THE FERRY BOAT.

Two Trips a Day Between Victoria and Angeles.

A THIRTY TON VESSEL.

To Connect Port Angeles and Her British Cousins on the Other Side of the Straits—In April the First Trip Will be Made.

The ferry between Angeles and Victoria is now nearer a realization than many of our citizens had hoped for at so early a date, as all of the preliminary arrangements have been made, and now the company is waiting for a permit from Washington which will allow the vessel to leave and return to Angeles without paying the usual entrance and clearance fees.

The United States government requires that any vessel carrying dutiable goods shall be of net tonage of thirty or more, and imposes other requirements which will ensure a safe, comfortable boat.

The company have even now the vessel selected, as one of the members has just returned from a trip up-Sound, where he found at Tacoma just the craft to fill the requirements. It will probably require until April for the necessary papers to be executed at Washington and returned to Angeles.

The $100 per month bonus has been subscribed here and the new ferry boat may be expected to appear upon the scene by the first of of April, and when started, will make two trips a day each way.

Council Proceeding.

Owing to the absence of Mayor Smith, Councilman Peterson acted as chairman pro tem at the meeting of the council on the 18th.

The first business before the board was the presentation of a blank form of bond for approval by Lewis Levy, which the council approved.

Prices on fire bells from Mr. O'Neil. of Port Townsend were read, but the council did not seem to feel very much interested in the matter and no action was taken.

Bills allow d were as follows:

The Times, for January, $68.34.

D. W. Morse, for January, $12.60.

F. A. Pope, for January, $32.

H. R Stephen, for January, $32.

The improvement of Lincoln street between First and Second streets to cost $300, was recommended by the street committee. The report was accepted and the work ordered.

Instructions were given the city attorney to draw a form of agreement between the property holders on Laurel street between Front and First streets and the city, with a view of making it an assessment district. If all the property holders sign the agreement, the street commissioner is authorized to complete the street according to specifications to be submitted.

The street committee was instructed to purchase two wheeled scrapers and one plow for the city's use.

It was decided that Thursday nights at 7:30 o'clock, will hereafter be the time of the council's meetings.

William is Not Too Bad.

Bernard Schmitz, a well-to-do Kansas farmer, went to Germany last fall to visit relatives, after an absence of nearly twenty years. Upon his arrival there he was arrested and imprisoned for desertion from the German army. He was sentenced for six months, but has been released and is now on his way back to America.

His release was brought about by his 11-year-old daughter, who wrote to the emperor from her far-away home in Kansas, and in a childish way asked for the pardon of her father on his birthday, the 38th of last month. The emperor received the letter on the 27th of January, and immediately issued an order which gave Schmitz his freedom the following day.

A SENSIBLE JUDGE.

Under Threat of Death a Fiend is Compelled to do Justice.

Arch Riley settled one year ago and engaged in the livery business. A few days ago two men named Lowrie and Montgomery arrived at Dawson, Ga., who were introduced by Riely as his cousins, but it was noticed that he was at all times closely accompanied by his "cousins."

At last Riley found a chance to notify a friend that he was under duress and needed relief, Then the two men were arrested for kidnaping. They claimed that Riley, who lived with them in Troy, Ky., had ruined Montgomery's sister, who was Lowrie's sister-in-law. They had tracked him to this place and, under threat of instant death, compelled him to proceed about disposing of his property in order to return with them and marry the girl.

The threats of kidnaping were dismissed by Solictor General Grimes, who declared that the only fault he had to find with the men was that they had not taken more vigorous steps.

MINNERS MISSING.

Fears Entertained That Two Parties of Miners Have Been Murdered.

Reports from Alaska are to the effect that fears are entertained that Morris Ortin and a party of miners, who left Juneau early last summer on a mining expidition, have been murdered by Indians. They took supplies to last them until October, but as they had not been heard of by January 1 their friends applied to commander Maynard, of the warship Pinta, to go to their relief.

Maynard said the Pinta was unfit for service in the turbulent waters of Cross Sound and he would not endanger the lives of the crew, numbering fifty men. The friends fitted out a sailing vessel to go to the rescue and left in the early part of January, but have not been heard of since.

RUSSIA'S GAME.

Grain Stored Upon Which Russia Could Depend in Case of an Unsucessful War.

A dispatch from Vienna says that most of the corn bought for the starving peasantry of Russia with Russian government money is still stored in the granaries of that country, and that only a portion has been distributed to the suffering multitudes of the famine-stricken provinces.

There have been numerous granaries before in the very regions where famine is now raging, but no official action has been taken to relieve the victims. The Russian government on this occasion has used the famine to disguise its policy of prohibiting the exportation of corn and cramming with food the granaries of Northern Russia, upon which the Russians could depend in the event of an unsuccessful war.

The dispatch says that this is understood to be true in Russian official circles.

SHOT HIS FRIEND.

With a Gun Which He Thought was Not Loaded.

At Lynn, Mass., while carelessly toying with a revolver to-day William Londregan shot and instantly killed his friend, James Ferry, Jr. Both were witnessing the Wild West show here, and as a performer laid down his 44-caliber revolver Londregan picked it up and brandished it before his chum's face in innocent sport.

He did not know, however, that the weapon was loaded and when his friend jestingly said, "Let her go," Londregan pulled the trigger, and with fatal result, the next instant his companion fell to the floor dead. Londregan, who is frantic with grief, was placed under arrest.

Colonel O. M. Towner, of Grand Forks, manager of the Northwestern Farmland company. of Chicago, is missing. He was last seen January 29th, en route for Chicago, having but $200 with him. His accounts are all correct and it is thought he has met with foul play.

A duel which occured recently in Paris is said to have been fought with a fury unknown in France. Both principals were wounded, but still continued the fight until stopped by the attending surgeon, who threatened to leave the field.

STREET IMPROVEMENT

A Most Valuable Work Being Pushed Ahead.

A LIVE COUNCILMAN.

He Proposes to Commence at the Beginning—Some Good Suggestions and Plans—An Eyesore of the Past—Other Notes of Progress.

One of our most progressive city councilmen was interviewed this week by a DEMOCRAT representative in regard to the work of grading and clearing the streets, and the result is given as being of interest to every resident of the city, as a fulfillment of his plans would, at a very moderate cost, make a large number of streets leading out to the reserve, passible for vehicles, and the value of such improvements, when completed, would certainly be very great.

The councilman proposes that the first step to be taken is to have the difficult streets surveyed, or rather engineered, so that all the grading to be done may be laid out on paper, and a reliable estimate of the cost of the work might be arrived at. This attention is to be bestowed upon every street within the city limits, and then a systematic course of construction will be commenced. This will also be the means of establishing a permanent line of grades and is imperative, from the fact that residents who intend building, will know the street elevation, and can make their plans accordingly.

The lack of this grade line being known and established, and its ill results, is shown on Front street from Lincoln west, and on First street from Oak west, these being too low to afford good drainage, or any sewerage at high tide. Any brick building to be erected within the above bounds would First have to have the site prepared for it by an expensive fill.

When a street grade line is once established, builders must conform to it, and the necessity in having this work done with accuracy is made apparent by the fact, that if it is ever changed, the city is liable to damages from owners of property which has been injured by the change.

The estimated cost of clearing and grubbing the streets per block is $50 and the benefit would be so great that the council now see that longer delay in this matter will injure the city far more than the cost of making every street in the city a good highway.

In a few weeks more the Front street hill will be dry so that it will not be necessary to plank it until next fall, when that proposition will come up for consideration, and at a time when the city's finances will be in a condition to meet the expense of $6,000, necessary to complete the work. Every citizen of Angeles may now nurse the hope that the mud of Front street hill is an inconvenience and eyesore of the past.

An Assault.

BEAVER, Wash., Feb. 18—[Special.]—Tuesday J. P. Austin, of Shuwah, appeared before Judge Lamoreux, of Beaver, and swore out a warrant for the arrest of a Mr. Robertson, the charge being assault with the attempt to rape, Austins wife being the injured party. Constable Porter left at once for Forks to arrest Robertson. He found him without trouble and brought him here. The hearing was to come off yesterday afternoon, but was postponed one week, giving defendant time to procure with nesses. Mr. Robertson has procured the services of Judge Richardson, of this place, the plaintiff having sent to Port Angeles for the county attorney to prosecute the case. The people of this vicinity are greatly interested.

HEAVEN ON EARTH.

Forks, Having no Saloon, no Doctor, no Lawyer, Needs no Preacher.

FORKS PRAIRIE, Wash., Feb. 22—[Special.]—Forks Prairie has a great many good qualities that has not been spoken of by reporters who have visited us.

First there is no saloon. Second, no doctor. Third, no lawyer. Fourth, no church. So, it will be seen, we are happy. There being no saloon we have no drunks in here, so there is no need of a temperance Union. There being no no doctor, no one dies. There has been but one death on the Prairie since it was settled by the whites. We don't quarrel or fight, for there isn't a lawyer to employ. There is a justice and he fines the complainant, so that commands peace. So you see, if we can get along with out the first three there is no need for the fourth.

Old Ford plays high five or whist, but keeps one weather eye open for a tender foot, who wants to locate on a claim. There is one thing about a tender foot who wants a claim, it is that he has a family and is going to bring them in as soon as he can get a shack, if he is getting along in years he is sure to have from two to four marrigable girls, and you just bet his shack goes up in a hurry. MOSSBACK.

Enterprising Women.

The Woman's Exchange has been opened in the Gray & Chitwood building and adds one more restaurant.

The Ladies Aid Society of the different churches will purchase tickets which will allow them to place any articles upon sale giving the ladies who compose the Exchange Company a percentage for making the sale. Mrs. McFadden is president of the company.

He Knows a Road.

Mayor Norman R. Smith, of Port Angeles is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Mitchell at Fairholme, Lake Crescent, Mr. Smith brought his riding horse with him, as far as Port Crescent, on the Hermosa. He evidently didn't care about risking the life of his Lexington mare on the new county road, between here and Angeles His judgment is to be recommended.—Port Crescent Leader.

A FEMININE FIEND.

An Angry Mob Storms the Carriage of Lady Montague.

There was an angry crowd around the court-house at Coleraine, when Mrs. Montague was on trial, and as she was being taken from the court after conviction, the constables had hard work to protect the child-killer from the fury of the mobs. The carriage containing the prisoner was followed for some distance by a large body of men and woman, who shouted bitter denounciations and vile ephithets at her. Some stones were thrown at the carriage, but the occupants escaped uninjured.

THE FREE TRADE BUGABOO.

Following the footsteps of its party bourbons, the Tribune has dragged the old and familiar skeleton of the Free Trade Bugaboo from the unhonored grave to which the American voter had consigned it, and holds its hideous form up to the citizens of Clallam County, rent and threadbare, as it is, and, with a rattle of sheet-iron thunder, asks the people to behold its consequences. But the Tribune has mistaken its people and its time. The people of Clallam County are not to be frightened or misled by any such spectre. The time was when some people could get a periodical scare on at this monster, but that time is not the present, nor did those people live long in Clallam County. The farmers of the United States have long known that their market for wheat and other cerials is in Europe, and the market price of farm products is made there. They have long since become aware that the wheat, barley, oats and hops imported by this country are nearly all used for seed by the farmer and the farmer pays the tariff himself. The fall in the price of wool since the McKinley bill went into effect has served to open the eyes of most of the farmers to the fact, which has been known to the most intelligent for a long time, that the narrowing of the market for wool, on account of the increase in the manufacture of shoddy clothes, is caused by the high tariff. and is the direct cause of the low prices and the depression in sheep raising. Besides, it has made good clothing higher, because the best woolens are all made from a mixture of the American product and foreign wool. And then, even were it otherwise, the Clallam County farmers are more interested in cheaper clothing than they are in dearer wool. The farmers of the nation have studied these matters, and will act accordingly.

But the absurdity of the Tribune's action is as much in its mistaking its people as its time. The British port of Victoria has too long been one of the best markets for Clallam County products for the farmers here to be hoodwinked into believing there is danger of Canadian products flooding our markets.

Is the Tribune aware of the fact that the steamer Angeles leaves Port Angeles for Victoria every Wednesday afternoon with a cargo of Dungeness produce? Is the Tribune aware also that a tariff has to be paid on this at Victoria? Still we compete with and undersell their own farmers.

W. L. Church, Jr, manager of the Farmer's Mercantile Company, of Dungeness, says Victoria is the best market they have for their produce. Everything raised in the county commands a higher price in that city than on this side of the straits. Does this look as though there is danger to the farmer in free trade? The tariff on farm produce is a sop thrown to the farmer to induce him to tax himself on his clothing, his farming utensels, his household goods for the benefit of a few thousand Eastern manufacturers.

As to the tariff on lumber, it only helps to foster the great lumber trust. It has been proven that our sawmills can compete with those of other countries in all the foreign markets. They are doing it right along. The lumber-men of this state know this well. Nearly all the logging-camp-men of our state are Democrats of the Clevland tariff reform school. Mason County, the leading lumbering county in the state has had the reputation for twenty years of being the strongest Democratic county in Western Washington.

This form of the Free Trade Bugaboo is a fraud, so palpable as to excite nothing but disgust in those who have investigated the question.

It will not go in Clallam County.

ROBERT BRIDGES, State Chairman of the People's party who addressed the citizens of this city Wednesday night is not an eloquent man, nor is he a graceful speaker or brilliant scholar; but he is a hard hitter. His argument was in the most part sound. His review of the disgraceful Republican legislature and the dishonorable Republican governor, who undid nearly all the good it did in its sixty day session of last winter, was able and eminently true. His conclusions were mostly sound. Mr. Bridges is certainly in earnest in his political work. His only mistake is, he should be making his fight for his great democratic principles in the Democratic party—the great party of reform.

A FARMER'S TARIFF.

Do the Republicans of Clallam County favor a tariff on farming implements?

Do the Republicans of Clallam County favor a tariff on binding twine?

Do the Republicans of Clallam County favor a tariff on grain sacks?

Do the Republicans of Clallam County favor a tariff on dairymen's tinware?

Do the Republicans of Clallam County favor a tariff on wire nails? on bailing wire? on barbed wire?

Will the Tribune speak for its party?

HILL gets the New York delegation, as was expected, but the country still regards Mr. Cleveland as the greatest and best Democrat in the country. If the east cannot settle their differances, the next president must be a western man. They CANNOT settle anything by nominating Mr. Hill. It now seems probable that the candidate will be some one of the western Democrats. There are lots of them who would make excellent presidents.

WHEN one man calls another man's wife "an exception of a lady" it is high time the lady's husband calls on the editor with a six full, and "learns" him decency and accurracy of expression, at least, if not to write grammatically. How long, oh, how long! will printers' ink be employed to mar the usefulness of the "rag?"

THE Tribune has backed completely down from its lofty position as Republican dictator, assumed a few weeks ago, when it was going to accommodate anyone who wanted war. It no longer attempts to defend itself or its friends against the Times or Leader. Is it because they are indefensible?

WHAT, if any thing, is meant by the disjointed, disconnected ravings of the Tribune during the last few days, is not apparent. Can it be that the local political situation has affected Ulcer's mind?

SEATTLE has a hard fight that is now at its height. The Republicans have nominated John Leary, for mayor and the Democrats have nominated the Hon. James T. Ronald, one of the ablest lawyers in the state. The Peoples' party is supporting Ronald. Democrat.

THE New York Herald advocates America's greatest editor, Colonel Henry Watterson, for the Democratic nomination for president. Mr. Watterson would make an excellent president.

A drunken row occured among the Mecalero Apaches on their reservation, 150 miles southeast of Alberquerqeu, N. M., which resulted in the killing of four Indians and the serious wounding of ten or twelve others.

There is no difficulty now, in solving the Indian problem, as the Mescaleros are expert distillers of nercal. Just furnish them with a few old tea-kettles, a yard or two of gas pipe, with plenty of butcher's knives, and the question of making good Indians of the Apaches solves itself.

What Did He Expect.

And so the county commissioners have accepted and paid for the middle division of the county road—sink-holes, land slides, narrow grades, littered right-of-way, insufficient culverts, miserable ditches, crooks and turns, washouts and all! And Commissioner Davis says the road is "250 per cent. better than he expected!"

We must take our hat off to Mr. Davis' judgment. It ought to be bottled and sent to the World's Fair. It would rank away up among the curiosities.

But really, now, what could you expect men to say or do, who were blinded by the golden spell of Mr. Burlingame's hypnotic influence, and who had a duty to the contractors to perform?—Port Crescent Leader.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

Celebrated in Angeles by a Grand Bal de Masque.

The masquerade ball given by the Angeles Club last Monday evening was unquestionably the most enjoyable affair of the kind ever given in the city, and will be surpassed only when the city dons metropolitan airs.

The gay maskers began to arrive at 8:30 o'clock, and by 9 the hall was filled with gay, brilliant and grotesque costumes. No particular effort was made to represent characters, but the few who did so succeeded most admirably. This effort was confined principally to the ladies, who produced some excellent representations. Among the most conspicuous and pleasing were:

Miss Daisy Stewart, whose costume represented the holiday dress of a Venecian lady; Miss Maggie Fend personated Night, and wore a black lace dress trimmed with golden stars and moons; Miss Dora Fend appeared as Yum Yum; Miss Olsen, the Goddess of Liberty; Miss Clara Bindinger, Flower Girl; Miss Maude Crable, Japanese Lady; Miss Jennie Crockett, Sunflower; Miss Emma Fenn, made a pretty representative of Dewdrops in a white dress with bead trimmings; Belle Shearer, plain suit; Lillie Church, Peanut Girl, and wore a dress of pale blue trimmed with peanuts; Misses Katie Yarnell and Leona Grant represented twins, and wore costumes of white with blue caps, masks and sashes; Misses Klaunig also appeared as twins; Miss Love wore a costume of stars and stripes, and represented another version of the Goddess of Liberty; Miss Clara Crable wore a handsome plain costume; Miss Gracie Davis for the evening was little Red Ridinghood; Mrs. Ben Chambers and Miss Ruth Taylor represented Fire Girls; Mrs. J. W. Garrison wore a handsome costume of black trimmed with large pansies, and represented a Wood Nymph, Mrs. Emma Meagher, butterfly; Mrs. Eva Stewart, Chambermaid; Mrs. H. B. Wilson, Fairy; Mrs. Lew Smith, fancy costume. Mrs. Dr. Lewis, Spanish Senora; Mrs. Allie Meagher, Stars; Mrs. Shields, plain costume; Mrs. H. B. Crockett, Turkish lady; Mrs. F. McGill, Salvation army, Mrs. E. T. Thomas, plain pink costume, J. W. Garrison, Spanish Don; W. Brumfield, misfit; Frank Fisher, Walter Burch, Harry Yarnell, Ed Hatch, H. White, Sam Hall, George White, Warren Dodge, Nondecripts; C. E. Bell, negro minstrel; Sam Shearer, Ben Keller and Lew Smith, represented respectively Old Rye, Old Gin and Old Bourbon; George Meagher, Turk; J. L. Bell, Jr., minstrel; John Troy, Page; W. Dedman, ringmaster; Harry Holden, army officer; Ben Chambers, negro; P. A. Meagher, Abesity.

Each masker manifested great interest in his partner in trying to penetrate the mask, and find who he or she was who squeezed a hand in springing corners. Many perfect ignorances prevailed until 11. o'clock when the masks were removed, and such expressions as "Oh, is it you," or "I thought it was you all the time" filled the hall.

Lunch was served at McDavit's restaurant, after which dancing was resumed until 3.30 o'clock, when the masquerade ended, all agreeing that it was a fitting way to celebrate Washington's birthday.

Dungeness News.

DUNGENESS, Wash., Feb. 24.—[Special.] — The Gate City Minstrels, of Port Angeles, played at this place to a small, but appreciative audience Friday evening. The play gave satisfaction, and it is safe to say that if they ever visit us again their reception will be more encouraging.

Thomas Evans, of this place, was made happy Friday evening by the arrival of his brother, Jesse Evans, wife and son, and another brother's wife from Missouri. Mr. Evans had not met his brother for thirty-five years. The meeting was, indeed, a happy one.

The Dungeness society folks celebrated Washington's birthday at Sequim with the people of that neighborhood. A grand ball was given in the schoolhouse, and all had a good time.

Charles W. Kennard, of Rena, is suffering from an injury received by a horse stepping on his foot. The horse was rough shod, and Mr. K. was severely calked.

Y. M. C. A. Opening.

The opening of the Young Mens' Christian Association's reading room in the Metzger & Myer building on the U. P. Wharf, was attended by a large and appreciative gathering of the well wishers of the society in Angeles.

The exercises were in every particular appropriate, and were enjoyed by the audience. The programme was opened by prayer from Rev. C. E. Chase, followed by an address by Rev. M. U. Squire, Mrs. Beardsley performed a piano solo. Mr. Ed. Hatch favored the audience with a recitation "The Engineer's Story." Five minutes intermission was granted for the purpose of handshaking and social intercourse, after which, Misses Shields and Ferguson played a duet upon guitars, which was encored. A recitation was then given by Mrs. Wilcox, entitled, "Kentucky Belle." "Ragged Mat," a solo, by Miss Ethel Ferguson. The exercises concluded with a piano solo by Miss Daisy Stewart.

An elegant luncheon was served which consisted of coffee, cakes, doughnuts, pies and sandwiches. The opening night of the Y. M. C. A. was very enjoyable for all, and the reading-room has been largely attended each night since.

A Pay Roll Started.

A proposition has been submitted by Judge Sachs, on behalf of eastern parties to the citizens of Angeles by the acceptance of which Angeles will secure a sash and door factory. The proposition is that if the citizens will subscribe a bonus of $10,000 in land these parties will erect a plant here for the manufacture of sashes and doors, which will employ forty men. The work of construction to be commenced within thirty days from the raising of the bonus and the factory to be in operation within ninety days from the beginning of the work.

The proposition was readily accepted and now, the bonus is to be raised.

Hon. George Hazzard, Secretary of the Democratic State Central Committee and of the Democratic Society of Washington, and Judge George W. They returned to Tacoma yesterday morning.

Stop Filching.

Captain Tucker, of the light-house, at this place, has been annoyed by people going over to the spit and getting wood. This is strictly against the orders of the government and was the reason given for the order forbidding trespassing on the light-house reserve.

The removing of the timber causes the spit to wash away, and damages not only the government property, but the Port Angeles harbor.

Township 30 N., R. 9 West.

The settlers in township 30 north, range 9 west, which was surveyed last fall, will be distressed to learn that the surveyor has not yet sent in his report, and that if it is excepted in the land office it will only be through courtesy, as the time for the fulfillment of the contract for the survey and making rerurns has nearly lapsed.

A SMITH STORY.

If anyone supposes that Port Angeles has not her share of the numerous descendants of Mr. Smith the following incident will disabuse his mind.

I was walking up the street the other day, and saw my friend Smith coming down the street with a stranger, when we met, Mr. Smith stopped me and said: "Mr. Smith, allow me to make you acquainted with my friend Mr. Smith, of Victoria, who is on this side looking for investments." I immediately proceeded to say all that I could, portraying the advantages of Port Angeles as a place for profitable investments. but had not spoken more than half a dozen sentences when an acquaintances passed, to whom I said; "good morning Mr. Smith," then continued on in the eulogy of Angeles. In two minutes after the brief interruption, another aquaintance passed, and I greeted him with "good morning Mr. Smith."

This little interruption did not deter me from performing my duty regarding my native town, and taking up a new line of remarks, in which I was rapidly becoming interested, when another man passed and I greeted him with the usual "good morning Mr. Smith."

Following close in the wake of the last Mr. Smith came another man, and to him I said "good morning Ben," then the stranger Mr. Smith, of Victoria, seemed to become interested in my friend Ben and inquired what his other name was, I replied that it was Smith. Then His Honor, the mayor, came dancing along, and I becoming alarmed at the procession of Smiths that had already passed, merely bowed to him. Mr. Smith, of Victoria, became a little uneasy and sarcastically asked: "Another Smith?" "Yes," I answered, "he is our mayor." The visitor was growing red in the face and I saw that if another Smith passed that my chances would be few for persuading the stranger to my way of thinking about Angeles. I did not want to speak to anyone else. so I turned my face toward the houses and took up the broken thread of remarks: "As I was just stating, that with all the natural advantages this lo———

At this point a man came up and slapped me on the back and said: "Hello Smith." I said, "Hello," but in a very hollow tone. He gazed at me rather reproachfully and passed on. "What is your friends name? I'll bet ten to one that it is Smith," said the stranger. "Yes, you are right, he is Judge Smith," I answered in staccato accents.

"Well," began Mr. Smith, of Victoria, in tones of delicate irony, "I think I will buy property here and move my family over, of which there are thirteen, and all named Smith. I am anxious to loose my own identity, and that of my family, to whom, I am responsible for having inflicted upon them a name which is neither different nor a distinction from that of every man in Angeles. Then I think I would enjoy living where my name at least is a popular fad; there is nothing like having a fashionable name. It would be such a delightful experience to be asked at a dinner to make a little address, and then to see every man rise to his feet in response to the invitation: "Mr. Smith will favor us with a few remarks?" No, I am not crazy, but believe I soon shall be if this thunderous echo of Smith continues to be poured into my exhausted ears.

"Oh, sure, we are all related, every Smith in the country is a descendant of John Smith and Pocahontas. I feel that I shall go distracted, and will have my name changed to Wun Lung, or Won Hop, or even Just Sing would not be a bad bargain in exchange for Smith. even then I think I would be warranted in giving some boot."

There was such intense pathos in his voice as it wrapped two or three ply deep around each sorrowful word, and the tears hung trembling upon his eyelids. Hanging there they reflected, as tiny mirrors would, the face and manly form of another Smith, then Mr. Smith introduced Mr. Smith to Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith—lucky man—promptly fainted whereupon Mr. Smith assisted Mr. Smith in carrying Mr. Smith down to the steamer George E. Smith, which crosses the Smith—Smit—Smi—Sm—S—.

They Make Splendid Sleuths.

The Yumas are noted trailers. They can follow the track of man or beast over a stoney desert as fast as you can walk. It is a species of instinct like that of the black trailers of Australia, and no white man has ever been able to equal them in this art. These trailers are always warned when there is an escape at the Yuma penitentary The territorial prison of Arizona stands on the high bluff overlooking the Colorado and Gila rivers. Existence within its walls is as near an approach to future punishment as one can find on this earth. As escape is well nigh impossible it would be a mercy to permit the convicts to sleep in the open air in the jail yard. A huge cage of iron might be constructed which would secure the prisoners in cells and yet permit circulation of air. As it is, the men are locked in their cells just as in any ordinary prison. The result may be imagined. About half the prisoners are Mexicans—desperate fellows who are in for horse-stealing or murder. One of these occasionally tries to escape, but the results are usually such as to deter others from following his example. There is no way to escape from the penitentary except by following the Southern Pacific Railroad or by striking across the desert, which surrounds Yuma on all sides. It is sure death to go west into the Colorado desert; it is almost equally sure destruction to venture north or east into Arizona. The only hope is toward the south, where beyond the Mexican line a man may receive help from scattered ranchers and miners, but the chances are ten to one that before he reaches the border the Indian trailers have overtaken the fugitive.

These fellows are the terror of the escaping convict. for they seldom content themselves with capturing him alive. They seem possessed to shoot him from ambush. All their savage instincts are aroused by the chase, and when they near the fugitive they divide into several parties and prepare for the killing. Sometimes they tantalize their victim by a pretended chase, urging him to make desperate efforts to escape the fate that is soon to befall him. If he has a weapon the sport is even better, as they draw his fire by various ruses and then cripple him, so that his agony may be prolonged. It is shrewdly suspected that they sometimes torture a victim who shows more than usual spirit. Then when they have slain him they bring back a bit of hair or some other article of clothing to show that their work is done and their reward earned. The knowledge of this trait in Yuma character does more to deter prisoners from escape than even the terror of the waterless desert Of all the men who have started out from the penitentary to reach the Mexican border only one is known to have been successful. He was an American who had lived long in Arizona and was familiar with desert life. He had a gun and shot birds, on which he subsisted. Heavy rains balked the Indian trailers and he gave them the slip Still, he had a narrow escape from starvation, as he was found by a ranchman in old Mexico gnawing the fresh rawhide with which the gate of the corral had been mended. He was a walking ghost, but under good treatment he recovered. He sent back word to some comrades in the prison not to attempt to escape, as death was better than the suffering he had endured.

UNREQUITTED AFFECTION.

The Unromantic Culmination of a One-Sided Love Story.

They are telling a story on a young man in Detroit, which somehow has recently got into the current gossip.

It appears that during the past summer he put in a month at a lake resort in the Northwest, and there fell in love with a girl who didn't believe in reciprocity worth a cent. His persistence, however, was in no wise abated by a little thing like that, adds the Free Press. One day the girl fell off the dock into the lake, and the young man. being somewhat of an athlete and a swimmer, jumped in and rescued her without much difficulty.

"Now," he said, as she stood dripping on the dock, "I have saved your life and you must marry me."

"Marry you?" she repeated in bewilderment. "Must I?"

"It's as little as you could do," he whispered, putting out his hands to her.

She gave him one look as he stood there all draggled and sloppy, and with a smothered shriek she plunged into the flood once more.

The next time she was rescued by a boy in a boat, and the young man was so mad he sent a bill to her father for a new suit of clothes
