MILWAUKEE STILL BUYS

WILL YET BE LARGEST HOLDER IN CLALLAM COUNTY

Another Surveying Crew Started in from East Clallam South. No Secrecy as to its Identity.

If there be any who yet doubt that Clallam county is to receive a large share of the benefits accuring to the state from the building of the Milwaukee to the Coast, they may be quickly convinced of their error by a glance at the records of real estate transfers in the auditor's office.

Commencing early last April, when almost an entire township was transferred to the Continental Timber Company, which concern is now positively known to be the Milwaukee's timber company, cruisers and buyers have been kept in the field, and the Continental's holdings have been gradually and largely increased. It has only been within the past two months, apparently, that their machinery has gotten well under way. During January their recorded purchases averaged almost one a day, and February is holding its own. The Continental Co. is offering better prices than the Lacey syndicate, commonly supposed to represent the N. P., and better than other investors, hence is getting all the best lands.

The Continental has also made considerable investments in western Jefferson and Chehalis counties, evincing a determination to build to and north from Grays Harbor, to secure the necessary tonnage for return traffic to the east, and proposes there shall be no doubt as to the amount of lumber and shingles available.

The Milwaukee's recent activity in the surveying line may be taken as actual preliminary work on their route to the straits, or it may be designed merely to have a better idea of a feasible route in order to get at the relative value of timber which it is proposed to purchase. However that may be, there is none of that secrecy, generally considered essential in surveying, observed in the present case; the supplies for the Clallam crew, an account of which is given below, were bought by the Milwaukee agent in Seattle, and no attempt is made to conceal idenity. The Milwaukee will have its main line, so far as the grading is concerned, practically completed by the close of the present year and must then turn its attention to development of new country offering the greatest immediate freight tonnage.

In this connection it may be said the report which has become current that a suitable grade could not be secured by the N. P. from Angeles to Lake Crescent is not true; Engineer Fitch says a very satisfactory grade was obtained, and the work of another surveying party along the beach west to Clallam is merely the first step in building another line to the west.

Another gang of surveyors arrived Wednesday to begin survey work from Clallam Bay south. The work is for the C.M. & St.P. It is known that this company has purchased thousands of acres of timber lands, their buying company being known as the Continental Timber Co.

The surveyors will number from twenty to thirty men. Mr. R. F. Hickman, the chief surveyor, was here several weeks ago and looked over the country with J. A. Ramey.

Consigned to Hickman were 198 packages of groceries, 250 bales of hay, a tent, range and kitchen outfit, and a heavy wagon. A team of wagon horses and fifteen pack horses will be here in a few days.

They will camp in the vicinity of Forks and work this way probably going in the direction of Ozette lake. —Clallam Bay Record.

Mr. George Henry Lotzgesell died at his home in Dungeness Saturday, February 16, at 6 p. m., after an illness of only five days from LaGrippe. The case did not show any alarming symptoms until the fourth day, when his mental faculties were becoming weak. Dr. Lewis of Angeles was called, who gave little hope of recovery. His children who resided at a distance were summoned at once, all arriving to see their aged father before death but two; they came in time for burial, which took place on Tuesday, Feb. 19th at 11 a. m. from his late residence. Friends of the deceased came from neighboring towns to take part in the obsequies. Pall bearers were Capt. Horn, S. Woodcock, W. Thompson, S. White, H. Graham, and H. Sindars.

Rev. Bell of Dungeness read the burial service. Interment was made in family plat, Dungeness cemetery.

TO IMPROVE SCHOOL GROUNDS

Patrons Club Proposes to Plant Shade Trees Around Lincoln Heights School Yard.

The Patrons Club, that band of earnest workers who have done so much for the improvement of the Lincoln Heights school, will deviate from their usual custom of a neighborhood entertainment for the purpose of raising funds, and for the first time since organization will ask the assistance of the people of Angeles in general in helping on the good work. On Saturday, the 16th of March, a ball will be given at the opera house, refreshments served, and there will be other side attractions. A small balance, about $7, is yet unpaid on the school fence, and it is the intention to use the balance of the expected funds in removing such roots as were left beneath the surface and otherwise getting the ground in shape to plant shade trees. A tennis court and croquet grounds are also included in the plans.

There is no reason on earth why a school yard should be a standing disgrace to the city; its a worthy subject of endeavor for the people of every ward, and those who do not care to dance should at least show their appreciation of the work of this club in beautifying the city by contributing to the fund. Tickets, which will be 25c each, should be placed on sale in the stores, and every patron of the schools of Angeles should see to it that his mite is contributed to swell the fund.

The Ministerial Association, through a mass meeting when Mayor Moore was inaugurated, attempted to get his approval of Sunday closing, and he promised he would do so in time. NEGLECT OF DUTY

CHICAGO MAYOR AND CHIEF MUST FACE GRAND JURY.

Failure to Enforce Laws Will Be Subject of Inquiry---Law Provides for Ousting Officials Who Fail to Enforce Laws Impartially.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Mayor Dunne and Chief of Police Collins may have to answer to the next grand jury for their refusal or inability to stop gambling and close the brothels that infest Chicago. The mayor and his chief of police take great pains to deny daily all rumors that gamblers or any other votaries of vice are working openly at their trades in this city, but a mass of evidence has been prepared by the state's attorney and by a prominent reform association in an effort to prove that city hall officials are misrepresenting the facts and that dens of vice abound, while gambling is easy.

Drive Out Vice or Be Ousted

The February grand jury meets today. The grand jury will resume the January grand jury's inquiry into the reasons why the mayor and the chief of police are unwilling or unable to fulfill their oaths of office and drive the gamblers and other lawbreakers from the city, or else crowd the prisons, the jails and the Bridewell with them.

Section 352 of the criminal code provoides that "every person holding public office, either state, county or municipal, who is found guilty of palpable omission of duty, malfeasance in office or partiality in the discharge of the duties of such office, may be fined not to exceed $10,000, or be removed from such office, trust or employment, or both, unless otherwise provided."

Said State Has the Evidence

Since the last grand jury adjourned after delivering the scathing denunciation of the mayor and chief of police for their failure to enforce the laws, investigators working for the state's attorney have been busy collecting evidence of the public wrongs of which the grand jurors complained bitterly. The mayor and chief of police joined in attempting to ridicule the action of the last grand jury, stating that grand juries are becoming mere "lecturing bodies."

Asked about the matter one bartender said: "We have the best protection in town, and there is no more danger of a real raid here than there is of an earthquake. We have a good game, make good money and are willing to pay for the protection we get. The coppers don't get the coin, though. It goes to the office of either the chief of police or the inspector."

BUTTE PAPERS QUIT

Will Cease Publication Pending Controversy With Employes.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 16.—At a meeting of the Butte Typographical union Friday afternoon, the demands of the Butte Publishers' association were rejected in toto, the printers in reply to the newspaper companies stating that they firmly but respectfully would decline to accede in any manner whatever to the terms offered by the publishers. Exception was taken to a number of statements made by the publishers in the communication of the latter addressed to the allied printing trades reflecting upon the competency of the International Typographical union working for the press of Butte.

The publishers at a meeting in the evening formally received the reply of the printers. They stated that their stand had been given and that until the unions accede to the terms offered newspaper publication in Butte is at a standstill. The independent job printing houses, it is understood, will close this evening.

Judge Snell Restrained

Olympia, Feb. 16.—Following the arguments before the supreme court on the altornative writ of mandamus directing Judge Snell, of Pierce county to proceed with the hearing as to the sanity of Chester Thompson, the supreme court issued an order restraining Judge Snell from any further proceedings in the case pending the decision on the questions at issue before the supreme court. Judge Snell is directed to refrain from making any orders touching the sanity or insanity of Chester Thompson or in any way affecting or changing the custody of his person until further orders from the supreme court.

Shawmut Cargo Afire

Seattle, Feb. 19.—The Boston Steamship Company's Shawmut put back to the harbor of Kobe, Japan, Saturday, with a burning cargo, according to a cable received here yesterday. The fire, which is believed to have originated among bales of matting in the hold, broke out shortly after the vessel had left Kobe on her way to Yokohama. The blaze was soon extinguished after reaching Kobe and the steamer proceded the same day to Yokohama. The damage is estimated at a low figure.

Forest Fire in Wichita Mountains

Oklahoma City, Feb. 19.—A special dispatch from Lawton says: "A forest fire is raging in the 800,000 acre forest reserve in the Wichita mountains, ten miles southwest of here and is threatening to devastate the tract."

ADMIT JAPANESE CHILDREN

San Francisco Schools Reopened Except to Adults.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Japanese children are to be admitted to the white schools of San Francisco under certain restrictions, skilled and unskilled laborers coming from Japan barred from the mainland of the United States and American laborers, skilled and unskilled, are to be excluded from Japan.

This is the basis of the agreement between President Roosevelt, Secretary Root, Mayor Schmitz and the San Francisco schhool board as an adjustment of the anti-Japanese agitation brought about by the segregation of Japanese children in the San Francisco schools. The agreement means that the schools of San Francisco will be conducted in the same manner as they were before the board of education adopted the resolution last October, providing for the segregation of the Japanese, except that adults who are in primary grades must continue to attend the Oriental schools, and that Japanese children under 16 will be admitted to classes with white children of their own ages.

This is the substance of a statement given out by Mayor Schmitz and concurred in by the president and Secretary Root.

FRENCH CABINET CRISIS

Clemencian Administration May Yet Meet Defeat on Church Matter

Paris, Feb. 18.—Just as an agreement regarding terms on which the churches of France could be leased to the Catholic clergy was about to be reached between M. Briand, minister of education, and Cardinal Richard, archbishop of Paris, an agreement involving a settlement of the most acute phase of the religious conflict, a ministerial crisis has loomed up on the horizon, and it is now doubtful whether Premier Clemenceau's cabinet will survive the coming week.

The premier, at a cabinet meeting Sunday insisted that the cabinet alone should not assume the responsibility of authoriizng the form of contracts The premier doubted that a parliamentary majority would approve those contracts, and in any event he insisted that parliament must be given an opportunity to express its opinion before the government commits itself.

The premier said he was fully aware of the plots of the followers of M. Combes and other groups, and as an old parliamentary fighter he argued that it was better to secure the consent of parliament in advance than to run the risk of being outvoted later. It is understood that M. Briand took sharp issue with his chief after the adjournment of the cabinet. It is said that he intends to submit his views to his colleagues, and that either he or M. Clemenceau will resign.

TO RAISE SALARIES OF STATE OFFICERS

Olympia, Feb. 16.—The bill to increase the governor's salary from $4,000 to $6,000 and to make the salaries of other state officers $3,000, passed the senate by a vote of 27 to 7. Those voting were Nichols, Kline, Bratt, Paulhamus, Smith, Sumner and Veness.

The committee that reported the bill had cut the state school superintendent's salary to $2,500, but on motion of Senator Cotterill the $3,000 was restored to the bill. Paulhamus moved to cut the governor's salary to $5,000. Graves supported the motion and said the governor should not receive more than the supreme judges, and he said the house committee had decided to cut the salaries in the supreme court judges bill from $6,000 to $5,000.

Seattle Postoffice Gets Help

Washington, Feb. 19.—The telegraphic inquiry from the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, asking permission for Seattle business men to hire additional postoffice clerks at the own expense was taken up with the postoffice department by Senator Piles. The department held that such permission could not be given, but to partly remedy the congestioon at the Seattle office they promised to allow five new clerks for immediate use. These clerks will be temporarily appointed until an appropriation by congress is provided. After that the department expects to be able to allow still more help for the Seattle office, as they are beginning to realize the needs of that office.

EXEMPTION BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE

Olympia, Feb. 16.—By a vote of 27 to 11 the senate passed the Gunn bill to exempt from taxation moneys, credits and mortgages, as well as sea vessels.

Confidence is Expressed

Paris, Feb. 20.—By a majority of 351 the chamber of deputies not only expressed confidence in the government and authorized it to conclude negotiations for the leasing of churches to parish priests, but it indorsed with storms of applause a remarkable speech by Minister of Education Briand, in which the extreme left was openly rebuked for its intolerant spirit. It is agreed now on all sides that a formula for the leases soon will be found and that the most acute phase of the church controversy is at an end.

APPORTIONS STATE

BILL CREATING CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS PASSED.

Measure Passed By Senate Differs Slightly from the One Passed By House---Probably the Difference Will Be Adjusted in Conference.

Olympia, Feb. 16.—Legislation for congressional apportionment may go to the conference committee for the reason that the house and senate have passed different bills. The senate has passed Senator Rosenhaupt's bill and the house passed Representative Gregg's bill. There isnot a great deal of difference, however, between the bills and it is possible that the house will be willing to accept the senate plan. It is believed that the majority of the senate will stand firm for the bill it has passed.

Rosenhaupt's bill places King, Skagit, Snohomish, Whatcom and Kitsap in the first district. It places every other county west of the mountains and Skamania and Klickitat in the Second district. The remainder of the state is placed in the Third district.

The Gregg bill, that passed the house, pllaces Island, King, San Juan, Skagit, Snohomish and Whatcom in the First district. Every other county west of the mountains and Skamania is made the Second district. All tho other counties the Third.

It is seen that the difference in the two bills are as follows: Rosenhaupt's puts San Juan and Island in the Second with Pierce, and Kitsap in the First with King. It also puts Klickitat with the Second. Gregg's bill puts San Juan and Island with King, Kitsap with Pierce and Klickitat with Spokane or the Third district.

On motion of Senator Rosenhaupt, the rules were suspended and his congressional apportionent bill was considered engrossed. Senator Smith, of Snohomish county, moved to amend by including San Juan and Island counties with the First district, in which King is the most important county.

After considerable discussion the bill was passed as reported, by a vote of 31 to 4.

INHERITANCE TAX LAW AMENDED BY SENATE

Olympia, Feb. 16.—A bill by Senator Knickerbocker to put the state board of tax commissioners in closer touch with estates, from which inheritance tax is due, and to prevent persons about to die from deeding away the property in order to avoid inheritance taxes, has passed the senate. The bill amends the existing law so that inheritance tax shall be collected on property which shall pass "by deed, grant, sale or gift made in contemplation of the death of the grantor or donor." The words quoted are the amendment. Recently the state failed to get large inheritance tax money because just before death property was deeded away to others or turned over to a corporation.

The bill also amends the existing law so that, on all sums passing to or "for the benefit of collateral relatives or strangers to the blood, who are aliens not residing in the United States, a tax of 25 per cent shall be levied and collected."

The following provision is intended to prevent any tax escaping:

"No safe deposit company, bank, or any other institution, person or persons, holding any securities, property or assets of any non-resident decedent, shall deliver or transfer the same to any non-resident executor, or representative of such decedent, until after notice in writing of the time and place of such transfer shall have been duly given the state board of tax commissioners at least ten days prior thereto, and the tax imposed by this act paid thereon, and every such safe deposit company, bank or other institution, person or persons, shall be liable for the payment of such tax."

The bill gives the state board of tax commisisoners general supervision of the collection of inheritance taxes.

Will Investigate Water Sources

Washington, Feb. 16.—The senate has passed the bill providing for the investigation of the water sources of the United States. The investigation is to be made by the directors of the geological survey. Both underground and surface water sources are to be investigated. An amendment was adopted to the measure which permits cooperation between the states and the federal government in making hydrographic surveys.

Alaska Game Law Reported

Washington, Feb. 19.—The Alaska game bill drawn up by Gov. Hoggatt and Doc Merriam, of the agricultural department, and Representative Humphrey, will finally be reported from the senate committee, where it has had severe trials. It will probably pass this session.

House Agrees to Report

Washington, Feb. 19—The house, soon after convening, began consideration of the conference report on the immigration bill, which was agreed to by the senate Saturday. At the conclusion of the debate the house agreed to the report.

FAVORS SHOWN THE TRUSTS

Interstate Board Says Telegraph Companies Discriminate.

Omaha, Feb. 19.—The interstate commerce commission is to investigate the relationship between the Western Union Telegraph and Postal Telegraph companies on the one side, and the packing houses, grain firms and other business houses throughout the country, which have heretofore had specia telegraph wires and special operators furnished them. Saturday morning all through wires of this description were discontinued here and only "pony" wires running from these offices into the main telegraph offices were left. The operators manning these wires from the packing house ends are now employed by the packing houses and not by the telegraph companies. The interstate commerce commission is said to have taken the position that furnishing the large customers of the telegraph companies with facilities denied the smaller customers was in fact a discrimination and an investigatin is demanded.

LOBBYISTS GATHER IN FORCE AT CAPITAL

Olympia, Feb. 20.—Hotels and rooming houses of this place are crowded now as they have not been before for two years. Lobbyists are here by the score. The stage in legislation has been reached when a bill can slip through and go to the governor within a few hours and the lobbyists are on hand to push or delay measures.

Up to this time the floors of the senate and house have been very free from lobbyists, but now many of them have become bold enough to take the seats of members who happened to be out, and to carry on their work in the rear of the chambers. From now on the lobbyists will be even busier than the members of the legislature, for there is hardly a bill that does not affect some interest favorably or unfavorably. The legislature has been in session long enugh for the entire state to learn something of what it has been doing and all corners of the state are represented in the lobby. It is probably true, however, that never before were so few bills killed in committee as this year. In the senate practically all the bills defeated have been on third reading. Every measure seems to be receiving consideration in the open.

CHEHALIS DIVISION BILL PASSES HOUSE

Olympia, Feb. 19.—The features of the house session yesterday afternoon were the defeat by a vote of 22 ayes to 56 noes of McMorran's bill to create the county of Calispel from the Eastern half of Stevens county, and the passage by 74 to 12 of the bill creating the county of Grays Harbor from the western portion of Chehalis county.

Six bills came up on final vote, five of which passed practically unanimously. These latter increased the fees to be paid by corporations, provide that an indeterminate sentence be imposed in all criminal cases except murders, increased the salary and powers of the board of control, provide for the creation of the county of Grays Harbor and require an examination and license for the practice of medicine.

Oregon Railroad Commission

Portland, Or., Feb. 20.—A Salem, Or., special to the Oregonian says:

Oregon's three railroad commissioners will be Oswald West, of Salem, now state land agent; Clyde Atchison, of Portland, lawyer, and Thomas K. Campbell, of Cottage Grove, a lumberman. These selections were decided on today by the state board. West is a Democrat and the choice of Gov. Chamberlain. Atchinson is a Republican and the choice of State Treasurer Steel. Campbell is a Republican and the choice of Secretary of State Benson. West will be succeeded as state land agent by Charles V. Galloway, of McMinville, a Democrat.

May Arbitrate Butte Strike

Butte, Mont., Feb. 18.—The newspaper publishers of Butte and Anaconda, at a conference with a committee from the Allied Printing Trades Council, announced their willingness to arbitrate all differences with the striking pressmen, stereotypers and printers connected with Butte and Anaconda papers. In a statement addressed to the unions the publishers stated their willingness to arbitrate at any time with a view to bringing about a speedy and amicable settlements of the controversy.

Surveying Diamond Head

Honolulu, Feb. 19.—A party of five surveyors are at work under the direction of United States engineer officers making the necessary surveys in and around Diamond Head, for the erection there of fortifications and defenses which it is planned to place there in accordance with the general scheme of guns and fortifications long ago decided on by army strategists.

Naval Bill Passes House

Washington, Feb. 16.—The house, after a highly interesting debate, passed the naval appropriation bill, which carries in round numbers $86,000,000. Mr. Burhon, of Ohio, made an unsuccessful effort to strike out the provision for an additional battleship of the Dreadnaught type. His amendment was voted down 14 to 146.

Behanzin, formerly King of Dahomey, is dead. The event recalls the admirable work the French did a few years ago in suppressing the barbarous and inhuman customs of an African kingdom. Dahomey, which is on the west coast, disgraced the present civilized era by an annual semi-religious and semi-festive celebration, during which hundreds of human sacrifices were made. The kingdom was annexed by the French in 1894 and the king exiled to Fort de France, Island of Martinique, where he was living with his family at the time of the eruption of Mont Pele. He did not like Martinique, and was allowed to move to Algiers last April

Stimulate the Blood.

Brandreth's Pills are the great blood purifier. They are a laxative and blood tonic, they act equally on the bowels, the kidneys and the skin, thus cleansing the system by the natural outlet of the body. They stimulate the blood so as to enable nature to throw off all morbid humors and cure all troubles arising from an impure state of the blood. One or two taken every night will prove an invaluable remedy.

Each pill contains one grain of solid extract of sarsaparilla, which, with other valuable vegetable products, make it a blood purifier of excellent character.

Brandreth's Pills have been in use for over a century and are sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar-coated.

THE AMEER OF AFGHANISTAN.

British India has been doing honor to a royal visitor from beyond the northwest frontier, who bears the name of Habibullah Khan and rules mountainous Afghanistan, which acts as a bluffer between Russia and Britain. an easy one, for the intrigues of the Queen mother and the jealousy of his brothers cause him constant anxiety. That is one of the reasons why he has elected to lean on British support.

Make Money at Trapping.

The last few years of the life of John Macdougall, son of Rev. John Macdougall, the first missionary who worked in the Canadian Northwest, and L. C. S. Ward are brimful of adventure. Mr. Macdougall has been working for the Hudson Bay Company in the far north, while for the last six or seven consecutive years Mr. Ward has been trading on his own account with the Indians and half-breeds.

In this wild country it is no uncommon thing for a trapper to spend months without seeing a soul excepting the solitary mail carrier who trudges along with his dogsled, often covering as much as 100 miles in a day. The country in the district where these old trappers live abounds with moose, musk ox, arctic foxes—in fact, it is a veritable hunter's paradise.

During the season the trappers, who are composed almost solely of Indians and half-breeds, make from $500 to $1,600, according to the plentifulness of furs. During the summer months they pass their time spending this money. Horses are unknown among the Rib and Beaves tribes, dogs, snowshoes and canoes being the sole means of transportation. Attempts have been made to harness moose and a trapper named Poacher Purdy has succeeded in taming a team which he drives regularly either to sleigh or his home-made wagon.

Fire-Killed Timber Good.

Fire-killed timber, the forest service has discovered, is some use after all. This is a thing that has been known in the West for a long time. The disastrous "forest fires" do completely burn up timber in many cases, but there are thousands of acres where the timber is simply "fire-killed;" that is to say, it is killed standing by the fire that sweeps through it and finally rots at the ground and falls in the first windstorm. Immense areas of this timber have been utilized in mining and railroad work and there have been mills established simply to work up the fire-killed logs into boards and boxes.

The seasoning of fire-killed trees seems to be more perfect than that of ordinary seasoned lumber and in the case of much of the pine that would otherwise have an objectionable odor the fire-seasoned logs can be worked up into cracker boxes and the like, where the odor in ordinary pine lumber would make its use impossible.

Some of the fire-killed timber has been used after it had been dead fifty-five years, though the more common time is from three to seven years. The forest service says that the use of this dead and down timber makes available many thousand acres of burned forest that were formerly accounted worthless.

U. S. DISPENSATORY

Describes the Principal Ingredients Contained in Pe-ru-na.

Are we claiming too much for Peruna when we claim it to be an effective remedy for chronic catarrh? Have we abundant proof that Peruna is in reality such a catarrh remedy? Let us see what the United States Dispensatory says of the principal ingredients of Peruna.

Take, for instance, the ingredient of hydrastis canadensis, or golden seal. The United States Dispensatory says of this herbal remedy, that it is largely employed in the treatment of depraved mucuous membranes, chronic rhinitis (nasal catarrh), atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), chronic intestinal catarrh, catarrhal jaundice (catarrh of the liver), and in diseased mucous membranes of the pelvic organs. It is also recommended for the treatment of various forms of diseases peculiar to women.

Another ingredient of Peruna, corydalis formosa, is classed in the United States Dispensatory as a tonic. So also is cubebs classed as a stomachic and as a tonic for the mucous membranes.

Cedron seeds is another ingredient of Peruna, an excellent drug that has been very largely overlooked by the medical profession for the past fifty years. The seeds are to be found in very few drug stores. The United States Dispensatory says of the action of cedron that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treament of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a substitute for quinine.

Oil of copaiba, another ingredient of Peruna is classed by the United States Dispensatory as a mild stimulant and diuretic. It acts on the stomach and intestinal tract. It acts as a stimulant on the genito-urinary membranes. Useful in chronic cystitis, chronic dysentery and diarrhea, and some chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys.

Send to us for a free book of testimonials of what the people think of Peruna as a catarrh remedy. The best evidence is the testimony of those who have tried it.

Sentimentalism is the curse of our jury system. Hard-headed business men fall an easy prey to its malign influence as soon as they step into a jury box. Thus any weeping crocodile of a lawyer may reasonably hope to get the most brutal murderer off scot free by opening the flood-gates of his tears. "Look upon this poor, unhappy victim of society," wails learned counsel, pointing to his client, "True in a hasty moment he did murder his entire family because they would not give him money for drink: but we are all of us weak at times. Do not, oh, do not, send his shrinking body to the gallows," etc., etc., until the sobbing jury lets the prisoner off, and the gentle art of murder has received further legal encouragement and impetus. Two widely separated cases give hope that this sickly emotionalism is losing its power, says Ridgeway's. Chester Gillette has been convicted in New York State of murdering his sweetheart, and Mrs. Birdsong has been found guilty of manslaughter in Mississippi. Every possible appeal was made for Gillette. Mrs. Birdsong, we assume, was young and beautiful. All murderesses are. Yet one of them met full justice, and the other, at least partial justice. If, indeed, the millennial day is approaching when the hired tear shall lose its power to move juries, the United States may be cleansed of the stigma of permitting more murders to go unavenged than any other civilized nation in the world.

HARDSHIPS OF ARMY LIFE.

The experience of David W. Martin, a retired merchant of Bolivar, Mo., is just like thousands of others. Mr. Martin says: "I think I have had kidney disease ever since the war. During an engagement my horse fell on me, straining my back and injuring the kidneys. I have been told I had a floating kidney. I had intense pain in the back, headaches and dizzy spells and the action of the bladder was very irregular. About three years ago I tried Doan's Kidney Pills, and found such great relief that I continued, and inside a comparatively short time was entirely rid of kidney trouble."

RHEUMATISM

CAN NOT BE RUBBED AWAY

It is perfectly natural to rub the spot that hurts, and when the muscles, nerves, joints and bones are throbbing and twitching with the pains of Rheumatism the sufferer is apt to turn to the liniment bottle, or some other external application, in an effort to get relief from the disease, by producing counter-irritation on the flesh. Such treatment will quiet the pain temporarily, but can have no direct curative effect on the real disease because it does not reach the blood, where the cause is located. Rheumatism is more than skin deep—it is rooted and grounded in the blood and can only be reached by constitutional treatment—IT CANNOT BE RUBBED AWAY. Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid in the blood, brought about by the accumulation in the system of refuse matter which the natural avenues of bodily waste, the Bowels and Kidneys, have failed to carry off. This refuse matter, coming in contact with the different acids of the body, forms uric acid which is absorbed into the blood and distributed to all parts of the body, and Rheumatism gets possession of the system. The aches and pains are only symptoms, and though they may be scattered or relieved for a time by surface treatment, they will reappear at the first exposure to cold or dampness, or after an attack of indigestion or other irregularity. Rheumatism can never be permanently cured while the circulation remains saturated with irritating, pain-producing uric acid poison. The disease will shift from muscle to muscle or joint to joint, settling on the nerves, causing inflammation and swelling and such terrible pains that the nervous system is often shattered, the health undermined, and perhaps the patient becomes deformed and crippled for life. S. S. S. thoroughly cleanses the blood and renovates the circulation by neutralizing the acids and expelling all foreign matter from the system. It warms and invigorates the blood so that instead of a weak, sour stream, constantly depositing acrid and corrosive matter in the muscles, nerves, joints and bones, the body is fed and nourished by rich, health-sustaining blood which completely and permanently cures Rheumatism. S. S. S. is composed of both purifying and tonic properties—just what is needed in every case of Rheumatism. It contains no potash, alkali or other mineral ingredient, but is made entirely of purifying, healing extracts and juices of roots, herbs and barks. If you are suffering from Rheumatism do not waste valuable time trying to rub a blood disease away, but begin the use of S. S. S. and write us about your case and our physicians will give you any information or advice desired free of charge and will send our special treatise on Rheumatism.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. SUMMARY OF SITUATION

Townsend Call Publishes Special Dispatch Which Somehow Sounds Familiar.

Seattle, Feb. 28—A gigantic struggle between railroad interests is in progress on the Olympic peninsula. The three great systems, C. M. & St. P., U. P. and N. P. are battling to secure control. Surveying parties are working with feverish haste locating lines, scores of timber cruisers are scouring the entire country north of Grays Harbor and Hoods Canal, efforts being made to purchase every acre of timber and every surveyor that can be secured is being rushed into the country and tons of supplies are forwarded to the scene of operations. The mask of secrecy and stealth with which from last July each interest had veiled its operations was suddenly torn asunder last week. From now on the fight will be out in the open and speed will be the determining factor in the contest.

Discovery was made last week by N. P. officials that the C. M. & St. P. and U. P. would build a joint line around the Peninsula paralleling the road projected by the N. P. This fact was made known when A. L. Hickman, an engineer of the Milwaukee, went to Quillayute and taking up the north end of a survey started by T. L. Rixon for the U. P. from Quillayute proceeded to the north.

Simultaneously suspicion that Rixon and his surveyors were in the employ of the Union Pacific in running the line south from Quillayute was confirmed. It was discovered that the U. P. engineers in the vicinity of Aberdeen and that the Oregon and Washington railroad will take the west bank of the Cowlitz river in coming north. Roughly, both the Hill line and the joint road will run along the west side of Hoods Canal to Discovery Bay, west along the Straits to East Clallam and south along the coast to the Grays Harbor country.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous diarrhea), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections, it is often successful in affecting cures.

The "Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of one class of diseases—those peculiar weaknesses, derangements and irregularities incident to women only. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nervine. For weak worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulæ of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.

The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American medicinal forest plants They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

The Fireman's Ball, Friday evening last, was not as well attended as the boys had hoped for, still, they cleared a small sum and all had a pleasant evening. Mr. Lyster and Miss Trickle took the cake—a handsome one contributed by Fred C. Poole—for best cake walk.

D. H Bodley came over from Everett Saturday, intending to spend the summer making further improvements to his ranch on the Mt. Pleasant road, upon which he expects to make final proof soon. His family will join him as soon as the children are out of school.

The grip seems to be no respector of persons; when one member of the family is attacked with the troublesome disease it usually serves all alike, even attacking those "who are never sick." First, one of the boys came home sick, then Mr. Beam concluded to remain in-doors a few days, and now Miss Alice is down with it.

W. J. Lichty, who has invested in the box ball alley, is a new arrival here, having lived in Oregon for the past few years. The continuous rains on the coast at Coos Bay caused him to sell his ranch and look up a more congenial climate. His brother-in-law, H. L. Wood, accompanied him here and will do teaming; they are located on the Boulevard.

Major S. M. Crooks was handsomely remembered by his brother Masons, on the eve of his departure for his new home, by the presentation of an elegant gold charm, an emblem of the fraternity. The ladies of the Eastern Star also contributed to the occasion by their presence and with a lunch, a surprise to the lodge members as well as to the Major.

MR. NAILOR CALLED HOME

Died of Heart Failure at Advanced Age of Eighty-five Years.

Benjamin Franklin Nailor was born November 16, 1832, at Mount Rock, Cumberland Co., Pa., where he grew to man's estate. In 1853 he was united in marriage to Miss Barbara A. Kuhl. To this union twelve children were born. In the spring of 1881 Mr. Nailor, after a residence of nearly fifty years at Mount Rock and vicinity, moved, with his family, to Nebraska City, Neb. Here, he lost his wife, Mrs. Nailor passing away October 13, 1885, in that city. In June, 1891, Mr. Nailor came to Port Angeles, where he has since resided, making his home with his sons and daughters.

Of the twelve children, (35 grand-children and 5 great grand-children) eleven survive to mourn his loss, and to meet him on the other shore, viz: G. H., S. W., and J. L. Nailor, Battle Creek, Iowa; W. A. Nailor, Arbutus, Wis.; Mrs. Mary E. Throne, Mount Rock, Penn.; Mrs. Thos. D. Bryan, Tacoma, Wash.; Mrs. W. B. Gould, Messrs. E. J., C. E. and the Misses Barbara A. and Margaret, all of Port Angeles.

A Good Man has gone. Quiet and unassuming, Mr. Nailor possessed, in a remarkable degree, the attributes which make the world better. A man of noble Christian character, kind and generous in all his dealings with humanity; never complaining, but bearing pain or affliction with patience and Christian fortitude. Peace to his ashes.

Funeral services, conducted by Rev. Geo. N. Edwards, were held at the home of his son, E. J. Nailor, Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, and were attended by a large number of neighbors and friends. Interment was in Ocean View cemetery.

Mrs. Thos. D. Bryan and children, and Chas. Lusk and son of Stanwood, Mr. Lusk a son-in-law of deceased, came in time to attend the funeral.

WOMEN AND FASHION

Work Should Be Systematized.

An inexperienced young housekeeper who for the first time tries to manage a home, doing much, if not all, of the work herself, will find no end of difficulties cleared away if she will systematize her daily tasks. The system is only regularity, doing in order all of the things that are necessary, so that before she realizes it everything is done, and there is leisure to read, sew or visit. Much less time is consumed in the work, far less nervous energy, and one's temper is saved no end.

To begin with, if a woman does not keep a maid, she should so arrange her work that by noon certainly, if not before, it is all done, and the rest of the day she has to herself.

Of course, breakfast is the first away. Many housekeepers bring the dishes from the table into the kitchen as soon as the meal is over, but I do not believe in this, because there is already confusion in the kitchen, and more dishes simply add to it.

Leave the breakfast table as it is and return to the kitchen. Begin there by washing the pots and kettles that have been used, and then wash whatever cups, spoons and the like that has been used in preparing the meal. They are, of course, kitchen utensils, and so may be put away as soon as cleared. Wipe up around the sink, that there may be a fresh place for the dining-room dishes, and then bring out those. Do not do this one at a time, or even several at once, but have a tin tray (it is the lightest) large enough for all or almost all of the dishes, fill this from the table and bring them all out in one trip. Take them from the tray, wipe that and place it near for the dishes when clean.

Wash the glasses first in water from which the soap has been taken out. Do three or four at once, and if the water is hot enough they will almost dry themselves. They may be lifted from the pan with a mop handle. Turn them upside down to drain, and then, with a fresh towel, wipe them. Put each on the tray as it is dry, so that it may be returned to the dining-room in one trip. After the glasses, wash the tea or coffee cups, proceeding as with the glasses. Then, there being no grease yet in the water, put in all the small silver. Let that stay in and over it put the plates, a few at a time. After several of those are washed it is well to turn out the water and put in fresh, letting it run on the soap to form a suds. Finish washing the plates, then wash the silver, and, lastly, do the vegetable dishes or platters.

I prefer getting out dining things, that it may not be necessary to return to the kitchen until lunch time. To go back constantly to the same kind of work is not only monotonous, but tiring.

When a Girl Is of Age.

In Nebraska she is of age at 16. In the State of Washington she attains her majority at 18, but if her husband is of age, she also is, no matter how young she may be. This is a strange law, allowing the husband to control the majority of his wife. But marriage also brings our maid to her majority, no matter what her years may be, in Maryland, Oregon, Texas, Iowa and Louisiana, while 18 is the age prescribed in Arkansas, California, Colorado, Dakota, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa (unless married), Kansas, Maryland (unless married), Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska (unless married, when it is 16), Nevada, Ohio, Oregon (unless married), Vermont and Washington (unless married).

DAME FASHION'S DECREES

Hooded effects are in vogue on all sorts of garments, though on bodices these are more often similated by trimmings than otherwise.

White leather with ornamental braiding is the touch of relief on many walking gowns. It is introduced in rather big patches, such as a vest, collar or facings, more than as lines of trimmings.

Dinner bodices finished with coattails of a somewhat directoire description are very smart and becoming. In flowered silk overskirts of lace or other fluffy materials this mode is especially fetching.

Openwork stockings now take a second place beside those of gossamer mesh. A stocking cannot be too fine to-day to suit Dame Fashion and even in the street the finest mesh is worn. Embroidered silk hose are much in demand and if possible the embroidery should be of the same design as that of the gown.

For your light gowns this year there are belts woven of gold or silver threads. Some look like simple braids, some are woven in the most fanciful designs. One exquisite belt of this type is shown in the dull old gold. The girl who wants something to harmonize with her new "antique" bracelet would do well to invest in one of these belts. She must be careful to have a buckle that is also in keeping, however.

Huge rosettes and bows of glossy ribbon, also of gold and silver ribbon or of panne velvet, are considered very smart for hat trimming, and many yards of material are used in this way. Larger flowers are favorites this winter and are placed at almost any spot on the hat. Grapes in every color are used extensively, sometimes in large bunches, to match the gown or the body of the hat or the ribbon.

Glace kid continues the favorite for street wear, both suede and glace being in demand for social functions. With the three-quarter-length sleeve, which many prefer to the elbow length and which is newer, twelve-button-length gloves are amply long and it is a waste of money to buy the longer ones, which cost more proportionately. The best colors for general wear are white, black, gray and all the very delicate shades of tan and suede. Self-stitching is considered in better taste than contrasts, even black not being very much in evidence.

Gone Back to Good Old Names.

"I was looking over the society column of my newspaper," said a lady of the old school to the New York correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, "and it did my heart good to see how people have returned to the good old habit of giving their girls names that stand for dignity, poetry and the traditions of our race.

"There was not a Sallie, a Mamie, or a Nellie in the list. In one announcement of a reception given by a mother on the coming out of her daughter there was one Dorothy, one Alice and one Eleanor, two Helens, one Augusta, one Elizabeth, and, thank heaven for it! one plain, lovely and old-fashioned Mary. There was a Lucy, a Jane, an Agnes and three or four Ruths. It seemed to me, almost, as if I were reading a social roster of the respectable days of forty years ago."

Introduced Handkerchiefs.

Ladies who find the dainty mouchoir such an indispensable bit of finery are probably not aware of the fact that the handkerchief was not used in polite society until the Empress Josephine made it fashionable. She carried a handkerchief and held it before her mouth to hide her bad teeth. The Queen of Italy is said to have the handsomest handkerchief in existence, which is valued at $30,000. It took three women more than five years to make it.

What a Woman Can Do.

It takes a woman to find out a woman, is a homely adaptation of a well-known phrase, and Mrs. W. C. H. Keogh of the Chicago School Board has proved this by unveiling the secrets of some of the women connected with the schools who have been using the children to further their pet political schemes, and now the ladies will have to fight the matter out themselves.

What Mothers May Do.

At a meeting of the Mothers' Club in Chicago the other day one of the members said that each mother should tell her child all about her own childhood and that in this way there would in a few generations be connecting links with the past. Happy is the child whose mother takes the time to tell such stories.

Agaynst Symplified Spellyng.

Five girls in a fashionable boarding school have formed a society to protest earnestly against the new spelling. They sign themselves Alysse, Mayme, Grayce, Katheryne and Carrye.—Smart Set.

MUSHROOM HAT.

Among the smart hats which have made their appearance as early spring harbingers of what is to follow later on is this broad, low, scuttle-shaped hat, quaint in outline and trimming. It is an exaggerated mushroom shape in leghorn straw and one of the first of the new big hats, a summer vogue for which is confidently intimated. The natural-colored straw is used, with a mauve dotted chiffon scarf folded around the crown and ending with two long looped bows in the back. A silver buckle identifies the front of the hat, while two big yellow roses each side of the front chiffon loops lend character to the ensemble.

MUSHROOM FOR SPRING.

Would Have New Word.

A writer in a Philadelhia paper thinks that the time is ripe for a new word that will mean either man or woman, and he suggests 'hu" as the word, the first syllable of the word human. Several years ago they tried to make such a word at the chautauqua, and the word decided upon was "thon." It even went so far that notices were given, in which the word was used, of entertainments and so on, and it was used in the periodical published. It died a natural death, however, as there is no necessity for any such word, as the man from Philadelphia seems to think.

FUR SETS AND HATS.

Good to Keep in Mind.

A lady fell over a brick pile in Indianapolis the other day and no damage resulted except in the loss of the lady's hat, which was ruined by the mud into which it fell. The brick pile was in position owing to negligence of a city workman, and the city attorney, hearing about it, called on the lady, and to avert a damage suit insisted on buying her a new hat. This is probably the first time a city ever bought a hat, and it is a good thing for ladies in other cities to remember that to fall over a city's brick pile may bring like results.

Eat Carrots and Onions.

Some one suggests that if you want to have a good complexion a good beginning is to eat carrots and onions. In fact, it is very fashionable to eat onions nowadays, and the very plebeian vegetable appears in most unexpected places. If one eats them, however, it is just as well to go into retreat for some time afterward, as no specific has been discovered that will lessen the evil effects in the way of odor.

Why It Failed.

Mrs. Tom L. Johnson, wife of the mayor of Cleveland, takes a great interest in the domestic science school which she helped found in that city, and tells the story of a young bride who wanted to have sponge cake for dinner, but informed her husband that the cake was a failure, as the druggist sent "the wrong kind of sponges."

HOW HE FELT.

"Tommy," observed the promising young business man, shortly after he and the divinity student had gone upstairs, "this thing of boarding isn't what it's cracked up to be."

"I'm sure I don't think that we have any reason to complain," said the divinity student. "The food is wholesome and plentiful, and exceedingly well cooked, in my opinion."

"I'm not kicking on the provender," said the promising young business man. "It's about as good as you'll get in a boarding house, I guess."

"It's far better than the average," said the divinity student, warmly. "That chicken to-night—"

"What is it makes you fellows so fond of chicken?" said the young business man, in a slightly irritated tone. "There's no scriptural authority for chicken, is there? Yes, the chicken was all right, but—"

"But what?"

"Oh, I don't know. Somehow—"

"Didn't you like the beaten biscuits?"

"I told you the grub was all right, didn't I—for boarding house grub? Only—well, there's always that mop."

'Everybody seems very pleasant, indeed, to me. Nobody could be kinder or more thoughtful than Mrs. Blimparker. She always speaks of you very nicely."

"She's a good old girl. I know that. I'm fond of her, too, as far as that goes. I've boarded ever since I've been in the city, and she's about the best yet. I wasn't trying to reflect on Mrs. Blimparker, you understand."

"The others seem to be without exception refined and worthy people. Mr. Gushurst appears a little frivolous in his conversation at times, but if you will pardon me for speaking plainly, I've noticed the same thing in you. I hope you are not offended?"

The promising young business man chuckled. "You are a peach," he said. "No, Tommy, I'm not offended. Not seriously, that is. Yes, they're all nice people. I ought not to allude to them as 'a mob.' It was unkind of me. Really, I've no fault to find with any of my fellow boarders. I love 'em all. But, darn a boarding house, anyway—if you will excuse the profanity. You are not offended, I trust?"

"It seems to me a foolish and unnecessary thing to say, Richard, but I am not offended. What is it makes you dissatisfied? Your room here is really luxurious. I should call it luxurious. I think it's the best in the house, and the view from these windows is most interesting. I imagined that you were quite contented."

"I'm not."

"Perhaps as the holiday season approaches you are becoming a little homesick. You want to see the dear old familiar faces and you realize that, however well situated you may be, there's no place like home."

"Do you mean my home?"

"Of course."

"Well, to tell the truth, I left home because I didn't like it. All the same," continued the promising young business man, dreamily, "home life is the only life, isn't it? Now, a comfortable little flat or—"

"Well?"

"Oh, nothing."

"Whose picture is that on your dresser?" inquired the divinity student, suddenly.

"That? Oh, that's—er—that's a young lady. A friend of mine," said the promising young business man.—Chicago Daily News.

GOOD Short Stories

A golfing judge, according to the story, had occasion to interrogate in a criminal suit a boy witness from Bala. "Now, my lad," he said, "I want to know if you are acquainted with the nature and significance of an oath?" The boy, raising his brows in surprise, answered: "Of course I am, sir. Don't I caddy for you at the Country Club?"

In a little village in New Jersey the school mistress saw one of the little boys crying. She called him to her and inquired the reason. 'Some of the big boys made me kiss a little girl out in the school yard," was the reply. "Why, that is outrageous. Why did you not come right to me?" "I—I—didn't know that you would let me kiss you," he said.

A young bride, after serving to her husband a Thanksgiving dinner that was so-so, said, as the mince pie was brought on: "I intended, dear, to have some sponge cake, too, but it has been a total failure." "How was that?" the husband asked in a disappointed tone, for he was fond of sponge cake. "The druggist," she explained, "sent me the wrong kind of sponges."

Alphonse Mucha, the French artist, whose posters of graceful American women are no less popular in America than in Paris, was recently making a tour of the United States. "What pleases me in America," M. Mucha said, "is the intelligence of the people. The American public is far ahead of the English. On my way over here I stopped a few days in London, and in the British Museum one afternoon I overheard a remark that showed well how benighted the English public is. Two men were looking at some old Egyptian coins. 'Them there,' said the first man, 'must be three hundred or four hundred years old, eh, Bill?' "They're three thousand years old,' the second man returned. 'Ah, garn, Bill. What do ye take me for?' said the first man. 'Why, we're only in 1906 now.' "

"It is whispered," said a magazine editor, "that Mark Twain will tell in his autobiography a story about a famous novelist. This novelist loves praise when he is sure of its sincerity. Sincere praise, indeed, is dearer to him than untold gold. And sometimes, in the hope of getting a little of it, he hides his identity and talks to people in book stores and libraries about his own works. One day he went into Brentano's to get some novels for summer reading. The salesman, who didn't know him, after bringing forth Howell's latest, and Conrad's and Tarkington's and George Moore's threw down one of the man's own books. 'Will you try this, sir?' he said. The novelist, eager for praise, threw up his hands before his own book, exclaiming: 'Dear me! I can't stand that man's stuff.' 'Can't you, sir,' said the salesman. 'Well, to tell the truth, I can't, either.' "

WINKED AT BY THE BISHOP.

One Small Burst of Profanity Necessary to Start the Western Stage.

Ethelbert Talbot, now bishop of central Pennsylvania, and for years the bishop of Wyoming and Idaho, in the early days of that region, gives many an anecdote in his entertaining book of reminiscences, "My People of the Plains."

It both pleased and amused him to notice the stage drivers—a class accustomed to the use of the free profanity—were wont to be respectful and clean spoken in his presence, and that when one day chance let slip an oath he followed it by profane apologies; and he gives an illustrative anecdote from the experiences of Bishop Clarkson on the plains of Nebraska.

One occasion the bishop was due to preach at a certain town on the prairies of Nebraska. It was in the spring and the mud was up to the hubs in places. Already it was growing dark and the lights of the village which the bishop was trying to reach seemed still a long way off. He became a little nervous lest he should be late for his appointment. Just then they encountered a mud hole, and the stage coach stuck fast. The driver laid on the lash, but in vain; the horses would not move.

The bishop was on the box with the driver, who was getting desperate. Unable to stand it any longer he turned to the bishop and said:

"Do you see those wheelers looking back at me?"

"Yes, Harry. What does that mean?"

"Bishop, you know I have always tried to treat you right, and I respect your cloth. But do you say you want to preach in that there town tonight?"

"Of course I do, Harry. Why don't you whip your horses?"

"Whip 'em, bishop! Ain't I been a-whippin' em. I'll get you there or bust. What do you say, you must preach there tonight?"

"Of course I must."

"Well, bishop, I ask it just once. You see, these horses are used to my style of talkin' to 'em. I know it's a bad habit, and I know it's wrong, but will you please give me a dispensation just this one time? If you will I'll get you there or bust. What do you say, bishop?"

"Well, Harry, I suppose I'll have to. Fire away this one time."

Harry ripped out an oath and the horses got down on their haunches, cleared the mud hole and landed the bishop in town just in time to keep his appointment.—Rochester Herald.

The Beard in Tunis.

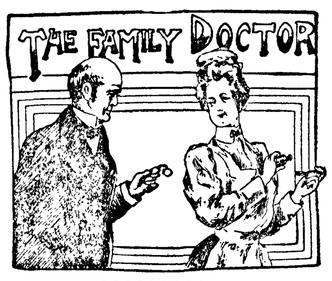
In Tunis when a reigning prince finds it necessary to go outside his immediate family to choose his successor he follows an odd custom. There the wearing of hair on the face is the exclusive privilege of sovereignty. When the prince selects a successor he sends the court barber to the fortunate individual to notify him that he may wear a beard. This intimation is equivalent to a formal announcement that he has been selected as the heir presumptive.

How He Employed Them.

"I used my fists to good advantage last night."

"A fight, eh? Tell me about it."

"No, not a fight. I forgot my keys and had to pound on the door at midnight to get some one to let me in."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.



A great deal of harm is done by self-drugging for the relief of various real or imaginery ills.

There is nothing easier. The only objection to the plan is that what is good for the cough may be bad for the cougher.

So it is with a headache. Almost any pain in the head not due to actual brain disease may be moderated, if not relieved temporarily, by some form of "headache powder"; but a frequent recourse to this means of cure may fatally weaken the heart. When this stops beating the headaches cease to trouble, but the patient is not in condition to know or care.

Every man, of course, believes himself a doctor, and often thinks he is better able to attack a cough or a case of rheumatism or a headache, whether it be his own or another's, than those who make the cure of disease a special study. All he has to do is to make up his mind what the trouble is—and any one can tell a cough when he has it—and then to take something that is "good for a cough."

Less serious, but not much so, is the abuse of tonics. A true tonic is anything that promotes the nutrition of the body. This may be done by increasing the appetite and improving digestion, which is the function of the bitter tonics; or by improving the condition of the blood by adding to it the iron it has lost; or by supplying the system with some needed substance, such as fat in cod liver oil; or finally by stimulating the tissues to increased absorption, an action which is ascribed to arsenic, mercury and others of the mineral tonics.

But these are not the "tonics" to which people are apt to resort when they run down. They take to stimulants, alcohol usually, and think they are getting strong because they feel better after each dose. The alcohol in the "tonic" is often disguised, and the user, perhaps a conscientious teetotaler, would be shocked to learn that what he was taking to give him strength had more alcohol in it than has the strongest whisky. If the system is seriously run down, a physician should be consulted, who will be able to give what is needed, whether iron, or bark, or gentian, or cod liver oil, to correct the underlying condition that causes the debility.—Youth's Companion.

The Bird in Hand.

Instead of getting angry, Clarkson was rather amused at the actions of his pet waiter. For two years he had dined at the same restaurant almost dally and August knew his every wish and had always been liberally tipped. That day, however, Clarkson was shamefully neglected. He had to ask for butter, his napkin was damp and soggy, the particular sauce he liked so well was not on the table, and, in fact, August was the antithesis of a devoted servitor. All his attentions seemed concentrated upon a man at an adjoinin gtable. August hovered around him like a bee around a flower, anticipating every wish and bringing him sundry little extras.

The customers was evidently a stranger. Clarkson could not recall having seen him before, and from his long patronage of the place he had come to know all the regular customers by their faces at least. His curiosity got the better of him and as he was leaving, after bestowing the customary tip, he asked:

"Why is it, August, that you have been so attentive to that man and so neglectful of me? Is he in the habit of giving extra large tips?"

"Oh, no, m'sieu'," said August. "He is a stranger. He has never been here before." Then he added, apologetically, "And I am sure of you, m'sieu'."

The Other Side.

"Don't you get homesick for those beautiful old Colonial mansions in the South?" they asked the Kentuckian on the night that the thermometer froze.

"Not this weather," she answered. "I haven't forgotten yet how the wind used to blow through the cracks of the windows and doors of those beautiful old Colonial mansions, and how we used to sit in rooms about the size of ballrooms, huddled around a two-by-four grate, our faces scorching and the bitter blasts blowing through our back hair.

"Oh, no; in such weather as this the steam heated luxury of the Chicago flat for me," she decided.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Proof Positive.

Bertha—But, papa, what have you against Charles? Wouldn't he make a good husband?

Father—He's a fool, and besides he's only after your money.

Bertha—Oh, papa, I know he would marry me without a penny.

Father—You see? He's even more of a fool than I thought!—Le Pele-Mele.

LEGISLATIVE WORK

FIFTY-EIGHT BILLS HAVE PASSED BOTH HOUSES.

Of this Number Thirty-Nine Have Been Signed By the Governor---Direct Primary and Railroad Measures Are Still Pending.

Olympia, Feb. 24.—Gov. Mead has signed thirty-nine of the fifty-eight bills passed by both houses of the Tenth legislature up to the time of adjournment on Thursday afternoon, when atdjournment was taken for the Wasington's birtday recess. The house has passed eighty-six house bills and the senate eighty-seven senate bills. Many others have met the fate of indefinite postponement. Among those still pending are the direct primary and the reciprocal demurrage measures. No group of measures passed by both houses has aroused more widespread interest that those relating to the A-Y-P. exposition, providing money for the fair and for additional university buildings, which will be used by the exposition, and providing for the sale of Lake Washington and Lake Union shore lands to secure the funds needed for these purposes.

Among the appropriation measures passed are: Providing $90,000 to purchase jute for the jute mill at the penitentiary; $70,000 to meet the expenses of the Tenth legislature; $35,000 to be used in erecting a residence for the governor; $6,000 for printing for the legislature, and $7,000 to repair and beautify the capitol.

Measures on Taxation

All the measures carrying radical changes in regard to revenues and taxation were framed by the tax commission. Of those passed Senator Polson's amends the public highway fund act to provide for a tax levy of one and one-half mills for the fiscal year beginning March 1, 1907; Senator Gunn's amends the law relating to the filing of plats and their assessment; Representative Dickson's provides for the assessment of operating property of railroads, and Bassett's fixes a 5 per cent excise tax on express companies. Others place a 7 per cent tax on private car companies, relate to the assessment of railroad operating property and provide for the equalization of property in counties of the second, third and fourth classes.

Hours of Work for Engineers

Representavive Beebe's bill provides for the limitation of the working hours of men employed in railway train work to sixteen. Fancher's bill 128 provides for the employment of county convicts on public roads. Ramsey's bill 116 empowers county commissioners to purchase stone quarries and machinery for the operation of the same. Halterman's bill 73 authorizes county commissioners to lease mining claims acquired for nonpayment of taxes. Among the bills passed by both houses relating to educational work is senate bill 17, by Reed, providing that districts employing more than 40 teachers shall be entitled to five directors and a clerk.

On Public Moneys

House bill 71, by Carlyon, of Thurston, places all public moneys in a general fund, except such as are levied for specific purposes or permanent or irreducible funds of the state institutions; Kayser's house bill 76 provides fort he keeping of moneys in cities of less than 75,000, empowering the councils of such cities to name as depositories banks where the treasurer shall deposit the funds; Knickerbocker's senate bill 46 provides state depositaries and regulates the keeping of public moneys therein, specifying interest of 2½ per cent until changed. One of Bassett's bills provides that banks shall not be responsible in the case of forged or raised checks unless notified by the depositors within sixty days.

The congressional districting bills passed in both houses differ only in slight details, and there will probably be little difficulty in reconciling the same.

SHIP SUBSIDY VOTE TO BE TAKEN FRIDAY

Washington, Feb. 26.—Ship subsidy secured a marked impetus yesterday in the house just before adjournment, when there was adopted a rule that will probably insure the passage by the house of the Littauer substitute for the senate bill and result, before final adjournment, in positive legislation.

The vote is to be taken not later than Friday.

The rule was agreed upon unexpectedly by the rules committee at a meeting held after a visit of Secretary Root to the capitol, and it was very generally understood that the administration was responsible for the committee's action.

Favors Reduced Araments

Rome, Feb. 27.—From the work of Prof. de Maartens, Russian imperial councillor of state, which has already begun here in connection with the forthcoming session of The Hague tribunal, it appears that Russia, recognizing the necessity for peace, will co-operate in any movement leading to concord on the question of simultaneous reduction of armaments or te lessening of disasters of war.

PERKINS NOT GUILTY

New York Court of Appeals Divided on the Decision.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 27.—The court of appeals has decided in favor of George W. Perkins, a vice president of the New York Life Insurance Company and a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., in the matter of the charge of grand larceny made against him in connection with the payment of funds of the New York Life to the Republican national campaign committee in 1904. The decision is by a divided court, voting four to three. The prevailing opinion holds that there was no larceny owing to the absence of criminal intent. The dissenting opinion holds that larceny consists of taking property belonging to some one else, even though for a commendable purpose.

Both the opinions agree that the expenditure of New York Life money for campaign purposes was illegal and improper. Judge Gray, in the majority opinion, says:

"It is undeniably true that the purpose for which the moneys of the company were used were foreign to the chartered purposes of the corporation, but that fact does not make the payment a criminal act. The innocent motive in indirectly promoting the corporate affairs through the supposed advantage of the continuation of the Republican administration purged the act of immorality, and it lacked the criminal intent."

CHEHALIS DIVISION BILL PASSES SENATE

Olvmpia, Feb. 22.—The senate yesterday passed the bill for the division of Chehalis county and the creation of Grays Harbor county. There were five dissenting votes. The bill now goes to the governor for his approval. Bills were also passed as follows:

Compelling railways to publish time tables in newspapers in cities of 3,000 population or more; amending railroad fencing law to require "suitable" cattle guard; requiring railroads to employ only flagmen who read, write and speak English, and engineers who have had three years experience as firemen.

TO BUILD RAILROAD TO HUDSON BAY

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 23.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday made a declaration in the house that the proposed Hudson's Bay railroad would be built. The route is intended to bring Northwestern Canada within easy reach of the seaboard. C. A. Foster urged the province chiefly interested to co-operate with the federral government to carry out the project.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the proposed railway to connect the Western provinces with the Atlantic via Hudson's bay was now receiving the attention of the government, and he would make a more definite announcement before the end of the session.

TO SPEND MILLION ON BELLINGHAM BAY ROAD

Bellingham, Feb. 27.—San Francisco capitalists have reached an agreement with the Bellingham Bay & British Columbia railway whereby the latter company will spend $1,000,000 within six months in improving its terminal facilities in this city to enable it to handle the output of the Northwestern Portland Cement Company's plant at Kendall. Twelve miles of new trackage on the water front and a new ocean dock are included in the contract.

BIG SUM IS STOLEN FROM SUB-TREASURY

Chicago, Feb. 27.—The startling announcement has been made by secret service officials that $173,000 in mutilated bank bills sent to the subtreasury here by banks for redemption, is missing.

The money was never placed in the vaults, according to statements, and suspicions are directed to several clerks with outside accomplices, two of them being women.

Kossuth Inaugurates Reforms

Vienna, Feb. 25.—Francis Kossuth has taken steps to relieve the Hungarian workmen. All industrial associations support his reforms, which comprise the protection of workmen from usury, the institution of invalid and old age insurance and special legislation for widows and orphans.

The Senate Insists

Olympia, Feb. 27.—Gregg's congressional appoortionment bill passed the senate by a vote of 30 to 6, but as it passed it contained exactly the same arrangement of counties as the bill of Senator Rosenbaupt, which passed the senate a few days ago.

Refused to Censure Bailey

Austin, Texas, Feb. 27.—By a vote of 15 to 11, the Texas senate discharged the investigating committee which has been in session several weeks looking into charges against United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey.

HARRIMAN TALKS

RAILROAD MAGNATE BEFORE INTERSTATE COMMISSION.

Explains in Detail How He Secured Control of Union and Southern Pacific and Other Railroads---Does Not Consider It as Speculation.

New Yonrk, Feb. 26.—E. H. Harriman, the railroad magnate, was the first witness here before the interstate commerce commission's investigation of the operation of the Pacific railroads. He explained in detail how he secured control of the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and half a dozen other great lines. The story lays bare one of the most gigantic stock speculations in the history of finance.

Commissioner Knapp presided, Clements, Lane, Prouty and Harlan being the other members present. Paul Cravath and John F. Milburn represented Harriman, while F. B. Kellogg and C. A. Severance were the attorneys for the commission.

Harriman began with the issue of $100,000,000 in convertible bonds on the Union Pacific and later turned these into stock for the same amount. On top of this hundred million the Oregon Short line raised $45,000,000.

Through Kuhn, Loeb & Co., 750,000 shares of the Southern Pacific were purchased for $41,000,000. $60,000,000 being used to purchase Northern Pacific stock. Eigheen millions were used to improve the Southern Pacific and stock for this amount was subsequently taken. This first step gave Harrimar three great transcontinental lines.

Profited By Merger Dissolution

Harriman told the commission that when the supreme court dissolved the Great Northern merger he found that the Great Northern and Northern Pacific stock which he received together were worth about $100,000,000, and subsequently increased in market value. The income from both was small, only about $3,000,000 a year. Therefore he sold all, realizing about $160,000,000. The testimony developed that it was this money which helped Harriman to further conquest. He bought into the Illinois Central, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Chicago & Alton, the Milwaukee and other roads.

Close questioning revealed that Harriman became interested in the Baltimore & Ohio with little actual transfer money. He had arranged to buy 223,342 shares of B. & O. common at $120 per share, 72,000 at $94.50, but only a trifle of the $9,000,000 was paid, Harriman expecting to take up the remainder during the year. He said he got into the Alton in a similar manner. The witness said the profits would not depend upon whether the stocks go up or down. He explained that the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line together made $17,000,000 through the increase in value of stock purchased. By buying other stocks of greater dividend paying quality he increased the stock income $3,000,000.

"I do not consider it speculation," said Harriman.

Harriman Must Give Facts

Attorney Milburn protested against Kellogg's questions about the Chicago & Alton. He said it was a private matter not concerning interstate commerce.

Kellogg curtly replied that the commission intended to prove that the stock was inflated beyond all reason. He said:

"We believe this stock is not worth $1. I wish to find out the process and persons responsible for the inflation."

Knapp insisted that Harriman must tell.

Mr. Harriman thereupon explained in detail the syndicate operrations by which they acquired the Chicago & Alton. He was forced to admit that he sold 10,000 bonds to the New York Life Insurance Company, making a profit of $300 per bond. Asked if this price was not high, Harriman said:

"The insurance companies could look out for themselves."

Ingalls Predicts Socialism

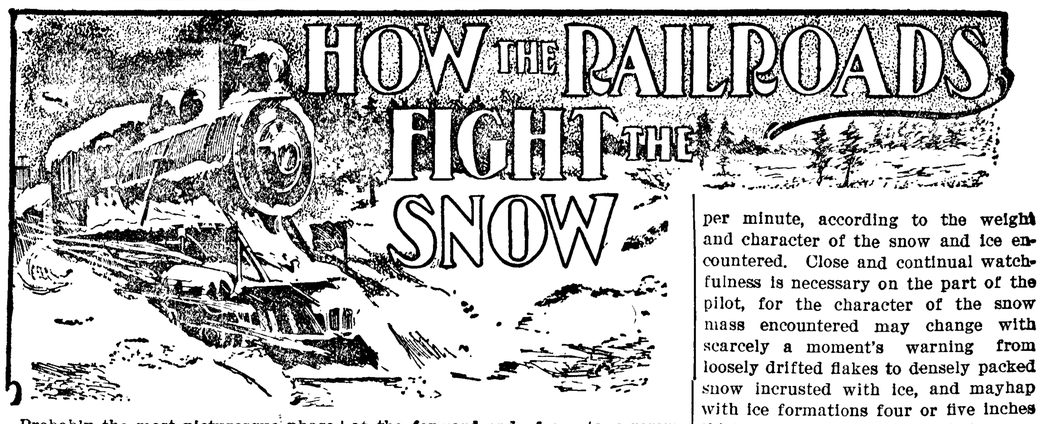
Boston, Feb. 27.—M E. Ingalls, formerly president of the Big Four railway system, speaking at the Economic Club last night said: "I am not in favor of taxing for obstruction, but the question is whether we have not too many millionaires for the good of the republic. I believe one of the greatest causes of the production of large and illegal fortunes is your tariff. There is integrity and honor in this country, but if you do not exercise it the country will come to socialism. '

Earthquake Clause Does Not Absolve

San Francisco, Feb. 27.—A decision has been handed down by Judge Senwell in the case of Baker & Hamilton against the Williamsburg City Fire Insurance Company. It holds that in fire insurance policies the presence of an earthquake clause does not absolve liability unless the company proves that the earthquake started the fire on the premises insured.

Plan to Reform Lords

London, Feb. 27.—Lord Kurzon of Keddleston, who has just been nominated chancellor of Oxford university in succession to the late Viscount Goschen, has published a letter advocating that the Unionist party itself undertake to reform the house of lords on the lines laid down in the bill which proposes the reconstruction of the house on a party elective basis.



Probably the most picturesque phase of American railroad operations is found in the manner in which the steam roads of the West battle with the giant snowdrifts of the mountain regions. This novel activity is seen in its most spectacular form on the higher levels of the Rocky mountains. The largest rotary snow plow in the world is in service on that engineering marvel, the Moffat railroad in Colorado, and the manner in which it bores through the great white banks that block the steel-tracked highway has solved one of the most perplexing problems of operating a railroad more than 11,000 feet above the level of the sea.

In the early days of railroading in the region beyond the Mississippi river the familiar hand shovel was the main dependence for clearing the tracks, and after every heavy fall of "the beautiful" an army of men that included every available employe of the road was hurried to points where blockades might be expected. Locomotives, in strings of two, three or four were also hurled against the drifts in an effort to dislodge the troublesome masses of icy crystals.

As a solution for this last-mentioned makeshift some genius invented the push plow, a huge wedge-shaped structure on wheels, which "bucks" the drifts, impelled by the force of several powerful locomotives behind it, and if the snow barriers be not too heavy, can force a pathway through the mass. However, the fact that even the heaviest snow plows are ofttimes baffled by the drifts in the mountains indicated the necessity for a yet more powerful type of snow fighter, and thus in time there was evolved the snow plow known as the rotary, which has revolutionized the methods of fighting snow and is represented in the rolling stock of every railroad that is liable to feel the grip of the western blizzard.

In the principle of its operation the rotary is radically different from all other designs of snow plows, for instead of being anything in the nature of a scoop or shovel that shoves the snow aside, its chief working mechanism consists of a monster wheel which burrows through the snow, tossing the more or less fleecy material in every direction. The wheel or snow screw at the forward end of a rotary resembles the propeller of a steamship or a giant electric fan, although, of course, it has many more blades than either of these.

The wheel of the average rotary snow fighter is from 8 to 12 feet in diameter and consists of a series of hollow, cone-shaped steel scoops, each equipped with a knife-like piece of metal. As the wheel revolves at high speed, these blades strike the snow and ice loosening it and throwing it into the scoops. The wheel proper is inclosed in a metal hood, at the top of which is a square opening or funnel. By the revolution of the wheel, the snow caught up by the scoops is thrown through this opening with great force, and the funnel is so shaped that the snow is hurled in an oblique direction and caused to fall at a distance of from 50 to 100 feet from the side of the track, according to the speed at which the wheel is being operated. Moreover, the hood is inclined inward, so that the falling snow does not descend upon the top of the rotary and bury the machine in a drift of its own making.

The rotary plow, like the old-fashioned type of push plow, is propelled by a couple of powerful locomotives, but the power for operating the great propeller is contained within the plow itself. This is supplied by an engine somewhat resembling a marine engine, but capable of developing almost as much power as a locomotive. The rotary must withstand the force of pushing engines behind, as well as counteract the side motion of the great whirring wheel, and consequently the roof and sides, as well as the framework, are of metal, and the machinery is set as near the ground as possible, in order to help "steady" this energetic mechanical toiler. The weight of the average rotary, complete with tender for fuel and water, is more than 100 tons. At the forward part of the plow is the pilot house, wherein is stationed the pilot who directs the operation of the rotary and communicates the necessary instructions to the engineers of the locomotives in the rear.

A giant rotary can force its way through almost any snow barriers at a speed of from four to six miles per hour, as a minimum. The ponderous, knife-armed wheel spins around at a speed of from 150 to 300 revolutions per minute, according to the weight and character of the snow and ice encountered. Close and continual watchfulness is necessary on the part of the pilot, for the character of the snow mass encountered may change with scarcely a moment's warning from loosely drifted flakes to densely packed snow incrusted with ice, and mayhap with ice formations four or five inches thick scattered through it. Into some portions of the vast snow coverlet the rotary may plunge with impunity at a speed of only 400 or at most 600 feet per minute, while banks of soft snow permit a speed of say twelve miles per hour. However, an indicator in the pilot house records every fluctuation in the resistance offered by the snow barriers and a pneumatic whistle enables the pilot to quickly signal for any desired change of speed.

The snow depths at some of the higher altitudes of the American Alps are almost incredible, but a big rotary, working like a herculean augur and tossing aside its snow borings like chips driven out of a fan blower in a planing mill, could actually burrow to any depth if there were any way to get rid of the snow thus excavated. The whole principle of the armored car with the big wheel churning the snow before it is so simple that once it had been devised railroad men wondered that they had not hit upon the scheme long ago.

There are places where the work of the rotary plows in keeping open the trail for the iron horses is ably augmented, on the principle of prevention, by great snowsheds—stout fences or wooden tunnels designed to keep the snow from drifting over the tracks—but it is probable that had the efficiency of the modern rotary marvels been anticipated, many railroads would not have expended as much money as they did some years ago in constructing snowsheds. Thirty-two miles of snowsheds, costing $64 a foot, or nearly $11,000,000 in the aggregate, represents the price one transcontinental railroad had to pay before it could successfully operate its trains over the Rocky mountain division.

Nowadays the rotaries cost something like $10,000 each, but even at that price they represent a great saving over snowsheds which, aside from their first cost, eat up thousands of dollars in repairs every year. Moreover, the rotaries have been instrumental in saving countless lives—not merely by carrying aid and food to snow-bound trains and snow-bound villages, but also by reducing the number of casualties among railroad men engaged in fighting the snow.—Waldon Fawcett in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

IN OLD "LYCEUM" DAYS.

The golden days of the lecture platform are past, and the lecture bureau is no longer the active feature of the intellectual life that it was fifty or even twenty-five years ago. At one time almost every town, East and West, had its lecture course each winter. Many were the adventures experienced by the lecturers as they penetrated the provincial parts of the country to deliver their messages of wisdom or amusement. Sometimes a concert by the Mendelssohn Quintet Club, or some other musical organization, was sandwiched in between two lectures. Thomas Ryan—a member of the famous quintet club—in "The Recollections of an Old Museum," tells of the reception of a young woman lecturer in a small Wisconsin town:

It was a young men's society which had summoned her, made up of very youthful members. When she reached the station the entire association was lined up to meet her, and she was ceremoniously introduced, then and there, to each one. As the weather was extremely cold, the process was an ordeal.

This over, the leader wiped his brow and looked about as if asking what to do next. Miss Andrews suggested the hotel. A one-horse sleigh was produced; the leader handed the lecturer in, got in himself and offered her the reins. She declined, saying he knew the horse and way better than she. The young man seemed relieved, and quite satisfied that he had shown the guest of the society every courtesy possible.

That evening the whole association again met and escorted the lecturer to the hall. The room was packed.

On the stage was an old-fashioned settee with legs in the middle and at each end. When Miss Andrews sat down the affair tilted with her. A large, heavily built clergyman came in and seated himself on the other end. Up went the settee, and up went Miss Andrews until her feet no longer touched the floor. The audience giggled and Miss Andrews laughed; there was nothing else to do.

The lecturer scanned the house. Foremost, leaning with folded arms on the edge of the stage, sat a young man in a red flannel shirt who never took his eyes off the lady on the platform.

Finally the reverend giant rose to introduce the lecturer. This suddenly let Miss Andrews' end of the settee down with a thud.

The clergyman was long-winded, and the red-shirted young man became restless. At last he called out in impatient tones:

"Dry up, old man! Give the young gal a chance!"

The only reason some men care to succeed is to be able to show their superiority to their enemies.

HARRY K. THAW. MILLIONAIRE TRIED FOR MURDER.

Types of pretty faces that flitted through the brain of the man whom jealousy finally drove to murder.

The question of Harry Kendall Thaw's mental condition and his consequent legal responsibility for some of his acts is one that has agitated the minds of many persons since the news first flashed over the world that the headstrong young milionaire had shot down Stanford White, the New York architect. Was it anger or insanity that governed Thaw's act on that fatal night when the gay throng of patrons at a New York roof garden were startled by the murder committed in their midst? This question was for court and jury to decide.

She Overdid It.

"My daughter bought that latest popular piece o' music to-day," said Mrs. Nexdore, "and she tried it on our piano."

"Yes," replied Mrs. Knox, "and it was a wretched fit, wasn't it?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

For the Best Interests of Our Children—Both Yours and Mine.

We have been asked if our object in bringing up the question of efficiency of our schools was not due to a desire to benefit some particular person. It certainly was. This question of school is one that lies very close to the heart of every father and mother in Angeles. Most of us—especially those of us who have several children—can hope to give them little else than a good education to fit them for their journey thru life. We watch their monthly reports—their standings on various subjects and their rank in class—with a solicitude little thought of by those who have no children to care for.

We listen to their accounts of school room happenings, not because we are especially interested in the various incidents, but that they serve to give us an idea of the discipline maintained, and the consequent advancement, or lack thereof, of the scholars. When our children come home with swollen throats and flushed cheeks and tell us of sitting all morning, chilled thru, in a cold room with open windows for ventilation, we are interested in the question of modern ventilation and efficient janitors. When they have to study nights to work out a long list of problems, we question whether the child is too far advanced. Later on, when we are told they will require one and a half years to complete a grade that the class just before them, and the one to follow, will make in one year, we wonder why? And so it goes, thru a seemingly never ending list of cares and perplexities.

When a teacher, loved by scholars, holding the respect and esteem of parents; an esteem based directly upon the progress observable in the children, is dropped from the list of instructors; or when such a teacher refuses to contract for another year, we are bound to question, why? When a new teacher fails to make good, we again wonder why the old efficient teacher could not have been continued.

When a teacher tells us of being criticised before her school and says she has never taught before where teachers meetings were not held and never will again, we wonder why they have not been held here as in every other city in the land. And there are a score of other similar matters, all of which lead us to believe our schools are not receiving the best of care, and that the result must of necessity be detrimental to the children.

Time was, when a $900 man might passably fill the position of superintendent, but the salary has been raised to $1,100 in the past four or five years and can now be raised another hundred, which is the salary generally paid in towns of this size throughout the country. We, as a community, are now able to command the services of a college man—a man possessing the education and ability to hold his position by virtue of results attained and without having to resort to the questionable practices of the ward heeler.

Many of our readers claim Iowa as their home state. They are familiar with the land hog—the man who buys more land to raise more corn to feed more hogs to buy more land. But tell us, did you ever hear of a public servant selecting an officer to employ him to select an officer, etc? Perhaps not, for there are some species of the genus hog that Iowa people don't cotton to.

HAVE DONE GOOD WORK

A TOTAL OF FIFTY-EIGHT MEASURES PASSED

Present Legislature Most Business-like Body that Has Convened at Olympia for Several Years.

A review of the work of the legislature, by a staff correspondent of the P.-I., shows that up to the commencement of business on Monday morning of this week, a total of fifty-eight measures had passed both houses—thirty-nine house bills and nineteen senate bills; Gov. Mead having signed thirty-nine out of the total number passed by both houses. The house had passed eight-six house bills and senate eighty-seven senate bills. Among those still pending are the direct primary and the reciprocal demurrage measures. No group of measures passed by both houses has aroused more widespread interest than those relating to the A.-Y.-P. exposition, providing $400,000 for the state exhibit at the fair, appropriating $600,000 for buildings at the University of Washington, which will be used by the exposition, and providing for the sale of Lake Washington and Lake Union shore lands to secure the funds needed for these purposes.

Among the appropriation measures passed are: one providing $90,000 to purchase jute for the jute mill of the penitentiary; for $70,000 to meet the expenses of the Tenth legislature; one for $35,000 to be used in erecting a residence for the governor; one for $6,000 for printing for the legislature, and one calling for $7,000 to repair and beautify the capitol.

Of the measures carrying radical changes in regard to revenues and taxation passed, is one amending the public highway fund act to provide for a tax levy of one and one-half mills for the fiscal year beginning March 1, 1907; another amends the law relating to the filing of plats and their assessment; another provides for the assessment of operating property of railroads, and still another fixes a 5 per cent excise tax on express companies.

The bill of the senate judiciary committee, fixing the salaries of supreme judges at $6,000 and raising the salaries of superior judges, has been badly slashed by the house amendments. Senator Grave's bill on the trial, commitment and custody of the criminally insane has aroused unusual interest. The Hanson bill on probate fees has been passed. H. B. No. 4 provides for the prosecution and punishment of parents who aid their children in delinquency.

The congressional districting bills past in both house and senate differ only in slight detail, and there will be little difficulty in reconciling the same. The Chehalis county division bill, has been passed by both houses, and the creation of Grays Harbor, with Aberdeen as the county seat, is expected soon after the governor puts his signature to the bill.

The direct primary bill, past by the house with unanimity, but not played on final passage in the senate, is perhaps the most talked of measure still pending in the legislature. Kirkpatrick's eight-hour bill for women employes, after its passage in the house with a storm of endorsement and protest, has stirred up no end of excitement in the senate's committee on labor and labor statistics.

The fate of the cigarette bill is in the hands of the senate, the house having put the seal of approval on the prohibition of their sale, manufacture, giving away, or having them in one's possession.

The omnibus game and game fish bills have been reported back to the house with the recommendation that they pass.

Will the time ever come when the school elections of Port Angeles will be clean and worthy of the cause they represent, and be freed from the polluting touch of those bastard rumors which creep out from sub-cellars and rat holes, fatherless and motherless, to vitiate the air and offend the nostrils of honest men. The truth, gentlemen, for God's sake, give us the truth.

The Milwaukee appears to be setting the pace in surveying work in this county just at present, their record being one crew per week for the past three weeks, the last one going thru to the West End on Tuesday.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured.
