THE NEW YEAR, 1892.

The Gate City Minstrels a Success.

OUR "400" ENTERTAINS.

Those Who Did and Those Who Did Not Entertain Their Friends—Our Dramatic Company—A Dinner Party—Other Scraps of Interest.

The entertainment given by the Gate City Minstrels on New Year's evening was just as full of fun as their advertisements had promised, and a larger audience applauded the actors than ever before was received by a troupe of amateurs in Port Angeles. The musical part of the program deserves special mention, as this was furnished by well-trained voices and skilled musicians. Mr. Ben Keller's rendition of "Sweet Dreamland Faces" filled the house with sweet sounds, which were applauded vociferously.

L. H. Smith, as Bones, sang "Swinging on the Golden Gate," in a manner very pleasing to the audience, and Mr. Ritchie won a storm of applause by singing "Silver Bells of Memory."

Part first concluded with the laughable farce "Johnston's Intelligence Office," in which Geo. W. Meagher, as Pompey Johnson, displayed considerable talent as a negro comedian.

Charles Jones to himself alone had all the "Fun in the Kitchen," and treated the spectators to a remarkably acrobatic performance.

In the "Sick Wife" Mr. Geo. W. Meagher played his part well, and pleased everyone with his "Near It."

The musical sketch produced by Messrs. S P. Carusi, Sam Carusi and W. Ritchie, was a most enjoyable feature, as they played well upon their instruments and their selections were full of melody.

"A Picnic on the Spit" concluded the performance, in which was introduced songs and instrumental selections.

Our Dramatic Company.

The Port Angeles Dramatic company made their first appearance last week at the Port Angeles Opera-house in the "Area Belle" and "Simple Silas." The "Area Belle" is a very amusing little sketch, and all the performers did themselves credit. "Simple Silas" is a very interesting drama. Lew Smith played in the title role, and made quite a hit. The cast all got a share of the applause, especially in the happy finale.

Those in the cast were; Mrs. Edna Burns, Mrs. E. Covington, Miss Lillie Hitch, Messrs. L. H. Smith, T. R. Thompson, C. L. Babcock, Will Crockett, Ben Crockett and Thomas Jarvis. The company deserved a better house.

A Dinner Party.

One of the most pleasant and altogether enjoyable events of the holiday week was Mr. and Mrs. John R. Clark's celebration of the thirty-first anniversary of their wedding. A turkey dinner was given and an afternoon spent in enjoying it and in pleasant conversation. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Stakemiller, Mr. and Mrs. Gallup, Mr. and Mrs. Stivers and Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Williams.

A New Years' Party.

A New Year's party was given by J. R. DeWitt and Dr. I. R. Herrick, in the office of the latter. A delicious and nicely arranged supper was served, after which toasts, stories and popular songs were the order of the evening. The Old Year was sung out with "Auld Lang Syne." Those present were: Doctors Herrick, Lewis and George, and Messrs. J. R, DeWitt, B. R. Johnson, J. K. Ashley, W. E. Smith, E. E. Blackwood, Thomas Penniman, H. K. Humphries, J. Ferres Smith and Thos. Aldwell. In the morning the whole party escorted Messrs. DeWitt, Johnson and Ashley to the Geo. E. Starr, Mr. Ashley returns to Spokane, and Mr. DeWitt and Johnson go to Southern Oregon.

Danced the New Year in.

The dance given by the young men of Port Angeles at Thompson's hall on the night of the 31st inst., though not very largely attanded, was enjoyed by all present. Dancing began at 9 o'clock and continued until the New Year was one hour old.

Those in attendance were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, Misses Church, Stewart, Lewis, Guptill, Crockett, Jeffries, Yarnell, Korter, of Port Townsend, and others, Messrs. N. R. Smith, Burlingame, F. Fisher, Church, Dimmick, Ware, Dedman, Grimes, Troy, Brumfield, Schaefer, Smith, Keller, Yarnell, Brewster, Morse, White and Jno. Wilson.

On New Years Day.

On the first evening of the New Year, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Schwartz, president of the Bank of Port Angeles, entertained at dinner a few of their host of friends. Around the table which was arranged in a manner so tastefully that the most fastidious epicure would have been delighted, were seated Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz, Captain Dixon, of the George E. Starr, Messrs. A. A. Smith, H. White, B. T. Smith, R. A. Grimes, J. W. Troy and W. W. Dedman. The evening was indeed a most pleasant one. After dinner a theatre party was proposed, and the pleasures of the evening were augmented by the performance of the Gate City Minstrels at the opera house.

An Informal Reception.

Mrs. L. D. Stewart gave an informal reception last Tuesday in honor of Mr. R. S. Dimmick, a nephew of ex-governor L. K. Church of Dakota between whose family and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart great friendship existed while South Dakota was the latter's home. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart and Miss Stewart, Messrs. R. S. Dimmick, of Clallam Bay, B. C. Keller, Horace White, R. A. Grimes, L. H. Jenns, J. W. Troy and W. W. Dedman.

Music and cards were the features of the evening. Mr. Dickson delighted the company by his faultless cornet playing, and Mr. Keller's well-trained voice won them all into perfect enjoyment. An elaborate luncheon was served at 11 o'clock, and the evening was passed as pleasantly as their model host and hostess could desire.

Knocked Out.

D. E. Campbell, as agent of the Northwestern Express Co., has received instructions by wire from Seattle to close the office ot that company at this place, alleging that it has not paid expenses. This is directly attributable to the war between the Northwestern and the Northern Pacific companies, the latter, with its eastern connections, will not deliver matter shipped over their lines to the Northwestern. Mr. Campbell has also received another telegram stating that the Haytian Republic has been ordered to discontinue this route. It is not known whether or not any other vessel will take her place, but the inference is that none will.

A SAD CASE.

Mrs. McClosky Left by Her Husband, Becomes Insane—Dangerous at Times.

BEAVER, Jan. 3. [Special]—Last summer a Mr. McClosky, a boiler maker and machinist, accompanied by his wife, came into this countiy and settled on a claim about ten miles above Beaver on the Solduck river. Some three months ago Mr. McClosky went up sound to work at his trade. He was to stop either at Seattle or Tacoma, leaving his wife alone to hold down the claim. She has said that she has not received a line from him, consequently did not know where he was. The claim they settled upon, it is said, they jumped and had frequently remarked that they expected the first settler would come and claim the place. This fear it is thought together with the lonliness of the place, has driven Mrs. McClosky insane. The first known of it, she rushed into the house of a neighbor, picked up a hammer and cried; "Keep them off; they are going to kill me!" Her looks and actions so frightened the lady of the house, that she picked up her only child and ran to a neighbor, a Mr. Iverson, for help. Mr. Iverson returned at once with her and after considerable coaxing, prevailed upon Mrs. McClosky to accompany him home where he has takencare of her since at a great risk, not only to himself but to his family, as at one time she secured a large butcher knife and another his brother's rifle. The coolness of Mr. Iverson alone saved trouble and perhaps bloodshed. In her ravings she claims two men and two women came to her house. One of the men, looking in at the window, she immediately fired, striking him in the neck and killing him instantly. A party left this morning to see if anything had happened. At present writing have not returned. Nothing is thought of it, as there are no women in that neighborhood unaccounted for. They are making preparations to take Mrs. McClosky to Port Angeles at once.

Half a dozen cowboys took a passenger train on the International and Great Northern railroad near Buda, Tex., and forced a drummer to jump off the morning train because he wore a red neck-tie and a silk hat. They then entered the Pullman and made a number of young ladies sing for them.

In a small town 20 milles from Meriden, Miss., William Wright was married to a Miss Phillips. The party returned to the parlor after the marraige ceremony was performed. The groom was shot and killed upon passing before a a window by an unsuccessful suitor for the hand of Miss Phillips. Johnson fired the fatal shot. It is reported he was immediately captured and lynched.

NAILS FOR GUNSHOT.

From Port Angeles to Seattle in a Canoe—The Judge Wants to Move His Court to Portland—Dressed up all Out of Shape.

Early in the spring of '80 I started from Port Angeles on a trip to Boise City, Idaho, in company with his honor Judge Marcus Arelius Brutus Huntoon, the events of this trip I am requested to relate for the benefit of the readers of the DEMOCRAT.

Our start was made early one morning under very favorable circumstances, having procured a canoe large enough to carry two men and the entire outfit of nondescript baggage which Huntoon said was indispensible. I confined my wardrobe in one small valise, while the Judge had piled upon the beach ready to be loaded in the canoe, an old double barrel shotgun, a trunk, a saddle in a gunny sack which had many times graced the back of "Billy" and an army overcoat, which he said was just as good a bed as man needed to camp with.

I did not relish the idea of taking the trunk, as I could imagine no possible use to which we could put it, I walked up to assist in loading it and I was surprised by its weight. I could hardly lift it. I became very much interested in its contents, and asked the Judge if I might open it. 'Certainly, Davie" replied his honor. So with his permission I started to investigate its contents. I was never more surprised when I found that this piece of baggage contained about a bushel of the trimmings of a horse's hoof and about one hundred pounds of old horseshoe nails, and an odor that can not be likened to otter of roses. I asked him what he was going to do with that old stuff. He only replied that "they were all old Billy's, and I can't get get along without them." I said nothing more, knowing that expostulation would be useless.

We reached Port Townsend about 5 o'clock that afternoon and the next morning the Judge betook himself to a blacksmith to have some repairs made on his gun.

During our trip up from Port Angeles we tried to kill some ducks with his gun, instead of using shot, which the Judge insisted was not good for his gun, saying he always used small nails as he could get much better results with them, and accordingly charge after charge of four penny nails were rammed home in the gun and were fired at the unoffending ducks—none however, were injured—but for a few moments after each discharge the nails would whistle and sing in a manner which seemed to delight his honor, and would invariably call up a long tirade of invictives against shot, and an equally long line of remarks presenting the virtue of nails as the medium of distruction for game.

At Tacoma we went into the dining-room of the railroad hotel for a luncheon the waiter in attendance walked up to the Judge, leaning over him with one hand upon the back of his chair and the other on the table and asked "Clams, sir?" "H—— no. Clams be d—— we have just left a clam country, give us anything else.

Everyone in the dining-room turned their eyes upon the Judge when he delivered the above remark, and many came around to inquire of him where his clam country was located.

When we arrived in Portland the usual army of hotel runners was at the station whose loud and vigorous insistance upon our accompanying them to their respective hotels made the Judge very angry.

He cleared a circle around him by swinging his old gun around his head, then shouldered the gunny-sack which enveloped his saddle, and informed them that he was just as game as any of them and would find his own hotel. I had jumped into a buss, and upon looking out the rear window I saw his honor, Judge Marcus Arelius Brutus Huntoon, coming in a fast trot up through the middle of the street, in which was a foot of mud, with his gun in one hand and his saddle over his shoulder, the tails of his army overcoat were flying out behind like a signal of distress, and a smile of triumph was upon his face.

The next sensation he created was just after our first meal, when upon leaving the dining hall he found that someone had stolen his hat, he immediately started out upon the street, bareheaded, in search of the theif swearing he would prosecute him and would move his own court down to Portland and have the case to come up before himself.

He gave up the search for the hat and returned to the hotel, where the clerk assigned us to a room upon the fifth floor. Remembering his experience with his hat he would not allow his trunk to be taken up by the elevator, but made me help him drag it up the stairs.

When we reached our room the old man swore a great deal more, and attributed his misfortunes and the elevated position of our room to the fact that he had not worn a "biled shirt."

The Judge sought and found his nephew in Porland, who induced him to buy some "human clothes," and when "dressed up all out of shape," as his honor remarked, when he surveyed himself in a mirror, took him to a photographer to have some pictures taken. There happened to be quite a crowd in the studio and waiting room, and everyone immediately appreciated the Judge's character, and with one accord they entered into the fun. The artist seated his honor in a chair, and inquired: "Do you wish your picture taken 'full on' or a side view?" Now, the Judge's nose was very crooked, and he was blind in one eye, so, to the full view proposition his honor replied, upon seeing the negative: "That won't do. I want my blind eye out of the picture."

Another negative was made of a side view and was submitted to the Judge for his approval. At the first glance he said "Well, that makes my crooked nose appear to be trying to get into my ear, but d—— the nose, that will do," and the side view was accepted.

THE COMMISSIONERS IN SESSION.

They Approve the Eastern Division—Deputy Treasurer's Salary Raised.

The board of county commissioners met last week and after directing the county auditor to notify the overseers of districts No. 8 and No. 12 (Port Crescent) to clear the fallen timber out of the new county road in their districts, adjourned to meet on Saturday, January 2nd. The recess being for the purpose of examining the eastern division of the county road.

They met Saturday with a full board present. The eastern division of the county road was approved and accepted on motion of Mr. Gordon and the county auditor was directed to issue a warrant on the bond fund of the division for $2,469.37 and one on the general road fund for $1,154.13 to settle in full for that division.

The salary of the deputy treasurer was increased to $125 per month for January, February and March and $100 per month during the other months. The old salary was $75 per month.

The resignation of Charles B. Measor, as constable for Clallam Bay precinct was accepted and Robert Smith appointed to fill the vacancy.

The petition of Jacob Fassel and others for a voting precinct at Shuwah was laid over until next meeting.

The petition of Thomas Reed et al, for a road in the Pysht country, was presented and Samuel Nelson, Thomas Robinson and William Crawford were appointed to view out and locate the road with the county surveyor, whom they are to meet at Pysht, January 12th.

A petition from J. P. Austin and others for a county road was rejected on account of non-conformity with the law.

Thagard & Buchaltz, of Clallam Bay, were granted permission to remove their saloon to East Clallam, on motion of Mr. Gordon.

A great number of bills for current expenses, the care of the poor and for transcribing and indexing records, were ordered paid. The expense account of the auditor was also approved.

Saturday afternoon the board adjourned until the next regular meeting, which occurs February 1st.

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
WASHINGTON, D. C., December 14,
(General Instructions No. 8.)

The following instructions relative to the display of wind signals, in modification of the instructions at present in force, are issued to take effect January 1, 1892.

I. At stations on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts the display of the signal known as the "Cautionary Signal" will be discontinued. The "Storm Signal" will be displayed as at present, but will be a warning of an expected wind-velocity intermediate between the present cautionary and storm justifying velocities.

II. At all wind-signal stations the red pennant will be used for the "Information Signal" instead of the yellow pennant, and at stations where "Cautionary Signals" are displayed a red flag with a white centre will be used for the "Cautionary Signal" instead of the yellow flag with a white centre. This change is made to avoid confusion with the recognized "Quarantine Signal."

COLONEL JAMES HAMILTON LEWIS

As the time for the selection of the candidates who shall bear party standards in the state this year draws near the subject of what shall be the personnel of the party tickets becomes one of more and more interest. On account of the typography of this state, the question of the section from where candidates hail is a troublesome one to both parties. Happily, however, there is one Democrat, at least, who belongs to no section, but can be claimed by the whole state he loves so well. He is mentioned in connection with the governorship and none in the Evergreen State would grace the chair more—few, if any, as well. Is it necessary to say that we refer to Colonel James Hamilton Lewis?

James Hamilton Lewis—the name is a synonim for polite, suave gallantry and frank, generous chivalry. If ever a true, generous, kind hearted gentleman lived, Colonel Lewis is one. His great, tender heart is always ready to take unto itself the troubles and burdens of the oppressed and drown-trodden Their cause is his cause, and fortunate indeed, are they in having him for their champion.

Being a scholarly and scientific thinker, Colonel Lewis is a true Democrat—not in name only, but in fact and in deed. He detests everything not truly democratic. In him despotism and oppression have a natural enemy, one that will fight them to a bitter end.

Besides his noble, gentlemanly qualities, Colonel Lewis is a statesman. He is a man of extraordinary ability. He would make a governor than whom none would surpass. Besides, he has in him all the elements of success. Popular the whole state over, and deservedly so, Colonel Lewis is the most available man in the state in in any party.

James Hamilton Lewis can be better compared with the grand, young governor of Massachusetts than any man in the United States in public life. Both young, popular and facinating, both eloquent orators, able laywers and brilliant statesmen.

Washington Democrats emulate Massachuesetts Democrats and nominate for governor Colonel James Hamilton Lewis, the perfect gentleman and true Democrat.

JOHN J. INGALLS.

Governor Humphrey, of Kansas, has appointed Representative Perkins, of that state, United States senator to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Plumb. This still leaves Mr. Ingalls, a statesman without a job. Mr. Ingalls has displeased the Republicans in authority since his retirement from the senate. He has been too independent and out-spoken for them. He has said too many pleasant things about the south and the uniting and making common cause of southern and western interests. This refusal of Governor Humphery to appoint him to the senate shows that the Republicans who know him best believe that Mr. Ingalls is sincere and for the first time in a quarter of a century, has been talking as his conscience dictates. Mr. Ingalls has been raised in popular estimation by being so carefully overlooked by Kansas' minority governor. It will dispel the belief held by many that he had been talking to secure public applause, that he would be the same old fire-eating dispenser of sectional and partisan hatred were he again elected to office. But the evidence seems to be that Mr. Ingalls has finally thrown off the mask he was wearing and has appeared before the people as Mr. Ingalls, the man of intellect, ceasing, apparently, to act as the mouth-piece for partisan tricksters and partisan caucuses. If Mr. Ingalls should live to reach the alloted three-score and ten, and work earnestly, it is not only not too late for him to overcome the effects of the evil seeds of dissention and hypocracy sown by him as Senator Ingalls, but he could do a great work for the releif of the agricultural classes and for the upbuilding of fraternity between the sections.

IF MR. Burlingame had had a contract with the county commissioners as individuals to build for them a road, is it probable that they would put up the money out of their own pocket to clear debris out of it before it was completed or accepted, just because Mr. Burlingame didn't put it there? It is not likely. No one would use his own funds as the autocratic board of county commissioners are using the people's. The voice from Forks published in THE DEMOCRAT is a fair warning of what they may expect from the people.

IF rumors are correct our courts are becoming less partisan. Just following the decision of the New York Court of Appeals for the people and honest government, comes the rumor from Hartford that the supreme court of Connecticut is about to rule that Morris, Democrat, is entitled to the office of governor in that state and from Washington comes word that the United States supreme court will decide that Boyd, Democrat, is a citizen of the United States. This will give him the office of governor of Nebraska to which he was elected last fall.

MR. BLAINE is making a hard single-handed fight to save the reciproctiy idea from disrepute with the party, but he is not making a very great success out of it. If Mr. Blaine wants to be in the swim, he will soon have to go through another shrinking process and contract his ideas commensurate with Mr. McKinley's little tub. He will then find room to swim provided, of course, he supports Mr. Harrison for re-nomination. McKinley and Reed are in command.

THE county commissioners have accepted the eastern division of the county road. They had all been over the road, and say that it is even better than the specifications require. This is in direct contradiction to the statements made by citizens who have been over the road time after time. Can it be that the board had made up their minds to accept it whether or not? It seems so.

THE NEW YORK Court of Appeals has decided the contested legislative cases in favor of the Democrats. This gives the Democratic party entire control of the Empire state. A fair apportionment may now be looked for in that state, and consequently Democratic control. New York is a Democratic state and should be controlled by the majority of her citizens.

COLONEL JOHN C. HAINES died suddenly at his home in Seattle, on the 2nd. inst. This sad incident removes from this state one of the most powerful and brainy men of the northwest. Colonel Haines was an active, energetic man of superior ability.

IF the Democratic candidate for president comes from New York, which still seems more than probable, his name will be Grover Cleveland.

UNCLE JERRE RUSK, has, evidently fallen in line with a customary New Year's resolution. He has sworn off making rain.

MINISTER PAT EGAN was not present at the inauguration of President Jorge Montt, of Chili. This is additional evidence that he should have been recalled upon the fall of Balmaceda.

A Deserved Compliment.

There is but one truly irridescent statesman in Washington: that is but one truly great Chesterfield of the nineteenth century. It were almost a work of supererogation to write the name of the rising democratic statesman. He is known as a cyclopaedic of five-syllable words, a thesurus of latter day gallantries. He is called colonel, forsooth why no man living can tell. Yet the titel sits on his shoulder so gaily debonaire that none may question its source or contest its rights.

He is a gentleman who bows in his sleep, and in repose simulates grace of carriage and courtly countenance. No one can longer question his identity, or longer doubt his personality. The colonel is no other than James Hamilton Lewis, orator, lawyer, politican and genleman.—Olympian.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

Governor Campbell, of Ohio, in an interview is said to have stated as his opinion, that neither Cleveland or Hill would receive the nomination from the Democrats.

It is strange that Governor Campbell should speak in this manner of Mr. Cleveland.

Verily, an era of prosperity must be dawning upon Cle-Elum, who now has a metropolitan element in her inhabitants. Let Seattle look to her laurels.

A prominent member of the foreign affairs committee of the senate in regard to a settlement with England of the Bering sea controversy said: "It is not to be expected that the decision made by the commission would be mutually satisfactory. It is only a question of time until we will be compelled to go to war with England to settle the question of our northern boundary," and concludes by saying: "Of course we could whip England."

The German kaiser, in his endeavor to draw the Bavarians closer to Prussia, offered Prince Luitpold, the regent, the office of colonel of the imperial guard, which was declined on the ground of old age. The offer was next made to the regent's brother, Prince Leopold, who also declined the honor, his reason being that he preferred living in Munich.

These much honored gentlemen were evidently never citizens of Kentucky, or old age or a mere preference of an abiding place would never have incited a refusal of the coveted title of colonel. The first would have argued that it is better to die a colonel than to live an ordinary prince, and the latter, had he been a Kentuckian, would have preferred hades as a home with the inhabitants calling him "Kun'el," than a residence upon earth where he would be known only as Prince."

The German kaiser intends visiting the United States and will travel incognito. Probably he will take one of his minor titles, that of Count Ravensburg

Why would it not be a good scheme for William to adopt, for this trip only, the name of one of the members of his suit and that honored member could take the Count Ravensburg name and title? Then they could both travel incog.

What, with our strained relations with Chile, the New Orleans lynching not yet settled, fighting on the Rio Grande with Mexican revolutionists, our flag cut from the mast of the James Hamilton Lewis by a Russian cutter, the Bering sea question still a bete noir, the present administration certainly has abundant material from which to write a large line of lamentations. But, let us lick something or somebody, and then have peace.

It is said that George Washington, although he was first in war, first in peace, first in ——, and first in a few other events, was always last in paying taxes.

That's alright and so was George. A man can't always be first in everything. Let us hope though, that he is the man who set the example for all truely great men to pay their subscriptions for newspapers in advance.

BREAKERS AHEAD.

The Autocrats Say Do, But the Overseers Don't, When the Autocrats Threaten.

There promises to be on eruption between the board of county commissioners and some of the road overseers. Just after the storm of Dec. 7th, the county commissioners sent word to the overseers of the districts through which the middle division of the county road runs to clear the fallen timber from the new road. The overseers in that section did not obey this order. They thought the commissioners had no right to make such an order as the road was not yet a county road. The Commissioners, after waiting patiently—or more probably—impatiently for about two weeks, instructed the Auditor to notifiy the rebellious overseers to immediately proceed to clear the timber from the new county road—accent decidedly on the "immediately." This was followed by a gentle hint at a $200 fine for non-compliance and an insinuation that it would be enforced. The overseers still claim that this is contrary to law or precedent. They say that the road, having not been accepted, is still in the hands of the contractor, and that he should do this work himself. Trouble is brewing. How it will end no one knows.

Nearly Fatal.

Mr. Herman Culver met with a serious accident last Monday. Mr. Culver was cutting a tree, which had been blown into a vertical position by the late storms, and was standing upon the trunk at the time.

The tree parted very suddenly on account of the great strain imposed upon it by its leaning position. The stump and roots immediately righted when relieved of the leaning top, and threw Mr. Culver several feet away, falling upon a stump he was considerably shaken up.

It was not until eight o'clock when the unfortunate man was found in an unconscious condition by some friends, who removed him to the house of the Rev. M. U. Squires, where he was kindly taken care of until last Thursday when he was taken to his own home on First street between Eunice and Francis.

Dr. McGeorge, who was in attendance, thinks Mr. Culver has sustained internal injuries, though not of a fatal nature.

Damaged off Cape Flattery.

The schooner Martha W. Tufts, Captain Stokebye, left Port Madison, December 30th, for San Francisco loaded with 220,000 feet of lumber, and after passing out of the straits with moderately fair weather, was struck by a tariffic gale off Cape Flattery on the night of January 1st, which carried away her main boom.

Great skill was displayed by her captain and crew in putting her about to return to Port Angeles where a new main boom was put in by Hansen & Son. She continued on her trip leaving this port during the night of January 6th.

What's the matter with Port Angeles' New Year weather? Not perfect, but "very near it."

FROM RENA.

New Year's Day Celebrated—A Sawmill—Good Hunting—Bad Roads.

RENA, Jan. 6—[Special.]—New Year's day was celebrated here by a shooting match in the day and a dance at night. A large crowd was out.

The new sawmill at this place commenced operations this week. The capacity of the mill will be 8,000 to 10,000 feet per day. They have a plainer in connection, and can turn out any kind of lumber, dressed or otherwise.

The nimrods in this section have been enjoying themselves among the deer and bear the past month. A number of each have been killed.

The roads are in such a very bad condition that there is scarcely any travel at all on them at present.

THEY RESOLVE.

A Mass Meeting at Forks—The Democrat and the Leader Endorse it.

FORKS, Dec. 30—[Special.]—At a mass meeting of the citizens of Forks and vicinity called today to discuss the county road matters, Mr. Ford was made chairman and the following resolutions were submitted and adopted unammously.

RESOLVED, As citizins of Clallam county, we disapprove of and protest against the manner in which the Burlingame Co., are building the county road, and,

Resolved, That we object to the county commissioners paying for the same, or part of the contract price thereof until the road is completed according to the specifications and be it further,

Resolved, That we object to the citizens clearing off any of said road.—J. E. Crawford.

It was also resolved that the action of the Citizens protective League of Port Crescent, be endorsed.

On motion it was ordered that copies of these resolutions be furnished THE DEMOCRAT of Port Angeles, and the Port Crescent Leader.

Stole a Rowboat.

Sheriff Gould received a telegram from New Dungeness on the 6th, to arrest, Albert Barrus and Thomas Howard, who are charged with having stolen a yellow clinker built rowboat, at Groveland City on the night of the 5th inst.

The Bank of Port Angeles is a State not a National Bank. Pays interest on deposits. Makes no charge for drafts on Pacific Coast points.

The Union Pacific.

It is considered a settled fact that the Union Pacific has become the owner of the Port Townsend Southern railroad, and from sources which may be considered perfectly reliable it is intimated that the same company regards Port Angeles as the most available terminal point on the entire coast, and when the times are ripe will continue their road from Port Townsend to Port Angeles.

An Improvement Campany.

The Washington Improvement Company filed articles of incorporation last week with a capital of $100,000. A coterie of wealthy men of Oregon and California, and Louis Williams, of Port Angeles are the incorporators. Colonel Coolican is one of the leading spirits in this enterprise.

A Monument to Lincoln.

A great deal of interest has been manifested by the citizens of Port Angeles in the movement just started to organize a society whose object shall be to erect a monument in Port Angeles to Abraham Lincoln. No one questions but that this would be a fitting tribute to the memory of the man by whose order the townsite was laid out, and set aside by the government for the benefit of its subjects when the increased population would render it desirable and necessary. Harmonious action on the part of the people can procure the monument.

DON'T MISS It. What? The Chicago World's Fair, 1893. Apply to the "Northwestern Co-operative World's Fair Savings and Transportation Comsany" for information. Getting there and back made easy for anyone.

COMMON SENSE.

Say, Jim, where have you been the past few days?"

Well. Tom, I thought I would go up to Seattle and buy a suit of clothes for Christmas."

Tom—Why, Jim, that suit is just like mine. how much did you pay for that suit, Jim?

Jim—Guess, Tom.

Tom—Fifteen dollars.

Jim—You hit it, by Jingo.

Tom—Ha! ha! ha! ha! ha!

Jim—What are you laughing at, Tom?

Tom—Why, you darn fool, Jim, that suit of mine only only cost me $10. Guess where I bought it. Give it up. do you? Well, go to the New York Clothing House. That is where you will get them, Jim. The cheapest place to buy clothing, I ever saw. But Jim, how much did that trip np sound cost you?

Jim—Oh, about $12, Tom.

Tom—Let me see; $12 for expense and $5 overcharge on the suit makes $17 in all. That would just buy, at the New York Clothing House, a nice suit and overcoat. Ha! ha! ha! you darn fool, Jim.

Jim—Now, Tom, I don't want any more of this giggling, You dont count the pleasure one has of seeing the beautiful stores with their plate glass windows and the nice cushion chairs one gets to sit down on. That's worth something isn't it?

Tom—You make me tired. Jim. That's no way to do. You can't expect your city will ever amount to any thing if you squander your money outside and get no benefit of it. Support home trade, old boy.

Who Knows What A Kiss Is?

Some time ago London Tid-Bits offered a 2-guinea prize for the best defination of a kiss. Seven thousand answers were received. The prize was awarded to Benjamin J. Greenwood of Tulse hill London, whose defination is herewith given:

"An insiped and tasteless morsel, which becomes delicious and delectable in proportion as it is flavored with love."

The following is a selection from some of the best definations submited:

What the chimney sweeper imprinted on the rosy lips of the scullery maid when she told him she favored his soot.

The sweetest fruit on the tree of love. The oftener plucked the more abundant it grows. A thing of no use to one, but much prized by two.

The baby's right, the lover's privilege, the parent's beaison and the hyprocrite's mask.

That which you cannot give with out taking, and cannot take without giving.

The food by which the flame of love is fed.

The flag of truce in the petty wars of courtship and marriage.

The acme of agony to a bashful man.

The only known "smack" that will calm a storm.

A telegraph to the heart in which the operator uses the "sounding" system.

Nothing divided between two.

Not enough for one, just enough for two, too much for three.

The only realy agreeable two-faced action under the sun, or the moon either.

The sweetest labial of the world's language.

A woman's most effective argument, whether to cojole the heart of a father, controls the humors of a husband, or console the griefs of childhood.

A kiss from a pretty girl is like having hot teacle poured down your back by an angel.

The thunder-clap of the lips, which inevitably follows the lightening glance of the eyes.

A report at headquarters.

Everybody's acting edition of "Romeo and Juliet."

What the child receives free what the young man steals snd the old man buys.

The drop that runneth over when the cup of love is full.

That in which two heads are better than one.

A kiss is three parts of speech—a transitive verb, an invisable noun, and a visable conjuctive.

Printing without ink, leaving no visable impression.

Woman's passport to her husband's purse, and man's passport to a woman's heart.

Love's artillery, that is brought into action immediately on the call "to arms."

Contraction of the mouth due to enlargement of the heart.

The sounding line used by a woman to fathom the depts of man's weakness.

An old-fashioned telegraphic arrangement from one person to another various sensations that cannot be transmitted correctly by any other medium known,

Nature's volapuk-the universal language of love.

A woman's trump card in the game of love.

An article that is always accepted, and (im) printed, but not always published.

The action of the lips by which the real sentiments of the heart are either affectionately expressed or falsely disguised.

A gift that is sometimes expected, seldom rejected, though often returned.

A speech without words.

A lip salve often tried as a specific in affections of the heart.

A missing link between body and soul.

The only delight of the gods that mortals have been permitted to enjoy.

The safety-valve to an exuberance of tender feelings.

The lover's privilege and the pug dog's right.

What the child gives, the lover steals, the foolish waste, and the old value.

The most popular lip salve of the present day.

A tonic, which in childhoed may be administered with safety, but with greater caution after childhood is past.

The lover's flag of truce after a quarrel.

Love's happiest expression, and sorrow's tenderest balm.

A cannon of the red.

The anatomical juxtaposition of two orbicularis oris muscles in a state of contraction.

A good impression made by the seal of love.

It is like the wind that blows, it is felt but not seen.

The "pons asinarum" of courtship.

A demonstration of love which dry's the baby's tears, thrills the maiden's heart, and soothes the ruffled feelings of a tired wife.

A smack for catching the matrimonial fish.

The sovereign tincture in our household dispensary.

What a man struggles for before marriage, what woman struggles for after marriage.

Draughts of nectar from the lips of innocence.

Cupid's cruising smack, the crews of which are generally lovesick.

The striking of a love match.

A simple thing in which a whole world of meaning is sometimes hidden.

The stars in the firmament of love.

The best plaster for the wounds given in domestic tiffs.

The poorest mother's richest gift.

A cheeky application.

A kiss resembles a short sermon, consisting of two heads and an application.

Temporary facial friction, generating instantaneous rapture and bliss.

The soul's ambassador.

The dew gathered from the lips of earth's fairest flower.

A game for two, always in fashion

A rock in the sea of life, in which the good ship Bachelor was wrecked

The cream of courtship.

That which is exchanged between two persons, is something while in he act of exchanging, nothing when the exchange is made, and for which neither can show value received.

Matrimonial bird-lime.

A kiss in Love's press telegram.

The heart's thirst appeased at the fountain of a loved one's lips.

Woman's food, man's luxury, boy's physic.

A lubricant, without which the machinery of love gets rusty.

An unspeakable communication

A NEW RAPID-FIRE GUN.

With a Capacity of Nine Hundred Shots a Minute.

For about a year experiments have been made by the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, with a machine gun which in many respects is a marvel. Its principal feature is the rapidity of fire. At a recent test 900 shots were fired in one minute through one barrel. The only gun approaching this rapidity of fire is the maxim machine gun, with a record of 750 shots in one minute. The new Winchester gun has a water jacket surrounding the barrel, which holds one gallon of water. That amount of water is evaporated in one minute when the gun is in operation. In experiments made without the water jacket the barrel would become too hot for safety in less than half a minute. The breech mechanism is operated by a crank connecting with a system of multiplying gears, by which the rapidity of motion is attained. The ammunition is fed into the breach from a continuous web belt holding the cartridge in pockets. The exploded shells as they are thrown from the breach rise about two feet over the gun, and fall in what appears to be a gracefully curved bar of polished brass.

The gun is the invention of the Browning Brothers, gunmakers at Ogden, Utah. The model experimented with is of 45 caliber. The company is not ready to put the gun on the market, and every thing concerning it is guarded with jealous care.
