OLYMPIC LEADER

VOL. 20. NO. 32. PORT ANGELES, WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1907 PRICE 5 CTS

COMMERCIAL CLUB RESUSTICATED

A VIGOROUS POLICY PROMISED

Committees Appointed on Advertising, Transportation, Horticultural Fairs, Streets and Roads, Etc.

Citizens of Port Angeles to the number of forty met at the office of the Olympic Peninsula Land Co. on Tuesday and formulated a scheme for a vigorous and aggressive policy in placing the capabilities of the city and county before the world.

Mr. Lauridsen, the president, opened the meeting in a few well chosen remarks. He was followed by several gentlemen who dwelt on the importance of direct steamer connection with Victoria and the advisibility of holding a county fair next year.

Many of the speakers are new residents and showed by their remarks that they had the utmost confidence in a brilliant future for the city and country. Allusion was made to the rapid growth of the city, the imminence of railway construction, and the necessity for united action on every topic affecting the welfare and progress of the county.

It was suggested, and the suggestion was adopted, that means should be taken to thoroly advertize our resources in all the countries of the world. The action of the steamship company in denying direct connection with Victoria was denounced.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That Col. Peter, E. E. Day, Robt. Lowrey, Horace White and C. F. Merritt be a committee on reorganization;

Resolved, That D. W. Higgins, L. D. Kean, T. T. Aldwell, C. Luppen, C. F. Merritt, Col. Peter and P. Grubb be appointed a committee to gather statistics in respect to the amount of freight that can be obtained for a car ferry between Victoria and Port Angeles;

Resolved, That E. A. FitzHenry, A. I. Filion, J. Gallagher, P. Chambers and G. M. Rouse be a committee on streets and roads, especially with a view to the improvement of the approach to Tumwater Hill;

Resolved, That D. W. Higgins and T. T. Aldwell be a committee on literature and advertising.

The following officers were elected:

Honorary President—His Worship Mayor Ritchie.

President—G. M. Lauridsen.

Vice President—D.W.Higgins.

Secretary—Horace White.

The meeting then adjourned to meet at the call of the chair, at the same place, the Olympic Peninsula Land Company having tendered the use of their offices as a permanent meeting place.

THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE

A Farmers' Institute, under direction of Prof. E. E. Elliott, in charge of Institute work of the State, will be held in Port Angeles Oct. 31st and Nov. 1st, and at Seguin Nov. 2nd, as stated in this paper last week. This will be the first Institute held in Clallam county and our farmers and others should make it a point to attend every session. The meeting in Angeles will be held as follows:

Thursday, Oct. 31st, 1:30 p. m., at Opera House; 7:30 p. m., at Parlor Theater.

Friday, Nov. 1st, 10:00 a. m., at Opera House; 1:30 p. m., at Opera House.

The topics from which a program will be selected are:

Diseases of the apple; anthracnose of the blackberry and its control; spraying; combatting insect pests and fungus diseases; a common parasitic toadstool; diseases of the potato, by Prof. W. H. Lawrence, experiment station botanist.

How to separate cream; dairies and dairymen; building up the dairy herd, and the handling and care of milk and cream, by L. W. Hanson, deputy dairy and food commissioner.

The silo as an adjunct to dairying; the study of the individuality of cows; grasses and forage plants, and agricultural education, by E. E. Elliott, agriculturist.

ARE WE ON THE EVE OF A MINING EXCITEMENT?

Rich Quartz Ledge, Traced for Miles, Discovered on Ennis Creek, This Side of Mt. Angeles. Assays Average $26 in Gold and Copper, Mostly Gold.

Eastern Capitalists Are Making Preparations to Work the Vein on an Extensive Scale.

Within the past two or three days it has leaked out that a quartz ledge situated on Ennis creek, within four miles of the business center of the city, has heen secured by Horstman & Horstman of Cincinnati, a firm that owns valuable mining properties in Colorado, and that one of the firm will shortly arrive in the city to open the ledge and arrange for extensive operations. Horstman & Horstman are well known here.

The ledge has been traced for miles. The width is yet to be determined. Mr. Horstman, senior, was here about six weeks ago. He then made the final payment on the properties and now owns the entire ledge on Ennis creek, with the exception of 160 acres which has been secured on option by a Mr. Hughes, a mining man from Colorado.

The assays made by reliable parties in the East average $26 in gold with a workable percentage of copper and some silver. The expressed opinion of eastern experts is that the discovery is of great value and if that opinion should be sustained by results, Port Angeles is on the edge of a mining boom of great and lasting importance. A veil of secrecy has been thrown about the discovery, but the facts have leaked out at last and are now public property.

FRUIT AND FLOWER SHOW

Annual Horticultural Exhibit One of the Best Means of Advertising Superior Advantages of the County.

Why not begin now to prepare for a flower and fruit show to be held in the summer of 1908? Why should not Port Angeles begin to assert herself, and by putting her horticultural and pomological resources in the foreground demonstrate what she is capable of producing? Why should she go on year after year, hiding her brilliant light under a bushel by neglecting to show that her fruit and flowers are ahead of those of other localities on Puget Sound or elsewhere. Visitors to our city are struck with the spectacle of young trees five and six years old that bear and often break beneath the weight of fruit, and are charmed with the size of our roses and other choice flowers that grow almost spontaneously in gardens. To be appreciated the glories of the climate and the soil have but to be made known, and the best method for making them known is thru the advertising medium of a flower and fruit show. The opera house will answer admirably as an exhibition hall. The affair should be duly advertised and as it is expected that the railway work within the city limits will by then be well advanced, there need be no fear of a financial failure. The co-operation of the ladies of Port Angeles and Clallam county may be relied on, for the object is a laudable one and in its results cannot fail to be beneficial.

In our neighboring county of Jefferson, the residents of Quilcene, a little burg at the southern terminus of the Port Townsend Southern, have held an annual fair for several years. The exhibits of fruits, flowers and vegetables are simply amazing. Grapes and other fruits that the average resident has always believed could not be successfully raised in this climate with its cool summer nights, are shown in great profusion. Apples, pears, egg plums and prunes, that excell anything produced in the famous irrigated deserts of Eastern Washington, and vegetables of a size and character such as the residents of the middle west never dreamed of, are the common thing. At the close of the fair the exhibits are placed in the display windows of the Townsend merchants, when the good work of advertising the county continues for weeks after. The fair association, largely thru the assistance of Townsend merchants and wealthy dairymen, is able to offer valuable premiums for best collections, as well as smaller cash prizes for each variety shown. The attendance has increased each year, plainly demonstrating that such a fair can be held without any extensive entertainment feature.

By all means let us have an annual fair. It will be of benefit to our own people in a hundred ways, as well as a great advertisement for the productions of our superior soil and climate.

Colonist Rates to Continue.

The effort of two of the northern lines to abolish the colonist rates during the winter months has met with failure. The Harriman system has announced that the rates will be continued by the Union and Southern Pacific companies, and as those companies will "set the pace" for the other lines, there will be no change, and the question has been definitely settled. The beneficial effects such rates have had on home seekers travel to California is indicated by the fact that since they were put into effect in 1901 no less than 437,512 people have been moved on these low rates by the Southern Pacific alone, and during the fall period of 1907 the number of people moved during the first thirty-nine days was 21,609 breaking all previous records for a corresponding period of time.

IS BUYING RIGHTS-OF-WAY

The North Coast, alias the Northwestern, Pays High Prices Near Kennewick.

A dispatch from Kennewick on the north bank of the Columbia river states that the purchase by the North Coast or Northwestern railway of right-of-way continues. The North Coast grade is practically completed from North Yakima to Kiona, and work between Kiona and Kennewick has also been commenced. Work is now to be begun in the neighborhood of Kennewick, and it is reported that agents of the new railway are engaged in hiring teams for immediate use at that point.

Several large sales of real estate were reported yesterday in the garden tracts, the North Coast buying an aggregate of about sixty acres of land, which they will use for right-of-way purposes. Some of the land, which was in a high state of cultivation, brought over $2,000 per acre, Otto Hanson's tract of eight acres being sold for $17,500. Exploring parties are being outfitted and will pass the winter in the country lying between Portland and Coos Bay and the Olympic Peninsula. The greatest secrecy is being exercised in the formation of survey parties and the purchase of animals and supplies.

EXPLAINS THE PRIMARY LAW.

Passing on questions asked regarding the new direct primary law, Attorney General Atkinson has rendered a long opinion, saying in part:

"The courts should and do give liberal constructions to election laws. A generous liberality of construction should be allowed to the end that all citizens may, with as much freedom and as little trouble as possible, express their choice at such primary election.

"The fact that members of the dominant political organizations voted some local ticket such as the 'Peoples' ticket,' or the 'Citizens' ticket,' at some municipal election, ought not to effect the right of such organizations to primary tickets. The official ballots of the last general or municipal election should be examined, and if any of the candidates of such parties or organizations received ten per cent of the total vote cast at either election a separate primary ticket should be provided therefor."

An injunction is asked for by the Lumbermen's Association to restrain the Harriman and Hill systems from advancing the tariff on east bound lumber shipments until the interstate commerce commission has held a hearing on the subject. The case will be argued on the 29th inst.

$15,000,000 FOR TIMBER

Biggest Purchases Ever Made is Record of the Milwaukee Railroad Company.

From first to last the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Co. have paid $15,000,000 in Clallam and Jefferson counties for timber rights. Hundreds of men who were actually in want, but who held on to their land in spite of the pinch of poverty, have been enriched by this enterprising company, which, under the name of the Continental Timber Company, has been profuse in its expenditures and generous in its bargains. The policy of the company has been to secure tonnage for their road after completion, and to cut out the Hill lines from participation in the lumber carrying business. In this object they have succeeded beyond doubt and after a few thousand acres more of timber land has been bought in Clallam county they will rest on their laurels and bid the Northern Pacific to "lay on, and d—d be he who first cries hold, enough!"

The newly acquired land should be a rich plum for the county commissioners in levying increased rates. The revenue from that source alone ought to be sufficient to meet all county requirements and permit the struggling rancher who is investing his little all in clearing up a self-supporting farm, and thus assisting in development of the county, to go almost free of taxation. There is a bright future before us with railway construction imminent, a great rise in land values and freedom from excessive taxation.

H. A. W. YUNG, B. D.

Lectures have been so few and far between in Port Angeles that the appreciation thereof has not been cultivated and fostered as in most other cities of its size. So few lectures have been held here that probably half of the young people have never attended one. A lecture means nothing to them. This, however, is to be deplored, and to be wondered at. There is nothing under the sun that is more beneficial, nothing that could be more entertaining, nothing that is more elevating than a good lecture, and nothing speaks more for the high intellectual and moral standard of the people than their appreciation of a good lecture.

H. A. W. Yung, B. D., of Seattle, is a speaker of unusual ability and Port Angeles is to be congratulated on being able to hear him. He will be here to speak at the Opera House on Wednesday, Oct. 23d (8:00 p. m.) To make the occasion of universal interest, however, arrangements have been made to illustrate the lecture with eight tableaux by nine young ladies and each tableau will be accompanied by a quartet selection or a solo. In all it will be an entertainment for which you would in larger cities pay double pay double the price of admission (25c) charged here. The same program was given in Seattle and was so much enjoyed that it had to be given a second time by special request.

Model Poultry House.

The illustration shows the exterior view and ground plan of a poultry house intended for one colony of fowls. The house is 12x16 feet on the ground, nine feet high in front and six feet in the rear. It has three windows, two on the south side and one on the east end which admit plenty of sunlight. There are no windows on the north and west, thus making a warm corner for roosts and avoiding drafts. It is covered with shiplap, paper and siding on the outside, is ceiled on the inside and has a good shingle roof. A raised platform is built two and a half feet from the main floor in one end of the house, six inches above which are the roosts. The roosts rest upon a frame fastened to the wall with hinges so that it can be easily raised and the platform cleaned in a very short time each morning. The space under the roost platform and the entire remaining part of the house, except the alley, may be used for a scratching room. The alley is separated from the pen by wire netting except under the nests where vertical slats should be used placed two inches apart. Between these slats the chickens feed out of a trough that sits in the alley where they cannot get into it with their feet.

Why Milk Costs More.

Interesting statistics as to the cost of milk production are given by the local milk dealers of a Massachusetts town in an announcement made of an increase in the retail price of milk to seven cents a quart during the winter months. On this announcement we find the following suggestive comparisons:

"Twenty years ago mill feed cost $14 per ton; today $22 per ton. Then cotton seed cost $18 per ton; today $34 per ton. Then, farm labor cost $20 per month; today, $26 per month. Then milch cows cost $45 each; today, $65 each. Formerly a milk dealer's outfit consisted of about 25 tin cans, costing about $15. Today, for the same business, it requires bottles, boxes, fillers, coolers, etc., costing $150. Our plumbing, carpenters' repairs, blacksmithing and other like expenses have increased 33 per cent. Added to the above are the constantly increasing restrictions of state and local boards of health, which undoubtedly improve the quality of the milk, but at a considerable increase in cost, which increase has fallen on the producer and dealer, when it should be paid by the consumer."

Farmers and Poultry Fanciers.

The farmer has a real grievance against the poultry fancier, in that he has done all of his crossing and inbreeding of fathers, daughters, uncles and aunts without any regard to practical utility, says Farming, whether the hens from which he has been breeding were producing 60 eggs a year or 200 made no difference. His whole aim has been to breed out a fowl flight feather or two, or to create a better comb, or eyes of a better tint at a sacrifice of everything else. The result is that when a farmer goes into the market to buy thoroughbreds with his money in his pocket ready and willing to pay for the best stock, he not only often pays for qualities he does not need, but actually pays a premium for something that has been obtained at a sacrifice of the very qualities which he does need. There are a few men, however, raising thoroughbred stock that is "bred to lay," or to meet certain market demands, and those are the men that should be patronized.

Dairy Notes.

Large yields per animal means less cost in making them.

Success in home dairying depends upon four things: The cow, her care and feeding, the manufacture of the produce, the marketing of the same.

Unless a big cow is an extra milker, she is less profitable than a smaller one that is a fair milker.

The butter product of all cows is more or less influenced by the care and feeding of the animal.

An advantage of dairying in connection with grain raising is that it makes a home market for home grown crops.

Dairying has this advantage, that its produce is in the line of food and is always in demand at some price and is therefore a money crop to the farmer; to this may be added the fact that the money comes quite frequently.

In churning if the friction is too violent, the butter is produced too speedily, it is deficient in color and does not keep well.

When the churn is quite filled it is almost impossible to produce butter, not only because there is want of air, but also because the cream swells in the process of churning.

The value of cream is based on the dry solids it contains and cream from different cows and from the same cows at different periods of the year has a surprising difference in butter value.

Stacking Wheat.

Years ago it was a common custom to stack the wheat as soon as it was well cured in the shock, but gradually this custom was abandoned until in many parts of the country it was a rare sight to see a stack.

Of recent years a reaction seems to be slowly taking place and stacking is again coming into fashion, according to a writer in American Agriculturist. The reason for this is not in doubt. It is the bitter and costly experiences that have come home to farmers through leaving their grain in the shock until the machine came around. Of course, when everybody stacked and the thrashing season occupied six weeks or more, a majority of the crops were necessarily left standing in the shock for weeks, exposed to storms and winds.

Now, of course, while it is a fact that rainy seasons in July are uncommon, they are of sufficiently regular occurrence to make the damage they inflict far outweigh the cost of annuallly stacking or storing the grain.

Stacking can be carried on every moment of the day that the wheat is dry enough to handle. If the stack is uncompleted at night or when a shower comes up it can be covered with a tarpaulin. With his grain once safely in the stack the farmer is independent of the weather and the machine boss and can go about his other work serenely conscious that he has done his duty in safeguarding his principal cash crop.

Some Fancy Strawberries.

Five years ago Henry Jerolaman, the New Jersey strawberry man, produced a seedling, specimen fruit, which is here shown. When the increase of the first plant had made a row eight feet long Mr. Jerolaman on going away one day told the boy left in charge that no berries were to be sold from those plants for less than $1 per quart, thinking that would be prohibitive. On his return the boy handed him $4, a customer having taken four quarts, all that were ready at the time. Next day the same man returned and got three quarts more. This was running into money so fast that Millionaire seemed an appropriate name for the berry. The fruit illustrated was two two inches in diameter and about as large as any seen. Many run from one and a quarter to one and a half inches. The shape is uniform, no coxcombing being noted; color bright red, with a fine gloss; quality good, above the average to my taste. Its seasons is long and nearly every berry is strong and abundant, the plants standing from ten to fifteen inches high by actual measurement.

MILLIONAIRE.

KEVITT SEEDLING.

To produce strawberries of mammoth size, so that a dozen berries will fill a quart basket, plants should be set out in the early part of August in good, rich soil and kept well cultivated during the growing season. All runners should be kept off the plant.—Rural New Yorker.

Horses and Grass.

A famous veterinary surgeon declares that grass beats all the drugs in creation as a sure cure for sick horses and mules. Horses should have a few pounds of grass daily from spring until fall, he says. The prevalent notion that it is harmful is idiotic and cruel. Grass to horses is the same as fresh vegetables and fruit to us. Their craving for it proves their need of it. Yet ignorant, unfeeling drivers yank them away from it as if it were poison instead of the life-giving medicine it is, designed by their Maker for them. When they gnaw the bark of trees or eat leaves it is because they crave grass and can't get it.—Buffalo Horse World.

New Strawberry Varieties.

Several hundred new varieties of strawberries have been introduced within the past five years, and each has had its share of praise until the amateur is confused. Failure with certain kinds is because all varieties do not thrive alike under the same conditions. Some will give better results on light soil than on heavy, and some will not thrive except on moist soils. The beginner should endeavor to select a variety that has been tested in his neighborhood with good results. Strawberry plants may be set out in the fall, though the spring season is usually preferred.

Fastening Fence Wire.

A better way to fasten wire to a fence post where staples do not hold is to use short pieces of wire. Twist one end around the wire on one side of the post, bring it around on the other side and twist around the wire again. By treating several posts this way the wire will be drawn quite tight without the aid of a stretcher.

Reform in Housekeeping Methods.

With women who keep help the dishwashing after the evening meal presents no more inconvenience than any other part of the day's work; but with women who are their own kitchen geniuses, as many must perforce be in this day of scarce domestic service—washing the evening dishes is the greatest bugbear of the day.

Then, especially in summer, the housewife wants to be daintily dressed and to be free to spend the evening hours with the man of the house. Nothing prevents this, but the great stack of dishes to be washed up.

Now, why cannot the dishwashing be as systematically and sensibly done as the rest of the housework? Why dabble over the dish pan three times a day? There really need be but one dishwashing done each day. If the dishes are cleaned with the pliable blade of a palette knife, they can be piled up neatly overnight. The work of doing the whole batch at once, in the morning hours, is not half the trouble it is to do them at night, when dressed for the evening.

Every housekeeper should have, too, a dish rack in which the dishes, after rinsing, are left to dry. It is simply an ancient fetich that wiping with a towel is required. In ideal kitchens in modern palaces the dishes are never dried. The finest china and glass are finished by placing in the rack to dry, and it may be added are kept brighter by this means.

There is no reason why dishes should be washed three times a day, nor why the dish towel should be adhered to—no reason except that women lack initiative. The average feminine is a creature of habit; she clings to unnecessary and foolish ways for no better reason than because her mother and grandmother did things so.

It is the hardest thing in the world for her to revolutionize her housekeeping; yet no profession, occupation or job on earth stands in greater need of revolutionizing.

Broad-Brimmed Sailor Hat.

This hat is one of the best-liked models shown at several of the most exclusive milliners'. The trimming is very simple, and presents few difficulties to the home milliner. The model was in fine white chip, trimmed with a large bow across the front in green taffeta ribbon. A creamy-white rose, with mottled white and green foliage, was placed across the back at the base of the crown. The hat was faced almost to the edge with green taffeta.

Love Defined.

Before the International School Congress in London, Dr. Sir James Chichton-Browne defined love at first sight as being (1) a species of cerebral commotion, and (2) the stirring of some hitherto dormant association centers by an appropriate affinitive impression." The scientific value of this transcendent discovery, in the opinion of the Independent, is almost equal to the conclusions reached by an American university a few years ago when an investigation was made of a large number of school children to discover their preference for dogs and cats. The astonished world learned that most boys loved dogs best and most girls cats.

Fluffy Boas.

Maline and chiffon boas will be a part of every complete wardrobe, and they are just as beautiful and perishable as ever. Some of the styles merely encircle the neck, fastening low on the dress front with invisible hooks and eyes. Another style is made with knife plaiting and does not look unlike some of the Elizabethian ruffs worn with a tiny chiffon coat, likewise trimmed with chenille of the finest variety, and while white is the most fashionable, the colored ones are also seen.

Retaining Men Friends.

It is not at all uncommon to hear a girl say in speaking of a man: "I used to know him well before he was married, but I don't see him now." More than half the time it is because she has not gone about it the right way to have the wife like her, and thus she has made a great mistake. The best times that a girl can have is through the married women she knows. It may seem good fun to bat around with men, and some girls seem to think it is a sign of cleverness to say that they do not like women, but in the end these girls don't have as much fun as those who know women as well as men.

To lose good old friendship of a man a girl has known many years simply because he is married is a pity, and many times quite unnecessary. A little tact and thoughtfulness will make the wife quite as good a friend, too, and instead of losing one by the change a girl will gain another.

A writer in one of the current magazines warns mothers against the danger of allowing children to go about with their legs uncovered, as the fashion of short socks permits. It is the cause of sore throats and cold extremities, she says, interferes with digestion, besides sowing the seeds of rheumatism. In warm weather, even, the child is much annoyed by mosquitoes, and, altogether, she does not approve of the fashion at all.

From the time he is 2 months to 2 years old baby should have at least from twelve to fourteen hours sleep in the twenty-four, the amount, of course, decreasing as he grows older. From 2 years until 4 he should have two hours sleep during the day, besides what he has at night. To keep an infant or young child up late at night is abominable, for the nervous habits he develops in the stimulation of lights and being among people at the time he should be quiet may never be overcome. Baby should be asleep for the night by 7 o'clock, and not later, if he is to have the rest necessary. It is not well to rock him to sleep, for the motion is bad, in spite of what our grandmothers thought and did, says the New York Evening Telegram. It may bring on cerebral congestion, as a result of the enlarged condition of the brain vessels, and the best way of fixing him for the night is to put him in his crib on cool sheets and let him go to sleep alone. It may take some time and trouble at first to train him to this, but it can and should be done, both for his sake and that of his parents.

Who Is Responsible?

Wherever in all the world the special gifts of women are needed, there is woman's sphere, says a wise woman writer. The qualities that differentiate woman from man are affection, quick sympathy, intuitive perceptions, a gift for sweet ordering, arrangement and decision; while man is the creator, defender and discoverer. Each is essential to the other, and each should enter in some degree into every phase of the other's life. This disposes of the drawing of arbitrary lines. If men will become truly manly and woman truly womanly, both will gravitate to their rightful place in any age of the world.

If man today were the brave and tender lover and protector he is intended to be, he would have no occasion to complain that woman has grown independent and even entered into competition with him. It is because men have first been deficient in wisdom that women have come to seem deficient in love.

What Would You Do.

What would you do if you are a woman and 40 and obliged to earn your own living, and should lose your position or suddenly be thrown upon the world, with no preparation for business? This is a question that has brought out a great deal of discussion, and it is good to see that many women of 40 and more are ready with suggestions as to what they would do if such thing were to happen to them.

Braid and fringe of all descriptions are much seen.

Hoods of exquisite lace and facing frills of the same lace are details being introduced upon wraps.

Materials are so many and so varied in color and texture that monotony of effect is practically impossible.

Walking suits are plain. Even the folds around the skirts are gradually disappearing on the newest designs. The new circular skirt seems to be adaptable to very little variety in walking costumes.

The separate coats of the season have a wide range and are divided into distinct classes suitable for widely varying purposes.

In Paris the short skirt is receiving an almost unprecedented amount of attention and dresses to clear the ground are even seen in the realm of afternoon toilets.

For afternoon gowns the daintily checked voiles in two-toned effects are exceptionally attractive, when fashioned with a garniture of silk, which gives them body.

Ball fringe, very large grelots, long and ornate tassels, cords of silk and chenille and any number of detached motifs in passementerie or braid ornament the new costumes.

Smocking is gradually returning to favor, although it is not very practical for washable materials, but for such fabrics as may be dry cleaned satisfactorily it is always pretty.

One of the latest of millinery blooms is brown lilac, which has much the appearance of the natural flower when it has been subjected for too long a period to the unmerciful rays of the sun. A few sprays of fresh lilac are almost invariably mixed with the scorched brown blossoms, two or three withered leaves being likewise frequently added.

Checked Taffeta Gown.

Very graceful is the princess gown depicted in the sketch. The princess idea is accentuated by having the skirt perfectly tight-fitting over the hips; below shows a graduation of the material. The bretelle effect is also combined with the skirt; the side gores extend over the shoulders and meet a similar extension from the back. A cap is added to the bretelles falling over each shoulder. Suitable development can be had in taffeta, chiffon panama, shantung, rajah, checked or striped voile and linen. A fine lingerie waist worn with the skirt makes a pretty costume.

Help Your Husband.

A college girl who won a Ph. D. degree tells how she succeeded in married life and says that if most wives put as much energy into the work of helping their husbands as into a "career" it would pay much better. Beginning with a salary of $25 a week, they lived in two rooms; the college girl did the cooking and all the washing, but her husband's shirts and collars. They lived on $13 a week and saved $10. The man is now making $10,000 a year, but through every step of the way his wife helped him up.

Not More Unhappy Now.

Ida Husted Harper thinks it is very foolish to think that marriages are more unhappy today than they were when it was thought a disgrace to get a divorce. In those days women suffered, now they sue for a divorce. When married women are unhappy today they let the world know it, and it will be always a question of individual opinion as to whether it is better to suffer in silence or to risk a chance of happiness by throwing off a galling yoke.

Doilies for Flower Pots.

An ingenious woman who likes to display her flowering plants on little teakwood stands made doilies for the flower holders of white oilcloth, pinked on the edges and decorated in the center with floral motifs. The latter were cut from wall paper or magazines, applied with gum arabic and then treated to a coating of white varnish. These mats stand washing with soap and water.

Black Stockings Going.

Black stockings are banished to the farthest outposts of fashion's realm, and colored ones have arrived instead. They demand for their completely pretty setting colored footgear. That is why we find black patent leather galoshes with gray, fawn, green, ruby and even purple "uppers" worn with hosiery of the tints mentioned.

Tomato Salad.

The most delicious tomato salad is a frozen one. Firm but ripe tomatoes are selected, peeled, chopped fine and rubbed through a sieve. Do not cook them, as this would destroy the distinctive fresh flavor of the vegetable. Soften two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of cold water, add a cupful of boiling water, stir, and when the gelatin is melted, strain to the tomatoes. Add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, a teaspoonful each of salt and paprika. Beat until it begins to thicken, then pour into a melon mold. Bind with a strip of suet-saturated muslin and bury in equal parts of ice and salt for four hours.

We Trust Doctors

If you are suffering from impure blood, thin blood, debility, nervousness, exhaustion, you should begin at once with Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the Sarsaparilla you have known all your life. Your doctor knows it, too. Ask him about it.

Unless there is daily action of the bowels, poisonous products are absorbed, causing headache, biliousness, nausea, dyspepsia, and thus preventing the Sarsaparilla from doing its best work. Ayer's Pills are liver pills. Act gently, all vegetable.

QUEER STORIES

The storage capacity of the yards of the Pennsylvania railroad has increased 200 per cent in ten years.

It has been calculated that fifty million dollars' worth of standing timber is destroyed annually in the United States.

"Milliner" is a corruption for "Milaner," from Milan, which city at one time gave the fashion to Europe in all matters of taste in woman's headgear.

The latest fashion among Austrian painters is to establish themselves at picturesque points in the mountains in summer, and make the portraits of tourists amid such surroundings.

Kentucky with a population of fifty-five to each square mile, has only 8 1-10 miles of railroad line for each 100 square miles, and 14.5 miles for each 10,000 in habitants. Indiana with a population of seventy-six for each square mile, has 19.2 miles of railway per 100 square miles.

White elephant parties are the latest and most novel society functions participated in lately. At these meetings every member is to bring something he can find no use for. At a recent meeting ten out of twelve ladies present brought nothing but their husbands.—Avada (Colo.) Discoverer.

Every one knows what an explosion is; but its opposite, an implosion, is less familiar. At great depths in the sea the conditions are favorable for its production. At 2,500 fathoms the pressure is, roughly speaking, two and a half tons to the square inch; that is to say, several times greater than that exerted by the steam on the piston of a powerful engine.

A new tuberculosis treatment is in the field. It is once more a serum, and it is the invention of an Italian—Professor Cuccurullo—and it has made upon the scientific world of Italy an impression so good that an institution is to be established outside Rome for practically testing its virtue under the surveillance of a committee of the best experts in the country. The sanatorium will be isolated, and twelve cases selected as being typical will be admitted for treatment.

John W. Gates says that not all women, but some of them are very poor speculators, and recalls this incident: "A young friend of mine has a pretty cousin. He was going to the races the other day, and she called him up on the telephone and asked him to put $10 on Forest King for her. 'Very well,' he said. 'I'll do it if you'll pay me back.' 'Of course I'll pay you back, you horrid thing.' 'All right,' said he. 'You didn't last time.' 'Oh, well,' said she, 'last time the horse didn't win, you know.'"

Detachable Handle.

Every housewife is confronted with the problem of what to do with cups on which the handles have been broken. She dislikes to discard them entirely, yet they are undesirable and unsightly. A very simple means of mending such partly broken crockery has been invented by a Washington man. It consists of a detachable handle that can be clamped on any piece of crockery desired. The handle is composed of a spring band, which is attached to the clamp. The latter is slipped over the edge of the cup and the clamp fastened. When the cup is finally broken beyond repair, the clamp can be readily removed and attached to another having a broken handle. A half-dozen of these detachable handles would be a welcome addition to every household, being used as required.

CLAMPS ON CUP.

Many housekeepers are not successful in canning fruit and frequently find their jars running over or "working" a few weeks after being sealed and put away. This may be due to several causes, viz.: Imperfect fruit, unsterilized cans or tops that are imperfect and not air-tight. When caused by the latter it is easily remedied by melting parafin or sealing wax and dipping the top of each jar, after it is tightly screwed down, in the melted wax. After allowing it to cool and harden if any air holes show, dip again.

PRIZES FOR GOOD BISCUIT.

Massachusetts Town Which Encourages Children to Cook.

The town of Ashfield, Mass., has one custom which is unique, as well as interesting to its citizens and to the surrounding world, so far as it has come to notice. This is the children's labor and prize day.

For the last nine years, on Labor Day, there have been distributed to the children of the town under 18 years of age prizes to an amount in aggregate of nearly $100 for the best evidences of their industry, ingenuity and special intelligence and capacity. These prizes, which are nearly all in money, are given by citizens and summer residents, and are awarded by a committee chosen for the purpose.

This year, following the usual custom, says the Boston Globe, there will be an exhibit in the Town Hall on the day appointed, at which time the names of the winners will be publicly announced. All through the year the children of the various schools throughout the town have been preparing for this event, for besides individual exhibits, collections are made and work done in common by the children of the different schools with the aid of the teacher.

This work consists of the adornment of the school houses or school yards, the making of school gardens, collections of wild flowers and of minerals, lists of birds seen in Ashfield, with dates of arrival and notes on their habits; drawings and paintings, models, compositions, number work, etc.

Each school in town has a school garden, and these are visited once or more during the summer by some member of the committee, either in person or by proxy, and such garden products as may be in season will be exhibited on Labor Day.

The exhibits for individual prizes are divided into the following classes:

1. Plain Needlework and Drawing—(a) A prize for the best dishcloth or towel with plain hem and three initials in cross-stitch, by a child under 12 years of age; (b) for the best apron or undergarment with hemstitch at the bottom, by a child under 14 years; (c) for the best shirt waist or skirt by a child under 18 years.
2. Embroidery and fancy work.
3. Knitting and crocheting.
4. Plain washing and ironing.
5. The best-arranged bouquet of garden or wild flowers.
6. Collections—(a) Of pressed wild flowers; (b) of pressed leaves of forest trees native to Ashfield; (c) of woods of forest trees, of sections not less than 2 inches in diameter; (d) of grasses; (e) of ferns; (f) of fungi; (g) of seeds of native plants; (h) of insects found in Ashfield; (f) of relics or other curiosities.
7. List of plants observed during the year on any single half-acre.
8. List of forest trees native to Ashfield, with a statement of the special locality in the town where rare or remarkable fine trees are to be found, with the measurements of the largest trees and with an account of the uses to which the different kinds are put.
9. Wild animal, squirrel, woodchuck or any other, tanned.
10. Chickens, rabits or other tame animals.
11. Work with jackknife or other tools.
12. Miscellaneous—Any work showing ingenuity, such as basket-making, frame-making, etc., or anything not specially enumerated in the list which may seem deserving of a prize.

In addition to the prizes which will be awarded for entries in the above-named classes, special prizes are offered for the following: For the best loaf of bread or pan-raised biscuits made by a girl not younger than 10 years, $1; for the second best, 75 cents.

For the best and second best cake under the same conditions, two similar prizes.

Contagious.

An artist, whose summers, spent in out-of-the-way places, have brought him a rich reward of experience as well as of success, tells many stories of the uninvited guests who have gathered about his easel on different occasions.

In one little Connecticut village a freckle-faced boy appeared as if by magic at his side one morning, and gazed at the artist and at the picture then in progress with an intentness which was almost disconcerting.

"Did you ever try to paint?" the artist asked him at last, and he was startled at the sudden illumination of the sober little face.

"I kin paint, some," announced the boy, with certainty. 'My father could paint, and I ketched it from him. But he's dead now, and I thought perhaps I could ketch some from you, mister."

The Silver Lining.

"Your nephew, that's studyin' to be a doctor——?"

"Well, now, he ain't by any means as useless as you'd naturally think," philosophically said honest farmer Hornbeak. "When he comes home on a vacation I make him not only kill the chickens, as occasion arises, but dress 'em into the bargain; and what little knowledge he has already got of surgery enables him to do a more artistic job than any of the rest of us can do, in spite of all the practice we have had in an unscientific way. A college education, Enoch, has its bright side, even if it does cost considerable."

If you are batting better than .300 per cent a lot of envious people hate you.

The people really do not deserve half the mean things said about them.

SKIN DISEASES

HUMORS IN THE BLOOD

When the blood is pure, fresh and healthy, the skin will be soft, smooth and free from blemishes, but when some acid humor takes root in the circulation its presence is manifested by a skin eruption or disease. These humors get into the blood, generally because of an inactive or sluggish condition of the members of the body whose duty it is to collect and carry off the waste and refuse matter of the system. This unhealthy matter is left to sour and ferment and soon the circulation becomes charged with the acid poison. The blood begins to throw off the humors and acids through the pores and glands of the skin, producing Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum and skin eruptions of various kinds. Eczema appears, usually with a slight redness of the skin followed by pustules from which there flows a sticky fluid that dries and forms a crust, and the itching is intense. It is generally on the back, breast, face, arms and legs, though other parts of the body may be affected. In Tetter the skin dries, cracks and bleeds; the acid in the blood dries up the natural oils of the skin, which are intended to keep it soft and pliant, causing a dry, feverish condition and giving it a hard, leathery appearance. Acne makes its appearance on the face in the form of pimples and black heads, while Psoriasis comes in scaly patches on different parts of the body One of the worst forms of skin trouble is Salt Rheum; its favorite point of attack is the scalp, sometimes causing baldness. Poison Oak and Ivy are also disagreeable types of skin disease. The humor producing the trouble lies dormant in the blood through the Winter to break out and torment the sufferer with the return of Spring. The best treatment for all skin diseases is S. S. S. It neutralizes the acids and removes the humors so that the skin instead of being irritated and diseased, is nourished by a supply of fresh, healthy blood. External applications of salves, washes, lotions, etc., while they soothe the itching caused by skin affections, can never cure the trouble because they do not reach the blood. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and forces out every particle of foreign matter and restores the blood to its normal, pure condition, thereby permanently curing every form of skin affection. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write. S. S. S. is for sale at all first class drug stores.

I suffered with Eczema for forty years and could find nothing to cure me until I tried S. S. S. I suffered intensely with the itching and burning; pustules would form from which there flowed a sticky fluid; crusts would come on the skin and when scratched off the skin was left as raw as a piece of beef. I suffered agony in the long years I was afflicted, but when I used S. S. S. I found a perfect cure. There has never been any return of the trouble.

THE TIMBER INDUSTRY AND RAILROAD RATES

Port Angeles is particuliarly interested in the popular agitation that has been caused by the advance in lumber rates. The announcement is made that on November 1st the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, and the Harriman lines will advance freight rates on lumber from the Pacific Coast to Eastern markets 10 cents per 100 pounds, which is equivalent to a raise of 25 per cent. Four hundred and twelve firms state that the financial loss to them will be $8,550,449, which would indicate a railroad and mill loss of not far from $45,000,000 annually. Seven hundred and forty-seven firms report that they will cease the use of red cedar shingles and will use substitutes, which would be a severe blow to Clallam county. Two hundred and fifty-six firms state that because of car shortage they cancelled orders for shingles that involved a financial loss of $2,300,000. These figures are startling and there is no reason to believe they are exaggerated, because they are from the buyers of shingles. The lumber production of the United States for 1906 was 37,000,000,000 feet, of which Washington produced 4,300,000,000 feet. Should the increased scale go into effect the buyers wlll purchase their material from the South and North and the Coast trade will suffer accordingly. In 1897 the net increase of the Northern Pacific was $6,059,-233, in 1906, $30,103,043. The net earnings of the Great Northern in 1900 was $10,370,670, and in 1906, $23,361,145. The operating expenses on the Hill lines are less and the net savings greater in comparison than the gross earnings of any of the leading railroads of the United States, 46 in number. Mr. J. J. Hill alleges that the reasons for advancing the rates are that cars are hauled empty across the country for lumber; but figures compiled by the Pacific Coast Lumberman's Association show that the empty car haul is smaller on the Pacific Coast than on the Eastern lines. It is also significant that the net earnings of the Northern Pacific in 1906 were exceeded by but one railroad in the United States—the Pennsylvania. Mr. Hill has repeatedly made the statement that the rate on lumber, Seattle to St. Paul, was 90 cents per 100 pounds prior to the building of the Great Northern. Mr. Hill is in error. The rate was 55 cents. Every business man in Clallam county is interested in the effort of the lumbermen to prevent the new rates from going into effect and should make their views felt.

STATISTICS FOR STRAITS FERRY.

The C. P. R. agents at Victoria and Seattle are anxious to secure statistics of the quantity of freight that can be relied on for the support of a railway ferry service between this port and Victoria. It is hoped that the Commercial Club will prepare data that will furnish all the necessary information for the Canadian company. The car-ferry boats of the Blakeley mill company are lying idle and might be easily placed on the run, carrying passengers and east-bound lumber and shingles to Victoria for transportation thru British Columbia to their destination. Port Angeles has been badly used by the steamboat company. It has been cut off from a good market by the arbitrary and shortsighted policy of the Alaska company in refusing to run a boat to Victoria, and they need not be surprised if the people of this growing place should in self-defense turn to the C. P. Ry. Co. for relief. All talk about a want of patriotism because a foreign line will be patronized to the exclusion of an American line is tommy-rot. The American line has not done its duty by its fellow citizens who not turn for relief to their foreign neighbors and will and should agree to give them all their freight and passengers if they will do the square thing by Port Angeles. After arrangements shall have been completed it will be too late for the Alaska company to win back their lost ground. Victoria's demand for better service was turned down three years ago and the agitation produced the magnificent Princess Victoria. Is it too much to hope that the agitation here for a direct boat will produce similar results?

WORTH $423 — NOT A VERY LARGE TREE AT THAT.

Raymond, Sept. 21.—Four fir logs, all cut from the same tree and containing over 42,000 feet, were shipped to the Kalg-Gilbert Lumber company's mill at this place the first of the week from the company's camp near Raymond. Each log occupied a car. The larger log was 101 inches in diameter at its small end and was thirty-six feet in length, containing over 17,000 feet. The measurements of the other three logs were in the following order: Eighty-two inches in diameter and thirty-six feet long, 8,748; fifty-three inches in diameter and forty feet long, 5,900 feet. In addition to these four logs, another log of smaller dimensions was cut from the tree, but has not yet been shipped to the mill. This would undoubtedly bring the t otal up over 45,000 feet. The larger logs are perfect specimens and are perhaps the largest that have yet been sawed by a mill at this place. The stump from which the tree was cut measured ten feet eight inches in diameter. At $10.50 per thousand, which is the price paid on this harbor for high-grade fir, the four logs would bring over $423.

WILL NUMBER CITY RESIDENCES

J. P. Hughes has secured permission of the City Council to number the houses of Port Angeles on the Philadelphia system. The plan is in use in all American and Canadian cities and has the approval of the postal authorities. Briefly stated it allows a number to every 25 feet frontage on all streets. Starting at Front and Laurel streets, for example, and running South along the first block between Front and First Sts., the numbers will commence at 1 and and run to 23 on the east side of Laurel street. On the west side will appear the even numbers. Continuing on Laurel from First to Second streets will appear the 100 block, and will contain from 101 to 123 on the east side and from 102 to 124 on the west side. The next block will be the 200 block on Laurel street and so on all streets running north and south. Should you have an address for 612 Laurel street it therefore will be in the block bounded by Sixth street, six blocks from Front street. On all blocks running from east to west the division point will be Laurel street, and all streets or avenues east of Laurel will be designated East, as East First, East Second, East Third street and so on. Streets or avenues running east and west will be designated as West First, West Second and West Third, Laurel street being the division point the entire length of the city.

HOLLY CULTURE.

California cannot grow the English holly and at Christmastide buyers are sent to the north to purchase branches for the decoration of dinner tables and drawing rooms. The demand is large and big prices are paid at San Francisco. For a small sprig of holly 50 cents is chargd by the florists of California and much money is made every year by growers and dealers. Victoria holly is esteemed as the best; but in previous articles the Olympic-Leader has shown that weather conditions here are similar to those of Victoria, and if roses, dahlias, carnations and chrysanthemums as fine as any in the world can be raised here, why not holly? There are, in fact, many fine holly trees in this city; but all home-owners should plant the tree that is emblematical of our Saviour's natal day, especially as there is money to be made by its production? It requires about five years for a holly tree to reach the age when it bears the delicate red berries that are so sought after by lovers of the chaste and beautiful, and we would suggest that those who take a pleasure in gardening, or who wish to combine money making with pleasure, to plant holly extensively; the initial stock can be obtained of our home nurserymen. There is no fear of a glut in the California market for many years, if ever, and the certainty of a good profit should induce people to make the most of this opportunity. The fear that others shall reap where they may sow should not concern those who plant today. Five years is not a long time to wait for results. There are those in Port Angeles who have waited twenty years for a railroad with exemplary patience; surely they can wait one-fourth of twenty years for a holly tree to bear.

PAINTING AND SCRUBBING.

The work of painting and scrubbing Front street buildings, as suggested by the Olympic-Leader last week, is progressing. Among the structures that have yielded to the demand for a general clean-up are the Office Hotel, the Olympic Peninsula Land Co.'s offices and C. E. Nailor & Co.'s drug store, the Crystal Laundry and McIvor & Swanson's, and three saloons on Front street. Others will follow the good example, it is to be hoped. The attention of the health officer is called to the condition of many of the back premises within the city limits.

A newspaper may boom a town thru its editorial and news columns, but the critical investor who has sent for a sample copy, first looks to the advertising columns for substantial evidence of push and life. To him they are thermometers measuring the intensity of public warmth. They are the pulse which indicates the healthy condition of the collective body of the people. They tell him whether or not the community is up to the times in business matters.

Have you noticed that basket of large, handsome apples in T. S. Brophy's window? They are the Wolf River variety, one of the largest and handsomest apples grown, and an excellent baking apple when proerly matured. These apples were grown in L. T. Haynes' garden, cor. Front and Peabody.

EAST CLALLAM

East Clallam, Oct. 17.—Alex Clark and Warren R. Dodge, the timber cruisers sent out by the county, returned last week from a two month's cruise in the Dickey Lake country. They are probably through with their labors for this year. It seems a very strange performance on the part of those responsible therefor that cruisers should be sent so far in the woods to cruise inferior timber of small holders when the vast interests of the finest timber in the county available to market along the straits is seemingly forgotten. It looks considerably like an effort to close the mouths of the resident owners, but it won't. The residents, pioneers, have the development at heart, and are not only ready but anxious that a proper and EQUAL assessment of all the vast property interests of the county be made to the end that money can be had for roads—for in good roads is the only salvation of this district, and of the whole county.

Operator Rasmussen killed a fine land otter cub Sunday. It was in excellent condition and quite valuable.

Engineer Rice in charge of the Milwaukee forces in the west end of the Olympic peninsula left Tuesday night on an extended trip. The work will continue with the same vigor during his absence. There are now three crews of surveyors out, and now that they are in the vicinity where wagons can be used more extensively for freighting. They have sent out for disposal about a dozen of their pack ponies. Permanent work is being done by this company, and good prices are being paid for right of way. At the Quillayute River wher the road is condemning an available point there will be a deep cut thru Quillayute prairie, and the company offers something like $150 an acre for the prairie land needed.

Sheriff Cosser and Deputy Clark have been in the vicinity for the past few days. They have raided the two liquor selling joints located at Beaver and Clallam, making good hauls of stuff at each place.

The wharf at this place is undergoing extensive repairs, and by the end of next week will be in good shape to withstand the rigors of the elements this winter.

The gasoline launch Uncle Jim belonging to the Manhattan Packing Company Port Angeles, went ashore in the fog Monday night at almost the identical spot that claimed the Alice Gertrude. The staunch little craft has stood the strain for over 48 hours and is seemingly uninjured. She has 1400 fish aboard, and these will be thrown into the sea, when a tug arrives at high tide to make a pull on her. The launch is in a very perilous position and may yet be a total loss.

Mill Test Demonstrates Value.

Sometime ago a quantity of ore from Mt. Constance was sent upsound for a mill test. The assays had been most satisfactory as well as encouraging, but as a rule assays are not a practical test of value, so enough ore was shipped upsound to allow of a practical mill test being made and all doubts as to the value of the ore settled. The test proves that the ore carries a high percentage of copper as well as a fair percentage of gold. It is thought that the ore will carry a sufficient amount of gold to pay all working expenses of the property, leaving the copper as a clear profit.

This is most gratifying news as it demonstrates beyond question that the Olympics are rich in minerals and in the future will develop into one of the most flourishing mining sections on the Pacific Coast.

The Fruit trees and Ornamental stock of the Ennis Creek Nurseries are very fine this fall. The trees are vigorous, large and clean.

In addition to Apples, Pears, Plums, Prunes and Cherries, they have a lot of Peach trees of the choice kinds that bear good and ripen in August.

Prices very reasonable for first class stock. T. H. CARTER, Port Angeles.

Resolved, that hereafter no plats of city or townsite additions will be aproved by this Board, until the boundary lines of such additions shall first be established by a competent civil engineer, and surveyed into lots and blocks and a stake plainly designating the number of the block placed at the corner of each block, and that the streets and alleys of such plats must correspond in width and directions with those already established in adjoining additions when such plats adjoin others already platted. And that the plat be accompanied with a certificate of a competent civil engineer that such surveys have been made and corners estatblished.

The Board allowed the following commissioners claims:

G. M. Lauridsen, three days salary $12.00

H. J. Bugge, three salary and mileage $17.00

K. O. Erickson, three days salary and mileage, $31.40

The Board adjourned to meet November 1st, 1907, at 9:00 a.m.

Reclamation In Bible Lands.

A vast region in Asiatic Turkey, having for its center Bagdad, which for centuries has been arid, is to be brought back to cultivation if engineering and irrigation experts have their say. Modern methods will be used, but they can only serve to put in operation the forces of nature which the ancients once manipulated so as to transform a primeval desert into a garden. Consul Magelssen, writing from Bagdad, calls attention to a vast irrigation programme which engineers have declared feasible. He says:

In ancient times, when the whole of Babylonia-Mesopotamia and the greater portion of the country lying between the Tigris river and the mountains of Persia and Kurdistan were artificially irrigated, these parts held the principal granaries of the world. The luxurious growth of grain upon these alluvial flats excited the wonder of the Greek travelers who visited the east, and, according to Herodotus, the soil yielded commonly two hundred fold and sometimes three hundred fold. Herodotus would not tell the whole truth for fear that his veracity might be doubted. When the Chaldeans peopled the delta of the Tigris and the Euphrates they constructed vast irrigation works, which turned the whole land from a desolate waste into one huge garden. The whole plain was studded with prosperous and populous cities, set in the midst of engirdling areas under wheat; for it is from this region that wheat, at first found in a wild and uncultivated state, was taken and gradually transplanted all over the world.

In those days the land was protected against the inundations of the rivers and watered in seasons of drought by a stupendous system of dikes and canals, which at the present day, in a ruined and sand choked condition, cover like a network the face of the country. Once the crown of the possessions of the powers which swayed the east, it is now a barren waste. The irrigation works of the ancients perished because the country was so torn asunder by strife that they ceased to keep them in repair. The scene of the sudden destruction which overwhelmed the cities of the plain is still visible. The river Tigris burst its bonds and temporarily engulfed a great area, and from that day to this desolation reigns supreme around ancient Opis.

It seems that the Euphrates changed its course some years ago, and valuable date gardens as well as rice lands are dying out. One of the schemes proposed for temporary relief while the larger works are under construction is to pump water into the old bed of the Euphrates during the dry months.

Paternalism In France.

Indirectly at least the strike of the wine growers in the south of France may be traced to paternalism in government. The French government has long carried paternalism to extreme lengths, and since France became a republic the leaders have kept to the paternal idea. It is not strange that the wine growers should regard the government as the source of commercial prosperity and also of adversity. The central authority was asked to stop the adulteration of wine so as to help the real product of the vine. When this was granted the government was asked to find a profitable market for the wine.

This foolish demand of the wine growers for state aid might have been laughed down but for the fact that a large and densely populated section of the country was touched in its pocket. Village mobs or peasant uprisings may be suppressed, but "you cannot indict a whole people." For the section involved an uprising like that in the south of France has all the evils of a civil war. It may be put down by an iron hand, but the people will insist that they have been outraged.

The man on the end of the street car seat is with us once again as the summer cars are brought out and the people take to the trolleys for pleasure. He sits as tight as ever and refuses to budge. He minds not the knees that bump into his own, or the feet that tread upon his feet, or the black looks cast his way, or the sarcastic remarks that fall for his correction. He is case hardened, oblivious, indifferent. He recks not the discomfort he causes so long as he maintains what he considers his rights. Perhaps in time he may be softened by repeated applications of heel and toe as congested passengers make their way past him, but only such treatment is likely to be effective.

In view of the situation in their fatherland, Patrick Henry's words, "Gentlemen may cry peace, peace, but there is no peace," would sound pat on the lips of the Russian delegates at The Hague conference.

In giving $300,000 for research in the diseases of advanced life Mrs. Sage seems not to be mindful of the fact that a German specialist abolished them a year or two ago by a sour milk diet.

The French deputies may comfort themselves with the reflection that they are not the only people who have trouble over a wine bill occasionally.

The customs officers are constantly coming into contact with people who favor free trade in practice whether they advocate it in theory or not.

What Your Tailor? TRADE MARK REGISTERED 1906

THE MAKING of clothes to measure involves many intricate operations, each of these operations must be performed by an expert, otherwise the suit is irretrievably ruined and not fit to wear.

Our Chicago Clothes Makers, Ed. V. Price & Co., select their operatives with care and every man in their employ represents the best in the professions represented. This means more money expended, for high grade tailors command the best wages, but it also means better made, better fitting clothes for you at less price than the small tailor can or will give you.

They have facilities for absolutely fitting each suit over the lines and curves of the body—suits that carry distinctiveness and style and are their own insurance on durability.

They are discussing in England the compulsory use on automobiles of automobile controllers to prevent a machine from running above a maximum speed on public roads under any conditions. There is said to be no difficulty in furnishing the devices.

MAY THROW DOWN BARS

Canada May Admit Chinese Laborers to Keep Out Other Orientals.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 15.—At the approaching session of the Dominion parliament, which opens in November, it is understood that a move will be made to throw down the barriers against Chinese immigration into Canada by abolishing the head tax on Chinese, which is now practically prohibitive. It is asserted that this step would afford a solution to the Oriental problem, which is now assuming an acute phase among the people of British Columbia, particularly in the Coast cities.

It is pointed out that when the Chinese were allowed to enter the Dominion at a nominal tax rate, there was very little trouble with Japanese arrivals and absolutely none from the Hindus. If the head tax were abolished or even reduced to a nominal amount, there would follow a big inrush from China. The Chinese would work for such small wages that the people of British Columbia would be able to solve the Japanese immigration problem by giving Chinese labor preference, and so shut out the Japanese from the rougher labor market, while the whites could control the more skilled labor.

As to the Hindus, the climate, even on the Coast, is far too rigourous for them, and if it were not for the inducement of big wages they would not come to Canada at all.

SMALL SUSPENDED

DRASTIC ACTION BY TELEGRAPHERS' EXECUTIVE BOARD.

Immediate Cause Was Advice of President Small That Keymen Should Vote Strike Off and Return to Work---Vote Is to Keep Up Strike.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Striking telegraphers all over the country held meetings yesterday and by a practically unanimous vote agreed to hold out to the end for the enforcement of their demands on the commercial companies.

At many of the meetings President S. J. Small, who on Saturday sent out a message recommending that the local unions vote on the proposition of calling off the strike, was condemned for his action and his resignation was demanded.

At 11 o'clock last night three members of the executive board met on call at the headquarters of the general officers of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of Chicago and summarily suspended President Small from office.

At the same time the executive board took charge of the strike and addressed a circular to all unions, urging them to continue the strike. A message was sent to President Small notifying him that he had been suspended.

None of the members of the board would discuss its action further than to say that a quorum was present and that the board had acted well within its authority in summarily suspending its president.

No formal charges of any kind have been made against President Small and only dissatisafction with his methods of conducting the strike is given as the reason for his suspension, but the members of the board are confident that their action will hold.

The suspension of the president of a great labor union in the heat of a general strike is practically unprecedented. The officers are confident, however, from the vote of the local unions that their action will meet with the approval of practically every member of the union and that no internal trouble or strife will follow.

The message of President Small, instead of ending the strike, appears to have brought the strikers closer together in their determination to hold out against the companies.

SANTA FEE CONVICTED ON REBATING CHARGE

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 12.—After being out twenty minutes the jury in the case of the government against the Santa Fe Railroad Company, on trial for rebating in the federal court here, brought in a verdict of guilty against the railroad on all of the 66 counts of the indictment. The maximum penalty which may be imposed is over a million dollars and the minimum $66,000. The charge against the Santa Fe was that it had granted rebates from its regular tariff on shipments of lime by the Grand Canon Lime and Cement Company, of Arizona. The defense of the railroad company was that the rebates were "concessions" made for alleged losses in the shipments during transit. In his decision on the law points which arose during the trial Judge Welborn laid down in point of law which is held to be one of the most important which has been enunciated since the interstate commerce commission was instituted. He said:

"I hold that the acceptance by the defendant of a less sum of money than that named in its tariff for the transportation of the property described in the indictment, if there has been such acceptance, was a departure from the legal rates, and that it is no justification for such a departure,nor is it any defense to a prosecution thereof that the acts of the carrier were done in compromise of claims for loss of property in transit."

ALTON MUST PAY

Circuit Court of Appeals Overrules Petition for Rehearing.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Judges Grosscup, Baker and Seaman in the United States court of appeals, have overruled a petition of the Chicago and Alton Railway Company for a rehearing on its appeal from the $60,000 fine imposed by Judge Landis a little more than a year ago for rebating.

The railroad company's defense in the trial of the rebate case was that its payments to the packing company were for the use of that company's industrial tracks.

State Wins Escheat Case

Olympia, Oct. 10.—Tax Commissioner J. H. Easterday has returned from South Bend, where he successfully prosecuted a suit for the escheating to the state of Washington of an estate appraised at $3,682. This was contested by Pacific county, the tax commission holding that under the new law, passed by the last legislature on the subject, estates will hereafter escheat to the state instead of to the counties in which they are located.

Edward and Nicholas to Meet

Copenhagen, Oct. 16.—A meeting between King Edward and the czar has been arranged to take place here, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Politikens.

NEW INTERURBAN ROAD

Company Organized to Build Between Seattle and Tacoma Along Sound

Tacoma, Oct. 14.—Articles of incorporation of the Seattle-Tacoma Short Line have been filed. The capital stock is $6,000,000 and the company is to build an interurban road between Tacoma and Seattle. It is the outgrowth of what has heretofore been known as the Muckler-Wightman line, for which franchises have been secured in Tacoma and Seattle. The new line will make the trip between Tacoma and Seattle in one hour, following the Sound much of the way, making an ideal scenic road. Construction will begin as soon as the remaining right of way contracts can be made and the material secured.

The names of the incorporators include several well known in Seattle and Tacoma financial circles, though Eastern capital will for the most part build the road.

The line will be thirty miles long and will be double tracked the entire distance.

RAVENSDALE MINE FIRE NOW UNDER CONTROL

Tacoma, Oct. 10.—C. R. Claghorn, general manager of the Northwest Improvement Company, which operates the Ravensdale coal mine, which has been devastated by fire for several days, has arrived here from the mine, where he has been superintending the work of smothering out the conflagration. The fire he said is now under complete control. The mine will be opened again the last of the week.

"We will begin work," he said. "on a new slope which we have just opened and thus avoid interfering with the old slope where the fire is located. In fact, we may permanently abandon that particular section, as it would be expensive to retimber it. We did not find the fire very hard to deal with, but by simply sealing up all the openings succeeded in forcing back the carbon di-oxide, black damp and other gases produced by the fire, and are thus smothering out the fire with its own fumes. When I left the air coming from the openings in the mine was almost down in temperature to normal point.

"We do not know what caused the fire, and probably never will, nor do we yet know what the loss will amount to. It will depend upon the length of time the mine is shut down and the cost of making repairs."

TAFT GETS GLAD HAND IN CHINA

Shanghai, Oct. 12.—The comment of the Chinese press, officials and people on the visit to Shanghai of War Secretary Taft is most enthusiastic. The reports published in the newspapers on this subject have been telegraphed to all ports of China. The general feeling of the Chinese on the uttreances of Mr. Taft may be summarized as follows:

The assurance that the United States will not sell the Philipines is welcomed, as it means that there will be no extension of Japanese influence and a continuation of American influence in the far East.

The Chinese desire to interpret Mr. Taft's statement reiterating that the United States favors the open door policy in China as being unofficial but at the same time being made on high authority and indicating that the United States will support it in China and maintain the policy in Manchuria, the only place where the open door is threatened.

Mr. Taft's endorsement of the United States court for China over which Judge Wilfly presides is looked upon as meaning a continuance of the justice as demonstrating that the United States is really interested in China.

The enthusiastic welcome accorded to Mr. Taft here atones for the boycott of American goods and demonstrates China's friendship for America. The assurances given in regard to fair treatment of the emigration question are accepted in good faith. China trusts the United States and believes in her as a true friend.

NAVAL COAL SHIPS EXEMPT FROM TAX

Washington, Oct. 12.—Foreign bottoms carrying coal for the United States navy will not be compelled to pay the tonnage and light dues assessed under regulations of the department of commerce and labor.

A decision to this effect has been rendered by Attorney General Bonaparte, the question having been referred to him when the British tramp steamer Ferenden, carrying coal from Newport News ot San Francisco, protested against paying the charges after carrying a cargo of coal to the navy yard, Puget sound.

To Ship Mechanics From East

New York, Oct. 15.—A call for 10,000 skilled mechanics and laborers to go to the Pacific coast and give the North Atlantic squadron a thorough overhauling on its arrival in Pacific waters, will be issued by the bureau of naviagtion and supplies within a few weeks. All men who are accepted by the department will be paid their transportation, as well as that of their families, but they will be required to sign an agreement to remain in the employ of the government as long as their services are needed on the Coast.

VILLAGE WIPED OUT

POWDER MILL EXPLOSION DOES IMMENSE DAMAGE.

Fifty to Sixty Persons Killed and Over Two Hundred Injured. Every House in Town of Twelve Hundred Inhabitants Is Wrecked.

Terere Haute, Ind., Oct. 16.—Forty thousand kegs of powder and fifty tons of dynamite in the Dupont powder mills at Fontanet, seventeen miles from this city, exploded yesterday, killing from fifty to sixty persons, injuring fifty more so badly that at least half the number will die, and inflicting innjuries of a less serious nature upon 200 more.

Every house in the village of Fontanet was wrecked. Not a single building remained staanding and the 1,200 inhabitants of the place camped last night in tents or slept in the open air.

Both the hospitals at Terre Haute are full and surgeons rushed to Fontannet from all the towns and cities within a radius of 100 miles, are supervising a field hospital erected a few hours after the accident by Company B of the Indiana national guard, rushed to the scene on a special train from this city.

"Green" Workmen Blamed

The explosion was the most severe in the history of Indiana and probably the most extensive the country has ever knwon.

Cincinnati and Louisville felt the shock and observers of seismic instruments in those two cities announced that there had been a sharp earthquake. A few minutes later bulletins of the disaster informed them of their mistake.

The mills occupied three acres of ground half a mile outside the village of Fontanet, which is a coal mining center and depends largely upon the power mills for its sustenance. Work had been heavy at the mills and to fill the orders the superintendent had doubled his force.

It is believed this was the indirect cause of the explosion, the theory being that some green workmen, unacquainted with the precautions necessary in such dangerous employment, inadvertently sprang the terrible mine

Windows were broken in Danville, sixty miles away; $10,000 worth of damage was done in the town of Brazil, twelve miles off; fully $25,000 worth of property in Terre Haute, seventeen miles away was ruined, and a corresponding amount of damage done in twenty-four surrounding towns, villages and cities.

CRUISERS IN PIERCE OPEN OFFICIAL EYES

Tacoma, Oct. 15.—The cruisers who are cruising the forests of this county are finding a good deal more timber than it was supposed they would find when the work was ordered done. Chief Cruiser Duval has made reports to Assessor Railsback and the board of county commissioners, showing that the forests in the hill country in the eastern end of the county are much heavier than had been supposed. His reports are just beginning to open the eyes of the officials to the fact that the county has been losing thousands and tens of thousands of dollars annually in undervaluation of the forest lands in its borders and a consequent small taxation.

About twenty cruisers are now at work in the country and are giving highly satisfactory service to the county officials. They began in the foothills of the Cascade range and are trying to cruise all the hill lands of the county before the heavy snows that fall in the high altitudes in the eastern part of the county stop the work for the winter. County Assessor Railsback is adding to the force as fast as he can find competent cruisers.

WELLMAN ARTIC STEAMER IS LOST

Copenhagen, Oct 12.—The arctic steamer Frithjof, which accompanied the Wellman Chicago Record-Herald expedition to Spitzbergen, was lost off Cape Langenes, Iceland, October 5. The captain and fifteen of her crew were drowned. The engineer clung to a plank, on which he drifted ashore. The Frithjof was homeward wound to Norway, having been damaged by ice, and consequently was unable to withstand a storm which she encountered off Cape Langenes.

Alaska Salmon Pack

Seattle, Oct. 16.—The 1907 salmon pack of Southeastern Alaska will approximate nearly 1,000,000 cases, of which Pacific Coast Company will have shipped more than 400,000 cases and the Alaska Steamship Company more than 450,000 cases when final cargoes are received here.

Santa Fe's Sentence Postponed

Los Angeles, Oct. 15.—The passing of sentence upon the Santa Fe Railway company, convicted last week of rebating shipments of lime between Arizona and California points, has been postponed until November 4.

CONSPIRACY CHARGE

FISH GETS OUT INJUNCTION AGAINST HARRIMAN.

Combination in Violation of Both State and Federal Laws Alleged by Former President of Illinois Central---Great Legal Contest Promised.

Chicago, Oct. 15 —Stuyvesant Fish fighting to overthrow Edward H. Harriman and James T. Harahan in their control of the Illinois Central railroad, yesterday afternoon enjoined the voting at Wednesday's annual meeting of 288,761 shares of stock held by Harriman-Harahan voters. With this large amount of stock, out of the outstanding 950,000 shares, silenced by court decree, Fish now hopes to be able to control the railroad and to reinstate himslef as the prime factor in the position whence he was hurled by Harriman.

The Harriman-Harahan interests met this action with the statement that the move is a confession that Fish is beaten and that he is in the attitude of a man who challenged another to a duel and then, arriving upon the ground calls a policeman to protect him from his adversary. It is added in rebuttal that the same shares that Mr. Fish now seeks to enjoin were in 1906 voted by Mr. Fish when they were placed in his hands to be voted for his benefit.

The new movement insures the warmest railroad battle in the nation's history when the forces of the two leaders get together at the main offices of the company to elect directors.

Conspiracy Alleged

In his legal document, Mr. Fish unfolds the most gigantic allegations of conspiracy that have ever been made respecting the manipulation of any corporation. He charges, in effect, that E. H. Harriman proceeded to manufacture a "list" of stockholders, composed of lawyers in the employ of the road and personal friends, clerks and agents, who have been marshalled for the big meeting tomorrow. Neither Mr. Harriman nor Mr. Fish would last night claim a majority of the remaining votes that are to come into play at the meeting.

Fish's remarkable legal step came yesterday afternoonn, when he presented to Judge William M. Ball, in the superior court, an application for a restraining order estopping the directors of the road from permitting the casting or counting of the shares owned by the Union Pacific, the Railroad Securities Company and the Mutual Life Insurance Company, alleging that under the laws of Illinois one corporation may not own and vote stock in another.

Federal Laws Violated

It is also charged that the Union Pacific and Railroad Securities Company are stockholders in a competing line of road in violation of the federal laws, and the court is asked to decree that they sell their holdings within a reasonable time.

This feature of the case opens up a line of federal action that is presumed to be what Mr. Fish placed before President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay during the summer, and upon which it was stated that the president declined to act. It is certain to lead to a legal battle in which it will be asserted that the Union Pacific stands in the same relation to the Illinois Central that the roads composing the Northern Securities Company did to each other, or, in plain words, that the ownership of the one by the other is a trust in violation of the law.

Replying to this charge in general, the Harriman-Harahan interests say that the Illinois law, while limiting the powers of corporations to hold stocks in other corporations makes such limitation only with respect to industrial corporations and not to railroads.

GREAT DREDGING PLANS

Many Acres of Montana Gold Bearing Soil to Be Exploited.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 15.—New York men have purchased outright and secured options on thousands of acres of land lying from twelve to thirty miles east of this city and propose carrying out the largest dredging scheme ever attempted in Montana. The ground secured extends from Canyon Ferry to almost the head of Confederate gulch along the Missouri river. Ten dredges will be installed.

Confederate gulch is a famous early day mining district, and one acre therein holds the world's record for actual result in placer mining, this acre having one season yielded a little more than $1,000,000. The territory also embraces the famous Eldorado bar section along the Missouri river, which yielded thousands upon thousands to the early day placer miners.

From the very discovery of gold in Helena to the present day placer mining has been conducted in Confederate gulch and with splendid results. There is still much land in the gulch that it has not been profitable to work because of the expense of getting it down to water, but which can be handled by a dredge at comparatively no expense.

Harriman Denies Reports

New York, Oct. 15.—E. H. Harriman has declared that a report that he had sent out to the general manager of the Southern Pacific instructions to reduce all expenses other than maintenance and to stop improvements on account of stringency of the money market was untrue.

TO REFORM HOUSE

CONGRESSMAN BOUTELLE WILL INTRODUCE PLAN.

Would Make It a Debating In-Stead of a Speech-Making Body---Increasing Membership Renders Necessary Some Change.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Representative H. S. Boutell, of the Ninth Illinois district, has a scheme to transform the national house of representatives into a body similar in appearance to the British house of commons, and will incorporate his plan in a formal resolution when congress meets in December.

Mr. Boutell proposes to take out all the desks in the hall of the house, reduce the floor to one half its present size and in the remaining space build tiers of seats extending from the speakers' desk to the main door of the house. This would give the members much more lobby space in which to receive constituents and friends and provide double the amount of gallery space now allotted to spectators.

It is Mr Boutell's idea in this way to make the house a debating instead of a speech making body. He desires to eliminate the long speeches for the benefit of constituents at home, better utilize the time of the members, enhance the interest of the public in the debates and make the Congressional Record an absorbing periodical. He has already discussed the plan with the architect of the Capitol and has tentatively accepted drawings which he will explain to his colleagues after his resolution is referred to the committee on libraries.

The Illinois member believes that with the increase in the membership of the house every decade, the admission of Oklahoma, bringing the membership up to 391, actual debate will constantly grow less, and that the only way to restore the easy conditions which prevailed in the first half of the last century would be by having the floor so arranged that members might be within conversational distance of each other and might thereby better understand each other. When in Washington recently he discussed the plan with Representative McCall, of Massachusetts and he expects that the Massachusetts member will also urge the scheme.

THIRD TERM DECISION PARTLY FAMILY MATTER

Washington, Oct. 15.—Women have changed the faces of empires, and why shouldn't a woman have a strong voice in saying whether such-and-such a man should rule the republic of so-and-so?

Capitol gossip asserts that Theodore Roosevelt will keep his promise not to again run for the presidency, and in that retirement he will not only be fulfilling his promise to the people but a pledge to his wife.

Mrs. Roosevelt long ago, it is said, informed very close friends that her husband and she long ago decided that, as purely family affair, not a political one, he would leave the White House March 4, 1909.

The spreading of that story during the last couple of days has caused a stir, of course, but as far as society alone is concerned, a second piece of gossip is of interest. This comes on such good authority that it may be classed as confirmation rather than as gossip. It is that Mrs. Roosevelt reluctantly has consented to introduce her younger daughter, Ethel, to Washington society, probably in Christmas week of 1908. Mrs. Roosevelt, says her confidante, is determined to shield Ethel from the publicity that came to Alice Roosevelt, and she would prefer that the former girl wait until the family should be established in private life. Still she realizes what it is for any girl to make her social bow in the White House and for that reason she will grant to Ethel just three months as a social grown-up, with the crowning joy of the inaugural ball; that is, if the chief personages at that fete be congenial to the Roosevelts.

Mrs. Roosevelt from the first hour of the president's incumbency has been solicitous about its effect on her children. Often she has pleaded with persons not to spoil the children and has exerted all her influence to keep their doings out of print. Particularly, she has wished her daughter to enjoy girlhood and its joys without the exaggerated importance which attaches to those in high official life. She will not be 18 until the summer of 1909.

First Money for A. Y. P. Exhibit

Olympia, Oct. 16.—State Treasurer Mills yesterday received from the state land commissioner $1,456.44, being the first payment into the state treasury of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition fund. The money comes from the sale of Lake Union shore lands. There will be receipts daily for some time in this fund, as payments are being made as rapidly as contracts can be checked up and deeds issued.

The Ancient Order of Vikings, a Norwegian fraternal order, will construct a clubhouse at Tacoma to cost $50,000.

GUGGENHEIM TAKES MEN

Will Furnish Employment to All Laborers Out of Work at Valdez

Seattle, Oct. 14.—Gov. Hogagtt of Alaska Saturday requested the Guggenheim intersts to provide employment for the 400 railroad laborers thrown out of work at Valdez by the failure of the Alaska Home Railway. In his cablergam the governor declares the men are penniless and unable to collect the wages due them. He is now at Valdez and fears that if the men are left in that town serious trou ble will occur. The townspeople cannot support the men and no one save the Guggenheims can provide convenient employment.

Prior to the receipt of the governor's cablegram the Guggenheims had agreed to take a part of the men, but in view of the governor's personal appeal cabled instructions have been sent that all of the men should be given employment. They will be taken from Valdez and sent to Katalla for work on the Copper River and Northwestern.

RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS ARE FOR STATE CONTROL

Washington, Oct. 12.—After a four days' session the nineteenth annual convention of the National Association of State Railroad Commissioners adjourned. Next year's session will be held in this city.

At the closing session a report was submitted by Commissioner Staples, of Minnesota, on "Rates and Rate Making," that antagonized federal control of railroads to some extent, expressing the belief that it would be better to lodge that control "as near home as possible." The report, which was adopted, continued:

"So far as we are advised we know of no general reduction in railroad rates due to any action by the federal authorities. We believe the best interests of thep eople would not be served by placing the entire responsibility for rate control in the federal government."

"In the matter of the requirement of the interstate commerce commission that the freight tariffs of the various railroads be posted conspicuously in all the stations of the United States, an important hearing was held at the offices of the interstate commerce commission yesterday. It was the intention of the commission in framing this order to provide a practicable and efficient method of familiarizing shippers with railroad tariffs

At this hearing practically all of the principal carriers of the country and many shippers' oragnizations were represented. The carriers' representatives expressed their desire to do everything reasonable in the matter of furnishing the shippers their rates, but they pointed out that if it were made necessary to furnish at every station posted information concerning rates to every possible point in the United States, it would be such a burden upon them as would be unreasonable and unfair.

WOULD ENJOIN RAILROADS

Lumbermen Want Courts to Interfere in Case of Proposed Rate.

Portland, Or., Oct. 12.—Suit has been filed in the United States circuit court by the Oregon and Washington Lumber Manufacturers' Association against the Hill and Harriman lines, asking for an injunction restraining the railroads from putting into execution the advance in tariffs on Eastern lumber shipments from this coast November 1. Judge Wolverton entered an order citing the railroad companies to appear in court October 29 and show cause why an injunction should not issue.

The complaint alleges a conspiracy in restraint of trade forbidden by the federal laws; that the new rates are discriminatory against the Northwest lumbermen and in favor of the Middle Western and Southern states; that the net earnings of the Hill and Harriman lines have been steadily increasing under the present lumber rates and that, unless enjoined from putting the rates into effect, the consequences will be to ruin the lumber industry on the Pacific coast.

The design of the suit is to keep the railroads from putting the new rates into effect until the interstate commerce commission has an opportunity to hold a hearing on the justice of the advance and render a decision on the merits.

Public Dock Is Wanted

Seattle, Oct. 12.—Charles V. Beardslee, of Bothel, has commenced the circulation of a petition asking the county commissioners to establish a public dock on Lake Washington at Madison street. The petition will be circulated in all the small towns on the east side of ake Washington. It is claimed that dockage rates asked by the Seattle Electric Company are too high, and the county commissioners are asked to give relief by the construction of a publlic dock with a schedule of rates sufficient to care for maintenance.

Prominent Seattle Merchant Dead

Seattle, Oct. 10.—Nels B. Nelson, of the firm of Frederick & Nelson, one of the largest furniture house on the coast, died October 4, aboard the steamship Tietjen, while traveling from Christiania, Norway, to New York. Word of his death was received yesterday after the steamship Tietjen docked at New York. The body will be shipped to Seattle for interment. Mr. Nelson's trip abroad was for the purpose of regaining health.

FIGHT JOINT RATES

ROADS ASK INJUNCTION AGAINST STATE COMMISSION.

Petition Filed in Federal Court at Seattle to Restrain Enforcement of Order of September 20 and Praying that State Law Be Declared Invalid.

Seattle, Oct. 12.—The Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern railways have renewed their fight against the state railway commission and its effort to enforce the state railway commission law, passed in 1905 by the Washington legislature. These three companies have filed in the federal court here a petition against the railway commission and against each other asking for a temporary injunction restraining the commission from enforcing its order of September 20, in which it put the joint rate law into effect, and praying that the law itself be declared unconstitutional.

The complaints are all directed against H. A. Fairchild, J. C. Lawrence and Jesse Jones, as members of the state railway commission, and Attorney General John D. Atkinson.

Although the case has been in the federal courts before, the present case is instituted to finally test the validity of the law passed by the legislature giving the commission power to fix a joint rate on wheat in this state.

History of Litigation

The original bill filed by the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company against the railway commission, which sought an injunction against the commissioners' order August 1, 1906, establishing a joint rate on wheat, states that the commission required the railroad company, upon the demand of any shipper along the line, to haul wheat in carload lots to Wallula Junction, there to be delivered to the Northern Pacific, or to Spokane for delivery to the Great Northern. It fixed a maximum rate of 19 1-2 cents a hundred pounds, or $3.85 per ton for the entire haul over all lines, but did not fix the division between the carrier companies. This resulted from a hearing held in Eastern Washington in the summer of 1906. The bill of the railroad company sought to secure a decree declaring the act creating the commission unconstitutional and alleged that the joint wheat rate order was unreasonable and interfered with interstate commerce.

The court then issued a temporary restraining order, pending final decree, restraining the commission from enforcing its joint rate order.

Acting under amendments to the state commission law, passed by the last legislature, the commission, on May 13, formerly revoked the joint wheat order it had promulgated on August 1, but at the same time made another directing the companies to apear on June 21, of this year, to answer complaints regarding joint traffic. The O. R. & N. claims this paved the way for another joint rate order, and to forestall this the company asked the injunction to be made permanent.

Oil Case Dismissed

On June 18, three days before the day set by the commission for hearing complaints against the interchange of traffic between the roads, the commission apeared before Judgee Hanford to show cause why it should not be restrained from holding its hearing. A. J. Faulknor, assistant atorney general, moved for a dismissal of the case on the ground that the commission had abrogated its joint rate order of August, 1906, against which the restraining order had been issued, and asked that it be declared permanent so that a real test of the joint rate legislation might be made. This was done by the court, which, however, allowed the commission to hear the traffic complaints.

In a bill in equity covering 75 closely written pages the railroads essay to show why the order is unconstitutional. They state that the second order requiring then to put the joint rate into effect, served on September 20, failed to provide which railroad shall furnish cars for these joint shipments, what shall be paid each railroad by the other road, to what place the cars shall be returned after the wheat shipment is made, who shall keep an account of these shipments and who is responsible for loss and delay.

Roads Cannot Agree

It is alleged that the roads cannot agree between themselves on this point, and that in fixing these matters by a peremptory order the commission is making each road bear an unjust portion of the burden. If compelled to do this, the complainants declare, freedom of contract will be denied. This they declare to be unconstitutional. Hence the effort to get relief in the United States courts The old argument that the complainant roads conduct an interstate business and are not subject to state laws which shall regulate traffic that is bound for Portland or any other outside point is also advanced.

It is stated that the commission is now threatening to impose on these roads the penalties provided for by the state law, and against the possibility of this they are now asking for an injunction.

Wenatchee, Oct. 10.—Fruit from the valley has taken first prize on all varieties exhibited at the Illinois state fair. A telegram received here yesterday brought the news.

THE TRAMP FLOWER.

Betty grew within a garden,
  Long ago.
Tended by old-fashioned fingers,
  Trained just so!
Fairest of the flowers they thought her,
Lovers for their ladies sought her,
And for love and money bought her,
  Lady Bet.

Fair and fine was pretty Betty,
  Long ago;
In her perfumed gown of lacework,
  Made for show.
Freshest dews from heaven kissed her,
Ne'er a balmy zephyr missed her,
Sunbeams hastened to assist her,
  Dainty Bet.

But their fickle fancies wavered,
  Long ago;
And a rival flower won them,
  Ah, the woe!
Fashion's cruel whim dethroned her,
Robbed her of the prestige loaned her;
Old-time friends in vain bemoaned her,
  Pretty Bet.

Thrust from out her native garden,
  Long ago;
Betty crept upon the highway,
  There to grow.
Now she nods from every corner,
Wildness has of beauty shorn her,
Till the passing children scorn her,
  Gypsy Bet.

She that was so fine and dainty,
  Long ago;
Tended by old-fashioned fingers,
  Trained just so!
Grazing kine have tramped and maimed her,
Long neglect has paled and shamed her,
And the vulgar youth have named her
  Bouncing Bet.

Someone's Letter

"You and I have always been such good comrades, Peggy, I am going to tell you something," Adams began, leaning forward to obtain a better view of Miss Bruce's pleasant features.

"Only a little while ago, as I was coming along the beach, the wind caught a scrap of paper and swirled it around so near that I grabbed it, and had read it, before I realized what I was doing. It was part of a letter in which some girl described her ideal man for her best friend's information, and—I know you will laugh—I couldn't help recognizing myself."

"What a conceited thing to do," Peggy retored, smiling. "Girls write lots of nonsense."

"This wasn't nonsense, if you please; it rang true. I mean to find out who that girl is," he declared.

"I believe you are half in love with her already," she insisted mischievously.

"Perhaps I am," Adams admitted, calmly.

"Oh, Mr. Adams," they heard in affected tones, as Violet Sincell hurried to where they were seated on a ledge of rocks near the sea. "I hope I haven't kept you waiting long."

"That's all right," said Adam, rising. "We're going sailing, Peggy. Won't you come along?"

"No, thank you, I hope you will have a pleasant time." She waved her hand in farewell, and returned to the Bruce cottage, at which she and her father were entertaining a small party composed of Emory Adams, a young lawyer whom she had known from babyhood, and his mother, besides her two friends, Violet Sincell and Bernice Shaw.

Sea and sky were a soft, cool gray, the light changing from moment to moment. By the time Violet and Adams returned from their afternoon's outing an impalpable curtain shut off the ocean from view, rain began to fall, and the waves dashed thunderously against the rocks. A constraint seemed to have arisen between Violet and Adams, and, after dinner, Miss Sincell, pleading fatigue, went to her room. The remainder of the party were engaged in a game of bridge, with the exception of Peggy and Adams.

Miss Bruce, who Adams thought looked very well in a soft, white gown, seated herself at the piano and began the Brahms Wiegenlied, while he leaned against the instrument, listening to her playing. Suddenly she raised her brown eyes from the keyboard to his face, its strong features framed in smooth lustrous hair.

"You look worried, Emory?" she observed. "Did you and Vi have a quarrel this afternoon?"

"Oh, bless you, no," he hastened to say. "She was frightened at the fog, and once she clutched me around the neck and nearly upset the boat. She is a nice girl, and an awfully pretty girl; yet I think I should feel relieved if I knew that she didn't write that letter."

"Now that is too bad," Peggy told him. "Vi has taken a great fancy to you. She speaks of you and Boston in the same tone she uses when referring to heaven and the angels."

The consternation expressed on Adams' face at the information sent Peggy into a gale of laughter. "Don't look like that," she gasped; "I don't believe her infatuation is serious—you needn't feel obliged to propose."

Adams came nearer to Peggy's side. "Miss Shaw is hardly the kind of a girl who would disclose her feelings easily, it seems to me," he confided, in a lowered tone. "I like her; she has a strong, fine personality. But——"

"Are you determined to run that poor girl, who wrote a silly letter, to earth?" Peggy interrupted. "Take my advice, and forget that you ever saw what was not meant for your eyes."

"Probably that would be the more sensible course," he agreed, giving Peggy's hand an affectionate squeeze, as he recollected how often she had counseled and sympathized with him. When he was in his own room he opened his memorandum book and took out the folded scrap of paper to reread the simple confession. He started to tear it into pieces, but something deterred him; he replaced it, half ashamed of his sentimentality.

II.

"What are you young people going to do today?" queried Mr. Bruce, after breakfast the following morning. He was a rotund gentleman, a favorite with Peggy's friends. "Come out to the quarry this afternoon, if you've nothing else on hand."

"Perhaps we will," Peggy answered; "we want to go to Gloucester to shop this morning, if you will let us have the automobile."

"I can do without it, I guess," he said, pinching her ear gently. "You'll look after them, won't you, Adams?"

"What am I, a mere man, when girls are on shopping bent," he rejoined gayly. "I'll do my best, Mr. Bruce."

Their departure was made in high spirits. The short distance was traveled in good time, and Adams left the girls at a milliner's, with the understanding that he would meet them in two hours at a drug store.

He visited one or two shops to make a few purchases on his own account. Then, as considerable time remained, he went to the library, where, in the reading room, his eyes fell at once upon Bernice Shaw.

"I thought you were buying frills and furbelows with Peggy," he remarked in surprise, sitting down in a chair beside her. "I dropped in to read an article a friend of mine has in this magazine. I want to tell him I've read it, when he asks me."

Miss Shaw appeared disturbed by his presence, turning the leaves of her magazine without reading them. Adams glanced over the articles in question, and retired in a discomfited frame of mind, as he had hoped for a quiet little talk with Bernice.

As he lounged on the beach behind a summer hotel he pondered deeply over the mystery of the authorship of that confession. Perhaps Miss Shaw's embarrassment was caused by her consciousness that the letter was in his possession. Certainly he was in a predicament, for he was obliged to own that he did not feel either one of the two girls would satisfy him in a wifely capacity.

"DID YOU AND VI HAVE A QUARREL?"

When he went for them Peggy said Bernice was not coming then, but would come later by trolley.

By the time the hour arrived when they were to visit the quarry, Violet excused herself on the plea of fatigue, and Bernice had not returned.

"There will be only you and I," said Peggy dubiously; "perhaps we would better wait until another time."

"There is no reason why we should not go," Adams replied. "It won't be the first walk we have taken together, by any means."

They sauntered along in a merry mood, Adams thinking that, after all, there was no girl quite like Peggy. When she married, things would hardly be the same, he reflected. The idea did not suit him; he became more serious.

"I think Bernice expected to meet Mr. Totheroh," Peggy confided; "it isn't announced yet, but I don't mind telling you they are engaged.

"Really!" Adams replied, absently. "He is a good fellow; I know him well."

"Don't be so glum," Peggy answered after a little, when significant silences were punctured by remarks on the weather and the scenery. "If you are still worrying about Vi, I will tell you that I saw that new boarder we met at the Ocean View going out with his camera shortly before she decided not to join us."

"Then her young affections are not blighted," he responded, with an attempt at jocularity.

When they reached the quarry Peggy clambered around here and there in a fearless manner. Her father, who had expected to meet them, had been called away, but all the workmen knew Miss Bruce. Adams watched her small, trim figure as she sprang from rock to rock with the increasing conviction that no woman could ever be to him what Peggy was—the truest, dearest little comrade in the world. Suddenly his heart leaped into his throat.

"Peggy!" His voice rang out, stern, imperious, as he rushed forward and, seizing her arm, jerked her violently out of the dangerous position she was in. There was a dull roar, and a granite ledge was riven apart. A block fell precisely where she had stood.

The color died out of Peggy's face, Adams drew her hand within his arm.

"Steady, dear Peg," he said tenderly. "Foregive my roughness. I hope I didn't hurt you."

"It didn't matter. I—I don't know how to thank you," she stammered.

In the twilight they walked home together, both sobered by the danger Peggy had escaped; Adams quite as much by the new knowledge of his own heart.

"Little girl," he said, abruptly "I didn't know how much you meant to me until I thought I was going to lose you. I've fallen in and—out of—love any number of times, as you know; but I am done with trifling. I belong to you; please, Peggy, will you marry me?"

A crimson wave replaced Peggy's pallor. After a brief silence, she murmured:

"I never thought you cared for me—in that way. What about the girl whose letter you found?"

"Really, I don't care who she was," he returned impatiently. "Don't you love me, dear?"

Peggy's dark head dropped until he could not see her eyes.

"I may as well tell you," she avowed, "that I wrote that letter."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

He Was Sitting Down.

The late James A. Bailey, famous as the successor of P. T. Barnum, once accepted an invitation to a dinner tendered to a bride and groom among the "freaks" of his circus. He was late in arriving and found the company politely awaiting him. There were living skeletons, dwarfs, Circassions, snake charmers, the "girl that spoke seven languages and had two heads which made fourteen languages in all," the "dog-faced boy" and others. Beaming upon them with paternal air, the happy manager acknowledged the genial "Hello, pop," that went around the festal board.

"I am sorry I kept you waiting," he said, taking his place at the table. "I believe there are several new additions to the company. Is this the groom?"

"No," replied a deep voice from the full beard addressed, "I am the bride."

"I beg your pardon," said Mr. Bailey, "I did not recognize the bearded lady. But, tell me, which is the groom?"

"I am," proclaimed a very thin voice.

"I congratulate you, my man," said the manager. "Sit down, let us on with the feast—sit down."

The guest addressed at once began to ascend seemingly until his head was in the neighborhood of the canvas roof, from which height he looked down and said:

"I was sittin' down, pop—I was sittin' down!"—Success Magazine.

The First Boy Journalist.

When the library of ex-Governor Pennypacker of Pennsylvania was sold recently, there turned up among other odd volumes a complete file of the first magazine edited by a boy. It was bought by Mr. Beck, formerly assistant attorney general of the United States.

This unique volume was entitled, "The Juvenile Port-Follo and Literary Micellany." It was named for one of the earliest American magazines. Its editor was Thomas G. Condle. Young Condle's father was the publisher for one year of a monthly magazine for adults, and was engaged for many years in the general publishing business in Philadelphia. His son, who was born in 1797, had a natural fondness for the business, and in 1812, when he was 15 years old, founded his own monthly.

The "Juvenile Port-Follo" consisted each issue of four pages, a little larger than eight by five inches, and with two columns to the page. The editor made a house-to-house canvass for subscribers, and a list of more than six hundred of them is printed in the bound file.

The magazine had a life of a little more than four years until young Condle graduated from the University of Pennsylvania and began the study of law.

Although Condle has often been referred to as the founder of juvenile journalism, this is the first time evidence has been found to support that title, as the other files of his paper have disappeared.

The Hyena in Shakespeare's Time.

John Trevisa wrote that "the hyoena is a cruel beast like to the world in devouring and gluttony. It is his kind to change sexes, for he is now male and now female and is therefore an unclean beast. And cometh to houses by night and feigneth man's voice as he may, for men should trow that it is a man, and herds tell that among stables he feigneth speech of mankind and calleth some man by his own name and rendeth him when he hath him without. And he feigneth oft the name of some man for to make hounds run out that he may take and eat them."—Shakespeare's Natural History."

A Passing Thought.

A polite little girl was dining one day with her grandmother. Everything at the table was usually dainty and unexceptionable, but on this particular occasion the little girl found a hair in her fish.

"Grandmamma," she said, sweetly, "what kind of fish is this?"

"Halibut, my dear."

"Oh," replied the child, "I thought perhaps it was mermaid."

PORT ANGELES SCHOOL NOTES

(Edited by the Senior Class.)

The Juniors have elected the following officers:

President, Mr. Leland Beam.

Secretary and Treasurer, Miss June Stakemiller.

A party of lady teachers of the Central school, consisting of Misses Vaupel, Hopkins, Babcock, Pugsley and Taylor, enjoyed an automobile ride to the Elwha River Saturday. All report a good time and the pupils pleasant dispositions on Monday.

Miss Post, Miss Bohen, Miss LeLourd, and Miss Patrick spent Saturday and Sunday at the lakes, taking great pleasure in the invigorating air and lovely scenery at this popular summer resort.

A teachers' meeting was held in Central building Friday, Oct. 11th. At this meeting the census list was canvassed and a number of pupils between the ages 8-15 were found missing. The attendance officer will at once look up these pupils and find reason for absence or compel attendance.

Some time was given to a discussion of calesthenics and breathing exercises and the superintendent gave out to teachers the first of a series of exercises to be used in the school during the year. Miss Vaupell was appointed secretary for the meetings.

Not to be outdone by their elders, the Sophomores, following the good example set them by the Juniors, organized, and elected the following officers:

President, Mr. Floyd Haynes.

Vice Presideut, Miss Beatrice Allen.

Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Daphne McLaughlin.

A new telephone is about to be installed in the school building on Lincoln Heights. the generosity of the Patrons Club is again in evidence.

MR. BOGUE BURNED OUT.

The house cor. Francis and Georgiana Sts. was destroyed by fire last Saturday morning. There being no water pressure the building and contents were a total loss, save only a cook stove and table. W. B. Bogue and family, recent arrivals here, occupied the house, losing everything. The family was temporarly absent when the fire started, which was probably caused from a defective flue. The property belongs to Mr. Buck who carried an insurance of $500 on the house. Mrs. Buck arrived Monday to look after the place.

CHERRY TREES.

We offer for sale this season a fine lot of Cherry Trees, also choice varieties of Apple, Pear, Plum and Prune trees, Berry Plants of the best varieties, Walnut and Filbert Trees, Ornamental shrubs and trees. Largest stock of Home grown trees in this part of the country. Call and see us or write for price list.

ENGVOLSEN NURSERY CO.,
Props. Homestead Nurseries, 9th and Peabody Sts., Port Angeles.

FOR SALE.

A comfortable 5 room house and 14 lots. The house supplied with water raised from a creek of good water to a 12 barrel tank 20 feet above the house. The lots are well located on a creek, extending a block and a half up and down the creek bottom, which is the very best of soil. This place can be made one of the finest in the city. Only 20 minutes walk from post office. Inquire at Olympic-Leader office.

FOR SALE OR RENT.

I will sell my dwelling and lots, Seventh street near Oak, at a great sacrifice if taken before November 1st. House nearly new, with all modern improvements and conveniences. Good barn, sheds, etc., and fine orchard. Terms if desired. If not sold, will rent till May 1st, 1908, to satisfactory tenant.

JAS. G. MCCLINTON.

JENNY WREN CLUB.

Mrs. John Trumbull will organize a Jenny Wren club for the girls of the Congregational Sunday school, at her home next Friday afternoon, after school. All little girls, whether attending the Congregational Sunday school or not, are invited to join with them, meeting once a week to design and make Christmas presents.

We are also showing a new line of couches and bed lounges at prices that will make them sell. H. Gutenberg & Co's Hardware and Furniture Store.

CROUP

Begins with the symptoms of a common cold; there is chilliness, sneezing, sore thraat, hot skin, quick pulse, hoarseness and impeded respiration. Give frequent small doses of Ballard's Horehound Syrup, (the child will cry for it) and at the first sign of a croupy cough apply frequently Ballard's Snow Liniment to the throat.

Mrs. A. Vliet New Castle, Colo., writes March 19, 1902: I think Ballard's Horehound Syrup a wonderful remedy, and so pleasant to take.

YOUNG MEN'S ATHLETIC CLUB

The preliminary organization of a young men's athletic club was effected last evening, the movement being started by by Rev. Rogers and Rev. Henderson of St. Andrews. The store building east of Seevers' has been secured for a hall; the front will be partitioned off for a reading room and the remainder of the building used for basket ball and later, when apparatus is received, as a gymnasium. It is expected the new club will have a membership of about fifty; dues will be one dollar per month.

About half the amount necessary for the Parish House, intended as permanent club rooms for the young men of the city and county, has been raised and there appears to be no doubt of ultimate success.

WILL TEAR DOWN TRESTLE.

The city council has instructed the street committee to tear down the old P. A. E. trestle, between Laurel and Lincoln streets. The only unsafe portion of the structure, that lying east of Lincoln, is beyond the jurisdiction of the city and will probably be allowed to fall and drift up on the beach. Contractors say the cost of removal will be greater than the value of the lumber.

HAD PROSPEROUS SEASON.

The Manhattan Canning Co. of Port Angeles have filled all their cans and are shutting down. The Bellingham has taken a cargo for shipment by rail to the East and there are further shipments to be made. The eastern market is not oversupplied with fish and good results are anticipated. A late fall run of silversides is now on in the straits, the fish entering in large numbers.

Remember Baker will trade you a new heater for your old one.

Roosevelt's Railroad Policy.

Paul Leroy-Beaulieu, the distinguished French economist, is reported to have expressed the opinion recently that Mr. Roosevelt has gone too far in his interference with state and commercial enterprise. While in his opinion the president is right in his endeavor to curb the trusts, everything tending toward state ownership of railways should be antagonized. The conclusion must be, under this expression, that the French economist believes that such ownership is the aim and the end of the agitation promoted by the president.

To what stage Mr. Roosevelt may advance in his study of the economic problem to which he has devoted so much attention of course cannot be known. The president himself probably could not tell. But certainly, so far as any one can tell, he has gone no further than the strict regulation of the corporations. The French economist has probably been misled by the argument frequently used that in view of the state of public sentiment the regulative plan advocated by the president must be sincerely accepted by the railroads or governmental ownership will follow as a popular demand which cannot be resisted. The meaning of this is that public sentiment is so stirred that it could be easily led to a consideration and advocacy of such ownership were the Roosevelt plan defeated by opposition from the corporations.

Displaying Our Battleships.

Our fleet maneuvers are undertaken for the sole purpose of giving to the ships and their personnel that broad training which it is impossible for individual vessels or small squadrons to acquire. In war the battleships are certain to be concentrated, and efficiency in a fight turns on their ability to act in concert. And they must not only learn to act together, but grow familiar with conditions.

In recent years there have been maneuvers off the coast of Maine, in Massachusetts bay, on Long Island sound, in the gulf and on the south Atlantic coast. It has been understood and even planned by the general board of the navy that the Pacific would in time be the scene of general maneuvers. Our fleet in eastern waters has been reduced in order to bring vessels home to take part in the maneuvers. If the ships are sent back or replaced by others and a large American fleet appears in the Pacific, there is no good reason why Japan or the world at large should attach significance to the incident. It is only part of our general purpose and policy to keep our navy up to date.

Long Distance Power.

It is believed that electric power generated at the Victoria falls, on the Zambezi river, can be transmitted 700 miles and used to commercial profit. The cost of electricity increases enormously in proportion to the distance over which it must be delivered, and in Africa the long distance project might pay, owing to the high cost of fuel and the value of power.

In this country the conditions make it possible to use long distance power profitably in some places. For instance, the cost of coal at points on the Pacific coast is so great that power has been transmitted from mountain torrents a distance of 200 miles. In cities of the Atlantic belt it is computed that about fifty miles will be the limit at which it will pay to transmit electric power generated from rivers.

Inflamed by a rabid jingo element, the population of Japan is uttering warlike threats against the United States as a nation for the anti-Japanese riots that occurred in San Francisco in connection with recent labor disturbances. The Jap and our federal government are keeping cool, and great diplomats of both nations are saying soothing things. The American people are not angry and won't inflame for a cent. That the trouble in Nippon grows out of ward politics on a huge scale is an opinion prevalent in this country.

If the limitation of armament is really the key to international peace, then the great power which voluntarily sends its Dreadnoughts to the scrap heap will deserve the next Nobel peace prize.

Reaction will not lack earnest champions so long as the small boy pleads for the good old time Fourth of July racket his grandpa tells about.

Cuba wants the loan of a few American plumbers, a very easy proposition unless the plumbers refuse to emigrate.

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by over-work, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the st potent, invigorating restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retro-version or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native, medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients printed in plain English on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Dr. Pierce thus invites the fullest investigation of his formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best agents known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his free booklet treating of same.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy, of known composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.
