HONOR TO VANCOUVER

The Townsend Celebration a Success.

GREAT DEMONSTRATION.

A Parade—Land and Water Sports—A Military Display the Feature of the Day—J. B. Metcalfe's Brilliant Oration—Visitors From Clallam County.

The centennial of the discovery of Port Townsend bay was the occasion of a huge demonstration at Port Townsend last Saturday to commemorate that memorable event.

The city was becomingly dressed in holiday attire, the harbor was dotted with war ships, reveuue cutters and numerous merchant marine vessels, which added not a little to the magnificance, the grandure and the importance of the celebration.

Although 100 years have intervened since Captain George Vancouver, the daring navigator, first sailed into these waters. time has not effaced his name from the pages of history, but added lustre and a greater degree of reverence, of honor and of admiration in memory of the man to whom credit is due for the discovery of Puget Sound.

Who can imagine the conflicting emotions which controlled the famed navigator as the marvels of this wonderful country unfolded to his gaze. The matchless waterway, the sublimity of the scenery, the magnitude of natural resources disclosed a scene that the artist's highest conception of paradise could not surpass.

Notwithstanding more than half a century had elapsed before the advent of the present civilization, the advancement of the country has doubtless been far beyond the most sanguine expectations even of Vancouver.

In touch with the restless, progressive spirit of the American people, the development of the Pacific northwest has been one of the most notable accomplishments of the closing years of the nineteenth century. What was for the most part a wild, undeveloped country, little more than a quarter of a century ago, is the scene of a civilization far advanced in the arts and advantages of modern times.

It is not Port Townsend only, but the entire Puget Sound country, which feels a deep, abiding interest in the event so appropriately commemorated by the key city, and any movement to establish a monument to the memory of Vancouver would meet with universal approval and be a fitting tribute to the achievements of the great navigator.

The exercises of the day consisted of land and water sports and a naval illumination in the evening. Taken altogether the celebration reflects great credit to the citizens of Port Townsend.

The oration delivered by the Hon. J. B. Metcalfe, was an able and a scholarly effort. In closing his peroration the speaker utters the following eloquent words: "Standing in the shadow of the century in which these words were uttered, witnessing to-day, as we do, the fullness of all they fortell, it seems as if the wand of some mighty magician had touched the unbroken stillness of a hundred years ago and fulfilled the prophecy of the noble navigator. Yet I do not believe that the wildest imagery of this faored place which he could have conjured up would be comparable to the actualities of to-day. Its foretold enrichment by man's industry with villages, mansions, cottages and other buildings is not only here, but splendid cities with their teeming thousands also. Did he imagine then that there would not only be mansions upon these shores but floating palaces upon the waters he had discovered, and palace upon wheels daily rushing past his doors with a speed of an eagle's wing and by the villages he discribes.

As he then stood upon the decks of his modest little ships could he have had any conception that steel clad battle ships with their terrible batteries, which are sources of amazement even to us, would to-day be riding as gracefully as swans upon the same waters which then bathed the sides of the old Discovery and the Chatham.

All this was as inconceivable to him at that day as the developments of science and the production of art will exhibit at the second centennial anniversary of the discovery of Puget Sound is inconceivable to us of to-day.

The beautiful sea which he discovered is yet further honored, as it is embraced within the territorial limits of our own proud commonwealth which bears the name of Washington.

Amongst those from Clallam county who attended the celebration were: Arthur A Smith, George E. Fisher and wife, F. H. McDevitt and wife, of Port Angeles, R. S. Dimmick and G. W. Hill, of Clallam Bay and M. J. Carrigan, of Port Crescent.

AT THE CAPITOL.

WASHINGTON, May, 1892.

The admissions of Special Examiner Greenwalt of the pension bureau are of themselves sufficient cause for the summary dismissal of Commissioner Raum. Mr. Greenwalt admitted under the cross examination of Representative Enloe that under orders from Mr. Raum he had gone to Indiana, and given a man $25 to send to Representative Cooper, to be paid to Mr. Cooper's private secretary, for information which had been furnished concerning pension claims, in the hope of proving Mr. Cooper guilty of allowing his secretary to accept money for the information which had been obtained by the use of his name and official privileges at the pension bureau. Nice sort of business for the head of one of the most important bureaus of the government to be engaged in, wasn't it?

Ex-United States Treasurer Huston, of Indiana, who left Washington last year swearing vengeance on Mr. Harrison because of slights to himself or family, must have been placated. He is now in Washington, and this is the way he talks: "There is no other expectation out our way than that President Harrison will be renominated. There never was any organized opposition to him in Indiana."

"Teddy" Roosevelt is on the war path for Mr. Wanamaker, and he has announced his intention to figuratively scalp the postmaster general for the delectation of the house committee on reform in the civil service, which is engaged in making an investigation of the charges Roosevelt made against twenty-one employes of the Baltimore postoffice, last year. Mr. Wanamaker, in his testimony before the committee, presented the report of the postoffice inspectors, whitewashing the aforesaid employes, and intimated that Mr. Roosevelt has been green enough to allow himself to be imposed on when he made his investigation. This got "Teddy's" fighting blood up, and he has sworn revenge and asked for a hearing before the committee. Some lively testimony is expected from him, as it is believed that he has a good case. Besides, it is known that he has no love for Mr. Wanamaker, whom he called a careless handler of the truth during the investigation concerning the notorious Shidy, of Milwaukee. It is also said that Mr. Wanamaker has in reserve a broadside of hot shot which he proposes pouring into "Teddy," if it becomes necessary for him to defend himself. Although Mr. Wanamaker is a Sunday school teacher, and probably knows nothing about the great American game of poker, there are people who say that this is thrown out as a "bluff" to make Roosevelt haul in his horns. It makes little difference either way. Let 'em fight, and may the best man win; and may the public find out some facts about how the civil service reform law is administered.

Russell Harrison had $5,000 worth of the stock of the Yellowstone Park Association given to him. So said Mr. E. C. Watters, of Montana, once manager of the company, to the house committee on public lands, which is investigating the Yellowstone Park leases. Just why this stock was given to Mr. Russell the witness did not tell, but it was unnecessary. It was simply an exchange; stock for influence.

The Harrison Opposition.

The Republican politicians in Washington City who are classed as anti-Harson men have held numerous conferences. It is said that their plan to defeat the president for re-nomination at Minneapolis has practically been mapped out. The men in this deal are, of course Senators Quay, Cameron, Washburn, Wolcott, Teller, ex-Speaker Reed and others. It is impossible to state just what their programme is, but they have an understanding and they do not propose to concentrate their strength on any other candidate than Blaine until they gather at Minneapolis for the final effort. The general opinion is, however, that their candidate is none other than the secretary of state, and the probability is that the nomination will be forced upon him and he will be compelled to make the race.

State Insurance.

M. G. Royal, assistant insurance commissioner, has prepared a statement giving the following statistics regarding the fire and marine insurance business done within the state:

Fire risks, $6,068,168.20; premium thereon, $1,571,348.29; losses incurred, $616,668.01; losses paid, $564,654.17; percentage of premiums to losses incurred, 32.8 per cent.

Marine risks, $101,476,000; premiums thereon, $1,470,269; losses thereon, $1,181,300; percentage to losses of premiums to losses incurred, 80.70 per cent.

The bonds for the bridge across the Skagit river have been sold to the Puget Sound Bond and Trust Company for par, less three fourths of 1 per cent. discount. Work on the bridge will commence as soon as the contract can be let.

TRIGGER TAIL LOSES.

But the Noble General Comes to the Rescue.

A FINE DAY'S SPORT.

Two Hundred People Gather on the Sequim Race Track to Celebrate the Anniversary of the Discovery of Puget Sound.

On Saturday morning the roads of Clallam county leading to that beautiful and rich portion of our county, Sequim prarie, were filled with vehicles of all kinds, from the training sulky to the coach and four, together with horseback riders and footmen. All were bound for Sequim prairie where a picnic had been arranged to celebrate the centennial annivesary of the discovery of Puget Sound. It was also the day set for the match races between the horses of John Brown, Jr., of this city, and those of Joseph McKissick, of Dungeness.

By noon 200 people had congregated in the beautiful wood surrounding this peerless prairie. After a time spent in playing games, in walking and in the enjoyment of the sweet-scented breezes as they came over the fields of waiving grass, and in the society of each other, numerous luncheons were spread on the grass. Hospitable people saw that no one went uncared for. All, visitors and residents alike, were carefully provided with the delicacies of the occasion.

Games and quiet strolls were again resumed after luncheon and continued until after 2 o'clock when the event of the day was called. It was the horse races.

The first race was a match for a $200 purse between Trigertail, sorrel gelding; owned and ridden by John Brown, Jr., and Ben, black gelding, owned and ridden by Joseph McKissick. The distance was one-half miles, three heats.

Sheriff W. B. Gould, Thomas Evans and Al Wylde were selected as judges. Pools were selling 4 to 1 with Ben as a favorite.

First heat—McKissick won the toss and got the pole. The start was good. The black took the lead which he easily held until the finish, winning by three lengths in 55 seconds.

Second heat. Ben again got the pole, which he kept until the finish, winning the heat and race by four lengths in 56 seconds.

SECOND RACE.

General Knox, bay gelding, entered and ridden by Brown, Trinket, bay gelding, entered and ridden by McKissick, for a purse of $50, 300 yard dash.

General Knox was easily the favorite, he selling two for one. The start was good. Knox taking the lead which he easily held to the finish, winning in by two lengths in 17 ¼ seconds.

The Angeles boys bought all pools offered against Brown's horses. They backed their town any how—win or lose.

These races were followed by scrub races for purses, made up by the sports, who were in the assemblage.

After the races a great number of the picnicers went to Dungeness to a dance that was given there in the evening.

The dance was given at the Good Templar's hall in Dungeness. It was well attended by the beauty and grace of Dungeness and Sequim, also a few from Port Angeles were in attendance.

Amongst those from Angeles who attended the celebration at Sequim and Dungeness were:

Sheriff Gould and wife, Miss Lewis, Miss Ware, Miss Guptill, Miss Brown and Messrs. C. E. Bell, H B. Crockett, Cliff Thompson, J. H. Holden, F. P. Fisher, Horace White, W. W. Dedman, Donald McInnes, W. M. Burch, Herbert Vail, Charles Brown, William Ware and John McGregor.

All expressed themselves as well pleased over the time had.

FIRE AT DUNGENESS.

The Bay View Hotel Burns to the Ground—All Lost.

DUNGENESS, Wash., May 10.—[Special]—At about 1:15 Sunday afternoon, while the guests were at dinner in the Bay View hotel at Dungeness they were startled by the alarm that the hotel was on fire. Smoke had been discovered issuing from the top of the building. At once, those in the dining room and others, rushed up stairs to the scene of the fire. C. E. Bell, of Port Angeles, was handed through the trap door that lead into the garret and found everything ablaze and the headway so great that there was no chance of saving the building.

Fortunately there was a good number of people there. The Angeles boys who had attended the races and dance had not yet left the city. At once, when it was discovered that there was no saving the building, all started to work to save the contents. Everything was hurriedly removed in a tolerably safe and whole condition.

The building cost in the neighborhood of $3,000 and is fully insured. This is the third hotel to go up in smoke at Dungeness in two years. Two years ago the "Eureka Hotel," standing on the same lot the burned building did, was burned. One year afterwards the Dungeness hotel, belonging to F. J. Ward was burned.

The saloon license of Elias Cays, who was running the Bay View hotel, expired the day after the fire. He was going to remove to the new townsite of Dungeness platted by the Groveland Improvement Company.

There is a good deal of talk of incendiarism, but no one is suspected.

What do They Want.

Governor Russell, in his able speech in Rohde Island, punctured the contradictory claims of the protectionists with this sharp inquiry; "Do they want higher duties to make lower prices and lower prices to pay higher wages?"—N. Y. World.

At Grays Harbor.

The centennial anniversary of the discovery of Grays Harbor by Captain Gray, was celebrated at Montesano Saturday. Elwood Evans, of Tacoma, was the orator of the day. His oration was one of much value from a historical standpoint.

At Colfax the G. A. R. post recommended the appointment of Bocom Decker for guard at the United States penitentiary on McNeil's island. His application was approved. It was finally learned that the vetern was a Democrat, so the appointment was at the last moment revoked.

UNITED, WE STAND.

Our county, state and nation will soon be convulsed with a campaign which will end with an election, when the officers who shall serve the people for the ensuing term will be chosen. In each of these divisions of government the Republicans are in authority. The fight, the great fight, is to dethrone them that honest Democratic principles may prevail.

All along the line the Republican officers represent broken pledges. In nation, state and county their administrations have been wasteful, extravagant and corrupt. They have systematically and persistently perverted their authority for the benefit of the few, at the expense of the many.

On the other hand, the Democratic party never represented principles in our nation, our state or our county, more truly and thouroughly democratic than it does to-day. Never had we more to fight for. We are taxed until life is almost a burden to pay the favored manufacturer, or the favored corporation, the favored contractor, or the favored Republican deputy county officers.

This is all recognized by the people. They stand ready to help us gain the victory and afford the relief. They are with us on the principles we represent and for which we are to do battle.

Are we, Democrats, going to permit victory to fade into defeat by bickerings and wrangling over who is to be chosen for public servants, or over who shall be called upon to command in the fight?

It is every man's right, it is any man's privilege to aspire to any position within the gift of the people. The ambition is laudable, is praiseworthy. But no man has a right to stand in the way of accomplishing our one great end. Rather let him sacrifice his ambition. No man or set should be permitted to divide the party now.

As the people of our nation, from Plymouth's solid rock to Columbia's ebbing tide arose in their might and drowned Hill's scheming personal campaign in one spontanious demand for the renomination of Grover Cleveland, so should they with all such.

The signs of to day are that the giant tariff reformer, the great, brainy, courageous Grover Cleveland will lead our national hosts. Under him we can fight with good cheer, united and confident.

Let us do as well in state and county.

Let us of Clallam county fight together as men worthy of such a leader. Especially at this time, when patriotism requires that we redeem our fair county from the hands of those who have betrayed their trust, we owe our party the service required that it pay the people its party debt—success.

THE DEMOCRAT has no candidates for office. It has no "pets" it wishes to nominate. Whatever may have been said to the contrary by the partisan press or by individuals, the support of THE DEMOCRAT is not pledged to a living individual for any office under Heaven. Believing that the Democratic party has a duty to perform that cannot or will not be performed by any other party or faction—in redeeming and reclaiming for our people this county, THE DEMOCRAT is interested only in seeing a strong, pure ticket fairly nominated by the fully expressed and untrammeled will of the Democrats of Clallam county.

Let us all stand together, shoulder to shoulder, and work for such an outcome. A party that is in the minority, when so much that is of vital interest is at stake cannot afford to be divided into factions or sets.

"United we stand, divided we fall."

UNDIGNIFIED JOURNALISM.

When any organ so far forgets professional dignity or common honesty that it will willfully or ignorantly directly misrepresent facts, especially when they relate to a character who is prominently before the people, with a faint hope that it can induce its readers to believe its rant, it forfeits all claims to journalism. Such a sheet is the Port Angeles Tribune.

This alleged newspaper has become so unused to truth or decency that it hesitates not to quote as facts that which its most uninformed readers know to be without a shadow of truth. So biased and warped are its columns that it is a fit subject for ridiucle only.

Its last display of its own peculiar mixture of rank falsifying and unadulerated ignorance is a labored and awkward attack on ex-President Cleveland and Hon. James Hamilton Lewis. This organ of the Port Angeles ring refers to Mr. Cleveland as an "adventurer" whose success was but transitory when he again "dropped into obscurity."

If the Tribune imagines for a moment that any of its readers believes such rot as this it is a gross presumption of ignorance. The readers of the Tribune are well aware of the fact that no man in the United States is more prominently before the people—and that as a leader of thought—than Grover Cleveland.

But the Tribune shows itself up in its true, idiotic colors when it attempts to handle James Hamilton Lewis. It refers to Mr. Lewis as a man, who in a day, as it were, sprang into prominence from obscurity; as a man whose only qualifications are as a "windy stump and after dinner speaker;" as a man, who in social life is a "fop and a dude."

The Tribune is the only paper in the state of Washington with sufficient brass and unfairness to make such an attack as this before a state audience. The people who read the Tribune's editorial, whether Democrats or Republicans, will think the less of the paper for this. For they know that for six or seven years James Hamilton Lewis has been one of the most conspicuous men in the state. They know that six years ago, before the editor of the Tribune ever appeared upon the scene in this state, James Hamilton Lewis was representing the Republican counties of King and Kitsap in the higher branch of the territorial legislature. They know his record was good there. It was brilliant, able and thoughtful. They know Mr. Lewis, be it said to their credit and benefit, far better than they do the editor of the Tribune. They know that his reputation was made, not as a windy stump speaker, but as a careful, hard student and thoughtful logical thinker; as a man who always went into court prepared; as a lawyer who knew the law. His speches are revered more for their research and carefully arranged thoroughly understood wisdom, than for their eloquence.

Those who have been so fortunate as to meet the brilliant Colonel in society or elsewhere have known him not as a "fap and dude," but as a perfect gentlemen with a decidely level head and a well trained mind. They have been struck with the man's wonderful grasp of intellect. They recognize him as a scientific scholar who has drank deep at the fountain of knowledge and learning.

The Tribune should learn to confine itself to the truth.

OPEN LAKE WASHINGTON.

THE DEMOCRAT has no sympathy with the narrow-minded politics of those who are fighting the government's appropriating anything for the opening of a canal to Lake Washington. Some people in this world are so envious that they can see no good from anything that does not ornament their own dooryard.

For different things the opening of Lake Washington would be a valued and lasting benefit to the whole Sound.

For years spast large steamers have been sent around from the Sound to the Columbia river periodically that they mignt run into fresh water, a convenient way of destroying barnacles. Who is there to say this is not a loss to our Sound? Then what benefits any one of our counties largely cannot fail to be of some benefit to all.

Thi dog-in-the-manger policy should receive the frown of the people of the state it deserves. Let us all stand together and work for the common glory of our grand, young state, then our banner shall always proudly waive.

PARTLY BUSINESS.

The editor of the Tribune lacks judgment if he expects the people of Clallam county of believe that the purchasing of the Times was not a political move on the part of its ring.

In fact, when it makes any such statement, it belies its own columns. Its exhultation over the prospect of "harmony" in the party has been its chief feature since its consolidation.

With A. A. Smith out of the field the ring thought they had nothing but "harmony," the harmony, however, of a well oiled machine. It was strictly a political manoeuvre That it was a business transaction is not denied. The Times was sold because the owner got the price he wanted. The ring bought it because it wanted the county offices, that they might be "farmed" in a business liks manner. This far it was business.

WHY does the Tribune not turn its economical guns loose on the county commissioners? Not, of course, that they are of sufficient calibre to accomplish anything, but it would show that it meant what it is saying about economy.

THE Seattle Post-Intelligencer thinks Hon. M. M. Godman, who is prominently mentioned as a candidate for Congress on the Democratic ticket, is a good man who would make a strong run.

TACOMA Republicans are charging a minority of their members of the city council with treason because they are acting with a united Democracy for good government.

THE Tribune sporting editor knows about as much about horse racing as its editor-in-chief does about statesmen—just absolutely nothing.

THE Tribune says of Governor Ferry: "Compare him with James Hamilton Lewis, and the contrast is so plain that a blind man could not fail to perceive it."

Thank God for that.

THE Tribune claims that all is "harmony" in Republican circles. Read the article from the Port Crescent Leader on the fourth page.

GOVERNOR FERRY would accept the Republican nomination for governor again. What a pair to choose from—Ferry and Bennett!

OUR CITY FATHERS.

The Council Meets and Transact Routine Business.—Streests to Be Opened.

The council met Wednesday evening pursuant to adjournment. All were present except Mayor Smith, so Mayor pro-tem Quinn presided.

The time was taken up during the first part of the evening in passing bills. The bills that were laid on the table last week were taken from the table and passed, as Councilman McInnes stated in making his motion that he did not wish that the city's creditors should suffer because the second ward was not represented on the important committees.

A communicati n was read from the city attorney who held that the mayor pro-tem had the same authority that the mayor had, but that the mayor could not appoint, change or remove members of committees except by authority of the council.

A discussion was brought out by the complaints that had been made by men who thought the street commissioner had not distributed the work at his disposal around amongst the people. It was claimed that the same men had had almost continuous work. The council s emed unanimously of the opinion that fair play should be given all those in most need of work. The decision finally culminated in the unanimous adoption of McInnes' motion that the street commissioner furnish the council a list of the names of those who had been working on the street since the commencement of work.

The commissioner maintained that he had dealt fairly with all those seeking work admitting, however, that he had giving tax payers a small preference. Also that he had a few men who he had kept because they were needed to assist new hands to get started.

Ordinances introduced by Councilman McInnes providing for the working of criminals on the streets and defining what should be a nuisance in the city of Port Angeles and providing for the punishment of the same were read to their final passage and after a discussion in which Councilmen Lewis and Peterson strongly opposed the providing for labor on the streets by those convicted of a misdemeanor, the ordinances were re-referred.

The street committee reported recommending that the city take no action on the petition to have Fourth street opened, as the said street was outside the city limits. The council adopted the report.

Councilman Peterson brought the motion of opening Caroline street before the council. Nothing was done.

Petition of Phil A. Dolan for a rebate on the amount of the bonus he had paid the city for the building of the Front street extension was taken up and it excited considerable comment. Councilman Lewis favored the return of Mr. Dolan's unpaid note for $75 and Mr. Peterson opposed it. McInnes and Thompson seemed to think Mr. Dolan not justly entitled to the rebate, but would favor its return for several reasons which seem sufficient. They claimed that it was the city's work and that the citizens at large get much benefit from it. Lewis' motion to return was adopted. Peterson voting no.

COMMISSIONERS PROCEEDINGS.

The County Commissioners Meet and Contract Routine Work—Bills Audited.

The county commissioners met according to law on Monday, May 2, and adjourned until next day, there being no quarum present.

On motion of Gordon the amount for retail liquor license was reduced from $500 per annum to $300 for the same period. Davis voted against the motion

The report of C. W. Kennard, acting as coroner at the inquest on the body of John Carroll, was approved and the amount of the bills, $58.70, ordered paid.

The coroner's report of the inquest on the body of E. T. Thomas was approved and claims, amounting to $44.10, thereon ordered paid.

The bid of the Tribune to do the county printing was accepted, at 98 cents per square for the first and insertion and 50 cents for each subsequent insertion. THE DEMOCRAT bid $1 for first insertion and 50 cents for each subsequent insertion.

The board approved the petition of Charles Peters, and others, for a road in the Dry creek country, and appointed Alex Clark, M. Geraghty and Theodore Bradshaw viewers.

Resignation of Robert Smith as supervisor of road district No. 21 was accepted.

SIZED UP CORRECTLY.

Chief Crawley Thinks Lewis a Blackmailer—Sheriff Gould Thinks Ditto.

In responded to his letter to Chief of Police Crowley of San Francisco, as to the whereabouts of W. A. Lewis a notorious woman who claimed to be Grace Gilbert. Sheriff Gould has received the following reply:

PORT ANGELES, WASH.

W. B. GOULD, ESQ. Sheriff of the County of Clallam.

DEAR SIR— Yours of April 27th ultimo is received. I believe Lewis is a blackmailer. He placed the matter of the reward in the hands of an attorney at Portland, Oregon. The attorney entered into a negotiation with attorneys here, who came to an understanding with Mr. J. H. Moore, the attorney for the estate of Mr. Crane, from whom the money was received for the mortgage. He then secretly entered into a correspondence with Mr. Moore in relation to the same matter, when we learned that he was also making terms with the Portland police about the same matter. I concluded that he was working some scheme that was not my interest and then dropped him. Please accept my thanks for your kindness in this matter If at any time you may deem that I can be of service to you, command me, and I assure you I will cheerfully respond.

P. CROWLEY,
Chief of Police,

Sheriff Gould had already made up his mind that Mr. Lewis was a blackmailer, so did nothing more than to notify Chief Crowley of the notorious pair's whereabouts. Such contemptible curs as Lewis should be summarily dealt with.

The Woman on the Back Seat.

I boarded the train at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and had scarcely got seated when I noticed a little woman on the back seat of the right hand side. I could not see her face on account of the heavy veil she wore, and she leaned over against the window so heavily I thought her asleep. There were only a few passengers of us in the car, and everybody seemed to shrink into himself as if weary and disgusted.

"Who's the woman back there?" I asked the conductor as he sat down beside me for a few minutes

"Don't know; going to St. Louis," he replied.

"Sick?"

"Maybe, and maybe it's something on her mind. I've got an idea she's watching for someone."

It was a winter day, and raining at that. It was dusk, but the lamps were not lighted, when six or eight people got on at a station. Among them was a couple whom I believed to be newly married, although they were middle-aged. The man was fine looking and the woman really handsome and they took a seat in the middle of the car with their backs to the veiled woman. When I happened to look back I found her sitting bolt upright and acting as if very much excited. Fifteen minutes after the train had pulled out of the station the little woman passed me as she went down the aisle. The lamps were alight now, and I saw a pistol clutched in her right hand. The couple referred to were acting very lovingly to each other, but I had not connected the little woman with at all. She passed them by two or three feet and then wheeled, raised her veil, and stood with the pistol pointed full in the man's face.

No one can be prepared for action under such circumstances. Everyone in the car was looking at the woman, and everybody realized that a tragedy was at hand, but nobody moved. For fully thirty seconds the woman stood like a statue, the pistol within a few feet of the man's face. Those in front of him said he flushed up at first sight of her, and then grew pale as death. He tried to speak, but his lips uttered no sound. The woman beside looked, raised her hands and fell back in a dead faint.

"George, I have come to say good-by!" said the little woman at last, and her words were followed by the dull click of the hammer falling on a cartridge. There was no explosion. Her arm slowly fell until it rested beside her, and with a sobbing wail she sank down in the aisle and was helpless.

All of us moved at once. She was lifted to a seat and a woman took charge of her We turned to the man for explanations, but he had fallen back and his eyes were closed. Two minutes later we knew that he was dead—as surely dead as if a bullet had pierced his brain. A doctor who came in from the car ahead said it was a case of heart failure. He was the husband of the little woman who had been riding so long on the back seat. They had quarrelled, and he had become infatuated with the woman beside him. The wife had planned to encounter them and kill him. He had looked into the face of death for thirty seconds, and the strain on his nerves had stopped the flow of life as suddenly as if it had been struck by a thunderbolt.

A corpse— an adventuress— a widow! It ended there for us, but not for them. Was it any wonder that as the train rushed on through the darkness each one of us seemed to hear a voice saying:

"As ye sow, so shall ye reap! The deeds of the wicked shall recoil upon their own heads!"

THE PRICES OF WOOL.

Affect of the Tariff—Price of Blankets and Clothes.

The Toledo Blade does not see how the free wool bill could raise the price of wool, and warns wool raisers that the bill threatens their industry. We do not know whether it would raise the price in money, nor do we care. Neither does the intelligent farmer. We know, however, and so does he, that with free wool he would be able to trade a given clip of wool for greater quantities and a better quality of the things into which wool is made than he can now when it is protected. This is the important consideration for farmers who raise wool, and it is the important considerations for farmers and other laborers who do not raise wool.

But though we have no opinion as to whether the free-wool bill could raise the price of wool, we were able to give double authority for the claim that it would. Free-traders say that in many important manufacturers, domestic wool must be mixed with foreign, and that if foreign wool were admitted free the demand for domestic wool would be so vastly increased for the purpose of substituting woolen for shoddy goods that the price of domestic wool would rise. That s our free-trade and tariff-reform authority. Our other authority is the protectionists themselves. They say that a protective tariff, so far from increasing the price of domestic products, deminishes it. If that be true, it may apply as well to wool as to steel rails, the price of which, they tell us, has been reduced by protection; and so as wool is now protected, it follows that the price is lower than it would be if it were free.

Return of The Albatross.

The United States fish commission steamer Albatross returned to the Sound Wednesday from a trip North to Behring sea. Captain Tanner says he saw seals, but not in abundance. Five or six sealing vessels were sighted on the trip. The Albatross will take on board every pound of coal that can be stowed away and also a stock of supplies, and will proceed North again to Behring sea. Her foremast has been found to be weak and a new one will be put in before she leaves the Sound.

THE RING'S SCHEME.

The Bright and Versatile Leader has its Say.

The Port Crescent Leader sounds the alarm along the line.

The following taken from that staunch Republican journal shows that Republicans are not whipped or buildozed into line by the ring.

Here is what the Leader says:

A deal was consummated at Port Angeles, Monday, that will be looked upon with suspicion and disfavor by the Republicans of Clallam County, for it affords a true index to the aim and plans of the scheming politicians and place-seekers at the county seat who have assumed a proprietary attitude toward the party in this county, and who propose to work it for all it is worth, in their own interest, for revenue only.

Just before noon, on Monday, the Port Angeles Printing and Publishing Company, publishers of the Tribune, purchased of Mr. A. A. Smith the Port Angeles Times, paying him therefor $4,500. A contract-condition of purchase was, that Mr. Smith should not engage in the publishing of a newspaper in Clallam County, or identify himself with any newspaper within the county, directly or indirectly, for a period of five years.

The absorption of the Times by the Tribune is easy of interpretation. The opposition of the Times to the schemes of the clique had become so aggressive and effective, that it could no longer be fought, and with it in the field, as an antagonist at the county seat, the success of the cabal's plan was an impossibility. The clique has fixed up a slate that it hopes to put through the county convention without a break—but this it could not do, if it encountered the opposition of the Times. And the Times could neither be bull-dozed nor frozen out, and so Mr. Smith refusing to consolidate his paper with the Tribune, it was decided to buy out the Times and so "harmonize" the "factions," as far as possible. In order that the beautiful attempt at "harmonizing" might be made effective, an effort was made to induce the opponents of the clique to purchase a sufficient amount of the stock of the Tribune Company, to furnish the means to buy the Times, and so become financially interested in the success of an investment that was to be manipulated solely for the advancement of the political interests of the members of the junto, and those to whom the county officers has been promised in advance.

Singularly enough, these overtures were declined with great unanimity. The "harmonizing" scheme didn't work worth a cent, and at the last hour—almost a week had been consumed in negotiations, caucusing and imploring—the members of the clique, and those to whom political favors have been promised, were left to complete the deal.

The Leader will take infinite pleasure in aiding the unowned, unfettered Republicans of Clallam County in smashing the clique slate. It resents the right of any set of men to say who shall and who shall not have a place upon the county ticket, this fall. The Republicans of the county, in convention assembled, will make their selections for county officers—and they will be "somewhat different" from those down on the clique slate.

Big Indian Trade.

It is probable that the towns of Rockford, Tekoa, and Farmington never enjoyed such a trade in their history as in portions of last week, after the Indians from the Coeur d' Alena reservation had been paid by the government a sum ammounting to about $615,000 for their lands. The banks had secured a quantity of currency sufficient for the purpose of cashing all checks, and noble red men thronged the streets for about three days. Every hitching post being surrounded by the ponies of savages, who in many instances returned to the mission behind splendid carriage horses, in costly phaetons, decked out in new suits of clothes. Agricultural implement dealers at Farmington were cleared out of vehicles of every style the first day, while the trade in groceries, dry goods and in fact nearly all lines of merchandise was simply immense. All old accounts with the red men were promptly settled, and the towns and Indians were both feeling rich and happy.—Ex.

STATE NEWS.

A farmer of Whitman county has just finished sowing 1,200 acres of wheat. He is still holding 11,000 bushels of last year's crop awaiting higher prices, and expects to realize $20,000 from this season's grain this fall.

A syndicate of Tacoma capitalists are making arrangements for the purchase of the big Saward saw mills at Port Madison If this is done, the mills, which have been shut down for some time, will shortly be started up at full blast.

Frank Ross has been over his proposed line to Port Townsend and finds the people willing and anxious to put up a liberal bonus for the completion of the road. Work may not be commenced on the road this season, as the condition of the money market is not as propitious as it will probably be shortly.

Representative Wilson called up, and, under suspension of the rules, passed his bill for opening the Colville Indian reservation, which modified the treaty made by the Indian commission last year. This bill, after it passes the Senate and becomes a law will have to go back to the Indians for ratification of the modifications made, but it is believed that this will be secured and 1,500,000 acres of land thrown open to settlement. It is a great victory for Mr. Wilson, who has put in nearly all the time since he has been in Washington in convincing members of the house personally that this bill was proper and should pass. There was no objection to it.

Hopeful John L.

"I will begin training about June 30. I would like Bay St. Louis if I had my choice. However, my training quarters will be decided upon by my backers. I will train in a quiet place and out of convenient reach of too many people.

"I have not the slightest idea who will look after my training. It will not be Muldoon, for I will not train as I did for Kilrain. I took long walks; this time I will not walk so much. The principal features of my training will be skipping the rope. I think it the very best kind of exercise for a pugilist. It is an exercise that keeps arms and legs going, and your chest is brought into play as well. Besides I will have a big ten-pound ball to toss and a fighting bag to hit. I will also play football.

"Corbett is a clever boxer, and, I presume, a nice fellow. Of course, I will win, and win easily. I don't want to appear in the light of a blusterer, but I look on that purse and $10,000 stake as very easy money."

County Roads.

Bad roads force people to live in cities, good roads tend to take them out in the country. This observation reveals its force perhaps more strikingly when read in view of the facts of railroad development, to which the especial attention of the American people has been given during the past forty years. The railroads have centralized the population in the cities and larger towns, and arranged them along their lines of communication. Now, what is needed is an equal development of carriage roads to broaden the area of population and to relieve this congestion. Railroads need better carriage roads for feeders; farmers need them for access to the railroads and to the cities; manufacturers need them for access to less populous areas, and for lower rents and less cost of portage and transportation; merchants need them as an element in the cheapening of their wares; the people need them for the reduction of the expense of satisfying their wants and the more efficient distribution of their activities.

Prudential Considerations.

Miss Mable McQuinney had said "yes."

Softly and in a whisper she had uttered the word, but Victor Spoonamore had heard it.

And Victor was wildly, madly, deliriously happy.

The moon went behind a friendly cloud for a moment.

During which moment the bold, ardent youth embraced an opportunity and—but the moon has come out again. Let us proceed with the naration of the plain, unadorned facts.

Up and down the broad South side boulevard they strolled, heedless of the flight of time. Her little hand rested in the hollow of his arm. Being a young man possessed of more than a thimbleful of brains he knew better than to grab her elbow after the fashion prevalent in Bridgeport and Kalamakosh and yank her along the sidewalk like a frugal husband on a small salary endeavoring to steer a reluctant wife past an auction-room.

"It only remains now, Mabel," he pleaded, "for you to name the day. Make it early, please."

Miss Mable proceeded to temporize.

"What will your family say when they hear of this?" she asked.

"The family will be delighted. I fancy nobody will be greatly astonished, but if your family can stand it mine can. It's our own affair, anyhow. It wouldn't make any difference what the family thinks."

"It's an old family, isn't it?"

We can trace our ancestry back hundreds of years," said the young man, proudly. "There was a Spoennemower in Shakspeare's time. A Spoonlemure was an officer at the court of George III. The Spoonamores came to this country in 1817, and many of them have filled positions of honor and trust in Virginia and New England for the last seventy-five years. It was a Spoonamore that officiated at the laying of the cornerstone of the Boston state-house. There were Spoonamores in the diplomatic service in President Madison's time. There were plenty of them in both armies during the War of the Rebellio. One was a Brigadier-General. A New Jersey Spoonamore designed the house you and and I will live in, Mabel—a large, stately building in Prairie avenue, with seventeen rooms and all the modern convenianers."

"You have reason to be proud of your people, Victor. Don't you hold family reunions sometimes?"

"Once in a while."

"There must be a great many of you."

"Hundreds, Mabel— hundreds."

"Are there any other representatives of the family in Chicago besides you?" she asked, after a moment's silence.

"None that I know of," he answered.

"That settles it, Victor," exclaimed the young woman sadly but with iron firmness. "We shall not be married until the World's Fair is over!"

The Aberdeen and Victoria Railway.

The Aberdeen and Victoria railway, although little heard of here, is not slumbering. Its promoters have secured most valuable subsidies in the state of Washington, and will shortly have a corps of engineers in the field. It is thought they will build this year. The terminus across the straits has not been decided upon, but will be either at Port Angeles or Port Crescent.—Victoria News.

Too Previous.

"And you won't marry me, Kit?"

"I won't."

"No use talking about it again?"

"Not a bit. It won't do any good, Hank."

The Oklahoma youth, hurt and angry, reached under his chair for his hat.

"It's my own fauld I s'ppose," he grumbled. "I ort to have waited till we'd got a little better acquainted."

"Yes, that's about the size of it, Hank," assented the young woman coldly. "When it comes to courtin' you're to much of a Sooner to suit me. Good evenin'."

Coming to an Understanding.

Spokesman (of church trustees) —"We'd like to have you remain with us another year, Brother Stedman, but the congregation is poor. We can't afford to pay a salary of more than $600 a year."

The Rev. Mr. Stedman—"And the customary donation visit I suppose?"

"Well, no. We hardly felt that we can afford a donation visit this year."

(With alacrity) "I'll take it, brethren!"

Stern Parent—"I tell you what it is, Martha, I'm tired of seeing that young man coming two or three evenings a week. I think I shall have to sit down on him."

Martha—"I wouldn't, pa; it would be of no use. I've done it myself several times, but I rather think he likes it."—Boston Transcript.
