TELEPHONE TO TOWNSEND

Townsend Call Tells Story of Independent Company's Rapid Growth.

Townsend and Port Angeles are in connection by telephone today!

The Independent Telephone Company which set up in business less than two years ago completed today one of the objects desired from the first when the linemen strung the last foot of wire and made final connections on the Angeles-Dungeness line.

By way of opening the line in proper manner a request was made to The Call that a representative be sent to the Townsend end of the wire in the Western Union office. The city editor was dispatched and in a few minutes he was exchanging fraternal greetings with E. B. Webster of the Port Angeles Olympic-Leader. Conversation was carried on for several minutes and the "talkfest" proceeded without a hitch, words spoken in an ordinary pitch were heard as clearly over the sixty-five miles of wire as though the conversation had taken place between two parties in the same town but a few blocks apart.

The line which now extends from this city to Port Angeles via Hadlock, Chimacum, Center, Tarboo, Leland, Quilcene, Junction, Blyn, Seguin, and Dungeness, was given its first start by Mr. J. H. Munn of Leland. He built a line unaided from his residence at Lake Hooker to Hadlock via Tarboo, Center and Chimacum. At Hadlock he was met by a short line from this city put in by A.T. West, at that time local manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company. This was the beginning which shortly after crystalized into the organization of the Independent company.

Since then great strides have been made. Nearly every farmer in the Chimacum and Leland valleys has a 'phone in his home and the same is rapidly becoming true of the country about Seguin and Dungeness. Mr. Munn does most of the linework although men at both ends of the line take care of their sections. The construction has all been done under Mr. Munn's supervision.

The Independent company numbers several local stockholders. A. T. West, now at Seattle, retains his interest and about a year ago outside capital was interested. The extension of the line to Port Angeles is a decided step in the line of advancement for the west side.

The Independent company, now having occupied the field to the west of Townsend, will soon extend their line to Seattle and other up-sound points.

The charges are made very low being 35c between Townsend and Angeles, and 25c from either end to Dungeness and Seguin.

Banks to Close.

The local banks will not be open Monday next, the 4th, that day being set aside as Labor Day—and besides, trout fishing is particularly fine in the streams just now.

Annual Picnic.

The Degree of Honor will hold their annual picnic at Civic Park Monday, Sept. 4th, to which all members of the A. O. U. W. and D. of H. are invited to come, with well-filled baskets. In the the opera house to which everyone is invited.

AWAKES FROM LONG SLUMBER

Question of Control of P.A.E. Will Be Decided — Somehow — Sometime.

After slumbering for some weeks there was a slight eruption in the celebrated case of State ex rel Belvin, et al., vs. The Port Angeles Eastern R. R. Co., et al., on Wednesday, when the motion of Belvin and associates to strike the affirmative defenses from the answer of the defendants was overruled and denied by Judge Hatch.

The answer pleads as an affirmative defense all the facts showing the transactions of Belvin and his associates with the railroad company and its officers and stockholders; how the contract was originally entered into; the representations made by Belvin to procure modification of the original contract and to enable him to secure the control of the stock. It is charged that these representations were all false and made for the purpose of deceiving and swindling the stockholders out of their property and by fraud and bad faith secure the control of the corporation, without in any manner complying with the terms of the contract. It is further charged that Belvin and his associates in the British American Finance Co. and their attorney, J. B. Metcalfe, conspired and confederated together to carry out this fraudulent scheme.

In passing upon this motion Judge Hatch took occasion to say that if the facts alleged in the answer were true, that Mr. Belvin and his associates were not coming into court with clean hands and were not in a first rate position to invoke the powers of a court of equity and good conscience in their behalf.

Board of Equalization.

The proceedings of the Board of Equalization, which has been in session a number of days the past month, will be published in the next issue of the Olympic-Leader. In about one hundred instances a very material increase was made in the assessment figures, and reductions, being mostly on real estate, in some twenty others.

Four Million Shingles.

D.W.Morse, Supt. of the Morse Dock, as an indication of the prosperous condition of the Angeles shingle industry, says there are 4,000,000 shingles on the dock awaiting shipment to California ports, but it is impossible to secure carriers, as all seem to be busy moving Washington's immense wheat crop.

When in town call on Baker, the Second Hand Man.

Much Ado About Nothing

The arrival here Wednesday, by team, of three Great Northern railroad men was the cause of no little conjecture on our streets, and the starting of many rumors, all of which were without the least foundation of fact. The gentlemen, who were at the Merchants, were S. Gardner Yerkes, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt., at Seattle, Jno. F. McChesney, the President of the Everett Land & Improvement Co., and H. M. Adams, Asst. Traffic Manager, Seattle. They drove from Townsend to Ludlow and to Angeles, spending a couple of days looking over the country, or rather in showing Mr. Adams the country, as he is a new man in this section and was desirous of seeing this part of the Sound. Messrs. McChesney and Adams returned to Seattle Thursday morning, while Mr. Yerkes stopped off at Townsend to look after some business matters.

ELWHA RIVER.

By C. A. Welch, Purser on the Saturn.

On Elwha's banks, that ever rushing stream,
Far from the busy haunts of men;
It lingers in my memory like a dream,
The time I wandered through each bosky glen.

Near by the surf beat on the strand,
Heaped o'er with sea-wrack water worn;
The snipe and plover haunt the beach,
Whose sands by mighty storms are torn.

Before our vision stretches Puget Sound,
Now calm and peaceful as a lake;
Anon, its gales strew wreck and ruin 'round,
From passing ships a fateful toll they take.

Afar inland the Olympic's snowclad peaks,
From hill and dale, and erstwhile o'er the lea,
Each murmuring rill from them an outlet seeks,
Rushing and gurgling so merrily to the sea.

Among its limpid pools the wary trout,
With eager hunger watch for tempting prey,
Like molten silver flashing in and out,
They live their brief but happy day.

At noon whilst resting listless 'neath the trees,
In full contentment of our happy lot,
The ear is soothed by drowsy drone of bees,
I'd love to linger longer in this charming spot.

At night by the campfire lying at our ease,
We listen to the surf, and slumbering dream:
We hear in dreams the murmuring of the trees,
And the babbling of the ever rushing stream,

In other lands afar, in bygone days,
I've roamed the pathless wildwood and the glen;
I've known the keen hot lust of he who slays
The monarch of the forest in his den.

But this spot I love well; serene and calm,
With dusky shady groves of cottonwood and pine,
Whose ever murmuring streamlets chant a psalm
Of joy, and seem to be a sign,
Of hopes renewed and days more bright,
And thus I muse and watch the fading light,

* * * * * * * *

Where e'er I wander in the days to come,
In foreign climes far from my native home,
Oft' times I'll wish I could return to that dear spot,
"The world forgetting, and by the world forgot."

TO ASSIST STUDENTS.

State University Employment Bureau Reorganized.

Seattle, Aug. 28.—An employment bureau has been organized by the university branch of the Y. M. C. A., and, under the direction of the newly elected general secretary, C. M. Rood, who arrived last week from the University of Wisconsin, the branch will be made one of the most important in the university. This bureau promises to be a most valuable asset to the university inasmuch as, through its instrumentality, employer and employe will be brought together. Through it many a student will be saved to the university and will be enabled to enjoy a college education. Last year an employment bureau was tried at the university, and the success of the project was remarkable. More positions were offered than could be filled by student applicants. When it is known that over half te students at the college are supporting themselves in whole or in part, the incalculable value of an employment bureau to facilitate the securing of positions is recognized.

Alaska Cable Receipts.

Seattle, Aug. 28.—Receipts at the government cable office during the first year the line has been in operation approximate $100,000. With August to be added it is believed the figures will fully reach that total. The growth of the cable business has been steady, and has come from all parts of the country.

COMPLETE ACCORD ON ALL QUESTIONS

Peace Conference Will Now Proceed to Elaboration of Treaty--Japan Yields Indemnity.

Portsmouth, Aug. 29.—The official bulletin of today's session of the peace conference is as follows:

At the session of August 29 the conference arrived at a complete accord on all the questions, and it has been decided to proceed to the elaboration of a treaty.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 29.—The Japanese yielded practically everything. They accepted the Russian ultimatum, no indemnity and the division of Sakhalin without payment of redemption money.

The Japanese also yielded interned warships and limitation of naval power

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 30.—The long and bloody war between Japan and Russia is ended.

The terms of peace were agreed upon by M. Witte and Baron Komura at the session of the conference yesterday morning, and in the afternoon preliminary arrangements for an armistice were concluded and the actual work of framing the "Treaty of Washington" was by mutual agreement turned over to Mr. de Martens, Russia's international lawyer, and Mr. Demmison, who for twenty-five years has been the legal adviser of the Japanese foreign office.

The happy conclusion of the conference, which a week ago would have been shipwrecked had it not been for the heroic intercession of President Roosevelt, was sudden and dramatic. For the sake of peace Japan, with the magnanimity of a victor, at the last moment yielded everything still at issue.

Czar Refuses to Budge.

Russia refused to budge from the ultimatum Emperor Nicholas had given to President Roosevelt through Ambassador Meyer. No indemnity under any guise, but an agreement to divide Sakhalin and reimburse Japan for the maintenance of prisoners were his last words. They had been repeatedly reiterated in M. Witte's instructions, and on a request for a written reply to the Japanese compromise proposal of last Wednesday they were delivered to Baron Komura yesterday morning. M. Witte went to the conference declaring that he was powerless to change the dot of an "i" or the cross of a "t" in his instructions. Emperor Nicholas' word had been given not only to him, but to President Roosevelt, the head of a foreign state.

When Baron Komura, therefore, first offered the new basis of compromise outlined in the Associated Press dispatches last night (the complete renunciation of indemnity, coupled with a proposition for the redemption of Sakhalin at a price to be fixed by a mixed tribunal consisting of representatives of the neutral powers, in fact, if not in words, offered by the president), Mr. Witte again returned a non possumus.

Thought It Had Failed.

It was what M. Witte termed in his interview with the Associated Press the "psychological moment." M. Witte did not flinch. He feared a rupture, and as he expressed it afterward, he was stunned by what happened. Baron Komura gave way on all disputed points.

With the prescience that has enabled the Japanese to gauge the mental processes of their adversaries on the field of battle and upon the sea, they had realized in advance that peace could be obtained in no other way. They had warned their government. President Roosevelt has also, it is believed, advised Japan that it was better to meet the Russian position than to take the responsibility of continuing the war for the purpose of collecting tribute. The mikado, at the advice of the cabinet and elder statesmen yesterday had sanctioned the final concession.

When Baron Komura yielded the rest was mere child's play.

Takes Only Part of Railway.

Articles 10 and 11 (interned warships and the limitation of Russia's sea power in the far East) were withdrawn. Japan agreed that only that portion of the Chinese Eastern railway south of Chantfu, the position occupied by Oyama, should be ceded to Japan. Both sides, once the deadlock was broken, wanted a "just and lasting" peace, and in that respect it was decided to practically neutralize Sakhalin, each country binding itself not to fortify its half of the island, and Japan assumed an obligation not to fortify Laperouse strait, between Sakhalin and Hokkaido, which would bar Russia's commercial route to the Pacific.

The plenipotentiaries went further. They decided to add a new clause in the nature of a broad provision for mutual commercial privileges by which each country will secure from the other the benefit of the "most favored nation" clauses—that is, the "open door."

Alliance to Be Outcome.

The new treaty therefore will be a wonderfully friendly document, of a character almost to raise the suspicion that the two countries have not only negotiated peace, but have concluded the basis of a future alliance. There is, however, no evidence, as rumored, that any secret clauses are to be appended to the present treaty.

Before leaving the conference building felicitations were exchanged with the president at Oyster Bay. Both Baron Komura and M. Witte telegraphed. The former confined himself to apprising the president of the conditions upon which peace had been concluded. M. Witte frankly laid his tribute at the president's feet. In his message he said:

"History will ascribe to you the glory," and added an expression of Russia's hearty appreciation of the president's "generous initiative." Mr. Roosevelt replied with words of thanks and congratulation. Then began the jubilation.

M. Witte and Baron de Rosen returned to the hotel for luncheon. The Japanese had remained at the conference hall to lunch with Mr. Pierce. The news that peace had been concluded had preceded the Russian plenipotentiaries and such scenes of wild rejoicing have never been witnessed in the state of New Hampshire as greeted them on their arrival at the hotel. M. Witte, amazed at the sudden and happy termination of the conference, was fairly overpowered by the tremendous ovation he received. He could only express his gratitude by shaking hands with everybody.

Later in his room, when he had partially recovered himself, he declared that he could not have dreamed of such a victory, for that he regards it as a diplomatic triumph of the first magnitude he makes no attempt to conceal, and that is the general verdict here tonight. The Russians are overjoyed at the result.

"We have had our Liaoyangs and Mukdens on land," they say, "and our Tshusimas on sea, but the Japanese have their Portsmouth."

THE DEMANDS AND THEIR DISPOSITION

The substance of the Japanese terms, with the action taken at the peace conference follows:

1. Russia's recognition of Japan's "preponderating influence" in Korea, with her right to preserve order in the civil administration, give military and financial advice to the emperor of Korea. Japan binding herself to observe the territorial integrity of Korea and (it is believed) the policy of the "open door." Accepted.

2. Mutual obligation to evacuate Manchuria. Accepted.

3. Japan's obligation to restore in Manchruia Chinese sovereignty and civil administration. Accepted.

4. Mutual obligation to respect in the future "the territorial integrity and administrative entity" of China in Manchuria and to maintain the principle of equal opportunity for the industry and commerce of all nations ("open door"). Accepted.

5. The cession of the island of Sakhalin to Japan. Russia retains northern half, Japan taking lower half, neither to be fortified.

6. The surrender to Japan of the Russian leases of the Liaoyang peninsula, including Port Arthur, Dalny and the Blonde and Elliott islands. Accepted.

7. The surrender to China by arrangement with Japan of the branch of the Chinese Eastern railway running south from Chantfu to Port Arthur and Newchwang, together with the retrocession of all the privileges obtained under the concession of 1898. Accepted.

8. The limitation of the Chinese concession obtained by Mr. Rothstein and Prince Ouktomsky in 1896, under which the "cut off" through Northern Manchuria was built to connect the Transsiberian and the Ussuri railroads, so as to provide for the restoration of the ownership and operation of the line of the Chinese Eastern, but with provision for the eventual substitution of Chinese imperial police for Russian "railroad guards." Accepted.

9. Remuneration for the cost of the war. Refused by Russia and waived by Japan on final agreement.

10. Surrender of Russian warships interned in neutral waters. Withdrawn.

11. The liimtation of Russia's naval power in far Eastern waters. Withdrawn.

12. The grant to the citizens of Japan of the right to fish in the waters of the Russian littoral from Vladivostok north to Bering sea. Accepted.

TO TEST PURE FOOD LAW.

Case to Be Taken Into Court by Manufacturers' Association.

Seattle, Aug. 28.—A test case to determine the constitutionality of the amendment to the law to prevent adulteration of food packages enacted by the last legislature, as interpreted by the state dairy and food commissioner, will be instituted at the request of manufacturers of food products of Seattle. The manufacturers take issue with the dairy and food commissioner on his interpretation of the law as amended, the commissioner ruling that the law requires manufacturers to label or stencil such food packages with the name of the component parts of the purported contents. The manufacturers and jobbers interpret the law as meaning that the name of the article in the can or package is all that is necessary on the label, and not the per centage of sugar, glucose, syrup, salt, pepper or preservatives such cans or packages may contain.

Through the Association.

The test case will be handled through the Manufacturers' Association, and the suggestion will be advanced by that organization to the state dairy and food commissioner that the case be made on a food package manufactured outside of the state, there being a disposition on the part of the manufacturers of Seattle to protect home products as far as possible. Commissioner Davies will be advised by the association of the desire of the manufacturers to take the matter into court.

BRIDGEPORT SUFFERS HEAVY FIRE LOSS

Bridgeport, Wash., Aug. 29.—The town of Bridgeport was almost entirely destroyed by fire yesterday. The cause of the fire is unknown, but the high wind which prevailed at the time caused the rapid spread of the flames subsequent to the discovery of the fire.

The conflagration originated in the drug store of Dr. McKinley, and was discovered at 2 o'clock in the morning. The fire had made great headway, and by the time the alarm had been given and the volunteer fire department aroused to action, but five minutes later, the flames were beyond control.

The fiercest gale for years was blowing, rendering futile all efforts to fight the fire. The buildings consumed were all as dry as tinder, and to this fact and the inadequacy of the water supply is due the great loss which resulted. The damage to property is estimated at $60,000.

NEW WIRELESS INSTRUMENT.

Invention of Signal Corps Man Said to Be Superior.

Benicia, Cal., Aug. 28.—A new wireless instrument, weighing but a pound and a half, and found by exhaustive tests to give better results than the cumbersome De Forest machine, has been invented at the Benicia barracks by Hugh Annis, a young soldier iof the signal corps. Annis is but 23 years old and came here two weeks ago from Fort Riley, Kansas. Realizing the necessity of having the wireless machines portable, he set to work to perfect the ideas he has treasured for months, the result being an apparatus said to be superior to any now in use.

A fly walking on the outside of the box can be distinctly heard through the receiver at a distance of several feet, while, if place on the ground, the machine will record the footsteps of a man walking a hundred feet away.

BIG NOME OUTPUT.

Increase of $3,000,000 Over Last Year Estimated.

Seattle, Aug. 28.—United States Assayer Wing, in charge of the local assay office, made the statement that his estimate of the gold output of Nome for the season of 1905 was $10,000,000. This amount will be the record for Nome and will exceed the output last year by $3,000,000.

Mr. Wing bases his estimate on the amount of gold which has been sent out of Nome so far this year and on the private advices which ne has received from assayers and other officials whose business it is to keep tab on the results of mining in that part of the country. Mr. Wing states that in his opinion it is the large amount of machinery and ditching material which has been placed in operation at Nome and other localities on the Seward peninsula this year which is responsible for the increase of the gold output of that country.

TO THE LOWEST BIDDER.

Naval Supplies Will Be Shipped via Canadian Roads if Cheaper.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Secretary Bonaparte has declined to grant the request of George Campbell in behalf of the Great Northern railway to revoke an order made by him some time ago which rescinded an order made by his predecessor, Secretary Morton, confining the business of transporting the naval supplies across the continent to American railroads. The secretary holds that under the law he must send these supplies by the cheapest route regardless of ownership, and Mr. Campbell has been informed that if the business is to be confined to American roads congressional direction and authorization are neecessary.

Japanese Transport Lost.

Tokyo, Aug. 28.—The Japanese transport Kinjo was sunk in collision with the British steamer Baratong on August 22 in the Inland sea. One hundred and twenty-seven invalided Japanese soldiers were drowned.

PRESIDENT PRAISED

INTERPARLIAMENTARY CONGRESS IN SESSION AT BRUSSELS.

Opening of the Congress the Occasion for a Notable Demonstration in Behalf of President Roosevelt and His Work for Peace.

Brussels, Aug. 29.—King Leopold received the delegates to the Interparliamentary congress yesterday afternoon. He conversed with each of the American members, expressing his admiration for the United States and saying that he kept President Roosevelt's photograph, bearing his signature on his desk in his study.

The opening of the congress was the occasion for a notable demonstration in behalf of President Roosevelt and the success of the peace conference at Portsmouth.

Large delegations, representing practically the leading parliaments of the world, were present.

Tributes by Ministers.

The welcoming address delivered by Minister of State Beernaert, aroused a storm of applause when he referred to President Roosevelt's two conspicuous movements in behalf of peace in first calling another meeting of The Hague conference, and, secondly, in bringing together the plenipotentiaries of Russia and Japan.

Baron de Favereau, the Belgian minister of foreign affairs, added flattering tributes to the American president's efforts.

Mr. Bartholdt said:

"The status of our common cause in the United States never justified a more favorable report than it does at the present time. Two causes have mainly contributed toward this revival of interest in the peace movement—the meeting of the Interparliamentary Congress on American soil, and the deep growing disgust with that barbarous war in the Orient.

"Under The Hague convention the president already enjoys a larger measure of discretion than the new treaties, in their amended form, would have conferred upon him. The failure of these treaties may prove a blessing in disguise. It justifies the hope that the outcome will be the approval by The Hague conference, of a treaty of wider scope and yet more definite in detail.

"It is with pardonable pride we Americans point to the historical fact that it was left to an American president not only to open the doors of The Hague again, but also to stop, in the interests of both the belligerents and humanity, the war between Russia and Japan."

The congress then adopted with enthusiasm resolutions of thanks to President Roosevelt, and the secretary was instructed to cable the following:

"President Roosevelt, Oyster Bay—The Interparliamentary Congress, at Brussels assembled, sends greetings and has the honor to advise you that it has passed resolutions expressing its high appreciation of your action in calling a second conference at The Hague in the interest of international peace, and its profound thanks for your noble efforts in the interests of humanity to terminate the Russo-Japanese war."

Model Treaty Discussed.

The congress afterward discussed the American proposal for a model arbitration treaty. The congress resolved to refer the treaty proposition to a committee with instructions to report within three months.

A brilliant reception in honor of the delegates was held last night by the members of the Belgian senate and chamber of representatives.

Congressman W. A. Smith, of Michigan, left last night for Berlin, where he will have an audience with Emperor William.

INDICTMENT AGAINST HOLMES.

Former Statistician Charged With Conspiracy.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Edwin S. Holmes, Jr., of Washington, D. C., until recently associate statistician of the department of argiculture, but who was dismissed as an outcome of the investigation in the leakage of cotton crop reports, has been indicted by the grand jury on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government.

This announcement was made by United States District Attorney Morgan H. Beach, Jr., after he had returned from New York City, where he had been instrumental in causing the arrest of Frederick A. Peckham, the New York broker, at Saratoga, and Moses Haas, of New York. There are two indictments covering the charges against the three men.

CHALLENGE TO PRINTERS.

Several Large Chicago Offices Declare for Open Shop.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Chicago has become the center in a struggle of the employing printers throughout the country against the typographical union, to defeat the attempt of the latter to secure the eight-hour day.

Open shop notices have been posted in four of the largest printing establishments, members of the typothetae. The spirit of the independent declaration was carried out by the employment of nonunion printers.

Other members of the typothetae have planned to follow suit.

Union officials say that the first nonunion man to appear in any of the typothetae establishments will be a signal for a general walkout.

ADMIT MANY THINGS

EQUITABLE DIRECTORS ASK THAT BLAME BE PLACED.

Charges of Excessive Fees, Inadequate Rentals, Improvidence and Other Forms of Mismanagement Acknowledged, but Claimed Full Board Was Not Involved.

New York, Aug. 28.—The Equitable Life Assurance Society has joined with the State of New York in asking for a full investigation in court of its directors and officers and their alleged wrong doings in managing the moneys of the society. The document which announced this determination was the answer of the forty-five Equitable directors to the charges against them by the state.

Admission is made that the Equitable had been guilty of improper acts. Among these answers admit the $250,000 loan of the Depew Improvement Company. They admit the Smith $685,000 loan to the Mercantile Trust Company, but waive responsibility in this loan so far as the board of directors is concerned, and indicate Messrs. Alexander, Jordan and Deming as the persons having the most intimate knowledge of these transactions.

Admits Excessive Fees.

The charge that excessive salaries were paid to officers of the society is not directly answered, but admission is made that under the guise of salaries excessive fees were given to certain officials who are directors in another company.

In defense the answer states that these practices were not known to the whole board of directors.

Outlining their belief as to the best policy to pursue in fixing the blame for the scandals, the directors say first that the blame for alleged cases of misconduct will be found to rest on individual officers, and not upon the directors as a body. Having made this explanation, the answer then admits in a general way the wrong doing charged.

The first charge specifically answered is that premises on Broadway were let at inadequate rentals to the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company. This is admitted, but it is denied that at the time this lease was made James H. Hyde, J. W. Alexander, Gage E. Tarbell, V. P. Snyder, Thomas D. Jordan, Charles B. Alexander, H. R. Winthrop, A. W. Kreich and William H. McIntyre were stockholders and directors in the Mercantile Trust Company.

With certain reservations admission is then made that the capital stock of the Missouri Safe Deposit Company was acquired by the Equitable, which paid $250 per share for shares of the par value of $100. The reservations in favor of the Equitable in connection with this charge include a claim that these allegations are true in respect to certain of the Equitable officials, but that the alleged purchase were never known to the whole board of directors.

Wasteful and Improvident.

The directors admit that the officers made wasteful, improvident and improper advances of money to agents, and may have been guilty of grave errors of judgment, but assert that they have no information sufficient to warrant the belief that the officers were knowingly guilty of such improper acts.

The consolidation of the Western National Bank of New York city with the United States National bank, by which losses resulted to the Equitable and a profit to some of the directors, is also admitted. But the directors say that the responsibility for these losses must be divided among those who "directly participated in, or by any reason of their official duties, should have had knowledge of the transactions." The table of alleged improper salaries to Equitable officers which was embodied in the state's charges is declared to be a true statement of the figures. A direct admission is then made that these sums were paid without sufficient vouchers, but the directors say their opinion is reserved as to whether such sums were transferred and in all cases warranted.

Admissions of greater latitude were made to the charges that money, under the guise of fees, was received by directors and stockholders who were also officers of Equitable and other corporations. After admission that these moneys were received as charged, the reply continues:

Excuses for Board.

"Many of these defendants were ignorant of said transactions, which were not of a character necessarily connected with the whole board of directors."

Further on the report states:

"Some of said pensions were found to be justifiable and some others improper."

In knowledge of the loan to the Mercantile Trust Company, an admission of its existence is made, but the directors deny that they improperly permitted this transaction.

Finally admission of the payment of this $685,000 to the Mercantile Trust Company on July 14 last, is made, but it is said that this occurred only after the trust company asserted a claim against the Equitable and after this claim had been resisted and disallowed by all but the president and managing officials of the society.

The $250,000 loan to the Depew Improvement Company is admitted with a proviso which states that this admission is restricted to those of the individual defendants who were or ought to have been cognizant of these transactions.

SCALPERS LOSE CASE.

Appeal Will Be Taken, Probably to Federal Supreme Court.

Seattle, Aug. 28.—The constitutionality of the state law which forbids dealing in railway passenger tickets without a license from the railroads has been upheld by Judge Gilliam, of the superior court, after a hearing on the application of Hugh J. O'Neil for a writ of habeas corpus. The action is a test case on the determination of which the existence of the irregular brokerage establishments in the state will depend, and an appeal will be made and bitterly fought. The case will probably be carried to the supreme court of the United States, according to a statement of Attorney Richard Saxe Jones.

Both Sides Argue.

At the hearing this week, the arguments advanced by Richard Saxe Jones and Judge Brinker in the attack on the validity of the law, were that it unjustly discriminated between railroads and steamboat lines, that it interfered with the right of persons to continue a legitimate business already established, and that the requirement that brokers secure a license from the railroads was an improper delegation of legislative power to the companies.

The law was upheld by Prosecuting Attorney Mackintosh and Attorney James McElroy, the latter appearing on behalf of the railroads. They contended that the statute was a legitimate exercise of the police power, that the business in question was a menace to public morals in that the brokers constantly instigated and taught their customers to commit forgery and to defraud the railroads. It was asserted that last year 150 transcontinental passengers were put off the Northern Pacific trains at Auburn and Kent on account of their having scalpers' tickets, and that the business thus worked a recurring injury to many more or less innocent members of the traveling public.

VERY GOOD GRADES FOR NEW STATE ROAD

Port Townsend, Aug. 29.—The surveying party under County Surveyor Walker, that went to Western Jefferson via Chehalis two months ago to survey the state road ordered constructed across Chehalis, Jefferson and Clallam counties, has returned via Clallam. Surveyor Walker, in speaking of the new road and the progress made by the party said:

"The length of the line from Chehalis county through Jefferson to the south boundary of Clallam is about thirty-six miles, with no grade to exceed 7 per cent in the entire distance, the average grade being about 5 per cent. The most serious obstacle in the entire work was the divide between the Hoh and the Bogachiel rivers, but after running several preliminary lines a five per cent grade was obtained to connect with the bridge site on the Bogachiel.

"The line as surveyed necessitates the contsruction of five bridges of an average span of 200 feet each. The bridge site as located across the Queets follows the line of the Northern Pacific survey, there being no other practicable crossing within a distance of twenty miles from the mouth. The Clearwater is crossed twice. The Hoh is crossed at the mouth of the canyon and the Bogachiel on the site located by the county surveyor during last year.

Bridges Increase Cost.

"The principal cost of the construction of the road through Jefferson will be in the building of bridges. Outside the five main bridges mentioned above, there are innumerable bridges and culverts across smaller streams and gulches on the line. It was found on examination that there is a much better roadbed along the line than was anticipated before the survey was started, and that sufficient gravel is obtainable at different points to properly ballast the entire road."

In the building of the road Surveyor Walker's main object has been the securing of good grades, and to this end distances have been sacrificed. In other words, the road is really longer than it might have been had the surveyor adopted a number of steep grades.

The road passes through about five miles of timber lands belonging to the state, and these lands will now have a chance to be opened to settlement by purchase, as the road will make them accessible. Being about ten miles from the Northern Pacific survey, the road will also open up a tract of country not reached by the railroad.

Preparing Test Case.

Olympia, Aug. 28.—Attorney General John D. Atkinson has returned from Spokane and other Eastern Washington points, in connection with the suit which the state railway commission is preparing to institute against the Oregon Railway & Navigation company. Mr. Atkinson has also been conferring with Assistant Attorney General E. E. McDonald, of Spokane, on the same matters. Papers in the suit will now be prepared at the attorney general's office. This is the suit to be brought to compel the company to make a joint rate on Roslyn coal.

M. Bouligan Is Out.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 28.—The emperor has accepted the resignation of M. Bouligan as minister of the interior. Count Alexis Ignatieff, a member of the council of empire and former governor general of Kieff, it is thought, will probably succeed him, although Gen. Trepoff is mentioned as a possibility.

GOOD SALMON PACK

OUTPUT FOR SOUND IN U. S. IS PLACED AT 800,000 CASES.

Estimated That the Alaska Pack Amounts to 1,600,000 Cases, Which Is Considered Satisfactory—Price of Red Alaskas Cut Deep by Packers' Association.

Bellingham, Aug. 26.—More than 800,000 cases of salmon is the estimate placed on this year's pack for Puget sound by Editor Daniel L. Pratt, of the Pacific Fisherman, who is in the city getting figures on the pack made by local canneries.

Figures have been given out by all the canneries on the bay except the Pacific American Fisheries, the pack of which is admitted by Manager E. B. Deming to be over 200,000. By placing it at 225,000 the total pack for Bellingham reaches 289,700 cases.

The value of the pack is placed at $1,504,780.

ALASKA PACK PLACED AT 1,600,000 CASES

Seattle, Aug. 26.—One million six hundred thousand cases of salmon have been packed in Alaska, according to the approximate estimate of Capt. D. H. Jarvis, general manager of the Northwestern Fisheries Company. Capt. Jarvis has just returned from Alaska, having spent the fishing season at the five canneries operated by his company.

"Nearly all of the salmon packed this season have been of the variety known as 'Alaska reds,'" said Capt. Jarvis, "and when it is considered that there have been fewer canneries operated in Alaska this season than formerly the result of the pack is considered very good."

Capt. Jarvis stated that the total pack of the thirty-two canneries operated this year would perhaps fall some 200,000 cases below that of last year, but that there had been quite a number of canneries in idleness this season that had been operated last year. The five canneries operated by the company of which Capt. Jarvis is the head, packed 225,000 cases this season.

"The season is practically over in Alaska," said Capt. Jarvis, "and when I left the North all the canneries were finishing up their season's work and the next few weeks will witness the arrival in Seattle of a vast amount of canned salmon."

DEEP CUT MADE IN PRICE OF RED ALASKAS

Seattle, Aug. 26.—Spot stocks of red Alaska salmon in the domestic market have been reduced from $1 a dozen to 85 cents by the Alaska Packers' Association, which controls the market, following a deep cut in spot stocks at Liverpool and London. The reduction affects the new pack, as well as spot stocks, a total of about 2,100,000 cases of red Alaska, and represents a loss to the salmon interests of at least $1,000,000.

Reports from salmon centers in the East, state that bookings have been enormous as a result of the reduction. Red Alaskas have never been quoted at such a low price before, and it is not deemed at all probable that the market will ever suffer so sharp a decline again. While many of the outside packers are meeting the drop, it is not yet known whether the movement will become general.

That the cut is particularly deep is not disputed by salmon interests throughout the country, but the fact that there has been a heavy carry-over hanging like a cloud of gloom over the market on red Alaskas serves in a measure to condone the use of the pruning knife, for the reason that the extremely low price now quoted will force the entire spot stocks and futures into speedy consumption. The jobbers and retailers, it is expected will buy a full year's supply at these low values, which will operate heavily to the temporal disadvantage of the packers, but it is believed it will be a good thing for the trade generally, as next year is almost certain to witness a rising market. Just what effect the reduction will have on the sockeye market is largely problematical, but it is within the range of probability that the latter market will be greatly strengthened.

POSSIBLY PRINCE CHARLES.

King Oscar Said to Have Changed His Mind About Norway Throne.

Stockholm, Aug. 29.—According to good authority the feeling in government circles regarding the accession of a Bernadotte prince to the Norwegian throne has undergone a complete change.

King Oscar no longer opposes the acceptance of the crown by his son Charles. As soon as the union between Sweden and Norway is dissolved his answer will be given, and it probably will be in the affirmative.

Warsaw Under Martial Law.

Warsaw, Aug. 28.—The whole government of Warsaw has been placed under martial law. A bridge on the Vistula railway near Radom has been blown up and communication is interrupted.

SAYS THE JOB IS EASY.

Mr. Shonts Thinks Five Years Sufficient to Build Canal.

New York, Aug. 28.—That within the span of five years the Panama canal will be dug, is the estimate of Theodore P. Shonts, chairman of the isthmian canal commission, just arrived from the isthmus.

Not only will it be built within half a decade, but he asserts that the chagres and yellow fevers will be exterminated and the zone will take its place among the salubrious spots of the world, as a health resort in the dry season. Mr. Shonts declares that the talk about the insurmountable difficulties confronting the engineers is a bogy and that no difficulties present themselves that are not duplicated and surpassed every year upon American railroads.

Sanitation, transportation and subsistence are the only serious problems, he says, and with these properly organized mere engineering difficulties will be overcome with mathematical precision. Not a single problem remains to be considered. Every engineering difficulty has been discounted. Lack of proper organization at the start and want of provision for the health and comfort and maintenance of the workmen he holds responsible for the disheartening delays, and they have resulted in the almost total loss of all the labor of nearly a year and a half.

This is the tenor of the report submitted by Mr. Shonts the instant he reached shore, and that report, when made public, if it ever is, will show to the world just what has balked the efforts of the canal diggers in the past and demonstrate how the canal is to be completed. Although Mr. Shonts will not tell the complete story unless permitted to do so by the president, enough has been obtained from him and others who are intimately acquainted with the facts to explain Mr. Wallace's defection and the reasons which led up to the present situation.

BIG DEAL IN COAL LANDS.

Montreal Company Buys 30,000 Acres on Queen Charlotte Group.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 28.—Negotiations have been closed with a local syndicate which owned coal lands on Queen Charlotte islands for the purchase of about 30,000 acres of these by a Montreal company represented by W. S. Borland, who is now at Victoria, for $700,000.

The Queen Charlotte mines were worked from 1865 to 1872, but only in a crude way. The work was not carried out sufficiently well to ascertain the extent of the formation. Labor was suspended owing to the veins exposed being too thin to work commercially. The coal is of good character, resembling the Comox quality, the best on Vancouver island.

It has always been thought that boring would prove that there was a good body of coal. The close proximity to water makes it specially valuable. Twenty-five miles of easily and cheaply constructed railway, according to a government report, would open up the whole coal field and bring the product to deep water.

At the last session of the legislature a charter was obtained for the necessary railway line in anticipation of the development of the mines.

WILL NOT ALLOW OFFSETS.

Thurston County Board of Equalization Takes Stand.

Olympia, Aug. 28.—The Thurston county board of equalization has decided to sustain the assessor in allowing no offset of indebtedness against stock held in local banks. In Lord's Capital National bank, capitalized at $100,000, a total of $162,000 individual indebtedness was sworn to by stockholders. The decision is in line with the rulings of the state tax commission. The board also sustains the assessor in listing local public utilities and franchises approximating $30,000. It is the first time in the history of the county that franchises have been listed, as well as the first time bank indebtedness is not permitted as an offset.

Timber land valuations have been reduced 50 per cent from last year on the land only. The timber itself is assessed separately from the land, and remains the same, but the land is reduced from $4 to $2 and $2 to $1 per acre.

IDEAS DESIRED.

Immigration Officials Asked for Opinions on Present Rules.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The commission appointed by Secretary Metcalfe, of the department of commerce and labor, to revise the present rules and regulations under which the immigration laws of the United States and the Chinese exclusion laws are administered, has sent a letter to all officials of the immigration bureau in the field, asking for an expression of opinion on each of the rules now in operation.

The letter to the immigration agents practically is the first step taken by the commission. The replies are expected to state how each rule works. Officers in the field are invited to make suggestions as to the manner in which the laws may be amended. The most important of the steps proposed by the commission are public hearings at which criticisms of the service may be lodged.

Declares Franchise Taxable.

Seattle, Aug. 28.—In the opinion of both County Attorney Mackintosh and Corporation Counsel Calhoun, the franchises of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific and of all other public utility corporations operating in King County and Seattle are taxable. They have so advised the county board of equalization and the board will act accordingly. The railroads are preparing to contest the matter.

THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF CLALLAM COUNTY

Entered as Second-class Matter in the Post Office at Port Angeles, Washington.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN CLALLAM COUNTY.

Subscription Price $1 per year.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1905.

This year's pack of salmon at Anacortes will amount to 376,000 cases, worth $1,750,000. Every loss of the slack years since the big run of four years ago will be recouped.

The U. S. cruiser Boston, now at Bremerton, has lost five men from desertion. The authorities do not seem to value their services very highly, however, as a reward of only $10 apiece has been offered for their apprehension.

Peace is at hand. Although Japan yielded on the final points in controversy in order that the long negotiations might be ended and peace concluded, she has gained the ends for which she fought. A complete report of the terms agreed upon by the two waring nations is given in our news columns.

Just to remind our eastern friends, who have lately been sweltering in the intense heat, that Port Angeles is a delightful summer resort, we note that the Olympic mountains were covered with snow Wednesday morning, August 30th. In the valleys we had a warm rain, but up on the mountains there was quite a fall of snow, which soon disappeared under the bright rays of the sun.

President Roosevelt has scored another great victory; this time in the role of peace maker, as it was largely through his efforts that the two belligerent countries have come to an understanding, and peace is assured. The conclusion of peace will give President Roosevelt and the United States a prestige never before attained. America has produced many great statesmen, but the name of Roosevelt stands today pre-eminently above them all throughout the civilized world.

In our account of the monster Beardslee trout caught by Dr. Schavior, about two weeks ago, we gave Mr. Sanborn credit for participation in the event, saying that doubtless without his skill the big trout would still be monarch of the lake. For so we were told. But R. D. writes, fully exonerating himself from any connection whatever with the big fish, and says that the Doctor, who is a noted sportsman, "is a fine gentleman and I should regret that he should not receive full credit his remarkable trout, which is the record—as far as I know—for this lake."

SEGUIN NOTES.

Refreshing showers fell here the first of this week, followed by cool weather.

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Potter, last Monday, was the event of the season; over 200 invited guests assembled and were treated in a royal manner. At high noon the ceremony was performed in the same manner as fifty years ago, the Rev. Rrooks O. Baker officiating. The daughters acted as bridesmaids and the granddaughters as flower girls. After the ceremony came the barbecue; chef Wm. Potter had charge of this part of the feast, and it was the most successful barbecue that was ever held in this section, or any other, for it was done to suit any of the chefs of France.

The crew of the Ind. Tel. Co. came in last Tuesday having completed the line to Angeles, since when the wires have been very busy. The crew are now working on the old Western Union loop to Port Williams, which the company have purchased.

Mrs. Lindsberg left for her home Monday after an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. E. T. Huff.

Miss Clara Eck left for Bellingham on Monday's boat.

J. G. Quinn, of the Tel. Co., was a Seattle passenger Thursday.

J. L. Keeler and family returned from an outing at the forks of the Dungeness river. Joe reports fishing very poor and admits that he only caught a few; but says the other parties there, Judge Gordon and Lawyer Heaton, supplied his table with the choicest article.

R. D. Crichton was a passenger for Victoria on Wednesday's boat.

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler, of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Clebourne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some souse meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." Marblehead Entertainment

The crew of the Marblehead originated, and with the help of local talent carried out a most excellent program at the opera house on Friday evening last. The men of the ship did this out of good will to the Baptist church members and friends who had given them a pleasant evening some days before. It was deemed wise to consult the officers before anything was done, and Capt. Holmes and Lieut. Comdr. Almy both wrote their fullest approval, having before them a detailed statement of what was being done. Both gentlemen purchased tickets and attended the entertainment. With Mr. Davies' aid, Rev. Whelan worked up a program and it was given to a crowded house. The crew were to the fore in the program, as they were in originating the undertaking, and therefore it was called "Marblehead Entertainment. Mr. Davies gave evidence of professional ability in his recitations, they being far above ordinary amature work. The singing of Mrs. Engesser, Camm and the Quartette was encored, and all had to repeat. Miss Fairy Johnson won more friends through her fine voice work. The broad sword exercise was something new and pleased the people. The Misses McKee and Elliott rendered an instrumental duet from violin and piano and were forced to come again and again. Mr. Cole, with Miss McKee, as piano accompanist also rendered a pot-pouri of national airs in excellent form. The host of friends of Dr. F. A. Cooke were delighted with his more than usually sweet and strong voice, and the strangers were deeply affected by his singing. The decorations of the house, thanks to Capt. Holmes of the Marblehead, the ladies of the local Relief Corps, were the prettiest and the fullest ever in the opera house.

The money received for admissions was placed to the order of Lieut.-Commander Almy, and that gentleman was notified. He immediately sent Chief Quartermaster Liesomab ashore with the money for tickets sold on the ship, and with the generous message that the Baptist church people should keep the receipts. Some $93 were realized.

Entertainment for Miss Nestle.

A small party of young people were entertained at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. J. Nestle on Tuesday evening last, in honor of Miss Elizabath Nestle of St. Louis. Refreshments were served after a jolly time; Miss Maud Hoare gave several vocal solos which were greatly appreciated; Mr. Ernest Getchell gave several violin solos, and Mr. Hartleb also furnished amusement with an accordeon. Among the guests were Misses Dermul, Baxter, Phelps, Burdick, Daun, Schenk, Hoare; Miss Loehing and Miss Gengler of St. Louis, accompanied by Mr. Geo. C. Nestle and son Fred A., and Mr. Loebing; Messrs. Dilwinski, Getchell, Wood, Gherke, Filion; Mr. and Mrs. Hartleb, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. J. Nestle.

Died, August 11, at Carthridge, Mo., Ina, the beloved daughter of Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Atkinson. The many friends here of the bereaved family will sympathize with them in the loss of their daughter. Entertainment a Success.

The entertainment given by Miss Fairy Johnson on Monday evening last, in Haning Hall, was a pronounced success. The program was composed of her very best recitations and whs rendered in a pleasing yet forceful manner, showing her to be an artist in the work she has taken up. Mrs. Engesser gave a vocal solo, and was given the "glad hand" until she responded to the encore.

Mr. Cole gave a number by request, a sketch from tha Italian opera, that created surpriss even among his friends. After the program was finished the floor was quickly "cleared for action" and the waltz and two step prevailed continuously until one a. m. Altogether it was a most enjoyable affair.

Miss Fairy proved herself a charming hostess, in her unselfish way of making every one enjoy the evening. Although a child of thirteen her quiet an unasuming manners cause her to appear a lady of older years. She possesses every quality to make her career in life a perfect success. We hope to see another such entertainment before Miss Fairy leaves us.

Mrs. Johnson gave one of her pleasing and instructive talks, subject: What the Daily Life Should be to Insure Perfect Health and Long Life, showing her ability to handle any subject she wishes to take up. Her knowledge on these lines are far beyond anything Port Angeles people have ever heard, and many have shown their appreciation. The interest she manifests in helping humanity is wonderful. Her kind and pleasing ways have won her many lasting friends in our town. She has concluded to continue her stay here two weeks longer, and will give a lecture to married people only. Subject: Why Married Life is a Failure and How to Make it a Success. Mrs. Johnson will give her time and talent free, and every married couple in town should attend this lecture and learn the way of true happiness. Time and place will be given later.

THE BROKEN GLASS.

When it was whole, across this mirror fine
What images of strength and beauty passed!
Here was the loveliness of woman glassed,
Of children, too, and, only less divine,
The forms of rocks and trees, the glorious shine
Of suns and stars, and wondrously amassed,
The journeying clouds; beneath them, ocean's vast
Illimitable surge of restless brine.

'Tis shattered now, and all these things and more—
Great thoughts, imaginations strong and free—
Are in this glass reflected brokenly;
Crazed is the dance upon that polished floor.
Poor useless frame that held this sacred trust,
Too soon thou canst not crumble into dust!

RESCUED FROM THE ROPE.

I JOINED the Melville Comedy Company at Denver early in the fall of 18—. There were a great many hardships to be endured while playing in the Western territory, but they were lightened for me by the warm friendships I formed with several of the company. I became particularly intimate with Roy Carrington, our "first old man." He had a most engaging personality, and there was always noticeable in his demeanor a sort of gentle sadness, a quiet melancholy, that was hardly in keeping with his real good nature. We were fully aware that it was not the result of disappointed ambition, for we knew he had declined several handsome metropolitan offers, which would have brought him great reward. He seemed to prefer his lot as first old man of our company.

I had many friendly talks with Carrington, but he never touched upon the cause of this peculiarity, and it was not until we reached Leadville that I learned the story of events which had materially changed the current of his life. We were out walking one afternoon and Carrington suggested that we take a stroll through the cemetery.

I laughingly remarked to him that I was not particularly anxious to visit cemeteries, deeming the unavoidable occasions quite sufficient. There was something in his manner, however, which checked my levity, and I remarked, rather more seriously, that on this occasion I waived all objection. To the cemetery, then, we turned our steps. Carrington was silent until we had passed the gates, when he said:

"Clarke, I wanted to come in here, because I wished to see the grave of a woman I knew."

We walked on in silence for a few rods, when my companion made a detour from the main path. I followed him and soon stood before a small, neat lot, which had a single grave in the center. The grave was marked by a small granite stone, which bore this inscription:

SACRED TO THE MEMORY
ALICE PAYNE,
who died
November 14, 18—,
Aged 25 years.

"Who was she?" I asked.

"I'll tell you," he answered with a deep sigh, as he turned and led the way to a rustic bench which was screened from the view of passers-by by a row of tall box-wood. After we had seated ourselves Carrington continued:

"I met Alice Payne five years ago, a few months before her death. I had joined the Baker Dramatic Company, of which she was the leading lady. I was doing leading business then, and of course played opposite to her. She was a refined and well-educated young woman, with one of those sad, sweet faces we sometimes see in pictures and once in a while meet with in reality. She seemed to avoid the society of men, and it was only on a few occasions that she allowed me to escort her from the theater to her hotel. And I think she only permitted it then because the weather was stormy and I had an umbrella, while she had left hers at the hotel.

"We had played for a few months on the Western circuit and at last struck Leadville. We were to play three nights here. On Monday night before we left the theater Miss Payne stopped me on my way to my dressing room. I noticed she was considerably agitated.

"'Mr. Carrington,' she said, 'will you kindly escort me to the hotel to-night?'

"I replied that it would afford me the greatest pleasure to do so. I hurried into my street dress, but, quick as I was, I found her waiting for me. We passed out of the theater and started for the hotel, which was about a quarter of a mile away. We had only gone a short distance when we heard footfalls behind us as if some one was shadowing us. I turned and saw a man dodge behind a building. I glanced at Miss Payne, and saw that she had noticed the movements of the man behind us. Her agitation, which had been gradually increasing, now reached its intensity, and she burst into tears. Her form trembled and I had to support her until we reached the hotel. By this time she had ceased weeping, and asked me to step into the parlor. There were no occupants other than ourselves.

"'Mr. Carrington,' she said, turning to me with an anguished look, 'that man is my husband.'

"I was greatly surprised, as I had always been under the impression that she was a single woman. Moreover, I knew she had come from the east somewhere, and this declaration, that a man haunting our footsteps in a far Western town was her husband, was rather startling.

"Then she told me her story. It was the old tale of a deceived woman and a human brute. Her parents had sent her to a Canadian convent to be educated, and while there she had somehow or other in her daily walks made the acquaintance of a dashing French-Canadian named Armand Lasalle. She was fascinated by his handsome appearance, and eloped with him. Her family were greatly incensed and refused to recognize her. It was not long before Lasalle began to show his true nature, and treat her so brutally that she was forced to leave him. After a bitter quarrel, in which he swore to have her life, she fled from him.

"She was too proud to look to her family for assistance. Knowing she had dramatic talent, she went upon the stage. Starting modestly, she had worked her way to her present position. She had never heard anything from Lasalle since the day she had left him until that night, when she was nearly overcome by seeing him leering at her from a front seat, while she was going through her last scene. That was the reason she had asked me to see her to her hotel. She asked me to keep this story secret. I promised this and assured her of my protection should Lasalle venture to make any trouble. I cautioned her to keep in her room all the next day.

"The next evening, before calling for Miss Payne to take her to the theater, I examined my revolver to see if it was all right. While doing so, it slipped from my hand and fell to the floor. A report followed and a bullet buried itself in the door. I expected every moment a rush of people into my room to see what was the matter. When this did not occur, I concluded the shot had not been heard on account of the noisy laughter in the street, where a crowd was watching a drunken miner trying to mount a bucking broncho.

"I escorted Miss Payne to the theater and waited to take her back to the hotel after the performance. Miss Payne did not see Lasalle in the house that night, but when we were walking the sound of footsteps followed us as on the previous evening.

"I looked back, and instead of dodging as before, the man came on almost at a full run for a couple of yards. He had a revolver in his hand. I had hardly time to pull my own, when he stopped short and fired. With a shriek, Miss Payne fell to the ground. Lasalle, for it was he, turned and dashed away in the darkness. I was burning with rage, and forgetting Miss Payne for the moment, I sprang after him. I fired at him once, and thought I must have missed him, as he continued running.

"I do not know how long we ran, but cries and footfalls, which had sounded distantly behind me, were growing more and more distinct. Lasalle doubled a corner on me, and, turning the same corner, my foot struck an obstruction and I went flying on my face. I lay stunned for a few moments. As I rose to my feet, dazed, rough hands were laid on me and I was dragged back to where Miss Payne was lying. By this time I had recovered my senses fully. I broke from my captors and knelt down beside her. One look was sufficient.

"'My God!' I cried, 'she is dead!'

"'Yes,' said a rough voice behind me, 'and you're the man that killed her!'

"Then I realized the horror of my position. The shots fired had alarmed the crowd of miners, who poured out of the different saloons to see a woman lying dead on the ground and a man running away.

"My protests were of no avail, as circumstances were against me. I was searched and my revolver was found in my pocket where I had thrust it when running. Two cartridges were empty! Two shots had been fired! No explanation would have any weight in the face of such evidence. Some of the rougher element were for hanging me on the spot, but wiser counsel prevailed and I was locked up for the night.

"In the morning I was tried before a local magistrate. Now that Miss Payne was dead, I knew that divulging her story would do no harm, and might perhaps save my life; so I told it. It had no effect, however, on the minds of a prejudiced jury, especially as no man namedy Lasalle was known in the town. It was evident Lasalle had an alias.

"I was sentenced to be hanged the next morning! The company, who believed in my innocence, visited me during the day and tried to cheer me. I passed the night praying for courage to meet my fate like a man. In the morning I was brought from the jail and taken about half a mile out of town. A halt was made in front of a large tree and a rope was thrown over a lower limb. The noose was adjusted around my neck and my hands tied behind my back. At my own request my eyes were not bandaged. The signal was given! The noose was drawn taut and with a jerk I was swung into the air.

"O God! What a sensation! I went through twenty hells in as many seconds! The last thing that met my swimming sight was a horseman dashing up the road! My head seemed bursting and there was a horrible roaring in my ears! Then I heard something like a faint report. The next instant I went sinking, sinking into space! Then there was a sudden shock! I knew no more!

"When I came to, I was lying at the foot of the tree. The crowd surrounded a man who held a rifle. When I had recovered sufficiently I was informed of the cause of my sudden bringing back to life. The rope by which I was suspended had been cut in two by a bullet from the rifle of the man who had ridden up so hurriedly.

"This man, Jim Winters, lived among the hills about two miles the other side of the town. The night before a man had fallen at his door apparently in a dying condition. Winters carried him into the hut and found he had been shot in the back. It was Lasalle, known to Winters as Duvolle. He was suffering agony, and thinking he was near death, confessed the story of the shooting to Winters. Winters, who had heard of my predicament, hastened to town, to inform the authorities of the real culprit. When he heard of the hanging he rode like mad to stop it. As he thundered down the road and saw me swinging, he shouted and raising his rifle, fired—and saved my life.

"I was brought back to jail, to be kept there until the truth of Winters' story could be proved. A deputation, among which was a doctor, was sent with Winters, and Lasalle's ante-mortem statement was taken. After an examination, however, the doctor told Winters that the wound was not a fatal one, and that the man would recover. A gleam from Lasalle's eyes warned the doctor that the conversation had been overheard, so he cautioned Winters to be careful lest Lasalle should make an effort to escape. Winters laughed and said he guessed he could hold his own against a wounded man.

"That afternoon I was released. When the miners heard that Lasalle would recover they vowed vengeance. A party started out the next morning at sunrise to take him from Winters' cabin and hang him to the nearest tree.

"When they arrived there, they found Winters lying on the floor dead. A bullet hole in the back of his head told the tale. Winters' rifle and Lasalle were both gone. It was marvelous how he escaped, wounded as he was; but I suppose desperation aided him."

"Did he leave no trace?" I asked.

Carrington paused.

"No," he replied. "Jack Holmes, though, who played with us, was in Canada a few years ago. I met him last summer. He told me he could have sworn he saw Lasalle once for a moment in a crowded street in Toronto."

"Who keeps the grave here in such good condition?"

"I do!"

"You?"

"Yes, Clarke. I loved her."

He was silent for a moment and then went on—

"Yes, I loved her. I have been accused of lack of ambition because I have refused New York engagements. But what is ambition when there is no one to share its rewards with you? I prefer to play out here where I once played with her. As I go over the old circuit I am reminded of her, and that is my happiness."

I grasped his hand in sympathy and we rose to depart. As we started to our feet we noticed a man kneeling at the foot of Alice Payne's grave. Suddenly he took a pistol from his pocket, raised it to his head and fired. He fell face downward on the grave.

We rushed to him. Carrington reached him first and raised him. As he did so he cried—

"My God! it's Armande Lasalle!"

He was dead!—Waverley Magazine.

A Charm that Failed.

Major P. H. G. Powell-Cotton had some unique experiences during his twenty months of travel in little known districts in Africa. In telling of the superstition of the natives he says: "Among the week's washing I had given my boy a vest, which when the other things came back was missing. He made some excuse about mending it, and I thought no more of the matter till in the early morning I happened to catch sight of two of my men bringing it back from the direction of a Swahili trader's camp. Some time afterward I learned that the trader was regarded as a great worker of charms. The vest had been taken to him, and he had been asked to cast such a spell over it that when it next touched my skin any desire I might harbor of going far afield would melt away. When the charm was of no effect the explanation given by my men was that before leaving England I had acquired witchcraft potent enough to render their magic powerless."

Speaking of sure things, there is, in addition to death and taxes, the rent collector.

Judge Phillips' Big Fish.

"There is no fishing in the world like the sport in the Gulf of Mexico, where they catch tarpon," said Judge John F. Philips, recently in the Kansas City Star. Judge Philips, looking tanned and thoroughly rested, has just returned from a fishing trip to the coast of Texas. "I surprised the natives by catching six of those big fellows. The largest weighed 135 pounds and measured 6 feet 10 inches in length. It took me an hour to land him after I had made the strike.

"The tarpon is caught on a heavy line and a specially strong rod and reel. I had just told my boatman that I would go in for dinner and we had just started to put back to the shore from where we had been fishing, perhaps a mile out to sea, when I hooked the big fish. By playing with him, reeling him in and maneuvering back and forth for an hour I finally pulled him into shallow water. The boatman then leaped out in water up to his waist and, striking the fish with a gaff hook, hauled him up on the beach. Catching tarpon is strenuous exercise," added Judge Philips, "but as a sport it is not equaled."

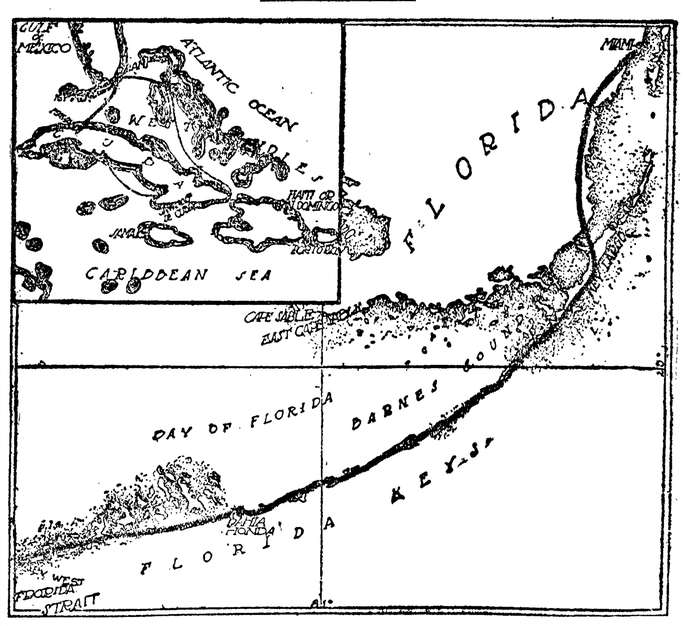
DARING RAILROAD PROPOSITION.



ROUTE OF THE RAILROAD TO KEY WEST.

The sort of railroading which appeals to the public mind, by reason of its daring and by the new problems which it often presents to the engineer, is that through mountain regions, but it has remained for Henry M. Flagler, who has been termed "The Wizard of Florida," to take in hand some railway construction which is not only unique, but daring to the last degree. This task is the extension of his Florida East Coast Railway, which has for some years been in operation between St. Augustine and Miami, 154 miles southwestward and northwestward from the latter point to the important island of Key West. The construction of the extension is proceeding rapidly.

The road will traverse for a considerable distance a ridge or slight elevation of aalitic limestone, and passing beyond this will reach sand, the mangrove, that strange tree which reaches its roots downward into the water from the limbs above being for a long distance the principal vegetation. Then the road will strike considerable stretches of water, more or less shallow, but always the foundation will be one of the finest and most substantial imaginable, namely, coral rock.

The construction will be of the most expensive and durable character, and everything will make for absolute safety. The first survey was for a line to Cape Sable, but when this was made Mr. Flagler found that he was sixty miles from Key West and twelve miles from what is known as the three fathom line of the gulf. He therefore decided to undertake the greater proposition, and so changed the line from Homestead and is building more nearly along what may be called the general line of the coast.

In a scenic way this road will be notable. The views it will give of those beautiful southern waters, with all their tenderness of tint, with the scores of "keys" or islands and inlets, great and small, will make it like a voyage in wonderland. The line will pass from key to key, and the first deep water it will strike will be at what is known as Knight's Key, where there will be a channel thirteen feet in depth.

Several drawbridges will be constructed, some for the use of the small vessels which are engaged in the sponge fisheries, the seat of the sponge trade being Key West.

TACTFUL MR. TAKAHIRA.

Japanese Minister to America Rose from the Ranks.

The career and experience of Togoro Takahira embraces most of the varied changes in modern Japanese history, says the Review of Reviews. In his early youth he felt keenly and deeply the ancient feuded life of samurai and shogun, and when Japan abandoned the old order and set her face toward the new he swung into and developed with the new national life. Mr. Takahira is a fine example of the diplomat and gentleman of the Far East. His culture and training are many sided—he is learned in Chinese philosophy and literature, he is a thorough scholar in the intricate literature of his own country, and he speaks and writes fluently in several European languages.

TOGORO TAKAHIRA

Mr. Takahira is not of the titled class—he has risen from the ranks. Entering the imperial diplomatic service in 1876, after a thorough education at the Japanese capital, he was appointed attache to the Japanese legation in Washington, becoming secretary of that legation in 1881. Two years later he was appointed secretary of the Foreign office. Later, he held a number of important posts, including those of charge d'affaires in Corea (1885), consul general at New York (1891), minister resident to Holland (1892), minister to Italy (1894), minister to Austria (1896), vice minister for foreign affairs (1899) and vice minister to the United States (1900).

The Japanese minister is a man of middle age, of a strong, well-built frame, but broken somewhat from his experience of last winter, when he was operated on for appendicitis. Tactful and diplomatic, a dignified diplomat through and through, Mr. Takahira has creditably represented Japanese interests throughout the present difficult period of the war. He has only courageous expressions of appreciation for the admirable qualities of the Russian people, whom he understands thoroughly. He does not look for peace in the near future, but says that Japan is quite ready and prepared to continue the conflict as long as may be necessary. As to the possibility which has been suggested of a Russo-Japanese alliance after peace has been concluded, Mr. Takahira declares this can never be. The Japanese people, he points out, have been educated, politically, along Anglo-Saxon lines, and it would be very difficult to change this national bent. A Franco-Russian alliance might be possible, but a Russo-Japanese alliance never.

Teeth Not Bones at All.

Professor E. Symes Thompson, Gresham professor of medicine, in the course of an address at the Polytechnic, Regent street, London, on "The Evolution and Degeneration of the Teeth," remarked that while the bones of man and animals had decayed greatly during the last 6,000 or 7,000 years, the teeth had been preserved in a much better condition.

Teeth were not part of bones, but part of the skin—they were, in fact, dermal appendages. Old people were surprised to find that when the teeth of the lower jaw departed there was very little of the jaw left. This produced what was called the nut-cracker physiognomy. Referring to the fact that the crocodile had an animated toothpick in the form of a bird, which removed foreign matter, the lecturer enforced the lesson of the necessity of attending carefully to the cleansing of the teeth and recommended attention to them at night as being more important than in the morning.

"No News to Speak Of."

A country correspondent of the Adams Enterprise sends in these interesting items:

"There is no news to speak of in this here settlement. Bud Spurlin was bit by one rattlesnake and two moccasins yesterday and is feeling unwell at this writing.

"The supper for the benefit of the new church bell was largely attended. (That is the hungriest bell in this neighborhood.)

"Maj. Jones happened to the accident of havin' his head blowed off Tuesday. Don't know how high it was blowed, as it hasn't come down yet.

"The jug-train with ninety gallons of spirits aboard, was wrecked by unknown miscreants Saturday night, and in consequence Sunday in town was dry enough to burn.

"I will close as there is no news to speak of, as I said before, wishing success to the paper and all good citizens."—Atlanta Constitution.

No Reason for Two Trips.

Patrick's wife was "ailing," and Patrick put on his Sunday best and walked four miles to the doctor's house to tell him about her.

"Now," said the doctor, when he had heard all Patrick had to say, and had prepared some medicine, "here is something for your wife. I've written the directions on the bottle, and I want her to try it faithfully for a fortnight. Then, if it doesn't relieve her, come to me again, and I will give you another prescription."

"Now, docther, see here," said Patrick, standing straight and looking grimly at the physician. "If you have your doubts o' this curin' Mary, as it's ivident you have by the way you spake, why don't you give me first what you're goin' to give me last?"

COMMANDER OF THE G. A. R.

Gen. Blackmar Was a Brave Soldier and Sterling Citizen.

Devotion to the duties of his office and his interest in the welfare of the G. A. R., of which he was Commander-in-chief, and which led him to sacrifice his health, were largely responsible for the death of Gen. Wilmon W. Blackmar, who passed away recently in Boise, Idaho, while on a tour of inspection of the Grand Army posts of the Northwest. Two weeks before General Blackmar, whose home is in Boston, broke down and was ordered to his bed at his summer home in Hingham. He improved rapidly, however, and decided to continue his trip in the West, which he had begun early in the year. Upon reaching Idaho he again failed rapidly to the end.

GEN. BLACKMAR.

General Blackmar was born in Bristol, Pa., July 25, 1841. While a boy the family moved to Boston. At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted as a private in the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry, and with his regiment was at Antietam, Stone River, Chattanooga, Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge. He was promoted until as a lieutenant he was transferred to the First West Virginia Veteran Cavalry, one of Custer's famous regiments. It was while holding this position, and while only 24 years of age, that he performed the act which made him known as a gallant soldier the country over. Near Five Forks, April 1, 1865, he was ordered to form a new line at a critical stage of action, while the men were being pressed back. He carried out this instruction and then, without orders, advanced the line, calling upon the color bearer to follow. The call was repeated, the line advanced, the charge was made and the enemy routed. This audacious and brave action was witnessed by Custer, who promoted him on the field to a captaincy.

General Blackmar remained at the front until the close of the war and was present at the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox. After the close of the war he returned to Boston and later graduated from Harvard College. For ten years he was advocate general of Massachusetts. He was the first commander of Post 113, G. A. R., of Boston, and was a prominent member of the Loyal Legion. Gen. Blackmar was elected Commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. at the last National Encampment, held in Boston in August, 1904.

A man has to be too smart to live to keep up with his own opinion of himself.

A woman can believe anything nice a man says to her, especially if she knows it isn't so.

A woman has the faith in her own love to have faith in somebody else's that she knows is faithless.

It takes a girl to rub her cheeks to take paleness out of them and hold her hands above her head to put it in them.

When a man has to read an old love letter he wrote he feels cheaper than when his hat blows off in a windstorm.

Had Kept Nothing Back.

There were six of them, each in a new gown, says the New York Sun reporter. It may be that the gowns only looked new to the newspaper man, but at any rate the young women were quite content with themselves and each other as they boarded a Broadway car. They had very little regard for the dull routine and commonplace details of life.

The announced intention of all was to transfer to Thirty-fourth street, and to this end the girl in the red hat got six transfers. But the other five changed their minds before they got to the transfer point, and declared themselves in favor of a shopping foray. Only the girl with the red hat stuck to the original plan and boarded the Thirty-fourth street car. To the conductor who came to take her fare she handed the bunch of transfers—the original six.

The conductor looked at her, and on each side of her, and all round her. She was oblivious. Then he said, "Where are the others?"

The girl looked up, startled and confused for an instant. Then she spoke, with cold dignity.

"That's all the transfer man gave me," she said.

Spoonham—Miss Daisy, that beautiful ring you are wearing has a flash and a tint that reminds me of your eyes.

Miss Daisy—Indeed? This stone is a cat's-eye, Mr. Spooner. Explain yourself.—Cleveland Leader.

If it isn't the fire bell that rings when you are alone in the house and in the bathtub, it is the door bell or telephone.

It's better to think of what you are going to eat than to be unable to forget what you have eaten.

Tale of Orange Blossom.

The wearing of orange blossoms at a wedding is accounted for in various ways. Among other stories is the following popular legend from Spain: An African king presented a Spanish king with a magnificent orange tree, whose creamy, waxy blossoms and wonderful fragrance excited the admiration of the whole court. Many begged in vain for a branch of the plant and a foreign ambassador was tormented by the desire to introduce so great a curiosity to his native land. He used every possible means to accomplish his purpose, but, all his efforts coming to naught, he gave up in despair.

The fair daughter of the court gardener was loved by a young artisan, but she lacked the dowry which the family considered necessary to a bride. One day, chancing to break off a spray of orange blossom, the gardener thoughtlessly gave it to his daughter. Seeing the coveted prize in the girl's hair the wily ambassador offered her a sum sufficient for the dowry, provided she gave him a branch and said nothing about it. Her marriage was soon celebrated, and on her way to the altar, in grateful remembrance of the source of all her happiness, she secretly broke off another bit of the lucky tree to adorn her hair.

Whether the poor court gardener lost his head in consequence of his daughter's treachery the legend does not relate, but many lands now know the wonderful tree, and ever since that wedding day orange blossom has been considered a fitting adornment for a bride.

John Hyde, chief of the bureau of statistics in the Department of Agriculture, resigned, declaring that the cotton growers had organized to force him out of the department and that his health was too poor to enable him to continue the struggle. Secretary Wilson said that Mr. Hyde has not been implicated in any manner in the irregularities that resulted in the dismissal of Edwin S. Holmes, the associate statistician, charged with being guilty of giving to brokers advance figures of cotton crop statistics. Hyde's letter of resignation was almost sensational.

Earthly Pleasures. — Can earthly pleasures make one so happy as to leave nothing to be desired. Assuredly not. They that indulge in sensual gratification are forced to acknowledge that the deeper they plunge the more they are enslaved and the less they are satisfied by them. The keen edge of delight soon becomes blunted. —Cardinal Gibbons, Roman Catholic, Baltimore, Md.

Unrest.—Society is full of unrest and discontent because of the exaggerated estitmate put upon material possessions. Side by side with great strenuousness in the pursuit of health there is, on the part of many who have achieved or inherited fortunes, increasing luxury and self-indulgence. This is reproduced in varying degrees, in every stratum of society, from the most to the least wealthy.—Rev. P. S. Moxom, Congregationalist, Springfield, Mass.

Stewed Beef.

Cut the beef into inch square pieces; flour each; cut a small carrot, a small turnip, and a large onion into slices, put the fat you trimmed off into a deep spider or a saucepan, let it get very hot, lay in the vegetables, cover, and leave them to brown (not burn), stirring occasionally. When they are all nicely browned, pour on them a pint of boiling water, and lay in the meat; put with it a moderate teaspoonful of salt and one-half saltspoonful of pepper, with two or three coarse stalks of celery, if you have them, cut fine. Let all stew very gently for two hours at least, or until the meat is quite tender, but remember, if it has boiled or stewed fast, it will never be that, nor would it if you made your stew of tenderloin. Skim free from fat and serve.

Blackberry Sponge.

Soak one-half box of gelatine in a half cupful of water. Wash one quart of blackberries and add to them one-half cupful of sugar; boil together for twenty minutes another half cupful of sugar and the same amount of water. Rub the berries through a fine sieve, add the gelatine to the boiling syrup, and after removing from the fire add the berry juice. Place the dish in a pan of ice water and beat with the egg-beater for fully five minutes; then add the beaten whites of five eggs and whip until the mixture begins to thicken. Pour into wet molds and set on ice. Serve with cream.

MALARIA A Poison Breathed into the System

The air arising from low, marshy places, damp cellars, stagnant ponds and pools and from decaying vegetable matter, as well as the gases from sewers, is loaded with germs of malarial poison. The water we drink, that has not been properly filtered and purified, is also full of these germs and microbes, and as we daily breathe and drink millions of these into the system, to be absorbed by the blood, the entire body begins to feel the effects of the poison. The most common form of Malaria is "chills and fever," but when the blood is thoroughly saturated with the poison it becomes so weak and polluted that abscesses, carbuncles, boils, sores, ulcers and other skin diseases result. Malaria also affects the liver, kidneys, bowels and stomach, producing a chronic state of biliousness that often results in jaundice or some malignant fever. In cases of Malaria the blood must be purified before the body can regain its natural health. S. S. S. contains purifying and tonic properties possessed by no other blood medicine, and is the ideal remedy for the treatment of Malaria. It destroys the germs of the disease and builds up the weakened, polluted circulation. It enters into the blood and forces out every particle of poison and waste matter and adds strength and activity to it. S. S. S. improves the appetite and digestion, tones up the entire system by its alterative and purifying action, and Malaria, with all its bad effects, is permanently driven from the system. Book on the blood and any medical advice, without charge. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

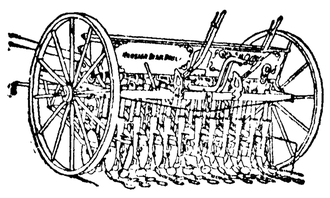
Why Hoosier Drills ARE Perfect Sowers



A Perfect Drill is impossible without a feeding device that will sow the grain evenly under all conditions. The ordinary gravity feed sows by weight. The greater pressure on the feed opening when going up hill makes it sow more than when coming down, when this pressure is removed; the same on side hills. NOT SO ON THE HOOSIER. It has Perfect Force Feed; sows by measure, consequently always sows the same; and pressure does not affect it. Enlargement in the Feed Cup just where the Feed Roll takes hold of the seed prevents cracking. Write for "The Feeding of the Seed in Hoosier Drills." That tells all about it.
