HOW TO CAN CLAMS.

An Interesting Scene Witnessed at the CANNING ESTABLISHM'T

Of the Port Angeles Packing Company. Gathering and Preparing Clams for the Markets—A Growing Industry—Situated on Port Angeles Bay.

Few persons, doubtless, are aware that Port Angeles' bay is the site of a growing and what will in the future prove an important industry, in a clam canning establishment.

The superior quality and flavor of the Puget Sound clam is known and acknowledged far and near, while the source of supply in the numerous clam beds on the shores of the Sound is practically inexhaustible.

The dominating spirits of this enterprise in the person of Messrs. A. Nicolai and O. V. Dean, realized that there was not only an opening for the establishment of this industry, but a growing market at home and abroad for preserved clams.

After a careful review of the ground, Port Angeles was selected as one of the best and most advantageously situated points for the location of the cannery, both as regards superior shipping facilities and nearness to beds with an excellent quality of clams.

The clams used and canned are gathered at Sequim bay, as it is believed they are, if anything larger of better quality and flavor, and have a smaller neck, than from other localities.

The manner of preserving this delicious bivalve is somewhat simple, but a process involving extreme care and rigid cleanliness.

When the clams are first recived in sack they are carefully washed, then they are put in strainers, or receivers, that are placed in rotorts under a severe pressure of heat and thoroughly steamed. They are then taken out, and conveyed to the preparing table, where they are removed from the shells. They are then washed and all refuse removed. From here they go to the can filler, who carefully fills the cans with clams and liquid. The cans are then covered and hermetically sealed, after which they are submitted twice to steaming in the retort. They are then tested and if not defective, are ready for labeling and the market.

Mr. Nicolai said that not only the preserving of clams, but the preparing of clam juice, for the markets, was quite an industry on the Atlantic coast. The juice as it is extracted from the clam is put in pint and quart cans, and when used in the preparation of soup or clam chowder permits of dilution. "There was no reason why," he said, "clam juice should not be prepared with profit for the home and foreign market." In strength and flavor the juice of the Puget Sound clam was far superior to that of the Atlantic coast, and when once a market and reputation is established; the canning of clams will expand into one of the great industries of the Pacific northwest.

The daily output of the cannery is twenty-four cases. The cannery will also put up salmon in season as it is provided with the necessary machinery.

The promoters deserve, as they doubtless will, to succeed in their undertaking, as the operation of the cannery means the employment of quite a number of men, and consequent distribution of money with business men of this city.

The marriage of Mr. A. B. Dorsey, superintendent of schools of Clallam county, and Miss Kate Walker, an estimable young woman, of Port Townsend, has been announced. These worthy young people will be married during the holiday season. Miss Walker is, at present, visiting friends in California.

Mr. John Udd, of Port Crescent, was in town, Wednesday.

COUNTY NEWS.

Interesting Paragrahs From the County Press.

East Clallam Record.

A crew of about twenty men were at work upon the county road on the west side, this week. The appropriation for this work is now used up and work has ceased.

The whistling buoy off Waddah Island, which marks the entrance to Neah Bay, has been washed away. A tug picked it up and towed it into the bay, where it is now anchored in about three fathoms of water.

The mill company has a logging crew of 18 20 men at work putting timber in to the river a mile or two above town. About three hundred thousand feet is now in the river which the next freshet will bring down.

The first railroad construction in Clallam county coommenced two weeks ago at Port Crescent. The construction outfit consisted of four rails and three workmen and taken from Angeles to Port Crescent on the Garland. The rails were laid upon ties in good shape and so far as the road has been built (64 feet) it has been substantially done. The Western Development Company is the owner of this Port Crescent trunk line. The work is supposed to mean that the company intends to establish a right-of-way.

Dungeness Beacon.

Our county road district overseers are trying to see how much they can beat Burlingame making roads, and as the county commissioners are allowing them a little money to work out in their respective districts they are doing their best to make a good showing in work done for the money. The overseer of district number thirteen has just received $600 to work out on the Dicky-Clallam road which ought to finish the road in that district in very good shape, there being only about one and a half miles that will want much done on it, the rest being prairie. Many of the old settlers are looking forward to the opening of this road with a good deal of interest as it means better prices for supplies in the near future, and we have to have a track through to Clallam Bay by some time next season or there will be wailing and nashing of teeth by some individuals that weigh less than a thousand pounds a piece.

To much credit cannot be accorded Mr. William Ward for the enterprising and progressive spirit manifested in erecting a bridge, which has just been completed at his own expense, across the Dungeness river, at his place two and three-quarter miles south of town. It is a substantial structure, 160 feet long and eighteen feet wide, and well merits the praise bestowed by those who have seen it. The new county road that is nearly finished from the bridge, between Mr. Ward's and Samuel Woodcock's places, shortens the distance to the mill considerably, and now, if the road on this side the river from there to Dungeness was straightened and put in better condition generally, teamsters who make use of it would be in better humor, their wagons would last longer and their teams, would shortly be in better flesh. We hope it will be attended to.

The Catholic Church.

The members of the Catholic church of this city, are, no doubt exceedingly pleased with the fact that Bishop Younger of Vancouver, has appointed Rev. Father P. Fay, to take charge of the church of this field. A temporary chapel has been built at the rear of Jno. C. Murphy's home where services will be held. Midnight mass will be held Saturday evening, immediately followed by another mass. The third mass will be held Sunday morning.

Mr. Chas. H. Pink, of the Quimper Manufacturing Company, of Port Townsend, was in town several days this week.

INTER-COUNTY ROAD.

Jefferson Takihg Decisive Steps.

A PUBLIC HIGHWAY

The Importance of which is Hard to Estimate—The Bazarr—Other Items of Local Significance that have Occured During the Week.

The Townsend chamber of commerce is reviving the Angeles-Townsend road question. Several years ago a movement was made in both countries with the purpose in view of constructing a wagon road, connecting this place with Townsend.

The commissioners of this county accomplished in a manner their part of the inter-county road agreement by building to the Jefferson line. Now with this express purpose in view the Key City chamber of commerce is urging the commissioners to redeem their part of the agreement

The completion of this road would be of vast importance to either community, as it would provide an outlet to market for a considerable settlement along the proposed route that is almost isolated.

The following is the communication directed to the commissioners of Jefferson county by that body:

To the Honorable, the Board of county commissioners of the county of Jefferson—Gentlemen: The chamber of commerce of Port Townsend has had the matter of a road leading from Port Townsend to Port Angeles under consideration, and has directed me to send you this communication.

The board is of the opinion that a good wagon road between this city and Port Angeles is imperatively necessary. This chamber has been informed that some two years or more ago an agreement was entered into between the boards of commissioners of Jefferson and Clallam counties, by which it was provided that Clallam county should build a road from Port Angeles to the county line between the two counties, about a mile west of Port Discovery Bay, and that Jefferson county should build a road to the county line to join the road thus built by Clallam county.

This chamber has been informed that Clallam county has complied with their part of the agreement, and over a year ago completed a good wagon road from Port Angeles to the Jefferson county line, but that your honorable board has not as yet taken any steps looking to a fulfillment of the contract in their part of Jefferson county.

This chamber would be pleased if you will inform it:

First—Whether any such contract was entered into between the two counties through the boards of commissioners?

Second—If so, if any steps have been taken by your honorable board to carry it out, and if so, what steps have taken?

Third—If none have been taken by your not having done so?

Will you kindly funish this chamber an answer at an early date, and oblige

Yours very truly,
FRANK E. JAGO,
Secretary.

AT THE BAZAAR.

The Congregational Church Fair A Gratifying Success.

The bazaar given at the opera house last Thursday and Friday evenings, under the ouspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Congregational church, was, indeed a pronounced success socially as well as financially. The artistic and pleasing arrangements of the several booths, was one of the principal features of the bazaar.

The booths were presided over by the following ladies: Pin cushion, Miss Fitzsimmons; Japanese, Mrs William Bell; Ice palace, Miss Daisy Stewart and Miss Jarvis; Children's, Mrs. Bickford and Mrs. Mallette; Ladies, Aid Society, Mrs. E. H. Foster and Mrs. R C. Wilson.

The features of the second evening of the Bazaar was the representation of well known characters of history and the turkey dinner.

"Christopher Columbus," was represented by Mr. Fred. O. Lamoreux; "Columbia," by Miss Hannah Draper, and Grover, Mrs. Cleveland and baby Ruth by Mr. and Mrs. William Bell and little daughter, "Mary Queen of Scott," by Mrs. Blackwood, with page by Wally Meagher.

The turkey dinner was served in excellent style by the ladies of the church, and was pronounced first class in every particular

The net proceeds of the bazaar was about $160.

SENTENCE PASSED.

Judge McClinton Sentencs Benjamin F. Schwartz.

Last Saturday afternoon Judge McClinton overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of B. F. Schwartz vs. State of Washington, who was found guilty of larceny by embezzelment at the recent term of the district court.

The sentence declares "that he be punished for the crime of grand larceny by embezzelment as charged, by imprisonment and hard labor in the penitentiary at Walla Walla for a period of eighteen months.

An appeal has been filed with the County Clerk, by Jno. Trumbull, attorney for the defendant, from the decision of the superior court.

The defendant will doubtless be held in custody here awaiting the decision of the supreme court, or, in the event bail is secured, prisoner will be released pending the the trial.

SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.

An Evening with Whittier—And Other Selections.

Last Saturday evening the pupils of the public schools of Port Angeles gave an entertainment at the opera house, comprising selections from that gifted American poet, John Greenleaf Whittier, and a miscellaneous programme of dialogues, recitations and songs.

The entertainment was very creditable, indeed, evincing thought and application on the part of the scholars, and thorough and careful training on the part of the teachers. The object of the entertainment is to raise a fund with which to purchase an organ for the public school.

Several of these entertainments will be given during the winter season, and, when the praiseworthy object is understood, deserve the material encouragement of every citizen interested in the cause of education.

Besides selections from Whittier, the following miscellaneous program was produced:—

Dialogue—Dad's a Million Heir.
Dialogue—Value of Knowledge.
Song by Gracie Sherwood—"Three Leaves of Shamrock.
Music on zither by Miss Klaugnag.
Song by Ida Tiffany—Dublin Bay.
Song by Rosa Burns—Annie Lisle.
Recitation by Clara Hatfield—"Little Blackberry Girl."

Mr. Fred Lamoreux left Monday, for Beaver He will not return until after the first of the new year.

A special meeting of the state board of education will be held in Tacoma the 27th, 28th and 29th inst.

Mr. A. B. Dorsey, superintendent of schools, of Clallam county, is spending the holiday season at the home of his parents near Dayton, Yamhill county, Oregon.

Mr. A. Greenberg, of Greenberg Bros., will soon leave for New York city, where he will purchase s large stock of goods for the Whatcom and Port Angeles establishments.

The storm of the season occurred Tuesday night raging all of yesterday. An unusually heavy fall of snow, high tide and fierce gale made the weather extremely unpleasant. This was indeed, the equinoctial period in all of its rigorousness.

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

Another 17th of December has passed, the gentle Whittier's sweet songs have again been sung from the school houses of every state and clime. but the author's ears heard them not. Whittier is dead.

It may be well to pause a moment, as the millions repeat this good man's words, that we may consider what manner of man we do honor.

Whittier's was a nature of love. He loved justice, humanity and right; he loved his fellow creatures and his God. His God was the God of the Christian bible. Whittier was a Christian as he was a man and as he was a poet—simple, sincere and contented.

He was unlike all contemporary poets. He was unlike the meditative Longfellow, the scholarly Tennyson or the scientific Bryant. His poems lacked the literary merit, the philosophy and the reasoning that marked the work of all of these. still he was nearer the hearts of his people than any of them, excepting Longfellow, who, besides being a scholar, a philosopher, who investigated and gave voice to Nature in all its varying phases, also possessed a nature as sweet and as lovable as even Whittier's.

The "quaker poet" was not a scholar neither was his a great mind such that would give to the world new thoughts. He had no desire for research or investigation. He was not a great reasoner, but with childlike simplicity accepted that appealing to his sympathetic and accute intuition with a faith comforting to contemplate. Whittier was a Christian, who cared not for theology or creeds, a lover of Nature who cared not for botany, geology or astronomy, a man, loving his fellows, but caring not for the science of his evolution, a poet who cared not much for rhetoric or style.

While this simple character, whose 85th birthday was so universally celebrated Saturday, was childlike in its sweet harmlessness, he, at times was so fired by the trampling of justice, he so loved, that a courageous, a defiant resentment, was kindled within the peaceful breast, radiant though it was with beautiful manhood, that boded no good for the offender.

The stirring scenes preceding the civil war did much to develop this feature of his character. The chains shackling the Southern negro to slavery outraged Whittier's sense of right, and for years his whole energy, burning with a vigor unnatural with him, was given in urging those, who should oppose the barbaric system, to action. As usual, with those whose sympathies and sentiments rather than cool deliberate reason, guide them, Whittier became over enthusiastic in his cause, his ideas became exagerated and he painted even too darkly the national disgrace, South—but he was sincere. He could not be otherwise. The war over, and Whittier was ready at once to extend the olive branch of peace and tender charity. The war was a terrible thing to his mind. He was shocked and saddened by its bloody havoc as no other disposition could be. This largely accounted for the great charity he showed in advocating peace at any sacrifice other than the Union.

With the war, ended Whittier's one great object in life. All that was left him was to live with his God and God's creation in peace. This he did as man seldom does, evidently surprised at his former self, for he was a modest unassuming man.

Whittier's religion was in everything he did. Even his most bold and defiant verses of slavery times was tempered with his religious faith. This is so clearly shown in the closing of those burning lines written on the passage of Calhoun's "bill for excluding papers, written or printed, touching the subject of slavery," from the mails. They are;

Prayer strengthened for the trial, come together,
Put on the harness for the moral fight,
And, with the blessing of the Heavenly Father,

MAINTAIN THE RIGHT.

This good poet's modest shyness, always notable in his writing, and he always lived, as he always wrote,—is nowhere more clearly exemplified, probably, than in the last stanza of "Eternal Goodness:"

And, Thou, O Lord, by whom all are seen
Thy creatures as they be,
Forgive me if too clearly I lean
My heart on Thee!

May Whittier's gentle soul realize in the fullest the bright hope and strong faith of his earthly life, in the new home beyond.

"SANTA CLAUS."

Christmas is coming. Christmas, with those ever accompanying adjuncts, "Christmas gifts," "Christmas boxes," "Christmas carols," "Christmas trees," and last, but most important to the small children, "Santa Claus," is almost here again.

With Santa Claus' coming, comes a responsiblity too lightly considered, we fear, by good Santa's apostles. Our civilization, as have those that have preceded it, has taught the children, rich and poor alike, that Santa Claus is the good saint who annually rewards them for their good deeds of the year. This idea of him, and his association with Sunday School Christmas trees, has led the children of our time, as those of past generations, to connect him with the Supreme one, who is supposed to set in judgment over a weak humanity. This would be a harmless halucination of childhood if Santa Claus fulfilled the idea thus created by society.

But sad as it is, we must admit, that Santa Claus is far more kind to the children of the wealthy than he is to those less fortunate in wordly comforts. Thousands of poor, but deserving little ones will, with hearts ready to burst, realize Christmas morning, as fully as if their fancy was fact, that their year's acts had passed before an Heavenly Father, and had met His frown of disapproval. It is more than possible that a whole life time may be saddened for an one, when, in connection with their own, awful to them, disappointment, the joy of the children living in the more fashionable quarters, with whom, Santa Claus had dealt with a lavish hand, is considered.

For all this, our socity is responsible, and we may ask ourselves, how are we going to discharge our debt? The picture of Santa Claus is indelebly impressed upon our youth, no explanation will suffice.

Therefore, duty points but to one alternative—let society make its Santa Claus fill his ostensible mission in the fullest. Make glad the heart of every child in the land, with a visit from this harmless, or dreadful, as it we make it, creature of the mind.

Let Santa Claus do this, or let him die.

THE ISSUE SETTLED.

THE DEMOCRAT favored the nomination of Grover Cleveland for president by the Democratic party primarily because of his splendid Democracy and his advanced position on the tariff question, and secondly, because of his sterling individuality and answevering honesty.

THE DEMOCRAT urged this in spite of the fact that it materially differed from Mr. Cleveland's expressed ideas on the coinage of silver. In doing so, it maintained that the tariff and not the silver was the issue to be decided and that would be decided by the people at the election in November.

Many who understood the certain result of an election on such an issue, and many who were carried away with the ideas of the People's party, professed to believe that the tariff was not the issue.

The election gave us many illustrations that have proven beyond a doubt that THE DEMOCRAT was right. The people care more about the tariff and taxation now than they do about the quantity and quality of money in circulation. Nothing, probably, more clearly demonstrates this act than the election to congress in that cosmopolitan state, Ohio, of Tom L. Johnson and M. D. Harter. These gentlemen are both free traders, deciples of Henry George. On the coinage they take opposite positions, Mr. Johnson is a free silver man and Mr. Harter is a single gold advocate. The Republican legislature of Ohio had, by their gerrymander, made the districts represented by these gentlemen strongly Republican, but a hotly contested fight resulted in their re-election, both by handsome majorities. These districts are adjoining, and it can be safely presumed that the people were similar in their beliefs, their interests being common. It is clearly to be seen that these gentlemen were elected because of their free trade professions, their ideas on the money question widely differing, as they do, cut no figure in the contest.

The great question of the hour, the tariff, is in a fair way to be settled—rightly. The people have settled it, as far as they are concerned. It but remains for a Democratic party to do what the people desire.

Let the Democratic party now do as Senator Carlisle asked, follow their cheif—not blindly, but on the lines he has indicated.

Subscribe for THE DEMOCRAT.

THE topography of Washington makes the selection of officials, either state or federal, one of difficulties, but there is one federal office that there should be no question as to what section his appointment should fall—that is the collectorship of the Puget Sound customs district. Jefferson county is certainly entitled to this place for many reasons. The custom house is located at her county seat, and from a party standpoint she is entitled to it on account of her splendid service to the Democratic party. She gave majorities for the entire Democratic ticket, and sent two Democrats to the legislature.

Besides Jefferson county offers two splendid candidates for that position, Harry L. Tibballs, Jr, chairman of their county central committee to whom, as much, if not more, than to any one man the Democratic victory is due, is certainly entitled recognition. He is capable, honest, thorough and a reliable Democrat. He is a candidate for collector of customs.

James C. Saunders is also a candidate for this position. THE DEMOCRAT had occasion to refer to him last week, so it will but say now that he is equally qualified, honest, faithful and deserving of honor at his party's hands.

Let Jefferson county have the collectorship.

EVAN P. HOWELL, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, rushes into the associated press with an interview, in which he condemns tho radical views, expressed at Saturday's reform banquet at New York. He further states that the South would not have gone Democratic had Tom Johnson made a few such speeches as he made at New York throughout the South.

To use common every day language Editor Howell is again "talking through his hat." This is not the first time that this same editor has had the audacity to attempt to speak for the south. A year ago he was also being interviewed for the associated press. Then he said that Cleveland could not carry Georgia. The south wanted Senator Hill nominated for president and all such stuff, but when the proper time came Georgia with the rest of the south spoke for herself. This is what will occur again and Mr. Howell's opinion will hardly be asked.

The south is all right, Mr. Howell, and, as everybody knows, you are "talking through your hat."

THE opposition to the electric light bonds has become malignant. The papers fighting against the city ownership of its own franchises pay no attention to fact, nor do they adduce a single argument. It is true they charge fraud and a whole catalogue of crimes, but they offer no evidence.

These charges, where made in sincerity, usually create a sensation in a community, but the citizens of Port Angeles do not appear to be calling for a grand jury or an investigation by the officers of the law.

They understand the opposition, too well. It is a selfish opposition. "There is a 'nigger' in the woodpile."

AT THE COUNCIL.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council with Councilman Bell in the chair and Councimen McInnes, Thompson and Quinn present, held Thursday afternoon, a special election notice was passed.

It was ordered on motion of Thompson that repairs be made at corner of Frances and Chambers streets and that street commissioner be instructed to proceed at once with that work.

Quinn asked permission to use council chambers Monday and Tuesday evenings, for installation Masonic officers. His petition was granted.

McInnes offered a resolution that was adopted that when any portion of outstanding warrants on Front and First street grade warrants is paid interest cease on unpaid portion of said warrants.

McInnes offered a motion that was adopted that the council take an action in the collection of delinquent taxes for the years 1890 and 1891, as the state legislature which meets next month is likely to amend and modify the present oppressive law.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Christmas next Sunday.

Welcome "beautiful snow."

Typical Eastern Christmas weather.

Judge Lane made a flying trip to Port Townsend Tuesday.

THE DEMOCRAT extends its readers a merry, merry Christmas.

The I. O. O. F. ball at the opera house tonight promises to be a most delightful affair.

Mr. George Hazzard. a prominent Democrat of Tacoma, was in the city, Monday,

There will doubtless be given a leap year ball on New Year's eve at the opera house.

The proposition to bond this school district for $10,000 with which to build two new school buildings was defeated by seven votes at the special election held in the public school building last Tuesday.

Wedding Bells.

Quite a pleasing feature was presented at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Davis, on Fifth and B streets, last Wednesday evening, the occasion being the marriage Miss Grace Davis to Samuel W. Carusi.

Miss Davis is one of the most popular young ladies of our city, especially among the younger folks, whom she pleased so well with her charming representation of Serpollette in the "Chimes of Normandy," which was produced here a few weeks ago by our local amatures.

Mr. Carusi is also well and popularly known among the young people of our city, he having filled many prominent position, and quite a number of his intimate acquaintances will regret to learn that he is about to leave us, he having secured a position in Seattle which promises to prove very lucrative, and THE DEMOCRAT joins with his many friends in wishing him all the success possible.

On account of the short time allowed Mr Carusi to fill this position only an informal wedding could be given, but those present will ever remember the pleasant time spent there.

Those present besides the parents were Miss Julia Ferguson, who filled the position of bridesmaid, Mr Ben Smith, who acted as best man and Rev W W Ferrier, who officiated.

Congratulations.

Townsend Graphic: Mr. John W. Troy and Miss Minerva Lewis, both of Port Angeles, were married in that city last Wednesday.

Mr. Troy is the son of Hon, Smith Troy, Clallam county's representative in the state legislature. He was formerly a resident of this city, but at present is the managing editor of the Port Angeles DEMOCRAT. At the recent election he was elected auditor of Clallam county by a splendid majority. He is an energetic and brainy young man, and has only begun a career which promises to be one of great prominence.

The bride is a daughter of Dr. Freeborn S. Lewis, the nominee of the Democrats for state land commissioner in the late campaign. Miss Lewis is a charming young lady and is considered one of the belles of Port Angeles.

The Graphic, with many other friends in this city, extends sincerest congratulations to the newly wedded couple, and in the time worn, yet expressive sentiment, wishes them a preponderous journey throughout life.

For some time past Andrew Link, who has resided in Port Angeles for several years past has shown unmistakable signs of insanity. Last Thursday morning in a fit of insanity he destroyed his cabin and furniture and then wandered over the reserve in an aimless manner. Fearing that he would do himself and others bodily injury, friends took him in charge and had him brought before Judge McClinton for examination as to his mental condition, which resulted in his being adjudged insane and committed to the asylum at Steilacoom.

The following officers were elected at the last meeting of the local Masonic lodge: D. P. Quinn, W. M; Stephen Land, S. W; W. C. Garfield, J. W; Wallace Mynett, Secretary; Chas. Tillman, Treasurer.

In June.

The birds come back to their last year's nest,
And the wild rose nods in the lane;
And gold in the east, and red in the west,
The sun bestirs him again.

The thief bee rifles the jasmine flower,
And the breezes softly sigh
For the Columbine in my lady's bower,
And then at her feet they die.

And all the pomp of the June is here—
The mirth and passion and song;
And young is the summer, and life is dear,
And the day is never too long.

Ah! birds come back to their last year's nest,
And the wild rose laughs in the lane;
But I turn to the east and I turn to the west—
She never will come again.
—Louise Chandler Moulton in Wide Awake.

About to Sue.

A man who lets out dress suits at two dollars per night threatens to go into court and sue for $792 for the use of a suit that couldn't have cost more than twenty dollars in the first instance.

This is how it happened. A member of an arctic expedition, encamped just now, or supposed to be, somewhere within gunshot of the north pole, was tendered a reception by some friends on the night before his departure. He secured a pair of patent leather shoes, a clean shirt and a satin necktie from somewhere or other, but the dress suit he hired from the agent referred to.

Next morning the explorer's mother packed the suit in his Saratoga trunk, not knowing that it wasn't his, and he took it up to the north pole with him. It has been used doubtless at the principal blubber feeds and walrus hunts to impress the natives.

But the dress suit loaner wants two dollars a day for every day he has been deprived of the use of the clothes, and by the time the explorer gets back the bill will be $792, thirteen months being the length of his absence. A deep legal question will doubtless arise, but the agent is firm and says that he means to get his rights.—New York Herald.

A Duel Nipped in the Bud.

A duel between two young men has been nipped in the bud at Buena Vista, Va., by Mayor White. Mr. J. G. Seay sent a challenge to fight a duel to Mr. Edmund Randolph. Young Randolph paid no attention to the challenge and a second challenge was sent by Seay.

Young Randolph referred the correspondence to his friend, Mr. R. B. Williamson, and before any details could be arranged the police arrested Seay, who was carried before the mayor and bailed to appear at the next term of the corporation court. Young Seay is about twenty years of age and was educated at the Virginia Military institute. Mr Randolph, who is about twenty-one, is teller in the First National bank.

Both young men are highly connected and respected. The difficulty was caused by a misunderstanding between the young men as to an engagement. Seay claiming that Randolph purposely avoided him and thus treated him disrespectfully. No further trouble is apprehended.—Richmond Dispatch.

Arizona's Great Irrigation Canal.

Yuma's great canal is the most gigantic irrigation enterprise as yet taken in hand in Arizona. To tunnel through a hill or mountain side so as to take the water of the Colorado without damming the stream, which is the present plan and that recommended by the English irrigation engineers, then to bring the water down on both sides of the river, with an aqueduct across the Gila, so as to irrigate the 2,000,000 acres of rich land lying adjacent to Yuma, in Arizona, California, Sonora, Lower California:. in fact, to build this canal ninety miles in length, 100 feet in width at the bottom and twelve feet deep, is not the work of an hour nor the task of a child, and yet this is but the outline of this great work, all of which is going to be done, and that, too, in the near future.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Etruscan Legends.

Legends about the Etruscans are numerous, but even with them and the numerous Etruscan inscriptions in the hands of scholars, the race to which they belonged, their language and history, are still an unsolved problem. Mr. Charles Godfrey Leland is about to make an important contribution to the literature of the subject in a voluminous work on Etruscan legends. For years he has passed his summers in Italy in the old Etruscan country, wandering among the peasants and collecting their stories. Their customs and superstitions date back to the old heathen times, and devil worship and the most primitive beliefs prevail among them even down to the present time.

Digging Old Bones in London.

The digging up of mammoth remains in the heart of London seems incongruous, yet this has just been done by the workmen on a sewer, who at the depth of twenty-two feet from the surface came upon remains of a mammoth and other prehistoric animals. Two large tusks were met with lying near together, along with other bones belonging to the same animal. A portion of one of these tusks was brought to the surface and it was found to measure at its thickest part nearly two feet in circumference.—London Letter.

The Principle at Stake.

A Reading dispatch says: "Plaintiff, defendant, two lawyers and six witnesses, two of whom came from 100 miles away, appeared before Alderman Kirchman recently in a civil suit over property valued at less than one dollar. The alderman gave judgment in favor of defendant and Mrs. Dietrich will have to pay costs, amounting to about thirty dollars, exclusive of lawyers' fees."

A company has been organized at Phœnix, A. T., for the construction of what is claimed will be the largest artificial reservoir in the world. It will be sixteen miles long and contain 103,058,040,800 cubic feet of water.

Feeding Cattle with Asparagus.

It is not often that asparagus, the daintiest and most expensive of vegetables, is used as food for cattle, but the asparagus crop has been so large all over Brunswick, Germany, that in some villages nobody could be found to pay a cent for a pound, and whole basketfuls were given to the cows and sheep.—Chicago Herald.

A large cave was recently discovered in Montana which contained the bones of hundreds of animals that had fallen into it and were unable to escape.

THE SUGAR TRUST.

IT HAS DISGUSTED EVEN THE M'KINLEYITES BY ITS GREED.

The Combination Has Forced Down the Price of Raw Sugar and Raised the Price of Refined, Thus Adding About $16,000,000 to Its Yearly Profits.

The Philadelphia Press, the high tariff organ of the Manufacturers' club, thus scores the sugar trust:

"Congress has provided that many millions of revenue heretofore obtained from sugar duties shall be diverted from the public treasury and be given to the people. The trust, under the shelter given to it by congress for a wise and fair purpose, proposes in turn to divert a portion of this money from the pockets of the people to the pockets of the members of the trust.

"Brethren, we say to you that if the protective system is to be employed for such purposes as this, the game is up. No champion of that system can succeed, even if he were willing to try, in commending to the people at one and the same time the protective system and the sugar trust. It is quite impossible to expect the nation to regard with enthusiasm, because it proposed to reduce the price of sugar, a law which enables the sugar trust to defeat that intention. What the purpose of the act is consumers do not so much care.

"The thing that appeals most strongly to them is the actual fact that sugar prices have fallen. Now, if sugar prices shall again advance under the manipulation of a protected conspiracy against the people, it will be useless to commend consumers to the purpose of Mr. McKinley. They will conclude, and rightly conclude, that if the whole benefit of the lower duties is not to come to them, it should go once again into the treasury of the United States. The opponents of the protective system will have placed in their hands, at the most critical moment in the history of American protection, a potent weapon with which to assail the protective theory, and we venture to say that there is small reason to doubt that the result will be overwhelming defeat for the protective system.

"Openly, in view of every man in the nation, there will be unanswerable demonstration that the free traders do not lack justification for their often repeated allegation that the protective tariff is used by manufacturers for the purpose of enriching themselves at the cost of their fellow citizens. The formation of the trust is indeed a challenge issued to the people. The latter, through their representatives in congress, have decreed that sugar shall be cheapened. The trust, on the contrary, declares that it shall not be cheapened. There can be no doubt of the conclusion of this conflict of interests if the people shall be thoroughly roused, but there is some reason for fearing that the consequences may involve other than the offending parties. The sugar trust places the entire manufacturing interest of the country in jeopardy by its action, and in behalf of that interest we enter protest against the course that it is pursuing.

"Protesting, however, is likely to be of small service in averting the peril in which protected industry has been placed by this combination. There can be no safety but in action, and it may be conjectured that there would be few expressions of grief from protectionists if a Republican senate should join with a Democratic house in sending to a Republican president, just as soon as the sugar trust has made its monopoly complete, a bill placing all grades of refined sugar upon the free list. The protectionists who defend protection upon grounds of public interest have no concern to apologize for it when it is perverted to the interest of a few private individuals. In truth, such abuse of the system ought to encounter prompt resistance from the sincere friends of home industry, for the man who misuses the tariff in such a manner is a more dangerous enemy of the system than the most active of the apostles of free trade. The question for consideration would appear to be, Shall the sugar trust be permitted to use protection for the overthrow of protection?"

Protected by the tariff on refined sugar, the sugar trust is now making profits at the rate of 73.08 per cent. on the actual value of its properties. The work required of the men employed in the sugar house is the hardest kind of work possible, and a considerable number of the men are forced to work in intense heat. The low rate of wages, $1.50 per day of ten hours, which the trust is willing to pay is so low that no American workman will work in the sugar houses—even Italians prefer to work on the streets, pick rags and sell fruit. The greater part of the men employed are Poles and Hungarians, who have been brought over under contract. This is a true picture of a tariff protected industry; where are the benefits to the workingman?

The Free Tin Plate Bill.

The tin plate bill, which has been reported to the house by the committee on ways and means, proposes to go back from the McKinley rate of 2 1-5 cents per pound to the old rate of one cent per pound for two years and to keep tin plate on the free list after that time. In the report accompanying the bill the committee says: "The distinction in principle between the two" (the McKinley bill and this) "is the distinction between a demand by one citizen that he be licensed to take that which is not his own and the petition of another citizen that he be permitted to keep that which is his own." This is true and well put.

Another Factory Heard From.

Shortly after the passage of the McKinley act, N. & G. Taylor, of Philadelphia, started a tin plate factory, which, in a recent issue of The American Economist, was mentioned as turning out 900 boxes of tin plate per week. The other day this great establishment was totally destroyed by fire, and a press dispatch announced the loss at $2,500.

The electrical equipment consists of a two horse power motor, supplied with a current from thirty "Epstein" cells. Her weight complete is 2,500 pounds, she will hold from twelve to fifteen passengers, and with one charging will run at her full speed of seven miles an hour for five hours.

America in 1492. Everybody knows that; but who Discovered Columbus?

We will not try to answer this question, but judging from the number of BOOTS and SHOES we are selling we know that the people of Port Angeles and Clallam County,

HAVE DISCOVERED

That the NEW YORK BOOT AND SHOE HOUSE is the best and cheapest place in town to buy their footwear.

WHY?

BECAUSE—Bright folks take heed of other people's experience. Few things cost more in this world than experience. Now our experience in the shoe trade has been quite extensive. All our customers get the benefit of our experience, for by it we are able to sell the best goods for the least money.

No. of Case, 600.

J. W. Everett, Plaintiff.

M. L. Nathanson and Henry Landes, Defendants

The State of Washington to the Above Named Defendant, M. L. Nathanson:

You are hereby notified that J. W. Everett, the above named plaintiff has filed a complaint and commenced an action against you and Henry Landes as defendants, in the superior court of the state of Washington, for the county of Clallam, holding terms at Port Angeles in said county, and you are hereby required to appear and answer the said complaint within sixty days from the day of the first publication of this summons, to-wit: Sixty days after the 23rd day of December, 1892, and unless you appear and answer the same on or before the 21st day of February, 1893, the same will be taken as confessed, and the plaintiff will apply to the said court for the relief demanded in said complaint.

The said action is founded upon a certain contract in writing executed by said plaintiff and you on the 4th day of December, 1889, whereby said plaintiff agreed to sell and convey to you the following described lands situate in said Clallam county, Washington, to-wit: Lots number four, five and six in section six of township thirty north of range seven west of Willamette meridian; and lot number one in section one of township thirty north of range eight west of Willamette Meridian, for the sum of four thousand dollars, and said action is further founded upon three certain promissory notes executed and delivered by you to said J. W. Everett on said day for the sum of one thousand dollars each, payable in one, two and three years respectively from their dates and drawing interest from their dates at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, said notes being executed as aforesaid as part of the balance of the purchase price of said land; and the object of said action is to recover judgment against you upon said notes for the sum of two thousand four hundred dollars with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent. per annum from the fouth day of December 1890, and the further some of three hundred dollars as attorneys fees as provided in said notes and that such judgment be decreed a lien upon all the right title and interest of said defendants in said lands, that said defendants be barred and foreclosed of all their right title and interest in said lands, and that the same be sold by the sheriff to satisfy said judgment and costs of such sale and such s uit, and for such other and futher relief as may be just and equitable all of which more fully appears by said complaint to which reference is now here made.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior court, affixed this 22d day of December, A. D. 1892.
