School Board Adopts Budget of $187,500.53

In a public hearing during which no word of disapproval was heard, the school board, Wednesday night, adopted a preliminary budget of $187,500.53 for School District No. 7. This is an increase of nearly $53,000 over last year's budget.

The main increase in expected revenue comes from three sources:

Increase of the state's apportionment per student per day from sixteen to twenty-two cents. This increases revenue from the state from $68,000 to $100,000.

A net surplus of $20,000 left over from this year's budget as compared with $12,969 last year.

Use of all ten mills of the tax levy on the budget instead of placing 2.5 mills on the bond redemption fund as was done last year. This will bring a $12,000 increase in revenue for the budget.

The major portion of increased revenue will be placed in the capital outlay fund. This fund is set aside for construction of new buildings. This fund will be $34,005 this year as compared with $1,900 last year.

Other major increases are:

An increase in expense of instruction from $100,315.45 to $116,821.74. This calls for an approximate ten per cent increase in teacher's salaries.

Increase in expense of operation of School Plant from 11,980 to 12,874. This increase includes a small increase in janitors' salaries, and in light, power and janitors' supplies.

Expense of maintenance of school plant from $4,708 to $5,850. The largest increase here is for repair of buildings.

Expense of auxiliary agencies from $9,256 to $10,500. The largest portion of this will be used in the school library.

This budget is for the school year ending June 30, 1936.

One of the problems discussed by the board was the acute need for increased housing facilities. The high school and junior high buildings have become so overpopulated that an immediate expansion is necessary. It is possible that the Federal gov't will advance money for new buildings if it could be matched by school district funds. It is thought that the district could not haise enough money to match gov't funds for a new high school building but additions to grade school buildings which would permit transference of the 7B classes from Junior high to grade schools were discussed. Wm. Mallis, architect, discussed building costs with the board.

FINAL RITES FOR ILL-FATED SLOT MACHINES

Sheriff to Destroy Machines; Money Will go to County Funds

The last chapter in the infamous slot machine cases was begun Thursday afternoon, when Judge John M. Ralston ordered the sheriff to destroy the machines, now stored in the courthouse basement. The money in the machines will be turned over to the county treasurer to be put with public funds.

The machines were confiscated several months ago under the old regime when the grand jury issued the indictments that were never prosecuted.

The sheriff will break up the machines in a few days.

The Same Old Story Told In New Way

Like in the old story, J. R. McDonald, city garbage collector, turned out to let the bridge go by, Monday night, but with disastrous results. He crashed thru the fence at the east end of the Eighth and Tumwater bridge and came to rest on the brink of the steep drop into the valley. He was extricated from his car by passers-by and led to the county jail where he spent the night.

Tuesday morning he was fined $50 for drunken driving, the fine was suspended and his driver's license was revoked. The car was slightly damaged.

ANTLERS ELECT; PLAN BANQUET

The Antlers of Naval Lodge of Elks 353 elected Tom Heeney to head the lodge as exalted antler for the second consecutive term, Monay night. Other officers elected were Leading Antler, Will Hren, Loyal Antler, Al Buratto, Lecturing Antler, Ralph Gallaci, Recorder, Garth Pinkerton, and Treasurer, Ed Hansen, another holdover.

The incoming officers will be installed by officers of the Elk's lodge next Monday night.

Preceding the installation, Antlers will hold a banquet in the clubroom. All Antlers, members of the Elk's advisory committee, and Elk's officers have been asked to attend .

County Works For Improved Airport

After discussing the county airport and its power line hazard with representatives of the city and the Washington Pulp, Monday, the county commission decided to get expert advice before making definite plans to remove the hazard.

The county will write to Ellsworth French, director of aeronautics for the state of Washington, and ask that he send an accredited man here who will make a survey and give them definite information as to what requirements an airport must comply with to receive federal approval.

It was understood that the high voltage lines which follow the east boundary of the field would have to be moved.

Two plans were advanced: One would move the power lines farther east and the other would move the port farther west.

George Cowling represented the Washington Pulp and Paper Company, and Mayor Ralph Davis and City Engineer Harold Dodge, the city. County commissioners Hayes Evans and Arnold Levy, County Engineer Theo. F. Rixon and Assist. Curtis Barnard met with them.

Students Will Vie For Speaking Honors

Students Will Try Out In School Auditorium To Decide Who Will Go To Seattle

Two Roosevelt high school students will have an opportunity to speak over radio station KOL in Seattle this month.

A speaking contest will be held on April 9 at the auditorium here, the subject of speeches to be "Character Building and Safety." The two students giving the best speeches will give them over KOL on April 26. Other speeches given will be sent in and read over the station programs from time to time.

The public speaking class is especially interested and prospects are for a large field of contestants.

The contest has been arranged in the interests of the Schoolboy Patrol and safety of school children on streets.

DRIVER'S LICENSE REVOKED

Richard Johnson was fined $50 and his driver's license was revoked for six months by Police Judge Thomas Guisness, Monday, for driving while drunk.

FLAMES DESTROY BABCOCK HOME

The Orin Babcock home at Eden Valley was destroyed Monday by fire of unknown origin. Assistant Fire Chief Ernie Harding who took the small city truck in response to a call received at 11:10 Monday morning arrived in time to save outbuildings and a fruit orchard.

When Harding arrived at the ranch ten miles east of town was almost completely destroyed. With the assistance of neighbors much of the furniture had been carried to safety. Pumping water from a nearby slough, Harding put out the house fire and saved the garage, orchard, and sheds.

Orin Babcock, the owner, was in Port Angeles when the fire broke out but other members of the family were at home.

Hiway Patrol Nabs Unlicensed Truckers

Two truckhaulers were given suspended fines in justice court, Monday, for failing to purchase licenses and trial of a third for overloading was set for April 10. J. O. McDonald and Paul Donohue were fined $15 and their fines were suspended on condition they buy licenses in ten days.

They pleaded guilty to charges brought by D. F. McElroy state highway patrolman that they failed to purchase licenses after being warned several times. McDonald was also charged with overloading his trailer.

Trial of Mrs. Noble Burgess for operating a motor truck with a load in excess of the legal limit was set for April 10 by Justice Fred Filion.

SHORE REPLACES ROAD SUPERVISOR

Clyde Shore, third district county commissioner, has announced the appointment of Charles Keller to succeed Angus Smith as road supervisor of the Clallam Bay district.

Keller was a member of the Ozette delegation that stormed the commissioners' meeting last month to ask that Smith be removed. He is a long-time resident of Ozette at the north end of Lake Ozette and for years has been pushing the construction of roads into that section.

NEEDY COUPLE SEND OUT S.O.S. FOR BED, FURNITURE

Case For Mr. Fixit—Aged Folks Reported Destitute; Plead For Aid

Wanted—a bed, spring and mattress.

He's not particular about the condition of the bed. He is seventy-one years old and tired of sleeping on the floor. If he and his aged wife can sleep on it, it will supply the need.

County indigent officer Mavis Perkings has moved them into a county owned house but it has no furniture. By dint of some undercover chiseling she has found a stove for them, but no bed can be located. They have their own dishes and bedclothes.

The floor is a poor sleeping-place, especially when you're past seventy and a little stiff with age. A bed is sorely needed. If you have one to give and you get in touch with Miss Perkings immediately it will save them from another uncomfortable night. How about it, Port Angeles?

Sinclair Pleads Guilty To Three Charges

George Sinclair, hit and run driver, pleaded guilty to three counts in Superior Court, Saturday, and was sentenced by Judge John M. Ralston to serve eight months in jail.

Sinclair pleaded guilty of drunken driving, driving without lights, and failing to stop and render assistance after an accident. He was given one month for each of the first two charges and six months for the third.

Sinclair severely injured Mrs. George Rogers when the Chevrolet sedan which he was driving struck her March 13 at the intersection of First and Second at Pine. The fact that his lights were out explains why she did not see him coming. He did not stop to give assistance or report the accident to the police after striking her. There were four people in the car all of whom were intoxicated, it is reported.

Antlers Lodge Plans Big Time At Elk's Pool

To Be First Swimming Carnival Ever Held in Port Angeles; Committees Appointed

A swimming carnival and meet, first of its kind to be held in Port Angeles, has been planned by the Antlers Lodge for the Elk's pool the latter part of this month. Although no definite plans have yet been approved it is understood that races in free style, backstroke, and breaststroke events will be held, also a plunge for distance and comedy stunts.

The committee working on the meet consists of Jack Cathcart, chairman, Paul Roberts, Al Buratto, pool manager, and Curtis Barnard Jr.

DRUNKS UNABLE TO PAY FINES

This might be titled "The Effect of Drink on the Pocketbook." According to a report submitted to the city commission by Police Judge Thomas Guisness, out of 19 persons fined in police court during March, $59.50 in fines was paid and $188.95 in fines was not paid.

The majority of the cases were connected with drunkenness. The figures show that the deflated pocketbooks of most of the offenders forced them to go to jail rather than pay the fines imposed.

And now one of the nineteen young ladies who are active in The Clallam County Journal's subscription campaign will be luckier than ever—by the time the reports for next Wednesday, April 10, are in, one of the young ladies will be $10 richer, in addition to being a winner, on April 20, of one of the nineteen valuable jewelry prizes.

The Clallam County Journal will award $10 in CASH to the young lady among the active candidates who turns in the most new subscriptions between this Saturday morning, April 6, and the next Wednesday morning, April 10. Here is an opportunity for an ambitious young lady to earn a welcome cash award in addition to one of the nineteen regular prizes for just four short days of pleasant competition.

PRIZE IS EXTRA

This $10 prize is in addition to the regular jewelry prizes which are now on display in the Clallam County Journal's windows, and all subscriptions secured in the next four days will count in both drives—but the $10 prize winner will be named regardless of her standing in the regular schedule.

In this special four-day drive, points will be given according to the schedule printed elsewhere in this issue. In the regular campaign the regular number of votes will be awarded.

There is no special, set number of subscriptions required to win this $10 prize or any of the nineteen other desirable awards. Every candidate is on an equal basis and the one who will win will be the one who does the most work. Those who do not win the $10 will lose absolutely nothing, inasmuch as this prize is absolutely extra and was not included in the original list of nineteen prizes. No candidate entered this campaign knowing about other than the original prizes.

SUBSCRIBERS PROFIT

The Clallam County Journal's subscription campaign will get under way in earnest this week, the campaign manager announced today.

In addition to assuring each candidate a worth-while prize druing the campaign, The Journal will also give every subscriber an opportunity to save on his subscription. During the campaign ONLY, one year's subscription to The Journal will be $1.00 per year or 3 years for $2.50.

The list of prizes for this drive, which has already attracted county-wide attention, appears in a large announcement elsewhere in today's Journal.

PRIZES ARE BEAUTIFUL

But cold type, candidates agree, cannot do justice to prizes as fine as those being offered in this subscription campaign. Young ladies who have not yet seen the beautiful prizes—on display in The Journal windows are urged to do so immediately. Hundreds have marveled at prizes of such outstanding values for such a short campaign.

Help your favorite! Subscribe now!

Names of the candidates appear in today's Journal and will appear in each issue hereafter during the campaign. Watch for them.

LIST IS REPRESENTATIVE

The Clallam County Journal is truly proud of its fine list of young ladies in this campaign—we are confident that no more representative or popular group could be chosen from this city and the districts outside.

Our Motto: A Fearless Presentation of the Truth, With Fairness to Everyone

MILITARISM AND PEACE

There is a battle royal now going on between the militarists of the world, fanned and fed by the jingo press, and the forces of peace and good will. Here in our own country there is at present a determined fight being waged by the leaders of both schools of thought to classify the United States. One group of officials who are parading their views before Congress and the country on being prepared for military eventualities are espousing the necessity of all sorts of preparation for a fight. They are taking full advantage of the unsettled conditions of the world to rattle their sabers and stir in the hearts of our people the fear of war and the danger of immediate attack. These forces are attempting to build a war psychology and create a false kind of patriotism.

The peace lovers of America—not spineless pacifists—are just as determined to promote peace among the nations of the earth, based upon the philosophy of world brotherhood. Those who hold to this view are not indifferent to international relations and the possibilities of armed conflict, but they do believe that there is enough sanity left in the world to adjust differences among nations without resort to force. The people of the world should be intelligent enough to know that wars never settle anything. They never have and they never will. We would recommend that those who foment strife and induce wars be compelled to fight in the front trenches and that the government confiscate all property and take the profit out of war, if and when, we ever are foolish enough to engage in one.—C. L. V.

THE PUBLIC DEBT GROWS

The attention of the nation is now focused on Congress and the main item of interest is in the public debt. A year ago there was very little public interest in the matter, but today the major portion of the populace is concentrating seriously upon the huge total that now seems fixed. The size of the public debt is the barometer of the state of the union. Everything in the nation—its governmental operations and programs—records itself in debt. We are now faced with the fact that while recovery is in process the government is obligating itself far beyond anything ever before known in our history. It is a fact also, patent to anyone who thinks, that the only way we can preserve our national solvency is to pay the debt at some future time.

Our minds grow dizzy as we contemplate the staggering figures—$31,834,000,000 by June 30, 1935. The only comforting thing to the thoughtful citizen is the fixation of a limit. However, the same authority which granted the huge totals already called for may also change the time limit. Let us look back just a little and see where we have come from and forward a little and see where we are going. On March 31, 1917, the total public debt of the United States was $1,282,044,346, a sum now considered trifling. At the close of the World War the debt had increased to $26,596,701,648. This was on August 31, 1919. The government than began paying off, and in a 10-year period reduced the debt to $16,185,309,832. Then the depression came and the debt began creeping up until on June 30, 1933, it was $22,538,672,560. Now it will take a final leap to more than thirty-one billions by next year. It represents and increase of $15,649,000,000 in five years. It is hard to see the end, but what can be done about it? It should give us all pause at least.—C. L. V.

Take me back to Clallam county
Where the Rhododendrons bloom
Where the dogwood and azalias
Fill the air with sweet perfume.
Back among the wild Olympics
Where a man lives next to God
You can take your fall vacation
With your rifle and your rod.

Green meadows wave with wild flowers,
And bubbling little brooks,
Where hungry speckled mountain trout
Take sinker, line and hooks.
Where the foaming Soleduck River
Rushes madly on its way.
And don't forget the Hot Springs,
Where thousands come to play.

Give me this land of nature,
Where the spruce and cedar grows,
And beautiful Lake Crescent
Where the Lyre River flows.
It's a heaven here for tourists,
Finest camping to be found,
And there's untold miles of mountains
Where fish and game abound.

And there's the old Pacific,
Where the breakers pound the sand,
And seal herds migrate past here,
Forty thousand in a band.
Take me back to Clallam county,
Where you dig clams with a scoop
Honest, man, you have seen nothing
'Till you've been around the Loop.

I see where the Clallam County Journal has started a big subscription campaign and they are giving some fine prizes including three diamond rings, ,I think I will put on a dress and get in that contest, but my feet are too big. Oh well, I never did like diamonds anyway, they hurt my eyes when I look at them they shine too brightly. Here's hoping they all tie so every young lady can get a diamond, if some of the winners are engaged to be married they will save some young fellow the price of an engagement ring—good luck, girls!

AS YOU LIKE IT

Editor, Clallam County Journal:

Spring is here, and that means cleanup time once more throughout the city. Perhaps some of the people remember all the articles that Fire Chief Wolverton had published about making the city beautiful. They may also remember how the writer of this article with a crew of men cleaned vacant lots and alleys of rubbish and brush to make it look better to tourists.

Well, to sum up the whole deal come of these same people have forgotten that the City Street Department spent money to build a road off from 16th St. West to a garbage dump,, where junk and waste could be disposed of and not be a sore eye to visitors by piling it upon a vacant lot or on the street.

The Street Department has numerous signs telling about "Parking, unloading zone, Taxi Stand, Hotel Entrance, Bus Stand and last, but not least, is a large yellow and black sign, City Dump one-fourth mile." Alright Dave, you've had a hard row to hoe but let's have another sign from the C. S. D. and o.k.'d by the Police Dept. forbidding people to make a garbage dump at 12th and I streets.

At present the collection so fah one dead dog, three dead cats, two auto bodies and an enormous bunch of tin cans. On one occasion the persons hauling cans was in a hurry and didn't even drive off the street to unload but left cans and glass in the street. It sure did look good to see the large street maintainer grading I Street but instead of pushing dirt in the holes the filler was tin cans.

Yes, we have graded streets and roads and most people will agree that TIN CANS make very poor road ballast. Let us make our city beautiful by getting rubbish out to the dump and not on the streets and vacant lots.

Oh yes Dave, you made some promises, fullfilled some and let some slide, so why not get your some more promises to the people of our BEAUTIFUL CITY.

Thank you,
HAPPY STARK.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. Ten-year-old Penelope is given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin. At a baseball game a ball strikes Penelope on the nose and Mrs. Gatlin removes her from the hospital and spirits her to Europe. Gatlin is about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ends his life. Ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt is a rising young psychiatrist. Dan McNamara, chief of police, brings him a patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's expert testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is won over to Nance's cause, but the girl's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. She escapes, although shot, and goes to Lanny's apartment. Lanny tells Chief McNamara, who orders her to bring Nance to his apartment. One of the men who helped Nance escape has been wounded and his partners take him to Burt's office, where McNamara finds them. He learns that Nance's real name is Penelope Gatlin. Tracing her, he learns from a banker that she is heiress to $750,000. The girl fears McNamara, in his official capacity, and runs away. Lanny finds her, in her apartment, asleep. She again disappears. McNamara learns that she is living in Paris, having drawn a large sum from her American bankers. He also discovers he is in love with Lanny.

"Oh, God, no!" Flynn cried out in agony.

"You must forget Penelope Gatlin and Nance Belden. Will you?"

"Yes, Doctor."

"Make up your mind now that you will never mention those two names again as long as you live. You promise?"

"Yes, Doctor."

"Now, what is the name of the girl whose photograph you showed me?"

A curious slight spasm of distaste flashed across Flynn's face. He shuddered. "I don't know," he replied.

"What is the name of the girl who escaped from San Quentin?"

"I don't know."

Stephen struck Flynn a smart slap on the top of the head. "Wake up,' he commanded.

Flynn came awake instantly and looked extremely foolish. "Well, you didn't stand the test," Stephen assured him. "You were falling asleep, so I awakened you."

"Am I pretty bad, Doc?'

"You're this bad, that if you do not take treatment you will be in a bad way. I'll give you a prescription. Come and see me again."

"Thank you, Doc. You're mighty kind. Good Lord, Doc, am I going crazy? I don't remember why I called on you."

He picked up his hat, bade Stephen good night and left.

CHAPTER X

WHEN the cablegram sent to Penelope Gatlin had been delivered for at least three days Dan McNamara telephoned Lanny to ask if the girl had answered. Upon being told she had not, he was so cast down that Lanny felt sorry for him. So, like all women who feel sorry for a man, she decided to feed him, and invited him for dinner that night. She said Stephen would be there.

"That's no inducement," McNamara rumbled, "but I'll come anyhow. Thanks."

McNamara's thoughts kept shuttling back to Penelope Gatlin all that busy day. Finally he telephoned Flynn to report to him.

"How about that Merton case I sent up to the chief of detectives recently?" he asked, when Flynn appeared. (McNamara hadn't sent the case up at all, but he knew Flynn did not know this.)

"Did you get a line on the girl?"

"Sure. Traced her to an address in Paris."

"Under what name is she registered with the Paris police?"

"Chief, I can't just recall it."

"It was Penelope Gatlin, wasn't it?"

Flynn flinched a little. I don't know."

"You're as bad as Mrs. Merton. What's the matter with you?"

"I don't know, Chief. I think we might as well drop the case."

"Very well, then, forget it, Pat. I was mildly curious, that's all." He dismissed Flynn. "By Jupiter, that fellow's getting too deep for me!" he soliloquized. And he telephoned the captain of detectives. "What about that case of the lost Merton heiress?" he demanded.

"We've dropped it on Flynn's advice."

McNamara grunted and hung up.

Lanny, wearing a kitchen apron, ceased cooking dinner long enough to let him in that night. Stephen had not yet arrived, so McNamara went out into the kitchen with Lanny, while he related the news regarding the common nuisance.

Lanny gazed upon him very benignly. "You're a good man, Dan McNamara. How come you've never married?"

"If I had, my mother would have lived with us," he declared. "How come you've never been married?"

Lanny sighed. "Nobody ever asked me."

McNamara sighed gustily. "My poor mother's very old and in bad health," he said.

"A man like you should have sons—fine big, strapping, manly sons."

"How old are you, Lanny?"

"Forty-two."

"I'm forty-six myself." He sighed again. "You're a fine woman, Lanny—devil a finer. We might manage it."

"Manage what?"

"To put up with mother for the little time she has to live. God bless her."

"I never could stand a left-handed proposal, Dan." Lanny shook her head and gazed at him solemnly.

"Then here's my right hand on it, Lanny," and he laid his great right paw in hers. "If it's sons you'd have, you old darlin', 'tis little time we have to waste."

A faint flush came to Lanny's slightly faded cheeks. "You're not in love with me."

"The h—l I'm not! I'm not used to passing words lightly on such a subject. Give me a yes or no answer."

"You great, lovable idiot!" Lanny yelled. Advancing swiftly upon the chief, she kissed his pompadour. "I'll risk your mother, Dan," she said softly. "All my life I've been looking for a man with a heart in his chest—and the day you first came into the office, with your big, swaggering way and your blarney and your air of owning the world, I—I wondered if you were married. I'm no longer young, Dan. I have peculiar ways and I'm bossy, too—"

McNamara drew her face down and kissed it. "What a blessing I'm used to that, Lanny, and have learned to be kind to the aged. Here quit pulling my hair, woman."

The door bell began ringing.

"What's wrong with you, Lanny?" Stephen demanded when Lanny admitted him. "I rang half a dozen times."

Lanny Sighed. "Nobody Ever Asked Me."

"Do you good to wait once in a while," she snapped back at him.

"Mac," he declared, "you have a proprietary air about you."

"And well I may," McNamara replied pertly. "I've just popped the question to Lanny and we've agreed to jump over the broomstick together."

"I've been expecting this, Dan. She hasn't been worth a canceled postage stamp to me since she met you."

"But I'm not going to leave you, Stevie darling. Oh, I couldn't leave my boy!"

Stephen held out his arms and Lanny ran into them. And then Stephen warned Dan that if he wasn't good to Lanny he would hypnotize him, as he had hypnotized P. Flynn and sell him the idea he was a pet poodle so Lanny could kick him around at will.

"You what?" McNamara yelled. "You put the comether on Flynn?"

"Certainly." And Stephen told him the story.

"Three hundred years ago, in Salem, Massachusetts," said Dan McNamara, "you would have been burned for a witch."

The door bell rang insistently. "Now, who can that be?" Lanny exploded.

Dan rolled out of the kitchen and down the hall. Then Stephen and Lanny heard the door slammed violently; there was a scuffle, and something crashed to the floor.

He came into the kitchen a moment later, leading by her handcuffed wrist none other than Penelope Gatlin. "She wouldn't kiss me first," he announced, "so I put the cuffs on her—the little vixen."

"Oh Lanny you darling! And Stevie you sweetheart!" Penelope cried and extended her manacled arms. Lanny dodged in under them and folded the girl to her heart. "You next Stevie," Penelope ordered, and obediently Stephen lowered his head and the looped arms came around his neck and drew his face down. "And now, Dan," the girl cooed, and turned her face upward.

McNamara laughingly uncuffed her.

"Why didn't you cable us?" Stephen demanded, a trifle severely.

"I adore surprises, that's why."

"Why did you come back?" McNamara demanded.

"The proper place to hide oneself is in the spot one is supposed to have fled from. Lanny, don't let them stand around staring at me and asking me questions," moaned Penelope. "I'm hungry and so tired. Can I have my same little bed tonight?"

"You can have anything and everything you want, my dear."

"I want Stephen," came the answer, faintly tired, and the girl went to him and leaned her sleek black head against his breast. "I've missed you so, Stephen."

Stephen held her close with his left arm, and his right hand came up and cautiously fingered her poor nose. "God's on our side, Lanny," he told his nurse. "Tomorrow I want you to arrange for a room in St. Dunstan's hospital. We'll get Boyd to operate."

"Please, Stephen, do I have to go away any more?" asked Nance.

"No, not any more, my dear."

"And you'll fix my nose? I wanted to have it done in Paris, but when you sent me that cablegram I couldn't, of course. Can I have just the nose I want, Stephen?"

"Yes, little wanderer. And when that's done you shall have the kind of home you want. You've been lost in the woods, poor babe, but I'll lead you out into the loveliest sunshiny meadow imaginable."

* * * * * * *

For the first time since Penelope Gatlin, alias Nance Belden, had come under his notice, Stephen Burt had a reasonable opportunity to examine the girl, when, following dinner at Lanny's house, Penelope, Lanny, Dan McNamara and Stephen retired to the drawing room. Penelope joined in the general conversation, and Stephen noticed that she seemed inclined to be argumentative, but her arguments indicated no cogent thought; frequently she employed the patois of the underworld; her language was racy and idiomatic. He noticed that her laugh was sudden, loud—the laugh of a vulgarian. She was nervous; her hands twined and intertwined continuously, she moved about the room a great deal, and finally came to rest on Stephen's knees. She looked into his eyes searchingly for a long time and then said accusingly:

"You don't care for me."

"Why do you think that, Penelope?"

"Because nobody could love a girl with a nose like mine."

"Did you bring back the sketches that Parisian artist made of you?"

She bounced off his lap and hurride upstairs, to return presently with a portfolio filled with sketches. There was one crayon drawing of her as she was. A half dozen additional sketches were copies of the first, with the exception of the nose. The artist had fitted into her feaaures a nose of his own design, and viewed in profile some of his creations lent to the girl's face an aspect of singular beauty and sweetness.

"I like this one best," Stephen decided. "The patrician nose does you justice. Going to come over tomorrow and give you the most searching physical examination you've ever had," he decided. He drew her over to him and kissed her on the cheek, paternally. "You're a nice, sweet, lovable girl, Penelope," he assured her as if she were a little girl, "and the shape of your nose isn't taken into consideration by the sort of people whose love and approval you desire. And you can get along very well without the love and approval of any other sort. Dan and Lanny and I all love you and we want you to love us. We're your only real friends and you wouldn't do anything to hurt us, would you?"

"I'd rather die, Stephen."

"Fine. You're tired now, so suppose you run upstairs to bed, and tomorrow, when you wake up, you'll be refreshed and happy and we'll be able to discuss the making over of this poor nose. Kiss us all good night."

Penelope dutifully obeyed, and as she was starting up the stairs Stephen said: "And don't forget to say your prayers."

She grimaced disdainfully. "You must think I'm a nut—saying my prayers. I've been prayed to death."

"By whom?"

"I don't know, but by somebody. It makes me ill."

"That was the subconscious revulsion to her adopted mother coming out," Stephen told McNamara. "Mrs. Merton has a strong religious mania. That girl's a mighty healthy specimen," he continued. "Everything about her seems to indicate sound ancestry, and I'm more than ever convinced that her mental disturbance is not organic. However, that's a lead we can run down after we've fixed her nose."

"We'll not fix it in this city, my boy." Thus McNamara.

"Why not?"

"Because when that girl is well she'll probably elect to live her life here, and I don't want a soul in this city, with the exception of ourselves, to know that once she had a saddle nose and a dual personality."

"We can trust the ethical integrity of the man I purpose—"

"I'll trust nobody but myself—and then not too much. Where is the best plastic surgeon in this country?"

"In New York city."

"Lanny, I'll ask the police commission for a sixty-day leave of absence. We'll be married at once and take this child to New York with us, put her in a hospital there and have the job done. While it's being done we'll have our honeymoon."

She Nodded, "So Depressed That at Times I Want to Die."

"Three is a crowd—on a honeymoon," Stephen warned.

"It's nothing of the sort," Lanny defended. "Stevie, you mind your own business. Dan and I know our way about."

"Indeed? Well, just because you're so contumacious, I'm going to tell you something. If I hadn't promoted this engagement, you and Dan would not now be engaged. Dan had you up on a pedestal—which is where you never belonged—and you're so naturally man-shy you never even learned the rudiments of the come-on as practiced by the dullest, so I talked the matter up! I told Dan you were crazy about him and worked up his courage—"

"You're a liar," McNamara said, feebly and without malice.

"Dan McNamara is one man who doesn't have to have help with his courage or thinking," Lanny declared pridefully. "And you do, Stephen Burt. You're adept at lording it over your befuddled patients, but Rebecca P. Lanning is a horse of another color."

"I think I'll go home," Stephen retorted, and went.

He was back in the morning with the impedimenta of his profession. Penelope greeted him gravely. "Good morning, Doctor Burt."

He started. The strident note of Nance Belden was gone from her voice. She spoke now in the low, level tone of the girl of breeding. Then she sat down, and they conversed for half an hour on topics of general interest, but during that time she did not move once from her seat. Her vocabulary was free of underworld expressions, her diction perfect, her sentences grammatical.

"You have had a good night's rest, Miss Gatlin," he ventured.

She nodded, smiling a little. "I am not at all nervous this morning, Doctor Burt. When I am very tired, or excited about something, I am always horribly nervous."

"And you get dreadfully depressed, do you not?"

She nodded. "So depressed that at times I want to die."

"Well, we might as well start your physical examination. I'm going to try to ascertain why you can't be cheerful always. There's a reason, of course, for your nervousness and depression, so I want to examine you very meticulously and see if your trouble can be charged up to some physical condition. Let me feel your pulse."

Eagle Likes Fresh Meat

The eagle likes his meat fresh, and has a beak with which he can get it. It is large, sharp, and strongly hooked, a cruel beak, well calculated to enable its owner to tear tough living flesh.

Meal Planning Made Simple When One Operation Can Be Arranged to Do Work of Two

"How long may cooked meat be kept in the refrigerator? How long may vegetables be kept?" This is a question of particular interest to every one, for several reasons. The cost of meat is a big item in the food budget. The cost of fuel is another item which needs some consideration.

Most of us who organize our meal planning like to make one operation do the work of two or more. We also like to make use of leftovers in such a way that the family will not tire of the food. For this reason we are likely to put an interval between the uses of the original roast and its further use. This is a safe plan if your refrigerator is of the best type. If it is an automatic machine the temperature will certainly be under 50 degrees Fahrenheit, unless it is packed so full of food that the cold air is not able to circulate. If it is an ice refrigerator care must be taken that the ice compartment is kept filled, so that the temperature will be consistent at all times.

Most meat spoilage occurs in the summer time, when ice melts so rapidly that the temperature of the inside of the refrigerator rises. It is difficult to give any definite statement as to length of time that the meat can be safely kept. In general I think that it is a good rule to use cooked fresh meats within two to three days from the time that they were prepared. If there is the slightest odor the meat, of course, should not be used, as tainted meat may cause digestive disturbances of a mild or acute form. The result of these disturbances is sometimes known as ptomaine poisoning, which, however, may be acquired from any food which is handled in an uncleanly manner, if colitus germs are present. These germs thrive on protein foods, such as meat, fish and eggs.

Other foods may also carry colitus germs. This is one of the very good reasons for washing thoroughly all fruits and vegetables before using them. Vegetables and fruits may be used as long as they are crisp and firm.

Modern refrigeration in the home makes it possible to guard our health and our pocketbooks, as vegetables and most fruits, as well as the more sensitive protein foods are subjected to a consistently low temperature that should be provided by a good refrigerator.

Potatoes With Cheese Meringue.

3 cups mashed potatoes
2 tablespoons butter
2 eggs
Hot milk
Salt
Pepper, paprika
½ cup grated dry cheese

As soon as the potatoes are mashed add the butter, seasonings, and egg yolks, beaten slightly. Add the hot milk, enough to produce a soft, creamy texture. Pile in a baking dish, and cover with the meringue, made by beating the egg whites stiff and folding in the grated dry cheese. Sprinkle lightly with paprika, and bake for ten minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until light brown.

Bran and Nut Muffins.

1 egg
1 cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1 cup bran
1 cup flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ cup chopped nuts
2 tablespoons butter

Break the egg into a mixing bowl. Add the milk, sugar and bran and mix well. Mix in the sifted flour, baking powder and spices, and sift it into the egg mixture. Add nuts. Melt the butter or fat and add to the other ingredients. Beat well and turn into muffin pans and bake for 25 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit). Serve hot.

Boiled Frosting.

2 cups sugar
¾ cup water
3 egg whites

Boil the sugar and water until when tested it will hang from the spoon by a long thread (238 degrees Fahrenheit). Pour it over the beaten whites. Beat well and place the bowl in hot water. Beat until fluffy. This frosting will not run.

Island "Turning Over"

Six hundred miles long, Sakhalin island, off the northeast coasts of Siberia, is less than a hundred miles wide at its broadest point. From the east, the turbulent Okhotsk sea licks it with cold and fierce winds. The southwestern part, however, is warmer and the climate is softened by the Japan sea.

Geologists maintain that the island is turning over like a fowl on a spit. Its eastern shore is slowly emerging from beneath the water while the western shore sinks under the ocean. Although the process is very slow—only a few yards in a century—it is said that Sakhalin has already been twice covered by the ocean and has twice emerged. This has been established by the layers of coal alternated with layers of chalk. The island is moving, and occasionally underground thunder shakes the earth.—Vladimir Koudrey in Asia.

If you think you are beaten, you are;
If you think you dare not, you don't;
If you would like to win, but think you can't,
It's almost a cinch you won't.

If you think you'll lose, you're lost,
For out in the world, you'll find
Success begins with a fellow's will,
It's all in the state of mind.

Full many a race is lost
Ere ever a step is run,
And many a coward fails
Ere even his work is begun.

Think big and your deeds will grow,
Think small and you'll fall behind;
Think that you can and you will—
It's all in the state of mind.

If you think you're outclassed, you are;
You've got to think high to rise.
You've got to be sure of yourself before
You can ever win a prize.

Life's battles don't always go
To the stronger or faster man;
For sooner or later the man who wins
Is the fellow who thinks he can!

State Patrol Charged As Scab Convoy

The Seattle Central Labor Council immediately took action under a suspension of its rules to order a telegram sent to Governor Martin protesting against the State Highway Patrol who acted as "convoy" to escort strike breakers last week to the oil tanker, "District of Columbia," lying at Point Wells.

Director Cole of the patrol has declared he has no knowledge of such procedure, but witnesses from picket lines claimed to be in possession of license plate numbers of the cars used for escorting the scabs.

STEVE LIDDANE HEADS NEWSBOYS LOCAL NO. 1

Port Angeles Newsboys Organize; Officers Elected; New Members Initiated April 2

Steve Liddane was elected first president of the Port Angeles Newsboys Union, Local Number One. The organization meets on the first and third Tuesday of each month in the Longshoremen's hall.

Officers elected are Steve Liddane, president; William Liddane, vice-president; Jack Partridge, rec. secretary; Donald Conrad, fin. secretary; and Gilbert Gallagher, guard.

On April 2nd the boys met and initiated nine new members; and believe me, they have a real live local, if you don't toe the mark you are put outside till you cool off.

Irvin Pinyerd was elected press agent, and on April 10th there will be a party given at the Carpenters' Union for the Newsboys' new local—be there boys and have a good time, and be sure to have your card.

NEW CONTRACTS AND BY-LAWS

New contract to be entered into by union restaurants and beer parlors were completed last week by the Culinary Alliance Local 417. The contracts were submitted to the Central Labor Council at its last meeting for the approval of that body. The Council voted unanimously to endorse he proposed contracts.

"We are not asking for higher wages," explained Evelyn O'Reilly, business agent. "We are only putting into written form the wage scae and working conditions which so far have been verbally agreed to."

These new contracts will soon be entered into by proprietors of union houses. May we ask the readers to be especially certain during the coming month that the eating places or beer parlors you patronize display our Union House Card.

The duty of organized labor is two-fold. It is not only in securing fair conditions and reasonable wages for its members but also in effecting all patronage possible of the establishments who are thus deserving of it.

A clear distinction will be made of fair houses and those that are unfair. All possible efforts will be made to stimulate the patronage of union houses.

Local 417 also recently compiled a new set of by-laws. Certain rules set forth in the by-laws coincide with working conditions of the contracts so as to cause a smooth functioning of the organization.

The Longshormen wish to thank the ones who patronized our benefit dance last Saturday night at the I. O. O. F. hall. The report stated that everyone had a good time and the Longshoremen were very sober for then. There will be several dollars for our benefit fund. Listen, don't forget to attend the Sulphite and Pulp workers' benefit dance next Saturday night, April 6th, at the I. O. O. F. hall. Let's cooperate in our activities, social and otherwise to make it more pleasant and profitable to the workers of our community and the ones we come in contact with in the business world for "UNITED WE STAND, DICVIDED WE FALL". Local No. 155, I. B. Pulp & Sulphite & Papaer Mill Workers

We had the pleasure, recently, of being introduced to a new International Vice-President. In the ordinary way this would be nothing extraordinary because we have met Vice-Presidents before. This one was somewhat different, however, in the person of none other than our own John Sherman —just plain Jack to the "regular fellows." We all know Jack and we are all aware by now of his ability. Perhaps the International President had an inkling, too, of his calibre, when he made a special request for his appearance at the International gathering at Buffalo. Whether it was pre-arranged or not it is hard to say, but ye are sure of this fact—that trip was the cause of us having one of our own men from the Pacific Coast elected as Vice-President, to serve on the Pacific Coast. What could be better, than to have a man, thoroughly conversant with the conditions here?—and it sort of makes Local Number 155 feel kind of snooty by the way, to have had the stuff to supply the want.

Jack, in a short talk said, "I am pleased to be standing here before you, as your new Vice-President and I assure you that I will do everything in my power to assist you in anything that will benefit the brotherhood generally and too, I will fight for the benefit of the paper industry which is your mea ticket."

A few simple words but from Jack they meant just plenty.

He went on tell us of the condition into which the Pulp and Paper Industry in the U. S. A. was surely slipping and based his contention on facts gleaned from talks with men from all quarters of the States and Canada and too, to facts regarding tonnage of imports from foreign countries during the last few years. I can not quote the amounts, but as he detailed them, it is a matter for some very deep thinking.

Some method has to be devised to put a brake on the importation of pulp and paper from countries where they pay as low as 8 and 12 cents per hour to their employes. If we have to compete with these wages it won't be long before we'll all be down on the beach eating clams like the pioneers of this town did in adverse times—that is if we can fnd any clams because even they are passing out in millions in protest to cheap importation of their own kind in cans from foreign lands.

We got sort of tired, some short while back, of picking up our morning papers and after having read a short article, would glance down to scan the cut-offs in the column to find apparently it was entitled "BUY AMERICAN" instead of the printers' usual short line, we found Buy Ameri-

TO ALL LABOR UNIONS

The American Federation of Labor stands firmly and boldy against racketeering and gangsterism in all forms. It is the particular duty of the officers of the federation and its executive council, its organizers and representatives, and the officers and members of all international and national and national unions, state federation of labor, city central bodies, local unions and of all other divisions of the trade movement, to use every means within their power to prevent the entrance of racketeering or gangsterism into any part of the movement; and to purge it of any taint of this menace which may have entered into it in any part of the country.

The trade unions are an essential factor in our industrial, economic and social life. They are necessary to the social welfare of the community. They are the only means through which working people can effectively participate in the determination of their wages and working conditions. Through trade unions alone it is possible for the workers to be adequately represented at hearings and conferences relating to laws and public regulations which vitally effect their interest. The trade unions are the only medium through which the organized voice of the worker can be heard in a representative manner in the legislative hallo of the city, state, and nation. In a thousand ways trade union organization, that is to say the organization of workers of common r allied occupations for the purpose of discussing their common problems and needs especially as relating to wages and working conditions, is of such tremendous importance in the lives of the working people that it is difficult to imagine anything that can be more dangerous to the common weal than the misuse or perversion of any of these organizations to purposes other than those for which they were brought into existence by their members. Through them the worker finds the means of a happier and better life, that reaces not only into his place of employment but into his home, to his wife, and even to the very babe in the cradle. The progress he makes through trade union activities enhances his opportunity to secure for his children the education to which they are entitled. It enables him to participate more actively in the civic life of the community. It means for him greater freedom to make the sort of social contacts so necessary to the fulfillment of life. Higher wages, better sanitation, greater safety and shorter work time at his place of employment send him out to his home with more to give his family, a stronger, cleaner, healthier man with time to sit at his own fireside, to meet with his neighbors, to assume his place in the political life of the community, and to participate in all of its social activities.

There is certainly no place in any of these splendid organizations for gangsters or racketeers or others who would misuse the good name of the trade union movement, or any of its divisions. President Green, the executive council and the affiliated national and international unions have whenever necessary, taken action in particular cases of such character as to have no doubt as to the attitude of the American Federation of Labor on this point. In view of the fact, however, that the question has been raised at this convention, your committee has deemed it wise to present this statement for approval here in order that no enemy of the movement may be in a position to say that the convention failed to reiterate the position of the American Federation of Labor on this subject.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING IS MAIN ISSUE IN PACIFIC TANKER SEAMEN'S STIRKE

San Francisco, Calif.—Refusal of the owners and operators of the Pacific Coast Oil tankers to keep their agreement to bargain colectively with the International Seamen's Union and adopt the policy of all other Pacific Coast shipowners in granting employment preference to members of that organization was declared to be the major issue in the strike of the oil tanker seamen in a joint statement by Eugene Burke, chairman, and George Larson, secretary of the strike committee.

Mr. Burke is secretary of the Marine Cooks and Stewards' Association of the Pacific Coast and Mr. Larson is secretary of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, both affiliated with the International Seamen's Union of America.

The statement said:

RECOGITION PROMISED

"When the marine strike ended on July 31, 1934, the seafaring personnel of the Pacific Coast tanker fleet returned to work under the promise of the tanker companies that they would recognize the International Seamen's Union and enter into collective bargaining if the seamen employed on tankers should by secret ballot (under U. S. Government auspices) elect the International Seamen's Union as their representative.

"This voting continued for three months, i. e., up to October 28. When the ballots were finally counted it developed the International Seamen's Union had won an overwhelming victory. This was a bitter disappointment to the tanker companies, as they had anticipated the defeat of the International Seamen's Union.

"After mucht procrastination and inexcusable delac, a committee from the tanker operators finally agreed to meet the Pacific District Committee of the International Seamen's Union. The first meeting was held in San Francisco on January 25, 1935, nearly six months after the marine strike was called off. Negotiations were continued during the month of February but without arriving at mutually satisfactory conclusions.

"In the meantime, the International Seamen's Union has negotiated and signed agreements [illegible] the shipping concerns [illegible] Coast, including the [illegible] Co., which owns as much tanker tonnage as al the Pacific Coast tanker companies combined.

"The Atlantic agreement did not establish the so-called 'closed shop,' but granted preference in employment to qualified members of the International Seamen's Union.

"The Pacific tanker companies have stubbornly refused to yield an inch on this point although all other Pacific Coast shipowners, including the largest operators, suh as the Dollar Steamship Company and the Matson Lines, have ference before formal arbitration proceedings were begun.

1934 STRIKE RENEWED

"In other words, the Pacific tanker companies have delayed collective bargaining with the authorized representatives of their seafaring employes for six months. And now they refuse to concede what all other American shipowners have valuntarily granted.

"Under the circumstances, there appeared to be no hope for improving the wages and working conditions of these tanker seamen except by resuming the strike that ended, under certain promises, on July 31, 1934.

"It is still lawful in America to strike for better conditions when all other means and methods toward that end produce only delay and still more delay.

"Eugene Burke, Chairman,
George Larsen, ,Secretary."

California Police Aid Employers Against Lettuce Strikers

Joseph M. Casey, a general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, was in Imperial Valley, Calif., during the strike of the Fruit and Vegetable Workers' Local Union No. 18211, an affiliate of the A. F. of L. At the request of the Central Labor Council of Long Beach, Calif., Mr. Casey prepared an account of the labor dispute which resulted in the strike, the mobbing and murdering of strikers by a gang of roughnecks recruited by the employers and the unholy alliance with the mob by the California state police.

MR. CASEY'S STORY:

"A real picture of the circumstances surrounding the recent atrocities in the Imperial Valley is impossible without a clear and definite outline of the disgraceful background that attaches itself to this un-American area.

Override Law and Right

"For several years back the unconscionable public officials, goaded on by lawless absentee landlords, ahve successfully defied federa and state intervention.

"The program of infamy pursued in the Imperial Valley ranges from scurrilously insulting attacks upon the person of the President of the United States to the savage and unmentionable exploitation of alien Mexicans.

"No authority, no laws and no rights that conflict with the dastardly code of the 'powers that be' in 'Imperial Valley'—as they love to call it—are permitted an evistence.

"With this confronting them it is easy to conceive what terrific odds a group of migratory fruit and vegetable workers faced in the prosecution of a strike for their just desserts.

Migratory Workers Organize

"Each year in early winter thousands of vegetable workers migrate to Imperial Valley to process and pack a lettuce crop that normally comprises about 15,000 car loads.

"For [illegible] the history of the Valley, December 1934 found these fruit and vegetable workers fairly well organized under the banner of the Fruit and Vegetable Workers' Local Union No. 18211 of the American Federation of Labor.

"This organization had succeeded in establishing decent wages and humane working conditions throughout California with the exception, of course of the Imperial Valley.

Union Representatives Ignored

"Without proposing a single drastic change, the officers of the union, as far back as December 15, 1934, asked to meet representatives of the Shipper-Growers, as the employers are known, and were repeatedly stalled off.

"Personal interviews were sought, letters were forwarded, but all to absolutely no avail. Finally, on February 3, 1935, the union drafted an agreement embodying the rates of pay and working conditions prevalent in the lettuce industry.

Strike Is Declared

"An order was voted to strike any Shipper-Grower who, after reasonable time to negotiate, failed to meet with the union's demands.

"By February 12, 1935, eight Shipper-Growers signed the union agreement and about 52 held out. At 3 P. M. on this date about 1,500 shed workers walked off their jobs in Imperial Valley.

"The orderly manner in which teh walkout was conducted and the systematic and highly effective program of peaceful picketing that was followed, brought about a type of opposition possible only this cesspool of America.

"A crew of irresponsible and unknown morons was prevailed upon to break the strike with the law enforcing bodies arming them with pick handles, pistols and deputies' badges. This unnecessary and promiscuous deputizing of non-resident strike-breakers finally resulted in the uncalled for and cold-blooded murder of two striking pickets.

State Cossacks Hunt Strikers

"Next we find the State of California shamefully aiding and abetting this land of terroristic vigilantism and fascism by sending in police from the state highway patrol.

"The attitude of these 'cossacks' was so bitterly biased that union strikers were hunted from the public streets like dogs.

"What a sad commentary on our vaunted American civilization that such a lawless area is permitted to exist—yes! not only permitted but actually assisted by the taxes of millions of Californians."

Retail Clerks and Culinary Entertain

On March 26th the Retail Clerks and Culinary Alliance two local unions, gave a party at Carpenter's hall. Dancing and playing games were part of the evening's entertainment.

Another feature was an Auction sale in which several dozen hats were sold, and a neat revenue was realized on the sale. W. W. Meyers, President of the Central Labor Council was auctioneer, and if current reports are true, the President made it a great sale, ata boy Walt.

A light lunch was served and a good time was had by all.

"Well," answered the captain, his face showing a puzzled look, "she's the first craft I ever seen that has a head wind no matter which way you p'inted her."—Boston Daily Globe.

The "liquid test"

...it ENDS bowel worries for many people

This is a test that tells you whether the system needs a cathartic change. If you have constant sluggish spells or bilious attacks, and laxatives seem to make things worse, it would be wise to try this:

Stop all use of any laxative that does not encourage variation from a "fixed dose" (which may be entirely too large a dose for your individual need). Use instead, a liquid laxative that you can measure and regulate as to dose. As necessary to repeat, take smaller doses, less and less often, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

Doctors use liquid laxatives, and a properly prepared liquid laxative, containing natural laxative agents like senna and cascara is a joy and a comfort; a real help in establishing regularity. Ask your doctor about this! (Doctors use liquid laxatives.) You can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a most dependable liquid laxative, at any drug store.

Chancellor Hitler's Defiance of Treaty Provisions Alarms Europe; Drouth Threat Causes Wallace to Lift Restrictions on Spring Wheat Planting.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

©, Western Newspaper Union.

GERMANY, having recently boldly announced that she was now possessed of a military air force in violation of the Treaty of Versailles, still more boldly declares she is no longer bound by the obligations of that pact and proposes to build up an army of about 480,000 men, comprising 12 corps of three divisions each. This was the decision of the cabinet, which decreed compulsory military training throughout the reich.

Chancellor Hitler

The exact number of men in the army will be determined by a law to be enacted later.

This was Chancellor Hitler's reply to the action of France's chamber of deputies in accepting Premier Flandin's plan to increase the term of conscript service in the French army to 18 months and subsequently to two years. Germany considered that France was "dealing the last blow to disarmament," and Hitler, rushing to Berlin from Berchtesgaden, directed the action of the cabinet and issued to the German nation a rousing appeal for full support. He declared that the failure of other nations to reduce armament as called for in the Versailles treaty had released Germany from all treaty obligations, and that while the reich had only peaceful intentions, it must re-arm to protect its territorial integrity and maintain the respect of the world as a co-guarantor of European peace.

France is in no mood to take Hitler's defiance "lying down." An appeal was sent to the League of Nations to convoke an extraordinary council to deal with Germany's violation of the Versailles pact. The note hinted at the possibilities of economic sanctions (penalties) against Germany which might result in a boycott. An attempt is being made to force Britain into an alliance with France, and the mission of Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, to bring Germany back into the comity of European nations is regarded as seriously compromised. France and Italy insist that Simon go to Berlin as spokesman of the three powers, and not as the representative of Britain alone. Premier Mussolini is said to be backing France, and is alleged to be the prime mover in a scheme to revive the pre-war policy of encircling Germany with a ring of steel.

President Roosevelt expressed his hope that his "good neighbor" policy might be extended to Europe as a basis for peaceful settlement of the tense situation. Just how the President expects to prevail upon those traditional enemies to become "good neighbors" was not fully explained. He declined to say whether this government will send a note to Germany protesting abrogation of military provisions of the separate treaty with this country. Although the United States is not a signatory to the Versailles pact, the separate peace treaty negotiated with Germany includes the military phases of the Versailles treaty. Many people in this country feel that United States intervention in the European dispute is neither necessary nor advisable.

GOV. MARTIN L. DAVEY of Ohio, charged by Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins with "corruption" in Ohio relief, went before the state senate and demanded a thorough investigation. He defied Hopkins to come to Ohio for trial on a warrant he had secured charging Hopkins with criminal libel. Hopkins had alleged in a letter that he has proof of "corruption" of relief administration in Ohio including soliciting of funds for campaign purposes from firms that sold relief materials. Hopkins, through C. C. Stillman, FERA regional officer, has taken over administration of Ohio relief. Department of Justice attorneys in Washington declare they stand ready to defend Hopkins, but that there was no indication that Hopkins would go to Ohio, although he may change his mind. The spectacular blowup is said to have had its inception in the 1934 political campaign. Davey made campaign speeches charging that Ohio relief was mismanaged, and particularly aimed his barbs at Cleveland. This irked Cleveland leaders since relief there had been administered through a non-political group, which later became the official Cuyahoga county relief administration. Hopkins often took note of the fact that Cleveland's relief committee was "one of the best in the country." Later Davey pledged himself not to touch the Cleveland organization, but is said to have ousted several members, and repeated old charges. Cleveland leaders took the fight to Washington.

Ohio Democrats stand firmly behind Davey. The Democratic delegation to the Ohio legislature appealed to President Roosevelt "to right the wrong which had been done our governor" and Francis W. Poulson, Democratic state chairman, summoned to appear before the grand jury, delivered a scathing attack on Hopkins. Poulson charged that Republicans in high government offices "have betrayed the President," and named Hopkins as "one who could be expected to tear down the Democratic party."

CLARENCE DARROW, foe of NRA, and author of the famous report which attacked NRA more than a year ago, assailed the administration's economic theories, including the national recovery act, in his testimony before the senate finance committee. The famous lawyer whose sharp speech and fiery courtroom tactics have made him famous, denounced NRA as playing into the hands of big business to the destruction of the "little fellow." He argued that NRA attacked the problem from the wrong angle and that the real trouble lay in faulty distribution, thus assailing the theory of scarcity. Darrow swept aside statements that NRA had helped organized labor, reduced unemployment and abolished child labor, with an assertion that it would have happened anyway. "The panic put an end to child labor," he said. "There wasn't any room for it while fathers and mothers were out of work."

"There is no question that small business has suffered under the NRA," Darrow continued. "It has suffered more than it would have suffered otherwise."

RESTRICTIONS on planting spring wheat have been removed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who fears the effect of another widespread drouth. The year's first crop report showing that farmers intend to plant 17,847,000 acres of spring wheat is said to be responsible for Wallace's about face. Last year the acreage was 18,521,000 acres. The administration is convinced that the government and farmers have a duty to protect consumers against a wheat shortage, he said. Farmers will plan an additional 900,000 to 2,300,000 acres as a result of the new order, and will harvest between ten and thirty million bushels more, Wallace estimates. Spring wheat normally constitutes about one-fourth of the nation's crop. He denied that the European situation pointing to a possibility of increased sales had anything to do with the new decision. Farmers under contract who plant their full spring wheat acreage will receive full benefit payments, but in return will be required to agree to reduce production in 1936 by the amount asked in next year's contract plus the amount they would have reduced this year. There is no indication that the corn acreage control program for 1935 will be altered.

Sec'y Wallace.

BY A vote of 202 to 191, the house voted to substitute the Patman currency expansion bill for payment of the soldiers' bonus for the "sound money" plan of Representative Vinson. A boisterous house thus defied President Roosevelt's warning that he will veto immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates. The administration is counting on the senate sustaining the veto.

DONALD R. RICHBERG was named by the President to lead a reorganized NRA board, taking the place of S. Clay Williams, resigned. At the same time the President increased the group governing the Blue Eagle agency from five to seven. A White House statement emphasized the change was made to accelerate the drive to push extension of the NRA through congress.

THE federal tree planting project will get under way in North Dakota on April 15. The project has already been started in other states, but the major development of the program will be centered in North Dakota this year. The state has been assigned a quota of 600,000 trees for a belt 35 miles long. This is only a part of the operations which envisage a 100-mile wide belt of trees extending from near the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico. The work started March 1 in Texas and Oklahoma, and March 15 in Kansas. Nebraska and South Dakota projects will be started at the same time as that in North Dakota.

Sherman Pledges Support To P. & S. B.

can plastered here, there, and everywhere. How nice it would be if that particular publication and many of its brothers and sisters throughout the nation were to give serious thought to the old saying, "PRACTICE WHAT YOU PREACH." In that case we wouldn't care if the foreigners worked for eight cents per hour or paid eight cents per hour for the privilege of working.

The movement is afoot now to bring pressure to bear on the President and congressmen to aid in the protection of our Pulp & Paper Industry—that is good. Borther "Jack" Sherman has, I understand, toted his carcass round to the various cure organizations and laid the facts before these bodies. It is up to them to help in fighting this menace to our very livelihood because if we sink they can't float. So dig in everybody—and grab a pencil when the petition comes your way and sign on the dotted line.

It is pleasing to see that the Chamber of Commerce is more active than ever and many worthwhile projects are on the list for direct action. Billy Wealsh as Persident is showing plenty of push especially with regard to the Pulp and Paper situation—good work Bill—use the gavel freely and make 'em dig their toes in under the heading of "Good and Welfare"—we're looking to you.

Let's not forget that, if you haven't already signed the petition which will help to assure the Paper industry in this country from migrating to Europe, please do so at once.

By the way, in case you don't know, the reason that you get sore eyes on Sunday morning reading your funnies, which are printed in miniature form, is that imported paper rolls which do not exceed 15 and one-half inches in width come into this country free of duty. Do you see the point? Get out the yard stick and measure for yourself.

And as a parting shot—her's one you have never heard—That's 30 for tonight—Fraternally, Correspondent.

Rosicrucian Books At Library Now

Additional volumes treating on the subject of Rosicrucianism have been added to the collection of Rosecrucian philosophy at the local public library. Mrs. Bessie Rex Haynes of this city, local Rosicrucian member, states that she has been informed by the Grand Secretary of the Rosicrucian Order with national headquarters in San Jose, California, that because of the demand for works on this subject, it has been found necessary to donate further copies to the Port Angeles Public Library. Mrs. Haynes also declares that since the Rosicrucian Order, known as the AMORC, is not a religious organization, all of its publications are treatises on philosophy, metaphysics, the sciences and arts, the objevt of the organization being to acquaint the student or member with the nature of existence and to give an understanding of the fundamental laws of life so as to permit him to realize a fuller and more abundant existence.

"The selection of cities for the periodic national Rosicrucian conclaves is determined," further stated Mrs. Haynes, "by the interest shown by the reading public in the organization's publications and monthly periodical 'The Rosicrucian Digest' in the public libraries."

In addition to holding membership conclaves in such cities, extensive advertising is then conducted by the Grand Lodge in the local press. The funds that make possible the donation of books to the public libraries are the result of contributions of local members of the organization.
