IN ATTRACTIONS FOR LOVERS OF OUTDOOR LIFE

Nature Has Here Combined All the Things that Are Scattered in Small Quantities Elsewhere Over the World.

The Eastern man is apt to look at the map, even perhaps measure it with a rule, and in an off-hand way say, "Ah, it's a thousand (or two or three thousand) miles away," and let it go at that. When the Pacific Northwest is mentioned to an Eastern man he has a very hazy idea of a far off wilderness, sparsely peopled and full of things that he thinks ought to be only on the frontier.

Unless someone whom he knows personally sits down and tells him in a heart to heart way about this great expanse of territory, he doesn't think much about it, just lets it go and thinks he is well enough off where he is. How far this man's judgment is at fault, we who dwell in this favored corner of the world are well aware.

If it so happens that the Eastern man prefers outdoor things in general, or has some particular outdoor hobby that he likes to indulge during his hours off from business, let us look into the Northwest and see what we can offer him in detail.

If he be a gunner, we can show him as good shore bird and water fowl shooting, including ducks, geese, brant and all kinds of snipe, curlew and rail, as the world contains. We can take him into our upland section where he can shoot grouse, "pheasant," (ruffled grouse), sharptailed grouse, mountain quail, valley quail, scaled partridge and Chinese pheasant.

If he wants larger game, we can show him deer, bear, elk, cougar and a large variety of small four-footed game. This list will provide him with shooting the year round and all are plentiful enough in Washington to afford good sport.

Suppose that he be a fisherman in his leisure hours; we can then give trout, black bass, salmon and an endless array of salt water fishes, and in our hundreds of inland lakes almost as numerous a list of implanted fish; in fact he can fish on the West coast any day in the year for some kinds of fish and do it comfortably, because the climate is so mild that fishing can be enjoyed in winter without discomfort; and he can fish legally for the season is always open on one kind or another.

It may be that he is a motor boat or a sail boat enthusiast! Where on the map of the world is there such a cruising ground as Puget sound and the inside passage that runs a thousand miles northwestward along the coast? The Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence, the Canadian lakes, the Florida coast and the Mediterranean all placed in close proximity to each other would not produce such a diversified cruising ground. One can here sail 10,000 miles with snow-capped mountains continually in sight; all of the time in an atmosphere of petpetual summer, where roses bloom the year round. In fact, if a sailor were to order a cruising ground, made to suit his own particular fancy, I do not know how he could better the conditions found on this Northwest coast.

Suppose, again, that our friend enjoys mountain climbing and quiet trails that lead upward to the snows of the country of silence. Nowhere on earth can he find such a trip as that into the Olympic mountains. It is only two days from Seattle to the topmost peaks of this most rugged range in the whole United States.

Sixty miles to the east of where one would stand on the Olympic peak 7,700 feet in the air, is the giant wall of the Cascade mountains, running north and south for 800 miles, coming out of the horizon of the

REV. H. C. MASON HERE

A Series of Addresses by a Seattle Pastor at the Congregational Church for the "Deepening of the Life of the Spirit."

Rev. H. C. Mason leaves his busy field in Seattle to conduct a series of meetings in Port Angeles, beginning next Sunday. Mr. Mason is an active, wide-awake man, who touches life with the light of humor and the grip of earnestness. He is closely inentified with the University and knows how to bring religion home to the thought of educated men. He preaches as a man on a quest for reality. He knows the religious problems that burden the mind of the modern man, and does not try to avoid them. His rapidly growing work at the University Congregational Church has made necessary plans for a new stone building, soon to be erected. Many of the University faculty are in his congregation. Yet Mr. Mason is not a man whose intellectuality is so profound that the ordinary man fails to understand him. He is broadly human in his interests and intensely practical in his preaching.

Services are to be at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., Sunday, and at 8 o'clock Monday to Friday evenings. The public is cordially invited to attend them.

ANOTHER MILWAUKEE CREW

Went Down to Clallam Tuesday; Three Surveying Parties Working North from Grays Harbor.

Another surveying party of eleven passed through Tuesday last to join Chief Rixon of the Milwaukee in locating that road's route south from East Clallam.

Aberdeen, March 19.—The Milwaukee road has had three parties of surveyors at work near Humptulips; one of the parties being reported as working in a northeasterly direction from Humptulips, a second toward Aberdeen, and the third just on the edge of the Quiniault reservation.

There are some sixty men in two of the crews; but just how many are in the other is not known here. Several Northern Pacific surveying parties are also working in this section; one of them, under engineer J. C. Barton, being near Moclips, on North Beach, and is said to be working in that direction.

The northwestern part of the county is largely taken up with the Quiniault Indian reservation, but it is said that there is a good deal of fine timber that is not in the reservation, and that the owners of it wish to get it on the market.

COMPLETED BY OCTOBER 1ST

Steel Now Arriving Daily; a Thousand Carloads Expected in Three Weeks for Columbia River Route.

That the Northern Pacific is anticipating no great difficulty in securing a sufficient number of men for construction work, is shown by the early date, October 1st, set for completion of the Columbia route, upon which the actual development of the east side of the peninsula will largely depend.

Seattle, March 15.—The trains of the Portland & Seattle railroad are expected to be running down the north bank of the Columbia from Pasco to Portland on October 1, according to the statement of a representative of J. J. Hill in Seattle yesterday. The completion of this line will give its parent, the Northern Pacific, what are practically double track facilities from Spokane to the Coast. The commencement of operations on that part of the Portland & Seattle from Pasco to Spokane will take place at a correspondingly early date.

The Chinese army board has selected fifteen students from the Paotingfu military college to study military science in France.

Will J. Davis has been declared not guilty of manslaughter, which charge had been brought against him following the death of nearly 600 persons in a fire in his theater, the Iroquois, in Chicago, in 1903.

According to a Tarien telegram, the Kwangtung general government intends to construct a long distance telephone from Yingkow to Mukden and Tarien, says the Kobe Herald. Construction is to be started next month.

The Idaho legislature has adjourned

The British Columbia legislature convened last week at Victoria.

A new postoffice has been established at Glacier, in the Tanana district, Alaska.

It is announced in a dispatch from Zanesville, Ohio, the the Grand Army encampment will be held at Saratoga this year.

The woman surffage bill was talked to death in the house of commons last week. This result was anticipated, even by the friends of the measure.

It is reported in a dispatch from Portland that 33,000 acres in Lane county, Oregon, have been purchased by Michigan lumber men for $900,000.

The Edward Rutledge Lubmer Company, backed by the Weyerhausers, will construct, it is said, the largest mill plant in the world on its site near Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. The site includes 600 acres adjacent to the lake.

The military secretray's office of the army, established for the benefit of Maj. Gen. Ainsworth, went out of existence March 6, in accordance with the terms of the army appropriation bill, and the adjutant general's department was revived.

It is understood that an agreement has been signed between the Butte miners and the managers of the largest mines, by which an amicable wage scale has been adopted. The demsand for an increase has been granted, contingent on the price of copper. The agreement is for five years. Work of development and construction will be resumed as soon as the action of the union committee is indorsed by the miners.

ORDER WILL RESTORE THIRTY MILLION ACRES

Washington, March 12.—President Roosevelt will sign an order restoring to entry approximately 30,000,000 acres of land recently withdrawn as coal lands. Secretary Garfield, of the interior department, is completing the details of this order and expects to have it ready for the preisdent's signature tomorrow. The land was part of a withdrawal aggregating 64,000,000 acres. Since the withdrawal experts of the geological survey have been engaged in ascertaining the coal bearing value of the withdrawn lands, and while lands to be restored to entry are still classified as coal lands it is understood their value as such does not warrant their exclusion from pubilc entry. The location of the lands and the details of the order are withheld until the president's approval is given.

Jute Mill Again in Operation

Walla Walla, March 9.—After several months idleness 300 penitentiary convicts are again at work in the jute mill, 150 bales of jute having arrived. Work of turning out sacks will not start for several days, as it takes some time to get warp on looms, and this must be done before finished product can be turned out. The consignment of jute is only a small part of the amount contracted for—3,500 bales. The work of enlarging the mill is expected to start soon after the bill making the appropriation for the purpose passes the legislature.

Butte Printers Make Offer

Butte, March 11.—The typographical union has submitted to the publishers of the local newspapers a proposition to return to work at the new scale of $6 per day, the matter of wages to be decided by arbitration, the publishers having declined to pay more than $5.50 per day. The publishers have the matter under consideration and it is probable that publication will be resumed during the week.

May Save Dakota

Yokohama, March 9.—A thorough survey of the steamship Dakota is being made0 by representatives of the underwriters' board. Provided gales do not prevent, salvage work is possible. No statement has been made as to whether the huge liner can be saved.

The ministers of Aberdeen and Hoquiam have held a meeting and are considering the advisability of forming the Grays Harbor Ministerial Associatin. Definite plans will be made at a future meeting.

The right of a passenger to maintain an action to recover damages for injuries received through the negligence of the carrier does not depend upon the existence of a valid contract for carriage. This is the substance of a decision handed down by the supreme court in the case of W. E. Bradburn against the Whatcom Railway and Light Company and William A. Lewis.

COURT UPHELD IN LAND FRAUD CASES

San Francisco, March 12.—Judges Gilbert, Ross and Hunt, of the United States circuit court of appeals, have upheld the United States district court of Oregon in the cases of ex-Congressman Williamson, Marion Biggs and Von Gesner, convicted of land frauds. The contention made in taking an appeal was that it was no crime to violate a rule of the land department. The court conceded that had a mere rule of the department been violated no criminal offense would have been committed, but that the present case was not one merely involving the violation of a rule, but a crime prescribed by law against conspiracy and perjury.

More Pay for Spokane Teachers

Spokane, March 13.—Salaries of all the teachers in the public schools of Spokane are to be increased 20 per cent, the decision to make the increase being reached by the board of education at a meeting held last nightt. The increase will take effect next January, the appropriation for this year being insufficient to warrant the increase being effective with the beginning of the next school year.

Business Men on Trip South

WALL STREET SCARED

PRESIDENT PROMISES TO SEE RAILROAD MEN.

Interview Is Arranged by J. P. Morgan---Pointed Out That Railroads and Other Corporations Are Much Alarmed Over Attitude of Administration.

Washington, March 12—J. Pierpont Morgan, of New York, was in conference with President Roosevelt for two hours yesterday. The financier came here at the request of certain business men of New York to discuss the business situation, particularly as affecting the railroads. He asked the president to grant an interview to four railroad presidents, which request was granted. The object of Mr. Morgan's visit was to urge the president to take some action to allay the public anxiety now threatening to obstruct railroad investments and construction.

Mr. Morgan pointed out to the president, it is said, that the financial interests of the country are greatly alarmed at the attitude of the administration toward corporations, and particularly railroads. At Mr. Morgan's earnest request, president Roosevelt has agreed to have a conference with four leading railroad presidents, Messrs. McCrea, of the Pennsylvania; Newman, of the New York Central; Mellen, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, and Hughitt, of the Chicago & Northwestern, to determine if some agreement can be reached as to the relations between the railrods and the administration.

Harriman May Participate

It is probable that E. H. Harriman, head of the Harriman lines, may also participate in the conference, which, it is understood, will take place at the White House within a few days.

After boarding his train shortly after midnight to return to New York, Mr. Morgan dictated to the Associated Press the following statement:

"At the recommendation of many business men, before leaving for Europe, I came to Washington to see the president to discuss the present business situation particularly as affecting the railroads. I suggested to the president that it would be greatly in the public interest if he would see Mr. McCrea, Mr. Mellen, Mr. Newman and Mr. Hughitt and confer with them as to what steps might be taken to allay the public anxiety now threatening to obstruct railroad investments and construction so much needed, and especially to allay the public anxiety as to the relations between the railroads and the government. The president said he would be glad to see the gentlemen named with this end in view.

Hard to Negotiate Loans.

B. F. Yoakum, chairman of the board of directors of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad, who had an interview yesterday with the president and members of the interstate commerce commission regarding the railroad situation, told President Roosevelt that the agitation in various states regarding 2-cent fares and the reduction in freight rates have made it almost impossible to negotiate loans on their securities. He declared that "the railroad men are willing that the supervision of railroads be centralized in the national government."

"That," he added, "would restore confidence and give the people to understand that the railroads wish to observe the laws, and it would stop the hostile legislation in various states."

GREATEST OF RAILROAD BATTLES PREDICTED

New York, March 9.—As a direct result of the interstate commerce commission's investigation, it is reported on Wall street that an action is to be started to compel the Union Pacific to dispose of the Southern Pacific stock and divorce the two corporations entirely.

It is said that the Harriman interests have been tipped off and are preparing to make one of the most desperate fights in railroad history to prevent the execution of the commission's recommendations

Washington, March 9.—Interstate Commissioner Knapp refused to confirm the Wall street report of the suit against Harriman. He said: "I will take testimony April 4, and cannot make a decisive answer before then. I cannot state what the course will then be."

Governor Names Education Board

Olympia,, March 12.—Gov. Mead has reappointed J. W. Shepherd, of Walla Walla; J. A. Tormey, of Spokane; Thomas Stiger, of Everett, and P. A. Williams, of Aerdeen, as membbers of the state board of education, for the term of two years. He also appointed Dr. W. A. Fishburn, of Ellensburg, a member of the state board of dental examiners, succeeding himself. Julius C. Hubbell, of Ellensburg, was named member of the state fair commission, succeeding W. H. Talbot, term expired.

Steffen Visiting Seattle

Sacramento, Cal., March 9.—Lincoln J. Steffen, the celebrated magazine writer, and who is studying corruption in the various cities of the United States, leaves here Monday for Seattle.

LANE SUGGESTS RELIEF

Lumbermen May Ask for Joint Rate By Way of Portland.

Washington, March 9.—Lumbermen in the Puget Sound region have complained to the interstate commerce commission that they have been unable sincee January 2 to obtain transportation of their products to Eastern points because of the inability of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads to handle the traffic. Commissioner Lane, of the interstate commerce commission, has received letters from lumbermen west of the Cascade mountains saying it is impossible for them to get their products to Missouri river points and asking whether the commission cannot afford them some relief.

Commissioner Lane has suggested that they can make formal complaint to the commission requesting it to grant them a through joint rate from the Puget sound region via Portland, Or., over the Northern Pacific, and thence via the Oregon Short Line and Union Pacific to Missouri river points.

The Great Northern and Northern Pacific admit that they cannot carry more than a fourth of the lumber that is offered, but heretofore they have refused to permit the Oregon Short Line or the Union Pacific to make a through route or a joint rate with them.

It is expected that the lumermen will act upon the suggestion of Commissioner Lane.

ROOSETELT TO MEAD ON FOREST RESERVES

Olympia, March 11.—Gov. Mead has made public the following letter which he has received from the president regarding the forest reserves in the state of Washington:

"The White House,
"Washington, March 3, 1907.

"My Dear Gov. Mead: I enclose herewith a copy of a letter from Mr. Gifford Pinchot, chief forester. I call your especial attention to our experience with the Olympic reserve. In this a very large elimination was made some years ago in repsonse to a plea that it was more valuable for agriculture than for timber; but, as a matter of fact, the lands were almost entirely taken up under the timber and stone act, are largely today without settlers, and their extremely valuable timber has passed into the hands of a few timber companies.

"I agree entirely as to the admirable character of our new commissioner of the general land office, Judge Ballinger. During this coming summer I intend to have Secretary Garfield, Commissioner Ballinger and Chief Forester Pinchot go most carefully over the whole forest reserve matter, and, so far as practicable, have them visit personally at least some of the reserves. If it shall appear that any of the reserves we have made, whether recently or of old date, included agricultural land, that land will be restored to entry. But it is surely destructive in the highest degree to the interests of the country and the interests of the state of Washintgon to turn over rich timber land to great syndicates, who skin it and leave it worthless. We wish to use the forests, but to use them in the way that every really civilized people does use them; that is, to preserve them for future generations. In short, we wish to administer the lands so that they will be preserved for the actual home makers and for the children who are to come after them. I am sure, my dear governor, that this is also your purpose, and that no man is better able to put it into effective form than your fellow citizen, Judge Ballinger, of Seattle, whom I have just appointed commissioner of the general land office, and who enters upon his duties tomorrow.

Sincerely yours,
"THEODOER ROOSEVELT.

"Hon. Albert E. Mead, Governor of Washington, Olympia, Wash."

Traffic Men in Conference

Chicago, March 9.—Traffic men from every part of the country west of Chicago are gathered here in conference regarding transcontinental rates. The general situation is being gone over and the result, it is said, will be a large number of changes in the rates and in the minimum weights, which will increase railroad revenues in nearly all the territory. It has already been practically decided to make an increase in minimum weights alllowed in carloads, which will in itself materially increase the revenue from freight cars.

Said N. P. Will Rush Construction

Everett, March 9.—President Elliott, according to information received here, has announced that work on the Olympic peninsula will be rushed this summer. He expects that the Port Ludlow-Port Angeles line will be completed this year, and that before 1908 a car ferry will be running between Everett and Ludlow.

Steel Crucible Plant Rebullt

Aberdeen, March 12.—The Shaw steel crucible plant at Damon, which was completely destroyed by fire last summer, has been rebuilt and is now in operation again. The opportunity for enlarging and improving has been used to good advantage and the foundation for a subtantial industry has been laid.

Last Year's Beet Sugar

Washington, March 9.—Beet sugar from the growth of beets last year aggregated 475,000 tons, according to a report made to Secretary Wilson by C. F. Saylor, field gent for the department of agriculture.

SUGAR TRUST SUED

FORTY MILLIONS ASKED BY PENNSYLVANIA REFINERY.

Complaint Alleges Violation of Sherman Act and Conspiracy to Prevent Plaintiff From Engaging in Sugar Refining Business---Receiver Behind Action.

New York, March 9.—A suit asking for $10,000,000 actual and $30,000,000 tentative damages has been commenced in the United States circuit court by the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company against the American Sugar Refining Company, H. O. Havemeyer, its president, John C. Parsons, the corporation's general counsel, and G. E. Kissel, Walter D. Robinson, George L. Trigg and Morris J. Werner. The action grows out of the failure onf Adolph Segal, in Philadelphia, whose bankruptcy, involving millions, was one of the financial sensations of last year, coupled as it was with the death of Bank President Frank R. Hipple, of Philadelphia. The complaint alleges that the defendants, in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act, conspired to prevent the plaintiff corporation from engaging in the refining of sugar, and actually did succeed in preventing it from operating its plaant. Because of this, it is claimed, the plaintiff suffered an actual monetary loss of $10,000,000. The federal statutes permit the plaintiff to sue for treble damages.

The Allegations

The complaint states that the plaintiff was cpitalized at $5,000,000 and had in December, 1903, erected in Philadelphia a sugar refinery and was ready to begin operations. December 20, 1903, the company alleges, a meeting of the refinery's board of directors was held, at which the defendants, Kissel, Rabinson, Trigg and Werner, who composed a majority of the board, were present. A resolution was adopted, it was claimed, that no proceedings looking toward the commencement of operations should be taken without further orders of the board of directors. Through the complete and absolute control of the board which, it is charged, the defendant directors had, the refinery had been kept closed, and thereby prevented from becoming a competitor of the sugar trust.

Segal Was Decoyed

The complaint alleges that Adolph Segal, promoter of the Philadelphia sugar refinery, was "decoyed" into the power of the "trust" by Gusav R. Kissel, of New York, who procured a loan of $1,250,000 for Segal on condition that Kissel have control of a majority of the stock of the company and be given power to name four of the seven directors. This having been agreed to, Kissel, who, it is said, was acting under the direction of John C. Parsons for the defendant corporation, put four clerks in the banking house and had them adopt the resolution which kept the refinery closed. When Segal finally awakened to the true condition of affairs, it is asserted, he went to Kissel with the amount of the loan and offered him a bonus of $100,000 besides, but Kissel would not receive it. Consequently the new refinery in Philadelphia, which was capable of putting out 4,000 barrels of refined sugar a day, has never turned a wheel, it is declared.

George H. Earle, receiver of the Philadelphia company, it is said, is the moving force behind the action.

RUEF ARRESTED AT SUBURBAN RESORT

San Francisco, March 9.—Abraham Ruef, the indicted boss of San Francisco, was arrested last night at the Trocadero, a well known resort about six miles from the center of the city, by William J. Biggy, who was yesterday afternoon appointed by Judge Dunne as elisor, after the sheriff and coroner had spent two days in a vain hunt for the elusive boss. He was brought to the office of Assistant District Attorney Heney and remained there for nearly three hours, after which he was taken to the St. Francis hotel under guard for the night. Ruef seemed to regard the whole matter as a joke. He has promised to make a statement later.

JOHN ALEXANDER DOWIE DIES AT SHILOH HOUSE

Chicago, March 11.—John Alexander Dowie, founder of Zion City, lately deposed from the leadership of that people, died Saturday at Shiloh House, Zion City. There were present with him at the time of his death only Judge D. N. Barnes and two personal attendants. Dr. Dowie had been in failing health for several months.

Object to Sale of Ferry

Kirkland, Wash., March 12.—A large and enthusiastic meeting, composed of Redmond, Houghton and Juanita citizens, was held here in connection with the regular meeting of the Kirkland Commercial Club, to consider action to prevent the the proposed sale of the Lake Washington ferry by King county. A formal resolution of protest was drawn up for presentation to the county commissioners.

HELPS LAND-OFFICE AFFAIRS

Garfield and Ballinger Will Spend Much Time in West.

Washington, March 12.—Secretary Garfield and Land Commissioner Ballinger expect to spend considerable time in the West during the coming summer familiarizing themselves with the work of the interior deparment. Mr. Garfield feels that he can better acquaint himself with Western conditions and public land affairs by personal observation and conversation with field officers than through official correspondence.

Mr. Ballinger understands the land question in its many ramifications, but he is already convinced that the public land administration can be greatly improved, both in his office here and in outlying offices, and it is probable that as a result of his trip there will be radical reforms in local land offices and in the inspection service in the fields.

SUIT INVOLVES TITLE TO SHORE LANDS OF STATE

Olympia, March 13.—The case of the Brace & Hegbert Mill Company, against the State of Washington, now being argued before the superior court of Thurston county, will settle the question as to whether the state has any right, title or interest to the shore lands of Lake Union and Washington.

John W. Roberts, of Seattle, is appearing, with J. A. Faulknor, for the state. He is representing the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. The law requires that the suit shall be tried in the county that the capitatl is situated in. This action was brought by the mill company to quiet title to land which they have occupied since 1888, situated at the end of Lake Union in the city of Seattle.

In the suit they claim that the state has no title and never did have, to the shore lands of the lake; that the title rests with the owners of the shore lands. This question was raised long before the passage of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific bills, and was pending at the time the bills passed. The suit is expected to settle the question of title to lands valued at over a million dollars.

There is little doubt that the case will be taken to the supreme court whatever the decision of the lower court.

BIG FRENCH BATTLESHIP DESTROYED BY EXPLOSION

Toulon, France, March 13.—The powder magazine on board the French battleship Jena blew up at 1:35 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and as a result Capt. Adigard, commander of the battleship, Capt. Vertier, chief of staff of the Mediterranean squadron, and from 70 to 80 blue jackets are dead, while Rear Admiral Manceron and hundreds of men are suffering from injuries. Naval circles are aghast and the public is stunned by the appalling catastrophe, coming so soon after the loss of the French submarine boat Lutin, in which sixteen were killed.

The entire after part of the Jena was blown to pieces.

The primary cause of the accident was the explosion of a torpedo. What causes the explosion is not known, but the powder magazines of the Jena were set on fire and the results practically destroyed what was considered one of theb est vessels in the French navy.

Homeric City Found in Greece

Berlin, March 12.—The announcement that William Dorpfeld, head of the German archaeological Institute of Athens, has discovered in the island of Ithaca what he believes to be the ruins of a Homeric city, has greatly interested archaeologists. Remnants of the walls and of monochrome decorated earthenware, as well as a number of more laborately ornamented vases, have been discovered. Some distance from the ruins of the city was found a cavern containing evidences of prehistoric inhabitants. Under the convent of St. John, Herr Dorpfeld found a temple with Doric and Ionic columns.

Railroads Fight Nebraska

Omaha, March 9.—In retaliation for adverse legislation, culminating in the passage of the 2-cent per mile passenger fare bill by the Nebraska legislature, all Nebraska railroads, including the Union Pacific, Burlington, Northwestern, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and Great Northern, have issued circulars absolutely abolishing all classes of reduced fares. The circular calls attention to the fact that it is the purpose to make the 2-cent rate the only possible rate to apply on Nebraska passenger fares.

Ruling in Rockefeller Case

St. Louis, March 9.—The Standard Oil Company and John D. Rockefeller must stand trial in this city. Four judges of the United States circuit court sitting on the case decided that the government's ouster suit can be brought to St. Louis for trial regardless of what portion of the country they may have their legal residence. Seventy defendants, including Rockefeller, Rogers and Flagler, must answer.

Moyer Trial to Be Held in April

Boise, Idaho, March 9.—Attorney Hawley, chief prosecutor in the case of the state against Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, said yesterday at Caldwell that the case against the federation officials who are charged with complicity in the assassination of former Gov. Steunenberg, will probably be called for trial about the middle of April.

PE-RU-NA A MEDICAL COMPOUND

In any medical compound as much depends upon the manner in which it is compounded as upon the ingredients used.

First, there must be a due proportion of the ingredients. Each drug in the pharmacopeia has its special action. To combine any drug with other drugs that have slightly different action, the combination must be made with strict reference to the use for which the compound is intended. The drugs may be well selected as to their efficacy, but the compound ENTIRELY SPOILED BY THE PROPORTION in which they are combined.

It takes years and years of experience to discover this proportion. There is no law of chemistry, of pharmacy, by which the exact balance of proportion can be determined. EXPERIENCE IS THE ONLY GUIDE.

In compounding a catarrh remedy Dr. Hartman has had many years' experience. In the use of the various ingredients which compose the catarrh remedy, Peruna, he has learned, little by little, how to harmonize the action of each ingredient, how to combine them into a stable compound, how to arrange them into such nice proportions as to blend the taste, the operation and the chemical peculiarities of each several ingredient in order to produce a pharmaceutical product beyond the criticism of doctors, pharmacists or chemists.

WE REPEAT THAT, AS MUCH DEPENDS ON THE WAY IN WHICH THE DRUGS ARE COMBINED AS DEPENDS UPON THE DRUGS THEMSELVES.

The compound must present a stability which is not affected by changes of temperature, not affected by exposure to the air, not affected by age. It must be so combined that it will remain just the same, whether used in the logging or mining camps of the northwest or the coffee plantations of the tropics.

A complete list of the ingredients of Peruna would not enable any druggist or physician to reproduce Peruna. It is the skill and sagacity by which these ingredients are brought together that give Peruna much of its peculiar claims as an efficacious catarrh remedy.

However much virtue each ingredient of Peruna may possess, the value of the compound depends largely upon the manner and proportion in which they are combined. The right ingredients, put together rightly, is the only way a medical compound can be made of real value.

LIKE THE GOOD OLD DAYS.

Oxen Used as Beasts of Burden by Kansas Farmer.

The use of oxen for pulling plows to break up the prairie sod appears like getting back to first principles, but this is what is being done by one Finney County farmer, George Estes, who lives some miles north of Garden City. Almost any fair day the traveler along the road can see from one to a half-dozen yoke of oxen on this farm hitched to as many plows, plodding patiently across a field, half sod, half furrowed says the Kansas City Star correspondent at Garden City, Kan. A quarter of a century ago it was no unusual thing to see a yoke of oxen pulling a load or hitched to a plow, but the sight is so unusual now that it attracts a great deal of attention.

Last fall Mr. Estes decided to break up a large tract of sod and the question of the cheapest means to be employed in doing the work came up. Steam and gasoline engines were used by some farmers for drawing plows, but these were expensive and require considerable attention. Horses were bringing big prices on the market and mules were not among the samples on the bargain counter.

Enough mules to run the number of plows Mr. Estes wished to use would buy a large farm in the unirrigated part of the county and he considered the investment too heavy. Then the idea of working oxen came to him and the more he thought of the plan the more feasible it seemed. Oxen had been used in breaking the prairie in the early days and he determined to try it again.

He had a local blacksmith make the yokes and a local hardware man secured the bows for them. He has broken some cattle of his herd for the work and the experiment promises to be a success. When he completes the breaking of his sod land he is planning to use the oxen for other work, in which he believes he will find them fully as valuable. One of the uses to which he will put them will be the drawing of the heavy beet wagons in the fall and winter during the beet-slicing season at the sugar factory.

Old-timers in the county say that it has been twenty-three years since oxen have been used as draft animals and the sight of the ox yokes in the blacksmith shop brought forth a number of interesting reminiscences of early-day farming.

Advertising Hint.

"Inventors would get gobs of free advertising if they would give to their inventions names rhyming with some one or other of our rhymeless words," said the fantastic girl.

"Take the word 'silver.' It has no rhyme. It is a stumbling block to every poet. The poet uses it at a line's end, and then has to destroy the line because there is no rhyme for it. Suppose, as he sought frantically, an invention called the 'dilver' appeared. Then, in order not to lose his line, the poet would drag in the new invention, thus giving it an 'ad' worth $5 or $10, an 'ad' like this:

The Moonlit sea, a sea of silver,
As perfect as a perfect dilver.

"Do you catch the idea? Let our inventors exercise their best talent, calling a new aeroplane a 'woif' to rhyme with 'colf,' a new soundless typewriter a 'gorange,' to rhyme with 'orange,' a home ice-making machine a 'kulf,' to rhyme with 'gulf,' and so on."

Itching Palm Oil.

"Palm oil," a synonym for "graft," is not at all a novelty in this sense. In 1627 Middleton wrote that "palm oil will make a pursuivant relent." The sixteenth and seventeenth centuries reveled in varieties of the metaphor. Greene speaks of rubbing palms with "the olle of angels," a humorous allusion to the coin named after the angelic figure stamped upon it, and "oil of angels" seems to have been quite a common joke in England. Another writer has a reference to "anointing" an ecclesiastic in the fist "with Indian oyle." Both "anointing" and "greasing" were frequently used to mean bribing, even without special mention of the hand as the part greased. Dryden has "the greaz'd advocate."

Insurance against the visitations of mothers-in-law would be popular with some men.

A LADY OF FORTUNE.

For many years the sturdy brown hands of Victorine Ducette had been available whenever an extra pair was needed, and the village housewives had learned to depend mightily on the occasional services of the loyal, hard-working French-Canadian. But one day even Victorine failed them, as the doctor's wife discovered when help was needed for the spring cleaning.

"I am ovairwhelm wit' sorry," said Victorine, drawing herself up proudly, "but I mus' riffuse dose job of madame."

"But, Victorine, you always have helped me—and nobody can wash woodwork as beautifully as you can."

"That ees last mont'; ees ees now this mont', madame," returned Victorine, with a comprehensive gesture that relegated her past to the dark ages and likewise called attention to her spotless apron.

"Behol', now I am lady. I 'ave fortune.

"Mon oncle she 'ave proceed to die hon Wisconsin—I ham sole heir of dose oncle.

"Me, I mak no more dose scrub hon de floor, dose wash hon de tub, dose polish hon door-knob, dose houseclean hon top som house. Hall day, w'ile dose money last, me, I ham seet hon top ma front window, keed glove hon ma two hand, an' regard wit' pity dose poor work-peop' w'at go by."

"How much did your uncle leave you, Victorine?"

"Cinquante — feefty dollaire, madame," returned the sole heir, with pride.

"Ah!" returned the doctor's astute wife, hopefully. "Well, perhaps I'd better postpone my spring cleaning until fall."

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

NO LIMIT TO ITS POWERS FOR EVIL

Contagious Blood Poison has brought more suffering, misery and humiliation into the world than all other diseases combined; there is hardly any limit to its powers for evil. It is the blackest and vilest of all disorders, wrecking the lives of those unfortunate enough to contract it and often being transmitted to innocent offspring, a blighting legacy of suffering and shame. So highly contagious is the trouble that innocent persons may contract it by using the same table ware, toilet articles or clothing of one in whose blood the treacherous virus has taken root. Not only is it a powerful poison but a very deceptive one. Only those who have learned by bitter experience know by the little sore or ulcer, which usually makes its appearance first, of the suffering which is to follow. It comes in the form of ulcerated mouth and throat, unsightly copper colored spots, swollen glands in the groin, falling hair, offensive sores and ulcers on the body, and in severe cases the finger nails drop off, the bones become diseased, the nervous system is shattered and the sufferer becomes an object of pity to his fellow man. Especially is the treacherous nature of Contagious Blood Poison, shown when the infected person endeavors to combat the poison with mercury and potash. These minerals will drive away all outward symptoms of the troubles for a while, and the victim is deceived into the belief that he is cured. When, however, the treatment is left off he finds that the poison has only been driven deeper into the blood and the disease reappears, and usually in worse form because these strong minerals have not only failed to remove the virus from the blood but have weakened the entire system because of their destructive action. S. S. S. is she only real and certain cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It is made of a combination of healing blood-purifying roots, herbs and barks, the best in Nature's great laboratory of forest and field. We offer a reward of $1,000 for proof that S. S. S. contains a particle of mineral in any form. S. S. S. goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and by cleansing the blood of every particle of the virus and adding rich, healthful qualities to this vital fluid, forever cures this powerful disorder. So thoroughly does S. S. S. cleanse the circulation that no signs of the disease are ever seen again, and offspring is protected.

One of the Important Duties of Physicians and the Well-Informed of the World is to learn as to the relative standing and reliability of the leading manufacturers of medicinal agents, as the most eminent physicians are the most careful as to the uniform quality and perfect purity of remedies prescribed by them, and it is well known to physicians and the Well-Informed generally that the California Fig Syrup Co., by reason of its correct methods and perfect equipment and the ethical character of its product has attained to the high standing in scientific and commercial circles which is accorded to successful and reliable houses only, and, therefore, that the name of the Company has become a guarantee of the excellence of its remedy.

TRUTH AND QUALITY

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing, therefore we wish to call the attention of all who would enjoy good health, with its blessings, to the fact that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and the use of medicines dispensed with generally to great advantage, but as in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time, the California Fig Syrup Co. feels that it is alike important to present truthfully the subject and to supply the one perfect laxative remedy which has won the approval of physicians and the world-wide acceptance of the Well-Informed because of the excellence of the combination, known to all, and the original method of manufacture, which is known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtlessly it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. and the same heretofore known by the name—Syrup of Figs—which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., that the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

EVER PLAY POKER, KID?

TEN YEAR OLD BOY TO TORTURE YOU TO DEATH

The Girls (Kanaka) Will Love You, So Stay With Me. Si, Senor, Stay With Me.

"We're peaceable, law 'bidin' men, an' ever' dam — — — what ever come hyar pryin' roun' has stayed. * * I didn't want ter shoot 'im, so I jis' mashed 'is head; an' left 'im by th' side o' th' wagon; but will give yer carcass a decent burial. Ye see, we allus hold th' funeral services afore th' grave 's dug. Kin ye sing base? * * he gave the rope a jerk that nearly lifted me off my feet. * Now we're goin' to sing, an' ye'll jine in er up ye go 't th' end o' th' first verse."

"Nearer my God to —"

"He dropped the rope, threw up his hands and fell forward. Peg dropped beside him. Pete turned to run, uttered an oath and fell beside an old sod corral. I had thrown the rope from my neck, grabbed my six shooter from Sim," etc., etc.—Pages 25-26.

Wats dis stuff yer readin? Dime novel literachure? Bill the Ba-ad Man? Nope, wors'n that! But its too interesting to stop for explanations—here's some more:

Page 34.—"Gripping his six shooter * kin go 't hell ef ye want 't, * all went at poker and three card monte, * would peep and make signs to the other players. Then at times he would slip cards. Well, the other players would fill, I would flush, and you know the rest."

Sunday school leaflet? Nope—human interest story, safe bet that a sleepy boy will sit up and take notice by the time you've read half a paragraph—any paragraph in the book! Split a half cord of wood and walk three miles next day to hear the next chapter. Couldn't keep him home unless you spiked him to the barn door.

But, just by way of variety, here's an original poetical effusion: (The author, by the way, distinctly states he, or she—for he or she is ashamed to publish his or her name— reserves rights of recitation.)

"I left the parlor early,
I think 'twas scarcely nine,
When by some lucky fortune"

Continued next week, we don't think.

"Poured cold lead into them (Indians) as fast as we could pull trigger. * Wolves were coming closer and closer, and it would not do to shoot them, lest the Indians might again find us. * ran to the spot where the body had lain, and fought and howled, as they smelled the blood * I will go over there and see what that buzzard has found."

One of Henty's books for boys? Henty, in his brightest hours, couldn't write a story of such absorbing interest. Besides he wouldn't be fool enough, if he could. Book of 245 pages, finely printed and attractively bound. Indian riding pony on run, and shooting, on cover. Similar extracts can be taken from each and every page—no prosaic description, no flights of fancy, just the hot stuff. Besides, its not all for boys. Read this:

"They drove down behind a little sand bank, stopped old Selam at the edge of the water and hung their clothes—not on a hickory limb, but on the buggy. (Exit the horse, later returning with a ranch hand in charge.) They were down behind the river bank, which was about two feet high at that point, and Speck had driven up to within about thirty of them. (Book is not illustrated—text don't need it.) Go back there, you speckled faced Dutchman. How dare you sir, said Mrs. Chump. Come on Speck, called Mrs. Clark, we have to have our clothes. Oh, if he were a blind man, or if it were dark, we might get out of here. (Etc., etc.) When all had yelled themselves hoarse, Speck asked: Now vhat you vant, I dunno. Ven you say go pack, und I shtart, you call me some more, aind it? Ven I come close by, you say go away. * Ven you vant some pettico'ts und vat you call him, you will find him mit der grass. * *"—Pages 71 and 72.

Taken from a story by Louise Alcott? Louise Alcott, one of the cleanest and best writers for girls? Well, hardly! If it were, Louise Alcott's works couldn't enter our house, could they yours? Here is another in a slightly different vein, from page 75:

"Promptly at the given time the deacon opened the services by singing, 'Jesus Is Calling to Me,' and then prayed till out of breath, and words too. Next came the text, which he read as follows: 'His substance also was seven thousand sheep three thousand * * and five hundred she asses, and I may be one of this last herd.' 'Amen,' shouted the Major, 'A great truth has been spoken.' 'Now my dear friends, that's Gawd's own language, just as recorded in my own bible. * * 'Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean?' Not me. And damned if I don't believe that. Its Gawd's own language," etc., etc.

Possibly you may think you're reading extracts from a Sunday school library volume, but you're wrong again. At least we never had the pleasure. You may think these extracts are put together in such a way as to make them appear worse than they really are. On the contrary, we've cut out rather too much to give the proper effect.

A few random extracts, pages 75 to 245, given just to show the general style:

"Don't bet too much on one pair; there's a heap uv other cyards in th' deck."

"I took a pull at his bottle that would have done credit to a Kentucky colonel, but the general went me one better."

"You see, I joined the Shriners not long ago. They taught me to hang onto the rope, and I haven't let go of anything since . . . illustrate strong grip he had on the bottle."

"The dead lay in heaps, but not a live Indian could be found. . . . Harmless be damned." Fully a thousand Indians killed in the book. And its a love story, too, in which the heroine also has thrilling experiences: "Stop or I'll kill you instantly, said she, pointing her six shooter straight at his breast."

"Deacon, I've got a r'ligis fit, an' ye'll hev t' take me out an' pray f'r me. (Two pages follow, cribbed from The Virginian.) Ye see, he owes me about fifty dollars, an' he allus says he'll pay me in prayers, . . thought this 'ould be a good time t' pay th' interest."

"Snake's head sticking out of his bosom. . . Haint got a damn cent 'bout 'im; but we've plugged 'im good and plenty."

"Ye might as well try t' fatten yer hoss by feedin' him on his tail."

Chapter 14 tells of a lieutenant and soldiers attempting to make an arrest, of being successfully resisted by one man with a winchester, soldiers induced to desert, lieutenant sent off in an old hack. Very patriotic—possibly suitable for flag day exercises?

"Tomato Charley writes from Honolulu: What ye heared 'bout th' islan's is all true. Th' wine o' th' banana 'll make ye glad, and th' wimmen 'll love ye, which is nothin agin th country, I reckon. —Page 244.

Surprised to read such stuff in your local paper? We humbly apologize. Don't care to take such a sheet home to your family? Neither do we. Not particularly elevating for the children? Irreligious? Bad moral influence? Cut it out. That's your privilege. But it is not your privilege to protect your children from its immoral effect, if they chanced to be pupils in a certain grade in your city schools, for they have already heard it read.

These are not specially selected extracts. There are a thousand like them. Why do we publish this at this time? Because its just been read, just finished, and we have just been able to get the book. Because we believe our people should know, and thus be able to judge for themselves, of the character of reading which is entering into their children's education.

Will some one kindly loan us a copy of "Tecumsah's Braves," if there be more than one volume in the town?

The funeral of John Bone, who died Monday at his home on west Second street, was held at McKee & LaFlowers chapel Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Edwards officiating. Mr. Bone was born in Montezuma, Iowa, in 1849, and came to Washington in 1883. He was a locomotive engineer, but was more recently engaged in the fishing business at Coupeville. He leaves a wife, four daughters, and a brother, who came from Prosser to attend the funeral.

NOTICE.

I have bought the Wilder ranch, on the Burlingame road — brick house, you can't miss it — and that will be my home and place of business in the future. I am prepared to do watch repairing and do it in a first class manner and guarantee to give satisfaction. Jewelry repaired, engraving monograms, initials, etc. Can save you money when you want to buy a watch or anything else in the jewelry line. Yours truly,

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

SAID TO BE PLENTY HIGH

Squatters on Ten Acre Blocks May Now Learn Appraised Value.

Department of the Interior,
General Land Office,
Washington, D. C., March 16, '07.

Mr. Lawrence E. Doyle,
Port Angeles, Wash.

Sir: I am in receipt, through the Department, of your letter of Feb. 26, 1907, in response to which I have to inform you that it would consume too much of the time of the clerks of this office to furnish you with the valuation of each suburban lot recently reappraised, but if you will designate any particular lot or two which you may desire to know the valuation of, I will upon being informed thereof, give you the desired information relative to such lot or lots.

Very respectfully,
G. F. POLLOCK,
Asst. Com.

Mr. Doyle says that he has been informed by a representative of the Seattle land office that no attention will be paid to applications for purchase unless, or until, $50 worth of work has been done.

Warren Howard Allen.

Warren Howard Allen, the seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Allen, died Sunday evening at 7:30, of spinal meningitis, having been ill but four days. Funeral services were held Tuesday at the Methodist church, by Rev. C. E. Fulmer, being largely attended by friends of the bereaved parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Chase Garfield of Tacoma and Miss Garfield of Seattle, son and daughter of Mrs. Allen, and her brother, Mr. Cline, of Dungeness, and sisters, Mrs. Bartlett and Cline of Port Townsend were here to attend the funeral.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen wish to thank the friends who gave kind assistance and comfort during the sickness and at the time of the funeral of their little son.

SEGUIN NOTES.

We are still enjoying the fine spring weather, and the farmers are busy getting in their crops. In fact, every one is busy in Seguin; there are no drones in our colony.

Mrs. Pilcher has the lumber on the ground for a new hotel.

Armore and Walter Myers are erecting a livery and feed stable on Main street.

Ede Ellis bought two lots in the first plat of Seguin Sunday last, and says he will build on them both at once.

Thomas Quinn has purchased a tract of five acres of C. J. Farmer.

O. B. Hart has sold his twenty acre lot on the prairie to Mr. L. Sands who will take possession May 1st; consideration was $2500.

James Riley, Joe Priest, Hugh Priest, J. L. Keeler, George Priest, and the Seguin Manufacturing and Lighting Co., each purchased five acre lots of Mr. Leavy the past week.

W. T. Bowman and I. A. Van Antroyes are putting up the brick furnace for the Seguin M. & L. Co.

All the residents of Seguin will appreciate the good work being done by the county road crew.

E. C. Graves and H. M. Richardson, electricians, have spent the last few days installing a new switch board for the Independent Tel. Co., which is a great improvement to the office. It is a Dean Special with self-restoring drops, night alarm, and all modern code equipments, wired for two hundred subscribers, making it possible to have single party lines if necessary. All of which will be in working order in the near future. Manager J. L. Keeler says he will now be able to give his subscribers the long promised good service.

There will be two girls employed, which will give service from 6:30 a. m. to 9:30 p. m. Night calls ten cents extra, except for physicians.

POEMS WE ALL REMEMBER.

"BEAUTIFUL SNOW."

On to the woodshed, miles away,
After some coal for an icy day;
It's a pity there aren't enough words I know
To express what I think of the beautiful snow.
Oh, the snow, the beautiful snow,
Will be the death of me yet, I know!
Digging a path with wild vehemence,
Pasted by snowballs from over the fence,
Freezing, swearing,
Cursing the luck.

WEALTH OF THE SOUTH.

Remarkable Increase in Riches During Last Twenty-five Years.

Last year the South, which is less than 15 per cent of the area of the United States proper, contributed more than 25 per cent of the country's export trade. Cotton was the largest single item, but there was not a staple in the long list of exports in which the South did not have fair representation, not only in raw materials, but in manufactured goods.

The commercial growth of the South in the last twenty-five years has been little short of phenomenal. The figures for it, given herewith, are taken by the Southern Field from a speech delivered in Congress on June 20, 1906, by Representative Joseph T. Johnson, of South Carolina.

From $257,000,000 invested in capital for factories in 1880 to $1,500,000,000 in 1905.

From $457,000,000 yearly value of products of factories in $1,750,000,000.

From $21,000,000 capital invested in cotton mills to $225,000,000.

From $313,000,000 annual value of cotton crop to $680,000,000.

From 225,000 bales of cotton used in Southern cotton mills to 2,163,000.

From $39,000,000 yearly lumber product to $250,000,000.

From 397,000 tons of pig iron produced to 3,100,000 tons.

From $261,000,000 yearly value of exuorts abroad to $555,000,000.

From $660,000,000 yearly value of farm products to $1,750,000,000.

From 20,600 miles of railroad to 60,000 miles.

From 170,000 barrels of petroleum produced to 42,495,000.

From 45 cotton oil mills to 780.

From $800,000 capital invested in cotton oil mills to $54,600,000.

From 667,000 spindles in cotton mills to 9,205,000.

From 211,377 tons of phosphate mined yearly to 1,087,428.

From 397,776 tons of coke produced yearly to 6,244,185.

From $3,051,000,000 assessed property valuation to $6,679,000,000.

Virtues in Various Gems.

There is hardly a precious stone that has not some superstition connected with it. The Neapolitans will wear amulets of coral to avert the evil eye, and perhaps some will remember wearing a string of amber beads about their necks during their childhood to ward off sore throats. A piece of agate worn on the person is supposed to be an infallible guard against lightning and some persons have asserted that it was a cure for thirst—what kind they did not mention.

The beryl was by the ancients supposed to be a sure cure for leprosy and to promote happiness between man and wife. Turquoise is said to be a protection against falls and sudden injuries. The topaz was highly prized by the ancients, who believed that it had magical powers of dispelling enchantments and calming frenzy.

The sapphire was believed by the ancients to be emblematic of chastity. The pagans dedicated it to Apollo. The green emerald is held in highest esteem by the Peruvians and the worshipers of Mantu still believe that the mines whence are extracted all emeralds are guarded by terrible genii and dragons.

Perhaps more superstition attaches itself to the opal nowadays than to any other stone. On the contrary, the ancients considered that this fiery gem had the power of rendering its owner lovable and also of bestowing on him the gift of invisibility.

SAHARA DESERT.

A Sun-Baked Region of Desolation and Ever Shifting Sands.

In the event that it becomes necessary for France to intervene in the affairs of Morocco, in the interests of international order, the scene of her first operations will be in the desert region where the French colony of Algiers and the country of the Moors join. French troops are now posted in that region and a more dismal setting for military operations it would be difficult to find. Under the name of the Algerian Sahara the great desert of Sahara extends into Algeria, along the southern base of the Atlas mountains and closely approaches the Mediterranean west of the Gulf of Cabes. The immensity of this great barren region can scarcely be realized. The Sahara desert embraces some 3,290,000 square miles and presents an alternation of immense burning wastes of loose and moving sand, with tracts of barren rock, stony plains of gravel and elevated and rocky plateaus rising into mountains, with extensive valleys and expanses of sand between. Some of the valleys are depressed below the level of the ocean. Under the influences of meteorological conditions operating for centuries the particles composing the sandstone and other rocks are disintegrated and these particles carried away by the mighty wind that sweeps the soil, wander afar until they come to a standstill in the hollows. Such is the origin of the extensive sandy tracts of which the accompanying illustration gives a good idea. In these belts or strips the sand halting against the smallest obstacles accumulates around them and generally the downs thus created assume the form of the waves of the sea, their fall and motion being with the direction of the prevailing wind.

Rain is utterly unknown except in the oases and on the mountains, where it sometimes falls with such violence as to produce torrents that suddenly pour down into the valleys and almost as suddenly disappear beneath the sands. These rains fall at long intervals, 9, 12 and even 20 years intervening between them. Notwithstanding the obstacles of the desert, it is constantly crossed on various routes by caravans of traders and many nomadic Arabs make it their home. The camel is the chief beast of burden and were it not for this "ship of the desert" the burning wastes would be impassable for man.

Along these caravan routes oases are found in places where underground sources of water exist. Vegetation flourishes in these restricted areas and date palms, affording a grateful shade, thrive. Of late strange sights to the natives have been seen along some of these caravan routes. Modernism has invaded them. Daring tourists have run their automobiles, to the consternation of the Arabs, into the oases which never before witnessed other means of locomotion except that furnished by the camels. A strange contrast indeed it must be to see the motor car of civilization whirling along routes where for centuries the four-legged "ship of the desert" stood without a compeer. But so it is. Civilization is forcing its way into every nook of the world. But while it may thus lend a picturesque aspect to desert locomotion, it will never change the essentials of the great waste, whose shifting sands are forever in motion like the billows of the troubled sea.

Odd Habits of Pheasants.

There is some curiosity as to how many English pheasants will be raised in Kansas this year. The average number of birds raised by each pair of parent birds is sixty. With 2,000 in the State this would mean about 7,000,000 birds in two years. The woods and fields would be overrun with them at this rate. However, there are many foes of the birds and they are killed every year in great numbers. The sleetstorms are particularly hard on them, as the water freezes on their long plumage and they are unable either to fly or run fast. When in this condition they are easy prey to dogs and wolves.

One of the queerest habits the birds have is to migrate in the late winter thirty-five miles. It is claimed that the birds always migrate exactly thirty-five miles and always to the south. The young never stay where they were hatched, but make this move as soon as they are large enough. Naturalists have never been able to explain this. The only theory advanced is that the birds know if they stay where they were hatched the country would soon be overstocked with them.—Kansas City Journal.

WOMEN AND FASHION

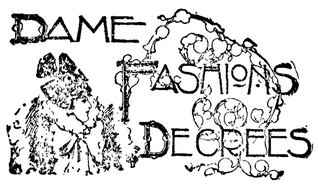
Better Than Money.

Ought a woman to work for money if she has enough for her needs? The question has been asked hundreds of times in the last twenty-five years. Perhaps there is no positive, general, satisfactory answer to it; for the circumstances which lead to it are various, and the women whom it concerns are so different in temperament and ability that no verdict will fit all cases.

But one answer at least may be made which is of universal application. The more clearly women see the conditions of modern life the less will they wish to work for money, and the more will they covet the other rewards which are better worth seeking. To be a doctor, nurse or teacher is noble, but not more so than to undertake other and unpaid tasks that are necessary for the welfare of the world.

The cure and care of the sick are far heavier than need be if mothers and children were shown by friendly talk and example how to keep well. Carefully planned amusement for young girls and boys is an invaluable supplement to the work of the school. The cheer of neighborliness cannot be bought for dollars and cents, but it helps make life worth living in many a home where without it poverty or perplexity would weight heavy on hand and heart.

The great man of science who declared, "I have not time to make money," gave a fit motto to those women who are eager to help with the social and economic problems of their time. Schools for social workers and a constantly increasing mass of the literature of neighborliness testify to the desire of women to labor for the highest ends, and to do their work not with the awkwardness and waste of the amateur, but with the skill of the trained hand and the wisdom of the trained mind.—Youths' Companion.



Leaf designs in embroideries are very new and striking among the spring importations.

Some of the new white cloths are so silky that they resemble crepe de chine in texture.

The long used checks have cropped out again in suitings and certain of the silks, notably the foulards.

Many of the new tailor-mades ready for southern wear show the popular hip-length coat and the jaunty little eton.

Satin stripes and bars on silk and wool grounds are especially prevalent among the voiles and other sheer clinging fabrics.

Stripes and cross-barred effects are as much in favor as ever. Checks, dots and spots are also numerous in the best classes of fabrics.

Gray and white striped marquisette is among the new showings of spring dress material. It is delightful in its sheer, silky beauty.

New plaids in ginghams are charming, nor are the tartans the only varieties. Sizes vary from a quite large pattern down to the smallest of checks.

Mechlin lace, both in flounces or as an overdress, seems to go exceptionally well with these same oriental satins of which many evening dresses are made this winter.

The rough pongees have come back with re-enforcements. Heretofore the majority of them have been plain, but this season they are plaided, blocked, striped and cross-barred.

Suggests Taxing Old Maids.

The editor of the North American Review, who recently declared the American girl to be a bore, had the following to say about old maids:

"There was never yet a woman who could not marry, as she should, if she would. It is only necessary to be a woman to win a man—some man.

"Spinsterhood is a purely voluntary condition, due to reprehensible contrariness, as is clearly proved by the nonexistence of a single authentic claim to exemption because of lack of opportunity.

"The real point at issue is whether the old maid of the present day renders a fair equivalent, or even tries to do so, in one way or another, for what she receives, and to that our answer is decisively negative. It is a sad state of affairs, to which we have given much unavailing thought. As a last resort in search of a method of reformation, the ubiquitary remedy of taxation occurs to our mind as the only one holding forth hope of effectiveness."

In the Sick Room.

In cases where a sick person is always obliged to lie on the back great comfort will ensue if an old cardboard hat box is used to raise the bed clothes off the feet, as the entire weight of the sheet and blankets, if drawn tightly across the toes becomes very painful in time. Additional relief can often be given by inserting a short bolster or a pillow under the knees, this contrivance doing much to prevent the patient from slipping down in the bed.

There's a new kind of creeping blanket. It is a big stretch of deep cream-colored blanket material of a firm consistency, so that it lies on the floor as flat as a rug.

It is embroidered with a scattering of animals and birds in bold outline and gay color. No relation of sizes is regarded by the blanket designer.

Birds, elephants, tigers, butterflies, are drawn in any scale. They are placed at generous distances apart to invite a creep from the baby from one to the other. A center space is left free for the baby's name in easy-flowing script.

Gay-colored worsteds are used for the embroidery. Animals and birds should be worked in the brightly contrasting colors that endear toys to babies' hearts. The worsteds are all fast colors, for, of course, the creeping blanket needs many cleanings.

The delight that babies take in these blankets justifies their invention. They pat and rub at the vivid-hued animals with absorbed interest or crows of glee.

"The creeping blanket has saved me no end of effort," says a young mother. "It always delights my baby and keeps him busy for an hour at a time. I can get a deal of mending or reading done while he is patting and scolding his embroidered pets."

A lining of some smooth, dust-repelling material should be basted under the blanket. This lining is removed when the blanket is cleansed or washed.

Home-Made China Cement.

A good china cement may be made at home of ground glass and the white of an egg. A piece of flint glass should be ground to a fine powder in a mortar or on a flat piece of stone. The white of the egg should then be whipped to a light froth—but not too stiffly—and sufficiently mixed with the glass to make a paste.

To Relieve Fatigue.

A simple and homely cure after a day of excessive fatigue, especially when the business of shopping or sightseeing has brought on a nervous headache in addition to a feeling of lassitude, is to hold the feet in mustard and water for the space of ten or fifteen minutes, this having the effect of drawing the blood away from the brain, and, in fact, resting the entire body. The "fresh air" method is likewise exceedingly popular among many women, and has been found most efficacious. This consists in resting with the feet up for twenty minutes or half an hour beside the open window, taking deep inhalations through the nostrils from time to time, and expelling the breath slowly and evenly.

Sacrifices of Hindoo Women.

Hindoo women, taught that their religious duty is to destroy their own lives on the death of their husbands, if possible, or failing that, to live through the rest of their days, after they are widowed, in uttermost misery and degradation, believe it to be a sacred obligation, and patiently endure all that is demanded of them.

The British government long ago declared the burning of a living widow on her husband's funeral pyre to be murder on the part of all accessory to the act; yet still many of the poor women desire, as a pious act, to commit suicide in the torturing flames. A remarkable case has just been reported from Nepaul in a Hindoo journal, showing that the native women still do not revolt against the time-honored sacrifice demanded of them.

An elderly woman announced her intention to immolate herself on her husband's funeral pyre, and was at once honored for it and visited by all her relatives and acquaintances. The pyre was made, and 15,000 people assembled by it; but at the last moment the government officials intervened and prevented the burning of the live woman. She had already distributed all her large possessions, and left herself penniless. She then went back sadly to her home, lay down, and refused all food, dying of sheer starvation nine days after her previous sacrifice had been prevented.

Velvet.

Pale blue velvet was used for the toque shown in the sketch, the trimming consisting of a large pinkish lavender rose with foliage, and a cache peigne of tulle to match the velvet. The model would also be good in black velvet, with an American Beauty rose and black tulle, or in various other combinations to match the costume for which the hat is designed.

THREE FASHIONS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

The little girl standing on the left has a frock of tan cashmere, trimmed with black velvet ribbons, with square lace medallions cut in half and used as revers on the waist and trimming on the skirt.

The boy on the floor wears a suit of blue and white striped flannel, with the stripes on the yoke, cuffs and belt running in a crosswise direction. The girl has a very pretty dress of gray lightweight cheviot, trimmed with bands of bright plaid with a frill of ecru tan falling across the front.

The material of the miss' dress is dark garnet, trimmed with striped silk in reddish tan and white and black soutache.

NICARAGUA VICTOR

HONDURAN ARMY DEFEATED AND BONILLA IN FLIGHT.

To All Intents and Purposes Central American War Has Ended, But Dream of Empire May Be Crushed By Mexico and United States.

City of Mexico, March 25.—It now looks as though the contemplated intervention by the United States and Mexico to end the war in Central America had been delayed too long. To all intents and purposes the war is ended.

Defeated, his army routed or prisoners, his munitions of war in the hands of the enemy, President Bonilla, of Honduras, has abandoned the conflict and fled from his country by sail. Warships of the Nicaraguan government are pursuing him and it is believed he will be captured. It is expected that guerilla warfare may be kept up for some time against the invaders, but there is nothing in the way of an organized army between President Zelaya and the Honduran capital and nothing to prevent his entering the city whenever he desires.

Will Invade Salvador

Whether he will continue his triumphal march to the capital of Salvador remains to be seen, but as he has expressed his intention of organiizng all Central American republics into a single large country, it is believed he will follow this course.

The brilliant campaign which has resulted in the total discomfiture of Nicaragua's enemies has been one of the most notable in the history of Central or South America.

Almost within a week of the time he set foot on foreign soil the invader has the entire country at his mercy.

Crush Dream of Empire

It is believed here that Mexico and the United States will act to prevent his dream of empire reaching fulfillment, but as there is believed to have been no depredations committed by his soldiers upon either foreign residents or foreign property, it is not known upon what grounds interference will be based.

It might almost seem that Zelaya, knowing that plans were on foot to end the war, even if it became necessary to employ force to do so, hastened his operations with all possible speed and succeeded in defeating the object of the American and Mexican nations.

Tegucigalpa Captured

Washington, March 26. — Senor Corea, the Nicaraguan minister, has received a dispatch from President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, announcing the capture and occupation of Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras. Only the bare announcement of the capture was received.

SCHIFF PROPOSES A RAILROAD CONFERENCE

New York, March 27.—Jacob H. Schiff, head of the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co, said in an interview which appears in the Times, that the fear that something exceptionally distressing will happen to the railroads in the way of legislations is more accountable for the present state of affairs in the stock market than the money market is. Mr. Schiff continued:

"The real problem seems to me to be in the railroad situation. I have thought it over carefully, trying to keep in mind the point of view both of the railroads and the government, and it appears to me that a possible solution is to be found in the adoption of a plan the main features of which shall be these:

"First, the appointment by the railroads themselves of a certain number of representative railroad men conversant with that side of the matter, who should go into convention or conference with the members of the interstate commerce commission, that body, of course, representing the government.

"In this conference could be a fair and frank discussion of all proposals for railroad legislation of every kind, and it ought to be possible for such a body of men to agree upon a planform legislation which would receive the sanction of the president, of the people generally and of stockholders in railroads This could be made the basis of legislation by congress and it would be of such a thorough nature as would make it unneccessary for individual states to do more than follow the lines laid down here."

Probe for Hill Lines Next.

Washington, March 22.—Preliminary examination into the doings of the Hill system of railroads has convinced the interstate commerce commission that the light of day on them will be beneficial to the business interests of the country. It was stated officially at the offices of the commission that the commission would thoroughly examine the Hill lines, the investigation being similar to the one of the Harriman lines now progressing. Special attorneys are now gatheTring data

Washinngton, March 23 —A. L. Lawshe, of Indiana, has been sworn in as third assistant postmaster general, succeeding Edwin C. Madden, resigned.

WOULD ABOLISH RED TAPE

Garfield Will Try to Adopt Business Methods in Interior Department.

Washington, March 26.—Secretary Garfield is organizing the interior department with a view to facilitating public business and eliminating red tape. He is transforming an obsolete governmental machine into one of modern business methods and doing away with fully one third of the labor required under the old regime.

Beginning Monday Mr. Garfield will abolish the public lands and Indian territory divisions of the interior department, divisions which heretofore handled all business coming to the secretary from the general land office and Indian office. Their functions were superfluous and had no good effect. On the contrary, these divisions made unnecessary work and delay, and were largely responsible for friction and trouble between Secretary Hitchcock and the one hand and the land and Indian offices on the other.

J. A. Parker, former chief of the lands division, who has a thorough knowledge of department methods, is to be made Mr. Garfield's private secretary, but will not participate in the formulation of departmental policy. Clerks of his and other divisions will be absorbed by the land and Indian offices. These reforms were recommended by the Keep commission, of which Mr. Garfield was a member. The president heartily approves the change and looks for great improvement in the department in consequence, especially as the changes bring the new secretary in close personal touch with the chiefs of all bureaus of his department and obliterates the bothersome intermediary.

MAMMOTH LINERS FOR PACIFIC TRADE

Seattle, March 23.—The Daily Star Says:

The Canadian Pacific Steamship Company will transfer within a year to their Pacific run their magnificent ocean liners, the Empress of Britain and the Empress of Ireland, which are now running from Montreal to Liverpool.

This announcement, coming from New York, was confirmed by local offfials of the steamship company. The addition of these new boats to the Orient run will make the Pacific service the best it has ever been.

To supply the place of these liners the company is making arrangements to build two new boats for the Atlantic run. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the company, has gone to London to see about the letting of contracts for the boats, which will be constructed in Liverpool.

The Empress of Britain and the Empress of India cost two million dollars apiece and are of 14,500 tonnage, and were put on the Atlantic service last May. The boats will each accommodate 350 first cabin passengers, the same number of second class and 1,000 third class.

SAYS FEDERAL COURT HAS NO JURISDICTION

Washington, March 22.—The supreme court of the United States has reversed the decision of the United States cricuit court for the Western district of Washington in the case of Sheriff Urquhart, of Lewis county, against Thomas Brown. Brown was tried on a charge of murder but acquitted on a plea of insanity. Brown however, was kept in custody under orders of the court. He appealed to the state supreme court and failing to secure redress there took the matter before the United States district court, which granted him a writ of habeas corpus. After that the sheriff of Lewis county took the matter before the supreme court of the United States.

The opinion was by Justice Harlan, who said that the case was not one warranting interference by the federal circuit court.

Frederick Driscoll Dead

Chicago, March 26—Frederick Driscoll, commissioner of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, and widely known as a newspaper man, passed away here after a brief illness. Mr. Driscoll founded the St. Paul Pioneer Press, was chairman of the Republican state central committee of Minnesota for several years, and in 1891 was elected a director of the Associated Press, being a member of the executive committee which directed the management of the association. He had lived for six years in Chicago.

Food Comission to Meet

Pullman, March 23.—Prof. Elton Fulmer, at the head of the state college department of chemistry, haf just been advised by the secretary os agriculture that in the near future a meetinng of the national commission on food standards will be held at Washington, D. C. Prof. Fulmer is a member of the commission and is daily expecting instructions to proceed to Washington to attend the meeting.

Churches Effect Union

Chicago, March 23.— An act of union by which the Congregational, United Brethren and Methodist Protestant churches of fourteen states are fused into one religious organization, to be knoewn as the United churches, has been consummated here by a general conference of delegates from the churches.

STATE SHORE LANDS

SUPREME COURT DECIDES CASE OF IMPORTANCE.

Holds that State Is the Owner of Shore Lands, Which It Received From the Federal Government Upon Assuming Statehood. Settles Fair Appropriation.

Olympia, March 23.—The supreme court has decided that the state owns the shore lands of Lakes Union and Washington in Seattle, having received title upon statehood. This settles the validity of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition million dollar appropriation from the proceeds of the sale of such lands.

Some question had been raised as to the title of the state to such lands by upland owners, who claimed title to deep water.

Seattle Bonds Legal

Seattle, March 23.—Seattle's $600,000 lighting bond issue, purchased by the state some little time ago, has been declared by the supreme court to be legal. The decision affects not only the light bond issue, but the park bnod issue as well.

BIG SENSATION COMING IN LAND FRAUD CASES

Omaha, Neb., March 27.—Special Assistant Attorney General S. R. Russ, who, with Assistant Attorney General Burch, will have charge of the mineral land fraud investigations and prosecutions in Colorado and Wyoming, are busily engaged in drawing up their plans of work.

"While we cannot now name the men who will be caught in this net, there will be big fish," said an official connected with this work. "I can tell you the recent prosecutions in Nebraska which caught such men as Bartlett Richards and W. G. Comstock, the two biggest men of the state, will be mere child's play as compared with the upheaval in Colorado and Wyoming.

"When the names of the defendants are known it will shake the West with sensation. There will be no let up. Attorney General Bonaparte personally is determined that this shall be the most sweeping and thorough of all these land investiagtions. With the president, he is hopeful of putting an end to such frauds this time."

RAILROAD TAXATION

Law Passed by Nebraska Legislature After Hard Fight.

Omaha, Neb., March 27.—The passage by the Nebraska legislature yesterday of the bill for the taxation of railroad property in cities and villages for local purposes on the same basis as other property is taxed, marks the end of a fight which began in the legislature in 1901 and has been waged with bitter spirit in every succeeding session. It was inaugurated by the late Edward Rosewater, editor of the Omaha Bee.

The bill will increase the annual taxation of railroads in Nebraska more than $500,000 on present property, to say nothing of vast improvements being made. Between $100,000 and $125,000 will go into the city treasury of Omaha. Heretofore railroads in Nebraska have been taxed on their track mileage only, shops, stations and other terminal properties almost entirely escaping taxation.

The bill provides that the franchise value of the roads shall be included in the property subject to this tax, except that the valuations shall be distributed through the state, instead of taxed in the bulk in the local community, as is done with tangible property.

The governor will sign the bill, as he has been one of its staunchest advocates.

DOUMA IS WARNED NOT TO PLAY WITH FIRE

St. Pteersburg, March 22.—The remarks of memberss of the douma were devoted largely to mutual recrimination.

The feature of the day was Premier Stolypin's second speech with its plain warning to the hot heads that no playing with fire would be permitted, and that the douma must confine itself strictly to its legitimate functions if it does not want to be dissolved.

The council of the empire responded to the ministerial declaration of policy by a resolution expressing willingness to co-operate with the government in its legislative program. During the debate Count Witte made a brief speech in which he declared he would support this resolution, providing it did not imply a vote ofc onfidence in the ministry.

Claims Fortune for Grubstake

Valdez, March 23.—Court has adjourned, leaving a large amount of legal business unsettled. Judge Wickersham was forced to leave to hold a term of court at Juneau. The suit of Katherine May Elliott against the Hubbard Elliott Company for a half interest in a million dollar property on a grubstake agreement, has been before the court all week. It is the most important case since the celebrated Bonanza suit.

THE WEALTH OF POVERTY.

Wealth bides with poverty. The wilding rose,
Or little violet nestling by the stream,
'Tis these that set the gazing eyes a-dream,
Not all the beauties of the garden-close.
'Tis not in mighty tempest where it blows,
Nor in the sea that shouts to cloud and sail,
That music lives, but in the nightingale,
The wee, brown bird that sings at dusk its woes.

Yea, and the crowns of happiness and love,
Grace not the troubled brows of king and queen;
But, Fate's free gifts, they deck the hearts that move
In lowly state amid the quiet scene.
'Tis not rich Croesus, owner of the sod,
But passing beggar hath the peace of God!

A TRUE-LOVER'S KNOT

"Do have some more tea," urged the Flapper.

"Not any, thank you," responded young Harrington stiffly, and he put down his cup with a clatter of finality.

"Then won't you have—have another cake? You haven't tried one of these little pink ones with cherries on the top. They're awfully nice. Hazel made them——"

Young Harrington's face darkened.

"I won't have any more, thanks," he enunciated, with great distinctness. "And I'm afraid I must really be——"

"Oh, don't go yet!" pleaded the Flapper.

He shot a glance of unconcealed dislike at her; it took in the rough mane of hair beneath her tam-o'-shanter, her short and mud-spattered skirt, the hockey-boots whose laces always seemed to be coming untied. It was almost incredible that this girl should be own sister to his dainty Hazel, and yet—better an unattractive hoyden than a heartless coquette.

"Hazel will be sorry to have missed you. I can't think what can have kept her——"

Young Harrington laughed, the short, cynical laugh of disillusioned twenty-three.

In his ears rang the warning of a man quite two years older than himself.

"Don't you get let in for making a fool of yourself over that girl. Very pretty, very charming, but she's an absolutely hardened flirt! I'll tell you the kind of thing she'll do—encourage a fellow up to the top of his bent, say he may call, fix a day even, and then, when he turns up she's out, if you please, and he's left to have tea with that leggy tomboy of a sister."

Young Harrington had not been unpleased with this report.

Morton, the "fellow" in question, was scarcely a man one would wish "encouraged" by Hazel; he had probably brought the significant slight upon himself. But Ted Harrington, without undue conceit, had hoped for a very different sort of reception.

But now——!

He glanced at the clock.

"It is an hour and a half," he observed icily, "after the time your sister said she would be at home. However, it doesn't matter in the least. Will you say good-by to her for me? I shall be going back North to-morrow."

He rose and held out his hand.

"Where—whereabouts in the North?" inquired the Flapper, as it were with a feverish interest.

Was the girl making fun of him?

"Newcastle," he answered curtly.

"Oh, yes, they take coals there, or something, don't they?" responded the Flapper, with an odd, hysterical sounding tremble in her voice.

Yes. She was laughing at him. She was in this arranged scheme to make a fool of him.

"Good-by," he said, without looking at her. "I have to get back now—to—to pack."

"I'll come with you to the gate," gasped the Flapper hurriedly. "I mean I'll show you the short cut through the orchard. Wait one second while I tie up my boot lace——"

She stooped with one of her coltish, angular movements.

"Let me do it," suggested young Harrington, icily polite.

"Oh, no!" protested the Flapper. Her mane of hair fell forward over her hands. "I can do it. I want to tie the knot my sailor-cousin showed me." She fumbled busily. "There!"

As she rose young Harrington took a step forward to the door, stumbled, and almost fell.

"What——"

"Oh!" exclaimed the Flapper, in accents of despair. "I am so frightfully sorry. D'you see what I've done? I've been and tied your bootlace to mine, by mistake."

Young Harrington realized, as never before in his life, the absolute futility of human speech.

The Flapper bent again and fumbled.

"Can't you do it?" demanded young Harrington, almost savagely.

"It's very hard," panted the girl, raising a flushed face. "It's what my sailor-cousin called 'a true-lover's knot,' and I seem to have lost the trick of it."

"This'll do it," he said, and, with a glance of purpose, brought out a business-like looking pocket knife.

The Flapper gave a little scream and clutched it.

"Oh, no!" she remonstrated excitedly. "Not that! I'm very superstitious," she explained. "And to cut a bootlace means—means a murder in the house!"

"Oh, does it?" he growled. "I almost wish——"

"What?"

"I almost wish you weren't superstitious, of course," he said desperately.

Would the girl keep him in this ridiculous position until dinner time? He chafed. Worst of all, was Hazel to come in and find him still here? It was unbearable! For what seemed hours he stood, inwardly raging, while that odious and destable child fidgeted and sighed over the lace—— At last!

"Ah!" she exclaimed, "that's done it! I remembered the trick—I'm so sorry, Mr. Harrington——"

"I'm so sorry, Mr. Harrington!" Her speech was echoed by Hazel, who fluttered in as her sister rose to her feet. "Oh, I am so sorry! It wasn't my fault—a little boy I met in the lane—he'd lost his way"—she was the picture of pink-cheeked penitence, and altogether adorable—"and I took him home—and then it was the wrong address, and it took us hours to find the right one. Oh"—she lifted bewitching, troubled eyes—"I thought I'd never be back!"

"I thought so," responded Ted Harrington, seemingly unconscious that he was still holding her hand.

She murmured, "It was good of you to wait so long——"

"You're worth waiting for longer than that," he declared, and the Flapper, remarking aloud to no one in particular that she must see about some fresh tea, plunged out of the drawing room, her bootlace trailing behind her.

She was not at all a bad youngster, as her future brother-in-law told her.

"You may well say that," observed the Flapper, serenely. "If it hadn't been for me you'd have gone back to your horrible North without ever finding out how awfully much Hazel liked you. And how cross you were about that knot! Any one would have thought," she wound up, with righteous indignation, "that I had tied you up on purpose!"—Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Hessians Played.

It is a matter of record that upon the first official celebration of Independence day by the Continental Congress music was secured for the occasion by forcing the Hessian band, which had been captured by George Washington at Trenton in the previous December, to play in the public square all day, to the great delight and amusement of the people. It is also stated that these involuntary celebrants were obliged to practice appropriate airs for three weeks previously in order that they could not plead ignorance as an excuse.

WHIST CHAMPION DENOUNCES GAME.

MRS. A. B. SIMS.

Mrs. A. B. Sims, prominent in Des Moines society and holder of the national whist championship, created a sensation in a Des Moines church recently by denouncing bridge whist and dancing and asserting her intention of never touching cards again.

During a series of services at the University place Church of Christ, conducted by an evangelist, the sins of society were touched on. One evening he spoke of the evil of card playing and dancing and at the close of the sermon, before an audience of 1,200 persons, Mrs. Sims arose and made her unexpected denunciation of the two amusements.

"I wish to state publicly," she said, "that I never will touch cards again. My conclusion has been reached deliberately, and I have come to see the evil of card playing, especially in social circles. Nothing but harm can come from it. I care nothing for the honors I have won at the game and will abandon the cards without regret.

Mrs. Sims won the national championship loving cup at the whist tournament in St. Louis a year ago. With Mrs. Henry A. Crawford she also won the doubles. At a tournament in Cleveland, Ohio, two years ago, she won the first prize for women.

"I do not say that whist playing is always bad," she stated, "but in general it appears to me that more evil than good comes from it. There is even more harm in dancing than in cards, and I shall do all in my power to discourage it as a form of social amusement."

BIRDS CROSS THE ATLANTIC.

Some of Them Can Make Trip in Less than Nine Hours.

The presence of American birds in this country raises the interesting question, How do they cross the intervening 2,000 miles of ocean? Can we suppose a bird is capable of sustained flight for a sufficiently long period to accomplish this? On the supposition that the yellow shank can fly at the rate of 150 miles an hour it would accomplish the distance in fourteen hours. And then it must be remembered that this bird, being a wader, would be able to rest from time to time on the water.

As regards the rate of flight attained by birds in their migratory journeys, some interesting computations are to be found in Katke's "Heligoland as an Ornithological Observatory." His figures are 125 miles an hour for the northern blue throat and 245 for the Virginia plover. At the last rate the Atlantic could be crossed in about eight and three-quarter hours. Some six other American birds, including the red-crested snipe and Eskimo curlew, are recorded from the Sicily Islands.

Other American birds, including the yellow-billed cuckoo, have been recorded in Ireland. And in connection with this crossing of the Atlantic by American birds it is interesting to note an apparent attempt to cross in the opposite direction. In a British association report for 1887 we read:

"At Rathtlin O'Birne (West Donegal) immense flocks of birds—starlings, thrushes and fieldfares—passed west from Dec. 18 to 23. The nearest land to the west of this rock island is America. This is not an isolated occurrence. The westerly flight of land birds at stations off the west coast of Ireland has been noticed on other occasions."

It would be interesting to know if any of these enterprising migrants ever reached the other side.—London Globe.

NEW STAR ON THE FLAG.

The War Department has ordered the alteration of the flag made necessary by the admission of Oklahoma into the Union, now an aggregation of forty-six States. The department has also fixed on the spot for the new star, and now flagmakers are hard at work preparing new banners with an additional star in the lower right-hand corner. It is now in order for every patriotic American either to provide himself with a new flag or to add a star to the old one.

An Anti-Third Termer.

Judge—You've got a bad record. You've already served two terms in the penitentiary. What have you got to say why sentence should not be passed upon you?

Prisoner—My constitutional rights, judge. It's the unwritten law that no man should have a third term.—Kansas City Times.

FRIDAY, MARCH 29, 1907.

One noticeable and commendable feature of life in Clallam county at present is the absolute absence of any kind of card gambling within its borders. Notice was quietly served throughout the city some months ago, and during the present month all places in the county where games have been known to take place have been notified that it will not be tolerated. And whether from a fear of the law that makes gambling a felony, or just out of respect for its enforcement, it is a pleasure to note that a general observance is being had.

If you would save your children from the effects of the trashy, sensational and runious literature that floods our land and poisons the mind of those who read it, you must not only banish it from your homes but you must fill its place with good wholesome reading matter.

Petitions are being circulated, asking the Secretary of the Interior, and our Senators and Representatives in Congress, to use their best efforts to secure the donation of two of the government's blocks to the city for high school and public library purposes.

When the townsite was opened for settlement, about eight blocks were reserved in the center of the city for government buildihgs. Not more than one or two of these could ever, by any possibility, be used for the purpose intended. Being centrally located, between Oak and Lincoln and south of Second, they are best adapted for a high school and library of any place in the city.

Our present Central school building is over crowded; a slight increase in population will make a separate high school building an actual necessity; to buy a block suitable for the purpose, at the time it may actually be required, would be almost impossible.

Over in North Yakima, we see by the Journal of Education, the board engages the teachers on probation for the first three months, dropping them at the end of that time if not satisfactory. If at the end of the year they receive the recommendadation of the city superintendent, they are re-engaged at advance of $50 a year.

At the recent election in Philadelphia twenty women were elected on ward school boards. Many women serve on school boards throughout the state, and they are elected by men's votes, for women have not the school vote in Pennsylvania.

The city council are proposing that the engineer at the light plant shall also be responsible for the line work, and will call for bids for performance of double duty.

CIRCULATING SCHOOL LIBRARY

Funds Now Available for a Small Start in Much Needed Work.

County Supt. Risley informs us that the special fund for a circulating school library now contains about $200, which he believes will purchase between three and four hundred good books for auxiliary reading by the pupils of the district schools. These he proposes to put up in suitable cases, containing twenty or twenty-five volumes each, and start them on their rounds thru the county. To meet the expense of the cases, he will ask the commissioners at their next meeting for a small appropriation. This library fund, made possible by a state law allowing taxation for the purpose, is barely sufficient to make a start in the good work. The commissioners could double the taxation for this purpose, making a one-tenth mill rate, without adding any appreciable burden to the citizens of the county.

THE MOUNTAINEERS

lam—were represented. Even Mr. Carrigan's article on the prospective railroad development of the peninsula was illustrated with views of waterfalls—taken elsewhere. The only article mentioning the scenery of the Olympics was illustrated with a view of Lake Chelan, east of the Cascades. To the Mountaineers will belong the credit of a change that will make a large increase in the tourist trade of our merchants, who should render all possible assistance to them.

Work will commence upon the trail as soon as permission, and possibly aid, is given by the forest service. It must be ready by June 1st. Supplies will be teamed to McDonald, and from there packed in on ponies, of which fifteen will be required, the round trip taking a week. Mr. Day, of the Merchants, will buy the ponies for the club, it being cheaper to buy outright than to rent for six weeks. He has already secured four and will take others as fast as offered, the club having sent down funds for the purpose.

Great Men for Cause.

Woman suffrage was defeated in the Chicago Charter convention the other day. The vote stood 27 to 27, the chairman voting with the oposition. The women cannot suppress the pride they feel in the character of their 27, and no wonder, for the names of Louis F. Post, Graham Taylor and Raymond Robins stand for good things and big things, and the fame of them is by no means confined to the Windy City by the lake.

Protection Island, just off the entrance to Port Discovery Bay, has again changed hands and the new owner is Captain E. E. Cain, of Seattle. Some years ago Joseph McNaught purchased the island for a hunting preserve and stocked it with Chinese pheasants, but as the Island was near the mainland, the birds would fly across the narrow channel and the fowls showed but little increase.—Townsend Call.

Imported German Coach Horse

Several of the business men of Angeles, organized as the German Coach Horse Co., recently purchased a very fine imported stallion of that breed, which all lovers of fine stock are invited to see at Johnson's Livery Stables. This spirit of enterprise will be appreciated by the ranchers and others, who have long desired the opportunity of improving their stock and of securing fine driving teams.

Alice Roosevelt's Wedding
