the old city of Stockholm. The next morning we went down to get our on our train and missed it by one minute. So we had eleven hours to kill. We went up to the palace and saw the crown jewels and some of the palace itself."
"When we arrived in Japan, where grandma Lingvall lives, we moved into our own cabin. Through the whole trip people have been really friendly and helpful. And here in Japan we met a lot of kids — all of them making the first step towards friendship and making us really feel at home. Over here most everything is quite liberal, including smoking, drinking, 18-sex and the schools. Practically everyone smokes!!! Most of the kids start at the age of twelve, since there is no age limit on buying cigarettes. Buying alcohol is like buying a carton of milk. Talking about sex here is like talking about the weather and nobody thinks anything of it. In the schools they have lounges with T.V., medical and dental care, music lessons (any instrument they want to play) as long as they are going to school. Most every school has a swimming pool."
"You hardly find anybody driving if they have been drinking. Their license is for life and it costs $200, so they feel they can't "afford" to lose it. They are very much against dope, simply because they feel it isn't good for them."
"The weather has really been lovely. We have only had about five days of sunshine, the rest either overcast or rain, which didn't stop us from doing a lot of sightseeing to the lakes and up into the mountains. We also went to some dances

P.U.D. PUTS NEW SUBSTATION ON THE LINE

Commissioner Al Fletcher and Liberman Les Clayton at Switch Handle.

Commissioner Al Fletcher beside automatic voltage regulator. 10,000 KVA transformer in background.

On September 10, 1972, a cutover from the present level of distribution voltage to a higher level on a line extending south from Forks on Highway 101 will mark the concluding step of the District's phase one program of system improvements in the Forks service area. Just over a year ago, engineering studies indicated that the projected increase in the number of customers, along with the increase in use of electricity by our existing customers, would soon necessitate improved service facilities to meet our customer's electrical needs. The system south along Highway 101 was of special concern since the line extends to the Clearwater Honor Camp and to the lower Hob. Increasing industrial use of this line has also contributed to the need for service improvement. A step-up of the distribution voltage will enable greater industrial use of the line along with an improved level of service to our residential customers.

The key factor in improvement of service was the installation of a new substation at Forks. On September 5, Russell Layton, President of the Board of Commissioners of Clallam County P.U.D., with one operation of a high voltage switch, energized the new station. The new station of 10,000 KVA capacity will be used primarily to serve the line extending south on Highway 101. The use of the station will relieve the load on the existing transformer, thus providing increased capacity for the town proper. The new station has a total cost, including transformers, regulators, grounding mats, switching and metering, of $165,000.00.

Since the Forks Substation is some distance away from the homeville Power Administration's source at Fort Angeles, the District has installed an automatic voltage control device. A sensing unit has been installed on the 120 volt side of our transformers. When the voltage drops below a determined level, a device automatically is energized which raises the voltage. Likewise, when load drops off and the voltage rises, the sensing unit causes the device to drop off the line, lowering the voltage.

Construction of a new warehouse and modification of the District's storage yard complete phase one improvements. The cost of these improvements totals nearly one-quarter of a million dollars.

The District experiences, as do all utilities, nearly a year's time in the delivery of substation equipment. This time period necessitates the immediate understanding of system improvements which will be in effect in a year's time. The District is now completing its plan for yet another substation to be energized some time next year.

JOB BANKS

Job banks, one of the manpower priorities of President Nixon, are now operating in Idaho and Washington and 20 other States across the nation, according to the U. S. Department of Labor.

Initially in the Job Bank Program, ordered by President Nixon shortly after he took office, the banks were established in the larger metropolitan areas. The 100th city job bank was inaugurated in Norfolk, Va., in September, 1971. The 1972 attention shifted to statewide operations to make the speedy service available to all workers.

Only four states -- Alaska, Montana, and North and South Dakota -- presently do not have a job bank. They are preparing now to go directly into statewide operation.

A statewide job bank system is one in which every local office of the Public Employment Service in the State has access to a daily listing of job openings printed by a computer. A job seeker at any local office has a chance to apply for any job listed anywhere in his State. The 22 states with statewide job banks have a total of 985 Employment Service Offices tied in to their job bank computer (the Idaho bank links up 25 local offices and the Washington Bank ties in 52), enabling job seekers to obtain information quickly and easily on opportunities in their area.

Combined with metropolitan area job banks in non-statewide operation, there are now about 1,200 out of 3,300 Employment Service local offices serving about 63 percent of the nation's labor force.

Twenty-eight other States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands are in the process of establishing state -- or area-wide job bank systems. Most of them expect to be operational before the end of 1972. Job bank computer operations are copied on microfilm or bound in a book and rapidly distributed each morning to local Employment Service Offices.

There is a single-point control, called Job Bank Central, for controlling the number of applicants from the entire service area of the Job Bank who call on a single employer. Employers who use the Employment Service with a statewide job bank will be able to recruit throughout the State to fill their job openings.

Labor Department sources point out that a job bank is solely a method of rapid distribution of information on job availability through the use of computer technology and can only assist with, but not of itself create or fill, job opportunities for applicants.

NEW LIGHT SYSTEM PROPOSED

Multi-colored tail lights on new cars will be required if legislation introduced in the U.S. Senate is passed into law.

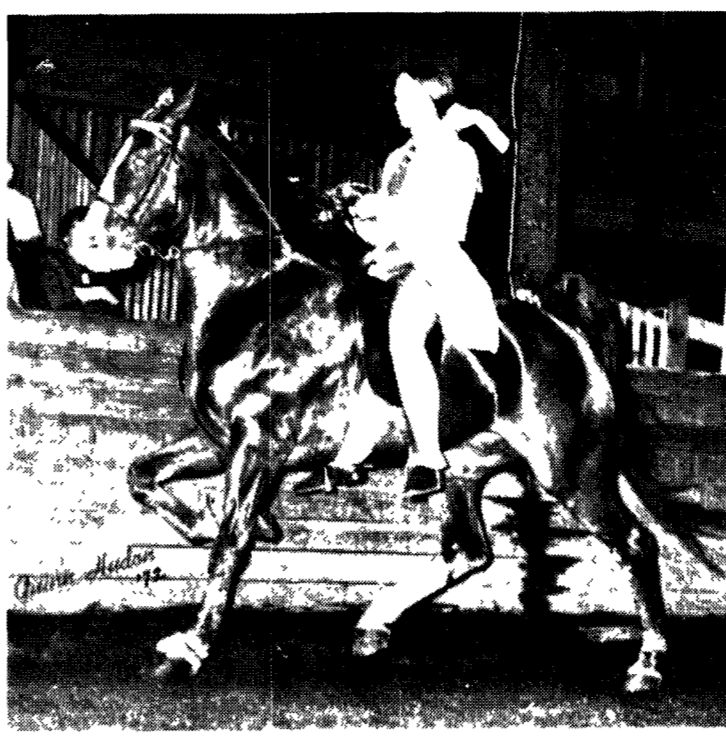

The proposed system would require green tail lights when the car is moving forward, amber lights when it is coasting or idling and red lights when the brakes are applied.

Advocates of a measure ($3000) state this system would serve as an early warning system because a driver would know the moment a driver ahead removes his foot from the accelerator.

The tri-light system also was urged upon the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration by the Center for Auto Safety. The Center stated that the proposed revised rear light system standard also require that tail lights be mounted against a black, non-glass background instead of being framed in chrome and that they be set vertically in the rear window pillar in the same sequence as a traffic light.

IFYE LETTER

Letter #2 from John Hitchcock, International Farm Youth Exchange Delegate from the State of Washington to Argentina. John is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hitchcock, who have recently moved from Forks, Washington to Selah. He is sponsored by the Clallam County IFYE Committee.

Dear Friends: Argentine weddings are similar to those in the U. S. In that the bride wears a white dress, there's a church ceremony, and everyone eats cake. From there on, the competition stops.

I went to a countryside wedding in western Argentina with my family -- or rather, I went to the wedding by myself and to the festa afterwards with my family. Every one is invited to a wedding, but it simply is the custom that most people don't arrive until the festa.

I asked my brothers and their friends to take me to the church and they thought it was kind of funny that I was interested in going. There were only about 30 people there, relatives and friends, even though it was open to all, what struck me as most interesting is the fact that the parents of the bride take no part in the ceremony. The bride and groom select a pair of godparents different from their baptismal godparents to take part in the ceremony. The bride enters with her godfather while the godmother and groom wait in front of the altar. After the ceremony when the bride and groom leave the church the godfather throws confetti or coins to all the children. Oh yes, they do throw rice, too.

As I was watching I noticed that the bride was all smiles but the groom was crying. After all, it was a special day and the culmination of the traditional countryside courtship which no longer occurs Argentina's cities. As with all novias (sweethearts), the boyfriend probably made two visits each week to the house of his girlfriend for at least 2 years. On Thursday night he arrived after dinner, about 8:00 or 9:00 and stayed till midnight. Then on Sundays he came in the afternoon about four and had Sunday dinner with her family again leaving at midnight, all the time they were well chaperoned by her parents.

But on to the festa. The wedding attended was held at nine and people began arriving after ten for the festa. The reception and dance was held in the open air of a local community center. Since it was mid-winter the air was rather refreshing and men brought shovels of hot coals from a fire that burned throughout the celebration to place them where people were seated in small circles.

At midnight a wedding buffet was served which my family told me was quite modest. Modest or not, it was quite ample: sliced meats, potato and carrot salad, olives, bread, roast pork and chicken, individual meat pies, and lots of wine. Every five minutes there was a toast to the bride and groom, to the parents of the bride, to the parents of the groom, to the godparents, to the witness. Long live everyone!

After the remains of the meal were carried away the dance began at two in the morning with the bride and groom dancing a waltz. Right after that the couple danced "The Dance of Good Fortune" here they carried a small canister with them in which friends placed gifts of money.

Finally, at four in the morning the cake was cut. First, all the unmarried girls each took hold of one of the ribbons coming from the center of the cake. All pulled, and at the end of one of the ribbons was a ring to bring good luck to the bride. When the cake was cut the bride and groom personally offered the cake and cognac to all the guests.

My family and I returned to the quarter to five A.M., but the party was still in full swing. The bride and groom remained talking and dancing with their guests in near freezing weather. Safely under a mound of blankets, I was lulled to sleep by a mixture of modern music and tangos from the nearby festa.
