A VILLAINOUS ATTACK

Upon the Character of Mr. Snively.

AN ELOQUENT APPEAL

To the Patriotism, to the Intelligence, to the Loyalty of the People of Washington—America for Americans—Democracy the Friend of the Oppressed.

It was, indeed, a severe disappointment to citizens when they learned that Mr. Snively would not be able to fill his appointment in Port Angeles on Monday evening on account of his being obliged to return up-Sound in response to a summons from the Democratic Central Committee.

The nature and the serious importance of the business before the committee, in which Mr. Snively has been made an interested party through the villainous and unjustifiable attack of the Post-Intelligencer, is wellknown to the reader.

A victim of unprincipled politicians, of unscrupulous partisans, Mr. Snively has not escaped the poisoned arrow of calumny, of malignity, the villainous thrusts of the designing knave, who, without a word of warning strikes a death blow at his victim in a moment when he believes him absolutely powerless te defend himself.

The base, cowardly, scurrilous attack of the Post-Intelligencer upon the character of Mr. Snively, is made just before the close of the campaign, at a time that will not permit another canvass, and not allow sufficient time to reach the remote portions of the state with the full and satisfactory proof of the utter untruthfulness of the charges of the Post-Intelligencer.

Mr. Snively has met and refuted every charge made against him in a candid, manly and honorable manner. Like thousands of other men he was unfortunate in business ventures in West Virginia. One of the members of a manufacturing concern in that state that failed, he lost everything he possessed, even turning over his homestead to his creditors. Penniless, the future dark and offering no encouragement to recover a lost fortune, Mr. Snively turns his footsteps to where the Pacific's waters roll and break on the shores of the the evergreen state, to begin life anew, to recover, if possible, his lost fortune, to again establish himself as the honest, upright business man his past career had proved him to be.

Honest frugal, industrious, a man of brilliant mind, of excellent parts, a polished scholar he soon advanced to the position of prominence his varied attainments had so peculiarly fitted him. His success was the reward of merit and true worth. Won, doubtless, by untiring application and industry his achieveme nte were none the less deserved.

Having served the people of his county ably and acceptably in the state constitutional convention, as prosecuting attorney, in the last state legislature, he was honored by the Democracy of Washington with the nomination for governor. Understand, Mr. Snively has been in public life in this state for six years past and had never proved recreant to the trust reposed in him, but has ever served his constituents faithfully, honestly and ably. This is his record. Pure and stainless; unassailable and irreproachable.

But he was unfortunate in having been a member of a concern in West Virginia that failed, the liabilities of which were greater than the assets. A considerable indebtedness therefore remained against the firm, that, let it be said to the honor of Mr. Snively, he has these years been liquidating.

If it is an unpardonable crime to fail in business, then, not only Mr. Snively, but thousands of other citizens of Washington are guilty of this grave offense.

The Post-Intelligencer does not, however, publish the truth. It attempts to fasten to this unfortunate occurrence the stigma of fraud, of embezzlement on Mr. Snively.

Never has a public journal presuming decency, reliability and fairness published a more untruthful, unwarranted and abusive attack upon the character and reputation of a man.

The absolute falsity of these charges will be proved by Mr. Snively to the satisfaction of every fair-minded citizen, and should receive such a severe rebuke from every citizen who believes that character and reputation should not be compromised, so that it will serve in the future as a warning to trifiers and libelers.

Realizing the inability of Mr. Snively to fill his Angeles appointment, the state central committee re-elected Mr. B. F. De Bow, of Seattle, to represent Mr. Snively. And it was, indeed, a happy selection, as Mr. De Bow proved himself a finished orator from the Sunny South, where the sweet Magnolia blooms and blends its fragrance with the orange and the palm.

A man touched with a sympathetic nature, of intense emotions, a fine presence, excellent command of language, he interested his audience, charmed them with his brilliant word painting, broad grasp of historical facts, apt and amusing anecdotes, and the earnest and intense feeling with which he presented the great cause of Democracy.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. H. B. Wilson in a few brief and pointed remarks

Laboring under the dis advantage of a severe cold, Mr. DeBow was compelled to modify and spare his voice, which detracted not a little from his masterly address.

The speaker began his address with a delicate compliment to the women of Washington. Said one of the favorable signs of the times was the deep, abiding interest the women of the state were taking in politics. Wherever he had spoken the meetings were graced and honored with the presence of a large number of women. The influence of the home, that spot of all others where purity, love, honor and contentment reign supreme, if exerted in political meetings must have a most wholesome and purifyng effect.

The speaker said that he did not appear before the people of Angeles to give them a long-drawn out harangue on the tariff. As he understood that question, one of its effects was to increase the cost of the necessities of life to the consumers, while it does not correspondingly increase the wages of the laboring classes.

The high tariff of the war period had been increased from 33 per cent. to 60 per cent., as under the McKinley tariff. The results of such an iniquitous system was increasing oppression and hardship to the working classes and unfair and extreme protection to the favored few.

This was all wrong.

Condemned the force bill as a pernicious measure that aimed a death blow at the liberty of the people. It openly and notoriously violated every principle of free government. There was not a despotism in Europe that would compare with the tyrannical features of this measure, yet the Republican party attempted to fasten such an infamy upon an enlightened people

The fair state of Washington had unfortunately been brought under the baleful influence of Republican misrule. Extravagance, corruption, and public scandals was the record of the dominent party, and it again appeals to the people to approve its wayward course. What a record to give to the world. A state so young in years, so old in infamy.

Is it not time for a change? Do the interests of good government not demand it? Has not the Republican party violated every trust?

The speaker believed that America was for Americans. Liberty is the rock upon which a free government must rest.

True patriotism and intelligence must assert themselves. The party that ignores the interests of the people must surely fall.

The speaker then alluded feelingly to the position into which Mr. Snively had been forced by the cowardly, venomous and unjustifiable attack of the Post-Intelligencer. It was a keen disappointment to Mr. Snively not being able to fill his Angeles appointment, but he would endeavor to address citizens before the end of the campaign. Mr. Snively would be able to vindicate himself of every charge, to exonerate himself in the eyes of the people of any wilful wrong doing.

Mr. DeBow finished his brilliant address with an earnest appeal to all patriotic, liberty-loving citizens to throw off the shackles of despotism, and break away from the party that had so long held them in bondage, and cast heir ballot for the party representing honest and economical government.

COUNTY NEWS.

Interesting Paragraphs From the County Press.

Port Crescent Leader.

Judge L. N. Lane returned Tuesday morning from his political tour in the west end. The judge took an unexpected bath in an eight-foot pool of salt water on the rocky coast of the Pacific between Ozette and the mouth of the Quillayute. After scrambling ashore in the twilight he walked all night to keep from freezing and played shipwrecked mariner on the beach at the mouth of the Quillayute for a day, subsisting mostly on clmate. In spite of these minor incidents the Judge grew as robust as a Hoh river rancher and no doubt thinks that Missouri is nowhere when it comes to politics.

INTERESTING LETTER

From a Member of the Quinault Surveying Party—Trials and Hardships Endured by them in the Quinault Country—Two Members Lost.

Major R. R. Harding returned from his Michigan trip last Saturday whither he had gone in the interest of the Michigan Colony Association.

Mr. Harding accompanied by a number of families, who have come to make a permanent home in Clallam county.

Major Harding states that immediately after the November election at least two hundred families will leave Saginaw, Michigan, for their new home in Angeles and Clallam county.

During his absence Mr. Harding traveled quite extensively throughout Michigan, addressing the various G. A. R. posts on Angeles, its natural resources, opportunities, prospects, etc. Everywhere he was most enthusiastically received and royally entertained. He was asked innumerable questions about his far away home, of that fair and promising land, where the evergreen reigns, perpetual snow crowns the mountain tops, and the breakers of old Pacific meet, kiss and subdue the gentler waves of the inland sea.

It is almost needless to state that Clallam's able representative was equal to the occasion. Imbued with a patriotic interest in Angeles, actuated, doubtless, with the desire to do all in his power for the material advancement of Angeles.

The work already begun under the wise and intelligent direction of the local board of trade, in the judicious comprehensive preparation of printed matter relative to Angeles and its opportunities, for gratuitous distribution throughout the country—the object being to reach every post in the United States—will result, Major Harding believes, in great benefit to the city and to the county.

The plan of advertising adopted is systematic and effective. And above all misrepresntation is studiously avoided. A plain, truthful write-up of the town and its surroundings is sufficient to convince any reasonable person of its matchless advantages.

I will herein give you a brief sketch of our trip after leaving lake Quinault. After leaving the lake we rushed our work to the fullest extent, knowing that by a few days more hard work we would be able to bid goodby to the Quinault country and take up the homeward march for Port Angeles.

The first few days out from the lake we had good success and made good headway with our work. When going to the lake on our random line we encountered a strip of country some three or four miles in length through which we could not find any water, but after the amount of rain that we had witnessed in the past six weeks we felt no uneasiness about a scarcity of water, but it seemed as if Providence was bucking against us and that we were fated to go hungry, when we had plenty of provisions to cook. Counting on finding plenty of water, we passed by the last water we had noted some time before noon. As the boss and all the boys were anxious to finish the line as soon as possible, we decided not to stop to cook dinner, but to prepare a cold lunch, thereby saving considerable time. Eating our lunch at noon we proceeded on with our work until very near night. Not having seen any signs of water we became uneasy and taking off our packs we started out scouting, going about half a mile out from our packs in different directions we were at last forced to return, each one admitting their failure in finding water. The cook then opened his cupboard (a wheat sack) and found a loaf of bread, and frying some bacon we had bread and bacon but nor water or coffee to help wash it down.

Spreading our blankets we went to sleep, but morning found us a sorry looking crowd. Plenty of flour, bacon, beans, coffee, etc., but no water to cook them with, rolling our blankets we resumed work, and at noon came to the edge of a beaver dam where camp was soon pitched and coffee and pancakes sputtering over the fire, as wood and water were both plentiful at this spot.

Seeing plenty of signs of elk and dear in the swamp J. C. Burk and C. J. Jones concluded to go for a shot, starting out, fully bent on having some fresh meat, they failed to take the necessary precaution to notice in what direction they were traveling from camp. After some time they can to the edge of a beaver dam, and, supposing it to be the same that the camp was on, concluded to hunt awhile longer.

After awhile, seeing that night was drawing near, they started to return to camp. After some time not finding camp and receiving no answer to their signal shots, they concluded that something was wrong at camp or else with them, and wandered around aimlessly without striking the homeward trail.

While traveling towards the creek they espied a sage hen, and by more good luck than good marksmanship, Jack succeeded in killing the same. Coming to a dry tree they built a fire and soon had Mrs. Sage broiling over the coals. Feeling better after their meal the boys resumed their journey to the creek, reaching it, they camped for the night. Another night out in the rain did not have a tendency to make the boys feel light-hearted and gay, and they were only too glad to start out with the light of day. After three or four hours spent in trying to find camp, they were forced to admit their inability to do so without the help of the sun.

So the boys returning to the creek concluded to work there way up the bank of the creek until the trail was reached proceeding up the stream some distance they saw some fresh cuttings, and examining them, discovered that it was the line which had been run through by the rest of the party, but here again disappointment awaited them. Thinking that the rest of the party, after finishing the line, started for the trail they did the same, going out into a prairie of about twenty-five acres.

Leaving the prairie they traveled about three hours in what they supposed to be an easterly direction, getting so badly chilled that they could scarcely move, stopped to build a fire. All day there had been a cold, steady rain, and they had a difficult time in starting a fire.

Leaving the fire they started back to the prarie, walking less than five minutes they came out on their line at the south side of the prairie, and starting back on the line, they saw a camp-fire, and thinking it to be the fire of the rest of the party, commenced to shout with all their might, but soon recognized the fire as the one they had just left. They had traveled away from the prairie as they thought, in an easterly direction, for about three hours, but instead of going east they had traveled in a circle and came back to the south end of the prairie and built their fire within thirty feet of the line and within five chains of where they had left the prairie. After recovering from their surprise they started back for the lake. Seeing the impression of a shoe track going the same way they were traveling they began to think that the rest of the boys had returned to camp at the beaver dam.

Coming in sight of the beaver dam just before dark they were overjoyed to see the camp-fire of the rest of the party. The boys in camp had come to the conclusion that Charlie and Jack had reached the trail or else were lost, and, having only provisions enough for about three meals intended to start for the trail in the morning.

The boys were soon at work getting their wet cloths off and some dry ones on in their stead. While some were doing this Will Crockett and Al were cooking hot cakes and coffee with might and main.

In the morning having provisions enough for two small meals, we started for the trail, reaching it, we camped in an empty cabin for the night. The next day at 1 p. m. we reached Humptulips, where we found quite a little settlement with a store and a hotel. At this place they have eighty acres platted off for a townsite. The boss left orders at the hotel to prepare dinner for seven hungry men.

Starting out for the Hoquiam landing that afternoon, we found the wagon road in very good condition in some places, but mostly knee deep in mud and water.

Arriving at Hoquiam landing the following day at noon we hired a man and boat to take us down to Hoquiam, a distance of nine miles. From there to Aberdeen we had a good plank road, and we the toughest looking outfit of men that the good people of that country had ever seen. They would get behind the buildings and around the fence corners and look at us as though they thought us the advance guard of Fore Paws' show, but by taking the back streets and alleyways we managed to reach our hotel without letting any of the crowd getting raged.

On our first arrival in Aberdeen, we put up at the Commercial hotel. We had left our suits at the hotel in charge of the landlady, and on our return found our cloths had been well and safely cared for.

DEMOCRACY and reform are having a year of glorious victories.

PEERLESS Grover is leading Democracy to a grand victory.

CLALLAM county Democracy has caught inspiration from the reform sentiment abroad in the land.

THE Republicans have given up Indiana. New York is regarded as an uneven battle-field. But they still look hopefully to Pennsylvania.

THE taxpayers of Clallam should rise in their majestic wrath and smite the party that has so ruthlessly squandered public funds, and betrayed the trust reposed in it.

THE People has been resurrected and comes to us with J. M. Grant, as editor. It is neat and newsy, and worthy of its name and object. The Populists are to be congratulated on their organ.

AFTER the election will come the Soldier Colony and innumerable other good things for Port Angeles. It is an industrial wave that will break at the the doorstep of the gateway city of Pacific's inland sea.

THE Leader editorially deprecates personalities in politics. The same issue is nearly filled with personal abuse and falsehoods about C. E. Mallette, the Democratic candidate for Representative. "Consistency thou art a jewel."

"HE is an honorable man," is the unanimous verdict of the people of Washington, after reading the manly explanation of Mr. Snively of the unjust and untruthful charges made against him by the Post-Intelligencer.

MIGHTY, indeed, is public indignation when it rises in its supreme force, and smites evil doers. The righteous wrath of an outraged people is directed at the party that has betrayed them. A tidal wave of Democratic reform will sweep the country in November.

SNIVELY has met the cowardly, villainous attack of the Post-Intelligencer, in a brave, courageous manner. He has frankly, fully and satisfactorily met every charge, proving the untruthfulness of each and every accusation. A party must be driven to desperate straits, to resort to such disreputable methods to win an election. It will not succeed. The people have resolved to rebuke the party so forgetful of their interests.

THE Democratic candidate for the legislature is invincible. His election is only a question of majority. The people of Washington have determined to rebuke the party that has so shamefully abused public trust. The Democratic party is pledged to inaugurate the legislative reform demanded And the people of the state have determined that it shall be entrusted with the affairs of the state to perform that duty.

THE DEMOCRAT has pursued an honorable course in the present campaign. It has presented to the taxpayers of the county a truthful statement. obtained from the county records, of the deplorable condition of county finances. It was a revelation to taxpayers. Disclosing a degree of extravagance, excessive expenditures, that has piled an enormous debt upon the county, that will require years of high taxation to liquidate. No attempt is made to excuse this record of waste, of gross incapacity, this flagrant abuse of public trust, by the opposition press. The course pursued by the Republican press and leaders of Clallam, has been one of evasion, personal abuse, and undignified allusions to the candidates on the Democratic county ticket. Which position, taxpayer, is more worthy of approval?

A LAST RESORT.

The facts prove this to be false with THE DEMOCRAT but to be the course of the Leader itself.

THE DEMOCRAT has dealt with conditions. It has truthfully ssid that the records of Clallam county are open books, and it now challenges the Leader or anyone else to go to these records, and disprove a single assertion that has been made. THE DEMOCRAT claims, rightfully all must admit, that the public record of a public man or a political party is public property. It has to do directly with the public. THE DEMOCRAT has attacked the public record of the Republican party in Clallam county. It has already arraigned some of its party candidates. The reason for this is obvious. There is no better method of judging what may be expected of a politicial party than by what it has done in the past.

In its attacks. THE DEMOCRAT has confined itself exclusively to the Republican record in Clallam county—the official record. Its attacks have not been successfully denied. No attempt at denial has been made by the Port Angeles Leader. This is because they are the facts. The Leader knows it.

The personal character and private life and even the personal qualifications of the Republican candidates have not been attacked. THE DEMOCRAT has steadily refused to publish any matter reflecting at all on the private life of anyone.

The Leader like its campaign committee is driven to this weakly attempted evasion as a last resort. It will not avail them anything.

The Democratic county ticket WILL be elected.

WHO WILL YOU VOTE FOR?

The time for the election is drawing near. It is time for the citizens to finally make up their minds for whom they will cast their votes for the different offices.

To a greater or less degree the national and state tickets will receive their party votes.

On county matters it is different. The county officers more directly concern the taxpayers and people of the county, so, to a large extent, partisanship should and will give way to the interest of home.

There are many reasons why citizens, irrespective of party should support the Democratic candidates. A few of the reasons why Judge L. M. Lane should receive the support of the people are:

He is the best lawyer and most competent man running for that position on any ticket.

He will call a grand jury session and have county affairs carefully overhauled.

He will reduce the running expense of his office one half.

He is thoroughly identified with Clallam county.

The voters should cast their ballots for Chas. E. Mallette. He is thoroughly identified with the best interests of Clallam county.

He is pledged for anti-Pinkertonism; for favorable freight and passenger-rate legislation; for a repeal of the present obnoxious revenue law and for the material interests of Clallam county.

To elect his opponent would be to endorse the Republican county administration.

A vote for John W. Troy, for county auditor, is a vote for a Clallam county boy; for a man peculiarly qualified by experience for the position; for a net saving of more than $1800 per year in the running expenses of the office.

All should vote for M. J. Clump, for treasurer, for the reason that he is well qualified for the office. He will perform his duties without the assistance of a deputy except for two months of the year.

He will save Clallam county more than $1000 per year in the expense of his office.

A vote for "Billy" Gould is a vote for as good a sheriff as this county ever had. He is well qualified and thoroughly honest.

A. A. Richardson should by all means be selected for county clerk.

He is pledged to conduct the office as economically as W. K.Clark has conducted it in the past.

He is peculiarly fitted for the position, being a lawyer by profession and thoroughly familiar with the duties of the office.

Mr. Richardson is a gentleman capable and accommodating.

A vote for Dan Bryan for county attorney is a vote for as honest a man as ever lived; for a good lawyer, and for a reduction of $800 to $900 per year in the running expense of the attorney's office.

The election of Mrs. Lena Wilcox means the election of a bright, brilliant and well educated lady to the office of school superintendent.

E. A. Fitz Henry should be chosen surveyor. He is competent. He will not approve of any contract or piece of work unless it is completed according to specifications. He will materially reduce the running expenses of the surveyor's office.

W. M. Redwine is a man thoroughly qualified for the duties of the office of assessor. He is a man of good business ability and judgment. He will be fair and just in all his official actions. He will take a good census where it falls his lot to so do.

A vote for James B. Dick, Robert N. Wilson and Hans Hansen is a vote for a Democratic administration as against the Republican administration of the last two years. These gentlemen will look out for the people's every interest.

They are men who can not be bought or influenced to any thing whatever they do not believe to be right.

A vote for the straight Democratic county ticket is a vote for an honest administration. It is an honest and fairly expressed rebuke to a corrupt Republican administration, profligate waste, unpardonable extravagance, party favoriteism and personal greed.

The Republican county ticket should of right and must of necessity be defeated.

Forks Celebrates Columbus Day.

FORKS, Oct. 11st, '92.

EDITOR DEMOCRAT — Columbus Day was celebrated with very appropriate and pleasing exercises at our school house. The people began coming from the surrounding country, early in the day, and at 9:30 the old veterans preceded by the school children, singing, "Marching through Georgia," marched under arches of evergreen that had been erected in the school yard, and into the house that had been very tastefully decorated by the young ladies. Here the children executed the official program in a highly creditable manner — thanks to the careful drill of our teacher, Mr. C. G. Whiting.

By the time this was over all were prepared to do justice to the magnificent spread prepared by our patriotic ladies—which was especially enjoyed by quite a number of the bachelor ranchers who were present. After dinner we again assembled at the school house, and listened to speeches by a number of citizens who spoke on fitting topics — with music and patriotic songs in the intervals, Mr. Whiting then gave us a comprehensive review of historical events, followed by an essay on patriotism by Mrs. Whiting. We then dispersed to assemble again in the evening at Eli Peterson's home, where we completed the festivities with an enjoyable dance,, after which we finally dispersed to our homes in the wee sma' hours. One and all agreed that it was a most happy commemoration of the discovery of glorious America.

HENRY COTTER.

Superior Judge Matter.

It is hereby agreed between the Republican County Central Committee and the Democratic Central County Committee that the following instructions to voters shall be given:

Each voter shall vote for the Superior Judge for the short term and for the Superior Judge for the long term, as follows:

Voters who desire to vote for James G. McClinton, will vote for him twice; once for the short term and once for the long term; and voters desiring to vote for L. M. Lane shall vote for him once for the short term and once for the long term, each of these names will appear twice upon the Official Ballot. This is for the reason that the term of James G. McClinton, who is our present Superior Judge, expires on November 8th, next, and therefore the Judge of this Court is to be elected to hold until January 9th next, which means a short term, and then for a long term, as is designated on the ballot which means that the judge then elected will hold from January 9th, for four years following.

About the Quillayute Improvement.

BEAVER, Oct. 15, 1892.

To say we voters were surprised at the audacity of Mr. Whiting in saying that the improvement at the mouth of the Quillayute would benefit only a few, while there is not a man owning an inch of ground living on or near any of the three rivers, that make the Quillayute, but what would think his time had come should we be fortunate enough to secure a harbor at La Push. With sawmills there to cut our timber we think we would be probably in it.

But when we think the matter over we cannot altogether blame Mr. W. as he has not a dollar at stake except the drawing of his salary as school teacher at Forks, his ranch and interests are all located over the mountains, where his outlet, Clallam Bay, is reached only by roads. Again, Mr. W. we understand from good, reliable authority, is not even a qualified elector.

We do not want anyone to understand that we do not want roads and plenty of them, to need them worse would be impossible. What we want understood is, we want both if we can get them for we need them.

What figure does it cut with our county road fund if Uncle Sam would step in and build us a harbor at the mouth of the Quillayute? Let me here state should we be fortunate enough to secure his aid, and he undertakes to build it, he will do it. In the meantime go on with the good work of building roads all over our beautiful county. X.

Mr. E. E. Hickman, of Port Townsend, arrived yesterday evening in charge of a steam launch. He brought Gov. Teats, the Peoples' party candidate for attorney-general.

Governor Teats, candidate for attorney-general, on the People's Party ticket, addressed a large audience in the opera house last even ing. He handled the issues of the campaign very ably.

COUNTY NEWS.

Interesting Paragraphs From the County Press.

Clallam Bay Record:

The wharf extention is a very substantial improvement and will be of great advantage in the handling of freight and the shipping of lumber. A larger warehouse is to be built in addition to the old one. Piles have been driven for another extension to the wharf, 30x40 feet in size, opposite the sawmill.

The tug Discovery brought here fourteen persons last Tuesday evening from La Push. Most of them have taken claims over in that country and were returning to their homes at Port Angeles and elsewhere.

A logging crew was put at work last Tuesday a short distance up the river. They will supply logs enough with what is already in the river, to keep the mill running all winter.

James Hamilton Lewis.

One of the best and most popular cigars in the state is the James Hamilton Lewis. This cigar is, as it should be, an especial favorite with Democrats, who are loyal to their great state leader, and coming governor. Raymond Bros., have the agency for this city for this splendid cigar.

Do not neglect to register.

Non-Partisan ball to-morrow evening.

The Monticello will soon resume her place on this route.

Registration books close to-day. Over 600 persons have been registered.

The United States survey steamer Gadney was in the harbor the first of the week.

Port Angeles has over 600 legal voters. This means a population of 3,000.

The Soldier colony was increased by an addition of three families that arrived from Michigan last Saturday.

Mr. Henry Nelson is materially improving his First street property, preparatory to erecting a business house.

There will be given at the opera house on the evening of October 31st, in commemoration of Hallowe'en, a social dance.

The steamer Michigan arrived Sunday evening from Portland with 100 tons of general merchandise for local merchants.

If nothing unusual occurs, the interesting opera, the "Chimes of Normandy," will be produced on or about the 19th of November.

With the Willipa, the Monticello, the Garland and the City of Seattle on the Angeles route, citizens will be afforded excellent transportation facilities.

Capt. Horne, of the Hastings' steamboat company, left for Portland last week to bring around the steamer Willipa, that will be placed on the Townsend-Angeles route.

"Not Knowing What We Ask" will be the subject of the morning sermon in the Congregational church Sunday, in the evening "A Common Experience in Life."

You will certainly attend the non-partisan ball Saturday evening at the opera house. At fund of amusement and enjoyment is in store for those privileged to attend.

The steamer Willipa will soon be placed on the Townsend-Angeles route by the Hastings' Steamboat company, when a better and a more regular mail service is promised.

J. H. Young has been appointed resident agent for the Northern Pacific R. R. Co. The appointment is a good one, as for an all around rustler and for thorough work Mr. Young is hard to beat.

The names of A. A. Richardson, Major Harding and C. E. Maxfield were omitted from the reception committee of the non-partisan ball that will be given in the opera house to-morrow evening.

We are glad to learn that the Northern Pacific railroad has opened an office in this city with J. H. Young as agent, who is prepared to sell tickets to all points at same rates given from Tacoma or other common points.

There was a meeting of the board of trade Wednesday evening. A number of important matters were discussed. The board continues its vigorous, earnest and effective work for the material welfare of Angeles with unabated energy.

The Northern Pacific Railway and Navigation Company, will in the near future, have their steamers on the Victoria Puget Sound route, call at this port at least one trip a week, and if the business should justify it, the steamers will touch here daily.

The United States survey steamer Gadney has completed her season's work and will leave for San Francisco in a few days, where she will go into winter quarters. The work of the Gadney during the summer has been of a comprehensive nature, being a survey of the Straits of Fuca.

City Clerk Humphries has been busily engaged for some time past registering the legal voters. The registration books show a considerable increase in the population of the city. If anyone doubts the steady growth of Port Angeles they have but to examine the registration books.

A Democratic meeting was held at Coleville Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was fairly attended, and a number of vigorous addresses were delivered by tried and true Democrats. Democracy has been ably presented to the voters of Clallam during the present campaign by earnest sincere, ardent apostels of this cardinal principle of a government of and by the people.

The trial of Mont Gay vs. B. F. Schwartz was heard before Justice Burnside in the council chambers last Monday. Defendant was charged with obtaining money under false pretense, or more explicitly, with grand larceny. Will R. Gay appears for the plaintiff and R. C. Wilson for the defendant. The testimony was given by plaintiff and defendant, after which the justice weighed the evidence produced in the trial and gave a decision that committed defendant to await trial at the next term of the district court.

PERSONAL.

Smith Troy spent several days in town this week.

Dr. Gore returned from a business trip to Seattle Tuesday.

H. J. Lipsett, of Dungeness, spent several days in the city this week.

Mr. Louis Rockman returned from a business trip up-Sound on last Monday.

Mr. Geo. W. O'Brien, of the East Clallam Record, the newsy journal of that bustling town of the Straits, was in town Wednesday.

Mr. Earnest Somers, returned Tuesday from Seattle, where he has resided for several months past. Mr. Somers will remain in Port Angeles and engage in business.

Dr. F. S. Lewis is canvassing eastern Washington.

Messrs. S. L. Kilby and L. M. Whittier, of Forks, were in town this week.

Mr. S. L. Waldy, of Quillayute, was a visitor here this week.

Mr. Ben Raymond is very ill with the typhoid fever, having been delirious for the past few days.

Mr. Chas. Brewster, who has been very ill for the past few weeks, is slowly convalescing.

B. John Baker returned from a prolonged visit to Portland, Monday. Mr. Baker, it is understood, is now engaged in business in that city.

Miss Annie Dick and Miss Clark, of Dungeness, have been visitors in the city, the guests of William King Clark, for several days past.

Major R. R. Harding returned Saturday evening from a several week's sojourn in Michigan. Major Harding has been laboring in the interests of the Michigan Soldier Colony association, and speaks most flatteringly of the interest and enthusiasm manifested there in the scheme. Port Angeles, figuratively, is on the lips of every old soldier in Michigan. The favorable reports sent back by the advance guard of the colony have awakened a deep, earnest interest in Port Angeles, and will doubtless result in many valued acquisition to the rapidly increasing population of this city. The foundation is already laid. Now watch Angeles grow.

Mr. Frank Mackintosh, of Gettysburg, arrived in town Thursday.

Mr. Thos. Malony went to Dungeness, yesterday.

Mr. Wm. Strong of the Hastings Hardware Co., of Port Townsend, was in town on a flying business trip yesterday.

A Pleasant Surprise.

What proved a most delightful evening's pastime, and doubtless an agreeable surprise, was the unexpected assembling of a number of friends at the home of Miss Sarah Chambers, last Friday evening.

Presumably taken unawares Miss Chambers, nevertheless, acquitted herself admirably in the embarrassing position she had been placed, soon recovering her composure, she most graciously received the guests of the evening.

With games and interesting conversation the evening was most enjoyably and profitably spent.

At about 11:30 an excellent luncheon was served.

With others the following were present: Misses Ware, Yarnell, Dora Fend, Tiffany, Chambers, Grant, Banks, Draper, Taylor, Clark, Dick, Shields, Ulmer, and Messrs. Clark, Embree, Wilson, Banks, Hatch, Taylor, Yarnell and Chambers.

City Hotel Arrivals.

Thomas Lowthean, Victoria; C. Foster, Seattle; C. B. Blake, Allegan, Mich.; B. F. DeBow, Seattle; Wm. Delanty, Joseph O. Cotes, F. H. Dingle, Townsend; L. M. Whittier, L. S. Kilby, Forks; G. Jenkins, S. Baxter, Seattle; J. G. Kemper, Joseph S. Espy, C. W. Green, Fairhaven; Harry E. Lutz, Port Crescent; C. M. Gregory, San Francisco; J. D. Barston and wife, Townsend; C. W. Albro, J. G. Knuckey, Tacoma; A. V. Ashley, Fairhaven; and B. H. Moran, Seattle.

Stands at the Head.

Dr. Geo. A. Bethune, State Chemist of Washington, has examined the various baking powders of the market, and speaks emphatically as to which he considers the best. He says:

A series of carefully made tests of the baking powders sold in this market shows that the Royal yields the largest percentage of leavening gas. This powder is also found free from any harmful or even objectionable ingredient; its constituents are of exceptional purity, so combined that the powder produces the purest and most wholesome food.

There is, therefore, no question but the Royal is the strongest, purest and most wholesome baking powder in the market.

NON-PARTISAN BALL.

Candidates of the "Three" and Their Friends Will Dance.

Next Saturday evening will be the event of a non-partisan ball at the opera house, under the auspices of the candidates of the three parties and their immediate friends.

The affair will be in skillful hands and everything will be provided that will contribute to the pleasure of those privileged to attend.

Excellent music has been engaged, and the floor managers selected are thoughtful and considerate gentlemen who will be most solicitous of the company's welfare. The committees selected are as follows:

Committee on invitation—M. J. Clump, R. R. Harding, Frank P. Fisher, Horace White.

Committee on music—H. B. Crockett, R. N. Wilson.

Committee on reception—William K. Clark, W. R. Gay, Geo. White, L. M. Lane, D. W. Bryan, S. G. Morse, Wm. Hutton, W. J. Ware, J. M. Grant, James G. McClinton, W. M. Redwine, Louis L. Williams, W. B. Gould, Frank McGill, E. A. Fitz Henry, J. B. Dick, A. A. Richardson, R. R. Harding, C. E. Maxfield.

Floor Committee—C. E. Mallette, W. R. Hoole, E. E. Seevers, Jno. W. Troy, H. J. Lipsett. An invitation is extended the general public to attend this novel entertainment and while away a few hours in this fascinating pastime.

AT THE COUNCIL.

Council met in regular session. Mayor Smith, Councilmen Lewis and Metcalfe absent.

Sundry claims were allowed.

Councilman McInnes gave notice that at the next meeting of council he would submit a resolution having for its object the bonding of the city for an amount of $25,000 for the purpose of purchasing the electric light plant, and also that the question would be submitted to the voters at the next general municipal election.

Our Water Works.

The Leader attacks Mr. Mallette because the service pipes of the city water works are not twelve inches in diameter. We were not aware before that the water works of the city of Port Angeles were among the issues to be decided in electing a man to represent us in the next legislature. But as it has sprung this issue, it is well enough to know the real truth—to know what kind of water works Port Angeles has. The Leader could have found out by asking for information from Mr. Mallette, but, as it does on all occasions, it jumped at conclusions. The following figures are from the books of the company, and are substantiated by vouchers and other evidences which are reliable and are absolutely true:

Freight and materials used....	$ 7,743.97
Cost of material and labor in putting in the water works plant.....	65,496 83
Incidental expenses.....	831.05
Total.....	$74,071.85

The Leader's estimate of the cost of the plant was $12,000, over $13,000 of the construction account was for labor alone. But as the Leader is under the direction of the boss, it is not capable of getting anywhere near the truth until after election, if it does then.

The following is from the engineer's report and is absolutely true:

Twelve inch mains, three miles; four and six inch mains, two miles; two inch wrought pipe, two miles. Elevation of intake above Front street, 255 feet. Water pressure on Front street 110 pounds, same on Pacific avenue, Tacoma, 73 pounds, in Victoria, B. C., 70.

Twelve inch mains are not used by any water works for service pipes, and are not required by the franchise given by this city. Pressure is the chief thing, supply next, and Port Angeles has both in her water system. Insurance companies have long known the above facts and the Leader cannot mislead them by "guess work" and slanderous articles like that in its last week's issue.

If the Leader cares to know anything further about the city water works it will get full information at the company's office. It will learn, if it cares to know, that the water works is now wholly owned by people of our own county, that they are not bonded for any sum of money, and if it continues its search for truth it will discover that C. E. Mallette is eligible and will receive the largest majority ever given to any candidate before in Clallam county.

C. E. Mallettte will be our next representative and W. R. Hoole will not be even deputy auditor after January 15th, 1893.

An Inaccurate Statement.

QUILLAYUTE, Oct. 20, '92.

EDITOR DEMOCRAT—Some time ago C. G. Whiting wrote a letter to the Tribune-Times, in which he attempts to show that it is impossible to build a harbor at La Push.

But Mr. Whiting had better go to the mouth of the Quillayute river, and make a personal examination, and not draw his conclusions from the opinion of others.

A newspaper correspondent should inquire into the subject he writes about, so as he may reach accurate conclusions. Mr. Whiting, however, fails to do this. It might be well to suggest that he leave internal improvements alone, as he is not too familiar with the subject.

When Mr. Hanson wrote an article in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, he did not deal with politics or county road matters. Harbor improvements belong to federal legislation, and certainly no man of sense will believe that the improvement of the Quillayute will interfere with the building of county roads. We need the improvement of both county roads and the harbor. When these will have been provided, the people of the Quillayute will have the outlet their commercial necessities demand.

Your comments, Mr. Whiting, prove that you are impelled by an inordinate desire to censure Mr. H. Hanson, toward whom you appear to be very unfriendly disposed, for what reason it cannot be imagined, as Mr. Hanson is a fair-minded and an honest man who has not intentionally injured you.

In your reflections in the future, both as to Mr. Hanson, and the improvement of the Quillayute, please remember that truth is mighty and will prevail.

COLUMBUS DISCOVERED

America in 1492. Everybody knows that; but who Discovered Columbus?

We will not try to answer this question, but judging from the number of BOOTS and SHOES we are selling we know that the people of Port Angeles and Clallam County,

HAVE DISCOVERED

That the NEW YORK BOOT AND SHOE HOUSE is the best and cheapest place in town to buy their footwear.

WHY?

BECAUSE—Bright folks take heed of other people's experience. Few things cost more in this world than experience. Now our experience in the shoe trade has been quite extensive. All our customers get the benefit of our experience, for by it we are able to sell the best goods for the least money.

Julius Kirshberg, Plaintiff.
vs. NO. 269.
J. S. Bowker, Jr., Defendants.

—NOTICE—

Under and by virtue of a decree of judgment, in foreclosure of mortgage, order of sale and special execution, issued out of the above named court, in the above entitled cause, and to me directed and delivered, I have duly levied upon as the property of the said defendant, the following described real estate, situate in the county of Clallam, State of Washington, bounded and described as follows, to-wit:

The seven-twelths [7 12] undevided interest of the defendant J. S. Bowker, Jr., in the south-half of the northeast quarter of section twenty-two [22] in township thirty [30] north of range six, 6, west of the Willamette meridan, containing eighty acres of land in all, and the said seven-twelths of defendant being his undevided interest therein containing forty-six and two-thirds, 46⅔ acres together with all and singular the tenements, appurtenances and hereditaments thereunto belonging or in anyway appertaining: Therefore notice is hereby given, that on at the hour of 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day at the North front door of the Court House, in Port Angeles, Clallam county State of Washington, I will sell the above described real estate, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the judgment in said case with interest costs and attorney fees as stated in said execution, at public auction for cash, to the highest bidder.

Dated the 30th day of September, 1892.

A MESSAGE FROM PARADISE.

Why mean you by this weeping
To break my very heart?
We both are in Christ's keeping,
And therefore cannot part.
You there—I here—though severed,
We still at heart are one;
I only just in sunshine,
The shadows scarcely gone.
What if the clouds surround you,
You can the brightness see,
'Tis only just a little way
That leads from you to me.
I was so very weary,
Surely you could not mourn,
That I a little sooner
Should lay my burden down.
Then weep not, weep not, darling;
God wipes away all tears,
'Tis only "yet a little while,"
Though you may call it—years.

Eluding the Officers.

Here is an amusing description of one of Balzac's periods of impecuniosity. Mery, the poet, a great friend of Balzac's, was an inveterate gambler and rarely left the card table before daybreak. His way lay past the Cafe de Paris and for four consecutive mornings he had met Balzac strolling leisurely up and down dressed in a pantalon a pieds (trousers not terminating below the ankle, but with feet in them like stockings) and frock coat with velvet facings. The second morning Mery felt surprised at the coincidence, the third he was puzzled, the fourth he could hold out no longer, and asked Balzac the reason of these nocturnal perambulations roundabout the same spot.

Balzac put his hand in his pocket and produced an almanac showing that the sun did not rise before 3:40. "I am being tracked by the officers of the tribunal de commerce and obliged to hide myself during the day, but at this hour I am free and can take a walk, for as long as the sun is not up they cannot arrest me."

Picking Out Thieves by Their Eyes.

The eye always indicates the character of the man. This is particularly true of thieves, for the expert detective can tell in almost every case whether or not a man is a thief by simply looking him squarely in the eye. A well known detective in speaking of this matter, said:

"Yes, I can pick out a thief every time. I can't tell you what it is that gives the man away except that it is the expression of the eye. In the first place, there are few thieves that will look you squarely in the eye unless they are obliged to do so. They will avoid your glance as long as they can, and even when they do face you and gaze steadily at you it is always with the same expression. Although their eyes may be wide open and the gaze apparently steady you will see, if you look closely, that there is something away back through the corner trying to avoid you. I have picked out numbers of thieves by this little dodging movement. I never saw a thief who was free from it.

"Everybody has met that man who resolutely refuses to meet a steady gaze for more than three or four seconds at a time. It is not fair to say that all such persons are dishonest. In many cases this peculiarity is a direct result of bashfulness. A little close observation will enable the observer to put persons in the class to which they belong. The man whose eye is almond shaped is almost always dishonest at heart, if not in overt act. The eyes of some of the most notorious thieves in the country are of this pattern, and the expression given the face by this sort of eye is very striking."—Pittsburg Press.

Eugene Sue's Vanity.

Notwithstanding the extraordinary literary success which he enjoyed when his works were the vogue, Eugene Sue posed much more as a man of fashion than a man of letters. After his dinner at the Cafe de Paris he would gravely stand on the steps smoking his cigar and listening to the conversation with an air of superiority without attempting to take part in it. His mind was supposed to be far away, devising schemes for the social and moral improvement of his fellow creatures. These philanthropic musings did not prevent him from paying a great deal of attention—too much perhaps—to his personal appearance, for even in those days of beaus, bucks and dandies, of Counts d'Orsay and others, men could not help thinking Eugene Sue overdressed.

He rarely appeared without spurs to his boots, and he would no more have done without a new pair of white kid gloves every evening than without his dinner. Other men, like Nestor de Roqueplan, Alfred de Musset and Major Fraser, did not mind having their gloves cleaned, though the process was not so perfect asit is now. Eugene Sue averred that the smell of cleaned gloves made him ill. The unhappy man finally fell into poverty, was quietly cashiered from his fashionable clubs and died in obscurity.—Chicago Post.

Black Costumes in Paris.

There's a black rage in Paris; it's the style to look as if you were in light mourning there, whether it's so or not. All the toilets one sees are black of some description or black and white—that is, all but the hats. A woman may go out deeply and solemnly robed in a garment that one would surely suppose to be worn as a token of grief until one's eyes reached the headgear, when its light and brilliant coloring would immediately dispel the effect. They're not a bit consistent in gay Paris, else one might think they had at last reached a period of sobriety and common sense; that they had concluded to be more like their English sisters and settle down in quieter and more subdued colors. But when a woman wears a black gown and a hat containing several colors of the rainbow in bright display there is little foundation for the belief, after all.—Paris Letter.

How to Get a Postoffice.

There are a great many interesting facts and figures connected with postoffices and their masters. For instance, when a countryman is tired of walking or driving several miles for his mail and concludes that the government should bring it nearer, he should state that fact to the first assistant postmaster general, whose clerks will furnish him with instructions and a blank petition for the neighbors to sign. If he wants the new office bad enough to make the government think it a necessity, he will doubtless get it.

At the same time he will be told that in naming it prefixes such as "east," "center" and the like, the sufixes "boro," "burgh," "city," etc., are equally objectionable. Short, characteristic names are preferred.—Kate Field's Washington.

Meters for Measuring Electricity.

In a discussion in London on meters for measuring electrical energy it was shown that in the Frager meter the energy could be made from 300 to 400 times greater than that indicated by the meter by simply closing and opening the circuit at proper intervals. With a Thomson meter it was said to be very easy to force the readings with the aid of a strong magnet applied outside the meter boxes. Fraud is therefore very easily practiced upon such meters, provided one understands them. —New York Telegram.

A Mat Made of Jewels.

The costliest mats in the world are owned by the shah of Persia and the sultan of Turkey. The shah and the sultan each possess a mat made of pearls and diamonds, valued at more than $2,000,000. The largest mat ever made is owned by the Carlton club, of London, and is a work of art.—New York Sun.

The North Side of a Tree.

The side of a tree on which most of the moss is found is the north. If the tree be exposed to the sun, its heaviest and longest limbs will be on the south side.—Boston Globe.

A Scared Animal.

Swift footed animals that have been tamed, with abundant facilities for making a living of their own, are apt to take French leave in spite of kind treatment, although in moments of danger such renegades will sometimes remember an old protector and volunteer to renounce their habits of truancy. The post trader of the Forbin de San Pablo, near Mazatlan, raised a young ocelot, which hung about the house, or rather the ranch, for a couple of years, but at last ceased to recognize the authority of its landlord. Juanita would absent herself for weeks together and visit the post only as a guest, or a privileged member of an inspecting committee, for she rummages the premises, appears and disappears without asking anybody's leave, and resents every attempt at familiarity on the part of her former owner. But one evening she had just entered the store when a troop of horsemen alighted at the gate, and a minute later a government scout with a big wolf dog stepped up to the counter, while his companions deposited their saddlebags near the open door.

Juanita cast an uneasy glance at the blockaded door and in the next instant caught sight of the dog and he of her, when the attitude of both parties became so disagreeably suggestive of an impending set-to that the scout reached for a stick to chase the dog out. But Juanita either misconstrued his motive or had already made up her mind to secure a vantage ground, for just when he faced about she leaped upon the counter and with the next jump upon the shoulder of her old master, and there proceeded to "get her back up," growling viciously and bristling up to twice her natural size, like a cat.—San Francisco Chronicle.

About a National Flower.

There is very little use in talking about an American national flower. We are not a nation, no matter how many big N's we may put to the word, in the sense that Englishmen and Frenchmen constitute a nation. What is typical in one section of our continental republic is not typical in another, and an emblem which might mean a great deal in New England or New York would have but an artificial significance in Louisiana or California. State flowers we might have, and to some extent we do have them. California has formally adopted the Eschscholtzia, or California poppy, as its emblem. Maine men wear a pine branch when they want to indicate what state they have come from.

Our Massachusetts flower is naturally the trailing arbutus, and that ought to be formally adopted as our emblem. At the Grand Army encampment nearly every state delegation wore something which was characteristic of the state. We comprehend ourselves better if we divide ourselves up by forty-four, and there are enough plants and flowers to go around.—Boston Transcript.

Illustrated Signs.

The pictorial sign is but little seen in this country. Among the few that we find are the District Telegraph company's pictures, showing deceptive representations of fast speeding messenger boys, and the colored signboards used by nearly all costumers, some East Broadway modistes and a few Bowery tailors. One clothing establishment had the rather original idea of placing portraits of all the members of the firm between the windows of the building, and the same plan was later on followed by an "electrical belt" doctor on Broadway.

The back view of a gentleman with a very high collar is a familiar sign on one of the city's launderies, and Steve Brodie has had the scene of his first exploit reproduced in color. At Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street a shoemaker has for many years hung out a signboard showing a cobbler with a kit on his back mounting a horse and the inscription, "Won't you help me up?"—New York Times.

No Title for Whittier.

I notice that you refer to the poet Whittier as "Mr. Whittier." This, I take it, is in bad taste. Call him Whittier, John G., John Greenleaf or Friend Whittier, but never "Mr." Whittier. He belongs to that pure democracy of Quakerism that permits no prefixes or titles to proper names—no "Mr.," no "Rev.," no "Hon.," no "Esq.," but plain John, James, Charles, Dora, Rebecca, etc. It does not accord with the generally accepted feeling toward him. The good Quaker poet is nearer to the hearts of our American readers than any other living poet, and those readers are sensitively exacting in the particular of the treatment accorded him by others.—Cor. Chicago News-Record.

An Accomplished Parrot.

On Sacramento street, near Kearny, on any sunshiny afternoon one can see hanging in front of a Chinese store a large cage containing a green parrot, which bird is a most distinguished linguist. He possesses the faculty, so rare among foreigners, of speaking Chinese. He also speaks Spanish and English. To a singsong question addressed to him in Chinese by his owner the parrot gravely replied, "Pretty Polly, goodby," while in answer to the stereotyped query, "Polly want a cracker?" he burst into a flood of Chinese. He evidently scorned to reply to the time honored query, there being no cracker in sight.—San Francisco Examiner.

An Exception.

Professor—To contract is to make smaller; to expand is to enlarge. Cold contracts, heat expands. The operations cannot go on at the same time in the same thing. If——

Pupil—Beg pardon, professor, there are some things the more you contract the more they enlarge.

"Ah, indeed. Name some of them."

"Debts, sir."—Exchange.

Bound to Keep Up.

Commuter—Any time tables out?

Ticket Agent—I gave you one this morning.

Commuter—But that was six hours ago.—New York Weekly.

A Plucky Captain.

A yeomanry regiment of Devonshire was enacting a sham fight, when a Captain Prettyjohn was ordered to retreat before a charge of the enemy.

"Retrait! what doth that mane?" inquired the captain. "Retrait meanth running away, I zim; then it shall never be told up to Dodbrook market that Cap'n Pridgen and his brave men rinned away."

Accordingly, as the enemy came on, bearing down upon him at a rapid trot, he shouted to his troop:

"Charge, my brave boys, charge! Us baint voxes and they baint hounds! Us'll face 'em like men!"

The collision, as one might guess, was awful. Men, horses and accouterments strewed the ground on every side, and several troopers were more or less injured.—Youth's Companion.

Buddhist Ceremonies.

Some Buddhist ceremonies present a striking analogy to certain Christian rites. Dr. Medhurst says: "The very titles of their intercessions, such as 'goddess of mercy,' 'holy mother,' 'queen of heaven,' with an image of the virgin having a child in her arms holding a crescent, are all such striking coincidences that the Catholic missionaries were greatly stumbled at the resemblances between Chinese worship and their own when they came over to convert the natives to Christianity."—London Standard.

Turpentine for Corns.

The cheapest and surest remedy for either hard or soft corns is turpentine. If a little of this is rubbed on a corn every evening for about two weeks the corn and roots will both come entirely out and will not reappear in any form. If the turpentine runs onto the adjoining skin it will cause a little soreness, but otherwise the remedy is as painless as it is efficient.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Great Men Not Always Tall.

Louis the Great, less his high heeled shoes and towering wig, dwindles to about 5 feet 6, but even thus pared down to the inches nature gave him he was a giant compared with Sir Francis Drake and with Admiral Keppel—"Little Keppel," as every sailor in the fleet fondly dubbed him from pure love and admiration.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Why the Negro Stands Heat.

The African is better protected against the evil effects of the excessive heat than his white brother in two ways. The texture of his cuticle is exceptionally well adapted to encourage free perspiration and his natural temperament does not incline him to borrow trouble largely.—Chicago Herald.

Curious South American Ants.

There is a species of ant in South America that plant and cultivate a kind of grass called ant rice, and are so advanced in civilization that malting is understood by them. Then there are mushroom growing ants, who cultivate fungus, and others again who use umbrellas.

Everything Big.

Mr. Gotham—Is your home in a good section for farming?

Western Man—I sh'd say so. Everything grows like mad. Why, I've seen hailstones as big as hen's eggs.—New York Weekly.

In spraying with arsenicals against the coating moth, the safe proportions are one pound of poison, either paris green or London purple, to 150 gallons of water. When this is properly done but little harm is possible.

A Frenchman has succeeded, it is said, in producing an excellent driving belt by parchmenting the leather instead of tanning it. The belts have greater durability and do not stretch.

The most expensive legislature in the world is that of France, which costs annually $3,600,000,000. The Italian parliament costs $430,000 a year.

The Greeks sometimes buried their dead in the ground, but more generally cremated them in imitation of the Romans.

"Hang Your Clothes on a Hickory Limb."

After the rather unsatisfactory experience of last season the district commissioners have decided to experiment further with the free bathing beach. This time, however, there is to be no risk of life, provided the plans of the commissioners are successful. Last season the beach was open to all comers, but in the future none but experienced swimmers will be allowed to enjoy the privilege. With this end in view the commissioners have, through their secretary, Dr. Tindall, addressed the following communication to the superintendent of the beach:

"The commissioners direct me to notify you to permit persons who can swim to use the public bathing beach till otherwise notified. You will not permit any one to use the beach unless satisfied by personal observation that he can swim."

A perusal of this order will show that the commissioners have imposed a rather complicated and important duty on Superintendent Stevens. By a strict compliance with the order no candidate for cleanliness will be allowed to enter the water unless he can swim, and the superintendent is first to determine one's ability in that direction by "personal observation." Just how Superintendent Stevens is to separate the experts from the raw recruits by mere "personal observation" is rather difficult to understand, unless he should subject applicants to an exhibition of their natatory agility on dry land.—Washington Post.

Shark and Swimmer.

Henry Jacobson, who is employed at the North Manukau Heads as beacon light keeper, was out in his boat six miles down the harbor when it was struck by a squall and swamped and the occupant left in the water. Jacobson dived and endeavored to relieve the ballast, but without success. He then grasped an oar, and being a good swimmer struck out for land, but as a strong tide was running he was swept down the harbor a distance of three miles.

At that point he was attacked by a large shark, which grabbed at his hand. He protected himself, however, with the oar, which he tried to ram down the shark's throat. The fish then made a circle around him and renewed the attempt. By this time, however, Jacobson had his sheath knife drawn and desperately stabbed the shark, ripping its side open so that the water became red with blood.

A further attack was made, when Jacobson again stabbed the monster near the tail and it swam away. At that time a boat came in sight. Jacobson, too much exhausted to speak, was hauled into the boat, having been in the water two hours and thirty minutes.—New Zealand Herald.

A Mixed Up Affair.

Recently on the Marietta and North Georgia railroad a train ran over and killed a cow near Thompson, Tenn. A day or two afterward, when the train passed through, an officer arrested the engineer and took him before a justice of the peace, where he was tried for cruelty to animals. The passenger train was held four hours, during which time the mails were delayed. It seems that the prosecutors have gotten themselves in a bad fix.

Warrants have been issued by a judge for the arrest of the justice of the peace, the officer who made the arrest, the sheriff and the lawyer for contempt of court, as the road is in the hands of a receiver and permission must be secured to sue the road. The superintendent of the mail service is also after them.—Atlanta Letter.

Polite Photographers.

The knack which French photographers, and especially those of Paris possess in relieving their sitters of a constrained and distressed look while sitting for their portraits has long been the envy and perplexity of photographers of other nations. An American photographer, on a recent visit to Paris, took pains to study the means by which this very desirable result was reached

He reports that it all lies in a very simple device, which well illustrates the nature of the Frenchman.

When a lady, for instance, is sitting to a photographer for a portrait, the operator does not, in a perfunctory manner, coldly request her to "Look pleasant now, ma'am!" He says to her in the most natural and graceful manner in the world:

"It's quite unnecessary to ask madam to look pleasant; she could not look otherwise!"

The lady of course acknowledges the compliment with her most gracious and highbred smile. "Click!" goes the camera and the picture is obtained, revealing the sitter at her highwater mark, as it were.—Youth's Companion.

How a Prisoner Escaped.

If we will only rightly use little things it is surprising how much may sometimes be done with them. A vizier, having offended his royal master, was condemned to lifelong imprisonment in a high tower, and every night his wife used to come and weep at its foot. "Go home," said the husband, "and find a black beetle, and then bring a bit of butter and three strings—one of fine silk, one of stout twine, another of whipcord—and a strong rope."

When she came provided with everything he told her to put a touch of butter on the beetle's head, tie the silk thread around him and place him on the wall of the tower. Deceived by the smell of butter, which he supposed was above him, the insect continued to ascend till he reached the top, and thus the vizier secured the silk thread. By it he pulled up the twine, then the whipcord, and then a strong rope, by which he finally escaped.—Detroit Free Press.

The Earth to Be Like the Moon.

The water of the earth is all destined to disappear from the surface of the globe by being absorbed by subterranean rocks, with which it will form chemical combinations. The heavenly spheres exhibit sufficiently striking examples of such an evolution. The planet Mars shows what will become of the earth in some thousands of centuries. Its seas are only shallow Mediterraneans of less surface than the continents, and these do not appear to be very high; and in the appearance of the moon, all cracked and dried up, we have a view of the final state of the earth—for the absorption of the water by the solid nucleus will be followed by that of the atmosphere.—Popular Science Monthly.

The Modern Way.

In India they drown a great many of the girl babies. It is a time honored custom, but not universally approved from a therapeutic standpoint. In civilized countries they put corsets on the girl babies, which brings about the same results, without the shock, which is a sure concomitant of the Indian method. Moreover, babies last longer under the modern system, and it is especially prized by people who prefer to keep their girl babies for a few brief years.—Detroit Tribune.
