SECOND MATE'S STORY.

The Governor Wilmot's Crew Steal a Boat and Seek the Shore to Escape Further Persecution—A "Democrat" Reporter Interviews the Captain.

The British ship Governor Wilmot arrived in the harbor of Port Angeles Thursday. Saturday night, at 8 o'clock, nine of her crew of ten stole a boat and came ashore, and told a most pitiful tale of abuse and mistreatment on the part of Captain Morris. The tenth man being too sick to be taken from the ship.

The Governor Wilmot belongs in St. Johns, New Brunswick, and shipped her crew at Manilla. The second mate, an American, was shipped in an Australian port and acted as spokesman for the crew. From the mate's statement it appears that the captain's abuse began in the harbor of Accapulco, where, without provocation, he seized a shovel and with it knocked the mate overboard. At that time a number of the crew were sick and totally unfit for work, and so the captain was advised by two physicians, but notwithstanding this, they were turned out to regular work. When the mate went ashore—by instructions of the captain—to lay his case before the American consul, and to bring a charge against the captain of attempting to kill him, the captain had him arrested and confined in jail, until the ship was ready to sail, then he was released and returned on board. It was his habit and pleasure to strike his men with any weapon which was convenient, and during the entire voyage from Accapulco his treatment of the crew was characterized by the greatest brutality. Before leaving Accapulco, and while the second mate was in jail, the captain entered his quarters and from it removed the towels, clothing and several other articles. The negro cook's blankets were appropriated by the captain, and since have been used upon the bed occupied by himself and wife. Men whom he had injured were not allowed to quit work long enough to remove the blood from their bodies and were forced to continue in the performance of their regular duties.

The mate claimed also that the food given them was unfit for human beings, as noting fresh had supplied their messes, only one mess of fresh bread being given them on the entire voyage.

THE DEMOCRAT reporter then asked to be shown some evidence of this abuse, and with one accord the men began rolling up the legs of their trousers.

The first to be examined was an old man, probably of fifty years, and his right leg presented a sight that was a verification of all that had been told. Half way between the knee and the ankle was a sore, probably caused by scurvy, of oval shape which extended over nearly half the circumferance of his leg, and was two inches wide, presenting a sickening sight, and higher up on the calf was another nearly as large. Both were very much inflamed, and showed the man to be in a deplorable condition. This, however, was not the extent of the old man's injuries, for upon exposing his groin, a rupture was seen, claimed to have been received while in the performance of his duties.

The old man stated that through all his ills he was forced to work from 4 o'clock in the morning until 7 in the evening.

After the old man had exhibited himself, two others began to roll up their trousers, but the sight was too much, and only one was examined. If possible he was in a condition even worse than that of the old man.

The sick sailor who remained on board, asked the captain to send him a physician, which the captain promised to do, but failed, and the sick man, though in easy reach of medical skill, was denied it.

The first mate is the only one of the crew who did not come ashore—except the man who was sick—the second mate alleges that he stood in too much fear of the captain, and when spoken to by him, showed by his action that he expected a blow to accompany the words.

Sunday morning Captain Morris was seen on board the Governor Wilmot and was asked to make a statement of his side of the case, but he declined to do so. When told of the second mate's charge of having been knocked overboard with a shovel by him, in the harbor of Accapulco, he would make no denial of it.

When asked about the physical condition of the crew he answered the reporter's questions in regard to the nature and cause of the disease in such a manner as to imply that their bad condition was due to immoral habits.

The captain then turned questioner, and asked what had become of his men? and evinced no surprise when the reporter informed him that they had left Port Angeles Saturday night on the Angeles for Port Townsend in charge of a boarding boss from the latter place, who came here for them on the Geo. E. Starr. To which information he replied: "Well if I get a hold of them again," and his eyes danced with the immaginary pleasure of again having the unfortunate creatures in his power.

The first mate was asked for a statement, but declined to give one, saying that he had a family and could not afford to talk and implied that he would adopt vigorous means in righting his wrongs when the proper time and opportunity for such action arrived.

THE COUNTY ROAD.

What the Port Crescent Leader has Heard and Thinks.

The Port Crescent Leader of last week, gives the county road matters an airing. Its descriptions of rumors and reports in the Port Crescent country compares well with THE DEMOCRAT'S review of the matter in its issue of November 6th. We quote from that paper:

Work has been practicably completed on this division of the county road, in this vicinity. It has been carried as far west as Contractor Burlingame means to cary it—which leaves it within 2,100 feet of a junction with the old county road, and consequently of about as much use to the people of this neighborhood, as would be a tissue paper fan to a suffering sinner in Hades.

The Leader has been informed that Mr. Burlingame's force has carried the road westward to within less than a half-mile of the old county road, and called it to a finish; that the men have been faced about, and are now working back toward the Elwha, where work on the bridge is being pushed as rapidly as possible, and that this division of the road will be finished within two weeks.

It is the Leader's understanding that Mr. Burlingame has extended the road about as far westward as it was originally understood it could be built, at the contract price, with the money available for use in this division.

But it also understands that, in building the road westward from the Elwha, the original location has been so changed as to shorten the distance to the stopping point south of Port Crescent a full half-mile; so that, if the road is extended the full number of miles originally designed, a junction with the existing county road can be readily effected, and the new road be made of some use to the people for whose convenience and benefit it has been, presumably built.

This is a matter that deserves the earliest possible attention at the hands of the Commissioners. If they can see their way clear to causing the completion of this vital half-mile link, they should have Contractor Burlingame finish the work at once.

If the old and new roads are united, the people of this vicinity will have a continuous highway from Port Crescent to Port Angeles; one that will afford an outlet to a great many settlers, between here and the Elwha; one that will be a public convenience.

The Commissioners now have a fine opportunity to exert themselves in the interests of the people in this matter; to publicly show that the people, as well as the contractors, have some rights that can be enforced.

Will they do it?

***

The Leader has been deluged with ill reports of all sorts about the new road; about the faulty manner of its construction; about its serpentine character and its great respect for large stumps, to which it courteously yields the right-of-way, skirting them to the right and left; to the insufficient manner in which the cavernous holes, from which stumps have been blown, are filled in, and in one of which mud-pits two of Mr. Burlingame's best mules sank entirely from sight; to the crude and wretched way in in which culverts are put in—culverts so inadequate that many ot them are now filled up, to the serious damage of the road bed; to the faulty manner in which side hill cuts and fills were made; to the stretches of floating puncheon on what are considered finished sections of what some bold, bad taxpayers are wont to call the "County Scow Line," and to the present condition of the road from the effects of land slides, and complaints on other scores. But it refrains from airing these kicks, at this time, believing that the Commissioners will give every foot of the road a thorough inspection before accepting any part of it, and will see to it that, in every particular, the work is completed according to contract.

SHIPPING OUTLOOK

The Governor Wilmont in our Harbor for Orders

PORT ANGELES FAVORED

Many Ships are in San Francisco Awaiting Orders—Went There With Coal Expecting to get Wheat Cargoes—Angeles is a Favorite.

The British ship Governor Wilmot was in the harbor a few days last week, having been ordered to this port from Accapulco, Mexico. Her officers report a very distressing condition of the shipping trade, and believe it to have been caused directly by the internecine troubles in the different South American republics.

For the past two years there has been unusual activity in the trade between the entire Pacific coast, and all the South American states, which latter have been building railways, and have drawn upon this country for the largest part of all material used. Nearly all the ties used in Chili and Peru have been furnished by Puget Sound, and several cargos have doubled Cape Horn for Brazil.

The greater number of the vessels engaged in this trade have returned to the United States in ballast, but still made their voyages profitable to their owners.

There is said to be more vessels in the harbor of San Francisco waiting for cargos which they cannot get, than have been seen for years. Many of them left Puget Sound with coal, which, at the same time last year in San Francisco was worth fifteen dollas per ton, the immense quantity delivered by these carriers reduced the price to seven dollas. Ships were induced to load coal for San Francisco by the hope of obtaining a cargo of wheat for a foreign port, having heard reports of an immense crops in California, which has turned out to be a very ordinary one so. it is expected that many will be ordered to Puget Sound, as offering better opportunities for an early commission, with the resonable expectation that unusual activity will scon be noticed in the lumber trade, which certainly must appear in the early spring, if not sooner.

It was also learned that Port Angeles is rapidly growing in favor with ships owners in every part of the world, affording, as it does, a perfect harbor, telegraphic connections, and geographically the gateway for the whole country tributary to Puget sound, consequently it may be soon expected that vessels o every nationality will find anchorage in our harbor.

Under the present circumstances but few vessels can enter this harbor with the expectation of leaving it with a cargo, as those resources which would furnish cargoes, are yet in an undeveloped condition, though, that they have an existance is a fact and not an hypothesis.

THE NEWS.

The Americans in Valparaiso are not satisfied with the result of the investigation by Judge of Crimes Foster. The Chilian government being willing to let matters take their course just as if the killing of American seamen was an ordinary circus, to be treated in an ordinary manner. There is no appearance of any disposition to comply with the request of the United States for satisfaction, and the indications are that this attitude will be presistently adhered to.

John Dougherty, an oil well driller, of Waresburg, Pa, was a Democrat, and made a bet with a Republican that Campbell would defeat McKinley in Ohio. The loser was to climb to the top of an oil derrick, 72 feet high, and remain there from 6 in the morning until 6 in the evening. Dougherty climbed the derrick Saturday morning and remained there all day, though the rain poured down. On the following day he was seized with violent pneumonia, brought on by the exposure, and his death resulted.

The London Globe in its comments upon Lord Salisbury's Birmingham speech, among other remarks says; "His discussion on the subject of free trade should at least have the effect of educating the masses to a knowledge of the fact that a tariff is certain, according to all precedents, to involve the unfair treatment of farmers as compared with other classes.

Cruisers No. 12 and 13 of Uncle Sam's new navy will be ideal types of commerce destroyers. The Pirate, of 7,600 tons burden, will be able to steam to San Francisco on the coal in her bunkers with which she leaves New York. Not another warship afloat can do this. No captain worthy to command either of them could think of engaging a warship on the high sea, but they will be strong enough to attack any steam vessel built for trading purposes that might be armed in time of war.

The Pirate, for example, might be sent into the English channel and stay there for four weeks without recoaling. She could be kept away from ironclad vessels sent in search of her and could destroy every ship that put to sea or returned to that friendly haven. She will be rapid enough to overhaul any merchantman. The Pirate can spurt for six or eight hours faster than the fastest trans-Atlantic lineas.

A dispatch from Rutland, Vt., says reliable information confirms that the president has decided to appoint General Lewis A. Grant assistant secretary of war, to the secretaryship made vacant by the resignation of Redfield Proctor.

IDEAL MAN.

Lives there a man whom God and Nature
Have so endowed with every grace,
That he might reign 'mong men ideal?
In heart, and mind, and form and face,
All but perfected; waiting only
The touch of an inspiring hand
To wake within each holy passion?
'Tis not apparel nor dwelling grand,
Epicurean viands, nor wines ambrosial
That clothe and nurture such a one.
With form and face of passing beauty,
Made radiant (as, when the morning sun
Shining on the misty mountain tops
Reveals the spotless snow beneath),
By thoughts that glow within his bosom
And shed their light with every breath.

Filled with but the purest motives,
Inspired to act by noblest pride,
Withall as gentle as a woman.
Happy she, who by his side
May walk through life: whose every sorrow
Meets sympathy from the tenderest heart,
Well may she say, with pride: "My husband."
A joy has she, that will ne'er depart.

THE CITY ELECTION.

The most important city election in the history of Port Angeles will be held on Tuesday, next. On the officers to be elected on that day will devolve great responsibility. The period of their incumbancy will be a time when the city's affairs should be in the hands of experienced, capable and trustworthy officers.

The voters should exercise exceeding care in making up their ballots. There is good material in the field for all the offices, and the electors should by all means avoid combinations, no matter how plausible and complicated, and vote their own individual sentiments. This done, and the city will be in competent hands during the year. There are candidates in plenty to choose from.

For the contested positions the result cannot be predicated with any degree of certainty.

For mayor, however, after Monday's convention, it took no prophet to forsee the election of N. R. Smith. He developed strength in the second ward that surprised even his friends. The convention was called by those who were supposed to be opposed to his candidacy, and in favor of that of E. H. Foster. But despite this, Mr. Smith had a decisive majority against Foster. It is certain that our next mayor will be N. R. Smith. Mr. Smith has a large acquaintance all over the nation and will give Angeles a great deal of free advertising.

The hard fight will be in selecting ward councilmen and the councilmen at large. For the latter position there are three candidates. Thomas Malony, Citizen, D. P. Quinn, People, and L. H. Smith, Independent. These are all well known citizens. L. H. Smith has made a success of the hardware business in the city and made many friends by his uniform geniality. D. P. Quinn is the pioneer real estate agent of the city. He has made a competency in that business in the city and is popular.

Thomas Malony as president of the Puget Sound Co-operative Colony, has proven himself a man of exceptional business tact and foresight. Since he has been in his present office the Colony has become the chief business concern of the county. From a business standpoint Mr. Malony is pre-eminently fitted for the position to which he aspires.

THE COUNTY ROAD.

The Port Crescent Leader is right. The County Commissioners should carefully examine every foot of the county road before accepting it. There is undoubtedly parts of the road, at least, that should be further improved before it is paid for, and the Commissioners will be only doing what the people expect of them if they do not see that it is all fully up to the specifications. On account of the unfavorable sale made of the bonds the county will have to pay dearly enough for their road before it is finished; and are therefore entitled to at least as good a road as the surveyor's specifications demand.

P. F. KIERNAN.

The unanimous renomination of P. F. Kiernan for city treasurer by both the Citizen's and People's city conventions is a deserved and well-merited compliment to that gentleman.

Mr. Kiernan has proven himself a competent, painstaking and conscientious official. Always courteous and affable, Mr. Kiernan is a man of ability, and one who never forgets to be a gentleman. He is the right man in the right place. His election is assurred.

PERU is still smarting from the blows inflicted by Chili in their last unpleasantness, and so deeply regrets and severely feels the loss of the nitrate bids, that the sentiment now in Peru is very unfriendly to Chili, and the United States stock is above par.

Peruvians intimate that their country would put a chip on her shoulder and dare Chili to knock it off, provided always, however, that the United States would pick it up, pool issues and recieve substantial aid from Peru.

IN the last issue of THE DEMOCRAT appeared sixteen columns of reading matter set up in its own composing room. This is several columns more than any other paper in the county has had.

THE (weakly) daily promised its subscribers something on the city election in its first issue. That something has failed to appear. Evidently Monday's convention did not pan out to suit that paper (?).

The Tumwater Hill.

PORT ANGELES, Dec. 2d, 1891.

EDITOR DEMOCRAT: As there is some talk, or rather some agitation, as to repairing the Tumwater street hill, I would like to express my views on the matter, as I live on the road, and feel deeply interested and will continually have to pay to keep the road in good condition.

Mr. Goodwin suggests the planking of the present road up the hill, which by-the-way, is principally on deeded property, and in the course of one year, with the heavy traveling over it, it will have to be repaired. All of which I think is useless expense.

Tumwater street runs to the bay, north and south, Fourth street crosses Tumwater. On Fourth street is the present road as far as Tumwater. When Fourth leaves the hill and crosses the creek, the road continuing on deeded property.

Now, why not cut out to the street Tumwater between Fourth and Third streets, thus putting the road on public domain, and make a good, substantial road, clear of mud, that could be traveled at all times regardless of the weather.

I feel safe in saying that by so doing every dollar so spent would be of lasting benefit to the city and county.

I think this improvement could be done for less than $600.

If the city and county, as they both claim part of said street, combine on this matter, and issue warrants for this work, and will raise those warrants as taxes, and let the good work go on, giving the community, both city and county, the benefit of a good road, which has already been neglected too long.

I have given this matter some consideration, probably more than anyone else.

A Narrow Escape.

On the 2nd. inst., while Captain Fano of the Salvation Army, was delivering a skiff load of eight sacks of potatoes to the Governor Wilmot, a sudden squall came up which completely swamped his boat.

While lying on the lee side all was well with him, but it was necessary to move around to the weather side of the Wilmont in order to deliver the potatoes at the companion way.

In rounding the ship's stern a white-cap broke over the skiff which filled her full, and caused the loss of the eight sacks of potatoes.

Captain Fend and his companion had a very narrow escape, as, he reports it, the men of the Wilmot were too much enfeebled by the lack of proper food, and recent illness, to afford them very prompt or efficient assistance. It requiring four of the Wilmont's men to drag one out of the water.

They were returned ashore by the Wilmont's boat, wet and sadder than when they went out.

Willamette Stove Works.

Messrs. Rodgers and Wollenweber, two of the principal stockholders in the Willamette Stove works, of Portland have been thoroughly looking the city over for a suitable site for their plant, and Col. Coolican is expected to arrive upon each boat, and upon his arrival the purchase of the property will be closed as the gentlemen have about four locations, all of which will answer the purpose. Their final selection will depend upon the price asked for the property. They claim that they will be able to begin the manufacture of stoves within 60 days from date of purchase, And their pay roll will amount to two thousand dollars per week.

Besides the advantage to be gained from a business point of view, the gain socially in the companionship of these agreable gentlemen will be beyond estimate.

One Can't Help Thinking.

It is said that the Searles will case is to be settled by private agreement and that the relict of the late Mrs. Hopkins-Searles will divide with adopted son Timothy, giving him the trifling sum of $10,000,000 or so. It seems probable that both of these worthy gentlemen will have enough to prevent there being a public charge. One can but think, however how many orphan asylums, kindergartens, homes for the friendless and aged people, hospitals, libraries and other necessary institutions this magnificent fortune might have endowed.

Ment in Kindness.

A policeman had told two old vags sitting on a bench in Union Square to move on, and as I followed them toward Fourteenth street one of them said to the other:

"Jim, I think he means us kindly."

"Yes I think he do."

"He knows that we'd be apt to sit there untill we got a chill, and then pneumonia and death might follow."

"That's it."

"Whereas, if he tells us to move on we keep our blood in circulation, avoid all danger, and are spared to our friends and the world."

"That's correct."

"Which was very kindly of him indeed, Jim, and if it so happens that we meet him again, we'll impress it on his mind that we know how to feel gratefull, even if we bean't hightoned or rich." — M. Quad.

The First National Bank is not in it. It has ordered its advertisements out of THE DEMOCRAT. Competition has evidently been too much for it. The Bank of Port Angeles, however, still does business at the old stand.

News of the Week.

Parson Davis has received a telegram from London saying that Slavin had signed articles for a fight with Jackson and that they have been forwarded for the latter's signature. Slavin will sail from the old country December 9. Jackson has also written that he will be ready to leave San Francisco as soon as necessary and be prepared to sign any arrangements they have made for him.

Thomas Kane, mail carrier between Fairhaven and Beach, was drowned in the bay Saturday afternoon. He left Fairhaven in a boat for Beach, with the mail Saturday morning, arrived there and started on the return trip in the afternoon. That was the last seen of him. As he did not return that evening or Sunday a search was instituted, which resulted in the finding of his boat at the mouth of the river, drifting with the sails dragging and full of water. The bay was rough and Kane was an inexperienced sailor. He was 35 years old not unmarrted.

Saturday.

Dr. Mott Smith, a member of the cabinet of the queen of the Hawaiian islands, was sent to Washington City some time ago to secure modifications of the reciprocity treaty between Hawaii and this government, has concluded his work. His efforts have resulted in the negotiation of an entirely new treaty, which provides for absolute free trade between the two governments in the products and manufactures of both countries.

The treaty has been signed by Dr. Smith and by the representatives of the United States, through whom the negotiations were carried on. It has been in the possession of the president for several days, but has not yet been signed by him.

At the eastern sale of thoroughbreds at Lexington, Ky., to-day, imported Loyalist, a full brother of Paracoz, brought $12,000. He was bought by General Jackson, of Tennessee.

There is liable to be a serious dispute over the boundary between the United States and British Columbia. A strip of thirty miles, forming a portion of the state of Washingtan, and in which is situated a large portion of the town of Blaine, is claimed by the Dominion. The treaty provides that the line shall follow the 49th parallel and in 1860 the boundary was marked by the commissioners of the two countries. When they reached the point of difference the British commissioners found the line and the Americans found another further south. The latter yielded and the present line was established. The British commissioners afterward claimed that their instruments had become deranged.

Valparaiso advices state that the American war vessel Yorktown is an object of considerable curiosity and crowds from the vicinity of Valparaiso are visiting the harbor to see the new arrival. The Baltimore men are delighted to be relieved of their isolated condition, and now feel, some of them say, as if they were not afraid of anything the Chilians might do. The Amdrican uniform ashore is treated with more respect than ever, and the Chilian police are rather over-officious in seeing that American sailors are not annoyed. The latter, by special orders from their officers, are careful to have as little contact as possible with the Chilians. All appear to be in doubt as to the future and no formal verdict has yet been rendered by the judge of the court of crimes as to the killing of the Baltimore's sailors. The Chilian war vessels have been taking some firing practice, and it is acknowledged on all sides that, although splendidly equipped, they are utterly inefficient compared with the American gunners.

Guatemala is going to fortify its frontier. Forts are to be built between that state and San Salvador, and the powder for the guns is going from San Francisco. Next Monday the schooner Neptune will go into the stream and load powder for San Jose de Gautemala.

Foreign gold has been actually dumpted into San Francisco during the past few months. It has arrived in the form of English soverigns from the Australian banks. The records show that during the past few months over $7,000,000 worth of gold sovereigns has arrived from the Sidney and Auckland banks. The Mariposa, which arrived from Australia Thanksgiving day, brought over nearly $3,000,000 worth of sovereigns, and yesterday the bulk of them were received at the United States mint on Fifth street. All the sovereigns are recoined into $20 gold pieces at the mint and go in circulation here.

At Stockton, Cal., Direct Salisbury's great pacer, 2:06, was started to beat his own and the world's record. At the last trial he was rated too fast to the half, which was madt in 1:01½. Today he was rated too slow. He made the first quatrer in 0:32½, the half in 1:04½ the third in 1:36, and the mile in 2:07, making the last quarter in 31 seconds and coming in strong. His performance, although a failure, demonstrates the fact that it is in him to beat his 2:06 if ce can get to the half in the right time. He paced a second mile in 2:06.

The commissioners of Skagit county have sold $250,000 worth of school land in that county, some of the land bringing as high as $126 per acre.

Brazil's new president, Peixotto, has ordered the cheif of the army force to return to Rio Grande De Sul, and essue a manifest that the revolution in that state be stoped at once.

It is reported that insurgents are not inclined to comply with the President's demands.

Sunday.

On authority of an official holding a high position in Santiago, the Chilian government has no intention whatever of offering an apology or indemnity such as the American president requested and had no intention of modifying the reply given the American request, and that any expectation that President Montt, would in this respect, modify the policy adopted by the junta was misleading. The president himself it is said, was the most earnest advocate in the junta of a defiant retort to the United States and virtually dictated the answer sent to Minister Egan.

Official returns show that since June 1, 40,000 Russian Jews have been forwarded through German ports to North and South America.

A lively earthquake visited several localities on the Sound yesterday afternoon between 3 and 3:30 o'clock. No serious damage is reported.

The accident which occured at Eagle George on the 25th inst. was attended by the loss of a score or more of lives. The accident was occasioned by the railroad bosses, who were employing a large number of men in removing the debris of land slide which occured last winter, and to save expense, had put the men to undermining the bluff instead of working it down from the top, by thimethod it seems their deliberate intention was to percipitate the embankment into the river, and when the moment arrived for the immense quantity of earth to move, it was the order for everyone to lookout for himself. Twenty-five or thirty men were buried in the stream. A small effort was made to remove the dead, which lasted but a few minutes, when the order was given to "clear the track," when those who had escaped were compelled to throw the dirt from the track onto that which already buried their unfortunate companions. Great indignation is felt everywhere over such inhuman treatment.

Monday.

Foreman Murray, who had charge of the men working on Eagle Gorge slide, at the time of the second disaster, in which so many lives were lost, says that at the time of the disaster there were sixty-two men at work, and thinks that probably twenty were buried by the slide. It is believed that thirty-five of the men were sent out from Seattle.

The brig Tahiti is lost with 400 Gilbert-Islanders on board, who were going to Mexico under a contract to work on coffee plantations.

Why Big Jim Didn't Shoot.

IT RECENTLY fell to my lot to pass a Sunday in a small Kansas town, and as it was a wet day I was forced to remain for the greater part of it cooped up in the little hotel. The house had no other guest, and so, for the want of other company, I went to the office and entered into conversation with the landlord, a tall, sun-bronzed, leather-featured man past middle age, who, I soon learned, had spent many years in the west, and who had seen some rough, as well as interesting experiences, and who was chuck full of reminiscences.

After we had talked for a couple of hours on various subjects, my host suddenly remarked:

"I reckon, stranger, you've heard tell of Jim Dixon, or more likely 'Big Jim,' as we allus called him?"

"No, I think not," I was compelled to admit, though I realized from the tone in which the question was asked that it was a humiliating admission to make.

"Never?" the landlord repeated. "Wal, that's strange. Thought shorely ever'body knowed 'bout Jim. He was the foremost man on the border, an' he made a record that'll stand a good many years. He was a great man, Jim was, a wonderful feller, shore. Tough! oh my, stranger, I reckon he was. He wasn't afeard of nothin', an' I guess the happiest time he ever knowed was when he was mixed up in a shootin' scrape. Thar's no tellin' how many men Jim killed first an' last, for he was so reckless, he'd jest pop 'em over at the crook of a finger, an' didn't no more keer for it than nothin'. 'Twixt you and me, stranger, I think Jim carried the shootin' business a leetle too fer. I like fer a man to stand up fer his rights, and if a feller needs drappin', why then drap 'im; but there ain't no call fer gettin' too blamed promisc'us 'bout it an puttin' a hole through a chap jest fer the fun of it.

"I reckon, stranger, ever' man what Jim made up his wind to kill caught it, 'cept one an' that one, I guess, was the last one he ever laid off to plant."

"Jim caught it that time himself, eh?" I suggested.

"No, he didn't," the landlord replied in a tone of slight disgust. "Narry time, sir. Jim wasn't the man to be planted premachoorly, an' the feller that could drap 'im never lived."

"How did it happen that he didn't kill the man you speak of, then?" I asked.

"Wal, sir, it was a quire piece of business, that was, an' one o' the most techin' things I ever see. I never knowed a fellow so broke up in all my life as Jim was, an', sir, it was nobody but a little gal that done it—a little bit o' shaver, 'bout six or seven years old I reckon, an' the poorest peekedist little thing I ever set eyes on.

"Want to hear 'bout it, eh? Wal, the way of it was this:

"You see 'bout the time Oklahoma was opened for settlement, Big Jim an' me, an' four other fellers were herdin' on a range in western Texas. We'd been up in the territory herdin' a right smart, but the soldiers drove us out with the rest of the cattle fellers, you know, and so we laid down on the border sorter waitin' for developments.

"While we was in the territory we picked out a valley what had 'bout three thousan' acres o' the best land an' richest grass I ever see anywhere, an' we 'lowed as soon as the country was open for settlement we'd come back an' take possession of it an' make a ranch thar in spite o' all creation.

"Wal, by an' by the president issued his proclamation, an' then when the day fer enterin' the territory come 'round we moved in with our cattle an' took possession of the valley.

"'Now,' said I that night as we squatted 'bout our camp-fire, 'it none o' those blamed settlers don't come foolin' 'round yere to take up claims in this valley we're fixed fer this'll make one o' the nicest little ranches in the country.'

"'Wal,' said Big Jim, with an oath, 'if any settler wants to take a claim yere, an' thinks he can, jis' let him try it. I low he'll find out mounty blamed soon that he's undertook a most miserable unhealthy job. This valley's ours an' we're goin' to hold it spite o' the dickens; an' I can tell you right now, fellers, toat I'll shoot the first chap what offers to stop here. I'll make sich a example of him that ther won't another settler come in forty mile of us.'

"Wal, we was purty well tired out so we turned in quick as supper was over, an' we slept like logs till morin'. When we woke the sun was up, an' the fust thing we see when we glanced 'cross the valley was an old covered wagon not more'n a quarter of a mile away. The wagon had come in, I reckon' jis' after we went to sleep, an' the folks had put up a tent like as if they was fixin' to stay. Big Jim he took a squint at the outfit, then he tore loose an' swore fit to set a woods afire. Then he got his pistols, an' when somebody axed what he was goin' to do, he said:

"'I'm goin' over thar an' wipe that darned settler out. I'm goin' to shoot him so full o' lead that he he'll weigh a ton. I'll break up this squatter business right on the start.'

"I knowed Big Jim meant what he said, an' I felt kind o' sorry for the settler, but I didn't say nothin.' Me an' the other boys jest set down an' watched Jim as he strided 'cross the prairie, an' waited to see what was goin' to happen.

"When Jim got sorter close to the wagon we see him draw his gun an' git ready to shoot, then we see him edge up a little closer kinder keerful like, then all to once we seen him stop an. wait like he was listenin' at somethin.'

"Wal, I reckon most a half hour must a passed that way, an' we got to wonderin' what made Jim stan' there actin' like that, when all to once he whirled 'round an' come back to us lookin' the soberest and solemnest I ever see a feller look in all my life. By gosh, stranger, yer may not believe it, but I'd a'most swear they was tears in old Jim's eyes, an' I knowed when he spoke to us his voice was all a-tremble like his feelin's was too much for him.

"It was a good bit before Jim said a word, an' all the time he jest set thar on an inverted bucket nussin his head in his hands, an' actin' like he was dreadful cut up. We stood 'rond an' looked at him, a-wonderin' what it meant, but after awhile I ventured to speak to him, sayin':

"'What's alin' you, Jim?"

"Then he raised his head sorter slow' like, an' in a tone so sad an' different from what his allus was, that I didn't recognize it, he said:

"'Boys, I'm jis' completely upsot by what I heard over thar, an' I feel so blame sneakin' mean that I've a great notion to shoot myself. I never knowed before how cussed onery I am.'

"Course we was all s'prised at that sort o' talk from Jim, 'cause he was so blamed tough we didn't s'pose nothin' 'ud tech his heart, an' was anxious to know what he'd heard over to the wagon, an' so we axed him.

"'Wal,' he said, 'I went over to shoot that settler, an' I was slippin' up to the wagon to get the drap on him, when all at once I heard a voice—the meekest, pitifulest little voice I ever heard in my life, an' I knowed in a minute it was the voice of a leetle gal.'

"Jim's voice choked up so he couldn't say nothin' more, so he waited a moment, an' then he went on:

"'Fellers,' he said, 'that voice jest went through me like a knife, an, I never felt so quaire since I was born. It was so weak, an' so helpless like. I heard it say:

"'Is the land pretty, pa? Is it green with grass like the old home back east?

"'Yes, it is very beautiful, darling,' a man replied like he was cryin'. 'It's very pretty, an' you will find the green prairie almost as nice as the big meadow back at the old home. When you get well you can romp over the plain and gather flowers and be very happy.'

"'I ain't never goin' to get well any more, pa,' the little voice said, 'an' I won't never gather no flowers nor romp over the prairie; but I'm glad its pretty, 'cause when I'm in Heaven, where the angels are, an' where everything is so beautiful an' bright, I want to know that you an' ma have a nice home like the old one we lost. I won't be with you very long now, pa, 'cause I can hear the angels singin' an' I know they'r comin' to take me away. Don't cry, dear pa an' ma, 'cause I ain't sorry to go—only I don't like to leave ou. I'm so glad you're goin' to have a beautiful home where the grass and the flowers grow, an' somstimes maybe, I'll come back to see you.'

"Wal, Big Jim, he told over all what the leetle gal said, an' I never see anybody what talked so gentle an' kind as he did.

"'Fellows,' he said in conclusion 'I never felt so owful as I did while I was standin' there listenin' to them words o' that child. 'Peared like every one of 'em was a knife, an' that she was stabbin' 'em into my cussed wicked heart; an' though they hurt terrible, I wanted 'em to stab deeper, 'cause I knowed I deserved it. Thar I was sneakin' up like a low down onery thief, intendin' to shoot that feller fer tryin' to get a home, while he was in ther nussin' his dyin' child, an' her a talkin' 'bout the grass an' the flowers an' the old home back east, an' the angels an' heaven. Boys, I'd been glad if a streak o' lightnin' had struck me right then an' thar.'

"Wal, sir, we never heard no more 'bout keepin' settlers off'en the valley, an' we never tried to hold none of it 'cept what the law 'titled us to hold. Big Jim an' all the rest of us helped the settlers ever' way we could, and when the angels came fer his leetle gal, an' took her spirit away, we made a grave on the prairie an' buried her whar the grass growed an' whar Big Jim planted a tree an' some flowers. I never see old Jim cry before stranger, but he shed tears over that grave like the leetle gal was his own, and from that day he was a different man, an' as kind an' gentle as a woman."—Thomas P.
