The Ball of the Port Angeles Fire Laddies.

THE DANCE GOES ON.

Two Hundred Merry Dancers Chase the Glowing Hours With Flying Feet—The Gait too Fast for Care to Follow—Couplings Made With Grace and Pleasure.

Last Friday evening the Opera House presented a scene of gayety which has been surpassed by no event of similar nature since the city's existence. The occasion was the annual ball of the city's fire laddies, who have proven themselves so efficient upon the few calls that have been made upon their services.

The ball had for its object the raising of funds with which to discharge some indebtedness incurred by the fire department and was successful beyond the most sanguine hope, the net proceeds amounting to eighty-eight dollars, which is more than sufficient to liquidate all the indebtedness of the department.

The entertainment reflects great credit upon the management, as nothing occured to detract from the perfect enjoyment of the evening. The music was turnished by St. John's orchestra, and was pronounced perfect by the dancers.

The ball opened with the grand march being led by Chief Merritt and Miss Emma Fenn, who directed the intricate, rythmetical windings of the long column with a grace and precision which excited and deserved words of praise from all.

Among those present were:

The whirl of the waltz and the mysteries of the quadrille were persued until 4 o'clock, when the soft strains of Home, Sweet Home, proclaimed the end of a perfct entertainment.

A Patriot Remembered.

The memorial meeting held last Friday evening in the Congregational church, to commemorate the birth and life of Abraham Lincoln, was largely attended. The church was very appropriately decorated. An old battle flag was drapped across the altar, which had been followed by men whose hearts were beating a tattoo in their breasts and whose eyes were fastened upon its graceful folds as it led them either to victory, or to death in the rebellion.

Captain Wilcox called the meeting to order owing to the absence of Commander Albright. The following is the program:

America.....Choir
Opening address.....Captain Wilcox
Lincoln.....Quartette
Reading.....Mrs. Kelley
Address.....Mrs. Wilcox
Recitation.....Miss Clara Chase
Address.....Captain Ayer
Battle Cry of Freedom.....Choir

Captain Wilcox, representing the Sons of Veterans enlogized the dead patriot, and stated the object and principles of the order he represented, and closed his address with a fitting tribute to the "Stars and Stripes."

The songs and recitations were well rendered and the selections were well suited to the occasion.

SULLIVAN AND MAHER.

To Fight in New Orleans Next August for $25,000.

John L. Sullivan and Peter Maher, champion of Ireland, will fight to a finish next August in New Orleans. Sullivan makes the proviso, that Maher must win the battle with Fitzsimmons.

A purse of $25,000 is offered by the New Orleans Metropolitan Athletic Club, and their backers will wager $10,000 each.

Sullivan recently declared that he would engage in one fight only to close his ring career, and his apponent must be the man recognized as best next to himself.

DUEL OF DUSKY DAMES.

Two Squaws, Crazed by Alcohol, Fight With Butcher Knives.

On the Banks of Pokegama creek, seven miles from Pine City, Minn., occured one of the bloodiest battles ever waged between redskins. The group between the wigwams on the creek forms a small colony. From some unknown source the squaws procured a large quantity of alcohol, and, during the absence of their husbands, who are employed in lumber camps, endulged in a spree. Two of the squaws in particular grew hilarious over "fire water" and became quarrelsone.

The dispute terminated by the younger woman drawing from her waist a butcher kife and attacking her companion, who tried to defend herself with a similar weapon. The older squaw was bleeding profusely when carried away by her friends, and is believed to be mortally wounded. The latter was badly cut around the body and arms, having protected herself with a shawl wrapped around the left arm.

HURRAH FOR CLEVELAND.

A Good President Compared With a Tricky Politician.

Colonel George O. Brown, one of the editorial writers on the Baltimore Sun, said in Los Angeles, California:

"I tell you, Cleveland will be the Democratic nominee. Hill has disgusted the people of the South and West by his polical trickery. His calling of the convention as early as he did is beginning to disgust even the people of New York. The Democrats once showed that Tammany hall did not rule them and they will do it again.

"Cleveland has outlined the policy upon which the success of the Democracy hangs, and inasmuch as he has been president, and a good one, he will not be shoved aside for a mere politician. The people of the South want Cleveland. They are going to the convention to fight for him as only Southerners can fight.

"This talk of Hill's boom in the South is poppycock. You can put it all in a pill box. Cleveland is ten years ahead of his party in matters of an economical nature. He is sound one very question. I think that the plan of taking up one item of the tariff at a time is an excellent one.

"The first thing to be considered will be the agricultural implements. This will interest the granger element and do more than anything else to bring it over to the party."

A GREAT CORPORATION.

The Annual Income $20,000,000—100,000 Men Employed.

The coup of President McLeod of the Reading railroad, when he acquired the Poughkeepsie bridge and tributary lines, is regarded as the greatest in the history of railroad financiering and makes that as strong a corporation as there is in the world. The gross receipts of the Philadelphia & Reading system will hereafter be $20,000,000 annualiy, and the number of its employes will approximate 100,000, being more than employed by any corporation on this planet.

WARNED OF DEATH.

A Seven-Year-Old Child Knew her Hour was Nigh.

A little daughter of Rev. Hanks, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Catlettsbug, Ky., died recently of spinal meningitis. A series of meetings had been in progress in which the little girl, 7 years of age, had been taking an active part. She told the church that she had been greatly blessed during the meetings. One morning the little girl told her mother that she would die at 12 o'clock. The little one was taken ill, at 12:30 she died.

This is the third child that has died in the family, giving their parents forewarning of death.

Gaze Upon This.

These figures are worth attention: Receipts of the United States in January, 1891, $37,055,973; in January, 1892, $30,242,728. Expenditures, January, 1891, $23,981,309; January, 1892, $35,663.522. Expenditures going up, receipts decreasing, yet when a Democratic House of Representatives insists that it is time to consider in what lines economy can be best practiced, every Republican organ in the country cries out against it as being niggardly, parsimonious and everything else that is mean. Nevertheless, there must be retrenchment or an increase of debt.—Seattle Telegraph.

THE CITY OF THE DEAD

Port Angeles to Have a Cemetery.

NEW BURIAL GROUND.

A Site Selected Where the Dead May Sleep Undisturbed 'Till Gabriel Blows His Horn—A Beautiful Location for the Remains of Departed Friends.

A few members of the city council have taken vigorous action upon the subject of moving, or rather establishing a cemetery where the graves of departed friends will not be molested by the spirit of progress, which is the dominating element in the citizens of Port Angeles.

The only burial ground this city has had is the small area used for that purpose upon the reserve, and which is being encrouched upon by the settlers, and is now in the very heart of the city. In a few years business blocks will be erected upon the site where now sleep the dead.

The site of the new cemetery is located in the extreme western part of the reserve. the land sloping gradually from Twentieth street, its southern most limit to the straits on the north. V street is its eastern boundary and extends west to the end of the reserve.

This site comprises about 200 acres, and is accessable from the county road. and also may be reached by the old road to Dry Creek. The new tramway of the Port Angeles Mill and Lumber company passes near the Southeast corner, which makes it more convenient than the place now used for this purpose. It is proposed that the city shall buy this tract from the government, and sell the lots. The different societies will be allowed to purchase five or ten acre tracts. and all money derived from the sale of lots is to be expended in makinginprove ments upon the land, such as clearing it, and having the grounds laid out. either by a competent engineer or a landscape gardner. No prettier sight could be selected, and reflects great credit upon the committee.

NOT DEMOCRATIC.

Senator David B. Hill is, in many respects, a remarkable man. As governor of New York, he was ever watchful for the interests of the people. During his administration it was absolutely impossible for the numerous horde of lobyists, that always gather around the capitol building of a great state, to secure legislation in the slightest degree tainted with jobbery.

Senator Hill has also shown himself to be a skillful political leader. By his own determined will and strict adherence to the single policy of justice, the state of New York has ceased to be a doubtful state, and has become surely Democratic. For this Senator Hill deserves all credit; deserves the gratitude of every Democratic heart.

All this he has, and more, he has commanded the admiration that a willing Democracy has cheerfully yielded him as a brave, and able leader—as one amongst our many National Democratic figures. But, after all, he has only done, what every Democrat has a right to expect from a Democrat, what every American has a right to expect from a countryman, his duty as he conceived it to be. He has done it well, 'tis true. But simply doing his duty well, does not give David Bennett Hill any more right to assume the dictatorship of the Democratic party of the country or the state of New York in 1892 than Boss Tweed had in 1872.

In capturing the New York State Central Committee and calling the snap, mid-winter convention in New York, to select delegates to the Chicago convention, Senator Hill has not only made a political blunder, but he has committed an outrage on the masses of his state—one that he will yet live to rue. Never, in history, has the Democratic party tolerated a "boss" longer than it took to depose him. As Boss Tweed fell at the hands of his own party, as Chris Buckley has been downed by San Francisco's Young Democrats, so will Senator Hill fill a political grave, unless he profits by their examples.

Senator Hill will be taught, unless he learns himself, that the Democracy has no room for such tactics as he is using this winter. They might work in the Republican party, but in the Democratic, never. The Republicans have their Platts, their Quays, their McGraws, but the Democracy will have none of these even though the sufferer be no less a person than David Bennett Hill.

SMALL GAME.

Space is too valuable and time too precious for THE DEMOCRAT to point out and answer all the untruths and mistatements made by Mr. Howells and the Tribune, about THE DEMOCRAT and its editor, even if the occasion demanded it. These two individuals have made such an unholly show of themselves that their party associates are ashamed of them and attempt to deny an alliance with them whenever their names are mentioned.

The people of Clallam county have become so thoroughly aware of their ignorance and idiocy that to attack them or to longer defend oneself against their slanders and mistatements is to challenge disgust It is even pitiable to note the supreme contempt in which these unfortunate falsifiers are held by even their comrades in political battle.

IT is evident that the next Democrat national convention will be an interesting one. Hill is making a great fight for the presidential nomination. He has commenced by a bold attempt to capture the New York delegation, but his cunning is apt to react. While it is probable that he will have the New York delegation and will show strength enough to prevent Cleveland's nomination, he will never secure the nomination himself. Cleveland could get the nomination if he would make a fight, but Cleveland believes firmly in letting the nomination seek the candidate, and will not make a fight. He is also too patriotic to accept the nomination if he thought the party's chances for success would be in any way injured by his candidacy, consquently it is probable that the nomination will go to some Western man.

IN an interview published in the Spokane Review, Colonel James Hamilton Lewis says he will accept the Democratic nomination for governor if it is offered him. Colonel Lewis thinks it should be a young men's fight, and he promises a lively campaign if he is nominated. This is good news to Democrats. If the Democrats should have an early convention and nominate James Hamilton Lewis for governor the citizens of this state would witness the greatest campaign of education ever fought on the Pacific. The right would win too, and Colonel James Haliton Lewis would be governor of this state for four years at least.

MR. HOWELLS claims that the Republican and Democratic clubs were organized in the same manner. If Mr. Howells was present at the Democratic organization, he knows this to be a mistatement. Mr. McInnes, while president of the Democratic Club, never failed to put a motion that was made and duly seconded, nor did he ever refuse to recognize anyone who properly addressed the chair. Mr. Howells is of too small calibre to be compared with Mr. McInnes as a parlimentarian.

THE dodger advocates the nomination of John H. McGraw for governor by the Republicans. This is in keeping with its local course. Now, we suggest that Ulcer announce himself for Senator Quay for president. What a combination that would make with Howells!

THE DEMOCRAT publishes more original matter than any paper in Clallam county. Today a charming short story by Mr. F. LaBounty appears on our fourth page. THE DEMOCRAT is pleased to say that it will shortly give some more of these interesting sketches.

THE Tribune asks if THE DEMOCRAT favors the proposition to put lumber, wheat, barley, hops and wool on the free list.

THE DEMOCRAT certainly does

MR. HOWELLS only meant to burlesque when he attacked THE DEMOCRAT so indecently in his open letter, so says his Tribune interview. Keno.

THE broadside from the Times was too much for the Tribune. The Tribune undertook more than could handle.

THE hotel bonus should be raised at once. The citizens of Port Angeles should not neglect this matter.

How the poor little Tribune quails under the attacks of the Times.

"They OVERDONE the business many times." Oh, why will he not leave off the ink, or else get some one to "learn" him grammar.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

Two thousand horsemen engaged in a rabbit drive near Fresno, Cal., surrounding twenty square miles of territory. The line of men moved slowly and drove the game into a pen. The slaughterer with clubs began and from 12,000 to 18,000 were killed.

The report does not state that the enumerator forgot to count any more, or to mention those which might have gotten away, but it is thought that had it been a good day for jack-rabbits, as many more might have been taken.

The whaleback, Whetmore is still meeting with ill luck. At Victoria the propeller was being taken off to get out the tail shaft, and when lowered upon a piledriver, upset that craft, and the propeller was lost.

Why not try to change the luck of the whaleback by changing her name, for instance, call her the Whalemore, or the Wetback or else, let her always leave port on Fridays. Something must be done or her class of vessels will come into disrepute.

The guests who gathered at the German embassy ball in Rome, which the king and queen of Itally had promised to honor by their presence, had to wait a long time for the appearance of their majesties. Just think of it, maccaroni presuming even for a moment to impede the progress of a king when on his way to a ball. Italy will soon be a republic with maccaroni in the lead.

Ex-speaker Reed says he will go to the convention at Minneapolis as a deligate at-large from the state of Maine. Mr. Manly says he will not, so the fight is on and will be fought to a finish.

FROM PYSHT.

PYSHT, Wash., Feb. 16.— The house of Tommy Butler, a half-breed Indian, was entirely consumed by fire last Friday night, and with the house he lost every article contained therein.

He had his house furnished completely, and very much after the manner of the white race, and was just preparing to prove up on the land he had entered as a pre-emption. At the time of the fire he had the money with which to pay for the land in the house, and barely succeeded in saving it. The house and contents are an entire loss.

OUR NEXT GOVERNOR.

Colonel James Hamilton Lewis Interviewed—The Young Men to the Front.

James Hamilton Lewis has returned from his eastern trip. While east the gallant colonel visited his old home, also Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago.

Colonel Lewis has obtained a great deal of information in regard to the state of National politics during his tour. He thinks Hill will get an easy victory in the contest for the New York delegation, but he does not think he can receive the nomination.

If the nomination comes west, Colonel Lewis thinks it will be received by Governor Gray of Indiana.

Colonel Lewis was interviewed while in Spokan by a Review reporter. Refering to the desire on the part of the young Democrats to see Lewis nominated for governor, the reporter asked: "Are you a candidate for the governorship?"

"Yes, sir I am to this extent. I desire the nomination, provided I can get it honorably and with the unquestioned approval of the majority of our party. But I will not stoop to sacrifice friends or make unnecessary pledges to obtain it. It must come to me freely, or I will have nothing to do with it. Many of my friends have urged me to enter the race for Congress, I will tell you frankly that I cannot afford to do it. If I were successful, the term of office is so short, besides the fact that my duties would take me away from the State, that I have made up my mind that under no conditions would I accept it, though my friends have been kind enough to say I could get the nomination without a contest.

"My idea is that now is the time for the young democracy of our state to go to the front and do the fighting. The older men have had their day of fighting and they are still needed for counsel, but all the successes which the democracy have won in eastern states have been earned by the young men, and so it must be here if we would be successful. You cannot expect the young man to fight unless you put them forward in the front of the battle. I dare offer my claims to the the nomination on my being one of the young democracy, but should the party decide that I am not acceptable, then let them select some other young man and I will go out and work for him as loyaly and hard as though I were battling for myself. I will unqualifiedly give my devoted service and support to the nominee of my party under any circumstances.

"With regard to the policy our party should pursue I believe in an aggressive campaign. We want only one convention and let that be an early one. Just as soon as our platform is agreed on, and the great mass of the voters of the state of Washington are with us, both on the tariff and the money question, let us nominate our delegates to the national convention and proceed with the nomination of a state ticket. I think the counties should arrange for only one convention too, so that we can enter on the field of battle with plenty of time before us. These are my ideas of this question, and I believe they will be found to be identical with the sentiments of a large majority of the party. But one thing must be borne in mind—this, like the recent eastern election, is going to be a young man's battle and the young men must be given recognition."

A Grand Aurora.

The few citizens of Angeles whose business or pleasure kept them out of bed until 2 o'clock last Saturday morning had the opportunity of witnessing a display of the northern light, which is considered to have been the brightest aurora witnessed in these parts for many years.

Grindings of the Superior Court During the Week—New Cases—Probate Notes.

NEW CASES.

The following new cases have been filed since our last report:

232. Charles Hegele and L. R. LeCompte partners as Hegeles & Co., vs. Luther A. Mason. On account.

233. J. P. Rasmussen and H. J. Fisher, partner as Rasmussen & Co., vs. Luther A. Mason. On account.

SUPERIOR BRIEFS.

The case of the First National Bank vs. T. H. Bradshaw and W. L. Church, has been dismissed, having been settled out of court.

The judgment recently rendered by the court in favor of Krielsheimer Bros. vs. George T. Miller for $971 has been assigned by plaintiffs to S. G. Morse. Miller.

On Friday, the date for hearing the applications for admission to the bar, the court was occupied and the applications were continued until February 19.

The hearing on the final account of G. W. Meagher as receiver of the Port Angeles Construction Co., was continued last Friday until today.

Saturday was the day set by the sheriff for the sale of the lots in Greene's Belle Veiw addition to satisfy the judgment recently rendered Louis Williams against W. H. Greene and wife. Before the time for the sale arrived Attorney R. C. Wilson applied for and secured an injunction on behalf of Mr. Greene, restraining the sheriff from making the sale. In the meantime, Attorney H. B. Willson had filed a motion to vacate and set aside the judgment rendered in the case. Attorney Lane, for Williams, moved that the restraining order issued out by R. C. Wilson be set aside as it did not appear that R. C. Wilson had a right to appear in the case, as H. B. Willson appeared as the only attorney of record in the case. This was granted when the court promptly overruled the motion to vacate judgment and the sheriff proceeded to sell the property. The whole of the addition was sold to satisfy the judgment, the lots going cheap. Many would-be buyers refused to bid, as they beleived the case was not yet ended. Mr. Greene has retained Attorney R. C. Wilson and will make a fight on the case if there yet appears a chance. He claims that there is no justness to Mr. Williams, claim; that it is a scheme to rob him of his property.

PROBATE NOTES.

ATTENTION!

The Davie Crockett.

She starts, she moves, she seems to feel
The thrill of life along her keel.

Messrs. Carver and Brilhart launched the Davie Crockett, a sloop of four tons, yesterday morning.

This is one of the neatest and best small craft that now floats in this harbor and belongs to Hansen and Carver. If there is anything in a name, or if a good solid Democratic name may be considered an omen of good luck, then the Davie Crockett may be considered to have entered upon a career of prosperity unalloyed with adversity.

From the old scout and soldier of Texas, who, with a few companions, among whom was General Bowie, contended with an overwhelming force of Mexicans at San Antonio, and made their exploit of defending the Alamo Surpass even Leonidas at the pass of Thermopylae, for Thermopylae had a survivor, but the Alamo had not one to our own Davie whose democracy none can impeach. The name has always been born with honor and credit, and so may it be with the sloop.

A DEATH MESSAGE.

Received From the East by a Fellow Townsman.

Mr. R. A. Grimes, received a telegram last week announcing the death of his father at his home near Harrodsburgh, Ky. Mr. J. H. Grimes was a man who was beloved, admired and respected by all who knew him, and through the 84 years of his life had strictly adhered to, and practiced the precepts of the old time school of honor, which taught him that his word was his bond.

The relationship which existed between Mr. J. H. Grimes and his sons was not of that distant nature which generally holds between father and son, and which demands that the younger should always hold the elder in respectful awe, but rather was he an interested father, a chum, boon companion and always the sympathetic friend of his boys.

THE DEMOCRAT feels the deepest sympathy for Mr. R. A. Grimes, and no doubt, expresses the sentiment of his host of friends in Angeles.

The King and the Kingdom.

From a sermon by Rev. C. E. Chase.

This now, is the view of Christ that Mathew leads us to. Christ is the King, the absolute ruler of the kingdom of heaven, But no idea of an earthly monarch is adequate illustration of his exalted position. The earthly king depends upon the people, but each subject of the heavenly kingdom depend for life, for all he is, all he has, upon the King. The King is the life of the kingdom, and the things of the kingdom are sovereign where he is, Now this, with all its other meaning, makes plain the law that right, truth, justice, all things indeed that should be sovereign in character do not exist by us, but for us. If then we live in perpetual resistence to the right, and to the kingdom of God, what does that matter? Does the truth of the kingdom go down because of our weakness? Do right and truth stand or fall with us? No, but we stand or fall, as we are with or against the truth. It is something to us, whether we are just and right and true, and is something to us whether or not we belong to the kingdom of heaven.

A Hop Rancher.

Merriel Whittier, of Forks, passed through this city Friday with three fine horses which he had bought in Seattle for his Quillayute hop ranch.

Mr. Whittier sold his hop crop while in Seattle this time. Hop culture is one of the chief industries of the Forks country. It is also renumerative. Mr. Whittier has recently increased his acreage and will go into the business more extensively.

A Social.

The Young Ladies' Society of the Congregational Church gave their first social at the church Tuesday evening.

On account of poor advertising there were not many present, but those there had an entertaining and a royal good time. The programme, which was well rendered. was as follows:

Instrumental duet—La Chatel.....
....Miss Lewis and Mr. Humphries.
Vocal duet—Romeo and Juilet.....
.....Misses Ferguson and Stewart.
Vocal solo—Fear no Foe.....Mr. Keller.
College Song.....Chorus
Guitar trio.....Misses Shields, Yarnell and Ferguson.
Vocal duet—The Huntsman's Song..
.....Misses Ware and Ferguson.
Bozoo.....Chorus.

One of the features of the evening was a solo by little Kate Shields. which was not on the programme.

After the entertainment coffee and cake was served and an hour or so spent in having a good time.

It is safe to say that the next entertainment given by this society will receive a more hearty support, as they deserve.

AN EPISODE OF THE WAR.

Prisoners Carry the Guards' Guns and all Join in and Forage.

Written for THE DEMOCRAT.

There is much in the life a settler leads in Washington to vividly recall to his mind the days when he was campaigning in the South during the late unpleasantness, if he happens to be a survivor of that episode.

One incident of the rebellion when I was made a prisoner was placed before my mind's eye by a trip I have just completed from Pysht to the fifteen mile house.

It was on the morning of the 10th of March, 1865, when General Wheeler surprised General Kilpatrick at a place called Salmon Grove, near Fayetteville, North Carolina, when 482 soldiers were made prisoners, and out of this number 33 were clothed only in their underwear.

The surprise had been so complete that we had not time to dress, but were formed into line just as we were when we hurriedly left our blankets, and obeyed the order to double-quick, which continued for three miles, then the column was halted and our names enrolled with the company and regiment to which we belonged.

I was standing near General Wheeler when the boys were giving their names, after this ceremony had been completed and the number of prisoners taken, the general turned to me and asked: "How many of the 9th Michigan is left?" I replied: "I don't know sir, but I guess about 700." A look of surprised perplexity crossed the general's face and he exclaimed, "My God, I have now captured about 3,000 of your Ninth Michigan Yankees."

We were then ordered to march to Fayetteville, and while passing through the streets a drunken "Johnie Reb" staggered along, cussing every thing in sections and when he saw us said, "I have been in the service now four years and have never killed a Yank yet." Whereupon he raised his gun and fired into the column and one poor fellow fell, shot through the body just under the arms, but the column marched on over our wounded comrade.

We continued until we had crossed the Fayette river and when two miles farther we went into camp. The shooting of our comrade possessed such terror and interest for me. I could not help thinking about it, and upon inquires I learned that the wound was not fatal and the would-be murderer had been court marshaled and shot, just six hours after he had attempted to kill a defenseless prisoner.

On the morning of the 11th, we were turned over to a body of home militia, whose comanding colonel was a gentleman and treated us with great kindness and considerations.

Our rations were very short and consisted of corn and cob ground up together, but it tasted good to us well nigh starved soldiers

On the 11th, about 10 a. m. the Johnie who captured me; a tall savage looking fellow with red beard, came riding along the line inquiring for his Yank. I hearing his question, and thinking I was probably to betaken out and shot to satisfy my captor's desire for blood, answered: "Well, here I am."

"You there? Well, come here Yank." I stepped out of the ranks and walked up to him, and to my agreeable surprise he handed me a bundle, saying: "This is for you Yank".

I thanked him, and immediately proceeded to examine its contents. Imagine my delight when I found it contained a nicely baked chicken and a pone of corn bread, which I devoured with avidity.

The next day (12th) about 4 o'clock p. m., the same savage rebel rode up and called out: "I say Yank, come out here so the colonel can see you." I walked away from the other boys and accompanied my captor, who, when we were a safe distance away, put into my hands another chicken and corn pone, and supplimented this donation with a big drink of apple-jack out of his canteen, he then bade me goodbye and requested me to remember him, which I have never ceased to do with gratitude.

We shook hands with a feeling of genuine friendship and parted, he going back to the front.

That night many of the boys who knew how well I had been treated, wished that they had been captured by the same Johnie. I divided with my chum and we both had a good meal.

On the 13th it rained in torrents, we were in water up to our knees nearly three hours, when we came to an old sawmill, which afforded us shelter until the storm was over. We built a fire and by continually turning around in front of it, we managed to get dry. The ground was too wet to think of lying down to sleep, so we stood around the fire until the gray dawn of morning broke over the miserable camp and the march was continued. Nearly everyone of the thirty-three who had no clothes took a severe cold, and such sneezing and coughing I never heard before. We passed a small settlement in which there were some negroes who managed to provide some scanty apparel for the boys. We marched all day through mud and slush, on the 14th, the guards being used up as well as the prisoners.

About 10 o'clock as I was wading along at the head of the column, I looked back and saw many of the prisoners carrying the guns of the guards while they took the place of the prisoners in the ranks. The colonel noticed this change and asked of me: "What kind of Yanks are you, anyway?" "Oh," I remarked, "that's alright, the guards are tired and the Yanks are giving them a rest." In about an hour positions were again changed.

On the morning of the 15th, the Johnies and the Yanks went out on a foraging expedition, and returned with a good supply of bacon, bread, milk and turkeys. We sat down to a supper which I'll never forget. On the morning of the 17th, the roll was called and not a man was missed, although everyone had been given perfect liberty and were under no restraint.

The Too Familiar Irish Girl.

Somebody says it is very vulgar to speak of your husband by his last name, and criticises Mrs. Henry M. Stanley for doing so. The woman knew of a dear little morsel of feminity who married a grave and dignified young lawyer and went to housekeeping in a love of a cottage with a Hibernian cook. The little woman in her young bridehood could not muster sufficient dignity of speech to call her liege lord Mr. Jones, even to the cook, but affectionately designated him "Harry." And one day when there was company, Bridget came to the parlor door and announced: "Lunch is ready, and would yez, be waitin' for Harry, ma'am?"

Somehow the story got out at the club, and Mr. Jones never quite forgave his spouse, though thereafter she punctiliously called "Mr. Jones" until he came to be "Judge" —[Boston Post.

How American Money Goes.

An Italian duke who married an American heiress (but who, by the way, is not an Italian, but a French duke, being the eldest son of the duc de Talleyrand, and bearing one of the ducal titles belonging to the Talleyrand family) is said to have "commenced his season's campaign" at Monte Carlo Saturday by loosing 250,000 francs. I find this story much more easy to believe than that of the exploits of Mr. Wells with his system, and it is certainly deserving of equal prominence, if only for the benefit of those who have not married American heiresses, but have only their own money to loose. No doubt the "Italian duke" has also got an infallible system. I wonder how long the fortune of the American heiress will keep it going!—London Truth.

A Good Reason.

The Scotch people have always been particularly happy in what might be called the ready retort, an answer not only witty but wise. Take the exquisite humor of the old maiden lady of Montrose, who, when asked to subscribe to a volunteer corps fund in that town, replied:

"Indeed, I'll dae nae sic thing. I ne'er could raise a man for myself, and I'm no gean to raise men for the king,"

A Concentrated Bishop.

Returned traveler—How do you do, my little dear? Is your father still the rector of this church?

Litte girl—Oh, no, sir—not now. He's been concentrated a bishop.—[Street and Smith's Good News.

One of the hatters' organs says that a clerk should not put a hat on his own head intended for a customer. In a swell hat store recently a clerk tried on a customer's hat in order to ascertain his size, and the customer haughtily refused to wear the hat again. Neither is it proper for a clerk to ask a customer what his size is. He must have the genius to devine by a glance at the customers cranium the size of its cover.
