TWO MEN INJURED.

A Wind Strikes Port Angeles and the Surroundings From the Southeast and Dire Disaster Results—The County Road.

The memory of the oldest inhabitant runneth not back to the time when Port Angeles was visited by so furious a gale as that which swept the harbor and adjacent hills on the morning of the 7th inst.

The blow began about 6:30 a. m. with a gentle rain increasing in velocity until 7 o'clock at which hour the wind registered a speed of forty-two miles per hour and did net slacken its speed until 8:30 when the storm recognized that it was not running over the Stockton kite-shaped track, consequently was not out on a record-breaking expedition, but was travelling over the same old course from the southeast, though it made the best time attained by any storm within the memory of the oldest squatter.

Great consternation was experienced by all the settlers on the reserve. Many families left their own houses, which they considered endangered by the proximity of standing trees, and sought others seeming to afford greater safety among their neighbors. This panic had the effect of packing as many as eight families, consisting of six members each, all in one small house of two small rooms, making the man who had his lots well cleared extremely popular at 7 o'clock in the morning.

Great damage was done the houses on the reserve, and though many settlers experienced hairbreadth escapes, no one was mortally injured or otherwise very seriously damaged. The most dangerously hurt was William Elliot, who lives west of Tumwater street. Elliot's house was completely demolished by a land slide, the earth being loosened by the rain and in the mad rush down the slight declivity, Elliot and a friend named Cameron, who was sleeping at the house of the gormer, were shaken up like dice in a box. Elliot received a severe wound in the scrotum, by a splinter, through which it passed into the lower part of the abdomen, while Cameron had a foot badly mashed.

These two are the only persons reported who received any injuries, and the following is a list of damage inflicted upon property:

Van Dolahr's house on Fifth St., west of Tumwater was totally wrecked by a falling tree, which also crushed the house next to Mr. Van Dolahr's.

An addition of one room to Mr. Lindsey's was destroyed.

James Myers had his fence entirely demolished, but his house escaped any serious injury. His lot will have to be recleared.

Peter Peterson's house on the corner of Front and Francis was blown off the blocks.

Henry Jenck was doubly unfortunate, having one house blown off the blocks, and another that was reduced to match wood by a falling tree.

J. L. Worthley and family had taken refuge in the house of Mr. McCormick, as affording greater safety than their own, as it began to behave so badly after a little while that they concluded it was not the place for them so, they started for the door, and as the last one left the house, it left its former resting place and moved north some ten feet.

The house of Chas. Johnson, Sixth and Washington streets, was crushed by a falling tree.

W. B. Main's house, Seventh and Vine wrecked.

The house corner Sixth and Albert streets destroyed.

H. C. Hansen's house, Fifth and Albert streets, was entirely demolished by a falling fir. He had just finished and furnished this house. His loss is about $500.

On Eighth and Peabody streets Wm. Blood had his kitchen destroyed.

Mr. Carusi's fence at Ninth and Laurel was blown down.

At Fourth and Albert streets, Miss Hanson's house was demolished.

Miss Fowler's house at Eigth and Peabody is a wreck. Another house at Eigth and Peabody was also destroyed.

The fence around Paul Bryan's house at Tenth and Laurel was blown down.

At Eigth and Chase Miss Cooper's house was demolished.

Mr. Redwin's house at Tenth and Cherry was mashed by a falling tree and Mr. Kirmsie's house on Cherry street met the same fate.

Miss Thompson's house on Twelfth and Cherry was blown off its foundation.

The Swedish church lost one side of its roof. The roof of Will Blows's house on Thirteenth and Cherry was damaged by falling limbs.

Mr. Cramer's shed in the same locality was slightly damaged.

At Eigth and Chase Mr. Bradshaw's house was knocked down.

Eugene Speaden's house was completely ruined.

Jeff Gear's house, Ninth an Cherry was flattened out by a falling tree.

On Cherry and Thirteenth there was another house knocked down by a tree.

Mr. Harris' fence on Thirteenth and Cherry was wrecked by a falling tree, which narrowly missed his house.

Mr. Gerke's house on Oak street was knocked down by a tree.

The sidewalk on Front street, opposite Harvey's grocery store was turned over by the wind.

The house of Robt. Mason at Tenth and Lincoln was broken down by a tree.

This is by no means a full and complete list of the damage sustained by the settlers, but it is quite impossible to obtain a full report, many of the streets being piled so full of trees that they are impassable.

Mr. Smith Troy came in yesterday from his ranch, and reports the county road between the city and his place as being full of fallen trees, and is perfectly impassable for horses and vehicles.

THE NEWS.

The people of Juneau, Alaska, claim that Lieutenant Schwatka is indebted to them either for a job lot of exploring yet to be done, or for the return of money advanced by them, in outfitting his recent expedition to the Yukon slope.

CELERY VS. RHEUMATISM.

It is claimed that celery is a sure cure for rheumatism; indeed it is asserted that the disease is impossible if the vegetable be cooked and frely eaten. The fact that it is always put on the table raw prevents its therapeutic powers from being known. The celery should be cut into very small pieces, boiled in water until soft, and the water drunk, either warm or cold, by the patient. Serve the celery warm with pieces of toasted bread, and the disease will soon yield.

THE OLD MATE'S STORY.

The Inhuman Captain of the Governor Wilmot Continues His Abuse—A Letter That Tells a Sad Tale Falls in Friendly Hands.

SHIP GOVERNOR WILMOT.

To the Magistrate of Port Angeles:

Sir—Being treated in a most cruel manner on board this ship and having no chance of getting on shore, I beg of you to give me an order, or whatever way you may adopt, to allow me to come on shore. The captain has struck me on three occasions, last night being the las time and my health is ruined with fever and ague got in Accapulco, and continua ill treatment night and day. He has worked me all hours, not getting anything like a fair time to sleep. The crew all deserted on Saturday night, and left their wages, some of them sick and not able to work; glad to get out of the ship on account of continual ill treatment. I hope, sir, you will give me your consideration.

I am a married man with six small children, and I shipped in Newcastle. He promised to give me money to send my wife, I am now out five months and have had no money to send my wife. I will explain more fully when I see you. The ship is going to Manilla and time is, or may be, very short.

Hoping you will help me; I remain

Your obt. servt. R. R. ROBERTS,

Chief mate Governor Wilmont.

The above is a letter sent ashore from the ship Governor Wilmot on the 2d inst., by the mate, who threw it into a passing boat. It was delivered first to THE DEMOCRAT, who had it sent to Mayor Brumfield, to whom it was directed as the magistrate of Port Angeles.

It being entirely out of the mayor's line of duty to interfere in anyway with shipping, especially with a foreign vessel, advice was received from other sources as regards the best course to pursue in the attempt to render the unfortunate assistance.

THE DEMOCRAT representative being thoroughly interested in the case, sought advice from different sources, and learned that the only manner in which the mate could be relieved from his position and secure his pay was through the British counsul at Port Townsend, who was telegraphed for, Sheriff Gould sending the message. To this message the British counsul paid no attention and when he did not respond to its summons, the old mate concluded that the only alternative left for him, was to see the counsul himself by going to Port Townsend, which he accordingly did, but was accompanied to Port Townsend by Captain Morris, who employed a ship broker to lay his case before the counsul. The mate said that the two of them was too much for him, so, the counsul ordered that £15 be paid him by the captain and that he return aboard the Wilmot This left a balance due the mate of $105, which he most willingly sacrificed by deserting at the first opportunity, saying that he could not put his life in the balance against $105.

The mate gave THE DEMOCRAT representative some other information which may be of interest to ship owners generally. He stated that Captain Morris was ordered to the Royal Roads, but knew that his crew could and would have him arrested if he took such a miserable lot of men into a British port. Then by coming into Port Angeles he managed to get rid of his diseased crew, causing them to leave behind all their wages, amounting to something like $100 each. The captain claims that this crew forfeited their pay by deserting, while the chief mate holds a paper signed by Levy and Jan Jansen, of Port Townsend, which he caused them to sign at the time they came here from Port Townsend for the crew. Their signature certifies that they were sent to the Wilmot by Captain Morris and to take away his crew, as they were no longer of any use to him, so, with the captain's kind assistance they deserted, and for his trouble he retains their pay.

The mate further stated that during the voyage from Melbourne to Accapulco, he carried lights only three nights.

The Governor Wilmont's complement is twenty men, the lowest being fifteen, but she left this port with nine.

R. R. Roberts, the ex-chief mate of the Governor Wilmot, left Port Angeles last Monday for Port Townsend, where he hopes to get a ship for Australia, carrying back with him very sad memories of his last deep water voyage; an elated opinion of man's cussedness to man, and the shattered wreck of the confidence he once had in the integrity of British counsuls.

THE FIRST CIGAR.

A quiet eve beneath the stars, with brother Steve and two cigars.
Behind the shed
we slowly creep!
the folks abed, the world asleep. I strike a light; with shaky hand, in such a fright I scarce can stand. Like veterans grim we puff the smoke. My eyes grow dim, I almost choke.
Another, and another pull. How bitter sweet! My mouth is full of the biting weed. My stomach turns, oh, my, how sick! My throat, too, burns—oh, help me
quick. I roll, I squirm, with frightened look,
just like a worm on fishing hook, I cry for Steve; my cry's in vain; I see him heave with awful strain!
When hope is fled,
there breaks a light,
behind that shed,
upon our plight—
and dad is here; as forth we crawl,—he grasps my ear, and—let the curtain fall.
An interview next morn we had. Our words were few;
but then our dad behind that shed he showed the stars that till I indeed our first cigar I'll never

WELL DONE, HILL.

Boss Platt and the other New York state stealers who would cheat the people out of their victory by stealing the state legislature have at last found out that David Bennitt Hill is governor of the state and is on deck.

The courts have practically ended enough of the contests to give the Democrats a clear majortiy in both branches of the legislature.

Although New York has gone Democratic nine times in succession this is the first time the legislature has been Democratic in both branches in 15 years.

This is on account of an unfair apportionment that has been maintained for years contrary to the state constitution, which provides that the state shall take a census every ten years making the state census come midway between one national census and the next. Under this provision the state should have had a census taken in 1885, which was not done then, nor has it since been done.

The present apportionment was made by a Republican state government in 1881—then unjustly unfair. Since then the state has increased 1,300,000 in population. Nearly 10,000,000 of this gain was in Democratic counties. Thus it is easy to see that a fair appoinment would give the Democrats a majority. The noble stand for the people's rights made by Goveanor Hill deserves unlimited praise.

The right was rightly done.

THE NEW SPEAKER.

Contrary to expectation Judge Crisp, of Georgia, defeated Mr. Mills of Texas, in the speakership contest. While THE DEMOCRAT would liked to have seen it otherwise, and believes a mistake was made in not electing Mills, who is unquestionably the leading Democrat in the House in moulding popular Democratic thought, it is not disposed to criticise the selection of so good a Democrat as Charles F. Crisp.

Judge Crisp has a record that no Democrat need be ashamed of. He has always been prominently identified with the Carlisle-Morrison-Mills element in Congress. His tariff record is entirely satisfactory. But on account of his owing his prominence more to his fight against the Force Bill and against Reed's rules than to his record on the all absorbing tariff question, he is by many regarded as not so positive a reformer as his party. This is a mistake. The worst that can be said about Judge Crisp is he was supported by the New York Sun, why, no one knows.

Judge Crisp is one of the best parlimentarians in Congress, and will be an able, fair and conscientious speaker. The contrast between him and Reed cannot help being a benefit to his popularity. It could be much worse.

"BAB" is strongly opposed to protection. She writes and talks against it in her own peculiar fashion, which, by the way, is very effective. She is not only opposed to the principle of protection itself but she is especially put out to think the men should put a tax on women's wearing apparel, thus making it unduely costly to the gentler sex, all to give the manufacturer, who is, of course, a man, a larger profit. This strikes the sensible little woman as extremely ungallant, unjust and ungentlemanly; and who is there to say she is not right?

IT is Mayor Smith.

THE United States consuls all over the globe have been metamorphosed into bureaus of reliable information regarding Tacoma and the state of Washington, by the energetic chamber of commerce of Tacoma. We may soon expect to see the guileless youth and age of Africa a-blowing their wads in on some addition to Tacoma just a "leetle" this side of the equator.

C. P. HUNTINGTON in regard to the bomb-throwing escapade in which Russell Sage figured says:

"If the man came to me and asked for $1,000,000, I would explain that I had not so much money. Then if he insisted I would take him by the ear and kick him down the stairs."

And for his courage give half a dozen men a job for a day each, in gathering together his remains in a gunny-sack.

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN seeks a publicity by endeavoring to get mixed up with Sage's bomb thrower. He identified one of the murderer's socks, it being of the same material as those he wore at the time. Their principal similarity is probably in the fact that they each required the attention of a laundryman.

THE election is over and the officers chosen. As usual, there is a minority that is somewhat dissatisfied, but that should not prevent them from giving the majority's choice cordial assistanee in the discharge of their duties.

Now, that the city election is over it would be a good time to get to work and organize a Chamber of Commerce. There is much that should be done to give this city her just and proper due. Freight rates should be equalized; the Port Angeles ship yard needs assistance and many other things should be done which will require organized effort. Let us organize.

THE mouthpiece of the County Comissioners says the people have no right to kick about the County road until the Comissioners finally accept and pay for it in full. This would be something like the old story of locking the stable door after the horse had gone. The taxpayer's prefer to kick when there is a chance to avail something. They are right.

EVIDENTLY the County Comisioners want to fight from behind the Republican party. Their mouthpiece attacks the two leading Republican journals in the county for taking a stand for the taxpayers rights, and then insists that the Republican Party is responsible for the commissioners' action

THE election of Norman R. Smith as mayor of Port Angeles is a just tribute to his unswerving loyalty and uncompromising labors for the city. Let us hope that he will be able to do the city more good than ever in his new sphere.

THE embryo daily will not be compelled to print on its pages the usual notice that it is received at the post office as second class matter. as the postmaster can be quickly convinced of the fact that it is only second-class by a cursory glance at its columns.

THE Seattle Telegraph deserves great credit for its efforts to force an investigation in the Eagle Gorge catastrophe. The matter should be investigated to the bottom.

SPEAKER CRISP is so pre-eminently preferable to Speaker Reed that none should complain of the selection of the House.

THE big vote given Mr. Kiernan and Dr. Herrick were well deserved compliments.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

The Fancy Fair a Grand Succes—Fine Music.

[Written for THE DEMOCRAT.]

Last night I saw her at the fair.
Her face was framed in nut-brown hair;
Her eyes were cast in heaven's own blue,
And cheeks just touched with the morning's hue.

He: step was light, her laugh was gay,
Which from all hearts drove care away.
Her voice was soft, and none were sweater,
"Amo La Fior, La Florita."

JUAN DE BURRO.

The fair given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church on the 8th inst, was in every particular a success.

The seats having been removed from the auditorium of the Opera House, it was converted into a hall filled with booths at which was sold various articles of woman's work calculated by their presence to adorn a house and impart to it an air of refinement.

The linen department was presided over by Mesdames Bickford and Hoag.

Doll department was under the care of Mrs. Stockton and Miss Chase.

Mesdames Foster and Carusi gave their attention to the department of fancy articles.

The domestic department was superintended by Mrs. Spears, Misses Draper and Stewart. While Mrs. Brewster attended to those purchasing candy and nuts.

Supper was served at all hours after 6 o'clock, and proved to be a very attractive feature of the evening. A long table upon the stage was filled to overflowing with everything imaginable that was good to eat. Many there were who lingered long over this bounteous board, and departed with a feeling of fullness, and satisfied with all the world.

The ladies who served the supper table were Mesdames Worthley, Blackwood, Stewart, Sherman, Ferguson and Graham. The proceeds of the first evening amounting to over $100.

The Port Angeles band discoursed sweet music and promenading was in order until 11 o'clock when the doors were closed to be open again the next evening.

SECOND NIGHT.

The Ladies' Aid Society on the second night was equally as successful as the first, the proceeds amounting to $93 against $108.73 for the first night. Many of the choicest articles were sold the first evening. The supper provided by the ladies was more liberally patronized the second night on account of the reputation which the first night established.

The "Live Doll Show" made $8 additional but could not be continued during the entire evening; the babies who personated Mother Goose's characters becoming tired after being upon exhibition for an hour. This feature was under the management of Miss Stockton, and presented by the Kindergarten class.

The concert, the final entertainment of the Ladies' Aid Society, was a fitting performance with which to crown this series of enjoyable affairs.

The audience in attendance was not an immensely large one, but they seemed to possess that attribute of "music in his soul" shown a number of times by their applause. Mr. Dickson was called upon the stage a second time with a cornet solo the demand upon Miss Stewart for a second piece after her piano renbition of "Fantastic Eleganti" was well deserved by the performance of another piece of equal high merit. The gallery gods must have been sleeping during the first part of the entertainment, so quiet had they been that their presence was unknown until the male quartette made its bow to the audience, when at the first note it was evident that a responsive chord had been touched in the breast of the god of the gallery, who showed his appreciation by such applaudings that could only be quieted by three responses. The applause recorded the Brass Quartette brought them upon the stage the second time.

Miss Louis Woodworth appeared in a vocal solo, "Night-Birds Cooing." which was sung in such a finished manner that she was called out twice again, singing to the encores, "Bide a Wee" and "Hush a-by Baby." Miss Woodworth has a soprano voice of great sweetness.

A tableau from Ivanhoe was next represented. after which it was announced that refreshments could be obtained. Then Dr. Lewis announced that the end of the ladies' entertainment had been reached, and the time for the beginning of his had arrived, and would not the company pass the hours until midnight in dancing? And the company did.

GETTYSBURG.

Trees Four Feet Through Carried Away—A Perfect Cyclone.

GETTYSBURG, Dec. 8th—[Special]—The severest wind storm ever experienced in this section passed over this place Monday morning.

At 6 o'clock the wind was blowing a gale which gradually increased in fury until it attained all the characteristics of a full grown cyclone.

In many places all the timber was blown down, n the wind the seemed to miss the earth for a mile when it would again drop carrying all before.

Fir trees four feet through were lifted bodily out of the ground and carried a distance of a hundred yards, while smaller brush was blown miles.

The roar of the wind and the awful noise of the falling timber can best be compared to a duel between many parks of artillery.

This was kept up nearly two hours and a half when the wind spent its fury and gradually subsided.

Settlers have been coming in all day and report great damage to houses and but few seemed to have escaped. Among the damage reported up to the present time in the immediate nighborhood, is as follows:

Cabin on Frank Bonney's preemption was smashed down by a tree, a similar fate was met by Steve Hall's homestead house. Jay Austin's house in township 30 north, range 5 west, was demolished, and Peter White's new house in the same locality sustained much damage.

From Deep Creek and Twin River there comes sadder reports, though no fatalities are among them.

Frank Shouse was caught in his cabin by a falling tree and received a broken leg. He was carried into Gettysburg by neighbors. and from there he was sent up-Sound on the Hermosa.

Seth Davis, of Twin River, was sleeping peacefully in his cabin with a companion, Sam Nearly, when they were awakened by the crashing of a tree through their house. Mr. Davis was struck upon the head by a limb and was rendered unconscious Since he has had but a few lucid moments at a time, and is now at his father,s house on the ranch between Twin River and Deep Creek.

The Haytian in Trouble.

The Steamer Haytian Republic arrived in San Francisco on the afternoon of Dec. 4th. The steamer left Seattle Sunday, and during the first ten hours out had moderate weather. Then it began to blow, and the wind quickly increased to a gale from the southwest.

While off the Columbia river the steamer's head was brought to the wind, and she was kept in that position for six hours. It was impossible to keep her on her course, as the seas were running mountain high and threatening to swamp her.

JUDGE CRISP WINS.

Judge Crisp, of Georgia, Wins the 30th Ballot—His Rencord.

The Speakership contest was ended in the Democratic caucus Monday afternoon. Judge Charles F. Crisp, of Georgia, was elected speaker on the 30th ballot. There were three sessions of the caucus, commencing at 2 o'clock Saturday and ending Monday evening. Springer decided the contest by changing to Crisp. McMillan and most of his followers gave their votes to Mills.

Bynum, Wilson, Breckenridge, and most of the other great Democratic leaders voted for Mills, the gallant teriff reformer.

Although born in England Judge Crisp belongs to an old Virginia family. He removed to Georgia from the Old Dominion, He served with distinction in the Confederate army. As a parliamentarian he has no superior in the United States. This is his fourth term as a member of Congress.

Crisp became famous by his fight against the Force bill and against Tom Reed's rules. He is a tariff reformer as his record shows. The following telegram sent the New York World in answer to a dispatch from that paper as to his position on the tariff is plain enough:

My record on the tariff question is as clear as that of any representative in congress. I have always acted and sympathized with efforts to obtain genuine reform and positive reduction. The first vote I cast in congress was for Mr. Carlisle in preference to Mr. Randall for speaker of the house. Later I voted for the Morrison bill and the Mills bill.

I have made tariff speeches in congress, in New York, in Massichusetts, in Missouri, in Virginia, in Ohio, in Maryland, in Kansas and in Georgia, and in each and every one of these many speeches I have advocated reduction of duties.

Of course I cannot outline in a brief dispatch a tariff bill such as I would like to see enacted, but the following paragraph from the Record's report of my speech on the McKinley bill may serve your purpose:

Mr. Crisp.—Mr. Chairman, the committee on ways and means have spent months of restless days and sleepless nights trying to find out what will give relief to the farmers of this country. I can suggest a plan of relief in five minutes. Modify the existing tariff laws; reduce taxation; permit some reasonable competition in the market; destroy trusts: accord equal rights to all and special priveleges to none. Do these things and you will help him. Give the farmer free salt. That would help a little. You give it to the fishermen on the coast of Maine and on the coast of Marsachusetts, why not give it to the farmer? Give him free bagging, in which the farmer of the West sacks his corn, and in which the farmer of the South wraps his cotton. Give him free ironies, with which in the South he binds his cotton bales and with which in the West he bales his hay.

Give him some reduction on his hats, on his wollen clothes and on his cotton goods. In that way and in that way only, can you benefit the great mass of farmers of the South and West. You cannot increase the price of their products by protective tariff duties, but you can decrease to them the cost of production and of living by reducing the tariff on those articles used to make their crops and on those articles of necessity which all families must use.

Any further information that may be desired will be found in my speeches.

OUR LARGEST CRUISER LAUNCHED.

The New York Launched—The Finest of the "White Ships"—Cost $3,000,000.

The launching of the largest cruiser of the new navy, the New York, was quite a gala day at the yard of Messrs. Wm. Cramp & Sons; who are the contractors for building this 8,150-ton monster. She has been painted fore and aft on her outside, and a very good idea of her graceful curves could have been formed of her as she reposed gracefully on the stocks. Experts have expressed themselves very enthusiastically in relation to her lines both forward and aft, and unhesitatingly say that she will be able to go beyond the twenty-knot speed for which she is designed.

The idea in building so large a vessel was to insure our having a fighting ship fully capable of rendering a good account of herself in the event of her being called upon to brush up alongside of an enemy of similar type. In addition to this her engine power was designed to develop 16,500 horse-power, so that she could overhaul anything that she sighted. Great coal-bunker space was also apportioned to enable her to be self-sustaining for as long a period as possible. It is estimated that she can cruise at an economical rate of speed for about thirteen thousand miles without being obliged to enter a coaling port. This, with the total absence of coal piles outside of the United States is a very great consideration.

The actual cost of the New York is $2,985,000, excluding the bonus that will be awarded her builders if she exceeds a speed of twenty knots an hour on her trial trip. This bonus, which the Government generously offers at the rate of $50-000 for every quarter knot above the guaranteed twenty, netted the Cramps $135.600 on the excess speed of the Philadelphia and $183,124.50 on the excess horse-power of the Newark, Baltimore and Yorktown. It is believed by naval officers who are familiar with the design of the New York's engines that she will exceed her guarantee by an appreciable amount. Judging from the success that has attended the former efforts of her builders the bonus that will fall to their share will be not far from $100,000.

MOTIVE POWER FOR HIGH SHEED.

There will be four separate engines, each having a power of 4,500 horses. Two of these will work the shaft for the starboard screw, and two that for the port. These engines will be so arranged that they may be disconnected, allowing the vessel to cruise under half power. They will be technically known as vertical, inverted, direct acting, tripple expansion engines, and will be arranged in four water-tight compartments. The cylinders 32, 46 and 70 inches respectively, with a stroke of 42 inches.

The air and circulating pumps will be driven independently, and the four main condensers will have an area of 5,560 square feet.

Steam will be furnished by six boilers heated by eight furnaces. The former will be of the type known as horizontal return, five tubular boilers, and will be placed two abreast in three water-tight compartments. They will be fifteen feet nine inches in diameter and eighteen feet in length. The working steam pressure will be 160 pounds to the square inch the total grate surface 990 square feet, and the total heating surface 31, 190 square feet. In addition to these there will be two auxiliary boilers above the protective deck. Both the main and auxiliary boilers will be fitted to work under force draught on the air-tight fire-room system. Experts agree that the arrangement of the engines in the New York shows great economy at low speeds. She will have three smokestacks, an additional one having become necessary since the original boiler arrangement was changed.

A STORM OF SHOT AND SHELL.

The main battery of the New York consists of six 8-inch rifles of 35 calibres in length, firing an armor-piercing projectile of 250 pounds weight. The ability of this terrible weapon to demolish targets made of the finest nickel steel was quite conclusively proven at the recent trials at the proving grounds on the Potomac river. The barabetts on which these eight-inch guns are to be mounted are to be ten inches in thickness, and the revolving shields for the protection of the men working the guns will be seven inches thick. The intermediate battery is composed of twelve 4-inch guns. These are to be of the rapid-fire type, and as they are not too heavy for the use of fixed ammunition have great range and can be readily concentrated, they form a very powerful auxiliary to the main battery.

HOW THE GUNS ARE PROTECTED.

The sloping armor between the upper and gun decks beneath the barbetts is five inches, and the ammunition tubes below of the same thickness. On the broadsides the 8-inch guns will also be protected by partial barbetts, two inches thick. In the secondary battery the four-inch rapid fire guns will be mounted on the gun deck in armored sponsors, four inckes thick. with protected shields on the guns, closely covering the ports. Further protection is also assured by one-inch splinter bulkheads. The six-pounder gun will also be protected by two-inch armor. One torpedo tube will be fixed on the bow, one on the stern and two on each broadside—all above the water line.

CITY OF MEXICO.

In the City of Mexico, if the tourist is energetic enough to rise early in the morning, and will visit the market places, he will be very much impressed by some customs of the people. Not the least of which will be the manner of delivering the daily supply of milk to customers.

This is not done in the manner to which an American has been accustomed, and is commendable from the fact that it precludes all possibility of receiving watered milk.

The lechero, or milkman, as he is called in English, drives his entire herd of milch-cows into the city, allowing their calves to follow, which makes a herd of from five to thirty head. When the house of a customer is reached the herd is rounded-up, and the lechero, first learning the quantity of milk desired, proceeds to abstract it from the cows udders in full view of the customer, and into the vessel given him.

It is frequently the case, that a family will prefer the milk of a particular cow of the herd, and this cow will always be milked for that family. There is never a question raised regarding the purity of Mexican milk.

Herds of goats are also driven through the city and to those who prefer their milk it is delivered in the same manner.

This custom impresses the tourist with the idea that it was introduced to prevent cheating, which is entirely correct and certainly answers.

In those cities off the main lines of railroads such as the International and the Central Mexico, the traveler will notice another feature of Mexican life, in the absence of express wagons.

At the depot of the Guadalajara branch of the Mexican Central railroad, in Guardalajara, only one wagon will be there to meet the train, and that one is the wagon of Wells Fargo Express company, though there may be two or three old, wornout carraiges, which have been in existance for years, and are of the style used a hundred years ago.

This absence of wagons does not necessarily put the traveler to any inconvenience, for about the time he begins to wonder how he will get his trunks up to his hotel, he will be accosted by a cargador, or porter, who informs him that he will deliver his trunks at the hotel desired for a real (12½ cents) each.

The principal hotel of Guadalajara is seven blocks from the depot, and their is no case know in which a cargador failed to deliver a trunk, on account of weight, and when the hotel is reached without resting, he carries it up a flight of fifty steps. It is reported that one men weighing not more than 140 pounds, carried a sample case weighing 400 for a hardware drummer, over the distance mentioned.

The Mexicans are not a newspaper reading people, as is shown in the city of Guadalajara, containing a population of 100,000 and is second only in size, wealth and importance to the city of Mexico, there is but one paper published, being a daily and called Juan Panadero, in English a literal translation would be John Breadmaker, and as its name would imply, its principal business is to give rather comic accounts of the news of the day.

In Mexico there is no system of bank exchange or drafts, but when a merchant in one city becomes indebted to one in another, this indebtedness must be liquidated by cash, and as the principal currency of the republic is silver it makes it very expensive to pay a debt in a distant city. From Guadalajara to the city of Mexico the charges on a thousand dollars, weighing sixty pounds, is five fiollars.

The paper currency is accepted at its face value only in the state for which it is issued, though, the bills of the federal district are taken at par all over the realm. The paper money of each state is discounted in every other.

Uncle Sam's currency obligations are above par anywhere in Mexico. A five dollar bill of the United States selling for seven silver dollars of Mexico, and it often happens the larger the bill the greater the premium. There is but one American coin that is not eagerly accepted, the nickle, and invariably when this is offered in payment, the purchaser is politely asked for silver.

The Bank of Port Angeles is a State, not a National Bank. Pays interest on deposits. Makes no charge for drafts on Pacific Coast points.

PROBATE NOTES.

On last Friday at 2 o'clock Sheriff Gould brought Nathiel F. Tudor, charged by Frank C. Reed with insanity, into court. After hereing the conflicting evidence of the plaintiff it was held by the court that it was proven that he was not insane, but that he was of weak mind and needed a guardian. Mr. Tudor select Major W. F. Hooker for that place, which selection, proving satisfactory to both side, was confirmed by the court. Major Hooker at once qualified with William Ward, Henry Hoffman and George H. Alexander as his surities.

R. P. Wallace has been appointed guardian for James Heard the latter appearing to the court to be incompetent to attend to his own business affairs.

The petition of Martha E. Merchant, Administratrix of the estate of Ivory F. Merchant, for an order permitting her to sell real estate, has been granted.

MARINE INTELLIGENCE.

Nearly Foundered.

The Tug Tacoma, Captain Bolong, cleared for Victoria, B. C., on the 8th and while crossing the straits saw distress signals displayed by a bark. The signals were responded to when it was found that the Norwegian bark Dominion was distressed with nine feet of water in her hold.

She had encountered very heavy weather off the straits which lasted several days, and so strained her that she sprung a leak, which the combined efforts of her crew could not stop.

She was continually filling while being towed by the Tacoma and finally reached Victoria where she will be dry docked. This haven of safety was reached none too soon as the water in her hold was steadily gaining.

The tug Virgil Price, owned by Captain F. M. Price, was cut in two by the steamer Olympian on the night of the 7th inst. while tied up at the Seattle Coal & Iron Company's bunkers, Seattle. The Price sank immediately. Woods, the steward, barely had time to climb a pile and escape to the dock. The Olympian also cut into the bunkers after passing through the tug. The Price is a total loss and was valued at $8,000, being insured for half that amount. The coal bunkers were damaged to the amount of $500 to $1,000.

KIERNAN'S BIG VOTE.

Dr. Herrick Closely Followed by N. R. Smith.

QUINN PULLS THROUGH.

The Election Hotly Contested—Lewis, Peterson and Thompson in the First and Bell, McInnes and Metcalfe in the Second Ward.

The city election is a thing of the past. It is all over and the incidents connected therewith are now history, written and unwritten. The officers chosen, who will take their seats on the 12th day of January next, are Norman R. Smith, Mayor; P. F. Kiernan. Treasurer; J. B. Spears, Assessor; Dr. I. R. Herrick, Health officer; and John M. Bell, Dr. F. S. Lewis, Donald McInnes, Edward Metcalfe, William Peterson, D. P. Quinn and F. R. Thompson, Councilmen.

The fight was warmly contested. Especially for councilman-at-large and for second ward councilmen. For the former it was expected that the vote would be close. The fight was more on which ward would have him, as it was recognized that he would hold the balance of power. However, Quinn got his second ward by twelve votes more than Malony did his first, and was elected. In the second ward the fight on election day had apparently divided between two factions. One supporting Messrs. McInnes and Bell and the other Messrs. Brumfield and Meagher, both factions supporting Metcalfe, who received an overwhelming vote.

In the First ward there was but one ticket in the field—the "Citizens." Charles S. Stakemiller ran independent and received forty-three votes, which apparently came about equally from Dr. F. S. Lewis and F. R. Thompson. William Peterson received almost the unanimous vote of the ward The votes given N. R. Smith, P. Kiernan and Dr. I. R. Herrick were largely complimentary, they having no opposition. The large vote received by each was to some extent a measure of esteem in which they are held by the citizens of their town.

For assessor Mr. Spears carried the First ward. Mr. Ware carried the Second ward, but by a majority too small to save him from defeat.

The total vote cast in the city was 203, 112 being in the First ward and 91 in the Second
