OUR FRUIT GROWING.

Unlimited Opportunities for Fruit Growers.

"WHY NOT TRY IT?"

Small Fortunes May be Made by People on Comparatively Small Tracts of Land—Clallam County has Thousands of Acres of Good Fruit Land.

Thousands of people in the state of California make a comfortable living on small fruit orchards and millions of trees are planted yearly yet the market does not appear to be overstocked and those engaged in the fruit business on a small scale apparently dispose of what they grow to as good advantage as those who have large orchards.

The climate and soil of the state of Washington is well adapted to the growth of certain fruits. Apples, pears, plums and prunes grown in this state are especially lucious and large and the average of crops is good, in fact there is no reason why the experience of a man spoken of in the Gilroy, Cal., Gazette should not be that of a great many poor men in Clallam county who hold unimproved land.

Facts prove all things, and it is a fact that on five acres of fruit land lying just south of Gilroy James Hobbs has demonstrated that five acres is sufficient to make a home and a living on. Four years ago last December Mr. Hobbs came from Iowa, bought of Henry Miller five acres of ground lying just outside the city limits south of Gilroy, and commenced to improve the land by putting trees on it. While the trees were growing he raised pumpkins, melons and vegetables of all kinds between them, and also chickens. He realized enough to live upon and laid by money every year from the sales of his produce and eggs. The second, third and fourth years the trees commenced bearing, and last year he sold over 13,000 pounds of apricots alone. His sales of eggs brought last year $961.05 and netted over $650. Besides all the vegetables and fruit his family required, and feeding a cow and horse, he netted nearly $1,000 from his five acres last year. He has a cow that is giving twenty-eight quarts of milk a day. He keeps a good horse, has his wagon and buggy, a good house and a well of fine water, and a neatly kept flower yard around the house. Everything betokens thrift, and he has more comfort and more to eat than thousands of farmers with hundreds of acres. He has at present on his five acres, besides houses, etc., 150 apricot trees, six cherry, eleven pear, twelve plum and 325 prune. Seven thousand dollars has been received for this five acres, and not four years in trees.

Thousands of acres of land in Clallam county could be made into fruit farms. To be sure, much of it is now covered with heavy timber, but every man who proves up on 160 acres clears at least five acres, which could be turned to good account in the forgoing manner.

Most of the fruit now used on the Sound is shipped from Oregon and California and there is no doubt that a splendid market could always be found, and it will continue so for years to come as there are but few who are taking advantage of their opportunities by planting trees now.

While waiting for the trees to bear, berries and vegetables could be raised between them and eggs and chickens are as profitable here as in California.

It is to be regretted that speculation has so entered into the minds of the people of Washington that they are prone to delay active measures towards improving their property, whereas, by the expenditure of a little time and labor they could prepare the way for a future competency.

Quillayute Notes.

A tragety took place here on Thursday evening. M. Ackles shot Benjamin Franklin through the right arm.

The literary society was well attended at the last meeting. The events of the evening were singing readings, recitations and a written essay by Hans Hansen delivered on the subject, "Property, Taxes and Free Government." The subject was debated upon in the evening and it was resolved that eitgh hours should constitute a day's work.

Frank Balch came back from Townsend with another boat load of merchandise. Mr. Balch is a very lucky man to get good weather whenever he goes up Sound for to supplies to his store the weather changes in his favor.

Mr. Adam Zerenner, the merchant tailor, has recently received some of the latest and most stylish dress suit patterns. Call and examine his stock before purchasing elsewhere.

MOSES STILL IN THE WILDERNESS.

He Shoots Benjamin Franklin and then Rice Himself to the Bush.

The startling intelligence was received here Sunday of the shooting of Benjamin Franklin at Quillayute last Thursday evening by Moses Ackles. The story is that Ackles was boarding with Franklin and did not pay for his board regularly enough to suit the gentlemen with the illustrious name. So an estrangement arose between them after a time. Franklin, having at different times tried to get Ackles to work, or in some other manner liquidate, finally got tired and notified the gentleman that his room was more desirable than his company. Whether these are the facts or not, it is anyhow true that on Thursday evening matters culminated rather suddenly, suddenly for Franklin at least and excitingly decided in its nature, for at about dusk on that day Ackles opened up on Franklin from ambush with a large sized Winchester rifle—two shots taking effect one in the arm and the other in the spine. Both are dangerous—the patient is not expected to live, but may recover. Dr. Runnells, of Neah Bay, is in attendance.

Moses Ackles is beating the Quillayute bush, it is said.

THEY WILL KILL ELK.

Ex-County Officers Propose Great Results—An Expert Hunt.

Ex-County Clerk W. K. Clark, Ex-Deputy Clerk F. P. Fisher and Ex-Deputy Treasurer Jno. D. Hickok left yesterday for a hunt at the lakes south west of this city. They have evidently made up their minds that the rod and the rifle are the next best thing to pen and salary.

These county officials have well earned a vacation—the deputies having served the public faithfully lor two years and Mr. Clark having been a courteous and an accommodating county official since March 4, 1887, except for one year. Besides this, he has been unusually busy the last six months on account of his splendid service as chairman of the Democratic Central Committee. May they enjoy their rest.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE.

A surprise party was given Miss Marguerite Fend at the residence of the young ladies' parents on Georgiana street Monday night. Dancing, cards, music and social conversation was the order of the evening. An excellent supper was served at midnight.

A most delightful time was had by all until the wee sma' hours of coming day warned them all of "home sweet home." Amongst those present were:

OVER A RESERVE LOT.

Cliff Thompson Found Guilty of Assault and Battery.

The trial of Cliff Thompson, for assault and battery committed upon the person of Mrs. Drannan on last Saturday, occupied the attention of Justice Carusi Wednesday. Thompson was fined $15 and cost, the jury finding him guilty as charged.

The trouble was over a reserve lot. Thompson struck and kicked Mrs. Drannan several times, and abused her so severely that she was unable to be out of bed for several days.

Thompson gave notice of appeal to the superior court and gave a bond for appearance.

THE ANGELES CLUB.

A Delightful Dance Given at the Opera House—Next Friday.

The Angeles club gave another of their charming dances last Friday night at the opera house. There was a good attendance, and those present had an exceedingly splendid time. Supper was served at McDavit's popular restaurant at midnight.

This club will give another dance at the opera house next Friday night.

THE SURVEY ACCEPTED.

M. J. Carrigan Returning With Instructions.

A message was received Wednesday from M. J. Carrigan stating that the survey of the reservation had been approved and the instructions to the appraisers were in his inside pocket, and that the appraisement will soon be under full sway. He is returning home.

This will take about sixty days, or until about April 1st, according to the statement of Henry L. Wilson, one of the appraisers and brother of Congressman John L. Wilson.

Representative Moore, of Skamania, is the only Democratic member of the legislature yet heard from, who has announced his intention to support one of the Republican candidates for senator. He says he intends to vote for Judge Turner and will refuse to caucus with the Democrats. Skamania county Democrats must feel proud of their standard bearer!—Colfax Commoner.

THE DUTIES OF LIFE

Handled in a Masterly Manner

BY MR. HANS HANSEN.

Home, Schools, Church and Government — Self-Justification — Dis-Honorable Political Methods—Light in the East—Local Politics.

After congratulating the society on its noble service, referring to the great political struggle just ended, amongst other things Mr. Hansen said:

In advancement of time, the political battle has been fought to an end; the people have decided what they, in their wisdom, think to be just and beneficial to the dearest interests of our beloved country. They have condemned the McKinley law, they have declared themselves for Democracy, they have approved and sustained the original political principles on which our government is founded, they have for a second time elected Grover Cleveland president of the United States with the largest vote ever cast for any man.

Now the political struggle over, I deem it to be of more import that I on this occassion should call your attention to 'the duties of life.'

The duty of life has its beginning in our homes, in the family, and in order to accomplish this duty you must know how to make your home a dwelling place of happiness.

People emigrate from the old world to this land of freedom, to obtain better homes, they go out on Uncle Sam's wild domain, build their houses and cultivate the land. They establish a home, this desire is the leading motive of it.

The disposition to perform the duties of life is absolutely needed or peace and happiness will not prevail in life, but disagreement will deprive the home of the blessing of peace.

Next comes the children. Educate them to be dutiful, law abiding citizens.

The children will be just as the parents are. The foundation for character is framed and molded in your home either for good or evil.

It is parents duty to teach their children to always speak the truth, to be obedient, to be sober, honest and industrious; teach them to respect other people.

Love is the binding element. Such love as led Ruth to say to Naomai "where thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people; and thy God shall be my God; where thou diest, will I die, and there shall I be buried."

The second duty is the school. The most encouraging sign of a community is the schoolhouse.

In the child are hidden those faculties which are to unfold during life. The various facultiee which await development in the child are classed as physical, mental and moral. To meet the ends of life, the body must grow, the mind be developed, and the moral nature trained.

This growth or development, which gradually transforms childhood into youth, and youth into manhood, goes on according to definite laws, and may be sadly thwarted by neglect, or greatly promoted by judicious care.

Men have various labors and duties to perform in the world, which require special training and a wide range of knowledge. Childhood and youth are the periods of preparation. Hence, it is clear that education should have some reference to the demands of practical life. Human development should be combined with practical wisdom.

Without the sun, the earth would be eternal darkness, and without knowledge a man remain a cipher in society.

Philip Melanchthon, the great educational reformer of Germany said: "To neglect the young in our schools, is like taking the spring out of the year, and a terrible darkness would befall society, if the study of the sciences should be neglected."

George Washington said: "Knowledge is in every country the surest basis of public happiness."

Thomas Jefferson said: "In the present spirit of extending to the great mass of mankind the blessings of instruction, I see a prospect of great advancement in the happiness of the human race."

The church is the third duty. It gives the world the great thought of the brotherhood of mankind.

Mr. Webster in touching upon christianity in his great speech delivered in the United States' senate the 7th day of March, 1850, says: "The object of the instruction imparted to mankind by the founder of Christianity, was to touch the heart, purify the soul and improve the lives of individual men."

The end of christianity is that there shall be a sound soul in a sound body.

Government comes next in the duties of life.

Governments have existed since the days of the waring tribes, when the stronger compelled the weaker to submit to his tyrany. But time has taught us that liberty is the groundwork of government.

Liberty was paid for with a price, it was paid for with the lives of fellows. The privileges of liberty is followed with responsibilities, the battle for liberty is a continual battle and each should be a defender of equal rights.

The first duty you owe is to study the science of government. Knowledge is needed.

Suppose the people of Russia today declared themselves a republic? Do you think it would be a great benefit for them? I don't. For this very reason.

It is your duty as a citizen of a free country to take an interest in public concern, that you may know how to aid and promote the weilfare of your country.

It is your duty to defend your country against a foreign foe.

This free government would not have an existence had it not been for men who gave their lives in the cause of freedom, and your duty is not less than theirs.

In closing his speech, Mr. Hansen referred to local political matters, and said:

In connection with what I now have said I desire to throw some light on the general election lately taken place in the country, in the state and also in the county.

Known as it is to you all that I was in the field for a local county office, that of county commissioner for the third district, it is natural that I should deem it as a mattter of duty on this occassion to justify myself, the cause that was fought for, and also to refer to the treatment that was tendered to two other candidates on the Democratic ticket.

In receiving the nomination for commissioner from the hands of my fellow Democrats with a unanimous vote, it was a matter of deep consideration for me.

The doctrine of sound and pure Democracy was so plainly manifest in the platform adopted by the Democratic convention held in Port Angeles the 13th of August, that I was deeply convinced that, if carried out, material progress would follow.

Convinced as I was I went into the campaign, not to make a special fight for my election, but to work for Democracy, for the peoples' cause.

When a political party goes before the people with no declaration of true political principles, with no pledges of economy, with no mention even of their administration, all they want is to get the office.

The Democracy of Clallam county is not guilty of such misbehavior. The declaration of principles they advanced speak for themselves. The Democratic campaign was conducted with good faith, no lies or slander were used either against men or party, but the truth was plainly spoken.

In justice to myself I desire to say I did not throw mud. I do not believe in a campaign carried on with slander and falsehood.

I had no higher ambition than, if elected, to be a humble instrument for public good, but some haters of me, neither Republicans nor Democrats, but political traitors, charge "that I went up to Port Angeles, wanted to get the nomination for commissioner, and if I did not get it I had 320 votes in my vest pocket and I would throw those votes to the other party." These charges are lies from beginning to end. Such words never passed through my lips, such thoughts never had a home in my heart. No mortal man had authority to make such statements. No honorable man of any party has said such things.

I have too much love for individual rights and liberty for that, and those who know me also know that I never attempt to dictate to other men.

It is natural among men to think well of those who stand nearest to themselves, and so it is with me, and it is therefor unnatural that I should disregard and tramp on my fellow countrymen by pointing them out to be unqualified electors, when they possess the average intelligence of a sober-minded, industrious, honest and law-abiding class of people.

Those blackmailers knew they were speaking lies, but they did it to defeat me.

But sir, I am not entertaining any revengeful feelings, I am not of this kind. It never pays. Life is too short to waste for such a purpose. "When a house becomes devided against itself, that house will soon collapse." When there is ill-feeling among neighbors, happiness departs from the community. When a man bolts his own party that man is digging his own political grave.

It was not necessary that I should be elected, but it was absolutly necesary that I should do what was right, and I prefer to be right first of all. I have nothing to regret on account of my action in the last campaign, and as to the future you will find me true to convictions.

I deem it a matter of duty to extend my gratitude to you forty-three freemen in the precincts of Quillayute and La Push, who in spite of those charges brought against me, yet had confidence enough in my ability and honor to give me your votes at the polls.

Not so, on the other hand. The campaign waged by a Port Angeles Republican newspaper against C. E. Mallette was dishonorable and deplorable. It shows how low some can fall in this 19th century. They attempted to rob him of his birthright, by claiming that he was not a citizen. Mr. Mallette is not only

BOURKE COCHRAN.

THE DEMOCRAT does not desire a quarrel with newspapers. It would much prefer to treat all with professional courtesy, but it is exceedingly exasperating to note such a display of ignorance of national politics as the following outburst, which appeared in this week's People:

Now comes the Democrat with the naive acknowledgement that Burk Cochran is "as much of a reformer as Cleveland wants" in the senate and commends the efforts of the Tammany corruptionist to elect him.

"As much of a reformer as Cleveland wants"—exactly,

The Democrat can afford to be candid now, as the party has a four years grip on the public revenues. There is no longer need for the hypocritical lundations of the high morality which it so profusely showered upon its presidential candidate before the election.

It is hard for one who knows anything at all about public men in this country to believe that a newspaper in this age should know so little, especially in a land where the journalist is supposed to lead the van and have all information.

In the first place "the Tammany corruptionists" have not made any "efforts to elect" Bourke Cochran to the senate. They have steadfastly opposed him and advocated the claims of Edward Murphy, Jr., of Troy, chairman of New York's state central committee. Bourke Cochran has arose in the city of New York through Tammany it's true, but not through the channel of too many Tammany leaders—ward politics—but because he has shown so much solid, eloquent ability and public worth that the great body of Tammanyites, who resemble other human beings in every respect, compelled by sheer force his recognition. Hence it was that Bourke Cochran sprang up in a day. Such men as Carl Schurz, Frederic Coudert, Seth Low, George William Curtis, W. Dean Howells and Edward Cooper have always been Bourke Cochran's warm admirers.

The independent New York journals such as the Herald, Times, Post and World supported Cochran against TAMMANY'S CANDIDATE—Ed Murphy, Jr. Why? Because he is a reformer. His arguments on the tariff question in congress are as profound in philosophy and reasoning as anything Henry George ever wrote.

In fact Cochran has been a close student of Henry George. He has advocated with his powerful mind and eloquent tongue every reform proposed in congress that could stand the test of his true Democracy.

Bourke Cochran believes in the free coinage of silver, this is certainly a reason why THE DEMOCRAT would like to see him in the senate.

Bourke Cochran has always been an admirer of Cleveland's sterling, honesty and independent courage. It was he who, more than any other man, persuaded Tammany leaders to support Cleveland.

Bourke Cochran would have been one of the best and ablest men in the United States senate had he been chosen instead of Tammany's candidate, Ed. Murphy, Jr., as he is now one of the best and ablest men in the house of representatives.

DOWN EXPENSES.

The People is right. THE DEMOCRAT believes that a political party or candidate should carefully weigh everything before making a pledge to the voters before election first, and then the pledge should be fulfilled to the letter.

After a careful investigation the committee on platform in the last Democratic county convention determined that the offices could be run on a cheaper basis. They said so in the platform they reported to the convention. The delegates there, true to their names as Democrats, believed if this was so, the party of true simplicity owed the people a duty—i. e. to run these affairs on the most economical basis. This they rightly pledged their candidates to do, and THEY WILL DO IT or THE DEMOCRAT misses its guess. It is right that they should and besides it is good politics to do it.

A time in Clallam county's history has arrived when retrenchment and reform should be the watchwords. Taxes and interest are high, and the county is in debt. Then it is for the peoples' interest that money should go toward building roads rather than to deputies and clerks around the court house.

The running expense of Clallam county must be cut down.

HE IS OWNED.

That Lieut.-Gov. Luce is a tool of the railroads is evident. This has been known to THE DEMOCRAT some time beyond much doubt. It is now proven.

Sometime ago Senator R. A. Hutchinson, of Lincoln, who made such a positive record on railroad legislation last session, asked the leiutenant-governor for the chairmanship of the committee on corporations other than municipal. The leiutenant-governor told Mr. Hutchinson he would like to do so, but as that was a very important committee he must give the chairmanship to a Republican.

"Dick" Hutchinson was not to be disposed of in this easy manner, so he then asked for a place on this committee, which will probably handle the railroad freight rate bills of the senate. Now, the lieutenant-governor was cornered. He is from the same county as Senator Hutchinson. His neighbors had sent Mr. Hutchinson to fill his own seat in the senate, so but one way appeared to the appointing power, i. e. to tell the truth, so he confidentially imparted the information to the granger senator that there was nothing he would not like to do for him, but he really could not permit him to act on that committee as he was unable to do as he liked. Others must be suited.

This much settled, Dick Hutchinson, with others, endeavored to get Senator R. C. McCroskey, the author of the Wasson bill, on that committee, but this was without result. Hutchinson and McCroskey, the leaders of the eastern Washington farmers, received but one important committee assignment—public revenue and taxation.

But THE DEMOCRAT does not yet dispair of good results from the present legislature. The Democrats in the legislature seem to have the situation well in hand, and will probably be able to force a great deal of good legislation.

STARTING RIGHT.

The selection of Senator Carlisle by President Cleveland for a cabinet position is one of the wisest that could possibly be made. Senator Carlisle is one of the ablest statesmen in the world and is a man of spotless character. He is also a poor man. It is stated that he mentioned this fact to Mr. Cleveland, stating that it would be embarrassing for him to entertain on the meagre salary allowed. Mr. Cleveland replied that he intended to have it so a poor man could hold a cabinet position, and intimated that none but poor men should be in the cabinet.

Mr. Cleveland is commencing right. He means to have a cabinet representing the better element of his party, a cabinet composed of men who represent conscience and principles in politics, and not selected for cunning political moneuverfor payment for large campaign subscriptions.

DO NOT NEGLECT ROADS.

The legislature should not neglect the matter of county roads Good county roads are of much more importance to the people than which of the two candidates shall represent us in the United States senate.

This should receive careful attention. Many sections of this state need roads now, and the communities are too poor to do all the work themselves. The large centres are built up by the trade derived from the smaller places, and they should bear some of the burdens by furnishing state aid.

This is reasonable. It is right. Clallam county has many sections that would very soon pay the state back in increased taxes on account of increased property values, on a few thousand dollars, that would now be a great benefit.

THE Port Townsend Leader mistakes when it refers to the Wasson bill as of Republican origin. It is true, Mr. Wasson, of Jefferson county, introduced the bill, but the author of the bill, and its strongest supporter in the senate was Hon. R. C. McCroskey, Democratic senator from Whitman county. In the house, Hon. H. J. Snively was the man who fought the battles of not only the Wasson bill, but of all the railroad bills. The Republican legislature accepted just as little railroad legislation as such men as Snively, Hutchinson, Godman, Sharpestein and others of that grand Democratic minority in the second legislature would stand.

THE citizens of Port Angeles will soon have the satisfaction of having the townsite reservation settled permanently from the present indications. The appraisement ought to be finished by April, and the settlers should be able to make final proof before June 1st. This will mean better times for Port Angeles. The title of the lots once in the hands of the settlers, and the purchasing of the unoccupied portion of the reserve will go a great way toward creating a more solid foundation.

Then it is but right that the settlers on the reservation should procure title to their property without undue delay.

THE St. Louis Republic says the election of Edward Murphy, Jr., to the senate means a "western man or bust" for president in 1896. When Editor Charles H. Jones speaks it means a great deal. He was the principal author of the Chicago platform and does as much as any one yeoman in the Democratic party toward moulding the policy of his party.

IT is reported that Senator Stanford will resign as United States senator from California. It is to be hoped there is truth in the report. It would really be too bad if he should go through a whole senatorial term without doing something for his constituents, and his country's good. Let him resign, by all means.

WHY can't the Republican legislators settle their little senatorial difference by electing Hon. John R. Kinnear senator? Kinnear is one of the best men in the state if he is a Republican.

THE Tacoma News says: "Col. Griggs would make a very respectable senator." Not a very warm endorsement this.

REPRESENTATIVE HOOLE seems to have the faculty of getting there quite well developed.

AN OLD SETTLER HERE.

Daniel Pullen, of LaPush, is in this city. Mr. Pullen is one of the oldest settlers of this state, as well as of the great Quillayute country. All the old timers from the Sound's head at Olympia to the Quillayute's mouth at La Push know and have a warm attachment for "Dan" Pullen. Especially attached to him are those who have enjoyed the abundant hospitality of his splendid home, where as kind and sweet tempered a wife as any home can claim, makes the guest, the visitor or the wanderer, as the case may be, feel at home. Mr. Pullen's numerous friends regret exceedingly that he is the victim of the machinations of an unscrupulous capitalist, who seems to be endeavoring to wrench the hard earned comforts of an industrious life time, for private gain. All hope to see him victorious.

a citizen, but he is a good one. Were that the editor of the Leader as good a one.

The only thing wrong with him was he was Democratic candidate for representative and was a hard man to beat. Besides he was running against the "ring's" pet, then there was a senator to elect, and Republicans don't care how they elect senators. The disgraceful election of Watson C. Squire two years ago, is too fresh in the peoples' minds to require proof of this.

If Abraham Lincoln should awake from the grave he would say to the Republican party as John the Baptist did to the Jews: "Repent ye evil doers."

The Republicans of this county elected their representative by fostering sectionalism, by golden promises on the evening before election. Some Republicans from Port Angeles when they visited Quillayute valley said, "vote for the gentleman from Beaver, he will do so much more for you, because he lives in your section of the county." My friends that sort of talk is politics of the lowest kind. It is measuring man's fitness for the office of the legislature at a distance of 40 or 50 miles.

The cheap politics of W. R. Hoole was shown by his sending out his open letter to the people in this section just before election with his correspondence from John B. Allen, Watson C. Squire and John L. Wilson in regard to the projected harbor improvement at the mouth of the Quillayute.

The Republicans of Clallam county held their convention July 28th. Their platform is signed by W. R. Gay, W. C. Garfield, W. R. Hoole, three leaders of the g. o. p. But does that paper deal with improvements, economy, honest administration or reduction of taxes?

The gentleman from Beaver, didn't seem to know anything about the much needed harbor improvement at La Push at that time. Their whole platform is nothing else, except a paster of opplatitudes.

The Democrats met at Port Angeles in convention, August 13th, a platform was adopted that deals with the material progress and welfare of Clallam county, and in that platform you will find a plank recommending the needed harbor at the mouth of the Quillayute river. It was the first step taken to make it a popular cause. But, that was not all. In the Democratic state convention, the delegates from this county one and all did their duties and advocated said needed improvement. Our friends in Jefferson county were with us, the King county delegation stood by us, and if Lake Washington canal had been indorsed, a plank recommending harbor improvement at the mouth of the Quillayute river would have been adopted in the Democratic state platform. This proves the good intention and faithfulness of Democracy in Clallam county. But the Republicans have done nothing whatever, except to learn from the Democrats, and the somewhat humble method of the gentleman from Beaver, and his party, of borrowing the policy of the Democrats and coming, a few days before the election, claiming to be patriots, seems much like a bid for votes.

Senators Allen and Squire refused to heed our petition sent a year ago, as you will remember. They refused to answer my letters on the subject. I then wrote President Harrison on February 27th. Here, in my hand, is his answer:

"Your letter of February 27th is received, but the papers you speak of were not delivered at this office." The president recognized the humble settler in these valleys, but those gentlemen who were sent from this state for such purpose do not even care enough for us to even answer our appeal.

All is plain. It is all for election purposes. Nothing more. They, from the gentleman from Beaver, to John B. Allen, want your votes. That's all.

Another matter I shall call your attention to for a moment's time, is the wicked, corrupt election work in the last campaign, the the letters spread out all over the Quillayute valley charging John W. Troy to be a worthless man unfit to have charge of a public office. Those blackmailers did not even dare to come out with their names, as they themselves being the children of darkness, they preferred to have their names in the dark. But their wretched work did not do Mr. Troy any harm, he was elected, and it is safe to say that he will so discharge his duties as auditor that no man will regret that he voted for him, being a young, bright, sober man, of good character and decided intelligence. Mr. Troy is one whom destiny will bring to the front.

The result in the state of Washington and the county of Clallam is not what could be desired by those who have the peoples' welfare at heart. But sir, the Democracy in the evergreen state is not without consolation, as the smiling sun, with its beautiful light comes up in the East, so does the good news in the nation come from the East.

Hayes Dead.

Ex-President Hayes died at his residence in Fremont, Ohio, Monday night at 11 o'clock. His wife preceded him. This leaves Grover Cleveland the only ex-president. He will change places shortly with President Harrison. Hayes has not figured in politics since he retired from office. Hayes was born in 1822, was promoted to Brigadier General during the war, was congressman, three times governor of Ohio, once defeated, by Thurman, and become president in 1876 at the hands of the electoral commission.

SENATORIAL CONTEST

The Great Subject of Interest at Olympia—It Looks Like a Dark Horse—He Had a Scheme for the Material Advancement of Port Angeles.

Olympia presents a scene of unusual interest and animation. Together with the interest stimulated by the legislative session, the senatorial contest has caused no little excitement. Politicians from all over the state are here laboring untiringly and unceasingly for the candidate of their choice.

It is, indeed, a problem as to the ultimate result of the senatorial struggle. Unlimited confidence is expressed by the supporters of John B. Allen, while the friends of Judge Turner are equally sanguine of victory. The fight is bitter and uncompromising, without the slightest possibility of a hope of the Allen and Turner forces combining or harmonizing. It is war waged to the bitter end—it is victory or death.

The contest will doubtless result in a deadlock, that will only be broken by the Democrats naming the successful candidate. There are a number of "drrk horses" looming up somewhat conspicuously, among whom might be mentioned Ex-Governor Miles C. Moore, Judge Calkins, Hon. D. J. Crowley, and last but not least Hon. W. R. Hoole.

In the event of a deadlock, it is not unlikely, should the Democrats name the candidate, that their choice will be (since a Democrat is out of the question) Judge Calkins. Hon. W. R. Hoole, of Clallam, is mentioned as a possible "dark horse." The ability and skill with which he mastered his forces in the speakership contest has won the admiration of the members of the lower house. In him they recognize a man of more than ordinary ability and parliamentary skill.

The Democratic members are harmoniously united. They realize the extreme degree of demoralization into which the contending Republican factions have precipitated the party. Harmony is entirely out of the question, and combination utterly impossible. It is a fierce, bitter, factional fight that has been gathering intensity and strength, that is about to completely demoralize party organization. The party is tottering, it is on the brink of dispair, behind it, a record of mistakes, before it no hope of usefulness, only chaos and final dissolution.

THE CONVENTION OF MAYORS.

The convention of Mayors of cities of the third class convened here Monday. Port Angeles was again honored in Normad R. Smith being selected as permanent secretary of the convention. The purpose of the meeting was to frame a bill curing the defects in the bill providing for the organization and governing of cities of the third class. There are a number serious defects in the existing law, that it is hoped can be remedied. The revision of the bill will be under skillful direction, and when prepared will be urged to final passage.

The success of this measure would result in great benefit to Port Angeles and other towns similiarly situated.

A number of Angeles' citizens are visitors here, among whom are Chas. Kent. A. A. Smith, Mayor N. R. Smith and Capt. Ayres.

The irrepressible Burlingame is here in the interest of a bill creating an irrigation commission, the appointment of which will be with the governor. It is almost needless to add, that he (Burlingame) will succeed in securing such legislation.

HE HAS A SCHEME.

The ever prolific Norman R., whose hobby, sole thought, life mission is Angeles and Angeles' advancement, has a scheme—in fact, a gigantic enterprise, the success of which would result in inmeasureable benefit to the town. It is nothing less than the development of its matchless water power. Bond the city for at least $75,000 With that money purchase the electric lighting plant and develop 3,000 horse power. Lease to manufacturers this power at one dollar per horse power per year. This, he is confident, will give an impetus to manufacturers that would in a few years advance Angeles to the enviable position of the principle manufacturing centre of the Sound. This scheme would necessitate the repeal of the ordinance recently passed, providing for the bonding of the city for the purchase of the electric lighting plant, and the substitution of an ordinance providing for the plan as outlined in the foregoing. It is, indeed, a comprehensive scheme, and one worthy consideration. If practicable it should receive the united support of every citizen interested in Angeles' material welfare.

CALIFORNIA HERMITS.

Men Passing Their Lives in Idle Solitude on the Mountain Tops.

Is man essentially a social animal? The scientists say so. But in the mountains of California there are almost enough men who for years have led a life of utter solitude to disprove the generalization. These mountain hermits can be found scattered through the Sierras and the coast range from one end of the state to the other. They are particularly numerous through this region, centering about the Yosemite valley and extending far back into the high Sierras. Some of them were once guides in the valley, others have been miners, and some again seem to have taken up the life of solitude simply because they like it.

To this class belongs old P. R. Gibson —"Old Gib," as he is generally called—who lives on a mountain ranch. He is seventy-five years old, but is possessed of as much physical strength and endurance as the average man of half his age. He came thirty years ago from Tennessee, where he left a wife and a large family of children. One of his sons came to see him recently and tried to induce him to visit his former home, but "Old Gib" steadfastly refused to leave his little ranch and solitary cabin. He has never seen a railroad, and the stage drivers from the nearest station try their utmost to persuade him to go to town and at least look at a train of cars. But his invariable answer is: "Do you think I'm going down there to be blowed up by one of them there blamed engines? Not much!"

Nearly all the men who live this life of solitude very long get a bit queer in the head, and "Old Gib" is no exception to the rule. He has a rigmarole description of himself which declares that he is "the best man in the United States or adjoining territories, either directly or indirectly, financially, commercially, ecclesiastically or unchurchified." The old man is a hard worker, and when he is not busy on his ranch he is working energetically making "shakes"—that is, clapboards split and sawed by hand from big pine trees.

Old man Lambert, who has a cabin in the high Sierras some thirty miles back of the Yosemite, is another of the mountain hermits. He has neither ranch nor mining claim, but lives by what he shoots and by an occasional few dollars earned from camping parties. He has lived alone in that same spot for years and years, and will in all likelihood stay there until he dies. There are months at a time that he does not see another human being. A party of campers one summer found him making a huge stone wall that seemed to have no purpose whatever. In surprise they asked him what he was piling up those stones for.

"Why," he said, "a man's got to do something, up here alone, or he'll go wrong, sure."—Cor. Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

Schooling at Twenty Dollars a Year.

However moderate the expenses of a student of the present time may be they can hardly reach the extremely modest sum which sufficed for Jean Marmontel, a French poet, during the reign of Louis XV. for a year's schooling. In his "Memoirs" he speaks of his school life as follows:

I was lodged, as was the custom of the school, with five other scholars at the house of an honest mechanic.

My provisions for a week consisted of a large loaf of rye bread, a little cheese, a piece of bacon and two or three pounds of beef. My mother had added to them a dozen apples.

This was the weekly provision of the best fed scholar of the school. The mistress of the house cooked for us, and for her trouble, her fire, her lamp, her beds, her houseroom, including even the vegetables of her little garden which she used for our soup, each of us gave her twelve pence halfpenny a month.

Reckoning everything except my clothes, I cost my father between four and five pounds a year. This was much to him and an expense of which I was very anxious to see him relieved.

How It Feels to Be in a Railway Wreck.

"A man who has never been in a wreck wouldn't believe how long it takes for the cars to get through piling up," said another. "After the first crash there is a rebound clear to the back of the train, and then the whole thing takes another lunge, something gives way, and maybe three or four more cars telescope. Then there's another jerk backward and another lunge, and it seems as if the cracking and groaning and tumbling keep on for five minutes. When a man is mixed up with the trucks under the whole stack it seems like an hour."

"Make it an hour and a half," said an ex-brakeman as he scratched his nose with the only clawlike finger remaining at the end of a twisted and shriveled stump of a hand. The crowd knew how he had been dug out with a derrick and laughed at the joke.—Chicago News-Record.

King's Daughters in Turkey.

Smyrna, Turkey, has an active circle of King's Daughters engaged in the practical charitable work for which this order is noted. By sewing, embroidering, scrubbing floors, blackening shoes, or any work for which money would be paid, they have distributed rice and coal among the poor, visited the sick, educated children, provided medicines, paid rents and done other similar acts of charity. On holidays they divide into committees for the purpose of decorating the rooms where poor families live and providing small remembrances for the children.—New York Sun.

Never Reads Criticisms.

Mr. Santley, the eminent baritone, declares that since 1861 he has rarely read a criticism that has been passed upon his singing. In that year he was taken severely to task for a performance at the Birmingham festival, and the remarks of the caustic critic so affected him that he determined to read no more criticisms. If other performers, distinguished and not distinguished, would follow this example, what heartburnings would be saved!—London Tit-Bits.

The Hardest Work of All.

Few poets had more admirers among women than Whittier had, and this admiration frequently took personal form. One day his sister, in her slow, Quaker fashion, was describing these eruptions: "Thee hast no idea," she said, "of the time Greenleaf spends in trying to lose these people on the streets. Sometimes he comes home and says, 'Well, sister, I had hard work to lose him, but I have lost him.'" To this Whittier pathetically added, "But I can never lose a her." —San Francisco Argonaut.

SENTIMENTAL BEINGS

MALE ARTISTS ARE MIGHTY QUEER FELLOWS WHEN SINGLE.

The Painter of Figures Is Naturally Romantic and Very Easily and Very Readily Falls in Love—His Income, However, Often Serves to Keep Him Single.

Very few of our younger artists are married, but it may be accepted as a fact that they all want to be. Cupid finds no mark so tempting to his shaft as that presented by a painter at his easel. Studio life and sentiment are almost synonymous terms. Why this should be so is easily explained. An artist's life is almost invariably a lonely one. No matter how sociable his temperament may be, his working hours are generally spent in silence and seclusion. Being essentially of a sensitive nature he longs for such sympathy as women alone can give. The failure of a picture or its complete success are matters that require more condolence or congratulation than can be expressed by a brother painter. The kindliest of neighbors cannot go further than to say: "Look here, old fellow, I am awful sorry that they sent your picture back from the academy. It's a beastly shame. That's what I call it." Or: "By Jove, old man, you're in luck. I know lots of fellows with a big name who have been working for a year back to catch the Shaw or Evans prize, and you got it away from 'em all. But you always were a lucky dog."

A woman does these things better. That is the reason he wants to marry her. The painter is naturally romantic In his opinion girlhood is always angelic. He may have individual preference for blonds or brunettes, for little or tall or intellectual or womanly women, but the entire sex is still beautiful to him, not perhaps in its physical features, but in its mental possibilities. Hence he is always in love and restrained from matrimony only by the difficulty of supporting two people on an income that is barely sufficient for one. To be an artist you must be an idealist. Studio life has extraordinary vicissitudes at times, but it is always made up more or less of visionary elements. Occasionally the artist's dreams turn into nightmares, and he has a very bad quarter of an hour. But when events disillusionize him he mopes for a short period and proceeds to fall in love with a new charmer.

Last spring two young men, one a painter, his companion a sculptor, were joint occupants of a studio in New York. These departments of art do not always agree, inasmuch as the dust and dirt of a sculptor's modeling platform interfere considerably with the purity of a portrait maker's paints. But neither of the young fellows was rich, and by clubbing together they managed to pay the rent of a larger studio than they could have had separately. The sculptor made as little dust as possible and kept it well down by frequently using a water sprinkler. Not to be behindhand in courtesy, the painter was patient, and by keeping a sheet of drapery in constant readiness was enabled instantly to cover his canvas when his comrade unavoidably threw out a cloud of powdered plaster of paris. They were comrades in every sense of the word, and had a union of pocketbooks as well as of sympathies. On one occasion the sculptor was so hard up on the final receipt of a commission for a large statue that he was unable to buy the clay necessary for his model, whereupon the painter denied himself cigars, took to a pipe and by this economy got enough money to pay for the necessary materials.

Some time afterward the artist received an important order and had not the wherewithal to purchase the large canvas essential for its execution. The sculptor said nothing, but putting on his street coat went out for a walk. An hour later he came back accompanied by a boy, and between them they carried a canvas twelve feet long by six wide. It was a windy day, and the sculptor was quite exhausted by the effort of getting his unruly burden past gusty corners. But after a few minutes' breathing spell the two friends embraced each other affectionately and went to work in their respective corners. So ideal a friendship as this ought to have lasted throughout a lifetime. But an event happened which changed the current of amiability in the studio and estranged the two young men so that at present they are not even nodding acquaintances.

One day the painter received an order for a sketch of a man in armor. The sculptor readily consented to pose for his friend, and after some effort finally got himself buckled into a suit of mail. By one of those accidents that sometimes occur at the most inopportune times the sculptor's fiancee happened to call at the studio chaperoned by a lively married relative. In order to get into the armor the sculptor, who is of large frame, had to strip to the skin. To get out of the suit of mail was not to be considered. So he had to stand awkwardly listening to the merry laughter of the ladies over his comical appearance. His fiancee, encouraged by the witty comments of her friend, made such fun of the unfortunate sculptor that he became furious and broke off the engagement. That evening he employed a truckman and removed all his things from the studio without vouchsafing as much as good-by to his chum. The experience effected an entire change in his opinion of the ladies. His first inamorata was a tall, distinguished looking brunette. He is now engaged to a little, round faced blond, who, despite her resemblance to a French doll, is declared by him to be the epitome of all the charms and graces of womanhood.—New York Sun.

Artificial Thunder.

A miniature thunder factory has been constructed for the science and art department at South Kensington, England, with plates seven feet in diameter, which, it is believed, would give sparks thirty inches long, but no Leyden jars have been found to stand its charge, all being pierced by the enormous tension.—New York Telegram.

The Formation of Heat.

M. Lagrange has communicated to the Belgian academy a paper on the formation of bodies in the universe. In this paper he expresses the opinion that, before any expenditure of work, the quantity of heat of the universe was nil, that the temperature was gradually raised above absolute zero at the expense of work done by attraction, and hence the formation of solid bodies must have preceded that of liquids and gases; that, through the gradual condensation of matter and consequent enormous development of heat, the earth would attain,

CYCLING FOR CHILDREN.

Great Care Should Be Taken That Injury Does Not Result from It.

Dr. E. B. Turner, in considering the question whether young children between the ages, say, of six and twelve, should be allowed to cycle, and if allowed how much they may indulge in the pastime without incurring the risk of injury, maintains that the subject is one on which no man can pronounce dogmatically or lay down strict and invariable rules concerning. What for one small boy or girl might be merely healthy and beneficial exercise, for another might mean physical ruin. But while each case must be judged on its merits, one fundamental principle must be clearly enunciated—namely, that no young child with any organic weakness, whether of heart, lungs, joints or nervous system, should be allowed to mount a machine under any circumstances whatever.

Setting aside such natural disqualifications, the exercise of cycling, properly regulated and adjusted to the capabilities of the individual, is unquestionably one of the best forms of recreation that can be partaken of by children of both sexes at an early age. It develops the body, and the self reliance and resource entailed by the management of a machine tend to strengthen and enlarge the mental and intellectual faculties. A few simple precautions, however, may insure good and avert evil results. As to the age that a child should begin, for most children six is quite early, and even for some six is too early. Great care should be taken in choosing and fitting a machine to a young rider. An old, ill fitting crock may produce deformity or disease.

Two things that must be insisted on in buying either a bicycle or a tricycle for a young rider are that the peak of the saddle should be two inches behind the crank axle, and that the handles should be so brought around and back that the child can sit perfectly upright on the machine. As to the distance the child may ride no absolute rule can be laid down. Overexertion must be carefully guarded against, and a sleepless night and a distaste for food is one of the indications that the system is poisoned by the products of its own waste. It must be remembered that excessive speed is more injurious than excessive distance, and excessive hill climbing than either.

The conclusion arrived at by Dr. Turner is that a sound child, six years old, properly fitted with a machine, and riding in proper form and position, may cycle within the limits of moderation and derive benefit and suffer no harm from the exercise.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Fat in the Body.

Fat stored in the body as adipose tissue is a bank on which the body may draw for supplies of energy and heat when required. It is stated that in the Franco-German war of 1870 the German emperor, acting on the strongly expressed opinion of Ebstein, that muscular fatigue could be best supported on fat, gave orders that each soldier should have served out to him 250 grams of fat bacon. It is also a well known fact that fat animals bear privation of food better than thin ones.—Pittsburg Dispatch.
