WATER SURVEY NECESSARY

One Firm Asks $1,000 For Double Survey and Plan of System.

The special water committee, Councilmen Hallahan, Brumfield and Grubb, appointed to report on probable cost and source from which the city could obtain municipal water and power supply reported that "after considering this proposition to considerable extent and after visiting both Ennis creek and Little River find that before we can as a committee go into this matter any further, we must have the services of a competent hydraulic engineer to give us specifications and data in order that we can arrive at the probable cost or the source from which the water should be taken. A firm of civil engineers, Dunn, Coale & Dunn of Seattle have been in consultation with your committee and have visited both Ennis creek and Little River. They herewith submit thru this committee their proposition for giving their estimate of cost of furnishing water and power from both sources. WANT INVESTIGATION BY GOVERNMENT

Seattle Chamber of Commerce Asks for Explanations

As an aftermath to the Valencia wreck, the Seattle Chamber of Commerce requests President Roosevelt to have a rigid investigation made of all features in connection therewith. They charge the Queen, belonging to the same company, to have been within three-quarters mile of the Valencia; reporting sixty people clinging to rigging, and yet abandoned her; neither did the Topeka attempt to render assistance. At the same time a life raft overladen with unskilled hands reached the Topeka. That the lifeboats were ill-equipped with seamen, and defective plugs and oarlocks rendered them unsafe. That there was lack of discipline, boat drills and fire drills. That of those rescued members of the crew predominate and not a single woman or child was saved. That criticism and odium attaches to the behavior of officers of all three ships which should be cleared if their action was all that could be demanded of men engaged in their respective duties.

Piedmont Hotel Case

Judge Hatch handed down his decision in the case of R. K. Brown vs. E. A. Baldwin et al. this week, in favor of the plaintiff. This case was tried in the early part of December and the counsel for the respective parties submitted briefs. The case was of more or less local interest by reason of the fact that the title of the Piedmont Hotel at Lake Crescent was involved. The suit has been pending for several years and was the outgrowth of prior litigation in Jefferson county. Mr. Baldwin, who resides in Portland, has been in possession of this property pending the litigation, but, influenced doubtless by the fact that the title was in question, has done nothing to improve the property, but has contented himself with whatever revenue he could get by way of rentals.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Brown may see his way to improve this property and make of it the popular resort it should be. The plaintiff in this case was represented by Messrs. Trumbull & Trumbull and the defendants by Messrs. Chamberlain & Thomas, and ex-U. S. Att'y John H. Hall of Portland and Judge McClinton of this city.

COLD STORAGE CONTRACT LET

No Time Lost in Getting New Industry Started

Pres. W. D. Craig let the contract for the cold storage warehouse this week to Geo. L. Clayton of Seattle, who represents Wolf & Co., and the Linde ice machine. The building will require between two and three hundred thousand feet of lumber, and, Mr. Clayton says, will be the largest fish storage plant north of St. Paul. The walls will be eight fold, or eight thicknesses of lumber to each wall, enclosing the necessary insulating spaces. The plant will be so constructed that it can be added to from time to time as the growth of the business will demand. Work will be commenced in two or three weeks and be completed by May 1st.

Art In Water Colors.

Mr. Chas. Bork, our artistic sign painter, is gifted in a higher line of work, as is plainly evidenced by the new drop curtain he has painted for the new Morse play-house. In the center of the drop is a great oval pendant, by chains, from the mask of Momus, some five feet by four, in which is painted a sylvan landscape, such as delights the eye. While the general plan of the curtain is similar to that in the opera house, it excels it in the central picture. Bare mediocrity in such work is, usually, the limit, but this work is passing good, and bids us look for better things to come from Mr. Bork's brush. An added point of strength in this notice, lies in the fact that Mr. Bork will be as much surprised to read it, as any one else can be.

My druggist recommended Kodol, and it has relieved me. I can now eat anything and sleep soundly at night. Kodol digests what you eat. Sold by C. E. Nailor & Co.

Has a Valencia Sinker

Mrs. W. E. H. Lyster, of this city, has a portion of a life preserver from the Valencia picked up by Frank on Ediz Hook some months ago, after a severe storm off the Cape, in which that steamer was more of less damaged. The piece consists of two sections, bearing the name of the steamer. Since the charges made by survivors of the wreck that the tule life preservers absorbed water like a sponge and dragged people down by their weight, Mrs. Lyster has examined this specimen. Each section consists of two bunches of tule, bound at the ends with copper wire. When immersed, the reeds become filled with water, which can be squeezed out of them just as water might be from a mop.

Just a little Kodol after meals will relieve that fulness, belching, gas on stomach, and all other symptoms of indigestion. Kodol digests what you eat, and enables the stomach and digestive organs to perform their functions naturally. Sold by C. E. Nailor & Co.

SARCASM, OR IRONY?

"The Port Townsend Call and the Port Angeles Olympic-Leader seem to be two of a kind, and of a very poor kind at that. The Call goes much out of its way to read the publisher of the Tribune-Times a long lecture on how to manage its own business in general, and how to conduct a special number in particular, and the Olympic Leader, of course, reprints the stuff with avidity. Such captiousness might result in damage to our efforts to get out a successful special edition here were not the animus of it all so apparent on its face. It is a plain case of sour grapes, and the expression of the true disposition of disgruntled, disappointed and behind-hand editors. Mr. Jessup, the special writer who is assisting in the preparation of our special number, makes the rule of doing business with the leading and most progressive publication in each city he visits. He did not choose to do business with the Call at Port Townsend, nor with the Olympic-Leader in Port Angeles. And it is perhaps not necessary to say anything further on the subject."

The sour and shriveled nature of the editor of the T.-T, which leads him to infer the actions of others will be the same he would adopt under similar circumstances, is responsible for the above. His deformities of mind are such that he sees life as thru a glass, darkly, for which he is to be truly pitied, rather than condemned.

The editorial in the Call above referred to as a "long lecture on how to manage its own business" was not reprinted in the Olympic-Leader. On the contrary, to a score of gentlemen who had asked our opinion of the special edition we had recommended it.

To be sure, we had expressed our surprise that Mr. Flowers, undoubtedly the best descriptive and editorial writer in the town, was not employed to do the extra work thus required. We can only surmise petty jealousy to be the cause.

We had stated that the scheme was hoary with age; that it had been worked for many years by newspaper-men and printers when out of work as a means of getting easy money; that we had several times turned down similar propositions because we did not believe in the principle upon which they are worked; but that in this particular instance we believed Mr. Smith would be aroused from his lethargy and by his personal effort and the assistance of others interested in the town produce a creditable issue. We had stated that all advertising is good advertising, the only question being whether the issue would be worth to the town the total sum paid by the business men—and to each one expressed our belief that it would.

The special opportunity edition of the T. T. will be out today. We believe it will contain at least a couple dozen new illustrations showing up the industries and the advantages of Clallam county. We believe it will treat extensively of the resources of the county, that it will go into the opportunities to be had in the shingle and lumber business, in fisheries, in coal, iron, stone, cement, clay, in creameries, fruit canneries, and especially in dairying and fruit raising on the irrigated and bench lands. We believe it will contain seven or eight pages of descriptive matter calculated to interest the investor and the homeseeker, for at less than this it would certainly not be worth the price that has been paid for its support.

We were in favor of this special edition and hoped for its success, and take this early opportunity of congratulating Mr. Smith upon its production.

But we do not wish to be understood as giving Mr. Jessup credit for this issue as a "special writer." Until about a year ago, when business vicissitudes turned him into other channels, he was a job printer in Bellingham. The term "special writer" may be high sounding, but it does not give him the ability to get up an opportunity edition for Clallam county. As we understand it, his is the business end, selling space to the business men for personal write-ups according to the number of copies taken—or, as one merchant said, "I took enough copies to get a good representation."

Our objection to such schemes in general—the reason we have always turned such grafters down — lies in the well-known fact that no merchant cares to be left out of a general advertising proposition, good or bad, whether he thinks it will pay or not, and the solicitor works directly upon this knowledge of human nature.

A special edition which is paid for by business men at the rate of five, ten, or fifteen dollars each is an evidence of enterprise on the part of those men, but most decidedly not of the newspaper working the scheme. For those who like that sort of newspaper enterprise, that is the sort of newspaper enterprise they like. We're not in that class, hence we cannot eat the T.-T.'s sour grapes.

Their reference to the Call's editorial makes of that article good news in which all will be interested. For that reason, and the further one that the hard-headed facts therein contained could only be answered by accusing us of printing it, and employing an effort at sarcasm to divert attenrion from those facts, we herewith publish it:

"The Port Angeles Tribune-Times announces that it is going to get out a special number for the purpose of advertising Port Angeles, etc. Then the T.-T. goes on to acknowledge that there is no one in Port Angeles capable of getting out such a number, and it has therefore imported a man—a stranger to the resources of Clallam county—to get out the paper. The Angeles paper thereby writes itself down as incapable of looking after the interests of its constituents, and sets an example of sending patronage away from home. Mr. A. A. Smith has lived in Port Angeles for a long time. He ought to know the conditions there better than any stranger who is traveling about the country and using country papers as a means of drawing from the public his sustenance. There is not a stranger living who in a few weeks can learn and write of the advantages of Clallam, or any other county, offered the homeseeker, The Call is ready to wager that the special edition of the Tribune-Times will consist of personal write-ups at so much per— a lot of bouquet throwing that the homeseeker cares nothing for These strangers who go about the country telling in the local papers how 'John Doe settled in Doetown in 1492, was nominated for constable in 1493, and carries the best stock of groceries and liquors in the whole city, and is the most respected citizen outside of state's prison,' are doing nothing toward the settlement of the country. If a man in Missouri is searching for a home in the west, he don't care a continental who the men are who are doing business there. What he wants to know is, the topography of the country, richness of soil, what that soil produces, and what kind of climate the country possesses. It is ten to one that when the stranger leaves Port Angeles after his stereotyped 'bouquet throwing' in the Tribune-Times the people of Port Angeles who have thrown away good money to support the wandering stranger whose interests are on the other side of the Sound will be kicking themselves for having been 'takin in' by him, with the help of the Angeles newspaper. This has been the history elsewhere—it will be there. To be sure the Tribune-Times gets a per cent out of the scheme, but the stranger secures the biggest part of the rake-off. And all of it comes out of the pockets of the business men without any compensating benefit. Knowing the ability of the editor of the Tribune-Times, and the editor of the Olympic-Leader, to write more intelligently about Clallam county resources than is possible to be done by a stranger with but a few weeks in the territory, and that confined to soliciting 'write-ups,' the Call is astonished that Mr. Smith should fall into the trap. With newspapers where the ability is lacking, it is expected that any paper that would endorse such a scheme to rob the public, would also accept the services of a stranger.

After the issue of the special edition of the Tribune-Times by a non-resident, it will not be in order for that paper to advocate the spending of money at home, with home dealers, as the Tribune-Times will have set the example of paying money to men living abroad for services that can be better rendered by home people. And the people of Port Angeles —'they pay the freight.'"

The above is the only article the Call has published "reading the editor of the T.-T. a lecture on managing his business." In consideration of this fact, Mr. Smith should lose no time in "taking something" to correct his mental strabismus and relieve the bile on his stomach, which gives him that disagreeably sordid and sour disposition, so often asserting itself to the mortification of his friends, and the contempt of those who despise his narrow-mindedness.

Lame Back.

This ailment is usually caused by rheumatism of the muscles and may be cured by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm two or three times a day and rubbing the parts vigorously at each application. If this does not afford relief, bind on a piece of flannel slightly dampened with Pain Balm, and quick relief is almost sure to follow. All druggists.

Prune Your Trees Now!

If you haven't the time to do it yourself, or don't know just how to go at it, I should be pleased to do it for you. I know how to prune trees JUST RIGHT, and will not mutilate and disfigure your orchard, but on the contrary will make good trees out of some of your old cripples.

If you want roses trimmed I will promise to leave them as if a Kansas cyclone had gone through them, but you need not settle with me for that kind of work, either with a rolling-pin or otherwise, until the daffodils bloom in the springtime and the roses will have recovered from the terrible shock and show evidence in my favor.

Spraying will be in order next month sometime. I shall be prepared with a good big outfit to do the work properly, and if you have any poor, worthless fruit trees that you want grafted to better fruit, I can do it for you. I am now cutting my scions (or slips) from some of the best bearing trees I can find in city and country, and shall get some new varieties from Pullman and other places to try.

Can furnish fine strawberry plants from $3.50 to $5.00 per 1,000. Clark's Seedling, Hood River, Sharpless, Marshall, and others. $2.00 extra per 1,000 set and a full stand guaranteed first season; dead and sick plants replaced and planted free of charge.

Leave word at the Port Angeles Grocery or at Seevers' store and I'll call and see what you want.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Pneumonia Followed La Grippe—Pe-ru-na the Remedy That Brought Relief.

Mr. T. Barnecott, West Aylmer, Ontario, Can. writes:

"Last winter I was ill with pneumonia after having la grippe. I took Peruna for two months when I became quite well, and I can say that any one can be cured by it in a reasonable time and at little expense."

Systemic Catarrh, the Result of La Grippe. Pe-ru-na Receives Credit for Present Good Health.

Mrs. Jennie W. Gilmore, Box 44, White Oak, Ind. Ter., writes:

"Six years ago I had la grippe, which was followed by systemic catarrh. The only thing I used was Peruna and Manalin, and I have been in better health the last three years than for years before. I give Peruna all the credit for my good health."

Pe-ru-na—A Tonic After La Grippe.

Mrs. Chas. E. Wells, Sr., Delaware, Ohio, writes: "After a severe attack of la grippe, I took Peruna and found it a very good tonic."

"Most Effective Medicine Ever Tried for La Grippe."

Robt. L. Madison, A. M., principal of Cullowhee high school, Painter, N. C., is chairman of the Jackson county board of education. Mr. Madison says: "I am hardly ever without Peruna in my home. It is the most effective medicine that I have ever tried for la grippe."

Mrs. Jane Gift, Athens, O., writes: "I had la grippe very bad. My husband bought Peruna for me. In a very short time I saw improvement and was soon able to do my work."

Suffered Twelve Years From After Effects of La Grippe.

Mr. Victor Patneaude, 328 Madison St., Topeka, Kan., member of Knights and Ladies of Security, writes:

"Twelve years ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and I never really recovered my health and strength—but grew weaker every year until I was unable to work.

"Two years ago I began using Peruna and it built up my strength so that in a couple of months I was able to go to work again.

"This winter I had another attack of la grippe, but Peruna soon drove it out of my system.

"My wife and I consider Peruna a household remedy."

The Chinese eat indiscriminately almost every living creature which comes in their way; dogs, cats, hawks, owls, eagles and storks are regular marketable commodities, in default of which a dish of rats, field mice or snakes is not objected to. Cockroaches and other insects and reptiles are used for food or medicine. Their taste for dog's flesh is quite a fashion. Young pups—plump, succulent and tender—fetch good prices at the market stalls, where a supply is always to be found. A dish of puppies, prepared by a skillful cook, is esteemed as a dish fit for the gods. At every grand banquet it makes its appearance as a hash or stew.

An old captain and his mate, feeling hungry, went into a restaurant on the water front and ordered dinner. The waiter, with considerable flourish, placed a plate of thin, watery-looking liquid before each of them. "Say, young fellow, what's this stuff?" shouted the captain, gazing in amazement at the concoction under his nose. "Soup, sir," replied the waiter. "Soup?" shouted the old sea-dog; "soup, Bill" (turning to the mate), "just think of that! Here you and me have been sailing on soup all our lives an' never knowed it till now."

Fill a bowl with cold water. Put the butter on a plate and put on top of the bowl; then take a piece of muslin and put over the butter and let cloth ends drop into the water. You can easily get the butter for use, and you will find it is solid and cool.

It is well known that pure quartz glass possesses the property of transmitting, very abundantly, the so-called chemical rays of light, by means of which photographic effects are produced, and it has often been attempted to make photographic lenses of quartz alone. Unfortunately, quartz also possesses the property of double refraction, so that, unless the opening of the lenses is very narrow, good images are not produced. Recently a French optician, F. Morin, has succeeded in making small photographic lenses of quartz glass in which some of the difficulties have been avoided, and the lenses show great rapidity of action. Still, the problem, confessedly, has not been entirely solved, and the new lenses are recommended by their inventor only for special purposes. Astronomers are particularly desirous to obtain photographic lenses possessing the peculiar permeability to the actinic rays that characterizes quartz.

Piso's Cure is a good cough medicine. It has cured coughs and colds for forty years. At druggists, 25 cents.

Four years ago William Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, began an action at law against an old army veteran named Lamore for trespass on the magnificent Rockefeller estate at Malone, N. Y. The jury returned a verdict in favor of Mr. Rockefeller and awarded him eighteen cents damages. Lamore's attorneys appealed the case. It has taken a dozen turns, but is still in the courts. Rockefeller is trying to get his eighteen cents and Lamore is trying to keep from paying it.

Schuyler Van Ness, of an old Long Island Dutch family, was brought into Long Island city police court the other day as a vagrant, having been arrested for begging on a ferry boat. Human hairs are not, as might be supposed, perfectly cylindrical, but are more or less flattened in one direction. The most cylindrical hair is most inclined to grow straight, while hair that is much flattened has a tendency to curl; and the flatter the hair the greater this tendency. This is the main cause of curly hair; but the readiness with which hair absorbs moisture also affects curliness.

Unknown White Races.

The idea that in remote parts of the tropics, amidst the dark-skinned races, there exist mysterious isolated white tribes bearing a strong resemblance to Europeans has long possessed a curious fascination for the Old World. The early adventurers in Central and Southern America brought home many tales of extraordinary cities beyond the mountains, and vague stories afloat in South Africa thirty or forty years ago furnishes Rider Haggard with a theme for one of his best-known novels. Yet so strong a hold has the idea gained, that even at the beginning of the twentieth century the possibility of the existence of a genuine white race is not altogether scoffed at. It is less than four years ago that an American officer engaged in operations against the Moros in the Philippines collected apparently substantial evidence relating to a mysterious white tribe in the island of Mindanao. The officer was so impressed that he determined to conduct an exploring party across the center of the island. But apparently the mysterious white folk had vanished, for the world up to the present time has heard nothing of his search being crowned with success.

One of the features that attract most attention in traveling through the Australian colonies is the number of churches which are everywhere to be found. Every little township or village has three or four edifices devoted to worship; in fact, one Victorian hamlet achieved notoriety by being the possessor of five churches and no public houses.

Mrs. Witte has been consistently snubbed by the imperial family, and the question arises whether, now that her husband has been made a count, they will let her into that society. The present empress has been the worst of the whole lot. This is not because of Mrs. Witte's humble birth, but her Hebrew blood.

CATARRH ANNOYING—DANGEROUS

Catarrh is usually regarded as nothing more serious than a bad cold or slight inflammation of the inner skin and tissues of the head and throat, when it is, in fact, not only a vexatious and troublesome disease, but a complicated and dangerous one. It is true that Catarrh usually begins with a cold in the head, but when the poisons, which are thrown off through the secretions, find their way into the blood, it becomes a constitutional trouble that affects all parts of the body. It has more annoying and disgusting symptoms than any other disease. There is a sickening and offensive discharge from the nostrils, a constant buzzing noise in the ears, headaches and pains in the eyes are frequent, while filthy, tenacious matter drops back into the throat requiring continual hawking and spitting, and in certain stages of the disease the breath has an odor that is very offensive. Catarrh is worse in Winter, because the cold weather closes the pores and glands, and the poisons and unhealthy vapors which should pass off that way are thrown back on the tender linings and tissues, causing the inflammation which starts the unhealthy secretions to be absorbed by the blood. When the blood becomes diseased with this catarrhal matter all kinds of complications may be looked for. As the blood circulates through the body the foul matter finds its way into the stomach, ruining the digestion and producing chronic Dyspepsia, or Catarrh of the stomach. It also affects the Kidneys, Bladder and other members of the body, while the general health is weakened, appetite lost and the patient feels despondent and half sick all the time. But worst of all, if the trouble is not checked the lungs become diseased from the constant passage of poisoned blood through them, and Catarrh terminates in Consumption, the most fatal of all diseases. You cannot get rid of Catarrh by treating it with sprays, washes, inhalations, etc., because they only reach the membranes and tissues, while the real cause of the trouble is in the blood. These relieve the annoying symptoms for a time, but the poison is all the while getting a stronger hold on the system and when they are left off will manifest itself in worse form than before. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and when it has cleansed the blood, this pure, rich stream circulates through the body, carrying healthful properties to the diseased parts. Then the inflamed membranes and tissues begin to heal, the discharges cease, the general condition of the system is strengthened, every one of the annoying and disgusting symptoms pass away, and the patient is left in perfect health. S. S. S. is the best remedy for Catarrh. It goes right into the blood and removes all effete matter and catarrhal poison and cures the disease permanently, and at the same time builds up the entire system by its fine tonic effect. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy—non-injurious to the system and a certain, reliable cure for Catarrh. Catarrh sufferers will find our free consulting department helpful in advising local treatment to be used with S. S. S.

Several years ago my blood was bad and I had in addition a dreadful case of Catarrh. My nose was stopped up, I had headaches, ringing noises in my ears and felt unfit for work. I commenced the use of S. S. S. on the recommendation of a friend, and in a short time it cured me sound and well. It put my blood in good condition and I have never had the slightest return of the Catarrh since that time.

THE WINNING STROKE

If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all-important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating, or debilitating the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that the genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package. Regular price, 50c per bottle.

MONROE DRUG CO., Unionville, Missouri.

The Gaulois of Paris has been investigating that grave question, "Why do men wear mustaches?" About one hundred men answered the question. Six replied that it was too much trouble to shave, one declared that it was to hide his teeth, another that his long nose without it gave him a bad appearance, and three that it avoided colds. Three others maintained that it improved the air they breathed, and seven were of the opinion that a mustache was necessary to health. Seventeen men were content to state that they did it to please themselves, while only two said it was to please their wives. About sixty gave the reason that women did not like clean-shaven men.

"Look at the crowds that have come to see the horses on show," said an enthusiastic lover of the noble animal as he entered Madison Square Garden, in New York; "who shall say the public is not as keenly interested as ever in the horse?" "I noticed as we came in," replied his friend, "that the crowd arrived in automobiles."

Little Dorothy's papa had been very ill with appendicitis, and had lain for many days in the darkened room after the doctors had come and removed his appendix. Dorothy had been told to be very quiet and very good, with the promise that she should go in to see her papa at the earliest possible moment. At last she was permitted a brief interview. When nurse came to take her away, she hung back a moment. "Haven't I been very quiet, papa?" "Yes," whispered the fond parent. "And haven't I been very good?" Her father admitted it. "Then won't you do me a big favor, papa?" "Certainly. What is it, my child?" "Let me see the baby."

If the human race were built on plans that meet daily requirements, men would have two more legs that they might constantly be kicking themselves, and women would have six more pair of hands that they might keep up with the work the children make around the house.

COUNCIL IS BANQUETED

done. The councilmen wanted ten miles completed eastward by close of present year, but finally accepted a total of fifteen miles graded at any point or points between here and Junction City by that time.

There were other points the councilmen had talked over together previously, chief among which was to be a stipulation to the effect that any other company desiring to reach the water front of city could do so over the tracks of the Port Angeles and Olympia. They wanted the privilege of amending ordinance at any time in future, giving city rights to regulate traffic, etc. And some of the members were in favor of holding the franchises in escrow until certain work had been done. But Mr. Carrigan would concede none of these points, and the members agreed to accept and vote for ordinance as it now stands — all save Mr. Hallahan, with whom the promoters worked half the night without success; he has the backbone to stand out for what he believes the future welfare of the city, and maintains he will not vote for the ordinance as long as it is so framed as to shut out all other roads.

Mr. Hallahan, we understand, takes into consideration the fact of Great Northern officials having recently driven over the proposed line from Angeles to Ludlow; that L. M. Rice is an engineer in employ of the Great Northern, now just completing a 45-mile branch of that road; that a line to Ludlow with ferry to Everett would be an easy and inexpensive method of occupying this territory, but that would give us a very inferior service on a branch line, with no hope of future relief from other sources.

As it may be taken from the above that these ordinances will be passed and that the road will be built in accordance therewith, we deem it only just to our readers to add that there are many who believe it is not a Great Northern project, but merely an attempted promotion on the part of individuals. March 1st is almost at hand, yet no permanent surveys have been made, no right of way acquired, and no investments made. Neither has any showing been made to prove the statement that the money for these 60 miles is already in the banks.

In this connection also, statements make by Engineer Rice on Wednesday evening will be of interest. He says he now has 1,500 men at work at Spencer's Bridge, B. C. Work will be completed there by April 1st. He will ship the first installment of men and working equipment within two weeks, and transfer the balance as rapidly as he can spare them. He will lose some men in the change; this loss must be made good, and many more employed to do the work, for which purpose he will ship men in from Seattle. Were men not so scarce he could easily finish the entire line by end of year. The matter of securing rails will also likely cause delay; he expects to get rails for June shipment from Maryland, to be here in September; it is the only mill he knows of that has not taken orders for months or years ahead. Work will be prosecuted all along the line, rock work being done at various points in wet weather and grading during the summer. Bridge timbers of size and kind required can only be obtained upsound. The entire 25 miles west will be graded before rails are laid, 25 days being then required to lay rails. Work on line to Crescent may take a good part of year; this, in connection with scarcity of men, may make it impossible or at least not economical to grade fifteen consecutive miles eastward—hence the stipulation for fifteen miles between Angeles and Junction City.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Canned Tropical Fruits

Are Rarely Appreciated by the Fastidious Feeder.

The reason for this is to be found in the fact that heretofore practically all the Tropical Fruits in the shape of canned goods to be found on the market were put up from fruits which had been picked green and shipped to the cannery, with the expectation that it would ripen sufficiently on the long journey for canning purposes. Such ripening is simply the first step in decay and the fruit, instead of being improved, as by the natural process of ripening, deteriorates. The result of course is an inferior product.

Recognizing this fact, the owners of the RELIANCE BRAND of canned goods have contracted for the entire output of the first cannery to be established in the Hawaiian Islands and are now putting on the market the first product of their enterprise, in the shape of a canned PINEAPPLE, which will be a revelation to the lover of good things to eat. This fruit is picked when nature intended it to be picked and when it is at its best in flavor and lusciousness, that is, when it is ripe, and is canned at once at the place where it is grown. The result is all that the fruit is capable of. Until you have eaten RELIANCE PINEAPPLES, you don't know what canned Pineapples are.

E. W. MERRILL & Co.
have just received their first shipment of these goods. Get a can and tickle your palate.

PAPERS BY THE PEOPLE

A SQUARE DEAL FOR ALL.

By Secretary Charles J. Bonaparte.

C. J. BONAPARTE.

Insult and oppression will never foster loyalty, and those treated with scorn and distrust by the laws of the land wherein they dwell are, ever have been and ever will be a source of national weakness and of national danger. Had the Know-Nothings prevailed a half century ago, there would have been to-day a little America, made yet more little in all that should make a nation great by the festering sore of a great national folly and a greater national crime. Humanity was spared this grave, this far reaching calamity. The spirit of our orderly freedom was then and is now too just, too sane, to suffer, or at least suffer long, such perversion of our laws. Many, too many, Americans of those days were deafened to the voice of reason and conscience by appeals to prejudice and passion. It may be that many, too many, Americans of to-day are no better able to reject the like insidious and unworthy appeals, but the heart of the nation was then and is now sound and true.

Americans want a square deal for every man; want a President who will give every man such a deal in national affairs; want a Governor who will give every man such a deal in State affairs; want a Mayor who will give every man such a deal in city affairs. They gave your grandfathers and fathers a square deal, took them in to share their own ups and downs, their fair weather and their rain, their good and their ill fortune, with the same duties and the same burdens, the same rights and the same privileges which fall to the lot of all other Americans. And as our country hath dealt with you, so have you dealt with her. Because she treated you and those who begot you with righteousness, in you she has citizens of whom any land may well be proud.

MILLIONAIRES WHO LIVE THE SIMPLE LIFE.

By G. R. Clarke.

That the majority of millionaires lead the simple life is usually conceded. No less a person than Chauncey M. Depew has summed it up as he believes it should be followed by the beginner. He says:

"The first thing for a young man to do is to study his health. He must first learn not to eat too much. He must then learn that neither liquor nor tobacco is necessary in any form or quantity. On the contrary, a young man who is in good health will make so much more steam and vitality than he needs that, instead of stimulating, he ought to work off steam in his work and recreation."

A man who now occupies one of the first places among the younger generation of financiers is George W. Perkins, who will some day probably be one of the richest men in the United States. Soon after Mr. Perkins went into the Morgan partnership he had an unusual object lesson. Two of the partners in the great banking house broke down because of an unreasonable manner of life.

Mr. Perkins followed neither of these extremes. His usual plan is to get home early, where he has an early dinner with simple, substantial and nourishing food. He has a drive, a romp with his children, reads an hour or two, and gets to bed early. He strenuously avoids the amusements of fashionable life. In spite of the fact that he does excessive mental work, and that he spends his life in the fierce strain of a financial center, his nerves are like steel, his eye is clear, and his step and look show perfect health.

Simplicity has been a common trait with the coterie of men known as the "Pittsburg group." Mr. Carnegie always has been notoriously frugal in his habits. It is to his lifelong abstinence from luxury that he attributes the fact that his nerves are admirably balanced. From his earliest days in Pittsburg an abundance of fresh air has been his greatest intoxicant. When, upon a few occasions, he has felt the nervous strain of his work, he has increased his allowance of outdoor life—golf, horseback rides, with long walks over the hills.

Mr. Frick, Mr. Carnegie's one time partner, also is noted for his Spartan simplicity of life. He was born on a farm and has adhered to the habits of his early days through all of his changes of fortune. The plainest food and drink serve him best, and he has never learned to care for the delicate accessories of living. He has a kitchen attached to his office headquarters and eats his luncheon in the plainest kind of a dining room among his clerks and office men.

THE COLLEGE OF THE FUTURE.

By Carroll D. Wright.

C. D. WRIGHT.

The college of the future will present elements as different from those of the present as are those of the present institutions from the college of sixty years ago. The expansion of the period required for professional work and the extension of the high school curriculum make it difficult for the college to find its exact place in educatoinal work. Crowded on both sides, it will be necessary for the college to so adust its work as not to cripple the high school and at the same time give proper opportunity for work in the professional schools.

The college of the future will in the very nature of things put the responsibility upon the student and make his college work his examination and promptly and consistently drop him when he proves his inability or indisposition to do the prescribed work. In order to carry out this principle the college must make it fairly easy to enter, while it makes it very difficult for the student to remain. In order to avoid the pressure upward from the high schools and downward from the professional schools there must be a shortening of the college term.

DO WOMEN REALLY WANT LIBERTY?

By Robert Hichens.

Do women as a whole—the great majority of women, that is—wish to be free? Would they be happy in being quite free as many men are free? I have met numbers of women, and many of them women of strong character, who obviously enjoyed being ruled, who even sought a ruler instinctively, as if their natures needed just that—governance, a master, some one who said to them: "I am stronger than you. You must recognize that fact."

I do not think the great majority of women wish to change their sex in order to gain man's freedom. Of one thing, however, I feel pretty sure, and that is that woman likes the first fiddle to be a Joachim—none of your pretty-pretty, sugary, scent-bottly performers, but some one leonine, firm, and powerful.

But unfortunately there are plenty of weak men in the world who arrogantly assume that they are born to dominate women in every way their superiors.

ALEXANDER E. ORR.

The New Head of the New York Life Insurance Company.

Alexander Ector Orr, the new head of the New York Life Insurance Company, has been for more than half a century one of the leading business men of the metropolis and during all that time has been actively identified with the city's growth and development.

ALEX. E. ORR.

Mr. Orr was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1831, and 20 years later settled in New York, where he entered the shipping trade. He soon became connected with the establishment of David Dows & Co. In 1861 he was admitted to partnership and for many years has been its head. For a quarter of a century, under the management of Dows & Orr, this house was one of the leading commission houses of the country, the business being in flour, grain and provisions, chiefly home products. To the firm largely was due the maintenance of a leading place as a grain market for the port of New York.

Mr. Orr joined the Produce Exchange in 1859 and has been president many times. He has taken a leading part in the work of the Chamber of Commerce and was chairman of the Rapid Transit Commission, which built the subway.

Politically Mr. Orr has always been active and independent. He was associated with John Bigelow, Daniel Magone and John D. Van Buren in the Canal Commission appointed by Gov. Tilden in 1875, and which worked eight months in exposing the canal ring frauds, which led to placing the State canals under the State superintendent of public works. He was an intimate friend of Tilden's, and was a Tilden presidential elector in 1876.

Mr. Orr is benevolently inclined and during his entire career has been identified with charitable and philanthropic institutions.

HOW ROCKEFELLER LIVES.

Daily Life on Oil Magnate's Estates Studiously Simple.

For several years Mr. Rockefeller has spent practically all of the year at one or another of his three homes—Forest Hill, a country place near Cleveland, O., where he lives from May until October; his New York town house on Fifty-fourth street, or his great estate at Pocantico hills, near Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson, says Miss Tarbell in McClure's. It is fair to judge something of a man's character from his homes—particularly when the man is one who is freed from the necessity of considering cost in building. Mr. Rockefeller's homes force several reflections on me. Certainly they show his cult of the unpretentious. No one of the three houses he occupies has any claims to rank among the notable homes of the country. They are all unpretending even to the point of being conspicuous. Not only that, they show him to have no pleasure in noble architecture, to appreciate nothing of the beauty of fine lines and decorations. Mr. Rockefeller's favorite home, the house at Forest Hill, is a monument of cheap ugliness—a great modern structure built in the first place as a sanitarium, it is amazing that anyone not compelled to do so should live in its shadow. His city house is without distinction, and there has never been an appropriate mansion at Pocantico hills.

The daily life on his great estates is studiously simple. Mr. Rockefeller regulates his household as he does his business. Family and servants are trained to strictest economy. There is no more gas burned than is needed, no unnecessary heating, no wasteful providing. There is nothing for display, nothing squandered in the senseless American way to prove you are rich, so rich you need not care. On every hand there is frugality and carefulness. And this frugality certainly is a welcome contrast to the wanton lavishness which on every side of us corrupts taste and destroys the sense of values. One would be inclined to like Mr. Rockefeller the better for his plain living if somehow one did not feel that here was something more than frugality—that here was parsimony made a virtue, and that one of the chief vanities of this "richest man in the world" is seeing how little he can spend on his household, as that of many another rich man is in seeing how much he can spend.

A SHORT CHAPTER IN AMERICAN POLITICS.

Last step of all, he was a United States Senator.

Mere Variations.

Mr. Newhall, the bridegroom, was humbly trying to learn some of the simpler technical terms applying to feminine garb and a few of the lesser intricacies of dressmaking language, but Mrs. Newhall declared that he was very slow.

"I think it's a shame for Madam Fitz to make Elsie Gray's gown exactly like mine, when we're both brides, and she knew we'd be invited to the same places," said Mrs. Newhall, on her return from a dinner party.

"Why, it looked entirely different," said her husband, in his most soothing tone. It was yellow, and yours is pink, and——"

"That's just the point," said Mrs. Newhall, indignantly; "that's one of Madam Fitz's mean little tricks. It was exactly the same gown, only it was yellow instead of pink, and chiffon instead of silk, and where mine has tucks hers has folds, and in place of my rosettes Elsie's has those loops, and where mine has the material hers has the lace, and the top of my sleeves is the bottom of hers, and——"

"Help! Help!" cried Mr. Newhall.

It occurs to a man in trouble, that his friends who say they will pay for him, were always the ones to hang on to their money.

For The Children

How to Make a Steam Engine.

An easily constructed steam engine may be made by any boy with very simple materials. An old baking-powder box will do for the boiler. Fasten its lid to it with shellac varnish, and punch two holes in the side of the box, one about the size of a pin hole, the other as large as a slate pencil. The larger hole must be fitted with a wooden plug or a cork.

Your boiler is now complete, but it must be fastened at its two ends between two upright posts that are attached to a baseboard, so that the two holes will be a the top of the boiler. The side posts should rise at least two inches higher than the top of the boiler, and should be connected at the top by a piece of stout wire, which will serve as an axle to a stiff wheel, like a water-wheel, or the paddle of a steamboat.

This wheel is made by taking a large pill box, making slits in its sides, and slipping in pieces of stiff cardboard, which project at least half an inch on each side of the box. When these are in place, fill the box with damp sand to steady the slips and keep them from moving, and then put on the lid of the box and fasten it by glue so that it will not open. Arrange this wheel on the wire axle so that one side of it comes directly above the pinhole in the boiler.

Now remove the plug from the larger hole, and fill the boiler with water; then close it, and light an alcohol lamp under the boiler. When the water boils, the steam will issue from the pinhole in the boiler, and striking the paddles of the wheel, will cause it to spin very rapidly.

A grooved wooden wheel may be glued to one side of the paddle wheel, and a string run around the groove may be connected with any of the toys that are to be set in motion by miniature steam engines. You may use for the grooved wheel a small spool such as buttonhole silk is wound on.

This engine will serve for your amusement as well as a purchased one, and an ingenious boy can improve on it and elaborate it as much as he likes. —People's Home Journal.

The Moon's Wives.

In Bulawayo, South Africa, the natives have a curious belief concerning the moon. These children of nature say the man in the moon has two wives, one of whom treats him well and the other badly. During the first quarter he goes over the hills to the Zambesi and lives with his first wife, whom they call Keep the Door Open. She feeds him so well that he gets fat and full and round. But on his way back he stays at the hut of the second wife—Shut the Door Tight—who starves and ill-treats him, so it is a very thin and woe-begone moon that finally returns to start his travels afresh.

Lowell and Caroline live in one house and Elsie and Lloyd in the next, and the four play together in the big back yard that stretches behind both houses.

One day, when the snow was soft and sticky, Lowell, who is on Europe and Asia in geography, fancied a spot of untrampled snow looked like the continent of Europe, and he began to shape it more perfectly.

He told Caroline if she wished that she might make an Africa to go with the Europe and Asia he was making.

Caroline hurried into the house after her geography, for she did not remember all about Africa.

Elsie chose to make a map of North America, and said she would help Lloyd with South America, for he had just begun geography, and was not yet out of the United States.

The eastern hemisphere is the hardest to do, because it is so irregular; but Lowell and Caroline modeled it in the damp snow, and Lowell helped Elsie and Lloyd.

The next day they added Greenland and Iceland and Australia and Japan, and other islands. Another day they made mountains and mountain ranges, and since Lloyd had learned about volcanoes, he was allowed to make those and to sprinkle ashes on the tops. They began to find geography more interesting than all their other studies.

When a snap of colder weather came, the children filled the rivers and lakes with water which froze; and since they had made the land high, they actually flooded that part of the yard one night, and the next morning the continents stood out of frozen oceans.

Bays and gulfs and straits glistened, peninsulas ran out in the ice ocean, and the islands were real islands.

Although the snow was now too hard to handle and model, the children could mark the boundaries of the countries with twigs, put in capitals with brass buttons, large cities with big buttons of different kinds, and small cities with shoe buttons.

They learned the school geography lessons on this snow map in half the usual time and with much more pleasure. Whenever one heard a new place mentioned he put it into the country where it belonged, and one morning Lowell hurried out before breakfast to make the Philippine Islands, which had been forgotten.

They sent chip steamers across the ocean, worked on the Panama Canal, explored the frozen north, and wherever, all over the world, a war was going on, they planted a small red flag on that spot on the snow map.—Youth's Companion.

House Made of Paper.

We have all heard of the ice palaces of Canada, but here is an account of a paper house, built in the town of Savinoroska, in Russia. The structure is made throughout of blocks of papier-mache, even the foundation and roof being of that material. So, too, are the chimneys, although the paper used in their construction was first mingled with a fireproof material. The house, which is of considerable extent, and will, in the opinion of its architect, outlast such as are built of stone and brick, was erected at a cost of more than forty thousand dollars.

As to "Gallery Gods."

Back in old London the Drury Lane Theater, a venerable playhouse, gave an origin to the phrase. The ceiling or dome was painted in representation of the sky. The artist placed in this celestial setting numerous cupids and clouds. The gallery of the theater was built just below this ceiling, and to persons seated below the occupants of the upper tier looked to be part of the heavenly ornamentation. In time these spectators were referred to as "sitting among the gods," and finally were dubbed "gods."

ELECTRIC PLANT FOR PEAT.

Product of Bogs Disintegrated, but Retains Heating Power.

An electric process for the treatment of peat has lately been adopted in England at the Johnston & Phillips works. The peat is transformed into a hard combustible, which is well adapted for use under boilers. The operation is said to last two and a half hours, and the material costs less than ordinary coal. The combustible which is thus produced has a high calorific value and gives scarcely any smoke.

A plant on a large scale is to be installed in Ireland and if successful it will be an important move in the direction of utilizing peat as fuel under the best conditions. In the present process the peat as it comes from the bogs is placed in cylinders, which revolve at a high speed, while a set of air fans is used to drive off the water, which forms about 80 per cent of the total.

A set of electrodes is placed in the cylinders and connected with a dynamo. The circuit is completed through the mass of the peat between the electrodes. The resistance which the peat offers to the current causes a considerable heat and the latter breaks up the peat and pulverizes it, but without causing it to lose any of its properties.

In order to increase the conductivity of some kinds of peat they add certain chemical products. After this process the peat is treated by a set of kneading rollers, which give it a plastic consistency so as to enable it to take any desired form. From here it passes to an automatic press which forms it into briquettes. It is then ready for use and is taken to the storeroom.

It is to be remarked that although the passage of the current through the peat gives rise to a heating effect the results obtained in this way are quite different from those which another method of heating would produce. By fire heat the particles of the peat lose their different constituent matters, while the electric heating causes them to disintegrate, thus freeing their cellular material and distributing it throughout the entire mass of the peat. Thus all the particles become adapted for combustion.

To obtain a harder material the disaggregated peat is given a larger treatment with the current. The air is kept out by a tight cover, and the mass is then treated with an adhesive solution so as to unite the particles. The experiments have been made with the process on a large scale and at a great expense, and it is said to have been greatly improved in the details and can now be applied commercially.

Fair Warning.

Henry had been so continuously and persistently naughty that, says the New York World, his aunt, who had charge of him in his mother's absence, did not know what to do with him. In despair she said, weakly:

"If you will not behave, I shall put you in one of grandpapa's hen-coops."

"Well," said Henry, sturdily, "before you put me in, I want to tell you that I will not lay any eggs."

HOME OF ITALY'S KING.

At San Rossore the Royal Family Spend the Autumn Months.

San Rossore, where the Italian royal family pass their autumn months, is, without exception, the most beautiful estate owned by the house of Savoy. It extends from Viarreggio to Livorno, at the foot of the Apuan Alps, combining the charm of the seashore with the attractions of the mountains, says the London Globe. Formerly it belonged to the archbishops of Pisa, from whom the Grand Dukes of Tuscany purchased it and made it State property, which explains how it was that in 1860, at the time of the annexation of Tuscany to the kingdom of Italy, it ranked as one of the gems in the civil list of Victor Emmanuel II. The Grand Dukes resided there the greater part of the year, and one, Leopold II., built extensive farmhouses, within which are numerous breeding animals. About these farms are wide-spreading fields, where still horses, oxen, cows, sheep and buffalo graze in peace. San Rossore comprises also extensive cultivated fertile lands; but the greater part of it—and that is its essential characteristic—is the thickly planted woodlands, which yield an important revenue from the sale of its pine trees. In these woods game is most plentiful, while in the lakes, ponds and small streams there is any quantity of fresh water fish. At San Rossore one can indulge in almost any sport, for there are wild boar, stags, reindeer, pheasants, partridges and almost every species of inland water fowl.

Of all the curiosities at San Rossore the most curious, undoubtedly, are the camels used for the purpose of removing the timber. These camels are not by any means ordinary camels. They are historical camels, and would be proud of it were they conscious of it, for it is said their ancestors figured in the crusades. History tells us that these animals were brought from Syria to Pisa in galleys which the Pisan republic had dispatched to the Holy Land for the purpose of bringing back a load of mold from the grave of Christ. It was supposed that this mold had the peculiarity of absorbing bodies buried in it. The Pisans intrusted with the mission of bringing it over evidently thought that they could not do better when it was shipped on board the galleys than to embark as well as the camels which had been laden with it. These camels were sent on to San Rossore. They prospered and multiplied there, and it is their descendants which are used for the purpose of shifting the timbers from the royal demesne.

With regard to the dogs in the kennels at San Rossore, every breed in use for sporting purposes has been perpetuated there, from the remotest medieval times. They have their hospital, as well as a small cemetery, with its accompanying tombstones, on which are recorded the names of the dogs which had their fleeting hours of celebrity in the hunting field. With regard to the chateau itself, it is of somewhat modest appearance and dimensions, but it contains numerous works of art of priceless value.

Victor Emmanuel II. spent much of his spare time at San Rossore, between 1864 and 1870—that is to say, at the time when his capital was at Florence and not at Rome. In 1868 the King became very ill, and so serious was his condition that the bishop of Pisa was sent for to hear his confession. The prelate came in haste and thought to profit by the opportunity to ask him to make certain political concessions. "Eminence," said the King, "if you want to speak about affairs of state, you will find my ministers in the next room; oblige me by going there."

It is some consolation to a youth when a girl refuses him on the installment plan. It's the instantaneous process that hurts.

ALASKA DELEGATE

SENATE TAKES FAVORABLE ACTION ON MEASURE.

Little Discussion of the Measure and No Vote in Opposition on Fina Passage—Much Jubilation Among Alaska Colony in Washington—Election in August.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Almost without discussion and much to the surprise of everybody, the Alaska delegate bill was taken from the calendar of the senate yesterday and passed without a dissenting vote.

When the measure was brought up by Senator Allison it attracted only a little more attention than did twenty or thirty much less important bills which were passed without extended debate.

Senator Lodge did, however, raise the old constitutional objection that the passage of this bill might be construed as a tacit promise of future statehood for Alaska, but he was dissuiaded from his evident purpose of opposition by Mr. Allison, who declared that this unorganized territory was entitled to representation in congress.

The Iowa senator indicated that he did not sympathize with the notion that the passage of this bill could be construed as anything except a purpose on the part of congress to permit Alaska to present its claims upon the federal government through an authorized representative. Mr. Lodge made no further objection.

Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin, whose outspoken opposition to the measure would have surprised no one, kept his seat in silence, and the bill was passed.

There is much jubilation among the members of the Alaska colony in Washington over the action taken.

The bill which passed the senate is the Nelson bill, and there is some danger that Representative Cushman, who has striven early and late for the passage of such a measure, and who has secured favorable action on his own bill in the house in two congresses, will be bereft of his promised laurels.

The Cushman bill of this session has not yet been reported from the house committee on territories. Not much doubt is entertained that the house will pass a delegate measure this year, but in view of the senate's early action, it is now a serious question whether it will be the Cushman bill or the Nelson bill. The two do not differ in essential provisions.

The Nelson bill provides for the election of a delegate on the first Tuesday of next August, to hold office for the term ending March 3, 1907; that all male citizens of the United States 21 years old and over, actual residents of Alaska territory during the entire year preceding the election shall be qualified to vote for the delegate; that each incorporated town shall constitute an election precinct; that outside the incorporated towns election precincts shall be established by the federal judges; that certificates of the election results shall be filed with the government and with the clerk of the district court of the division in which the precinct is situated, and there are also provisions relating to frauds in election, to the canvass of votes and minor matters.

C., Feb. 5.—The Salvation Army, in accordance with the promise made here in December by Commissioner Combs, will shortly try to solve the domestic help question in Vancouver and Victoria. These domestics will be distributed in the principal cities of Canada betewen the Atlantic and the Pacific.

Mercury Cannot Fill Post.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Chester H. Mercury, recently appointed American consul at Managua, will not fill that post. Mercury married a Nicaraguan, the daughter of an ex-President, who is still alive and in politics. It was feared that Mr. Mercury might therefore become involved in Nicaragua's domestic affairs.

United States Imports Double.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The imports into the United States have practically doubled in the last seven years, according to a bulletin issued by the bureau of statistics in the department of commerce and labor. In the calendar year, 1905, the imports aggregated in value $1,179,000,000, as against $635,000,000 in the caledar year 1898.

Crater, Feb. 5.—The 900-foot tunnel of the Great Northern railroad at this point has just been completed. The work kept 100 men busy since the first of last May and the cost was $167,000. The tunnel was built by the railroad company to replace a high trestle near here which was becoming unsafe.

DIRECT VOTE ON SENATOR.

Iowa Leads in the Movement for a National Convention.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 5.—Following a conference with Gov. Cummins held several days ago, Senator L. W. Lewis, of Page county, stated, that he would at his earliest opportunity, introduce a resoltuion in the Iowa senate instructing the governor to invite the governors of several states to appoint committees from their legislatures to meet in Des Moines next summer, for the purpose of adopting specific and united plans looking to an amendment of the national constitution requiring the election of United States senators by direct vote. The conference will be national in scope.

Chamberlain Telegraphs Approval

Salem, Or., Feb. 5.—Gov. Chamberlain has received a telergaphic quer from a Cleveland, O., newspaper, stating that the Ohio legislature was about to pass a resolution requesting two thirds of the states to join in a call for a constitutional convention to amend the constitution so as to require the election of a United States senator by direct vote of the people, and requesting the governor's opinion. The governor replied as follows:

"I heartily favor the proposition of the Ohio legislature looking to the amending of the constitution so as to elect United States senators by direct vote of the people. There is no other way to get rid of those senators who represent special interests instead of the people they pretend to represent.

Toole Favors the Convention.

Helena, Mont., Feb. 5—Gov. Toole replyingt o a telegram from Iowa inquiring if he favored the proposed convention of governors to hasten the enactment of an amendment to the constitution providing for the election of senators by popular vote, replied in the affirmative.

HARRIMAN GETS CONTROL OF ILLINOIS CENTRAL

New York, Feb. 5.—News of the most important successful transfer of railroad control since the Northern Pacific and Great Northern roads jointly took over the Burlington system about five years ago has just become known. It was learned that a deal which will bring Union Pacific and Illinois Central together under one management positively has been fixed.

First knowledge of the big transaction was gained from the statement of a prominent financier who said that with its profits of more than $100,000,000 growing out of its investment in Northern and Great Northern shares the Union Pacific has purchased 51 per cent of the capital stock of the Illinois Central.

Great Advantage of Deal.

Illinois Central has $95,000,000 capital stock and $144,000,000 of bonds outstanding, besides its guarantee of dividends on $10,000,000 of underlying stocks. It operates 4373 miles of road, which, added to the 5,373 miles operated by the Union Pacific, will give the combined system 13,041 miles of road.

The deal is of greatest importance both to the Union Pacific and the Illinois Central. The latter will bring the Union Pacific to Chicago and the Southern Pacific from New Orleans to Chicago. Union Pacific and Illinois Central are in no sense competing lines.

It is understood the formal and official announcement of the deal will be made at an early date. It has been awaiting final arrangements with the Hill syndicate, which is to take over for cash the Union Pacific holdings of Great Northern and Northern Pacific not yet sold. This arrangement, it is believed, was completed early last week when Mr Hill was in New York.

CONTRACT IS LET.

H. C. Henry Will Build Milwaukee Road in Washington.

Seattle, Feb. 3.—A contract for the construction of the Pacific coast extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway from Puget sound through the Cascade mountains to the eastern boundary of the state has been awarded to H. C. Henry, railroad contractor and president of the National Bank of Commerce, of this city.

The contract was awarded after a conference between President Earling, of the Milwaukee, and President Williams, head of the coast extension. No details of the contract were given out.

It is expected that before President Earling returns East other important announcements will be made in connection with the Coast extension.

Townsites on Irrigated Tracts.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The senate irrigation committee has ordered a favorable report on Senator Heyburn's bill providing for the segregation of 160-acre townsites on government irrigation tracts and requiring the secretary of the interior to sell water rights in such towns for municipal and domestic purposes, such water rights to be bought and controlled by the towns. The bill also authorizes the sale of water in towns for power purposes.

Telephone Extension.

Sedro-Woolley, Feb. 5.—The Skagit Valley Telephone Company will soon make an extension of their lines from Burlington to this city. Eastern Skagit is already well connected by telephone. By the system now in use the farmers own their phones and pay no rental except enough to keep the lines in working order.

Washintgon, Feb. 5—Secretary Metcalf, of the department of commerce and labor, has rescinded the rulings made by the secretary of the treasury in 1888, so as to permit local steamboat inspectors to assist United States district attorneys in preparing for the trial of cases of violations of the steamboat laws. The ruling will apply to cases now pending. Hitherto inspectors have not been allowed to assist attorneys in the collection of evidence in any manner.

MINERS TO STRIKE

INDIANOPOLIS CONFERENCE FAILS TO REACH AGREEMENT.

Unless Some Unforseen Influence Shall Be Brought to Bear the Most Gigantic Strike of History Appears Inevitable—Six Hundred Thousand Men to Go Out.

Indianapolis, Feb. 3.—One of the most dramatic scenes ever witnessed in a national convention of the United Mine Workers of America was the final adjournment of that body yesterday afternoon, after the dissolution of the joint conference of operators and miners of the Central and Southwestern districts, and after the national convention had administered a stinging rebuke to Patrick Dolan, of Pennsylvania, for transgressing one of the fundamental laws of unionism by voting contrary to his instructions to stand for an increase of wages.

When the lusty voices of the miners mingled in the singing of "America" had hushed, an oppressive silence fell upon the assembled delegates, and as President John Mitchell slowly pronounced the words which adjourned the seventeenth national convention, thus dissolving every hope of averting a gigantic industrial war, without the intervention of some unexpected and powerful influence, the miners left the hall, their faces set with a grim determination, which showed the steadfastness of purpose which has marked the history-making session just closed.

The apparent determination of both miners and operators indicates that neither will make overtures for further negotiations, and unless some influence now unforseen steps into the breach, 550,000 men controlled by the United Mine Workers will walk out of the mines in every scetion of the country on April 1.

There have been indications that two agencies—the president of the United States and the Civic Federation—may be appealed to to set in motion negotiations for a rehabilitation of the joint state agreement, or at least a discussion of some possible means of bringing the operators and miners together for further negotiations.

So far as known there is nothing upon which to base an ssertion that either the president or the civic Federtion has decided to offer their services.

Mitchell Admonishes Miners.

Perahps the most signicfiant statements made by President Mitchell during any session of the present convention were made yesterday afternoon, first in his admonition to all miners that each individual make preparawons to establish a strike fund which tiill make each miner self-sustaining for at least a reasonable time, and again when, in answer to the question of a delegate who wished to be enlightened as to the correct sense of the resolution adopted yesterday, he said:

"The resolution adopted yesterday is capable of but one interpretation, and at the proper time all such questions shall be answered."

During an interview after adjournment President Mitchell discussed some of the phases of the situation.

Never in the history of this country has a strike of such far reaching effect been threatened. It means a national suspension of mining if the strike comes on at the expiration of our mining contracts March 31, and it includes the anthracite districts."

Will this action o f the miners, including the anthracite district, in order that no contracts shall be signed until all obtain contracts have any effect on the meeting of the anthracite miners and operators on February15?"

"I do not know at this time," he said.

Mr. Mitchell said it was his intention to meet with the anthracite miners at that time.

According to the figures given out by the officers of the miners' organization they expect the strike to bring out over 600,000, about 150,000 nonunion miners in West Virginia and Pennsylvania, with the 450,000 union miners scattered all over the country.

President Mitchell estimated that four people are dependent on every miner. In this estimate a national strike, such as is planned, will affect over 20,000,000 people dependent on the mining industry for their daily bread.

RUSSIAN ELECTIONS WILL BE HELD APRIL 7

St. Petersburg, Feb. 7.—The elections to the national assembly are fixed for April 7. The opening session of the assembly will take place April 23. April 7 is the feast of the annunciation, one of the great Russian holidays. The two weeks interval between the elections and the convocation of the assembly is the shortest time in which the representatives of Siberia could arrive here. The local authorities have the privilege of beginning the primary elections to choose deleagtes to the electoral college as soon as the registration lists are complete.

The constitutional demands and constitutional monarchist federation are campaigning on practical business lines following as far as possible the American and English methods. They have opened schools for speakers and are distributing literature and are taking advantage of the restored privilege of holding campaign meetings.

The Blow Has Struck

From the Townsend Call.

That wonderful promised edition of the Port Angeles Tribune Times, which it was promised would change the industrial map of the commonwealth, is out. The blow has been struck. The seeker after information as to the resources of Clallam county has his fill. Here's a sample:

(We omit the sample as they all look alike to us.)

There you have it. It shows how many bushels of spuds can be grown in the soil of Clallam county, the price of farm lands, the cost of living, the standing of the schools, and everything the homeseeker wants to know. And the people of Clallam county have put up a big price to support an itinerant special edition grafter when their money should have been spent at home. If the editor of the Tribune Times is incapable of getting out all the "special editions" the people of Clallam County want to pay for, and thus keep their money in circulation at home, then the editor should get out and give up the field to one who is. It must be humiliating to him to admit that such is the case, which he has done by joining in with a traveling writer to graft the public in an edition composed principally of personal bouquets thrown at blacksmiths, merchants and corner saloons at so much per throw. Let any one of these men who have paid good money for personal puffs set the Tribune Times before him and read over the slush about himself ten times, and if he doesn't feel as sick as a tobacco sauce victim, then his cheek is a stranger to the blush of shame. Then let him figure out on his fingers how many new tax-payers such bouquet-throwing will bring to Clallam county. A fingerless hand will do it.

The fourth article of importance in this Jessup special edition, and the leading article by that famous special writer, is a three column "diatribe"—for such he terms it — treating of the "Possibilitiss of This Favored Section for the Salmon Canner and Manufacturer of Fish Products." The opening paragraphs are a fair sample of the whole, and, for that matter, of all his writing, hence we quote them. Now, we confess our musical education was sadly neglected; we deplore the fact that we cannot appreciate the beauties of—well, Wagner, for instance. It may be that our inability to get a clear understanding of this clever diatribe is likewise to our discredit. Read it and tell us, are we thus deficient? Or is this Jessup a "blithering idiot?"

"With its comparative industrial embryo it is a matter of practical impossibility to determine or prophesy to what of the individual natural endowments of the Clallam county field there is to be given preference for the ultimate greatest factor in developing the region. The resources of the community are, or at least such an attempt has been made, to leave a statement of each feature for local development unbiased in our review that the casual reader may determine for himself what are the prospects for the future. It is scarcely necessary to append to this that the aggregate of all that is of favor pertaining to this region which has been set forth here needs no further diatribe that every reason exists for the belief that continued development of the state of Washington and growth in faith of the people of this country, that this section of the world is from this time on to play an important part in all commercial proceedings of the nation, we must have here a very important part of this by right of superior attractiveness and fertile resource.

"Much that is in the above is attracted to any statement made for the Craig Fish Products Company, of Port Angeles, a corporation of comparative recent organization, but so favorably possessed and imbued with a feeling of exultation for the future that there is no brighter example for reflecting the above expressions."

We ask you, as business men, isn't it a burning shame to publish such rot in connection with an industry like the Fish Products Company?

Mr. Craig is represented to be "a man of ripe experience in this class of manufacture." Such a statement concerning a man of the personal and business standing of Mr. Craig is nothing less than direct insult.

Wouldn't it have been far better to have told the truth concerning Mr. Craig, as representative and manager for New England of one of the great establishments of the country; having come to Port Angeles as a stockholder in the P. A. E; having become attached to our town, chiefly by reason of its unrivaled climate, and becoming thus attached, having selected the "opportunity" which he believed would yield the greatest returns from the many that are awaiting capital and business ability? From this statement of fact one could have passed on to the many others who are living here because they prefer the climate of Port Angeles to that of any other place in the country, or to any other town on Puget Sound. Or, one could have shown how others, who have been in the West seeking business openings, have found their opportunities in the natural resources of the county. And there are many such opportunities yet to be had. We submit that either idea would have made a splendid feature.

A short time ago the T.-T. published a fine article on the possibilities in the halibut fisheries. It was a clear, lucid, entertaining and convincing article. A combination of that story with a proper presentation of the advantages our town will ultimately have in the Craig Fish Products Co.'s plant would have made a splendid feature.

There are articles on our scenic advantages, our timber interests, and our latent possibilities in the way of water power. Jessup wrote them.

But the great bulk of this Sixteen Page Edition — 25 to 100 copies at 15c each, but no charge for write-ups — is devoted to sliddery, mushy accounts of those various business and professional men who are located in spacious quarters in substantial buildings on our leading thoroughfare, Front Street, as per illustration on the first page. All are equally the most enterprising and successful here existing and the issue would be exceedingly deficient did not each of these houses receive special recognition at our hands in prominent reviews for the clever betterment of this additional substantiation to the statements here made in selecting the subject of this important sketch with a pleasure here felt in venturing the statement that this "comprehensive if modest review," to quote A. A. Smith, "of which we feel proud."

Is it any wonder some refused to take their papers and others say they would be ashamed to send them out? Has such advertising any value? How many pages of such rot do you suppose the average reader waded thru? What will people to whom such papers might be sent think of the intelligence of the citizens of a community where such stuff goes "with pride?"

On page 8, or was it 16 or 4, we found this: "It has been deemed expedient by THE PUBLISHERS of this Clallam county review to advert IN CASES from descriptive matter concerning the community to those BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS which have by fair and honorable methods left such a FAVORABLE IMPRINT on their actions as TO HAVE AIDED in establishing a FAIR NAME FOR THE TOWN . . With this in mind PROMINENT mention can well be made here"—of what, think you? A Bank? No, guess again. Of the "leading refreshment establishment" in Dungeness! In other words, a saloon recently started there.

We have no objection to the saloon so long as liquor is not sold to minors, and so long as such places are properly conducted. There are men engaged in the business in this county who are gentlemen in every sense of the word. But in most of the central and eastern states, outside of large cities, where conditions are somewhat different, there is an intense feeling against the saloon, and the result is that no man with self-respect will engage in the business. What will these people, with their decided opinions on the subject and their knowledge of the class of men who run the blind pigs of the east, think of a community where publishers print such an indorsement of the saloon as the above? Where a single issue of a paper contains over two full columns of the most exaggerated praise of saloons and saloon men and a bare half column on the schools of the city? Where Baar, Miller, Beahan and Harned, saloonkeepers, come in for unstinted praise; where hotel bars are spoken of as "rounding off an enterprise complete and a credit to the community? What will these prospective homeseekers in localities where the Church is first at all times think of a people who endorse a special edition—"the pride" of its publishers — that devotes but forty-two lines to the Churches of our town?

We're sore, and we don't care who knows it—sore that a man would misrepresent us and lie about us, in order to accuse us of being disgruntled. Sore that any man should insinuate we would be guilty of foisting such a sheet in such a manner upon the public.

Prune Your Trees Now!

If you haven't the time to do it yourself, or don't know just how to go at it, I should be pleased to do it for you. I know how to prune trees JUST RIGHT, and will not mutilate and disfigure your orchard, but on the contrary will make good trees out of some of your old cripples.

If you want roses trimmed I will promise to leave them as if a Kansas cyclone had gone through them, but you need not settle with me for that kind of work, either with a rolling-pin or otherwise, until the daffodils bloom in the springtime and the roses will have recovered from the terrible shock and show evidence in my favor.

Spraying will be in order next month sometime. I shall be prepared with a good big outfit to do the work properly, and if you have any poor, worthless fruit trees that you want grafted to better fruit, I can do it for you. I am now cutting my scions (or slips) from some of the best bearing trees I can find in city and country, and shall get some new varieties from Pullman and other places to try.

Can furnish fine strawberry plants from $3 50 to $5.00 per 1,000. Clark's Seedling, Hood River, Sharpless, Marshall, and others. $2.00 extra per 1,000 set and a full stand guaranteed first season; dead and sick plants replaced and planted free of charge.

Leave word at the Port Angeles Grocery or at Seevers' store and I'll call and see what you want.
