THE MESSAGE

Mr. Harrison Unburdens Himself to Congress.

SINGS A TARIFF SONG.

We Are All Right in Bering Sea Controversy---Democrats All Wrong on the Tariff.

President Harrison's message was received by the Senate and House of Representatives on the 9th inst.

The first subject touched upon in the message is the seal fishing regarding which he says: "I am glad to announce that terms satisfactory to this government have been agreed upon and that agreement as to arbitrators is all that is necessary to the completion of the convention." The president further states that the delay in the transaction of this business is in no wise the fault of this government.

It is also recommended that provision should be made for a joint demarcation of the frontier line between the United States and Canada, and especially for the exact location of the water boundaries in the straits and rivers.

The last Congress provided a system for the inspection of our meats intended for export, and clothed the president with the power of excluding foreign products, in case the country sending them should perpetuate unjust discriminations against any product of the United States, placeing this government in a position to effectively urge the removal of such discriminations.

In regard to the recent diplomatic controversy with Italy concerning the New Orleans lynching, the president deplores the lack of good government displayed by the incident, on the part of the officials of that city, and for the future, suggests, that a better adjusting of such difficulties may be obtained, if such laws should be enacted as will place within the jurisdiction of the federal government, the power to take cognizance of them, as such affairs, to a more or less degree, effect the treaty relations of the government

Our relations with Chili were treated, in which a general review of the incidents was shown, and the causes which produced the present questionable attitude of friendliness existing between the two countries.

The president regrets that the reply of the secretary of foreign affairs of the provisional government, in regard to the assault upon the crew of the Baltimore, was couched in offensive tones, to which no response has been made, and states, that this government is now awaiting the result of the investigation being conducted in Valparaiso, which, it is officially stated, is nearing an end.

If our just expectations should be disappointed, or further needless delay intervene, the president by special message will bring this matter again before Congress for such action as may be necessary.

The message next introduces the Nicaragna canal as a subject worthy the consideration of Congress and at length shows the immense benefits to accrue from its speedy completion, which will more closely connect the seaports upon both oceans. The gain of freights to the people, the president states, would pay the cost of construction in a short series of years, and is willing to commend government promotion in the prosecution of the work. Its completion being of such transcendent interest that the goverment should secure it by direct appropriations from its treasury and suggests that, a guaranty of the bonds of the canal company to an amount necessary to complete the canal could be given as not to involve very serious risk of ultimate loss. The things to be guarded are the completion of the work within the limits of the guaranty, the subrogation of the United States to the rights of the first mortgage bondholders for any amount we may have a control of the stock of the company as a security against mismanagement.

The report of the secretary of the treasury shows the total receipts of the government for the fiscal year ended June 30 1891 were $458,544,233.03, the expenditures for the same period were $421,304,470.56, leaving a surplus of $37,239,762.67.

The secretary, under the law of July 14, 1890, has purchased since August 13, during the fiscal year, 48,383,113 ounces of silver bullion, at an average cost of $1.045 per ounce. The highest price paid $1.2055 and the lowest $0.9636. In exchange for this bullion there has been issued $5, 057,495 of the treasury notes authorized by the act.

In the report of the secretary of the navy a gratifying increase of the new naval vessels in commission is shown. The Concord, Newark, Bermingten and Miantonomah were added during the year.

Twensy-four war ships of all classes are now under construction in the navy yards and private shops.

Some of the vessels now under construction, it is believed, will be triumphs of naval engineering.

We have now at Washington a gunshop organized and conducted by naval officers, that in its system, economy and product is unexcelled.

It is believed that a plate of higher resisting power than any in use has been found, and tests have demonstrated that cheaper methods of manufacture than those heretofore thought necessary can be used.

The president adds:

"There should be no hesitation in promptly completing a navy of the best modern type, large enoughto enable this country to display its flag in all seas for the protection of its citizens and of extending its commerce.

In regard to the need of irrigation in the territories, and the work which has already been accomplished by private corporations the message says: "The future of New Mexico, Arizona and Utah is very largely dependent upon timely legislation either by Congress or their own legislatures, regulating the distribution of the water supply furnished by their streams. If the matter is much longer neglected, private corporations will have unrestricted control of one of the elements of life, and patenties of arid lands lands will be tenants at will of the water companies, and the United States should not part with its ownership of the water courses and sites for reservoirs only upon such conditions as will insure to settlers their proper water supply upon equal and reasonable terms.

The grain crop of this year was the largest in our history; 50 per cent greater than that of last year.

Total number of pensioners of the roll June 30, 1891, was 576,160. The appropriation for payment of pensions for the fiscal year 1890-91 was $127,685,793,89 and the amount expended was $119,530,640.20, leaving an unexpended surplus of $9,155,144.64.

The commissioner is confident that there will be no call this year for a deficiency appropriation.

The condition of the Indian bureau is discribed as good. The president suggests that the five civilized tribes in the Indian territory should have representatives in Congress and assume citizenship. He favors reducing the larger reservations and opening them for settlement.

The revenues of the postal department show an increase of $50,000,000, while the estimate of 1891 shows a surplus of receipts over expenditures.

The president at length argues that the results of the new tariff have disappointed the evil policies of its apponents and realized the prediction of its friends, and further says: "There is nothing in the condition of trade, foreign or domestic, and nothing in the condition of our people, of any class, to suggest that the existing tariff and revenue legislation bears oppressively upon the people, as regards the commercial development of the nation. It may be argued that our condition would be better if our tariff legislation were upon a free trade basis, but it cannot be denied that all the conditions of prosperity and of general contentment are present in a larger degree than ever before in our history, and just when it was prophesied that they would be in the worst state. There is agitation for radical changes in the tariff, and this financial legislation cannot help, but may seriously impede business, to the prosperity of which some degree of stability in legislation is essential. I think there are conclusive evidences that the new tariff has created several great industries, which will within a few years give employment to several hundred thousand American working men and women. In view of the over-crowded condition of the labor market the United States' citizens should rejoice at such a result."

The message concludes with a brief resume of topics of minor interest, of local significance, such as Alaska Chinese immigration artisans, and suggests that the District of Columbia needs better laws relating to crimes against chastity.

The Cheyenne Indian Agent and his clerks are charged with robbing the Indians.

OUR ROAD MATTERS.

The Port Crescent Leader has Its Say,

A PROTECTIVE LEAGUE.

They Propose to Stand by Their Rights—Port Crescent People up to Snuff—Moss at a Discount There.

The citizens of Port Crescent are thoroughly arroused over county road matters. The racy Port Crescent Leader has the following to say in its last issue on the perplexing question:

That the commissioners have underrated the intelligence and the forbearance of the people whose contracting and disbursing agents they are; or that they are suffering from a distressing attack of swelled head, induced by the large powers temporarily vested in them, would seem to admit of little doubt.

Their conduct has been so distinctly odd that the people have finally concluded to assert themselves, and to take an active hand in looking after their own interests—interests that they believe are either being wofully neglected or shamefully mismanaged.

That the commissioners and the county surveyor have, thus far, allowed Contractor Burlingame and astonishing degree of lattitude in the manner in which he has carried out, or pretended to carry out, his contracts on the three divisions of the new county road, is apparent to all men who have inspected his work.

That they have not exercised due diligence in examining the work so far done, before paying for any part of it—that they have not done their duty toward the people—is equally apparent.

Commissioners Davis and Gordon have never, so far as the Leader can learn, seen or inspected one foot of the work done on the middle division of the road.

***

The defense of the commissioners that no part of the road has been accepted is a lame and unsatisfactory one. The fact remains that they have paid Burlingame for miles of road that is notoriously not up to specifications, and paid for it within ten per cent. of the full contract price per mile for perfect work.

Men of affairs, who have had any experience with public work of this character, or any knowledge whatever of such work, know about how the people fare when it comes to fighting a contractor on his bond. In a disheartening majority of cases, the people emerge from the small end of the horn.

Just what they hope to gain by letting the contractors build any sort of a road they please, and practically anywhere they please, and pay for it within ten per cent. of the contract price for a specific kind of work, is beyond comprehension.

President Gray told the Leader, Tuesday, that the commissioners wouldn't accept a foot of the road until it was fully up to specifications; and that the Burlingame Company would be held on their bonds until the road was shaped up and accepted.

Mr. Gray didn't seem to realize what a big contract the commissioners proposed putting off until the eleventh hour. And he doesn't seem to realize that the people of Clallam county want to secure a few good miles of county road for their $100,000, and not merely a law-suit.

The people don't want the commissioners to have to sue the Burlingame Company on its bonds to secure the kind of road the people are paying for.

***

And they now ask and demand that no more estimates be allowed until the work for which payment is asked is up to specifications.

That the people have entered a vigorous kick none to soon, is apparent from the fact that, out of the $81,000 thus far realized from the sale of the road bonds, but $32,494.61 remains in the treasury. The company that purchased the road bonds, has refused to take $10,000 of them, basing their refusal to do so on a legal point that they have raised. These bonds will, in all likelihood, be disposed of to some other banking concern, or the Burlingame Company may want them—but if they do, the commissioners should see to it that they are not sacrificed.

There remains to the credit of the eastern division, $4,153.13; to the credit of the middle division, $8,260.48; to the credit of the western division, $20,081—a total of $32,494.61.

The contractors were to get $13,600 for the first mile on the middle division, this mile including the bridge over the Elwha. The Burlingame Company has been allowed an estimate of $9,200 on this first mile, less the usual ten per cent.—and we are still a long way from having a bridge over the Elwha.

County Surveyor Smith, Deputy Auditor Hoole and President Gray say that the 2,100-foot link necessary to carry the middle division of the road westward to a connection with the old county road will certainly be built in the spring.

At the taxpayer's meeting held at the Leader office, Monday afternoon, to discuss the road question, and to take such action for the protection of their interests as seemed advisable, a temporary organization was promptly effected.

Then squaring down to business, a mass of evidence was obtained from reliable men, relative to the wretched manner in which the work on this division was being done, and presumably being paid for, if not formally accepted; and it was decided to send a representative to Port Angeles to take counsel with one of the leading lawyers of that place, to ascertain just what redress at law they would have in case the road was accepted by the commissioners in other conditions than that stipulated in the contract; and to ascertain whether or not if certain alleged facts concerning the road could be substantiated in court, an injunction could not be secured restraining the commissioners from making any further payments to the Burlingame company on their contracts, until their work was brought squarely up to the requirements of the specifications.

It having been decided to make this protective organization a permanent one, M. J. Carrigan was elected as its president, Harry E. Lutz as vice president, and A. E. Tower as secretary. This taxpayers' protective league will meet on the call of the president and secretary, and a call for a meeting will be issued at the request of three or more taxpayers, who have anything to present for consideration.

It is the expectation that a similar organization will be formed in every community throughout the county, and the result will be that the people will soon be in a position to see to it that their public interests are properly cared for.

Just what course the people propose to follow regarding the county road matter will appear latter on. They are getting in shape to transact business.

MISSING LINKS.

California, according to the census taker, has 300,000 orange trees, but a careful count made by the state board of agriculture shows that California has 4,000,000 orange tree, of which 1,000,000 are in bearing. The are more than 3,000,000 lemon trees in the state. The report shows that oranges are growing in thirty-eight out of the fifty-two counties

The superstition of sailors that ecclesiastical associations bring bad luck to the ship will be strengthened by the recent explosion of the steamship Evangel's boiler, by which three men were killed outright and five others badly injured. The Evangel had been a gospel ship, and was built by small subscriptions from a great number of churches.

On the African shore, near the Gulf of Aden, and connecting the Lake of Assal with the main ocean, may be found one of the most wonderful rivers in the world. This curiosity does not flow to, but from, the ocean toward inland. The surface of Lake Assal itself is nearly seven hundred feet below the mean tide, and it is fed by this paradoxical river, which is about twenty-two miles in length.

If you are to sleep in a strange bed, says an exchange, and entertain a suspicion of dampness of the sheets, lay your watch between them and either smoke or read a while. Then take out the watch and if there is mist on the glass do not go to bed, or if you do, sleep between the blankets, which are never damp. Hundreds of drummers, especially men past middle age, take this precaution and profit thereby.

While ascending Pike's Peak by the new rack railway about one person in 200 is affected by the rarity of the air at the high attitude. The indications of distress are itching and redness of the nose and then blackness under the eyes. A woman who was dying apparently on a trip recently was sent back on the locomotive to the foot of the mountains where she recovered. The summit is 14,400 feet above the level of the sea.

Near Horn Head, County Donegal, Ireland, there is a hole in the rocks called McSwiney's gun. It is on the sea coast, and is said to have connection with a cavern. When the north wind blows and the sea is at half flood the wind and the waves enter the cavern and send up jets of water from the "gun" to a height of more than a hundred feet. The jets of water are accompanied by explosions which may be heard for miles.

A kind of bituminous rock which is found in several places in California is being extensively used for street pavements in that state. These pavements are very like the asphalt pavement in New York and other eastern cities, such as that in Wall street. The only difference between the two materials is said to be that asphalt is a manufactured article made of bitumen and sand, while the rock practically the same elements naturally combined.

NICARAGUA CANAL.

At a meeting of the Nicaragua Canal committee held in San Francisco on the 11th inst. a petition to the United States congress was read and adopted which urgently asked congress to aid in the construction of the canal and to secure for it national control. With the opening of this canal for the transaction of business, begins an era in the history of Washington which for prosperity will stand alone, unrivaled and unequaled by any that has ever been enjoyed by any people in the world.

Imagine what would be the result, if the value of every article which a man holds should be increased 200 per cent. by the accomplishment of a single condition which conservative estimates state can be realized in six years.

The value of every commodity is regulated by the demand for it; the demand is dependent upon the number of markets in which it can find purchasers, so, when you double the markets, you double the demand and the value of your products are increased 100 per cent.

With the opening of the Nicaragua canal, the markets of the Atlantic sea-board will be open for our lumber, nor will it stop this side of the Atlantic, but with a tariff for revenue only. and a decent interment of protection, England, France and Germany will become our customers for lumber and every grain of wheat raised west of the Rocky mountains can find a market in the east or in Europe, and be not first subjected to the payment of the enormous freight imposed by transcontinental railroads.

It takes no brilliant financer to see that when the canal is completed, timber, which today is a drug upon the market at from fifty cents to a dollar per thousand feet on the stump, will then be eagerly sought at two dollars. Nor will the purchasers confine their selection to fir, cedar and spruce, but hemlock will bring an equal amount. Then will Port Angeles realize how lavishly she has been blessed by nature when she caused the waves of the Straits to build a spit which forms at once the most perfect, the safest and most beautiful harbor on all the Pacific coast.

There is but one fault to be found in the president's message regarding the canal, and that is, in the amount of stock he thought advisable for the government to hold. Instead of half or two-thirds, let it be all. Make it strictly and purely Uncle Sam's canal, and give not a subsidy large enough to complete the entire work, and for it recieve the magnanamous amount of half the stock, and in addition pay toll for every war ship which passes through.

THE MESSAGE.

Mr. Harrison's third annual message has been presented to Congress. A carefully prepared abstract of which is given on another page of this issue. As a whole, the message is as good, in policy, as could be expected from a Republican president. But in his construction and argument Mr. Harrison is lacking. His messages do not compare with the beautifully constructed and brilliantly able messages of Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Harrison, as a writer, is not above common place. His argument on the tariff is decidedly weak. He follows the style of a hide-bound, high tariff editorial—and one without much merit at that. He is even inconsistant. He first claimed that the crops, especially the wheat crops. were extraordinarily large, and that the prices were good (on account of the failure in other and less fortunate chimes), thus suggesting a cause for good times.

He then proceeds to all credit for the (alleged by him) unusually prosperous times to the tariff. Now, as a matter of fact. the country is not unusually prosperous. In fact, it is unusually far from it. Bradstreet's reports show a large increase in the number of failures during the first nine months after the McKinley bill went into effect of over the nine months immediately preceding that time, while the increase in the liabilities was, more than forty per cent. during the same time. Figures show that were it not for the large crops mentioned by Mr. Harrison the country would be in an unusually bad financial condition. As it is, everywhere are heard complaints of hard times. These are in a great degree, directly attributible to the McKinley tariff.

His message gives credence to the statement of Minister Phelps that the action of Germany in permitting our meats to enter that country was due to the passage of laws providing for the inspection of meats for export, and not due to reciprocy, as has been claimed by friends of Blaine.

The message states that in the Bering sea question is in a fair way to settlement. This is rather a compliment to Mr. Bayard than anyone else; as Mr. Blaine, after two years of correspondence, decided that Mr. Bayard's position on that question was the only tenable one.

On the navy Mr. Harrison is sound. It may, here, be well to remark that his administration has zealously followed that of Mr. Cleveland on that question. Mr. Whitney's course has been wisely persued by his successor.

Mr. Harrison's remaks on the irrigation of arid lands are timely. Congress should follow his suggestion there to the letter.

However, the people are to be congratulated that there is so favorable a prospect of their having to bear but one more message from a Republican president.

THE Y. M. C. A.

It is not that we have no citizens interested in the work of the well known Young Men's Christian Association, but because until recently there has been no field for it, that no branch of that useful society has been organized in Port Angeles. The matter has been considered a long time, in fact, the lot donated by Mr. Fairbrook with the only condition that a suitable building be erected upon it, has been at the disposal of the Association twelve months or more, but it was thought that, until quite recently, the time had not come. That the time has now come, and the way open, those experienced in such work believe, and it is pleasing to note that many of our best citizens are ready and willing to give the enterprise their cordial support.

The character of the Young Men's Christian Association is expressed by its name. It is young men's work for young men, and while its distinctive, single purpose is to help young men to the best and happiest life, it works by a fourfold and the broadest method, that is the social, intellectual, physical and spiritual. In doing this it employs all honorable means open to it. Usually the first work is to establish a free reading room, which will be its initial undertaking in Port Angeles. Educational and music classes and probably a boating or athletic club will soon follow, as well as the usual benovelent and religious work. All this will, of course, require the expenditure of considerable money, but none too much, when the benefit of the institution is considered. Indeed, it is difficult to imagine how the same amount of money could be better invested, or where it would yield larger returns for the public good.

IT is true. Speaker Crisp, while yet a boy, with the truest and noblest of those of his section served in the Confederate army. And the record is that that service was honorable and sincere. But it is not less the truth that the war over, Mr. Crisp with the best of his colleagues went to work with an energy and faith for his state, the new South and the American nation, that says more for his patriotism than words can express. A quarter of a century of as faithful and devoted service as has been countryman's lot to give his country has earned for Mr. Crisp and his great and grand co-workers not only amnesty, but genuine and hearty applause and good will from every true lover of his country.

THE people of this county are paying for a road, and a good, round price at that, and they want one and not a law suit in its stead. The county commissioners should have insisted on having the road finished as the specifications require, before paying anything on it. This would have insured a good road. But they have not done it. They have paid out nearly two-thirds of the money in that fund, and much of the road is not anywhere near up to the specifications. However, that it has gone this far is now beyond help. They should now see that the road is completed as the specifications demand before more is paid out, and not go on and finally have to sue on the contractor's bond.

THE truth in plain words about Republican officials is seldom looked for from a Republican source. In this line, the following from the Port Townsend Leader is refreshing. It says:

The influence that the speaker may wield is second only to that of the president, and in many important respects it is even greater. He has absolute control of the committees and can thereby give both shape and color to national legislation. If he happens to be a man like Wolsey, at once diplomatic and unprincipled, he can throw the complexion of his hobbles and eccentricities over the enactments of the sessionsr If he happens to be a man like Reed, mettlesome, reckless and partisan, he can trample fair play in debate underfoot, recognize only his supporters on the floor, refuse to recognize the opposion, and by a series of arbitrary rulings help his party at the cost of the people.

OH, I say, Ulmer, "sweater" is not a Spanish word as your remark of the 14th inst. would lead one to believe. It is only a typographical error. In your editorial column of the same issue were four errors of the same nature and two mispelled words. What kind of a thing is "uniniated"? Will it bite? and do you keep a large stock on hand? The place where Mr. Carrigan lives is spelled Port C-r-e-s-c-e-n-t and not C-r-e-s-e-n-t. neither is it spelled C-r-e-c-e-n-t.

IT now seems probable that Mr. Mills will be made senator by the legislature of his state. It should be done. Mr Mills should have been made speaker and his state should show him its appreciation of his right.

NEWSPAPER jokes hereafter should be accompanied by diagrams and maps, that they may be understood by our dense little "weakly."

THE TIMES commences another volume of its eventful carrer. May it be its most prosperous. The Times deserves its popularity.

THE TRIBUNE joins in the effort to have a Board of Trade organized here.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

Italy is satisfied with the tone of President Harrison's message on the New Orleans lynching, that America would semi-officially promise Italy to modify the constitution so as to insure absolute protections to foreigners living in the United States.

Hurrah, for the "vigorous foreign policy" which alters our constitution to gratify the whims of royal runts.

If it will require three months to repair the government telegraph line from Pysht to Tatoosh, by the time it is up there will be no very great need of it until next year, as the stormy season will have become past history, and the end for which it was constructed is defeated by one storm, which is sure to ocenr again next winter, so, there will be but a few months in each year when it can be used and, these will occur in that season when it is required least. Still, it is a telegraph line up or down.

The Pall Mall Gazette, commenting on that part of President Harrison's message which deals with South American affairs, urges the United States government to be magnanimous in the treatment of Chili, for conciliation is better than coercion in Chili as elsewhere.

It would be well for Great Britain to forward with her advice to this government, her receipe for magnanimity, or at least to mention the school in which she learned its precepts.

Her attitude toward the two nations is such as to induce the opinion that she could be "happy with either, if t'other dear charmer were away," but it seems to prefer the United States should be "t'other dear charmer," beleiving she could hold her own with the Spaniards whom the Chilians hate.

The Ladies' Aid Society.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church met at their church Tuesday, that being the date set for their annual meeting and election. The officers not being prepared to report, the election was postponed until the 29th inst., to which date they adjourned.

While in session they discussed various matters. They voted to appropriate $100 to move the church to conform to the new survey of that portion of the city. They also voted to give $50 toward paying the salary of the pastor, The affairs of the society were found to be in good condition. After deducting all liabilities they have a balance of $232 to their credit. The society is doing a great work.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

The Boston Quintette Club's Entertainment a Grand Succes—A Reception.

The entertainment given by the Mendelssohn Quintette club, was the most perfect musical treat ever presented to an audience in this state. The gentlemen, Messrs. Deistel Henneberg, Ryan and Boegner are certainly masters of their respective instruments, and are excelled by no pertormers in the country.

Miss Marie Barnard has a rich, full mezzo soprano voice of rare sweetness, and great volume, and shows the highest degree of cultivation. The audience showed its appreciation of each performance by a storm of applause to which each performer responded once. Miss Barnard was recalled the second time.

After the concert an informal reception was given the members of the Quintette club at the parlors of the City Hotel. Although strictly informal it proved a royal entertainment. Among the features of the occasion were the matchless solo. by Mr. Eugene Boegner and Mr. Adler on the violin, Mr. Hermann Diestel on the violoncello, the piano playing by Mr. Paul Henneberg, of the club and the songs by Mr. Geo. E. Fisher, of this city. The members of the Quintette Club are all gentlemen of intellect and refinement who show to a splendid advantage their perfect education in the best of Germany's schools. The citizens of Port Angeles, especially those whose good fortune it was to come in personal contact with them, will always have the wellfare of these gentlemen at heart. Angeles can always be depended upon to give the Boston Quintette Club a heartq welcome, at least, so long as it is composed of its present personel.

SUMMONS.

In the Superior Court of the State of Washington, for the County of Clallam, holding terms at Port Angeles.

State of Washington, }
County of Clallam. } No 208.

The Port Discovery Mill Company, Plaintiff, vs. J. E. Hartagon, Defendant.

The State of Washington to the above named defendant:

You are hereby notified that The Port Discovery Mill company, plaintiff, has filed a complaint against you in the Superior Court of the State of Washington, for the County of Clallam, holding terms at Port Angeles, which will come on to be heard sixty days after the first publication of this Summons, to-wit: Sixty days after the 4th day of December, 1891, and unless you appear and answer the same on or before the 4th day of February, 1891, the same will be taken as confessed and the prayer of said complaint granted. The object and prayer of said complaint is for the foreclosure of a mortgage on a parcel of land in the townsite of Port Williams, Clallam county, Washington, described as follows: Commencing on Williams avenue on the northerly side of the land end of the said Port Williams townsite company's dock in said townsite of Port Williams, running thence in a northeasterly direction in a direct line along the line of said dock seventy, 70, feet to a point, thence at right angles northwesterly in a direct line seventy-five, 75, feet to a point thence at right angles in a direct line south easterly seventy, 70, feet to a point, thence at right angles in a direct line seventy-five, 75, feet to place of beginning; also the hotel and business, buildings situated on above described land. Given by said defendant, J. E. Hartagon, to said plaintiff, The Port Discovery Mill company on April 17, 1891 to secure the payment of a certain promissory note of same date, April 17, 1891, for the sum of $222.22 dollars, and interest thereon at the rate of 1 per cent. per month, and the further sum of thirty-two dollars and twenty-nin cents to be taxed as part of the costs, the attorney's fee provided for in said mortgage, together with costs and disbursements herein.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior Court, affixed this 2d day of December, A. D. 1891.

County Clerk and Clerk of Superior court
TRUMBULL & PLUMLEY, Attorneys for Plaintiff.
Date of first publication Dec. 4.

In the Superior court of Clallam county Washington.

In the matter of B. F. Schwartz, Ex parte, on application for a Receiver for the B. F. Schwartz company, a corporation.

Now, on this 14th day of December, 1891, comes the above named B. F. Schwartz, and files in this court an application, verified by affidavit, for a Receiver to be appointed for the B. F. Schwartz company under the law of the state of Washington, alleging among other things, in the said application that the said corporation has but one officer or stockholder residing within said state, and that said corporation is largely indebted with no officers to carry on and transact the business of the same. And that said corporation is the owner of real estate encumbered by mortgage, and that said corporation has no property outside of said encumbered real estate to pay said indebtedness, and that unless a Receiver is appointed for said corporation, it will become hopelessly insolvent and unable to pay its said indebtedness, and that said coporation has forfeited its corporate rights under the laws of said state.

Thereupon it was ordered by the court that said application be set for hearing at the court house in said county, on Tuesday the 29th day of December, 1891, at the hour of ten o'clock A. M., and that all persons interested in said application appear at said time and place, to show cause, if any why the prayer of said applicant should not be granted, and a Receiver appointed according to law.

Given under my hand this 14th day of December, 1891.

JAMES G. MCCLINTON,
Judge of said Superior Court.

The Bank of Port Angeles is a State, not a National Bank. Pays interest on deposits. Makes no charge for drafts on Pacific Coast points.

Tom—Ha! ha! ha! ha! ha!

Jim—What are you laughing at, Tom?

Tom—Why, you darn fool, Jim, that suit of mine only only cost me $10. Guess where I bought it. Give it up. do you? Well, go to the New York Clothing House. That is where you will get them, Jim. The cheapest place to buy clothing, I ever saw. But Jim, how much did that trip np sound cost you?

Jim—Oh, about $12, Tom.

Tom—Let me see; $12 for expense and $5 overcharge on the suit makes $17 in all. That would just buy, at the New York Clothing House, a nice suit and overcoat. Ha! ha! ha! you darn fool, Jim.

Jim—Now, Tom, I don't want any more of this giggling. You dont count the pleasure one has of seeing the beautiful stores with their plate glass windows and the nice cushion chairs one gets to sit down on. That's worth something isn't it?

Tom—You make me tired. Jim. That's no way to do. You can't expect your city will ever amount to any thing if you squander your money outside and get no benefit of it. Snpport home trade, old boy.

ANOTHER NEW CRUISER,

Norfolk's Pride, the Raleigh, Almost Ready for Launching.

When the appropriation of $1,100,000 was made by Congress in 1888 for the construction of two cruisers of 2,000 tons each, bids were advertised in the various parts of the country, but as no firm was found willing to undertake the contract at less than $250,000 in excess of the sum specified, the Navy Department decided to build them at the navy-yards.

Proposals were issued for material to be used in the construction of cruiser No. 7 at the Brooklyn yard and for cruiser No. 8 at the Norfolk yard. Another set of proposals was made for materials for use in the construction of the machinery for both cruisers to be made at the Washington foundry, it will be seen that the Cincinnati and the Raleigh, as the twins were named, are out-and-out government productions. For this reason an unusual amount of interest centers in them, as considerable curiosity is excited to see at what price the government will succeed in completing them.

The professors of ballistics, or more colloquially the ordnance men, have now their innings and have succeeded in forging ahead of the naval architects; and new conditions demand new things. In comparatively modern days it was counted a great feat to propel a shot at the initial velocity of 1,600 feet per second and still more wonderful to get 1,900 feet at the muzzle by using brown powder. The new smokeless—cordite—is said to give the highest volocity of 2,600 feet per second. Just think of it! half a statute mile in a second of time! Nor is this truly marvelous speed by any means thought to be the ultimate efforts of the energies that can be stored up in the powers at present in the hands of the chemical experts. The new projectiles filled with high explosives in a heretofore un-dreamt-of manner load the very air with death.

But the 16,33 knots speed of the Atlanta was derived from her 3,350 horse-power, whereas the Raleigh is to have 10,000 horse-power and is to make 19 knots per hour. From this we can see what an immence increase of engine power is required to drive the newer ship the extra 3 knots per hour. The Atlanta's engines are the compound horizontal type, turning but a single screw-whereas, high speed being considered essential, vertical engines with twin-screws are to be put in the Raliegh. At a reduced speed of eight knots per hour, her 556 tons of coal will carry her almost 10,000 miles.

Directly aft under the poop is placed the captain's after-cabin, and forward of this is the cabin proper, a large, well-lighted and well-ventilated apartment. Forward on each side, opening into a wide passage. are the captain's stateroom bathroom, pantry and office. In addition there are four staterooms, each one for the executive officer, the navigator, the pay master and the surgeon, with two officers, and an armory for the rifles, cutlasses and revolvers.

On the berth deck aft are storerooms, then the wardroom officers' lavatory accomodations, forward of which are ten staterooms and a large messroom running from side to side and furnished with transom sofas. Junior and warrant officers' quarters, pantries wash-rooms, etc., come next. The remainder of the deck, with the exception of the paymaster's office, dispensary and prison, or "brig." as it is generally known, is given up to the crew.

The rudder is of a balanced type, which is at present in great favor among foreign naval architects. It is an interesting fact to know that this style of steering apperatus was used aboard the old Stevens Battery, the pioneer of the ironclad fleets of the world.

Among the novel ideas included in the Raleigh is the introduction of the coffer dam protection in wake of the water line and next the outside plateing in the coal-bunker, on the slope of the protective deck.

The coffer dam is to be filled with water-excluding material, and it is now thought that cellulose made from the fibre of the cocoanut. will be used. Experiments made with this material. both in France and Denmark, show it to be an excellent water-excluder, while in this country we are about to conduct a series of exhaustible experiments to see which is the better, woodiate, which was originilly intended for the vessel, or the newer cellulose.

The arament consists of a 6-inch breech loading rifle, mounted on a centre pivot carriage under the forecastle in sponsons, and two on each broadside, also in sponsons. The secondary battery will be made up of two 6-pounders. two 3-pounders, and 1-pounder and two 37 mm revolving cannon.

There are six torpedo tubes with openings about four feet above water, worked from the upper deck, fixed tubes forward and aft, and the other four, which are training tubes, are placed at the sides of the forward and aft berth decks. These tubes are of the Howell pattern. using gunpowder impulse, a device much superior to the hydraulic or preumatic telescopic rammer sometimes used.

The electric light installation consists is in duplicate and as many lamps are furnished as lighting and signaling purposes require. An exhaustive system of ventillation is provided, worked by powerful blowers, and pipes are led down from the upper deck for supplying fresh air. There is a most complete system of drainage and pumping by which the total power of the steam and circulating pumps can be concentrated on any main or intermediate compartment. The steam for all these purposes as well as for the main engines. is furnished by four main and two auxiliary boilers. the total grate surface being 597 square feet and the heating surface 19,382 square feet.

The Boy With A Cough.

It was on a Staten Island ferry-boat. The cabin was crowded with people, and the boat was just leaving the slip, when a boy about twelve years of age, who had a shoulder of mutten in a basket between his feet, suddenly indulged in a fit of coughing. His face grew red, his eyes bulged out, and his legs worked like piston-rods, as he went cough! cough! cough! Everybody's attention was attracted, and an old man sitting next to him seemed considerably put out as he said:

"That's it! I never git on this boat but what something happens to upset my nerves! Why in Sam Hill don't you take somethin' for that cough?"

"I am takin' sunthin'," replied the boy.

"That's just the way with a boy! He goes sloshing around and gits cold. And then the public has got to suffer for it! In my time boys had some sense about 'em. If they didn't hev it was licked into 'em!"

The boy made no reply to this, and the old man had just got his spectacles wiped off to put on his nose and look at a newspaper when there was a warning gurgle, three or four gasps, and the cough broke loose again. The boy tried as hard as he could to hold back on it, but it got away and raised him off the seat.

"Look-a-here, young man, you're a-doin' that just to spite me!" exclaimed the touchy individual, as the cough finally ceased.

"I han't, neither!" hotly replied the boy.

"Don't talk back that way to me If you've got a cough why don't you take squills and cure it up? Nobody with sitch a cough as that has any bizness travelin' around and disturbin' people. When I have a cough I stay in the house."

A middle-aged man near by now put aside his paper and said to the old man:

"I don't see how the boy can help coughing if he's got a cough."

Then let him go outside where he won't upsot everybody," replied the man.

"You wouldn't do it if you had a cough.?

"Yes, I would. The public has rights, and I'm one to respect 'em! I never go around puttin' people's nerves on edge."

"If I didn't have to cough I wouldn't, would I?" repealed the boy. "If a feller has a cough I don't see how"—

Here he flushed up, his eyes rolled and he worked away like a fog-horn.

"I say he's a-puttin' that all on to annoy me!" exclaimed the old man.

"Looks that way to me, too," added the man on his right, who had been aching to mix in.

"That's all nonsence!" replied the boy's defender.

"Of course it is!" added the second. "If I didn't like the cough I'd go outside."

"You would, ah? you wouldn't do nuthin of the kind! If he was my boy I'd give him a tannin' he wouldn't furgit fur a month!"

The two other men now had something to say, the boy broke loose again, and before the boat was half way across the bay at least a score of people were taking sides and disputing and exhibiting a good deal of acrimony. The testy old man grew hotter every ninute, and finally got up aud said:

"I say a boy hain't no bizness to have a cough and disturb the public! I say he arter be licked! You folks who are stickin' up for him are encouragin' him to go to the gallows! I'll see the captain and see if I've got any rights on this boat."

He went off to hunt up the officer the boy took his cough and went down stairs, and pretty soon peace reigned supreme and Liberty seemed to smile as she looked down upon the dancing waters.

The Deacon's Sporting Side.

While the Exeter fair was in progress, the Baily Praying Band was holding forth in a neighboring town. A farmer, interested in their work, meta certain deacon one morning and asked: "Did you have a good meeting yesterday, Brother Blank?" As quick as a flash came the reply: "Yes a tarnation good one! Ruel R. went in 2:48, and won first money."
