The Democrats Choose Delegates.

AT THE PRIMARIES.

The Voters Quietly Meet and Harmony Prevails—Reports from Carver, Dungeness, Beaver and Geraghty Precincts—No Contests.

Saturday the Democrats met in primary convention in the different precincts throughout Clallam county and elected delegates to attend the county convention, which meets at the Opera house in this city to-morrow. In all the precincts the elections were quiet and harmonious. There were no contests as far as heard from, except a friendly one in the Second ward at Port Angeles.

First Ward.

At the First ward in Port Angeles the Democrats met at 7:30 p. m. in McDonald's hall. Thomas Malony called the meeting to order. W. B. Gould was elected chairman, and George W. Meagher secretary of the meeting. John John B. Spears was elected a member of the county central committee without opposition. Thomas Malony and George W. Meagher were then elected delegates and R. N. Wilson and J. W. Garrison alternate delegates to the county convention. A resolution was unanimously adopted instructing the delegates to use every endeavor to secure a solid Cleveland delegation to the state convention.

Second Ward.

The Democrats of this ward meet at about 8 o'clock in the council chamber. Donald McInnes called the meeting to order and was elected permanent chairman and Willard Brumfield, secretary. R. A. Grimes, D. P. Quinn and John M. Bell were placed in nomination. Mr. Grimes and Mr. Quinn were chosen delegates.

Carver.

A very enthusiastic primary was held in this precinct Saturday afternoon. J H. Johnson and H. B. Crockett were chosen delegates to the county convention.

Geraghty.

A harmonious and rather quiet meeting of the Democrats of this ward occured at Geraghty's. Malcolm McGill and W. H. Carey were chosen delegates without opposition.

Dungeness.

DUNGENESS, Wash., May 16.—[Special.]—The Dungeness Democrats held a good meeting at the Good Templar's hall Saturday. James B. Dick and Alex Henderson were chosen delegates to the county convention without opposition.

Beaver.

BEAVER, Wash., May 14.—[Special.]—The Democratic club of Beaver met to-day to choose their delegates to the county convention, which convenes at Port Angeles next Saturday. Eli F. Corliss acted as chairman and S. B. Laughlin secretary of the meeting. A. A. Richardson was placed in nomination for delegate, and unanimously elected. Several new members joined the club.

Wenomah.

The Democrats of Wenomah met pursuant to call at this place Saturday and chose Mr. Phillips delegate to the Democratic County Convention at Port Angeles met Saturday.

AT THE CAPITOL.

WASHINGTON, May, 1892.

The anti-Harrison republicans are jubilant over what they say is the certainty that Mr. Harrison cannot be nominated at Minnepolis. They point exultingly to the nearly six hundred uninstructed delegates, and sneer at the fact that only four states that the Republicans have any reasonable hope of carrying—Illinois, Indiana, Nebraska, and South Dakota—have instructed for Harrison, and some of them do not hesitate to say that the majority of the rest of the instructed delegates, all from the South, could easily be taken away from Mr. Harrison by cash purchase, if it were necessary to do so to defeat him.

Quay, Platt, Reed and a large number of the mest influential Republican bosses met here to congratulate themselves on the result detailed in the election of delegates to the Minneoplis convention, and, what is more important to them, to agree upon the ticket to be nominated. The meeting was, of course, a secret one, but it is whispered that it was practically agreed to hold out hopes to Sherman, McKinley, Alger, Depew and other dark horses until the last minute, in order to keep them and their personal followers from going into the Harrison camp, and that when the convention meets Blaine and Rusk are to be sprung upon it with a rush and enthusiastically pushed through before the friends of other candidates have an opportunity to pull their wits together.

Mr. Harrison is reported to be contemplating a withdrawal in favor Senator Cullom. In fact it is said that he told Senator Cullom before the Illinois convention was held that he would do so, as soon as it became apparent that he could not be nominated on the first ballot, and that it was that promise that caused Cullom to get the convention to instruct for Harrison.

Having compelled the Department of Justice to begin legal proceedings against the sugar trust, the House will now do the same for the National Cordage company, the trust which controls binding twine, by adopting a resolution offered by Representative Scott, of Illinois, the same gentleman who introduced the sugar trust resolution, which the House passed last week. It may be that the Sherman anti-trust law, which was enacted by the billion dollar Congress, is entirely worthless, as was charged by democrats when it was passed — there are reasons for believing that it was intended to be—but that makes the House all the more anxious to see it put to a practical test. If it fails, the House will pass a bill that will not fail, and leave the responsibility for its becoming a law with the trust-loving republican majority in the Senate and the republican majority in the Senate and republican President.

Representative Bailey, who is member of the House sub-committee engaged in investigating the affairs of the Yellowstone Park Association, thinks Mr. Russell Harrison may find himself in a very unpleasant position before the investigation is over, owing to his readiness to loan his "influence."

The House committee on Post Offices has agreed to report favorably a bill appropriating $100,000 for the extention of free mail delivery in agricultural districts, and providing for the issue of fractional postal notes.

Again the old cry is raised that Secretary Noble has informed Mr. Harrison that Raum must go, or he would leave the Cabinet. This may or may not be true, but, if the charge be true that Raum wrote, without Noble's knowledge, the letter declining to furnish the Pension Office investigating committee with the papers relating to the discharge of certain special pension examiners, and Noble says he did, it would certainly be about what any self-respecting man would do under similar circumstances. Representative Wheeler, asked for these papers and Mr. Raum wrote a letter stating that he was directed by Secretary Noble to decline furnishing them. Now, Secretary Noble says he knew nothing about such a request being made, and that the committee can have the papers or any others on file that they may wish to see. It was well for Secretary Noble that he took so sensible a view of the request, as the committee had determined to take heroic measures by reporting a resolution concerning the refusal to the House, which might have resulted in impeachment proceedings against the Secretary of the Interior.

The thousands of pamphlet copies of Henry George's "Free Trade or Protection," which was recently published in the Congressional Record, that are being distributed throughout the country, are being sent out by individual Representatives, and not by the Democratic Congressional campaign committee.

The silver Democrats in the House expect to be able to secure the signitures of a majority of the democrats to a petition asking that a new date be set to vote upon the free coinage bill and that a rule against fillibustering be reported, indeed they claim tc already have a sufficient number of signers.

The People Must Have It.

Captain George H. White, of Port Angeles, who has been in the city for several days past, said yesterday that the steamboat service between Seattle and Port Angeles was far from satisfactory to the Port Angeles people, and that an effort has been made to induce Captain Hatch to put the Monticello on the route when she is completed, but the captain had not yet given an answer. He says the mail service was awful for a while after the Union Pacific boats were pulled off, though it is somewhat better now, but people going either way have to stop over night in Port Townsend, and freight has to be rehandled and extra wharfage and charges incurred.

An effort was made to gat the Sehome for the run, but the Union Pacific company would not let her go unless she was purchased outright for $25,000. The company wanted $10,000 for the George E. Starr, but she is not suitable for the run. Now the steamer Michigan stops there on her trips to and from San Francisco and Portland, but a fast passenger boat is needed to Seattle, and Captain White says the people must have it.—Post-Intelligencer.

A Fishing Party.

Mr. C. P. Brown, the cashier of the First National Bank of Port Angeles, and a party of friends, will take a run out to Lake Crescent the latter part of this month, to enjoy an all too brief holiday in trout fishing. That they will have a delightful time, and catch fish galore, is a matter that does not admit of doubt.—Port Crescent Leader.

Oysters are growing scarce in Willapa harbor. Ten of fifteen years ago there were plenty of oysters in the bay, and almost any one could tong from 200 to 300 baskets to a tide, or in five hours.

PROSPECTS PROMISING

Many New Houses Going Up.

DUNGENESS GOING AHEAD

The Davis Building Completed — The Colony to Be in It—Saloon, Livery Business and Restaurant—A Two-Story Brick.

The people of this country have become so accustomed to the cry of "dull" or "hard times" that it is with a degree of incredulity that they note the chronicling of the successful building of a new town so near at home that it may be called in their midst.

This is probably the case with the, in some respects, new town of Dungeness.

Although the first symptoms of a boom for Dungeness are now in the air, it is really one of the oldest and richest settlements in the state of Washington.

Over thirty-five years ago when a few of the most venturesome of the home-seekers, who crossed the plains in their wagon trains, for the green pastures of the great and almost unknown Pacific slope, commenced to straggle onto Puget Sound, thinking that its beautiful harbors would some day afford them an opportunity to get a market for their product, the unusual fertility of the alluvial soil of the Dungeness river valley and the almost as rich prairie and upland bottom lands surrounding it attracted the home seekers's attention

This valley itself is about ten miles long and varies from three miles in width down. Then besides there may be mentioned Dungeness, Sequim and Long Prairie, besides numerous valleys of the same nature as the Dungeness surrounding streams leading into the main river.

Since this early settlement the Dungeness country has slowly but steadily improved. No town has been built, it is true, but instead some of the finest farms in the state of Washington flourish. The settlers of the Dungeness country were not boomers. They were not of that class that arrived here at a later day to make all the money they could and then return east, but they were a hardy, thrifty people looking for a place to build for themselves a home.

They could not have chosen better than they did in locating in this richest portion of the great state of Washington.

By honest toil and persevering industry, they have succeeded in clearing the heavy growth of timber that covered that section from the land and today in its stead they have farms that will and do produce the greatest and heaviest crops of record. The yield there is phenominal, wheat often producing 100 to 120 bushels per acre, hay five and six tons to the acre and potatoes turning out 400 to 1000 bushels per acre.

No wonder that this favored spot attracted the sharp and practical eye of the business man. The output of this place, amounting to thousands of tons of produce every year offered itself as a profitable medium in the hands of the merchant.

A little over a year ago the Farmers' Mercantile Co., was organized to handle this crop and to conduct a general mercantile business. They succeeded Church & Lipsett, who had themselves succeeded C. F. Clapp in this good field.

They found themselves hampered a great deal on account of shipping facilities. The great drawback to Dungeness had been a lack of a good harbor. So the Farmers' Mercantile Co., combined with some of the well-to-do Dungeness farmers and purchased the "Groveland" farm at the Dungeness, river, about one and one-half miles east of the town.

They incorporated as the Groveland Improvement Co., platted a townsite, built a wharf to deep water, and put their lots on sale.

This promises to be the commencement of better things for Dungeness. Much of the business of the old town has already been moved, and the prospect is that most of the balance will follow.

Amongst the business houses that have either been built or are under construction may be mentioned:

A large two-story house by A U. Davis, which will be used as a store and hotel. His son Robert Davis, of Coupeville, will run the store.

A two-story building built by H. J. Lipsett who will conduct a livery business. The second floor to be used as a hall.

The Puget Sound Co-operative Colony of Port Angeles has commenced the construction of a building which will be used for a store. The Colony will remove its Clallam Bay store to this place.

Several residences have also been commenced and some finished.

Besidss all these, The Farmers' Mercantile Company will soon commence the construction of a fine two-story brick building on its property at that place. This will, in all probability, be the first brick building in Clallam county.

The prospect for a lively and prosperous town at Dungeness now seems more than bright.

AN ITALIAN ROMANCE.

An interesting chapter of a romance in which love and butcher knives played prominent parts, was enacted in the neighborhood of Sequim Bay recently, the particulars of which have been but too slow in coming before the public.

One Joseph, whose last name could not be learned, left his native land, Portugal, and sought and found a home under the rule of the Stars and Stripes, locating upon government land near the head of Sequim bay. Joseph had for a neighbor Signor Fernandez, also a native of Portgual, who was possessed of a beautiful daughter, whose description as given by the father so enraptured Joseph that he was induced to save up his money for the purpose of bringing to America the fair daughter of his neighbor. The requisite amount at last having been garnered was sent to Isabella, who in due time appeared in the desolate home of Fernandez, and filled the house with the sunshine of her smiles, and her voice ever charmed the birds as she went about the performance of her daily duties. All went well and smoothly with Joseph, until the unhappy day when Mariano Quinto heard the voice and basked in the sight of the brightest and blackest eyes that ever left the shores of Portugal Upon first sight Mariano thought, that never had the warm zeyhyrs of the south kissed cheeks so fair, or caressed a form so like that which Venus herself might envy.

Immediately his heart left his keeping and sought repose in the eyes of Isabella whose very slave, he declared he was, and without whom the subsequent events of this life would possess no interest for him.

This was of course, told to Isabella on the quiet for the old man stood in with Joseph. The lovers were in the habit of meeting clandestinely until Joseph was made aware of the fact, that his imported sweetheart loved another, and like the villian in the, he drew a long breath, and swore a tragic oath of revenge.

Several days after Joseph and Quinto meet at the house of Fernandez when butcher knives were drawn, and already sixteen buckets of blood was seemingly ranning over the floor, but trouble was arrested by the old man who owned a Winchester which promptly covered both the combatants, in the interest of peace.

The next day Isabella was sent to Blyn upon an errand which required the purchase of some coffee, and by some favorable chance there stood Mariano in the doorway of the store, who immediately persuaded the fair Isabella that the road to Port Townsend was not long, and the price not beyond his means and that once within the portals of that ancient city all would be well, and they would leave it as man and wife.

The proposition was accepted with alacrity and the program carried out to the letter, and now Fernandz has gained a son and Isabella a gallant husband, but Joseph lost his bride and his ducats.

STATE NOTES.

Coupeville will soon have a bank with a capitalization of $25,000.

During April 225 claims were located is various portions of the Okanogan country.

The annual meeting of the Washington Pioneer Association will be held in Vanconver June 7th.

Montesano will soon vote on the proposition to bond for $40,000 to fund the present indebtedness and for municipal improvements.

Anacortes wants the county seat, so what will prove an interesting and an exciting contest, will be waged this fall to wrest the prize from Mt. Vernon, the present seat.

Whatcom County has 25 shingle mills, with a daily capacity of 2,185,000 shingles. The largest shingle mill in the state is located at New Whatcom. It has a capacity of 400,000 shingles per day.

Canneries at Semiahmoo cleared $20,000 from last year's salmon pack, and citizens of Fairhaven are advocating putting one in operation there, as any amount of fish could be furnished the enterprise at about 1¼ cents per pound.

The Chehalis and Newaukum Road Association was organized at Chehalis last week to build seven miles of plank road between the two towns, for which $10,000 subscription has been raised.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY.

The People's party is a party that we have heard more or less about for several years. It has been more or less perfectly organized in different sections of the country for a good many years. But never has it been so active. never has it made such successful claims for support as it does now. They claim that through the perversion of the authority of government by unfaithfull legislators and executives, all legislation in our country for the last quarter of a century has been in the interest of the bankers, brokers and bondholders of Wall street. and directly against the interest of the farmers. By contracting our currency. by chartering national banks and giving them authority to issue money, they claim the government has put right into the hands of the money loaners the extent of our circulating currency. They claim there is no relief offered by either the Republican party, the author, they mostly admit, of this state of affairs, nor by the Democratic party, which they think not radical enough

It is true their members of Congress, almost to a man, vote with the Democratic majority. They are nearly all free-traders. But the action of the Democrats on the silver question is given by them as an excuse for not acting with the Democracy in the general election, to drive their common enemy from power.

On the other hand, by adopting the sub-treasury scheme of the government lending money on lands at 2 per cent., and by failing to come out fairly and squarely on the tariff question; just as the Democrats have on the silver question, they have alienated from them permanently those great reformers like Tom L. Johnson, Thomas G. Shearman and Henry George. This element is becoming prominently identified with the Cleveland movement in Democratic circles. Their organs, such as the Standard, of New York, and Justice, of Philadelphia, are strongly and urgently supporting the great tariff reformer for President.

However, the People's party is going to make a great showing in the next campaign. In some states they will act with the Democrats. In others alone. It is not one of the unlikely things that the next President will be elected in Congress. It is far from improbable that the People's party will have the balance of power in the next United States Senate and House of Representatives.

THE DEMOCRAT does not view this situation with feelings of alarm. Instead, it thinks it well. While it thinks the Democratic party the greatest of all people's parties, is the true place for all reformers, it realizes that this agitation will be to make men think. This is what is most needed now in our government. It will force their rights on those who have been considering self almost exclusively.

The only unfairness THE DEMOCRAT complains of on the part of this party is the effort of many of its leaders to represent the Democratic party as equally responsible with the Republicans for the legislation of the last quarter century. This is not right. It is distorting history. The Democrats fought every particle of legislation they are clamoring to abolish. They are still fighting most of it. Their attention is now given to fighting the iniquitious war tariff, the greatest of all monopoly fostering legislation that the country has witnessed since the war.

EARLY CONVENTION TALK.

There seems to be a disposition on the part of the parties in Clallam county to hold early conventions.

While it is not usually beneficial to a community, who are engaged in business, to have a long, protracted political campaign, this year seems to be an exception to the rule. Certain it is that the Democratic party will have nothing to lose in this county by a long campaign. The longer the people have to investigate and consider the operations of the Republican ring which is so industrously at work, "doing" the county for all it is worth, the greater will be the chances of Democratic success.

The Democrats can gain nothing by putting off their convention until September or October. Their only position is as clear to them now as it can be by that time. They are already in line solidly opposing the extravagance and mismanagement of the present County Commissioners. This they must and will embody in their platform. The Democratic party is in a good condition in this county. It is fighting for a local cause that is just, and one that must win if the credit and fair name of Clallam county is to be maintained before the world. It must win or our taxes will not remain as they have been but increase. The best that can now be hoped for from the the Republicans is a compromise ticket. Upon such a basis it will be impossible to determine who is ring and who is anti-ring. It will, if done, most likely be accomplished by an enlargement of the ring itself and a small division of the spoil.

This the people of Clallam county have become to think as the logic of the situation. That they are correct there is no doubt.

There is but one way to effectually and completely down the Republican ring of Port Angeles, that is to follow the course of the Seattle and Spokane independents, and act for the Democracy.

PITY THE TRIBUNE.

M. J. Carrigan, of Port Crescent, will remove his Leader from Port Crescent to Port Angeles about the 1st of June, and there is gnashing of teeth in the ring camp.

The ring thought when the purchase of the Times had been accomplished that everything was done and that the way to success in the Republican county convention was open and unobstructed.

To increase their grasp on the party of the county they started a paper at Clallam Bay.

Now they are disappointed and sad. Their scheme is not going through without opposition.

"The way of the transgressor is hard."

WELL DONE.

The Port Angeles delegation to Washington city has accomplished something. They have secured the adoption of an amendment to the sundry civil bill, securing to all those who settle on the Reservation before the appraisement is approved, title to their lots, at the appraised value.

If this becomes a law, as it undoubtedly will, as it has passed the ordeal of the committee which is the most difficult part of the work it will mean not only a great thing for the settlers on the reserve, who have moved on since March 4. 1891. but it will mean a great deal for Port Angeles.

About 2000 available lots are yet unoccupied on the reservation. These will be opened to settlement by this bill that will without doubt become a law.

If this bill passes congress, as it should, Port Angeles may expect a large influx of people in the near future.

Messrs. Coolican, Smith and Young deserve credit for what they have done, and should be encouraged to proceed with good work.

SOME of our citizens are endeavoring to get another boat to run between up-sound ports and Port Angeles. They should receive all encouragment. The present schedule is a great detriment to our city. Connections are poor. Besides the citizens of this city should make an active and an earnest protest against the mail service given by the Hastings Steamboat and Navigation Company. At the present time much of our eastern and up-sound mail reaches us nearly twenty-four hours later than it should. This should not be tolerated. It is not in accordance with either the letter or spirit of the policy of our government. The mail carriers get paid for delivering mail with all possible dispatch, and they should be compelled to do it.

AMONGST those in northwestern Washington who are candidates for delegates to the National Democratic Convention may be mentioned M. J. Maloney, of Whatcom; W. E. Schricker, LaConner; Captain Bowen, of Snohomish and J. C. Saunders, Port Townsend. The chances seem to favor the selection of Mr. Malony and Mr. Saunders. They are both good men and are for Cleveland.

THIS week has added North Carolina, Missouri, Connecticut. Delaware and California to the Cleveland column. Boise has captured Iowa, New Mexico and Arizona. Washington will follow for Cleveland next week.

THE Clallam Bay Record comes out handsomely for reform this week. It reads the riot act to the Angeles ring and promises war.

Bravo! Record.

CONSIDERABLE opposition to Harrison is being stirred up in Republican circles by Quay, Platt and others. Gentlemen, you are a little too late.

THE Tribune has been exceedingly meek. It has evidently heard about the Port Crescent Leader's contemplated move.

WASHINGTON will elect eight Cleveland delegates next week to attend the Chicago convention.

SKAGIT county has a county seat war on. The sympathy of Clallam county is duly extended.

THE city council has a good chance to get possession of its own lights.

AGAIN Port Angeles offers free homes to all who apply.

THANKS, BROTHER RADER.

Quite a number of newspaper changes have been made lately throughout the state, but perhaps Port Anfieles leads in this one particular. A Laborer's Friend.

We are in receipt of a letter from Colonel W. L. Stone, in which h says that the Democrats of Whatcom are enthusiastic for James Hamilton Lewis as a candidate for governor, and further adds: "He is expected to be the candidate for governor, and if nominated, will be elected." It appears that Colonel Lewis is growing in popularity every day, and he will evidently make a strong candidate. Able, eloquent and an acknowledged friend of the laboring man, he would make a strong race. If the selection is made from west of the mountains there is none we would rather see secure the nomination than James Hamilton Lewis.—Montesano Democrat.

Warner Not a Candidate.

The ardent admires of Mr. C. H. Warner, of Colfax, have, in their over-zealous effort to force the name of that gentleman for the candidacy of governor, caused Mr. Warner to again make the public declaration through the columns of his paper, the Commoner, that he is not a candidate for the governorship.

In the advocacy of Mr. Warner as an eligible candidate for governor, the Sprague Advertiser, speaks of that gentleman in the following complimentary terms:

In case the nomination for governor goes east of the mountains the Advertiser is of the opinion that Warner, of Whitman, should receive the nomination. Warner is the star toward which the democratic party of this state should look for guidance from the shades of political obscurity to the haven of political success. Mark these words.—Sprague Advertiser.

To which the Commoner adds:

The above is a pretty tribute to the wide-spread popularity of Hon. C. H. Warner, of this county, and will no doubt be highly appreciated by that gentleman. But Mr. Warner is not a candidate, a fact which he has endeavored to impress upon his many zealous friends and supporters at different times and places.

There are other gentlemen whose names have been prominently mentioned in this connection. B. F. Shaw, of Clark county; James Hamilton Lewis, of King; M. M. Godman, of Columbia and Dr. Blalock, of Walla Walla. United upon the leadership of any one of these gentlemen, the democratic party of the state could make a splendid canvas with victory as sured.

Mr. R. A. Grimes received a telegram from Tacoma this morning, announcing the election of Arthur A. Smith, of this city, grand outer guard, of the grand lodge K. of P., of this state. This is a deserving compliment to a gentleman who is held in high esteem in this community, which could not have been more worthily bestowed.

OUR CITY FATHERS.

The city council met, as usual Wednesday night. Routine business was transacted, bills ordered paid, etc.

The most important matter discussed was a proposition submitted by L. Rockman, president of the Washington Electric Light and Motor Co., to lease the plant to the city for five years at $250 per month, and with option to purchase at any time for $30,000.

After some discussion the matter was referred to a committee consisting of Dr. Lewis, Donald McInnes and F. R. Thompson.

They will report at the next meeting of the council.

The Port Angeles Ethical Society will discuss the money question at its regular meeting Sunday evening. Everybody invited.

Attend the sale of furniture saved from the fire. Saturday at 2 p. m.

CALL FOR THE DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

Following is the call for the Democratic state convention to assemble at Vancouver; Wednesday, May, 26, 1892:

A general convention of the Democratic party of Washington is hereby called to meet in the city of Vancouver, Clarke county, Washington, on Wednesday. May 25th, A. IN THE COURTS.

Grindings of the Superior Court During the Week—New Cases—Probate Notes.

NEW CASES.

The following new cases have been filed since our last report:

No. 284. W. H. Greene vs. Louis and Lizzie Williams. Suit to recover possession of block No. 8, of Greene's Belle View addition to Port Angeles, and for $750 damages.

PROCEEDINGS.

The Superior court kept up its monotonous grind until Wednesday afternoon. Saturday morning James Parks, who was last week found guilty of burglary, and whom the court refused a new trial, was brought into court and sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary with hard labor. Parks took his medicine with a stolid indifference, that gave additional evidence of his guilt.

Monday the case of J. S. Bogle vs. The Puget Sound Co-operative Colony came up for trial. This suit was commenced by Bogle to recover earnest money paid on real estate purchase. He alleged that on account of a lis pendens filed in the auditor's office the colony was unable to deliver a satisfacrory abstract of title, Bogle recovered judgment. The case will be appealed.

The case of Hobart Moddux & Co. vs. S. G. Morse was tried in the Superior court Tuesday. In this case Moddux & Co. claimed that S. G. Morse assumed the indebtedness of the wholesale liquor and importing company, and sued for a recovery of $500 on account on the latter company. The court held that the motion of defendant for instructions to the jury for a verdict for defendant should be granted. The jury was so instructed, and judgment was granted in favor of Morse.

Wednesday the motion of the defendant for a non-suit in the case of Fleischner, Meyer & Co. vs. Lewis Levy was granted and the case thrown out of court.

SUPERIOR BRIEFS.

An order has been entered confirming the sale of real estate in the case of B. H. Burgess vs Dennis Mahoney.

H. B. Willson has been substituted as attorney for Tudor in the case of A. U. Davis vs H N Tudor in place of Judge Lane and W R Gay by consent of all parties.

The jury was discharged Wednesday afternoon.

R. H. Deming has made final proof on his claim in range 7 west; J. W. Everett and J J Leadbeatter were witnesses.

PROBATE NOTES.

The time for the referees, appointed to divide the estate of S S Irwin between the heirs Richard Irwin and Matilda Swanson, to report has been extended until June 15th.

The report of the appraisers appointed on the estate of James Heard has been approved. It values the real estate of deceased at $40,550 and the personal property at $138.55

D. Johns has been appointed administrator of the estate of John Miles of Clallam Bay.

Ralph E. Moody, county attorney of Jefferson, was in town in attendance at the district court, Wednesday.

David Troy, of Port Townsend, visited relatives and friends at this place this week. He returned Tuesday.

L. F. Person, proprietor of the City Hotel, went to Seattle on business Thursday. He will return Sunday.

J. I. Kirshberg, a prominent boot and shoe merchant of this city, returned from a business trip to Seattle, Wednesday.

The squatters are jubilant over the brightening prospects for an early settlement of the title to their reservation lots.

Frank R. Beahan, United States Weather Observer at Tatoosh, was in this city several days this week visiting with friends.

Mr. Chas. H. Pink, of the Quimper Manufacturing Company, of Port Townsend, was a visitor to this city Wednesday.

Mr. J. Behrman, of Port Townsend, was in the city Wednesday.

Mr. W. R. Hoole is favorably spoken of as the Republican candidate for the legislature.

J. C. Taylor, of the State Fire Insurance Company of Salem, Oregon, was in this city yesterday. He has been canvassing Clallam county for his company.

R. L. Sebastian, of Forks, returned home Monday. Mr. Sebastian succeeded in getting a good second grade teacher's certificate while in Port Angeles.

Mr. Del Cary Smith, a prominent young attorney of Port Townsend and an aspirant for the Democratic nomination for county attorney, was in town on legal business last Wednesday.

Rev. Father Maniloux of Port Townsend, and Vicar-general Hylebos of the Diocese of Nesqually, of Tacoma, were in the city last Tuesday in the interest of the Catholic church.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Concert at the Opera House tonight.

There was a pleasant social dance given in the Squatter's Hall last night.

The city is slashing and clearing Fourth street from Lincoln to Francis streets.

Any movement to encourage manufactures should be materially encouraged.

The Ladies of the Episcopal Church give their concert this evening at the Opera House.

The Democratic County Convention will meet at the Opera house tomorrow at 11 o'clock.

A concert will be given this evening under the auspices of the Episcopal church, at the Opera house.

With the Sehome on the Angeles-Seattle route, citizens will have first-class transportation facilities.

The steamer Michigan arrived early this week from San Francisco. She brought a general cargo for local merchandies.

There is talk of the construction of a large three-story brick structure this summer one of the most eligible corners it the town.

There will be services at the Congregational Church Sunday, morning and evening. Rev. Wolf of Whatcom will officiate.

The Puget Sound Co-operative Colony will open a large general merchandise store at Groveland. This is an enterprising company.

An excursion is being arranged from this place to the Queen's Birthday celebration at Victoria, Tuesday next. The Yosemite will doubtless be chartered for the occasion.

The engineers, under Capt. Gilbert, of the U. S. Coast Survey, who have been establishing the outer lines of the harbor during the past two weeks, completed their work Wednesday morning, and left for Anacortes where they will prosecute similar work.

Cards are out announcing the marriage in Port Townsend of Florence Brock, daughter of G. M. Brock of the marine hospital service, to Amberson L. McClinton, son of Judge McClinton of this city, on Wednesday evening, June 1st.

Bishop Paddock, of Tacoma, the Rev. George Herbert Watson, of Seattle, the Rev. Mr. Davis, of Port Townsend, and the Rev. Wm. M. Jefferies and wife of Philadelphia, arrived on the Hermosa Wednesday noon, to participate in the dedication and the opening of the Episcopal mission in this city, the impressive services of which were conducted on Wednesday and Thursday.

The Grand Lodge I. O. O. F., of Washington, which met at Walla Walla, Tuesday, elected the following officers: Grand Master, W. G. Allans, of Walla Walla, Deputy Grand Master, J. G. Mitchell of Seattle; Grand Warden, W. L. Ames, of Seattle; Grand Secretary, L. F. A. Shaw, of Walla Walla; Grand Treasurer, Geo. W. Hall, of Seattle; Grand Representative, C. A. Hasbrouck, of Tacoma.

The Puget Sound Co-operative Colony will establish a larbe shingle and lumber enterprise, if public spirited citizens will extend material encouragement. A bonus is not asked, but financial assistance only. With other improvements contemplated would be the building of a logging railway five or six miles long. The inauguration of an enterprise of this magnitude would give employment to a large number of men. It should receive material encouragement.

HOTEL ARRIVALS.

Street Improvements.

The city has had a large force of men engaged for some time past grading and leveling Oak street from the top of the hill to Sixth street. The improvement was completed Thursday, and will prove of great benefit to citizens living in that portion of the city, The council also ordered some time ago that all streets paralleling Oak within the city limits be cleared of all standing timber. The clearing and opening of these thoroughfares will improve not a little the general appearance of the city. In fact all standing timber within the city limits should be felled and burned before the dry season sets in as it is a serious menace threatening the destruction of the residence portion of the city.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATION.

Fourteen Teachers' Certificates Granted Five Failures.

The teachers' examination closed Saturday. Those not contesting for first grade certificates had finished Friday evening. The session was the most important ever held in Clallam county, as there were more applicants for grading than had ever before appeared at one time.

Superintendent Dorsey, of the county schools, thinks the questions more difficult than at any examination since he has been in office, or connected with the Board of Examination.

There were nineteen applicants. Of these five failed to get certificates.

Mrs. Lena Wilcox and A. N. Taylor received first grade certificates; Mrs. Rose Johnston, Miss Sara Troy, Miss Mary E. Garmon, J. B. Taylor, N. W. Merrifield, Scott S. Wilcox, R. H. Deming, W. D. Johns and R. L. Sebastion, received second grade certificates and Miss Grace Ware, F. W. Sullivan and W. J. Payne received third grade certificates.

Besides County Superintendent of Schools Dorsey, there were on the examining board, A. M. Johnston, of this city, and George A. Allen, of Rena.

HOMES FOR SETTLERS.

Homes for all Bona Fide Settlers—The Amendment Adopted.

WASHINGTON CILY, May, 17,—[Special.]—Representative Wilson offered an amendment to the sundry civil bill, which was adopted, relative to to the Port Angeles townsite. It will be remembered that in the seond session of the Fifty-First congress he secured an appropriation of $5,000 for the appraisal of the townsite, with the privilege to any bona fide settler who has made valuable improvements on one lot and one additional lot to purchase the same at the appraised price before the passage of the act. The contract was let for the survey of the reservation, and the survey made last spring, but the plans have not yet been forwarded from the surveyor's office at Olympia, though expected every day. Since the date of the passage of the act in the Fifty-first congress a large number of settlers have settled upon this reservation and made bona fide improvements, who, under the old law, would not be permitted to purchase the same, as it was feared their improvements might fall in the hands of speculators. In order to secure these homes the amendment was offered which will give all who have settled upon the reservation since the passage of the act of the Fifty-first congress up to the date of approval of the appraisement by the commissioner of the general land office the right to secure one lot upon which they have valuable improvements and an additional lot.

It is said by the delegation in this city representing Port Angeles, that this amendment will secure the 1,500 bona fide settlers their homes upon the reservation.

Those who have settled in the past and up to the date of the approval by the commissioner of the general land office of the appraisement will also make final proof before any person authorized to take proofs in homestead cases, It is thought this will not necessite their going to Seattle to make their proofs, but that they can do so before the clerk of the court or the commissioner of deeds. In this way a very large amount of fees and expenses will of course be saved by them. In speaking of this matter, Representative Wilson said he was highly satisfied that he would secure the amendment, and, he hoped, as drawn it would it would cover anything desired by the people upon the reservation. It was not possible to continue up to the date of sale, because it is necessary for the commissioner of the general land office to have some time in order to publish the notice when the date of sale will take place. Six weeks is required for this alone, Mr. Wilson is confident that under this amendment all of the bona fide settlers upon this reservation will be amply protected.—Seattle Post Intelligencer.

WEDDING BELLS.

The Hoole-Sparks Nuptials Celebrated at this City Sunday.

Mr. W. R. Hoole and Miss Lottie Sparks, both of this city, were married Sunday last. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. H. Howells, at 1:15 o'clock, in the neat parlor of their residence on First street, in the presence of the invited guests who had assembled.

After the ceremony was over and congatulations of the friends present were duly extended, the guests repaired to the dining room, where an elegant dinner was nicely served, after which toasts were drank and responded to, B. John Baker acting as toast master.

Those present were Judge and Mrs. Lamoreaux, of Beaver; Mr. and Mrs. John Gordon, of Pysht; Mr. and Mrs. Fenn, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Gay, Mr. and Mrs. A. Howells, Messrs. B. John Baker, C. D. Ulmer and John W, Troy.

Amongst the many beautiful presents may be mentioned:

From groom deed to house and lot in Kansas City, Mo.

Will R. Gay and wife pair of vases.

J. S. Fenn and wife pair napkin rings, silver salt and pepper and pickle dish.

B. John Baker, diamond studded watch and chain.

W. A. Sparks, set silver spoons.

Anna Sparks, St. John, Kansas, hand painted plaque.

Dora Sparks, St. John, Kansas, set of laces.

David Sparks, St. John, Kansas, silver pickle dish.

Chas. Kruisnell, Dayton, Ohio, silver card receiver.

John Morgan, Kansas City, Mo., silver pitcher.

Flowers by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Anderson, Mrs. W. R. Gay, Thos. Penniman and B. John Baker.

The contracting parties are both well known in Clallam County. Both came to Port Angeles from Beaver over a year ago to take deputyships in the auditor's office. Since that time they have made many friends in Port Angeles. W. R. Hoole was the Republican candidate for county clerk at the last election, and is a prominent leader in Republican politics in this county.

THE WEAVERS' PARTY.

They Entertain their Friends in Royal Style.

Wenomah Lodge No 7, West Coast Shingle Weavers' Union, may indeed feel proud over the success of their first annual ball given at Davis' Hall, Wenomah, Tuesday night. It was a grand success.

Invitations had been issued and every preparation for a splendid time had been made.

Davis' Hall was neatly and tastily decorated with evergreen and emblems. Everywhere were emblems of the trade, the shingle being brought into especial prominence.

At one end of the hall neatly draped and trimmed was the charter authorizing the establishment of the Union. By its side was a shield made with shingles for a ground work to which was added shingle shavings in such a manner as to imitate a rug. On this were the letters: W. C. S. W. U. made of daisies. At the other end of the hall were nicely worked mottos one being "Justice to All," the other "In Union There Is Strength." Dirictly opposite the entrance there was on neatly arranged and tastily decorated shingle foundations, the words "Welcome, Wenomah Lodge No. 7, W. C. S. W. U., First Anniversary Ball."

The decorations there were especially unique and natty.

The trimming and table ware showed the loyalty of those in charge to their profession. The table was set with shingles for plates, and cake stands were made of shingles. The floor was carpeted with shingle shavings. The supper was good and well served.

Everything about the management reflected great credit on the Union. Dancing commenced at an early hour and continued till the wee sma' of the coming day.

Among those present were:

Hon and Mrs Chas M Bradshaw, Mr and Mrs T H Bradshaw, Mr and Mrs Disque, Mr and Mrs Forsberg, Mr and Mrs Mynatt, Mr and Mrs Blood, Mr and Mrs Hall, Mr and Mrs Moore, Mr and Mrs O'Brien, the Misses Stella Bradshaw, Florence Bradshaw, Guptill, Eacrett, Jennie and Emily Johnson, Mary and Annie Forsberg, Maggie and Aggie McGourty and Messrs Wm Blackburn, Albert Eacrett, William Eacrett, Richard Eacrett, Fred York, Pat Jassine, George Larner, Charles Forsberg, Thomas Bird, Joseph Thero, George Cowan, George McFarland, Pat McCafferty, J F Long, Phil Hays, Wm Hays, Del Drum, Hartley Goodwin, H H Beach, Wm Leonard, and Mr. Goodwin.

Among those who attended from Port Angeles were Mr and Mrs John F Church, Miss Land, and Miss Hitch, Messrs W Brumfield, W W Dedman, K Y Church, F P Fisher, J W Troy, C D Ulmer, Jr, A Goldwater, W Crockett Ben Crockett and Miss Fend.

Rich Strike of a Tenderfoot.

A. W. Bailey, of Manitou Springs, Colo., is at the Laclede. "Colorado is aflame with gold excitement," said Mr. Bailey last night. "It is a curious fact that old prospectors should ramble through every canyon and clamber up every mountain side in my state and abandon the search for the yellow metal in disgust, only to be followed by the eastern 'tenderfoot,' who makes wonderful finds. Take, for instance, the discovery on Cripple creek. It lies only 1[illegible] miles a little west of south of Denver and has been visited by nearly every old miner and prospector in the west. A few months ago an insipid looking collegian came out there with both lungs nearly gone and no more strength left him than possessed by a woman. But he knew gold when he saw it, and as soon as he got to Cripple creek he staked off a claim. He was laughed at by the grizzled veterans at first, but he has the laugh on them now for he is rich.

"The gold found on Cripple creek is not placer. It is the most peculiar formation ever discovered, and that's what misled the old timers. It is of the quartz variety, in a sort of disintegrated mass and so crumbled that the first layer of it is shoveled up with a common spade. At the Gold King mine, just over Pike's Peak from Manitou, on Cripple creek, one man has shipped a lot of the crude ore to Denver that assayed $13,000 to the ton."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Mystery Solved.

Mrs. Yerger is not handsome, and her voice when she sings is dreadful, but Colonel Yerger is very demonstrative.

"Why is he always kissing her?" asked a friend of the family of another gentleman.

Manning's Funeral Procession.

The sermon ended, the bishops file down from the sanctuary and take their places around the bier; and then in turn, while the choir sings the "Beati Mortui" of Mendelssohn, each bishop walks around the catafalque, sprinkling holy water and repeating the absolution, while clouds of incense again arise and float in a pearly mist up to the roof. This is the closing link in the long chain of ceremony which has lasted two hours and a half. Two and two down the aisle comes the priestly procession. It is like a page out of the Middle Ages.

The Jesuits and Oratorians in their cassocks and white cottas come first, followed by bearded Franciscans in gray, Carmelites in brown and white, Benedictines in black, Passionists also in black, with the symbolical heart shaped shield of black and silver on their shoulders, barefooted Capuchins in brown, Dominicans (the Domini Cani, the dogs of the Lord) in black and white, Servites, Oblates of St. Charles (a community founded here in England by Cardinal Manning in honor of S. Carlo Borromeo of Milan) and Christian Brothers; then come the canons in purple cassocks and lace trimmed cottas, the bishops gorgeous in miter and vestments, the choir led by Father Cox, of the Pro-Cathedral, and lastly the bier, borne on the shoulders of the Brothers of the Oratory, passes slowly along between the kneeling lines of mourners.

A last reverent touch of the sweeping golden fringes of the velvet pall, and all that is left of one of the great Englishmen of our time is borne onward and outward from the warm, golden starred dusk of the Oratory to the cold darkness of the outer world, which, alas! will know his gentle presence never again.—London World.

A New Hotel Fire Alarm System.

A new fire alarm system for use in hotels consists of electric bells having gongs of from six to ten inches to suit the requirements of the building. The gongs are mounted on a polished base, having a box (under lock) attached for holding two cells of dry battery and an automatic drop. The drops are connected in series to their respective boxes in the halls and pushes located in the office. This fire alarm system has no connection whatever with the working of the annunciator, and does not in any way interfere with the working of the combination return call bells located in the rooms.

Upon pressing the fire alarm buttons the drops in the various boxes in the series or floors operate and close the local circuit to their respective bells and batteries. Each bell having its own battery is entirely independent of any other bell. The bells will continue to ring until reset. In each hall or designated place are located small alarm boxes containing a push button.—Electrical World.

A Romance of the Pacific Northwest.

Shu-a-shep and Kleck hum-teck were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at the office of Justice of the Peace W. H. Fifield. Shu-a-shep is a Chiliwhist Indian and Kleck-hum-teck is a Methow Klootchman, who is the owner of 640 acres of land near the mouth of the Methow river. They tell a very interesting story of the way they were treated at Omak lake, where they were stopping for the winter. Failing in an attempt to convert the couple and have them married in accordance with the doctrine of the church, the priest and police undertook to accomplish their object by force, and a free fight resulted, in which the friends of the lovers took a hand and bested the police. Re-enforcements were sent for, but before they arrived the couple had fled the camp and came to town and got spliced.—Conconully Outlook.

A Career of Misfortune.

Mrs. Josie McDonald married Bert McDonald, a young man of Warsaw, and possessed of considerable property, when she was but fourteen years of age. She was a remarkably beautiful girl. Twelve months later her husband fled under a cloud, having lost all his money, and he died in Kansas City. Mrs. McDonald went to Chicago and found employment as a domestic in a fashionable boarding house, where she formerly reigned as a guest. Last week she was transferred to the Longcliffe asylum at Logansport. She was an orphan at twelve, a wife at fourteen, a mother at sixteen, a widow at eighteen, and a hopeless wreck, mentally and physically, at twenty.—Indianapolis News.

The New Star.

The new star, like a brand new baby, has now been photographed in every possible position by the astronomers at the Cambridge observatory. It's a very bright star, it is said, and in that respect also the comparison to a new baby holds good. Photography has now become of great assistance to astronomers in their study of the heavens. About 30,000 plates are at the Cambridge observatory, making an unparalleled collection of photographic records of every part of the sky.—Springfield Republican.

Laudanum Beats a Royal Flush.

John Persankie drew a royal flush of diamonds at a poker game with Frank Maskie at Coal Run. The fellow drew a full hand, king high, when twenty dollars were in the pot. Maskie, unperceived, poured laudanum in Persankie's glass containing beer. Before the game ended the latter was unconscious. Maskie secured the stakes, stole a watch and eighty-four dollars from his opponent and fled.—Cor. Philadelphia Record.

Gold and Silver Spangles.

Spangles are used on everything. On gowns, on bonnets, on all the little belongings possible, and especially on fans. The prettiest of fans are of gauze with very large spangles of steel or gold upon them, and then dragon flies or butterflies formed of spangles. Being on the outer sticks the effect is very sparkling, and as a matter of course tends to brighten the entire toilet.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Farmington lady claims to have warded off the grip from her family by making them all inhale the fumes of sulphur.

Use Their Feet for Paddles.

The Banaka tribe, the most famous canoemen on the west African coast, will impel their light canoes with great velocity over the waves and at the same time use the feet to bail out the water that happens to be dashed over the sides of the light craft. If from any cause a Banaka breaks or loses his oars he throws his legs over the sides of the boat and propels it almost as fast with his feet as he could with the paddles.

WAS A GREAT MULE.

THE GRIZZLY BEAR HAD NO CHANCE FOR LIFE IN THE FIGHT

With Pete a Man Could Travel Anywhere and Need No Weapon Whatever—A Sagacious Animal That Could Kick with the Force of a Pile Driver.

I bought a large iron gray pack mule to carry my goods across the Sierra Nevadas. I christened him Pete. The day after we started we—Pete and I—came to a nice grassy place. I tethered Pete to a tree, allowing him about twenty feet range, and taking some ham and crackers out of my haversack sat down on a fallen tree to eat them. While I munched the ham and crackers Pete cropped the fresh grass, which grew long and green. Suddenly he reared up and snorted in a manner that very plainly said, "Look out!"

I sprang to my feet, and it was quite well I did so, for it saved me from the embrace of a very large, very hungry and very ferocious grizzly bear, who was standing erect and preparing to throw his paws around me. I rushed for the nearest tree and was up in it in the winking of an eye.

I was safe for the time being, but, alas, poor Pete! The bear went about things in a very cool and complacent manner. I could see by the expression of his eyes that he was taking Pete's measure, for he cocked his head over on one side and assumed an appearance of great wisdom, as you have seen critics look at a picture.

Pete's behavior, much as I had already learned of that remarkable animal, surprised me. When I was safe his alarm disappeared altogether. He dropped his head and began to nibble the grass again. He went on with his grazing just as if there were no such thing as a grizzly bear in the world. He would nip off the succulent green stems and chew with great steadiness and regularity, and occasionally I could hear his contented snort as he struck an unusually delicate bunch of grass.

PETE KEPT ON GRAZING.

The bear was as much astonished as I was. Evidently he considered such conduct without a parallel, for he looked harder than ever at Pete, then scratched his head and tried to think out an answer to the problem. But Pete calmly went on with his grazing and looked neither to the right nor to the left, while I sat in my tree and held my breath.

By and by the bear arose, made a grand circuit around the tree in order to watch Pete from every angle and point. Getting no satisfaction out of that mode of procedure he came over to my tree and looked up at me for an answer. But I had none to give him. Between the bear and me we began to think that Pete had lost his mind. Perhaps fright at the appearance of the bear had so bereft him of reason that he continued to eat grass through the mere force of habit.

Soon the grizzly's appetite overcame his curiosity and he prepared for work. He seemed to me to make a critical examination of his destroying apparatus. He stretched his front paws and slapped the muscles of each with the other. Evidently he was satisfied that he was in good trim, for he showed his great teeth with joy. He appeared satisfied that he was fit to demolish a whole drove of mules.

These things done, the bear gave the signal for action. He opened his mouth and emitted a series of growls which made my flesh creep and my hair rise under my hat.

PETE STOPPED FOR A MINUTE.

Pete went on grazing. His countenance expressed no proof that he had heard the growling of the grizzly. The latter dropped on all fours, with his hungry mouth open and his great teeth disclosed. Still Pete made no sign that he either saw or heard, but confined his attention strictly to the business of finding dinner. The bear, also having the latter in view, rapidly approached until he was in striking distance, and then, rearing up, prepared to disembowel Pete and break his neck with one blow.

Down came the outstretched paws, and at that moment Pete seemed to become aware for the first time of the presence of the grizzly. He sprang forward, the paws struck only the air and then I saw a gray form double itself into a ball and bound upward. Out of that ball flew two legs, which shot back and forth with the rapidity of piston rods, going thump, thump upon the body of the grizzly. Up and down went the body and back and forth went the two pile drivers. The bear was struck all over, on his head, on his shoulder, on his side, on his paws. He fell in one direction and then in another. He was kicked into the air and pounded into the earth.

The breath was driven out of him and life followed, and at length he lay upon the ground a shapeless mass, every bone in his body broken, while Pete had quietly returned to his interrupted grazing without a hair injured.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Young Artist (to a friend who has recently furnished bachelor apartments)—Charley, dear boy, I admire your taste. I see you have a little thing of mine hanging there.

Friend—No; did you paint that?

Young Artist—Yes; I'm proud to say it's from my brush. By the way, Charley, if it's a fair question, what did the dealer charge you for it?

Friend—Well—er, to tell you the truth, old man, the dealer threw that picture in.—London Tit-Bits.

The First Manufacture of Rubber.

The successful manufacture of surgical instruments was accomplished in 1820, and the wonderful capacities of this strange product then began to be known, and the commercial world realized the fact that a new force had entered the industrial field, which was distined to play an important part in the arts and manufactures of the Nineteenth century.—Youth's Companion.

Some days past a large thrashing machine was brought to town. Yesterday, while being opened for repairs, a huge rattlesnake was found in it taking his winter nap. The machine had been hauled about twelve miles. His snakeship had been somewhat disturbed. He was 6 feet 5 inches long and had eight rattles.—Lockhart Cor. Galveston News.

Wealth in a Miser's Chest.

John Donner, a miserly farmer, who lived alone in his house four miles south of Canton, O., died Monday. Relatives, in examining his effects, found an old chest securely locked. It was broken open and $8,000 in gold, silver and currency was found.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

There is no cellar under the building, and the foundations consist of cedar or locust posts set upon flat stones at a depth of three feet below the grade line. The framing timber and rough lumber is of hemlock. The side walls are not sheathed, but a heavy thickness of tarred paper is nailed upon the studding and covered with "drop" or "novelty" siding, which serves the double purpose of sheathing and siding.

The roof is shingled with 18-inch white pine shingles, securely nailed to shingle lath. The sills are firmly spiked to the posts and the studding nailed in place, and all is made secure from winds, which in a flat country are at times exceedingly violent. The projections of the roof are heavy enough to give a good effect, but are finished exceedingly plain, being what is known as "Railroad cornice."

The house is 18 feet wide and 26 feet deep, leaving the dining room 12.4x16.10 and the parlor 12x13.4. The parlor and chamber above it are heated by a Baltimore heater, and the dining room, which serves as a living room and kitchen also, is provided with a portable kitchen range with a water back for heating hot water but no boiler.

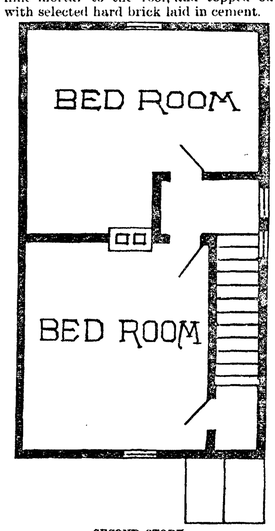
The kitchen sink is 16x20, of cast iron supplied with cold water from the street water main. The wastes are carried into a cesspool in the yard back of the house.

The side walls and ceilings are hard finished on one coat of brown mortar and well seasoned lath. The floors are of selected dry spruce, tongued and grooved and well driven together and blind nailed. The doors and all interior woodwork are of white pine, painted two coats. The front door has brass faced mortise lock, white porcelain knobs and black japanned iron butts; all other doors to have bronze faced iron mortise locks, brown mineral knobs and black japanned iron butts, etc.

The kitchen is wainscoted three feet in height, with a suitable cap and cove molding. The stairs have a polished ash rail supported upon wrought iron brackets The chimney is of hard brick laid up in lime mortar to the roof, and topped out with selected hard brick laid in cement.



SECOND STORY.

While this house is plain, it affords a great deal of room and many conveniences for the amount of money invested, and I venture to say that whoever may be fortunate enough to possess such a cottage will consider the comforts received greater perhaps than he could get for a rental of double the amount of interest upon the investment.

This little cottage can be erected for $600 and perhaps less in some localities where labor and materials are cheap.

FOSTER THORPE.

A fireside corner is a very pretty and cozy idea. Slender pillars supporting a delicate grillework are placed about 2½ feet from the chimney, with which it is connected by a curtain rod. The grillework is nearly as high as the ceiling, and does not interfere with the perspective of the room or hide the fireplace or mante. decoration. On either side, within the precincts, are two chimney seats or settees, upholstered in harmony with the rest of the room.—Decorator and Furnisher.

At the Opera.

The orchestra was rendering a famous intermezzo, and the beautiful dulcet strains charmed, as it were, the very atmosphere of the brilliant auditorium with their sweetness.

Before me sat a young man who listened to the grand, moaning, sighing melody with rapt attention. I glanced around and noted that everybody was impressed—even the occupants of the boxes deigned to listen—but the face of the young man showed unmistakably that the music stirred him with unusual emotion.

Slowly, slowly, yet how quickly those last parting notes died away and were heard no more.

Then followed a storm of applause. A glance over the house disclosed thousands of hands—from the less aristocratic ones in the gallery to the dainty gloved ones in the boxes—in animated demonstration of their owners' intense appreciation of the brilliant musical conception.

Yet what a mockery was this, coming when the air was still impregnated with the subtle melody. How that generous tribute of approval grated on the ears!

The young man in front of me did not applaud, nor did the pretty young lady who was with him. Neither of them spoke a word. Presently the young man looked around at the demonstrative audience with a look of contempt on his face.

When the house had again become quiet the young man turned to the young lady and said: "How charming! how exquisite! What beautiful color of tone and how delicately shaded!"

"I am so glad you like it, George," she replied sweetly. "What a beautiful pale blue, indeed! My very ideal! I have had my eyes on it all evening."

"On what?" asked the young man in surprise.

"Why, the charming dress of that young lady in front of us. Is not that what you mean?"

"Oh—yes—yes, of course."

Silence followed between these two souls for the remainder of the evening. I was pained at the young man's distress, and I went home soliloquizing on men's and women's ideals.—New York Herald.

A Visit to Dumas.

It was during my second visit to Paris in 1842 that I met Dumas. Whenever I called I was told that he was not up yet, until I concluded that he spent the whole day in bed. At last, when I had called half a dozen times in vain, I sent up my letter and determined to wait until he should get up. After awhile the servant returned and asked me to accompany him to M. Dumas' bedroom. It was a splendidly furnished room, but in great disorder. As I entered Dumas looked up, nodded kindly to me and said, "Sit down a minute; I am just having a visit from a lady;" and seeing my astonishment he burst into a hearty laugh and added: "It is my muse. She will be going directly."

He was sitting up in bed as he said this, writing at lightning speed in a clear, beautiful hand, and shying each sheet as he finished it across the floor in all directions. I could scarcely step for fear of spoiling his manuscript. I waited for ten or fifteen minutes, during which he kept scratching away, crying out every now and then, "Viva! Bon, mon garcon!" "Excellent Alexandre!" At last, with a jerk as of an earthquake, he rolled his huge form out of bed, wrapped the blanket about him toga fashion, and in this costume advanced toward me, declaiming furiously at the top of his voice. As he strode along with theatrical gestures I fell back, half alarmed at his vehemence, and when I had reached the door he seized me by the lapels of my coat, shook me gently and said: "Now isn't that magnificent, eh? Superb; worthy of Racine!" I assented, as soon as I could catch my breath, that it was very magnificent. "It's my new play," he said. "I write an act, and often more, before breakfast. This is the third act I have just finished?"—Professor H. H. Bogesen in Century.

True Love.

A young man at the risk of his life saved a beautiful girl from drowning. Her grateful father seized the rescuer of his daughter by the hand, and in a voice trembling with emotion said:

"Noble youth, to you I am indebted for everything that makes life dear to me. Which reward will you take—$200,000 or the hand of my daughter?"

"I'll take the daughter," replied the heroic rescuer, thinking thereby to get both the girl and the money.

"You have well chosen," replied the grateful father, "I could not have given you the $200,000 just yet, anyhow, as I have not laid up that amount, being only an editor, but my daughter is yours for life. Take her and be happy. God bless you, my children."—Texas Siftings.

Signs of Spring in Connecticut.

There are signs of an early spring in this section of Connecticut. Last week Erastus Boubou, an Oxford farmer, caught a black snake sunning himself on a rock. John Lines saw four bluebirds in Watertown last Sunday and a Botsford farmer has seen a robin. Judge Fyler, the state insurance commissioner, whose farm is in Torrington, saw a genuine snowbird on Friday. This is not the bird that usually goes under this name. It was an arctic bird of a gray ash color with two long, slender side feathers. This bird seldom comes along before March on its way north.

Another sign noticed by Judge Fyler was a hawk, a bird which does not stay so far north as this in the winter. Crows are plentiful, another sign that spring is here. Buckwheat cakes are becoming tasteless and flat, and muskrats have been seen on the banks of the Naugatuck. A railroad man found trailing arbutus in bud near High Rock Grove the other day. These signs are infallible.—Ansonia Cor. New York Sun.

One Cent Instead of $2,000.

In the circuit court for Cecil county, Md., yesterday, the jury in the case of Mrs. Ann Hughes, of Havre de Grace, versus the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad company for $10,000, rendered a verdict for one cent damages.

At the March term of court the plaintiff received a verdict for $3,500, but the judge set the verdict aside, claiming it was out of all reason, and put the damages at $2,000. The plaintiff refused to accept this, preferring a new trial. The plaintiff claims that she got on one of the defendant's trains to go to Havre de Grace, and that the train did not stop to let her off, while the conductor and several employees of the railroad company claim the train stopped, but she failed to get off.—Philadelphia
