THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Washington's Exhibit to Be Attractive.

THEY ASK FOR THREE.

Judge Swan Proposes to Furnish an Indian Whale Catching Outfit—Dr. Blalock's Headquarters—A High Flagstaff.

Washington is going to be well represented at the World's Fair. The commission for this state, with Dr. Blalock as chairman, are hard at work getting the products of this state in shape. So active, indeed, has been their work, that the attention of the exposition board at Chicago has been attracted to our state and if the state board carry out all that is now contemplated, the attention of the world cannot help but be attracted by our display.

W. I. Buchanan, acting as chief of the forestry department of the exposition, proposes to construct a rustic colonnade around the forestry building. It will be composed of three trees in each column and each column is to be contributed by some state or territory or some South American state. All were invited. Washington replied at once offering to give her full share, and now President N. G. Blalock receives word that they will have to ask Washington for two, and perhaps three, columns. Evidently some of the states are missing with their responses, but Dr. Blalock at once replied that Washington would give the three columns and rustic work to crown them with, and a full data about each tree—where found and how much is still standing in the forests. These trees must be twenty-five feet long and not to exceed twenty inches at the base. Bark and all must be kept intact to resemble nature as much as possible. It will produce a beautiful effect and will afford a fine opportunity to advertise our marvelous timber resorces at the expense of the Exposition Board of Construction.

INDIAN WHALE-CATCHING OUTFIT.

Judge James G. Swan, the poineer of Port Townsend, has agreed to prepare a complete outfit of canoes, fishing gear made of wood, bone and bark fibres, such as were used by the Makah tribe of Indians at Neah Bay before the arrival of the white man, and used by them to this day with great success. A similar exhibit was prepared by the Judge for the National Government many years ago, and that exhibit has attracted marked attention in the capitals of Europe and the big cities of America wherever shown. Judge Swan will eclipse that collection for the World's Fair Commission of this State. He shows a pudlic spirit in the work that will commend itself to everyone. He proposes to do all this work free of cost. All he wants is to have the commission pay for the actual expense of the Indians in preparing the different articles.

WORLD'S FAIR HEADQUARTERS.

Executive Commissioner Blalock has fitted up headquarter offices in Walla Walla, where he would be pleased to have a visit from anyone having the interests of the World's Fair at heart. In one room he has collected a beautiful display of late fruits and some early ones He has tried numberless preparations for the preservation of fruits and with only indifferent success. At last, however, a preparation has been secured that gives every promise of complete success.

HIGH FLAG STAFF,

Mr. E. G. Ames, of the Puget Mill Company, locateed at Port Gamble, is an enthusiastic lumberman. He came from the State of Maine and knows how they prize Puget Sound timber out there. He beleives im letting all the world know of its excellence, so he quietly informed an officer of the Washington World's Fair Commission the other day that if he was told how long a flag staff could be transported to Chicago he would supply the staff free of all cost. From this staff will float a flag in front of Washington's building.

SENATOR SQUIRE DID IT.

An Interview With Hon. C. M. Bradshaw—He Blames Squire for His Removal.

Hon. C. M. Bradshaw, ex-collector of customs at Port Townsend, is in the city looking after the interests of the Port Angeles Mill & Lumber Company, of which concern he is president It is his intention to devote his entire time and attention to his milling business, and as he remarked to a DEMOCRAT reporter: "to forget that I have ever had any connection with the Port Townsend custom house, for," he very feelingly continued, "after rendering the country faithful service in every capacity as collector of customs at that port, I can but feel that a due appreciation has not been given them, and because one of my deputies proved recreant to the trust I reposed in him, is by no means sufficient grounds for bringing my name, and the manner in which I have conducted my official duties, into dispute. I have no statement to make in regard to this affair, and since I have left Port Townsend I have diligently tried to keep my mind off of customs, and all its harassing duties, for under the most favorable and agreeable circumstances it is no lazy man's job.

"No charge that has ever been brought against me, implicating me with Wood, has been proven, and as such charges are but fabrications, I am safe in asserting that they never will be.

"The only thing to which I will plead guilty, is, that I was holding an office which it suited Senator Squire's poltical purposes to trade off to some one who would give him more and better campaign support.

"In regard to the reputed opium smuggling ring about about which there has been so much said, there is positively nothing in it. There is some opium and a few Chinamen being brought over without paying the duty, but this is a small affair, and does not merit the national attention which has been given it. There is no such a systematic ring as that of which we have read so much."

English ignorance of American politics and American geography is receiving a new illustration since the recent elections. Mr Smalley, London correspondent of the New York Tribune, has been at pains to collect some of the blunders of the London press. The most unique of all is the declaration of the Daily News "that the Republicans have carried the entire state of Philadelphia." and the editor of that paper is of the opinion that "next to Onio, if not in some some respects before it, comes New York as a power in the electorial college." The ,ory Standard misstates the case by gravely saying that "Ohio has rejected its Republican governor, but by a majority too narrow for congratulation." All these stories are reminiscent of the one told of the English tourist who visited Springfield, Ill., during the last gubernatorial candidacy of Dick Oglesby, and who, from the fact that the then President had left a Governor's office to go to the White House, had imbibed the idea that Presidents were seleeted by rotation from the governors of states. On being presented to governor Oglesby the Englishman inquired:

"Is it your turn to be President next time?"

"I think it is," replied Dick, as he gave his visitor a searching look. "I've been governor twice, now, and ought to be promoted."

"Yes, indeed," assented the Britisher. "more particularly you are an older man than Mr. Cleveland. I don't see why you were not selected last time. In my country gray hairs are a sign of preferment."

He Caught on.

A prominent city official—who, by-the-way, is a batcnelor—upon opening his package of clothes which had just been returned from the laundry, was heard to exciaim: "Good gracious! two pockets in the front of my undershirt must be a new sty—Oh, I s-e-e.

The Great Palo Alto.

At Stockton, Cal., on the 17th inst., Palo Alto broke the world's record for one mile, making that distance in 2:08 3-4, which equals the best time made by Maud S. The four-year-old record of 2:17 was lowered by McKinney on the same track to 2:12 1-2.

There are twenty-five mills now working in Bangkok capable of milling 3375 tons of cargo rice daily, and somewhat less of clear rice, Of these nine are fitted with machinery capable of milling 620 tons of white rice per day.

INJUSTICE TO TRADE.

Angeles Unfairly Treated by Steamship Lines.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Freight Rates as High From This Place To Lower Strait Points as From Up Sound—The San Francisco Rate—Why Is It Thus?

A community of business people who have never been so fortunate as to receive favors, or even just and equitable discrimination at the hands of transportation lines carrying their freight, labor under a disadvantage the effect of which is the complete anihilation of their jobbing trade.

Such is the obstacle in the path of Port Angeles' prosperity. With two lines of steamers discriminating against her and in favor of larger and stronger rivals, presents a fact, the injustice of which should incite her merchants to take immediate steps to redress such grievances.

Port Angeles is the county seat of Clallam county, and it is her right to expect that the trade of the county should center here. There is not a merchant in the county who feels not sufficient patriotism to induce him to patronize home institutions first; provided his home people will do as well by him as outsiders, and that he will receive such treatment is his right to expect. The particular features of the case are presented by the following facts and figures:

A Port Angeles merchant can buy his goods in San Francisco at the same price which the Seattle or Port Townsend merchant pays for his, but the transportation lines discriminate in favor of Seattle, and delivers upon her wharves the same class of freight for seventy-five cents per ton less than is demanded of the Port Angeles consignee, though the latter port is not so distant from San Francisco by a hundred miles.

Such are the hardships imposed upon our merchants in the purchase of their goods, and now we will consider others which they encounter when they find a customer outside of the city limits.

The freight rates from Port Townsend to Clallam Bay is $3.00 per ton; from Port Angeles—but litttle less than half the distance—the charges are the same.

From Seattle to Gettysburg the tariff is $4.00 per ton, and from Port Angeles it is $3.00, which shows a difference too small to be just.

These are the evils which beset our merchants and it would be unjust to them to so plainly show their present inability to compete with merchants in other cities, had we not a remedy to prescribe, which we believe in a short time would produce a very healthy condition of trade for our business men, and if they are fully aware of the extent of the jobbing trade that is anxious to come here, they certainly will lose no time in applying the remedy.

There is no dearth of excellent material in Port Angeles of which a Chamber of Commerce could be formed, through whose efforts better freight rates from all points could be obtained, and through whose instrumentality we would soon see the steamers plying between Seattle and Tacoma and San Francisco touching here regularly. Through such a body we would have a shipping commissioner, and the same resources which have been the sole stay and support of Port Townsend for years would become one of the factors of our prosperity. Through a well-organized Chamber Commerce we could obtain that unity of action which would know no insurmountable obstacle.

That there is the nucelus of such a body in this city is beyond doubt and this fact may be established by a review of the manner in which our merchants have met and withstood the long period of inactivity in business which has demonstrated to the world that the people of this city possess, in a remarkable degree, that vitality which alone is a guarantee of success, and which but few or any other city of its size has ever displayed under circumstance so depressing.

BRAZIL'S TROUBLES.

The Youngest Republic on the Western Hemisphere Cannot Endure Tyranny.

The condition of affairs in the young Brazillian republic, from recent advices, show the contry to be upon the verge of anarchy, which unfortunate position is owing to the assumption of dictatory powers by Fonseca.

Everywhere discontent with the present regime is becoming more pronounced and the opposition to Fonseca is increasing. The state of Rio Grande del Sul is in open rebellion against the dictator, and receives the sympathy of the majority of the people of the capital. Telegraphic communications state Fonseca's health to be such that his death may be looked for at any moment.

The government expedition sent to force the passage at the mouth of the Rio Grande, had failed, being successfully defeated by the land batteries of the insurgents.

ACROSS THE SEAS.

Her foot falls faintly on the sand;
Her yearning heart would fain divine
What passes in that far-off land
Beyond the dim horizon's line.

A white wing flutters on the blue;
Her heart sways with the soft south breeze;
Ah! would she were a bird and knew
To beat her way across the seas.

And to the vaulted heaven she lifts,
From alien shores, her dreamy eyes;
She follows where a white cloud drifts
Its northward way athwart the skies.

And will it meet the upward gaze
Of him whose thoughts is all for her!
And will he see it, in amaze,
And wonder why his soul should stir?

Or will his heart at once divine
That she has watched it far away—
That in it fragrant memories twine
Of love of him of yesterday?

Alas! alas! her eyes are wet
With foolish tears—the cloud above
Drifts by—eternal bonds are set
To human thought and human love.

And yet—who knows—it still may be
The moment hath its perfect part
In life, and speeds across the sea
To send its sunshine to his heart.

RECALL EGAN.

The Chilian election is over. The new president, Montt has been inaugurated, and, as was expected. that saucy little republic has assumed a more reconcilliatory attitude toward this country. The desire on its part seems to be to settle our late embrolglio in a manner that will be satisfactory to this country. Now, President Harrison should meet them half way, and recall Minister Egan, who seems to be the cause for most of the trouble. Egan is naturally quarrelsome, and entirely unfitted for the position to which he was appointed. The part played by him during the rebellion in Chili was certainly unbecoming the representative of any nation. He put his unwieldy adopted country in an undignified position by his erratic and deceitful conduct.

The present pacific attitude of the blustering, demagogical little nation, affords this country a good opportunity to rid itself of this undesirable representative without compromising herself. President Harrison should not fail to avail himself of it, and thus remedy, as far as is possible, the blunder made in his appointment.

THE PARTY RESPONSIBLE.

The Republican State Board of Equalization reduced the assessed valuation of railroad track about one half, which is about the only line of property it would consent to reduce. The Eastern Washington farmers are hostile and threaten dire vengeance.

The Republican organs see the mistake, and as they did with the legislation last winter, seek to avoid party responsibility for the State Board's action. And that in the same way. They had to claim that someone had betrayed a party trust. As they made Laughton the scapegoat then, they now attempt to make Secretary Weir the scape-goat, but this time it won't work. There are five members of that board, and it takes three to make a majority. If error was made or corruption accomplished, at least three members of the board are to be held responsible. It is not probable that the people will accept this Judas explanation any longer. They will hold the party in power to a strict account for its use of the trust reposed in its officers.

The chances for Democratic success in this state in 1892 are bright.

CHILI OR CHILE?

Newspapers are just a little confusing to the student of orthography who searches their columns for a word which he wishes to see spelled correctly. This is particularly so with proper names. The Seattle Telegraph insists upon spelling Chili, C-h-i-l-e, and is not alone in ending the word with an e, while just as many dailies of the same high class spell it C-h-i-l-i. Both may be correct, but it is better to follow the mode of the people among whom the word is most used. Chili is the Spanish name for a vegetable which, by the Americans, is called pepper, and is applied only to that specie which grows in a pod. When properly cined and dry it is red, and by the Spanish people is called "chili colorado." When green it is known as "chili verde," and is pronounced Chee-lee.

SENATOR SHERMAN'S re-election to the senate is not by any means assured. The young Republicans want Foraker and Foraker wants Sherman's scalp.

A CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

It will be seen be seen by an article on another page that two lines of steamers are discriminating against this place in their freight rates. This is rank injustice and should not be tolerated. The trade of Clallam county naturally belongs to Port Angeles, but under the existing circumstances it is cheaper to trade in Seattle or Port Townsend. Port Angeles merchants should unite in an attempt, at least, to secure a change in this. THE DEMOCRAT suggests that a Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce be organized at once. There is timber here in plenty for such an institution, and the work that could be done by one is great. Organize.

SENATOR ALLEN has written a letter to the Tacoma Ledger denying that he and Senator Squire entered into an agreement to combine forces and support each other at the legislative session two years ago, as has been charged. Ex-Governor Moore replies in the same paper and charges Allen, directly with trading with Squire, after he had announced himself as opposed to him. The letters taken together make, as Horace Greely was wont to express it, "mighty interesting reading." The brethren are not harmonious.

WILLIAM D. BYNUM, of Indiana, has withdrawn from the race for the speakership of the House, and will heartily support Roger Q. Mills. While many Washington Democrats, who have pleasant recolections of the recent visit of the Indiana statesman to their state. would like to see Bynum speaker, they, in common with the warm advocates of tariff reform everywhere, will be pleased to learn of this action of the gentleman who pulled Reed's nose, to whom principle is of more consequence than personal agrandisement. It is but meet that Mills, who succeeded Carlisle as leader of the House, should succeed him as its speaker. The Texan is the Kentuckian's natural successor.

PORT TOWNSEND wants the Democratic state convention. Olympia and Vancouver are also making a fight for it. The chances are, however, in favor of its being secured by the "Key City." This is as it should be. Port Townsend should have it. The state convention of clubs will be at New Whatcom, and in most cases the delegates to one convention will be delegates to the other. Therefore, the conventions should be held as near together, both as to time and place, as possible. Port Townsend is more convenient to New Whatcom than either of its competitors. Since Port Angeles has not asked for the convention, it is proper that it should go to Port Townsend.

CHICAGO made no fight for the Republican national convention. The good people of that city evidently think it not worth the effort. They ought to know. They have had to endure enough of them to know what kind of institutions they are.

Political Gossip.

Dame Rumor, always interested in anything gossipy, has much to say about the local political situation. Her latest tale, told in a manner more serious than is her custom, runs about like this: A certain individual in this city, whose latest profession has been that of an assistant editor, but who imagines himself the politician-statesman par excellence of the nineteenth century, and who, it is slyly hinted, sees the legislative halls looming up in his dreams of the near future, having drank deep at the fountain of patriotism and wisdom, after studying carefully the situation, is about to rush to the assistance of our city, apparently about to be rent assunder (?) by political dissentions, and nominate city officers, who have been persuaded by his eloquent tongue to sacrifice themselves on the altar of public welfare. It is said that all the gigantic influence of a great daily newspaper will be wielded in behalf of the offerings, and that they will win is fully expected. It must be admitted that this would be a satisfactory termination of the municipal election, especially to the politician statesman par excellance of the ninteenth century aforesaid, as it would be a boost to the much dssired and oft dreamed of legislative position. But however plausible this tale of Dame Rumor, it must be said that plausibility is her chief aim.

A meeting of the voters of of the First ward is called for to-night at 7:30 p. m. to nominate a ticket for that ward. The meeting will be in the N. R. Smith building on Front streee.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

"Nip & Tuck."

The "Nip & Tuck" performance was undoubtedly one of the most laughable ever played before an audience. The Opera House was by no means filled, but the few who witnessed the play expressed themselves as well pleased. If laughter is the fat producer it is reputed to be. there is no reason why the "Nip & Tuck" audience should not receive a liberal share.

The second entertainment, entitled "A Boy from Kerry," was very enjoyable, and gave Mr. Williams the opportunity of displaying his ability as an Irish comedian, which he performed in a manner creditable to himself or any other comdian on the Coast. Miss Marguerite D'Estes showed considerable talent in the role of Marie Pudgett. By no means the least enjoyable feature of the entertainment was the piano performance during the intermissions, which was loudly applauded by the audience, and proclaimed the performer a master of the instrument, from which he drew strains of music grand, classic and melodious.

DEVOTEE OF TERPISCORE.

First Annual Ball of the Knights of Pythias a Grand Success.

About seventy-five couples of the youth and beauty of Port Angeles and vicinity responded to the invitations extended by the Gate City Lodge, No. 65, Knights of Pythias, requesting their presence at the Opera House on the evening of Thanksgiving day.

The guests assembled about 9 o'clock, when the ball was opened with a grand march led by Mr. and Mrs. Hoag.

This was a beautiful feature of the evening, being led in an admirable manner, and though no practice had been previously obtained, there was not a single error to mar the beauty of the march or cause confusion in its changes.

The next was a quadrille, danced by the march partners, who did not leave the floor. The last change of the march so arranging the couples that four came abreast, each four forming a set, of which there were nine.

Dance programmes had been distributed during the march. When the first quadrille was finished the next half hour was given to making engagements.

The pleasure waxed as the night wore, on, and much surprise was manifested when the programme announced luncheon at 12 o'clock. Enjoyment afforded but a poor tablet upon which to record the flight of time, who

"Like a pitiless master,
Cries onward and spurs the gay hours,
For never does time travel faster,
Than when his way lies among flowers."

The luncheon was well arranged all the guests being afforded seats, knives and forks. This, was in the charge of Sir Knight George Fisher, who certainly proved himself to be a caterer of pronounced ability. Three times were the tables burdened by their loads of good things, 'ere all the guests were accommodated.

It is difficult to believe that so much pleasure can be crowded into a few brief hours, and sad it is to know that when the thrill of joy is most awake, the tune will stop, or the chord will break, and Home Sweet Home, as played by the orchestra called attention to the new day, then five hours old.

The Troubles of Gee Lee.

On the afternoon of the 25th inst., Sheriff W. B. Gould sold the stock of merchandise of Gee Lee, who was formerly a merchant of this place, to satisfy the claims of creditors.

This sale presents material for an interesting story, in which pathos would predominate. The facts, as near as could be gathered, are as follows:

Gee Lee, a celestial, came to Port Angeles from Victoria, and being pleased with the out look, from a business point of view, determined to open a store, and laid in a stock of Chinese goods, After successfully conducting his business for several months, the desire to visit friends in Victoria B. C., took possession of him, and he concluded to pay them a visit. He "reckoned without his host" (Uncle Sam), who during his absence. passed another and more rigid exclusion act. So, when Gee Lee thought that his visit was about up, he turned his face toward the home of his adoption, but when he was right into the gates thereof, he found them strongly barred by the new clause of the exclusion act, and doubly locked by the United States deputy collector, who had forgotten the combination, or had thrown the key into the Port Angeles harbor. and with the gathering of his lifetime on this side of the straits, he was forced to take up his abode on the other. Whereupon, the citizens of Port Angeles, feeling deeply the injustice which was being imposed upon the unfortunate Gee Lee, circulated a petition, in which the facts of the case, all and singular or in anywise belonging or appertaining thereunto, were setforth, and were accordingly laid before the proper authority at Port Townsend. In which petition the petitioners prayed that the collector of the United States customs at Port Townsend would remove the disabilities which weighed so heavily upon the shoulders of Gee Lee as to effectually prevent his return unto the beautiful city of Port Angeles. The collector being moved by the tender spirit concealed in the prayer, said: "Be it ordered and decreed, and it is ordered and decreed, that one, Gee Lee be allowed to pass unmolestrd into and beyond the portals which lead into the pleasant abiding place of Port Angeles.

Now, when the wanderer had again taken up the duties of merchandising, and began to wreath his features with those smiles which makes the celestial face outbeam the stars, then came down upon him one Lovell, from the land which is called Tacoma—but is not laid down upon the best projected maps—which lieth nigh unto the mount that people call by the same doubtful name, but in Seattle and elsewhere is called Mount Rainier. When it came to pass that Lovell knocked upon the door of Gee Lee's habitation a great fear and misgiving took possession of him, which was realized in a heap, when a writ of wonderous potency, for his arrest, was thrust upon him, and Gee Lee knew that his gig was up, and with a sorrowing heart he went with the officer, becoming a wanderer on the face of the earth, which ended with his return unto his own country, where he may hope to get even by flattening out a few of the Americans, who have permanently established themselves in his country, the celestial empire.

But the end is not yet, for one J. C. Murphy, a man skilled and learned in the law, and who loved him well, hath said otherwise, and otherwise it shall be.

Favorable Indications.

On the 24th and 25th inst. an unusal large amount of freight was received at the Laurel street wharf. The receipts of the two days amounting to a little less than one hundred tons. The Angeles discharged 205 sacks of potatoes, and 25 tons of miscellaneous merchandise, and the Haytian Republic landed about 50 tons. The Hermosa also had a large run of freight and a good passenger list.

Another Industry.

The following special in The Post-Intelligencer, of Wednesday, under a Portland date line, explains itself:

Thomas M. Rogers, who, with several eastern capitalists, incorporated the Willamette Stove Company on Monday, states that the company will erect its plant at Port Angeles, where they have been given a site for wharfage privileges, etc., by the citizens. The company will erect a plant at a cost of $50,000, that will give employment to about 100 men from the start. As the company is incorporated under the laws of this state the principal office will remain in Portland. Mr. Rogers expects to go to Port Angeles in ten days or two weeks to look over the ground for commencing preliminary work.

During the recent cruise of the warship San Francisco to Chili, one of her steam launches met with an accident and eleven of the crew almose lost their lives. This accident took place while the cruiser was lying in Callao harbor during her cruise along the coast.

The crew had received orders to drill with the torpedoes, and quite a large crowd of visitors was on board at the time. A target, composed of a number of pork barrels lashed together, was placed in the water about 600 yards from the ship, and a big steam launch, manned by a crew of 11 well-trained men, was ordered to destroy it. The order was carried out, and so effective was the work of the torpedo with which the work was done that the launch and her entire crew very nearly shared the same fate. The torpedo used is known as a "spar-torpedo," and was attached to the end of a 25 foot spar projecting from the bow of the launch.

The little steamer circled around the target at a distance of about 250 yards, and then the signal to attack was given. Every body on board the dozen vessels fixed their gaze on the boat as she headed for the target and rushed toward it a full speed. The end of the spar to which the torpedo was attached was lowered into the water as the launch neared the target, which was supposed to represent an enemy's vessel.

As the deadly weapon, charged with seventy-five pounds of dynamite, passed beneath the target, a low rumbling sound was heard and a vast column of water shot into the air to the height of over sixty feet.

By an oversight the boat was not backed when the torpeco was fired, and she rushed right under the vast body of water and went to the bottom in an instant.

A cry of horror rang out over the bay, and every boat in the ship was lowered and pulled as rapidly as possible to the spot where the unlucky crew were struggling in the water. Boats were also lowered from one of the Peruvian warships and from several merchant vessels, and were at once started for the spot where the launch had gone down.

By good fortune every man in the boat was a good swimmer, and as soon as the first shock was over they began swimming for their lives. The entire number was rescued, though several of them were nearly exhausted. Everyone bore cuts or bruises by coming in contact with the remnants of the demonished target, and it was several days before they recovered from the effects of the accident.

Next day divers went down and the launch was hoisted to the surface and taken on board the ship.—Seattle Telegraph.

IN THE COURTS.

Grindings of the Superior Court During the Week—New Cases—Probate Notes.

NEW CASES.

The following new cases have been filed since our last report:

No. 203. Susan Parks vs. Philo Parks—action for divorce. The plaintiff's tale as told by her attorney is the same old story of cruel treatment. She alleges that she was married to the defendant at the city of Tacoma. The plaintiff further alleges that she holds in her former name—Susan Leighton—three lots in this city and, since leaving her husband has acquired a possessory right to two reservation lots. She asks the court to dissolve the bonds of matrimony; to give her title to her property in her own name and to permit her to change her name to that of her children—Leighton. Her unruly husband apparently does not intend to fight the case, as he has filed waiver of service and agrees to a trial on December 16th, without answer.

No. 204, State vs. T. E. McGinity. Appeal from Justice Williams' court. This case was commenced before Justice C. W. Kennard, of Dungeness and taken to the court of Justice Williams of this place on a change of venue. The complaining witness, Hugh Barbour, swears that he had possession of a certain tract of government land in township 29, range 3, and the defendant entered the same unlawfully and tore down his fences and mowed his hay and took it unto himself. The defendant denies that Barbour has a legal possession. The jury, after hearing the evidene, said that Barbour's statement was correct, and Judge Williams fined him $50 and costs, from which McGinity appeals.

No. 205. Chas. L. Wilson vs. R. N. Wilson and E. E. Hopkins. Suit on promissory note for $135.45 and interest at 2 per cent, per month from Aug. 20, 1891, and $15 attorney's fee.

No. 206. Frank G. Jones vs. Warriner E. Smith. Plaintiff alleges that defendant agreed to pay $200 for certain carpenter work, that plaintiff did for defendent, that while the work was doing, certain alterations were made at defendant's request, making more work, which was reasonably worth $65.00 more than the original price agreed upon; also that the defendant has paid only $144 for the work and there is still due him $121 at 10 per cent. since November 28, 1890. He asks judgment for this and his costs.

BRIEFS.

Judgment has been entered in the case of W. L. Church vs. C. A. Foss, J. M. Grant and David Rushworth against defendants for $12.0 balance yet unpaid on the note, $19.60 costs and $35 attorney's fee, the defendants having paid the sum of $355 on the note since the suit had commenced.

Frederick A. Shaw, a native of Canada and Skookum Charley, alias Tse-amitan, Indian, have declared their intentions to become American citizens.

Bible Day.

The Baptists on last Sunday evening gave an entertainment at their church in the observance of Bible Day. Once a year the Baptists make a Sunday an occasion of special importance, and devote all the money raised on that day to the purchasing of bibles to be sent to all parts of the world where they are needed.

The concert was a success in all its features, and the program, which was carried out almost entirely by children under twelve years of age, was executed in a manner which did them great credit, considering the short time of rehersal allotted them, they having less than two weeks in which to learn their parts.

The contributions were reported as entirely satisfactory.

Reed, of Oakesdale got in the way of and impassioned speaker, who was denouncing Sutton, and the speaker, during a violent gesture, hit Reed in the mouth, knocking out a tooth. The speaker went on regardless of Reed's exclaimation of pain.

Sunday.

Fonseca has indignantly rejected the demand of the Rio Grande junta for his resignation, and stated that he would use all the means at his command to bring those whome he calls rebels to obedience, and is offering a large bounty and liberal pay for recruits. These are not hard to get among the large floating population of Rio de Janeiro, which include many desperate characters from all parts of the world, and these are taking service in Fonseca's army.

Great indignation has been aroused in Rio Grande at the prospect of having these mercenaries turned loose upon the people should Fonseca be victorious. A considerable portion of the men of the national guard incline to the revolution, while the officers hold out for Fonseca.

Negotiations between the two parties have ended, and both are preparing with the greatest speed for a trial at arms.

Captain Gustavus Crowell, for two years agent of the New York and Brazil steamship company at Para, said:

"It is difficult to tell what degree of reliability to give to news from Brazil, as the most of it comes through English channels. Any trifling local disturbance there is likely to be highly colored, if not magnified into a revolution.

"Cablegrams stated that the country is in a state of revolution. This is not true. All the troubles are to be attributed to Bsitish intrigue against the republic in order to overthrow it.

The reciprocity treaty between the United States and Brazil is bitterly opposed by British merchants, both in England and in Brazil. The treaty was hailed with delight by the Brazilians and with growing indignation from the English. Brazilians look to the United States for relief from the yoke of English capital, while English merchants are determined that the provisions of the reciprocity treaty shall not be carried out,

"They are doing this by seeking to prevent American merchants from bringing goods into Brazil, and by forbiding natives buying American goods under penalty of compelling such as are in debt to them to pay at once. Many are not in a condition to do this, and therefore are ocliged to obey the bidding of their British creditors to keep their own heads above water.

"This republic has come to stay. Brazil has abundantly capable and patriotic men who will bring her out of her present trouble, put these English capitalists to the right-about, and see to it that no obstacles are permitted to prevent the carrying out of the reciprocity treaty.

"So strong is the feeling against the British by the average Brazilian that a 'Boston tea party' could be organized in every port in Brazil, and I am not sure but it may come to this if the English capitalists do not keep themselves within ressonabl bonds."

A new steamship line is to be placed in operation between New York and Oregon and Puget Sound to consist of six vessels. The contract for the first of these steamers has already been awarded, and five more will soon be built.

Deputy Marshal Lovell sold 70 pounds of opium at Port Townsend today for $13.65 per pound.

News has been received from Brazil, that Rio de Janeiro is in a state of open revolt against the dictator, Marshal da Fonseca, and that the people of taat city are clamoring for his overthrow. Another and later dispatch from Rio de Janeiro says Fonseca resigned in favor of Floriano Philotto.

Gold has been found in the dry creeks in the vicinity of Elizabeth, Col. Two men with sluices in 60 hours took out four ounces of coarse gold, almost pure.

At Sioux City, Iowa, Della Johnson attempted suicide by swallowing two ounces of laudnaum. The girl had been leading a life of shame. Three weeks ago she went to Yankton, and became intimate with a young man of the same surname. Later they discovered that they were brother and sister. The young man fled in despair, and the woman sought to destroy herself, but was saved.

The Brooklyn Jockey Club offer for the Brooklyn handicap, a mile and a quarter, a stake of $25,000, with same amount for the suburban handicap. The great American two-year-old stake is worth $20,000.

Wednesday.

News of Fonseca's resignation has been received at Porto Alegre and Rio Grande du Sul with the wildest rejoicing. At Porto Alegre, people went about embracing each other, and shouting for the republic. The popular feeling is strongly against secession. No doubt is entertained that the junta will come to a peaceful understanding that will restore Rio Grande to its place among Brazilian states. All hostile preparations were abandoned, and everybody appeared to recognize the end of the war.

The executive committee of the national Democratic committee, is called to convene in Washington, Dec. 8. Much interest centers in where the democratic convention will be held. The following cities are already in the field and have solicited the support of members of the committee: Washington City, New York, Detroit Cincinnatti, Baltimore, Chicago and Minneapolis. It is understood that Detroit and New York intend to put forward the most strenuous efforts to secure the convention.

CHILI MAKES CONCESSIONS.

Captain Schley Admired for his Dignified Behavior.

The fiery sentiment which has prevailed against the Americans has cooled down, and the Chilians talk more rationally regarding the American request for redress. There is a growing disposition to see that justice is done to those who assaulted the American sailors, and of whom, two were killed, The report telegraphed from New York, that a formidable fleet said to be on its way to Pacific waters, undoubtedly had something to do with the change of sentiment at Valparaiso. The people not being anxious for a bombardment, coming to the conclusion that the United States is in earnest, and will not be deterred by the interference of other nations in behalf of Chili.

Consequently Americans are treated with more consideration and there is no disposition to do violence to American officers or seamen.

Captain Schley's conduct meets with universal praise. He has been calm and deliberate under the most provoking circumstances. He has won the respect of the lower as well as the higher classes.

The evidence in the preliminary inquiry as to the attack on the sailors, is said to be complete. The Chilian method of examination is somewhat peculiar. The magistrate has each person, accused or under suspicion, brought before him separately and without council. In some instances physical torture is applied, although the law forbids it.

Sullivan to Slavin.

Sullivan's chalenge to Slavin has resulted in reviving interest in pugilism from one end of the country to the other. Slavin has not yet accepted the Boston man's proposition but says that he will do nothing until he arrives in this country. He expects to sail from England on the steamer Germanic on November 29. In regard to the match between Slavin and Sullivan it is announced that it will take place in San Francisco. If the battle comes off in 'Frisco it will be held in the Pacific club, for that institution has better facilities for giving such a contest than the California club.

STORIES OF A BIG TOWN.

Some of the Tales Told After Dark Down town.

At 7 o'clock in the evening I crossed Park Row from the Pulitzer building, and on the curbstone stood a fairly dressed young man, who said:

"I should like to speek to you a moment."

"All right."

"I came here from Buffalo, expecting to get work at my trade—harness-making. I haven't hit a job, and am dead broke."

"How many men have you struck this evening?"

"You are the first."

"What sort of a scale or system do you go on?"

"Well, sir, I said to myself that I would tackle the first one who came across the street after the bells had struck seven. You were the first."

"How much did you figure the first man would give you?"

"A quarter, sir."

"You were off in your arithmetic. I've seen you around here all summer, and you never tell the same story twice. However, here's a dime."

Half way across City Hall Park I met an oldish man who was very poorly dressed, and who stopped me to say:

"I'm expecting a letter with money in it from Washington to-turn in at once."

At the corner of Broadway and Chambers street No. 3 showed up. He was a boy about ten years of age.

"Please sir, mother is very sick," he said as he came up.

"Is it the same mother you had last May?"

"Y-yes, sir."

"Same sickness?"

"Yes, sir."

morrow, but meanwhile I don't know what I am to do to-night."

"Is your home in Washington?"

"Yes sir. I am a house painter, and came here to look for work."

"Which way does Pennsylvania avenue run?"

"Which way? Run? Why, sir, it never occurred to me to notice."

"On what street is the White House?"

"White House? Really, but—but—it has slipped my mind."

"In other words you were lying to me. However, everybody lies, anp its no worse for you than the balance of mankind. Why did you let the man ahead of me go past you?"

"Well, sir, I decided to take every seventh man, and you were the seventh. I am shaking with the cold, and if you could spare me fifteen cents I will get a bowl of soup and,

"Having a pretty long pull of it isn't she?"

He backed off about five feet and stood and looked at me me and seemed ready to bolt at the slightest alarm.

"Look here, boy, you are an imposter, but you needn't run away. You have simply to keep it up as you grow in years, and the world will call you a sharp man and help you to get rich. Will ten cents do?"

"Yes, sir."

"How are you working this thing?"

"Oh, I'm speaking to most everybody."

I met No. 4 at the corner of Leonard street. It was a woman who was lame, gray-haired and at least sixty years old.

"Please, sir, but won't you help me to get a doctor's prescription filled?" she queried.

"Certainly; where is the prescription?"

"It's—it's at home, sir."

"Is it for yourself?"

"Yes, sir. I've been in a very bad way for several weeks."

"All right. I'll go home with you to get the prescription, and then we'll go to a drug store."

"But it's a mile from here," she protested.

"That's only a pleasant walk. Come on.

She stood still, however. The prescription was only a fake, and she felt that I knew it. She had turned to go away, when I said:

"See here, grandma, what is a falsehood in your case would be would be only a trick of trade with some merchants. But why don't you try a different plan? You are old and poor, and no one can expect you to work. Ask for charity because it is really due an almost helpless old woman."

"Well, sir, I will. How much will you give a poor old woman who is no longer able to work?"

"A quarter. See? No one cares particularly whether you are rich or well, but the great majority do have respect for old age and sympathy for an old woman. Stick to this line and see if you don't come out better."

"Thanks, sir—I will, sir."

No. 5 was encountered at the corner of Canal street. There were but pedestrians abroad and he saw me while yet a long ways off and made ready for the attack.

"If you will be so kind, sir," he began.

"Well?"

"I want to raise enough money to get up to Albany, where I have a son living, and where I can be taken care of. I have very poor health, sir."

"What's your son's name?"

"William sir."

"What street does he live on?"

"On—on—why, sir, on—well, it has slipped my mind just now, but I'll soon think of it. I lived there for ten years, but my head bothers me lately."

"What river is Albany on?"

"River! River! Come, sir, but don,t expect too much of me with my poor head."

"As a matter of fact you were never in Albany—your son dosn't live there—you don't want to go there, and what you are really after is a nip of whiskey. Of course it is. You haven't had any to-day, and being an old soaker you tremble for the want of a bracer. Why don't you state the case as it is?"

"Would you give me anything?"

"I would. Here's a couple of nickles. You are too old to be reformed. You are of no use, and the sooner you are out of the way the better. The oftener you drink the sooner you will peg out. Two nips will make you happy. When one man can make another happy for ten cents it ought to be a pleasure to do it. Well, why don't you make for a saloon?"

"Why, sir, it don't seem exactly right, sir," he replied, as he held the nickles in his open palm.

"In other words you object to having the case stated that way?"

"It sounds bad, sir."

"Exactly. Nothing hurts us more than to have our failing and weaknesses called by their proper terms. No matter how many vices we have, we flatter ourselves that we are hiding them from all others. It was whiskey you wanted and I have given you the money to buy it."

"Yes, sir, but"—

"Oh, as to what I said about your being too old to turn over a new leaf, you must agree that an old bum of fifty-five has very little show. And as to your pegging out, have you any valid excuse for living any longer? Come, now, advance one single excuse if you can."

He bent down and laid the coins on the flagstones and rising up without a word or look towards me, he walked off down Canal street. I called to him, but he didn't even turn his head or slacken his pace.

This story about Senator Dubois of Idaho is going the rounds, says the New York Tribune: Shortly after he had reached Idaho he was engaged one day with a number of other men in slaughtering cattle. Naturally he presented a most untidy appearance; blood and grease smeared his clothes. A buckboard containing two ladies and two gentlemen drove up. They had come from a neighering town. The vehicle halted probably fifty yards from young Dubois, and one of the gentlemen beckoned him to come to them. As Dubois approached, one of the gentlemen noticed his truculent appearance and called to him to stop, saying that he would go to him, knowing that the ladies would be shocked by the sight of the young Illinoisan. He inquired the direction to some point they wanted to make. A few months ago Senator Dubois appointed that very man his private secretary.

The Washerwoman's Revenge.

Mr. De Sharp (anxiously)—I inadvertently sent my cuff buttons to the wash last week. Did you find them?

Washerwoman—Sure, Oi saw a couple in th' tub' but I had no time to be fishin' around for brass cuff buttons, an' Oi t'rew them away.

Mr. De Sharp (in horrified accents)—Threw them away! Those buttons were pure gold.

Washerwoman — Moy! moy! That's too bad. Oi never thought a young man wot was always beatin' down a poor washerwoman's prices cud afford to wear goold.—[New York Weekly.

Big Money Spent In Ohio.

Mr. Kirby Smith thus explained the recent Republican victory in Ohio to a Republic reporter at the Southern: "Within two weeks after the nomination of McKinley the Republicans began their work in the state. They singled out the most prominent Democrat in each township known to be weak in the knees and they piled him with the argument that there was no politics in it. Either he must support his friends, who wanted high tariff or he must work against his own and their interests. After sounding him, the next step was to offer him money, $500, $1,000, $2,000—yes, even as high as $5,000—to vote his township for McKinley. If their victim pleaded that he was a Democrat, he was answered that it was a question of tariff or anti-tariff; that politics cut no figure. Why, the corporations and manufacturers of the state of Ohio coughed up $50,000 for the campaign; barrels of money was sent in from New York. I will venture to say that over $1,000,000 was spent in the state by the Republicans. The Dackworth Club, of which Campbell is a member, knifed Campbell, and over 75 per cent. of their number are being investigated on the charge now. Why, $100,000 was raised to defeat Campbell in Hamilton county. Over $200,000 was raised by the manufacturers of Pittsburg. It was a campaign of money—boodle on the Republican side, and the tariff and silver questions neither made nor unmade Campbell."—St. Louis Republic.
