P.A.E. RAILROAD SITUATION

Belvin Seeks to Lay Blame for His Apparent Inability Upon Local Board of Trustees.

More or less agitation was created in railroad circles this week by communications which were received from W. Wayne Belvin, in regard to the status of affairs of the Port Angeles Eastern.

It seems that Mr. Belvin forwarded to several parties here copies of the minutes of a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Company held last October, when Mr. Belvin was here, wherein it appears that the Company granted some demands of Mr. Belvin which were somewhat at variance with the terms of the original contract, and also fixing the time when certain bonds were to be delivered to the original promoters, etc.

Mr. Belvin requested that these minutes be made public and intimated that the delay in railroad construction was due entirely to the opposition of the local members of the company and obstacles placed in his way by them.

The local officers of the company deny that any opposition to the building of the road exists and deny that any obstacles have been placed in the way of the consummation of the desired project, either by local members of the company, or by anyone else. They state that the only difference that has arisen between the local people and Mr. Belvin has been in regard to the delivery to the original promoters of certain bonds, which Mr. Belvin agreed to deliver, in his original contract. It is claimed that Mr. Belvin has not made a tender of the bonds according to the terms of his contract.

The statement that the local people are offering any opposition to a bona fide attempt on the part of Mr. Belvin to build the road, is a statement which will require very strong evidence to sustain. The people of Port Angeles are fully advised of the efforts put forth by Mr. Cushing and his associates to bring about the building of this road, and of the many sacrifices made to that end. They also know that it probably means more to the local members of the railroad company to have the scheme succeed than it does to anyone else. Mr. Belvin has had the proposition in his hands for a year and we have as yet nothing more tangible than statements.

From our investigation of the questions raised we are unable to see anything in the differences which are alleged to exist that need concern anyone except the immediate parties thereto and they are only such business differences as arise in any enterprise of any size. That there is absolutely nothing to interfere with any plans of Mr. Belvin to carry out his contract and give Port Angeles a railroad if he has the ability so to do.

It appears from the documents which Mr. Belvin has sent out here that the trustees of the company surrendered to Mr. Belvin seventy-five per cent of the capital stock of the company, which was deposited with a trust company in New York City to be delivered to him when he had complied with his contract to finance the road and had commenced construction. This stock was turned over to him before compliance with his contract and apparently before he had done anything to earn it. We are informed that Mr. Belvin at that time assured the trustees that the road was financed and that it was necessary for the good of the enterprise that he get immediate control of the stock, And the trustees, actuated by a desire to do everything in their power to forward the building of the road, acceded to his request.

It is stated that no sooner did Mr. Belvin get control of the stock than the "mailed fist" appeared; that he assumed to dictate to everyone, and that without taking any steps to build the road, or to give those who had turned the stock over to him any evidence that the road was financed, or that he or his associates were able to finance or build it.

The trustees naturally think that it is about time Mr. Belvin should do something in the way of performing his contract, instead of making all sorts of demands and calling for resignations. That it will be time enough for him to assert himself along those lines when he shows that he is going to build the road, and in some manner entitles himself to command.

We are impressed with the belief that it is up to Mr. Belvin and his associates to show the people of Port Angeles that he is what he represents himself to be and that he and his associates have the ability to carry out his contract.

Engineer Snyder, of the light plant, reported as to the needs of the power house and his communication was referred to the light committee. He recommends a new boiler feed, the old one being unreliable. He recommends the installation of a feed water heater, which would minimize the consumption of fuel, and he thinks would pay for itself in a year; he also asks for some minor repairs and changes, and for the privilege of shutting down one night a month in order to clean boilers.

FIRE AT CAPT. RITCHIE'S

Loss Partly Covered by Insurance of $1,000.

Fire broke out Wednesday in Capt. Ritchie's house on Front street, the blaze starting in the roof near a chimney and being probably caused by some defect in the chimney. The firemen responded quickly to the alarm and removed all the furniture from the house. The high wind and lack of a good stream from the hose made it difficult to control the fire which ate its way all over the roof. However, a bucket brigade was formed and the new extinguishers brought into play, and with these and the hose the fire was controlled and finally put out. The roof is the only part damaged by fire, the west side of it being nearly destroyed. The house was flooded with water. The furniture was removed to Joe. Pugh's house.

Mr. C. S. Stakemiller, who for the past ten years has been the manager of the stores of S. J. Lutz & Co., has now become a partner in the fitm and will continue to have the active management of the business.

CHASED BY A COUGAR

Experience of Angeles Ladies Which Will Suffice Them for a Lifetime.

Monday afternoon while Mrs. T. S. Brophy and Mrs. A. C. McDougall were out driving they had rather an exciting experience with a cougar. They had left the buggy and were picking flowers on the road-side to the Ellis place, on Morse creek, when the cougar cried. They got into the buggy and started for home, when the cougar cried again, this time close to them. Mrs. McDougall got out to let down some bars and when she looked back the cougar was in the road following them. By this time the horse was thoroughly scared as were both the ladies and they came to town in short order. It was an experience that they will not care to have duplicated very soon.

BELIEVES IN ADVERTISING

An Honest Line of Goods at Honest Prices.

Alf. A. Davis, our enterprising shoe man, is sending out a little booklet of twenty-four pages, describing and illustrating a portion of his large stock of the famous Queen Quality shoes, as well as other makes of ladies' and children's shoes and slippers, and also his line of men's and boys' dress and working shoes. Mr. Davis already has a large mail order trade thro'out the county, and evidently believes the big city department store idea of advertising by means of priced descriptive catalogues is going to increase the business. And we believe it will prove an unqualified success, for he guarantees satisfaction in every case, and he has known quality back of every guarantee. It pays to trade with those firms, whatever their line of business may be, who have but one price, and are not afraid to make it known, for no man will advertise goods unless he knows the prices are right.

GRAND JURY QUITS

FIFTEEN MORE MUST ANSWER INDICTMENTS.

List Includes Head of Booth-Kelly Lumber Company, a Former Receiver of a Land Office, Two Seattle Lumbermen and a Minister.

Portland, Or., April 10.—In a manner consistent with its previous record, the federal grand jury, which has conducted investigations into the alleged land frauds perpetrated in this state, Saturday bade adieu to the public and passed out of existence, after returning five more indictments, implicating fifteen men, among whom are the head of perhaps the largest lumbering concern in the state and a state senator, a receiver of the land office and a minister of the gospel.

Never in the history of the North Pacific coast has a similar body of men achieved so remarkable a record as has this grand jury, which, altogether, has returned twenty-four indictments in connection with alleged conspiracies to defraud the government of part of its public domain.

Prominent Men on List.

These indictments prefer charges against nearly fifty different persons all told. In this number, besides those enumerated above, are a United States senator, two congressmen, a United States district attorney, several officials of the government land department, several county and municipal officials and a number of attorneys, livestock men, timbermen and a cashiered officer of the United States. Conspiracy to defraud the government of public land, conspiracy to defame the character of a government official, bribery, perjury and subornation of perjury are the crimes whihc the government will attempt to fix upon the accused.

The operations of the different persons accused of conspiracy are alleged to have extended into the Blue mountains of Eastern Oregon, into the Harney valley in Southeastern Oregon, into the stockraising country on the east slope of the Cascade mountains in Central Oregon and in other places along the entire Cascade range, from the southern boundary of the state to the Columbia river on the north. The only district upon which the jury has not left its mark is that part of the state which lies between the Coast range and the Pacific ocean.

New Jury May Be Drawn.

The jury which went out of existence Saturday is not believed to have concluded the investigations of alleged fraudulent practices in the securing of public lands in this state. From the fact that United States District Attorney Heney spent a considerable portion of Saturday in consultation with United States Jury Commissioner C. J. Held, it is thought to be Mr. Heney's intention to secure a new grand jury and continue the work.

The five indictments returned Saturday are the first to be returned since the grand jury reconvened last Monday. In these indictments, besides State Senator R. A. Booth, manager of the Bootth-Kelly Lumber Company, which is one of the largest concerns of its kind in Oregon, are numbered his brother, Henry J. Booth, receiver of the Roseburg land office; Frank D. Alley, of Roseburg, abstractor; A. R. and Edward Downs, Seattle timbermen; Rev. Stephen W. Turnell, a Roseburg minister; Edward Singleton, brother-in-law of the Booths; Willard N. Jones, a Portland timberman; Thaddeus S. Potter, formerly clerk in the law office of E. P. Mays; H. L. Sisler, of Seattle; Daniel Clark, an old soldier, Clarence B. Zachary, Col. Barnard and Charles A. Watson, of Fossil, Wheeler county.

CENTENNIAL AGROUND.

'Frisco Steamer Goes on the Beach at Marrowstone Point.

Port Townsend, April 10.—The steamer Centennial, bound from San Francisco to Seattle, ran aground last night at 9:40 just abeam of Marrowstone point. At the time she struck it was near high tide, and the steamer went on at full speed.

The vessel lays on an even keel, but at this time it is feared she may list with the receding tide.

Floated at High Tide.

Port Townsend, April 11.—The Centennial was floated about midnight. The ilghtering of her cargo and the high tide were effectual in getting her off the shoals. The vessel is believed to be practically uninjured. She proceeded on her way to Seattle.

To Decide on Okanogan Project.

Wenatchee, April 10.—The engineers of the government reclamation service will meet in Wenatchee April 22 to decide the fate of the Okanogan project. The settlers of the Okanogan will meet here on that date and present to them data in reference to the reclamation of Pogue's prairie, the flat under consideration. The project was shelved some time ago because of the smallness of the tract to be benefitted.

Trust Companies Combine.

New York, April 13.—The North American Trust Company, the Trust Company of America and the City Trust Company are to be consolidated taking the name of the Trust Company of America, with a capital of $2,000,000, surplus $9,000,000 and deposits $50,000,000.

MATTER OF REBATES.

Comptroller of Treasury Objects to Proposed Action of Government

Washington, April 12.—The comptroller of the treasury has rendered a decision in which he criticizes the proposed action of the secretary of the interior in accepting rebates from the Southern Pacific railroad on freight of contractors engaged in work in the West under the irrigation and reclamation act.

The comptroller, in the course of his opinion says:

"The government above all others, should not be a party to the violation of either the letter or the spirit of the interstate commerce act as regards the question of rebates. It should not engage in questionable transactions in order that a saving of a few dollars may be had, especially when the saving results in the tearing down of a law which experience proves is very difficult, if not impossible to enforce."

The comptroller advises that the opinion of the attorney general be had in the matter before any action is taken.

MEAD DESIGNATES ARBOR DAY.

Washington's Governor Names April 25 in a Proclamation.

Olympia, April 10.—Gov. Mead has issued the following proclamation:

"In accordance with a pleasing and excellent custom that has grown up throughout the United States of setting apart one day in the spring for the planting of trees and shrubs and the beautifying of our cities and towns, and in accordance with a well-defined movement now in progress in various localities of this state toward rendering more attractive the public and private grounds, I do designate Tuesday, April 25, 1905, as Arbor Day for the State of Washington; and I recommend that that day be made a day of rest from customary avocations, upon which the people of the state shall unite in adornment of their home grounds, school grounds and public places by the planting of trees, flowers and shrubs, thereby investing their time and effort for the benefit of future generations. In witness thereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the state of Washington to be affixed this 8th day of April, 1905.

"ALBERT E. MEAD, Governor.

"S. H. NICHOLS, Secretary of State."

THEIR TEMPERS ARE COOLING.

France and Germany Will Now Negotiate About Morocco.

Paris, April 12.—The tension between France and Germany over Morocco continues to be the burning question of the hour, but it has been much relieved by the reassuring statements which Foreign Minister Delcasse made in the chamber of deputies. Public sentiment is calm, strongly disapproving of the fiery utterances of a few extremists like MM. Clemenceau and Guyot de Villeneuve, who have spoken of the possibilities of war. Such a eventuality is not conisdered in any serious quarter, although it is recognized that the chances of a rapprochement between France and Germany have been put off many years by the renewed bitterness the incident has aroused.

The affair is now expected to enter by slow stages into diplomatic channels, during which exchanges more or less acrimonious may occur, but nothing more. France will abide by the Anglo-French treaty of 1904, by which Germany's interests cannot suffer.

Quarrel Will Soon End.

Paris, April 12.—Sir Frederick Lascelles, British ambassador at Berlin, has informed the Echo de Paris that, in his opinion, the ill feeling between France and Germany over Morocco will soon disappear.

TUNNEL UNDER BERING SEA.

Matter Being Officially Considered by Russian Government.

St. Petersburg, April 10.—Baron Loicq de Lobel, representing the French group that is engineering the project of connecting the Railroad systems of Russia and America by means of a railroad and tunnel under Bering straits, has presented the matter to Minister of Railroads Hilkoff and Minister of Finance Kokocsoff.

Although the proposition is regarded as being a good deal in the nature of a "Jules Verne dream," the ministers agreed to consider it and a commission of both ministers has been formed to examine the plans and report on them.

EIGHT HOUR LAW.

Bill Passed by B. C. Legislature—Mining Men Make Threats.

Victoria, B. C., April 7.—The provincial legislature has passed an eight-hour bill which may have a disastrous effect upon industrial affairs on Vancouver island. This was an amendment to the coal mines regulation act.

The Western Fuel Company and James Dunsmuir, owning the collieries on the island, threatened to close if the act was passed, and it is feared now that this will be done about June, when the legislation goes into effect.

Russian Loss at Mukden 107,000.

Harbin, April 10.—Complete returns received at headquarters give the total Russian losses in killed, wounded and prisoners at the battle of Mukden as 107,400

E. & N. Railway Deal Off.

Ottawa, Ont., April 10.—The house committee, on the request of the Canadian Pacific Railway, postponed indefinitely the bill providing for the sale of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway to the Canadian Pacific.

PUSHING THE CANAL

ENGINEER WALLACE TALKS OF CONDITIONS.

Practically Five Thousand Men Engaged in Construction and Engineering Work—Laborers From Costa Rica, Jamaica and Barbadoes.

Washington, April 12.—John F. Wallace, chief engineer of the isthmian canal and a new member of the canal commission, said yesterday that there are now practically five thousand men engaged under his direction on the engineering and construction work of the canal. When Mr. Wallace left there were six American steam shovels at work in the Culebra excavation, and arrangements have been made to install additional machines at the rate of two a month.

During the last ninety days laborers have been coming in freely from Costa Rica, Jamaica and the Barbadoes.

The health of the young Americans on the isthmus is particularly good. There has been very little sickness and comparatively few fatalities have resulted Sanitary Department.

The work of the sanitary department is beginning to show very positive results. The water supply for the city of Panama will be available by July 1. Several large hotels for the accommodation of the Americans are nearly completed. The employes are becoming more and more contented as conditions are improved.

Mr. Wallace says that every additional month he is permitted to continue his investigation and experimental work the more reliable will be the data available for use in deciding on a plan for the canal. He takes the ground that no plan should be adopted which would prevent the ultimate and economical construction of a sea level canal, should such be decided on at any stage of the work, or even after the canal has been constructed.

Thorough Investigation.

Mr. Wallace places himself on record as in favor of the most complete and thorough investigation possible before final plans shall be adopted. In the meantime, he says, the work will be so prosecuted as not to delay final completion of the canal.

In his report to the former commission Mr. Wallace did not actuallry recommend a sea level canal, but held the same views then as now. As to the necessity of a tidal lock in a sea level canal, Mr. Wallace said it was an undetermined question as to the real effect of tidal action in the operation of the canal and one difficult to establish theoretically. In any case one would be required—on the Panama side—several miles inland from the mouth of the canal.

LAND COMMISSIONERS ARE IN TROUBLE

Spokane, April 13.—Land Commissioner Noyes, of Loomis, Wash., is lodged in the county jail at Conconully, charged with embezzlement. Special Agent Leach, of the Waterville district, is his accuser. He says:

"Mr. Noyes was arrested on the charge of embezzlement of $400 of the government funds, which he is accused of taking during the past four months. The last specific act was taking $40 paid in on a homestead right.

"I have been here as special agent for over a year and have turned up strong charges. Township 8 north, range 23 east, was all taken up in homesteads and there were only two families living in the township. There were no attempts at cultivation, and many of the cabins did not have stovepipe holes in them. The land commissioners seem to have been remiss. One of them is now in jail, one has resigned and two have been dismissed.

"In Okanogan county alone I discovered twenty-two little digger sawmills hacking away at the government timber. I have torn them all down and confiscated their lumber. I think I have put between sixty and seventy mills out of business since I came here. At Oroville I found one that had been stripping the government land for five years. I confiscated a lot of timber there."

BOTTOM DROPPED OUT.

Tacoma Eastern Has Trouble With Its Roadbed.

Tacoma, April 10.—The bottom of the Tacoma Eastern roadbed at Clover creek has dropped out and four bents of a trestle have sunk out of sight. The accident took place last Saturday, and since that time the company has been bending every energy to fill what appears to be a bottomless pit. Over 1,500 carloads of gravel have been dumped into the place without result.

Some believe that one of the numerous underground rivers that are known to flow beneath the prairie lands south and southwest of Tacoma has worn away the surface of the earth until a cave-in developed. A rancher by the name of Rohr, living south of Spanaway park, several years ago sunk a well into one of these swiftly running rivers.

New Canadian Minister of Interior.

Ottawa, Ont., April 10.—Frank Oliver, member of parliament for Edmonton, has been sworn in as minister of the interior, in place of Clifford Sifton, resigned.

MITCHELL TRIAL BEGINS.

Senator From Oregon Enters a Plea of Not Guilty.

Portland, Or., April 13.—Judge Bellinger's court was crowded when the time arrived for Senator John H. Mitchell to plead to the four indictments found against him by the late federal grand jury.

In a plea of abatement Senator Mitchell challenged the acts of the late federal grand jury by charging specifically that Jurors W. E. Robertson and Carl Phelps, the original foreman and secretary respectively, had been legally excused for the term pending the investigations; that Jurors Frank G. Buffum and George Peebler had been sworn in some time after the grand jury had been empaneled; that Juror George Gustin was not a citizen of the United States; that Jurors Frank Bolter and Joseph Esner were not taxpayers, as required by law, and that District Attorney Heney was disqualified in many ways, besides being prejudiced.

The plea in abatement was based on the case wherein Senator Mitchell is accused of accepting pay through the law firm of Mitchell and Tanner to expedite land titles before the land departments at Washington in behalf of Frederick A. Krebs.

A demurrer was first filed after a stipulation between the government and counsel for the defense that the plea in abatement should not be waived by the filing of the demurrer.

Judge Alfred S. Bennett, of The Dalles, as attorney for Senator Mitchell, announced that there was a question of moral involved in the case wherein Senator Mitchell was accused of accepting $2,000 from S. A. D. Puter, and therefore he would waive all legal technicalities and be ready to proceed to trial without delay upon the issues at stake.

Mitchell's waiver of technicalities in the Puter case is looked upon as a shrewd move on the part of his attorney to delay proceedings in the Krebs case; and for a trial on the Puter case, which is admittedly the weaker of the two.

KING AND PRESIDENT.

Edward Visits Paris and Confers With Loubet.

Paris, April 10.—The arrival of King Edward in Paris was the occasion for a notable manifestation of Anglo-French cordiality, which is being generally interpreted as a conspicuous response to Germany's attitude regarding Morocco, although the king remained but a short time.

King Edward was met outside the city by President Loubet, who held a private conversation with him lasting nearly an hour. The details of the conversation excite a wide range of specualtion, but its actual purpose has not been disclosed. However, a semi-official communication recites that the meeting had far less reserve than that between King Edward and President Loubet last year, and that it was marked by the freedom of the exchange. Beyond this private conversation, King Edward confined himself to the usual public expressions of good will. He spoke at the station of the pleasure a visit to France always gave him, but there was not the slightest public utterance having significance upon pending political affairs. In this respect the king's reserve is being compared with the freedom of Emperor William's recent utterances.

King Also Sees Ambassador.

The passage of the king was unattended by any spectacular features, as it was the wish of the authorities to avoid a political demonstration. President Loubet joined the royal train at Pierrefitte station, where, surrounded by distinguished officials of both governments, the two rulers exchanged their first greetings. The king conducted President Loubet to his private car, where conversation continued until the Lyons railway station was reached.

During the half hour at the station King Edward held an extended conference witn the British ambassador at Paris.

King Edward left Paris at 7:10 for Marseilles, where he will join Queen Alexandra on board the royal yacht.

MARCUS DALY'S TIMBER DEALS.

Government Appeals Its Claim for $2,000,000 Against Estate.

Washington, April 10.—The appeal of the government in the trespass case against the estate of the business successors of the late Marcus Daly, of Montana, has been docketed in the supreme court of the United States. The government brought suit for $2,000,000, claiming that Daly and his associates had cut timber of that great value on the public lands without obtaining permission. The present suit is against Mrs. Margaret Daly, executrix of the Marcus Daly estate, the Bitter Root Development Company, the Anaconda Copper Mining Company and other companies which, it is alleged, were organized by Mr. Daly for the purpose of "carrying out his designs, concealing his identity and escaping liability."

The court of appeals for the Ninth circuit decided the case in favor of Daly.

Minnesota Homeward Bound.

Seattle, April 8.—A cablegram received at the local office of the Great Northern Steamship company from Yokohama states that the huge Oriental liner Minnesota sailed from that port for Seattle Wednesday. The Minnesota is bringing 159 first and second class passengers, but the message did not give any details regarding her freigh cargo. If the Minnesota has good weather she should reach here April 20.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. A sluggish liver gives a coated tongue, bad breath, constipated bowels. Correct all these by giving small laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar-coated.

In old times the man died in the village where he was born. In the churchyard were the graves of his parents and grandparents and more remote ancestors. He was identified with his family and the circle of his friends. He had no life apart from them. In our time the boy who stays at home is a dull boy. The ambitious go west, or to China or South Africa; wherever he is he must go somewhere else. Ancient ties are broken and the individual lives for himself alone. He does not know where his grandfather lies buried. Often he does not know his full name. The habits of selfishness acquired while he is making his fortune cling to him after he marries. Porcupines and Salt.

Some men who were camping in the Adirondacks several years ago, on breaking camp in the autumn, left an old tub which was saturated with salt brine. On returning to the same camp the next year they found that the tub had been gnawed until little of it was left. They were not long in finding out what animal had done the work, for the camp was overrun with Canadian porcupines. At night they became such a nuisance that the campers were obliged to kill them to protect their property. The handle of a paddle was gnawed half through.

The explanation of their presence in such numbers during that year, when they had not been noticeably abundant in the previous year, is that they had made a rendezvous of the camp, being attracted by the old brine tub. On this they feasted all winter, and for that reason were greatly pleased with the locality.

An interesting query is this: Is the liking for salt an acquired or a natural taste? Were they ever able to gratify that taste to any extent before man gave them a chance to do so?—St. Nicholas.

MISS JULIA MARLOWE

Heartily Approves of Peruna for the Nerves.

In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., Miss Julia Marlowe, of New York City, writes the following:

"I am glad to write my endorsement of the great remedy, Peruna, as a nerve tonic. I do so most heartily."—Julia Marlowe.

Nervousness is very common among women. This condition is due to anemic nerve centers. The nerve centers are the reservoirs of nervous vitality These centers become bloodless for want of proper nutrition.

This is especially true in the spring season. Every spring a host of invalids are produced as the direct result of weak nerves.

This can be easily obviated by using Peruna. Peruna strikes at the root of the difficulty by correcting the digestion.

Digestion furnishes nutrition for the nerve centers. Properly digested food furnishes these reservoirs of life with vitality which leads to strong, steady nerves and thus nurishes life.

Peruna is in great favor among women, especially those who have vocations that are trying to the nerves.

Buy a bottle of Peruna today. If you do not receive all the benefits from Peruna that you expected, write to Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

GOOD BLOOD TELLS ITS OWN STORY

And tells it eloquently in the bright eye, the supple, elastic movement, the smooth, soft skin, glowing with health, a body sound and well, an active brain, good appetite and digestion, refreshing sleep, energy to perform the duties and capacity to enjoy the pleasures of life. The blood is the most vital part of the body; every organ, muscle, tissue, nerve, sinew and bone is dependent on it for nourishment and strength, and as it circulates through the system, pure and strong, it furnishes to these different parts all the healthful qualities nature intended. When, from any cause, the blood becomes impure or diseased, it tells a different story, quite as forceful in its way. Itching, burning skin diseases, muddy, sallow complexions, disfiguring sores, boils, carbuncles, etc., show the presence, in the blood, of some foreign matter or poison. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Contagious Blood Poison and Scrofula, are effects of a deeply poisoned blood circulation. These may either be inherited or acquired, but the seat of trouble is the same—the blood. S. S. S., a purely vegetable blood remedy, cleanses and purifies the circulation and makes it strong and clean. Under its purifying and tonic effects all poisons and impurities are expelled from the blood, the general health is built up, all disfiguring eruptions and blemishes disappear, the skin becomes soft and smooth and robust health blesses life. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison and all diseases of the blood are cured by S. S. S. Book on the blood and any medical advice, free of charge. Benefit Entertainment

In behalf of Mrs. John Bull will be given by Humane Department of Civic Club at Opera House, on Saturday, April 22nd

Fine musical program by best local talent, to be followed by dancing. Good music will be furnished.

The Manhattan Whist Club.

The Manhattan Club held its regular session Monday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. N. K. Mead. The usual play at whist was had and several remarkably good scores made.

There was not the usual full attendance, as a number of the members were out of the city. Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Haswell, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Trumbull, Miss Annie Ritchie, Mr. Elliott Souer and Mr. Earnest Merrill were guests of the club. Mrs. Mead served one of her usual tasty luncheons after the play which was certainly keenly relished, and convinced her guests that she possesses accomplishments other than playing a hand at whist well.

Presentation.

The members and friends of the Baptist Church surprised Mr. C. A. Engesser and his wife at their cosy home under the hill, on Monday evening last, and presented them with a beautiful oak rocking chair as a testimonial of respect, esteem and appreciation for their effective work in behalf of the young people of the church. The visitors brought all the requisites for a fine hot lunch; and games and original pastimes filled out a pleasant evening. "Professor" Engesser is winning his way to popularity by his unselfish work for others, and his cheery wife is a good second.

The Parliamentary Club met with Mrs. Hopkins last week. After a short musical program the study of parliamentary law was taken up. This week Mrs. Griswold will be hostess.

The Woman's Literary Club enjoyed a pleasant afternoon last week with Mrs. McGill as hostess.

Port Angeles Whist Club

The Port Angeles Whist Club met this week with Mr. Sawyer at Jno. Trumbull's. The scores were: Appleton & Sawyer vs. Lewis & Mathewson, 101 to 92; Aldwell & Brophy vs. Trumbull & Cooke, 99 to 95; Chenery & Moore vs. Ovington & Payne, 97 to 94. Last week the score of Chenery & Payne vs. Lewis & Mathewson was 110 to 108, instead of 110 to 103 as it appeared in last week's issue. The next meeting will take place at William Moore's.

The Saturday Club

Had a very pleasant meeting with Mrs. Mead last week, when the study of Japan was continued. After refreshments the final arrangements for the Club Banquet, to be held April 28, were decided upon.

A Musical Tea.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Andrew's will give a musical tea at the home of Mrs. Wm. L. Church next Tuesday from 2:30 to 6:00. Everybody invited.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Withrow, of East Clallam, will soon become residents of Angeles. Mrs. Withrow is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ware.

Miss Lois Smith, daughter of Hon. G. V. Smith, accompanied by Miss Alice Thompson, from Seattle, are visiting friends in Angeles this week.

W. B. Hamblen was taken sick the first of this week and will be unable to attend to business for a week or two. It is an attack of nervous prostration.

Priscilla and John Alden, at Colonial entertainment given by Parliamentary Club at opera house May 1st.

Mrs. Rose Hamilton who has been at the hospital for some time left there this week.

POVERTY PARTY DECIDED SUCCESS

Ladies of Civic Club Establish High Mark for Series of Entertainments.

Success surely crowned the first entertainment of the Civic Club for benefit of the Bridge Fund, and the ladies feel very much encouraged and gratified for the way in which the public has responded to their efforts.

The opera house was well filled with an interested and enthusiastic audience and the program was pronounced excellent by all. The supper was delicious and the exceptionally good service rendered by the darkey waiters brought forth words of praise on all sides.

The evening's entertainment was opened with a piano solo by our talented young musician, Miss Maud Hirsch, who never fails to please her listeners.

Then came the broom drill and march by sixteen of the handsome women of Port Angeles in "full dress" costume, with Mrs. Brophy as captain and Miss Jensen presiding at the piano.

Mrs. T. S. Brophy, Captain.

Mrs. J. O. Morse	Mrs. E. J. Ovington
Mrs. E. B. Webster	Mrs. T. J. Appleton
Mrs. M. J. Carrigan	Mrs. Frank Fisher
Mrs. J. B. Flemming	Mrs. J. W. Troy
Mrs. C. A. Cushing	Mrs. A. C. McDougall
Mrs. D. E. McGillivray	Mrs. E. E. Fisher
Mrs. W. Brumfield	Mrs. H. LaFlower
Mrs. H. M. Fisher	Mrs. F. A. Cooke

Each broom carried by the ladies bore an appropriate label advertising the Civic Club and its work, of which "Let's plank Front street" and "Don't be a knocker" were probably the best. The costumes worn, especially the hats, were all works of art and caused many a woman's eye to turn green with envy. A hearty applause bro't the ladies to the stage once more, preceded this time by the fourteen fine looking colored gentlemen, who lined up at the back of stage, making a fitting background for the beauty and art presented by the ladies.

The colored gentlemen, who were Messrs.

E. J. Ovington,	J. L. Aldwell,
T. T. Aldwell,	C. J. Farmer,
T. F. Trumbull,	W. F. Delabarre,
Wm. Payne,	N. K. Mead,
F. A. Cooke,	John Chenery
D. C. Sisson,	H. M. Fisher
T. S. Brophy,	W. J. Mathewson

being so well received on their first appearance, wished to win more laurels, so gave a very effective rendition of the favorite old song, Swanee River, from behind the scenes, Mr. Chenery acting as soloist. Their effort was highly appreciated by the audience.

Dr. T. J. Appleton then appeared upon the stage in Irish woman costume and simply brought down the house with his recital of The Lost Heir.

The amusing farce "Don't Borrow a Baby" closed the program and certainly capped the climax.

Each and every one of those who participated deserves great praise for the creditable way in which they performed their parts. Mrs. John Trumbull made quite a hit in her gorgeous attire, posing as Mary Ann, the housekeeper. Mr. Ritchie, as her sweetheart, was fine and his Irish song and dance proved him to be quite a professional in that line; Mrs. Trumbull was also quite surprising in the nimble way in which she accompanied Mr. Ritchie in the chorus jigs. Mrs. Brophy was handsomely gowned, fulfilling her part well as the finance of Mr. Trumbull. Mrs. C. A. Cushing, as the mother of Mrs. Brophy, did her part splendidly and, in her rich costume, was much admired. Mr. Scott played the part of Uncle John very well indeed; and Mrs. A. L. Johnson and her baby made a pretty picture, her impersonation of a retired actress being very good also. Mr. Trumbull, as the lover, and nephew of wealthy "Uncle John," got into all sorts of scrapes, and in borrowing the actress' baby to show off to Uncle John as his own he nearly loses his sweetheart, fortune, and all. Everything turns out well in the end, however, and everybody is happy. Little Angeline Ritchie, in the pretty costume of a page, was quite charming and sweet.

After the performance, Mr. A. L. Johnson auctioned off the brooms carried in the broom drill and they sold rapidly at 50c each.

After, supper, which, by the way, was not very suggestive of hard times, either in quality or quantity, the tables were pushed aside and dancing was enjoyed for an hour or so.

The net receipts were $68.

SEGUIN NOTES.

Mr. Robert Baker arrived on the morning stage Wednesday, accompanied by his bride. The happy couple went direct to their new home at the Cougar Mill, where Mr. Baker is employed as sawyer.

Miss Sophie Nelson was a passenger on the stage Tuesday, going to Seattle.

L. C. Dey, who was injured some time ago by the cable of a stump puller, is able to be out, with the use of a crutch.

Robert Fullerton has been appointed receiver of the Blyn Shingle & Lumber Co., with headquarters at Seattle.

Where did Miss Jones get that lovely hat? At Mrs. Grant's, of course.

There was a stereoptican entertainment at the M. E. church Friday evening; quite a large audience enjoyed the same.

Don't forget the May Day Picnic; you can bring your own basket, or secure lunch on the grounds.

The east end sports were out in force on April 14th to witness the wrestling match between L. Kempf, originally of Dungeness, and Lew Price of Seguin. There was a good preliminary boxing contest before the main event. Two hundred tickets were sold and a large number of ladies were present. Henry Knapman was the referee and gave the match to Price, who secured the two last falls. Considerable money changed hands. Mr. Kempf immediately challenged Price to a return match which was accepted, $25 being posted as a forfeit for $100. The match to take place at Seguin May 5th.

For all privileges on picnic grounds May 1st, see Wm. Peterson or J. L. Keeler, committee on privileges.

It is dryer this season than has been known in years; the farmers are all irrigating.

Capt. Horne was a visitor to Seguin the first of the week.

There were five commercial men in town one day last week, so it seems there is some business being done after all.

Seguin organized a base ball team on Sunday last. The line-up is as follows:

The family of Wm. Hooper have been very sick with pneumonia, but are reported to be improving; they are attended by Mrs. Dr. Cook.

Call up Knight & Eby, the merchants of Dungeness; they are on the Independent telephone line and are delivering goods to Seguin free of delivery charges.

Nowhere else in the Puget Sound country are there such fine and numerous trout streams as those whose sources are in the grand, ice-pinnacled Olympics, and nowhere else are there such "beauty spots" of nature for the annual seeker after recreation in which to while away a few weeks during the summer season.—Port Townsend Call.

Dave Troy was a visitor here one day this week.

Roy C. Porter, one of the popular school teachers of this community, gave an entertainment a week ago last Saturday night at the Taylor school house which was thoroughly appreciated by all present. Mr. Porter and his troupe so distinguished themselves in the play entitled the "Persecuted Dutchman" that they have been called upon to reproduce it at the Woodman Hall next Friday evening, April 28th.

Mr. F. E. Knight, of the new firm of Knight & Eby, went to Seattle on business last Saturday, returning on Tuesday morning.

Rev. George Graham was a Port Angeles visitor one day last week.

If you wish to get your money's worth, call on Knight & Eby.

Mrs. Emma Gore spent last week with her mother, Mrs. Sherrard, returning to Port Town sead Saturday, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Korter.

Dan Savage, our village blacksmith, was wearing a broad smile, the result of a run-away on Seguin last Friday, which badly demolished the road wagon of Knight & Eby's. Dan is always looking out for snaps of this kind.

EAST CLALLAM.

From the Record.

A large number of the friends of Mr. A. Fairservice and family made an unexpected call upon them Saturday evening; although totally unexpected and unprepared, the surprise party was welcomed and a most enjoyable time had by everyone present. The guests were entertained with piano music and songs by Mrs. Flo' Mawhurter and Miss Teckla Rudisile, and the spacious parlor of the Fairservice home was given over to some of the guests for dancing while others enjoyed card games. Lunch was served at midnight.

Work on the new cut-offs on the Quillayute road, a short distance ont of town, will begin soon. The object of the cut-offs is to get the county road on a level route and avoid the steep hillside it now goes over between here and the bridge on the Westbrook place.

Mr. J. S. Maxfield's house, blacksmith shop and postoffice at Quillayute were completely destroyed by fire Monday afternoon. Loss about $1,800; no insurance.

A scow loaded with logging cars for Robinson's camp was towed here from Seattle by the Yellow Jacket and arrived Sunday.

THE SONGS THAT MOTHER SANG.

The mem'ry of those simple lays my heart will ever keep;
The ballads that my mother sang as she rocked me off to sleep;
An echo of the far-off years I seem to hear them now.
With the little break when she would stop to kiss her baby's brow;
"Hazel Dell," "Sweet Nellie Gray," and
"The Cottage by the Sea,"
They were among the simple songs that mother sang to me.

"The Suwanee River" sweetly flows
along the course of time;
"My Old Kentucky Home" I hear with simple air and rhyme;
"Silver Threads Among the Gold," I recall it with a sigh,
And the tender lulling cadence of "The Sweet By and By";
I ne'er can hear those old-time songs
without they bring a pang,
For they are hallowed to my heart—the songs that mother sang.

Perhaps as mother sang them all with me there in her fold
She thought of her boy's dim future—
its years so stern and cold;
Perhaps that was the reason she would press me to her breast,
And with a song of pathos sweet would lull me there to rest.
Ah, mother! would that I again a little lad could be,
And listen to those old-time songs you sang so tenderly!

How closely would I nestle in your sheltering embrace;
How I'd watch your love's sweet rapture reflected in your face;
And how I'd fondly listen for the love-
note in your tone,
That now I miss so sadly as I walk
'mong men alone;
All that the years have brought me I'd relinquish without sigh,
Just to hear your voice again as you sang some lullaby.

Mother's voice has now been stilled for many a weary year,
But whispering remembrance brings the tones I loved to hear:
Perhaps within her heaven home she's singing yet to me,
And her spirit voice is that which I have thought was memory;
Perhaps in life's dark twilight when I'm sinking through the gloam,
My spirit she may lead to her by singing
"Home, Sweet Home!"

A TEST OF CHARACTER.

"UNCLE HENRY," said Julia Denham, "may I see you in the library a moment this morning?"

"Certainly, my dear; I am at your command now," and he led the way into the room. He handed his niece an arm-chair, and took a seat opposite her.

"Uncle," said Julia, with a little becoming confusion, "I have received an offer."

"Whew!" exclaimed her uncle, "that is coming to the point with a vengeance."

"And I want to consult about it."

"A very sensible resolution. May I know from whom the offer has been received?"

"Edward Fitzroy."

"You haven't known him very long."

"Not—very," said Julia, slowly.

"But you think you know all about him, I dare say. Are you very much in love with him?"

"Not desperately," answered Julia, smiling. "At the same time I confess that I am strongly prepossessed in his favor."

"And this prepossession is likely to become a warm sentiment. Well, my little niece, as you have requested my advice, I will give it. I do not object to this lover of yours. Indeed, I know nothing against him. But then I know too little of him at any rate to be able to form a deliberate opinion of his character. If I mistake not, this is also your case. Now, it is my theory that no woman ought to marry unless she is sufficiently well acquainted with her intended husband to have a pretty confident assurance of leading a happy life with him. I therefore counsel you to delay giving your answer for a month, and in that time I will contrive to become better acquainted with him."

"Your advice is good," said Julia, thoughtfully, "and I will follow it."

"Thank you," said her uncle, kindly, "for the confidence you have reposed in my judgment. I sincerely hope that the young man will prove to be all we can desire."

Edward Fitzroy was in business in the neighboring city. He had embarked a small property inherited from his father in a dry goods establishment, and having a good business tact, was driving a flourishing trade. His acquaintance with our heroine had commenced during a summer residence at the village in which she made her home. It was not strange that he should have been attracted by Julia. Her gayety, vivacity and beauty made her generally admired; and had anything else been requisite the reputation of being her uncle's heiress would have procured her suitors. But it is not necessary to dwell further on this point of our story. We are interested to learn how Uncle Henry's plan succeeded.

He first made cautious inquiries relative to the young man's business standing, all of which were answered satisfactorily. But this did not satisfy him. He wished to see for himself. Accordingly he purchased a suit of clothing so different from that which he was accustomed to wear, that with a pair of green goggles superadded he felt convinced they would disguise him sufficiently for his purpose. Thus attired he lounged into the store, and inquired for some trifling article. He was purposely very slow in being suited. Meanwhile he watched with some attention the bearing of Fitzroy, who was trading with a fashionably attired lady at a little distance. Nothing could be more polite or obsequious than the conduct of the young tradesman. With unwearied assiduity he took down from the shelves and displayed a large stock of merchandise, until the fastidious taste of the lady was at length suited.

"He is attentive to his customers," thought Uncle Henry. "That is a good sign. But perhaps it may be simply because she is rich and fashionable. Here's a customer of a different kind. Let me see how he treats her."

At this moment a woman very poorly dressed, with a worn and weary expression, as if she were better acquainted with the dark than the bright side of life, entered the street door and advanced to the counter. The affable smile which Fitzroy had worn in his interview with the last customer disappeared, and in its place was a supercilious glance.

"I would like to look at some calicoes," said the customer.

"Here are some," said Fitzroy, curtly, pointing to a pile which lay upon the counter.

He did not stir from his position, but gazed at the woman with an air that seemed to indicate how utterly indifferent he was to her patronage.

"Will you show me some of them?" asked the woman, mildly.

"There they are, ma'am; you can see them for yourself."

"What is the price of this?" she inquired, looking at the one which lay at the top.

"Ninepence a yard."

"I don't altogether like the figure," she said after a pause.

"Don't you?" returned Fitzroy, indifferently.

The customer began to examine some of the other prints. Of course in doing so she was obliged to disarrange them somewhat.

"Don't pull them all to pieces," said Fitzroy, rudely. "There isn't much difference in them. You'd better take the first that comes. How much do you want?"

"Ten yards."

"Well, you had better let me cut it off quick, as I can't stand waiting on one customer all day."

Thus importuned, the woman hastily indicated one of the prints, and the required quantity was measured off. Change was quickly made, and the woman departed. Her place was taken by a wealthy lady like the first, the rustle of whose silk proved an immediate passport to the good graces of the young merchant.

"I don't like that," thought Uncle Henry, who had not been unobservant of this little scene. "He has no right to treat one customer better than another. At all events all ought to be treated with common civility, whatever their attire may be, or however small may be their purchase. These gloves are half a dollar, are they?" (These words were addressed to the shopman who was waiting upon him.) "Very well, I will take them."

Meanwhile the woman who had just purchased the calico re-entered the store with a hurried step and a look of trouble. She waited until Fitzroy was through with the lady upon whom he was attending, and then pressed to the counter.

"Well, what now?" asked the young man, superciliously.

"I believe you made a mistake about the change you handed me."

"A mistake!" he repeated. "It is quite impossible."

"But," said the woman, anxiously, "don't you remember that I gave you a two-dollar bill, and you only gave me back two quarters?"

"Wasn't that right?"

"No, I bought ten yards at ninepence a yard, which made but a dollar and a quarter."

"And you handed me a two-dollar bill?"

"Yes."

"Then I must have given you back three quarters."

"But, sir, it cannot be. I have only two."

"Oh, you'll find the other in your pocket, if you haven't spent it," said Fitzroy, insolently.

The woman colored.

"Indeed, sir, I know I am right," she said, troubled.

"It is for your interest to be," he returned with a sneer.

"And you won't rectify the mistake, then?" said the poor woman, faintly.

"You make a great fuss about a quarter of a dollar."

"It is of some importance to me," said the woman.

"I can't return it," said Fitzroy, shortly. "There is no end to the impositions that would be practised upon me if I allowed everybody to come back and claim that they had not received their right change."

Here Uncle Henry, who had listened with indignation to this scene, interfered.

"You are mistaken," said he, decidedly, "I saw you hand this lady her change, and you passed her but two quarters."

Fitzroy glanced at the speaker. It has been mentioned that Uncle Henry, the better to conceal his identity, was coarsely dressed, and accordingly Fitzroy set him down as a person of no consequence. He therefore answered haughtily:

"I shall need more than your word, my good sir. How do I know but you are in league———"

"Good-morning, sir," said Uncle Henry, abruptly. "You may hereafter regret this gratuitous insult. Madam, will you allow me a word with you?"

The woman followed him out of the shop, while Fitzroy, in no very pleasant mood, muttered about the "airs of these beggars."

"Madam," said Uncle Henry, when they were in the street, "will you accept from me this piece of gold, which will in a measure atone for this man's rudeness and your loss? Nay, no thanks! What I have witnessed has been worth more to me than the small sum."

At the end of a month Edward Fitzroy came to receive Julia Denham's answer to his suit. He felt confident of success—a confidence which was somewhat diminished by the coldness with which she returned his greeting.

"I must decline the honor of your alliance," said she, in answer to his urgent proposal.

"But what can have wrought this change in you?" he asked, his countenance changing.

"I must refer you to my uncle."

Uncle Henry, who entered the room immediately, explained in a few words in what way they had gained an unfavorable impression of his character. He concluded by saying:

"The man who is obsequious to the rich and impertinent to the poor shall not, with my consent, marry one in whom I feel any interest."

A year afterward Julia formed an alliance with one more worthy of her, and never had cause to regret adopting her uncle's test.—Waverley Magazine.

KILLED GRAVEYARD RABBIT.

Gamblers Auctioned Off Its Feet Over Comrade's Coffin.

"Talking about your graveyard rabbit superstitions and that sort of thing, there is no class of people who believe in it stronger than the gamblers," said an old gambler, according to the Topeka Capital, "and I saw it explained in the strangest way at Pittsburg, Kan., ten years ago. 'Kid' Jackson, one of the best-known gamblers in that part of Kansas, died of consumption and all of the gamblers set out to give him a good funeral. They bought a fine casket and all the flowers the room would hold and had a procession fixed up with plenty of mourners, because there was a certainty of refreshments below after the obsequies, even if our friend was not enjoying them above. All the pallbearers were gamblers and friends of the dead man.

"Well, we started out and reached the cemetery all right, and the grave-digging man was on hand with his pick and shovel. We set the coffin down on the barriers across the grave and were preparing to let the 'Kid's' body down into the grave. Just then a rabbit jumped out of a thicket close by and landed right at the bottom of the grave. He was killed in a second. Just who fired the shot I never could tell, but it does not matter. We all carried guns in those days and were ready to shoot at the dropping of a hat. But, anyway, the rabbit was dead.

"'The graveyard rabbit, by heaven,' one of the fellows said, as the rabbit was picked up. "Talk about your mascots, here is one for me,' and with that he began cutting off the left hind foot. 'Hold up there,' said another of the pallbearers; 'let's sell these feet off and make up a pot for the "Kid's" folks, if we find he has any folks, to send it to them.' It was agreed, and in a minute the funeral services were forgotten and an auction bidding began at $5 for the left hind foot and was promptly raised to $10 and then to $15 and to $20, and finally the foot sold for more than $30. The other hind foot was bid for and brought $25. The other two feet are not considered of such good omen, and were not so much in demand. When the auction was over we found that the proceeds were a little more than $100. Then we turned our attention to the body and interred it as it should have been.

"Two of the boys in the bunch who got a foot apiece were Ed O'Connor and Charlie Cropper, and I have often wondered whether their luck after that was good or bad. But I have been away from that country and I have not heard from them in years. I got one of them and I can't find out that it has brought me anything that would not have come otherwise. Perhaps I am hoodoed."

Important Omissions.

"Have you any objection to giving a description of how you became so successful in public life?" said the magazine editor.

"None whatever," answered Senator Sorghum. "Go ahead and have it written up. I don't care what you say, but I'm mighty particular about what you leave out."—Washington Star.

NO SURRENDER.

Man's Indomitable Courage in the Face of Stupendous Dangers.

Man's unwillingnes to yield to circumstances is one of his most impressive characteristics. Sometimes it seems to be mere stubbornness, unreasoning and purblind. Far more often, however, it is admirable in a high degree, betokening the supremacy of mind over matter and the primacy of man among created things. Over many things man triumphs. Over many others he may never hope to triumph. The elemental forces of nature are beyond his control. Before such a catastrophe as that which occurred in the Windward Isles, for example, man, with all the knowledge of the schools and all the resources of twentieth century civilization, is as helpless as the cattle of the fields and the worms of the dust. One witness of the destruction of St. Pierre says the people perished like flies. The description is accurate, and its suggestion is a true one. The flies of an hour, the gnats that dance in a summer sunbeam, are not more helpless than man in the face of such a convulsion of nature, says the New York Tribune.

Yet man remains defiant and indomitable. Pompeii was and Herculaneum was; yet Naples is, and it nesetles fearlessly at the foot of their still restless and menacing destroyer. To-day the horror-stricken world says of St. Pierre that it was, but it is no more. Yet to-morrow men will found a new city at the base of that same Bald mountain which has done this awful deed. A striking instance of such persevereance is seen in the neighboring island of St. Vincent, which has suffered less only than Martinique. Its great sulphur mountain erupted ninety years ago with appalling violence and devastation. Forthwith some said the island should be abandoned, and the British government actually began to make plans for the entire removal of the people and the distribution of them among other islands less menaced by volcanic action. But soon the idea was given up, and the people remained, some 40,000 of them, clinging resolutely to some 132 square miles of beautiful and fertile but ominously unstable land. To-day the revival and execution of those plans are suggested, even urged. But doubtless this, too, will pass, and for all the throes of La Soufriere the people of St. Vincent—those who are left of them—will remain where they are. There will be no surrender.

It is the same trait that causes the Finn and the Icelander to cling to their semi-arctic homes rather than to seek more genial and more fertile regions, and the Switzer and Highlander to prefer their rugged rocks and cliffs to the soft, smooth lowland plains. It is the same spirit that nerves man to endure pain and trouble, to repress the groan and tear, and to meet with a smile the darkest frowns of disappointment and misfortune. Columbus bidding his mutinous crew "Sail on!" and Palissy burning his house to keep his furnace raging, and Gordon serenely awaiting his martyrdom at Khartoum were similar types of the unconquerable man who knows not how to frame the word "surrender." There are those who would desert St. Vincent and Martinique, who would abandon all efforts to reach the North Pole, who would yield, defeated at the first touch of elemental rage. They also would have had Columbus turn back in midvoyage and every great inventor stop work in despair at failure of his first or his fiftieth experiment. Controlled by faint hearts, the world would know no progress. Those who lead mankind forward and upward are those whose watchword, even in hopless sacrifice, is "No surrender!"

Wanted a Good Lawyer.

A well known lawyer of Philadelphia, whose office is located close to the city hall, received a tremendous shock the other day. He was counsel for a man charged with larceny, and, as the evidence was conclusive, he advised his client to plead guilty.

"You know that you have a bad record and you have practically confessed your guilt," said the lawyer in a soothing manner, "and you will be sentenced to about three years in jail."

This last sentence completely dumfounded the prisoner, but after he had looked about his cell for several minutes he turned to his attorney, and in a serious manner said: "Will you kindly go out and get me a good lawyer?"

As soon as the lawyer recovered from the shock he told the prisoner he would argue the case for him.

An Easy One.

Wilson—Here's a problem for you, old man. A donkey was tied to a rope six feet long; eighteen feet away there was a bundle of hay, and the donkey wanted to get at the hay. How did he manage it?

Sharp—Oh, I've heard that once before. You want me to say "I give it up," and you'll say, "So did the donkey."

Wilson—Not at all.

Sharp—Then how did he do it?

Wilson—Just walked up to the hay and ate it.

Sharp—But you said he was tied to a rope six feet long.

Wilson—So he was. But you see the rope wasn't tied to anything. Quite simple, isn't it?

LITTLE STORIES AND INCIDENTS

That Will Interest and Entertain Young Readers.

The Little Bee.

A little bee
Awoke, you see,
In the early morn of spring,
It rubbed its eyes
And buzzed surprise,
When it heard a little bird sing.

"Bizz, bizz," said the bee
As it laughed "Hee-hee,"
The summer's coming, I know;
And honey sweet
I then can eat
From all the flowers that blow."

Then the little bee
Went out to see
If the flowers were opening wide.
It lit on some snow,
Which froze a toe
And then it deeply sighed.

"Biz, bizz-z-z, dear me!
I scarce can see
How I'll get back to the hive;
My wings are so slow
I scarcely know
If I am really alive."

Then the sun shone down
On the bit of brown,
That was the little bee
And warmed it through
So that it flew
Straight back to the hive, you see

A Democratic Baby Princess.

The Princess Yolanda is a small demcrat in her way. One evening, not long ago, she was waiting for her father and mother to come to dinner. Her nurse asked her: "Whom would you like to have at dinner with you?"

She hesitated for a moment, and then said: "I should like to have papa sit there, and mamma yonder. Brusati (the King's aide-de-camp) may sit by me, and on the other side I want Giovanni."

Now, Giovanni is the man who leads the donkey on which the Princess Yolanda takes occasional rides. She is extremely fond of him, and counts him one of her dearest friends. In her childish mind there was not the slightest reason why he should not sit at the King's table as well as any titled visitor.—St. Nicholas.

Don'ts to Boys.

Don't wear your hat in the house.

Don't sit while a caller stands.

Don't get into the habit of using slang. Vulgar expressions denote degeneracy.

Don't be ashamed of gallantry toward women and girls. A gentleman is always courteous toward the opposite sex.

Don't fall into bad habits with the fixed intention of "swearing off" as you grow older. Habits formed in youth accompany one to the grave, bad habits often burying their victims before their time.

Don't speak of your father as "the governor," nor of your mother as "the madam." If you do not show respect to your parents you must not look to the world to respect you.

Boy Kills a Mountain Lion.

A boy of the name of John Demerbreaux drew $20 out of the county treasury yesterday. His warrant for the money was the skin of a lion, which he brought to town with him, says the Arizona Republican.

The lion was killed on the Verde, near Fort McDowell, under unusual circumstances. The boy was riding along the river and saw the beast eating the carcass of a raccoon, which he had just killed. Demerbreaux was armed with a shotgun and he emptied both barrels into the lion, killing it instantly. Old hunters and others familiar with the habits of the mountain lion said that they had never heard of one doing such a trick before. While the lion is frequently seen in the daytime, he is never seen eating. He takes his meals by night.

A Smoke Surprise.

In the top of a shallow pasteboard box cut two holes, each about an inch in diameter, and place over each an argand lamp chimney. Stand in one hole a candle cut long enough to project half an inch above the box. Light candle and then hold over other lamp chimney some burning "touch paper" or unglazed paper that has been dipped in a solution of saltpeter. The smoke, instead of rising, will go down one chimney and after it has filled the box will rise through the other.

"Myrtle is a nice girl and all that," said the young woman with the black eyes and the square chin. "I like Myrtle in a way, but she makes me awfully tired."

"She is rather wearisome," admitted the friend with the rosebud mouth.

"No backbone."

"Not a particle."

"There's an I-aim-to-please expression about her that makes me want to shake her at times."

"She likes to be all things to all men."

"The whole thing to all men."

"She certainly is fond of admiration."

"I hate people who always agree with you, don't you?"

"I think they are perfectly detestable."

"Moral jellyfish."

"Mushes of concession."

"If I hadn't a mind of my own and always had to adopt somebody else's views of things I wouldn't want to live."

"I would die if I didn't have some individuality—or I'd want to."

"It doesn't matter who it is she's talking to or what they think Myrtle always thinks exactly the same."

"Men think that's sweet, though. They like a girl who always agrees with them."

"Amiable idiocy is about the masculine idea."

"They think when a girl 'just adores' the things they like that she must be perfection."

"They decide that they've found their affinity."

"But it doesn't take in a man who has any sense."

"I think they see through a girl of that sort quicker than her own sex."

"I don't think Myrtle is a popular girl—especially attractive to men."

"Not by any means. I know two or three who are always making fun of her."

"Still I like Myrtle."

"Oh, so do I. One can't help liking her."

"And there's one thing I like about her especially. She never talks about people—says means things about them, I mean."

"There's that in her favor, certainly," admitted the girl with the rosebud mouth.

"If she only wasn't so pliable."

"Such an echo!"

"Belle," said the girl with the black eyes, "it's such a joy to talk to you. You always seem to understand me and you look on things and people from the same viewpoint that I do. It's awfully refreshing."

"You darling!" exclaimed the girl with the rosebud mouth, pressing that feature to the black-eyed girl's cheek. "Why, that's precisely what I was going to say about you."—Chicago Daily News.

RAILWAY CONGRESS

INTERNATIONAL MEETING AT WASHINGTON IN MAY.

A Thousand Delegates From Forty-Four Different Countries Will Discuss Transportation Subjects—Topics to Be Considered Are All Technical.

Washington, April 17.—Nearly a thousand delegates, the owners and operating officials of more than 400,000 miles of railway in forty-four different countries, constitute the personnel of the international railway congress which is to hold a ten days session in this city, beginning May 4 next. At the close of the congress the delegates are to make a thorough inspection of the United States, particularly with reference to equipment and shops.

The congress is somewhat unique in its purpose and manner of conducting affairs. It was organized in 1885 and has held sessions every five years since. Its first session, in Brussels, celebrated the fiftieth aniversary of the opening of the Belgian railways. Milan, Paris, St. Petersburg and London have been meeting places since, Paris having had two sessions. At the session in 1900 the invitation to hold the meeting at Washington was accepted. Congress at its last session enacted appropriate legislation concerning this government's participation in the congress.

In the absence of President Roosevelt, Vice President Fairbanks will accept the post of hoonorary president and open the congress with an address of welcome, afterward extending the courtesies of the nation to the delegates at the White House. The preliminary formalities over, the congress will resolve itself into five sections and proceed with business in French and in secret. All the papers to be presented have been under consideration for some years, all having been printed, and the delegates are thoroughly familiar with their contents. All of the topics to be presented are technical, and necessarily devoid of popular interest.

The honorary presidents representing the railways of this country will be A. J. Cassatt and E. H. Harriman, while the actual president will be Stuyvesant Fish, of the Illinois Central railroad. The lines these gentlemen represent touch one another and form a continuous line of rail from the Atlantic to the Pacific, passing through the heart of the country and extending from the Great Lakes to the Gulf.

BIG TRUST DEED FILED.

New Line to Run Through Oregon and Washington.

Seattle, April 14.—A railroad extending south from The Dalles, Or., to San Francisco and north through the state of Washington to some point in all probability on Puget Sound is in contemplation, according to a deed filed in the office of the county auditor. The deed is for $5,000,000 and the parties to it are the Washington Trust Company of Seattle and the Great Southern Railroad Company.

In the provisions of the deed all the property and rights of the railway are held in trust by the company and the company guarantees $5,000,000 of negotiable bonds. In return the railway company gives the trust deed.

If the railroad company at any time fails to pay the bonds when they fall due the trust company is at liberty to foreclose on the road. The bonds are to be for $1,000 each and will be issued from time to time as required in building and extending the road. A condition is made that not more than twenty bonds can be issued for the building of one mile of road.

The deed is signed by John Heimrich as president and Julius I. Meier as secretary of the railway company and by J. W. Clise and M. D. Barnes, representing the Washington Trust Company. Both Heimrich and Meier are Portland men.

TRUST MEN INDICTED.

Four Charged With Interfering With Witnesses.

Chicago, April 17.—Four men, three of whom are employes of the Schwarzchild & Sulzberger Company, and the other an attorney for that corporation, are named in an indictment returned by the grand jury which is investigating the beef trust.

It is charged that the four men obstructed and impeded Deputy Marshal A. A. Bach in his effort to serve a subpoena on Edwin B. Fish, a clerk of the company, who recently returned from Canada.

The indictment alleges that a subpoena was issued for Fish on March 3; that it was given to Bach for service; that the four men had arranged for the departure of Fish from this country to Canada, and assisted him in leaving the jurisdiction of the court.

To Tow Logs South.

San Francisco, April 17.—A big company is to be formed here to engage on a large scale in the business of towing log rafts from Puget Sound and Oregon ports to California. The enterprise will be launched with Eastern capital, but is fathered by Capt. Robertson, of Portland, who was the pioneer in the rafting of logs from the northern ports to San Francisco bay. The log rafting company will spend about a million dollars on its plants, and expects to cut about 30,000,000 feet of logs each year. This will be the biggest rafting project ever undertaken in the world.

GASOLINE MOTOR CAR.

Union Pacific Will Place One on Regular Run.

Omaha, April 17.—Railway officials, who Sunday made a 200 mile trip in the Union Pacific gasoline motor car which will be placed in commission by that road at once, express the opinion that the success of the car will result in a revolution of suburban and branch line railroad and passenger freight service. Yesterday's test of the Union Pacific car was the final one before placing it in practical service between Grand Island and St. Paul, Nebraska, where it will make two trips daily as a branch train.

The car, which was built purely in an experimental way, seats twenty persons, and in the forward end, where is located the gasoline motor, is a space reserved for baggage. The regular service cars, construction of a number of which will begin at once, will be fifty feet long, will seat fifty-five passengers and accommodate their baggage. The cars will have a motor of sufficient horse power to haul one or two trailers, when it is found necessary to use extra equipment.

Officials of a number of large rail road systems of the country already have interested themselves in the idea, which will be exploited at the coming railroad congress at Washington. Probably the greatest feature is the small expense of operation. This, it is believed, will be about one-sixth the cost of operating regular passenger trains.

FOUND REMAINS OF JOHN PAUL JONES.

Paris, April 17.—The remarkable search which Ambassador Porter has conducted for the body of Paul Jones has been crowned with success by the discovery of the body and its identification by the highest French medical experts as unquestionably that of the famous American admiral who founded the American navy.

Ambassador Porter has cabled to Washington announcing the successful results of his long and difficult search. The body is in a good state of preservation, considering the interment took place more than a hundred years ago.

The circumtances leading to the final discovery of the body are interesting, and when congress recently took no action upon the president's recommendation for the expenses incident to the search, the ambassador continued the extensive labors at his own expense. A large force of workmen has been engaged night and day tunneling and cross tunneling the old St. Louis cemetery. This constituted a huge operation, embracing nearly a block covered with buildings and requiring a system of subterranean mining.

Washington, April 17.—Ambassador Porter's dispatch announcing the finding of the body of John Paul Jones has reached the state department. It is probable that a recommendation will be made to congress at its next session looking to Ambassador Porter's reimbursement.

The remains of John Paul Jones are to be brought here and inetrred in the national cemetery at Arlington, and it is likely that the transfer will be made the occasion of an interesting demonstration. It is probable that Secretary Morton will send a battleship to France to bring the body home.

WILLING TO SELL

Chicago Traction Companies Will Not Try to Delay the Inevitable.

Chicago, April 17.—R. R. Govin, former receiver of the Union Traction & Light Company, of this city, and a member of the firm of Hollins & Co., of New York, the representative of Eastern interests in Union Traction properties, made the statement Saturday that municipal traction ownership would be an established fact in Chicago within three months. How the ultimate turning over of the properties would be accomplished, or under what terms as to details, that, he said, would be worked out later. The indisputable fact that was patent to every thinking person, he said, and that it would be folly to ignore, was that the idea of municipal ownership was in the ascendency and that no power could stem it.

"Not only municipal ownership but municipal operation of the two great traction systems of Chicago will be an established fact, in my opinion, within three months. I mean a reasonable period, but it will not be much more than 90 days. The voters declared for it, the mayor wants to bring this about, and we are desirous of doing everything we can to facilitate acquisition by the city."

He states, however, that no negotiations have been entered into between the city and the traction people as yet.

Tribe of Ben Hur.

Tacoma, April 17—The Puget Sound district court of the Tribe of Ben Hur has been organized here by about 100 delegates, representing sound courts and tribes in cities contiguous to the sound. A constitution and by-laws, formulated by a committee of past chiefs from the different courts, which were represented at a meeting held in Seattle recently to effect a temporary organization, were adopted, and the temporary officers elected at that meeting were made permanent.

Darrow to Help Dunne.

Chicago, April 17.—Mayor Dunne has appointed Clarence S. Darrow to have charge of all the traction litigation of the city. Mr. Darrow represented the mine workers in the hearings before the commissioners named by President Roosevelt to settle the strike in the anthracite fields.

ABRIDGES RIGHTS

NEW YORK TEN-HOUR DAY LAW HELD VOID.

Federal Supreme Court Hands Down Opinion Which Is Regarded as Highly Important—Decision Rendered Entirely on Constitutional Grounds.

Washington, April 18.—In an opinion by Justice Peckham the supreme court of the United States has held to be unconstitutional the New York State law making ten hours a day's work and sixty hours a week's work in bakeries in that state. Justices Harlan, White, Day and Holmes dissented, and Justice Harlan declared that no more important decision had been rendered in the last century.

The opinion was handed down in the case of Lockner vs. The State of New York and was based on the ground that the law interferes with the free exercise of the right of contract between individuals. The court of appeals of the state upheld the law and affirmed the judgment of the trial court, holding Lockner guily. Judge Parker wrote the opinion of the New York court of appeals supporting the law and the court divided four to three on the question of its validity.

The law involved in the case is section 110 of the New York state labor law prescribing the hours of labor in bakeries of the state. Lochner is a baker in the city of Utica and was found guilty of permitting an employe to work in his bakery more than 60 hours in a week and fined $50. The judgment was affirmed by the New York Appellate courts.

Judge Peckham's Decision.

The opinion dealt entirely with the constitutional question involved. Justice Peckham said that the law is not an act merely fixing the number of hours which shall constitute a legal day's work, but an absolute prohibition upon the employer permitting under any circumstatnces more than ten hours' work to be done in his establishment. He continued:

"The employe may desire to earn the extra money which would arise from his working more than the prescribed time, but this statute forbids the employer from permitting the employe to earn it. It necessarily interferes with the right of contract between the employer and the employed concerning the number of hours in which the latter may labor in the bakery of the employer. The general right to make a contract in relation to his business is part of the liberty of the individual protected by the Fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution. Under that provision no state can deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law. The right to purchase or sell the labor is part of the liberty protected by this amendment unless there are circumstances that exclude the right."

Dissenting Opinion.

Justice Holmes and Justice Harlan both delivered dissenting opinions and Justices White and Day concurred in Justice Harlan's views. He said in part:

"I do not stop to consider whether any particular view of this economic question presents the sounder theory. The question is one about which there is room for debate and for an honest difference of opinion. No one can doubt that there are many reasons, based on the experience of mankind, in support of the theory that all things considered, more than ten hours steady work each day from week to week, in a bakery or confectionery establishment may endanger the health and shorten the lives of workmen.

"If such reasons exist, that ought to be the end of this case, for the state is not amenable to the judiciary in respect of its legislative enactments, unless such enactments are plainly, palpably, beyond all question, inconsistent with the constitution of the United States.

"Our duty, then, is to sustain the statute as not being in conflict with the federal constitution for the reason —and such is an all sufficient reason— it is not shown to be plainly and palpably inconsistent with that instrument. Let the state alone in the management of its purely domestic affairs, so long as it does not appear beyond all question that it has violated the federal constitution. This view necessarily results from the principle that the health and safety of a state are primarily for the state to guard and protect, and is not a matter of ordinary concern to the national government."

Foster to Leave Tacoma.

Tacoma, April 17.—Former Senator Addison G. Foster, who for many years has made his home in Tacoma, within six weeks will take up his permanent residence in Los Angeles. He was recently elected president of the Consolidated Lumber Company, of that city. His present position as vice president of the St. Paul and Tacoma Lumber company here will probably remain unfilled for some time.

Heavy Canadian Immigration.

Ottawa, Ont., April 19.—Since January 23,000 immigarnts have reached Montreal, and most of them have proceeded on and settled in the Northwest. Every day special trains crowded to excess are passing Ottawa, and it is positively asserted that the tide of immigration westward this year will eclipse all previous records.

EXPOSITION RATES.

Fare and a Third From Washington, Oregon and Idaho Points.

Seattle, April 18.—Individual tickets from points in Washington, Oregon and Idaho to Portland during the Lewis and Clark exposition are to be sold at the price of one and one third fare forthe round trip, tickets good for continuous passage only in both directions, with final limit for return trip of thirty days from date of sale. The tickets will be placed on sale May 29, and continue on sale until October 15, when they will be withdrawn.

The round trip rate from Seattle during the Portland exposition will be $7.50.

Advices were also received by the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Burlington local officials yesterday that the special round trip rates from points East to Porltand, Seattle and all Puget sound points on account of the Lewis and Clark exposition, would be sold every day between May 23 and September 30, instead of on stated selling dates, as previously agreed. These rates are: From Missouri river points, $45; from Chicago, $52.50, and from St. Louis, 56.50 Anticipating a large amount of special business, special car and train parties, the agreement embraces additional rates to cover such business. Party tickets good for ten or more persons traveling from one point, all on one ticket will be sold daily at a rate of one fare for the round trip, the return limit being ten days from date of sale. There will also be coach excursions at popular excursion rates, the dates for which will be announced later.

SANTA FE CUT-OFF.

To Build $10,000,000 Line of 250 Miles to Avoid Grades.

Chicago, April 17.—The Record-Herald says:

Official announcement is made that the Santa Fe has decided to build a $10,000,000 cutoff to the Pacific coast with a view to getting rid of the mountain grades which are now encountered in the transcontinental travel

Orders have been given for the purchase of all the materials necessary and work will begin within 30 days. The work will be pushed to completion rapidly, and the new transcontinental low grade line will be ready for opening within a year or fifteen months.

The western end of the cutoff will be at Belen, 27 miles south of Albuquerque, on the El Paso line, and the eastern end will be at Lexico, 250 miles away on the Pecos valley line of the Santa Fe.

The new road will cross the Siera Nevada mountains at Abossa, at an elevation of 6,491 feet, but at a maximum grade east bound of one and a quarter per cent and westward of sixtenths of one per cent.

GREAT BOND ISSUE SOON TO BE MARKETED.

New York, April 17.—The New York American says:

Bonds aggregating $790,000,000, the greatest railroad issue ever made, must be marketed by the Union Pacific to consummate its merger with the New York Central system and the Chicago & Northwestern, according to the details of the underwriting made public yesterday for the first time.

The total mileage of the system will be 36,244. The plan of consolidation is all underwritten and the promoters are merely waiting for a favorable time to announce consummation of the scheme.

There is to be an issue of fifteen per cent of stock by each of the roads to be absorbed. That issued by the Chicago & Northwestern is to go as an extra dividend to the stockholders. That issued by the New York Central will be sold to stockholders at 125, producing $28,125,000 cash with which to make improvements already planned on the system.

The total stock of both roads is then to be purchased by the Union Pacific with bonds. Central stock will be taken at 200 in a four per cent bond, and the Chicago & Northwestern at 300 with a 3½ per cent bond. All of these bonds have been underwritten and enough stock of both systems is pledged to the plan to carry it through

CANNOT BUY CIGARETTES.

Indiana Smokers See Big Stocks Destroyed on the Streets.

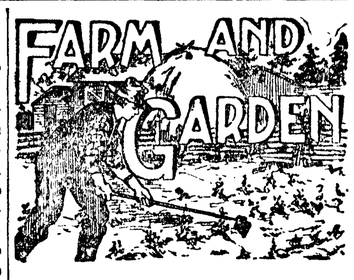
Indianapolis, Ind., April 17.—The acts of the genneral assembly took effect Saturday, carrying with the governor's proclamation the enforcement of the famous anti-cigarette law.

Local dealers anticipated the proclamation, and for several days have been shipping ther stock to the trust, which agreed to take back all unsold. Cigarettes not made by the trust have been sold at the wholesale prcie for several weeks, and Saturday night a cigarette could not be purchased.

At Princeton, Ind., one dealer burned $200 worth in the street, and at Vincennes the stocks were given away when it became known that the law would take effect on that day. At many places merchants dumped their stocks into the sewers, and there is every indication that the law will be observed.

Washington Water Resources.

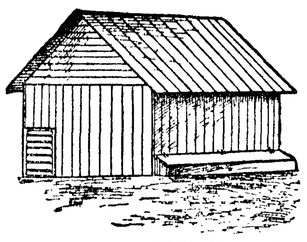
Washington, April 17.—A brief account of the water resources of the state of Washingtion will soon be published by the geological survey, the work having reference to municipal supplies, deep wells and springs. The work was done by Henry Landes and N. H. Darton, of the survey.



Plan for Chicken-House.

A Texas woman in Farm and Ranch describes a chicken house for the benefit of any who may wish a clean, convenient one.

It is built of 1x12 boards, well slatted on three sides; the front has a stripped or latticed door in one corner, this to insure plenty of ventilation; the roosts are swinging poles, suspended by heavy wire, out of the draft. The walls come within fourteen inches of the ground and the nests are made on the outside, then securely boxed up with a slanting cover that is hinged on and can be raised from the outside. This prevents having to enter the henhouse when you wish to gather up the eggs. It has the appearance shown in the illustration.



CONVENIENT CHICKEN HOUSE.

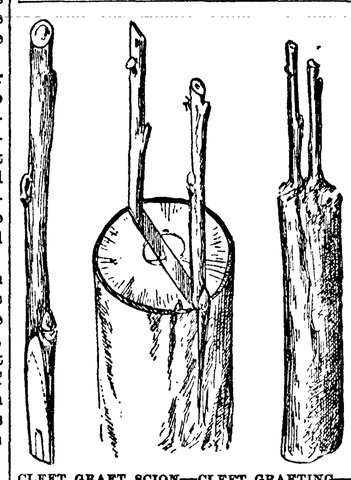
Small tin cans are tacked on the roost, the walls and near the nests; in them is kept mothine balls; they keep out all vermin.

Marketing the Eggs.

Eggs should be gathered every day in summer and oftener in winter, unless the hen house is warm enough so that the eggs will not freeze and burst the shell. Put the eggs into a basket with the small end down until ready to pack in boxes for shipping and keep in a cool room. Then pack in the box with the card-board separators, with the small end down. They will keep fresh longer if packed in this way than if put into the boxes in a haphazard manner. The reason for this is found in the fact that the yolk cannot settle to the shell when the small end is put down and the air cannot strike the yolk as long as it does not touch the shell. When eggs bring a good price it is better to sell the eggs than to raise chickens to sell, for the profit is good and there is not so great an outlay. By all means raise chickens when eggs do not bring a very good price. Among the most prolific layers will be found the Black Spanish, the Black, White and Brown Leghorns, Poland, Hamburg, Creve Coeur and La Fleche, which are larger than Black Spanish, but somewhat similar to them.—Epitomist.

Cleft Grafting.

Varieties of grafting are many, but cleft grafting represents the method commonly in use for the grafting of orchard trees where the old top is to be removed during the course of a few years and a new one is to be grown in its place. The ideal time for this top grafting is when the leaves are just pushing out, for then the wounds of grafting heal rapidly. But in practice, if a large amount of work is to be done, it may be necessary to begin from one to two months earlier and to continue several weeks beyond the ideal point of time. The whole operation of cleft grafting appears clearly in the illustration.



CLEFT GRAFT SCION—CLEFT GRAFTING—A WAXED STUB.

Hogs in the Orchard.

In regard to the hogs skinning the orchard trees, if you put a dozen or two of hogs on an acre of land, very likely they will skin the trees, or a flock of sheep would also. They must have room. There must not be too many in a bunch. It is said that hogs will tear down a pigpen to get the wood to eat. If you throw them a little lime they will let the pen alone. I know that they have been known to dig out a stone wall for the lime. If you feed a hog some corn and don't starve him to death, he will let your trees alone. Give the hog room enough and give him something to eat. —J. J. Blackwell.

Teaching a Horse to Stand.

As soon as the colt is fairly gentle and has been ridden a few times, throw the reins down, and with a strong but soft rope hobble his front legs. Fasten a rope twenty feet long to one front leg and the other to a stout post or stake. Ordinarily the horse will not move when thus fastened, but if he does he soon comes to grief. A few lessons of this sort will never be forgotten.

After a while it will only be necessary to wrap the reins around the horse's front legs, and later simply dropping the reins to the ground will be sufficient. If any time the horse gets to moving around and forgets his early training, pass the reins through the stirrup and then up and over the horn of the saddle. This pulls the head around to one side and the horse will generally not go far.—Farm and Home.

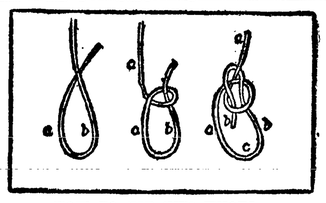
Remedies in the Barn.

The writer has recently erected a small closet in the barn, in which is kept a few articles such as experience has taught us should be handy. At the suggestion of the mother of the family a large bottle of witch hazel and several bottles of vaseline were added, together with a roll of partly worn muslin. The very day this closet was completed and its contents placed, one of the horses by accident struck its head against the side of the stall so that there was a decided bruise around the eye. Out came the witch hazel, and by frequent applications of it during the day the swelling was subdued and the horse made more comfortable.

We have two bottles of vaseline each of the plain sort and the carbolated vaseline, and this last has been found very useful on a number of occasions. A calf had an ugly spot on its side, a raw proud-flesh sort of eczema, for which we could not account. We took a spoonful of flour of sulphur and made a batter of it with a little carbolated vaseline and treated that spot for a week, healing it perfectly. Have a little closet as described and keep odd things in it, but don't forget witch hazel, vaseline and a roll of soft, clean muslin.—Indianapolis News.

Useful Bowline.

The bow and knot is one of the most useful knots we have, and one which comparatively few can tie. It is a knot sailors use constantly. The illustration will show exactly how it is tied. Lay the parts together as in the first figure, b crossing over a. Then bring a over b, bringing the end up through the loop as in the next figure. Now carry b around and under a, passing it down through the loop as in the final figure. It is impossible for this knot to slip when properly tied. It is useful in all sorts of emergencies. In a loop thus made a man can safely be hoisted to any height with no danger of the knot slipping. It is especially useful for the farmer. An animal can be led by means of it with no danger of the knots slipping and choking the animal, no matter how much it may plunge or pull.—American Agriculturist.



HOW TO TIE THE KNOTS.

To Prevent Tree Frauds.

The Indiana farmer that has been swindled by the fruit tree agent will be pleased with the law, enacted by the last General Assembly, providing a fine of from $50 to $500 for fruit tree fraud. It is said that the bill which was introduced by Representative Shively, of South Bend, grew out of Notre Dame University's purchase of trees that were not what they were represented to be. As introduced, the bill provided a year's imprisonment, but this was stricken out.

Sheep Shearings.

Sheep are more economical meat producers than steers.

To secure the best returns in feeding have the sheep as even as possible.

When breeding to improve ewes should be two years old when bred.

The more sheep you can keep and keep right the less per sheep will the cost be.

Under ordinary conditions the manure from sheep should pay for the labor of caring for them.

A good foot rot medicine must be somewhat caustic, in liquid form and cheap enough to use freely.

Sheep cannot be fattened profitably when they are full of parasites. Kill the vermin and then fatten.

If the best profit is realized, not only the wool, but the mutton and the lamb, must contribute their part.

It will pay, if you intend to sell your sheep at public sale, to have some one grade them up in even lots.

Gathered in the Garden.

The best thing for the garden—brains.

Cut the black knot out of the plum and cherry trees.

Radishes are usually ready for use in six weeks from sowing.

Bone meal and wood ashes in the soil are great for sweet peas.

Don't trim the cherry trees now. Wait till June and then be light handed.

To bleed the grapevines by cutting during March, April or May is bad management.

Cold frames are useful for forwarding lettuce and cabbage in spring or early summer.

Probably no other small fruit will give more weight of crop for the space it occupies than the currant.

COMMITTEE OF WHOLE

Every little while the senate of the United States in Committee of the Whole considers the state of the Union.

It might be well for the city council to adopt this proceedure and go into a committee of the whole to consider the state of the electric light plant.

It is to be presumed that the expense of operation has been reduced as much as is compatible with good service and the council is entitled to great credit for what it has accomplished in that direction, but inasmuch as each month shows a deficit, the task is only half done. Some scheme must be devised whereby the income will be made to at least be equal to the outgo, and until that condition is brought about the city light plant is a business failure.

A couple of weeks ago we suggested that each councilman take it upon himself to see that the patronage in his ward was extended and to that end ward meetings be held to consider ways and means to bring about increased patronage. This suggestion evidently did not commend itself to the councilmen, inasmuch as no move in that direction has been taken, but it was made after being approved by several citizens who would like to patronize the city light if conditions were made so they could.

While we must confess to a limited knowledge of the situation; still the success of any enterprise depends upon patronage, and until the city plant has patronage so that the income will more than cover the outgo, the monthly deficit will brand it as a failure.

England collects five hundred millions of dollars from revenue duties and tariffs, so distributed, however, that the burden can be avoided without touching many of the actual necessities of life. One-tenth of this comes from tobacco; an eighth or more postal and telegraph revenues—every message sent has to carry a stamp—another tenth is derived from other stamp taxes, and the income tax frequently amounts to one-sixth the gross sum. The gross sum just about equals our national receipts from tariffs and internal revenue.

Forty years ago the debt of the United States amounted to $76.99 for each person. Last year it was less than $11. Then we were 35,000,000 in population; now 80,000,000. The wealth then equaled $643 to each person; now it is not less than $1250. Such has been our national growth since it was developed that a republic could protect itself in a great civil contest.

We speak of Japan as a little nation. She is so only in area. In the matter of population she is the sixth in size, almost rivaling the German empire, and exceeding Austria-Hungary. In density of population she rises almost to the top having 310 to the square mile.

OUR STATE'S NEW HIGHWAY

of which is mailed to you this day, it is necessary that information be furnished said highway board as to length of road in your county, topography, obstacles to be overcome in the way of streams, rock work, etc.

To the end that justice may be done in every case, the highway board hereby requests that your board of County Commissioners send a representative, who is well acquainted with the route of each proposed highway in your county, to meet with said board at the office of the State Auditor at Olympia, Wash., on the 27th day of April, 1905.

C. W. CLAUSEN,
Chn. State Highway Board.

We are given to understand that by the terms of this act there will become available for this road in Clallam County in the neighborhood of $8,000.00 or $10,000.00. This is a matter of the very first importance and should be given most careful attention by our commissioners. Action should be immediately taken to have a representative in attendauce at Olympia on the 27th inst., and that he should be a person qualified to labor to the end that the interests of Clallam county in this important matter be not slighted. It would seem to us that Commissioner Christopher is the proper person, both by reason of his detail knowledge of the affairs of the county and particularly of her roads, and by reason of the fact that a large portion of the proposed road lies in his district.

If the provisions of this act are faithfully carried into effect, it means more towards developing the resources of this county than anything within present contemplation. We have been cursed for years with most miserable excuses for highways. Now that we have the opportunity to get at least one good road through the major portion of the county, it should be improved and it is the duty of the Commissioners to take every action which will tend to the advantage of Clallam county in this matter.

ASKS FOR "FAIR FIELD"

Port Angeles, April 18th.

Editor The Olympic,

Dear Sir:—I ask for space in your paper to say a word in regard to that meeting of citizens to consider certain charges made against the Rev. W. H. Whelan, a report of which was published in your last week's issue.

The report of that meeting indicates a very strange proceedure—one, I think, without precedent anywhere. What purports to be a full report of said meeting is given, and a pretense of final judgment is rendered in the case, when, as yet, the other side had not even been heard, and could not possibly be heard at that time. The real status of procedure was as follows:

We were to have held a conference on the case Monday afternoon, the 10th inst., but circumstances over which we had no control hindered, and the "conference" was not held. Thus we asked for and were granted an extension of time — an extension of thirty days, and for two reasons; first, I myself was very ill with la grippe, and was not able to be out of the house at that time; and, second, we needed more time to procure certain tangible evidence in the case. Now this is precisely the way matters stand at present.

Our non-appearance at that meeting was due to the terrors of la grippe—not for lack of courage to meet any man or set of men. Nor is there intention of doing injustice to any man. We simply want to get at the facts in the case. All that we ask is a fair field and no favors. But the "field" we demand, and expect to have. In the meantime it shall be well for everybody to suspend judgment

Respectfully,
J. A. Baldridge.

HAVE SOLD NEWSPAPER

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Webster Will Make This City Their Home

We received word today of the sale of "The Republican," which we established sixteen years ago, the first issue being printed on our twenty-first birthday; it seems like the parting of old friends, and when our name as publisher is removed from its columns the last tie connecting us with the old home will have been severed.

Mr. and Mrs. Webster, the writer's parents, have not been in the best of health for the past few years and have found the severe Iowa winters, with the forced confinement in-doors, increasingly harder to withstand; besides, there really appears to be no necessity of their continuing to live in Iowa, when their children and grandchildren are living here. They have also recently sold their residence, and as soon as the new editor takes over the paper, will leave for the west.

Mrs. Webster is well known here in Angeles, having spent three summers here, the first being in 1900, shortly after we came here. Mr. Webster visited us but once, during the year we lived in Townsend, but he left with a very good impression of Port Angeles, the result of a short trip to the lakes.

As a further introduction we might add that Mr. Webster is an "old newspaperman," having been a printer before, and even during the war, being detailed as foreman in government printing office after the siege of Vicksburg. Since Cleveland relieved him of further duty as postmaster, he has edited The Republican, and we hope, after he has enjoyed a long-needed rest in fishing and out-door life, of which he is very fond, that he will assist us in improving The Olympic.

DIED OF BROKEN HEART

Will McClinton's Favorite Dog Realized Master's Soul Had Departed.

Judge and Mrs. McClinton recently received a copy of the Journal, of Oquawka, Ill., containing an account of the death on March 25th, and funeral services of their nephew, Wm. L. McClinton. Mr. McClinton was 39 years of age and married, having two children. His death was the result of a lingering illness; the end came peacefully and he gently fell asleep. The Journal also says:

Of recent years the late Will McClinton had a hunting dog to which he was greatly attached. The dog last Saturday went to the window of the room in which lay the body, looked long and fixedly at the remains of his late master, laid down by the window and next morning was found dead. It is believed it died of a broken heart, as it had not been sick and was apparently in good health.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

The council met Tuesday night with all present and quickly went through with the small amount of business before them.

Mr. Polhamus made a motion, which was carried, to have the fire chief report as to the efficiency of the new extinguishers which were used at the recent fire.

Mr. Bown called attention to the proposed work on the cemetery road and urged that all the volunteer work be reported, so that work could be started as soon as possible.

On Brophy's motion the street commissioner was authorized to purchase a scraper from R. Buck at a cost of $6.00.

The commissioner was also ordered, on motion of Grubb, to purchase a share for the plow.

There is more clean money in raising apples in Washington than Navel oranges in California. An orange grower told us recently that nothing on earth was more calculated to fool a man than an orange grove. The land is there, the trees are there and the fruit is there, enough to show a big profit per acre, but the cost of fertilizing, of irrigating, of cultivation, the scaling down of the fruit at the packing houses and all the other expenses only too often left the owner of the orchard holding the sack.—Trigg

W. F. Delabarre returned Tuesday from an over Sunday business trip to Seattle. Mr. Delabarre is considerable of a dog fancier and an authority on good dogs, and while in Seattle was interested in the coming bench show. He has entered his Ayredale terrier, "Sandy," which by the way is probably the best bred dog on the Pacific slope, and will undoubtedly bring away the prizes in his class.

J. H. Young, former manager of the Postal Telegraph here, came to Angeles Tuesday. Mr. Young is one of the old timers and his many friends are glad to see him. Jim says it is like coming home.

Wednesday's arrivals on the Gertrude were: Miss Mastick, Mrs. J. W. Troy, G. E. Sargent, J. C. Payne, W. R. Kelly, C. E. Pierce, C. S. Myers, A. H. Thompson and family.

Among Mondays arrivals from up sound were Mrs. W. R. Myers, C. E. Shepherd, M. P. Monyhan, Wm. Dent, J. G. Crist, W. C. Habert, Roy Huggett.
