OLYMPIC LEADER

VOL. 21. NO. 16. PORT ANGELES, WASHINGTON. FRIDAY. APRIL 17 1908 PRICE 5 CTS

MADE IN PORT ANGELES

Nineteen Ton Launch, Costing Over Four Thousand, Built for Capt. A. T. Johnson by Home Men.

There was launched, last Sunday evening, from the East End shipyard, by Capt. A. T. Johnson, the designer and o vner, one of the best boats ever built in this city, and there have been several first-class ones constructed during the past year. Mr. P. J. Wold was the master mechanic, and every piece of timber was selected for its special duty and had to be perfect.

The vessel is 50 ft. long, 5 ft. hold with beam of 13 ft. 6 in., and measures about 19 tons. She will be fitted with 30 h.p. coal oil engine, and the engineroom will be in charge of Capt. Johnson's son. Wm. Clegg is doing the pipe-fitting which is a guarantee that it will be of the best.

The boat made her trial trip, going to Clallam, and all parts were found to work accurately. She will be known on the register books as the "Pearl." Johnson & Bork will do the lettering, thus making the boat a complete "made in Port Angeles" production.

The cost will be near $4,000 and there is already business enough in sight to make the money value of the vessel a good investment, and demonstrates that Port Angeles is the best place on Puget Sound for building boats of her class, both for material and workmanship.

I do not carry ladies' clothing; my motto is to do one thing well and let the rest go. I have the best and most exclusive line of Men's Wear outside Seattle; call and see for yourself.

COUNTY FAIR WILL BE HUMMER

Col. Peters and Attorney Ritchie visited the east end of the county last week in the interests of the coming county fair, finding everyone interested and more than willing to promise a liberal participation in the way of displays of agricultural products, and in attendance. Meetings are to be held in Dungeness and Sequim next week for local organization, following which Messrs. Peters and Ritchie will visit the ranchers in the west end. There is no longer any question about the success of the fair, either in exhibits or attendance; it will be so complete a success that the committee from the Commercial Club will find itself swamped in its endeavor to handle the enterprise.

SUSIE E. DAY

Elmer Day's new launch, the handsomest craft of its kind ever brought to Angeles, evidently having been built for speed, being long and slender and pointed at both ends, was brought down Sunday by Messrs. Day and Church, making the trip from Seattle in eleven hours, and from Townsend, where they took on a passenger, Allan Trumbull, in 5½ hours against a strong breeze. She will be taken to Lake Crescent about May 1st.

RECEPTION FOR THE FLEET

Formal Notification of Coming Visit Received from Secretary Metcalf. May 21st the Date of Arrival.

Navy Department, Washington,
April 9, 1908.

Sir: — The Department acknowledges the receipt of your letter dated March 30, 1908, extending a cordial invitation on behalf of the City Council to the vessels of the Atlantic Squadron to visit Port Angeles at some time during their stay on Puget Sound.

In reply thereto, the Department takes pleasure in informing you that a division of the Atlantic Fleet consisting of four battleships will visit Port Angeles, arriving about May 21st.

It is requested that the thanks of the Department be extended to the City Council for the cordial invitation contained in your letter.

Very respectfully,
V. H. Metcalf,
Secretary.

Mr. E. E. Seevers,
Mayor Port Angeles, Wash.

At the meeting of the Commercial Club Monday evening, a preliminary discussion was had on the question of a suitable reception of the Pacific fle t in May. The decoration of the streets and provisions for entertainment of officers and men should and will be the most complete of anything ever undertaken here. The fleet will be visited, while in our harbor, by practically every resident of the county and Port Angeles must not only do her best, according to her ability, in the way of welcome for the ships, but should endeavor to make the occasion a grand galaday celebration for every out-of-town visitor. Manager Coker has promised an excursion s eamer, to make several round trips to Victoria on such occasions and it is thought the Chippewa will be available for the purpose. A committee, the mayor and finance committee, has been appoin d by the council to represent the city in the preparations and it is suggested that every organization in the city should also take an active interest. In union there is strength—and results.

The fire department was called out Wednesday noon by an alarm from the General Hospital, where sparks from a chimney had started a fire on the shingle roof. Neighbors kept it under control until arrival of the chemical engine.

OPPORTUNE TIME IS NOW

Angeles Should Take Advantage of Ever Increasing Demand and Secure Fruit and Vegetable Cannery.

"The canning business is on a tremendous increase in this state," said Andrew Webber, secretary of the Wasshington canners association, the other day. "We expect this year to double the output of last season. There is a great demand for Washington fruit, greater than there is a supply to fill it. We raise in this state fruits superior to the California products of the same varieties, and there are only a few of the California varieties which are not also grown here to profit.

"It is bound to be but a short time until canneries become much more numerous here. We believe the entire industry is still in its infancy and that in time the fruit growing and canning in this state will have attained such a growth as that which has come to California within the last thirty years."

SENT TO CHILDREN'S HOME

Annie and Edward Freeman, aged 5 and 7 years, were taken from their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Freeman, on Tuesday by order of the Superior court and awarded to the custody of the Washington Children's Home Society. The evidence showed that the mother had deserted and relinquishes all claim to the children and the father being sick and unable to work could not support them and consented to their commitment and adoption by the Home.

ZIMMERMAN RANCH SOLD

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zimmerman who have resided on school land six miles east of town for the past 15 years and have now one of the best ranches between here and McDonnell creek, have sold their place to Mr. and Mrs. Brown, who have been looking over this vicinity for some weeks past. The consideration is said to be $6,000.

GOODWIN DRY KILN REBUILT

The dry kiln to replace the one burned at the Goodwin Mill and Shingle Company's plant about a month ago, is now about complete. New pipe was used throughout, the fire completely destroying the piping of the old kiln. The company will begin cutting shingles shortly.

The time having arrived to open the bids for the construction of the bridge on Road No. 39, between stations 52x80 and 55x23.

P. J. Woods, bid $1,790.00.

W. A. Woods & C. Wise, bid $2,740 00

L. G. McBurney's bid, $1,998.75

J. P. Shotwell and A. W. Grierson, bid No. 1, sawed timber $1,935.00; bid No. 2, round timber $1,865.00.

P. J. Woods' being the lowest and best bid, the Board awarded the contract to him.

The time having arrived for opening the bids for the construction of the 3,400 feet of road No. 79, and Frank Anderson's bid of $350.00 being the only bid on file the Board awarded the contract to the said Anderson.

The Board appointed W. T. Belford as Justice of the Peace for Port Angeles precinct, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of S. P. Carusi.

The Board instructed the auditor to advertise for bids for the construction of that portion of road No. 59, commencing at station 129 of the survey of said road, thence along the line of survey in a southerly direction to station 164, a distance of 3,500 feet, according to the plans and specifications on file in the county engineer's office.

The matter of opening the bids to do the county printing for the year ending June 30, 1909, came on, and there being two bids on file, the Board opened said bids which were as follows:

Tribune-Times bid:

We will publish in the Tribune-Times all notices, calls and official publications whatsoever required by law to be published, including the proceedings of the Board, at the uniform rate of sixty (60) cents per inch per insertion; we will publish the notice and summons in foreclosure for delinquent taxes, as furnished us by the treasurer at the statutory rate of ten cents per description, head and tail of said notice and summons to be paid for as other official matter; all notices or matter of whatsoever kind to be set in the body type of the paper, known as brevier or eight point, excepting the delinquent tax list. We will furnish a good and sufficient bond in amount to be fixed by you, for the faithful performance of contract.

Webster Publishing Company:

We will publish in the Olympic Leader all official publications, including proceedings of Board of Commissioners, calls for bids, treasurer's notice, etc., same to be set in ordinary reading type, (brevier), at fifty cents per inch each insertion. We will publish the treasurer's delinquent tax notice and summons in foreclosure at the rate of ten cents each description, as provided by law, the head and tail of said notice to be charged for at the same rate as other official matter.

We will furnish bond to secure county in event of failure to complete contract.

The Board laid the matter of awarding the contract for the county printing over for further consideration.

It appearing from the records that the s hf of sw qr, of sec. 2, and the ne qr of nw qr, and nw qr of ne qr of sec. 11, and lot 1, and s hf of ne qr and ne qr of se qr of sec. 5 tp. 30 n, r 9 west, w m had been sold by Clallam county, to the Union Development Co. for taxes for 1901 and prior years, and later sold by the Union Development Co. to the Puget Sound Mill & Limber company.

And it further appearing from the records that said above described lands were proved up on in Oct. 1907, and therefore not assessable prior to the year 1908.

Therefore the county auditor is ordered to draw a warrant on the current expense fund in favor of the Puget Sound Mills & Timber Co. for $1131.20 that being the amount paid for said tax titles, including taxes and interest for the years 1802-1903-1904-1905-1906 & 1907.

The county auditor is ordered to deliver said warrant to the Puget Sound Mills & Timber Co. upon the filing by said company of a quit claim deed to said above described property to Clallam county.

The Board approved the plat of "Sportsman's Park," the same being a plat of lot 1 sec. 22 tp. 30 n, r 8 west W. M. and platted by W. E. Burnside trustee.

The Board approved the plat of Frank Anderson's subdivision, which comprises lot 7 sec. 14 tp. n, r 9 w of W. M., except one acre in the northeast corner thereof, and which is platted by Frank Anderson and wife.

The board adjourned to meet Wednesday the 8th day of April 1908 at 1 o'clock p. m.

Wednesday the 8th day of April 1908, at1 o'clock p. m.

The board met pursuant to adjournment, all members being present.

The board approved the bond of Morris Kerkes given to secure the county for contract on road No. 66.

The board approved the bond of David Govan given to secure the county for contract constructing a change in the Forks-Clallam Road, being a distance of 5456 feet.

The board approved the bond of A. R. Leake Justice of the Peace, Ozette Precinct.

The board instructed the auditor to advertise for bids for the construction of Beaver Creek Bridge on the Forks-Clallam Road near Beaver Prairie, according to plans and specifiactions on file in the county engineer's office.

The board accepted the resignation of Jas. W. Gwinn, Justice of the Peace of Forks Precinct and appointed O. J. Ford to fill the vacancy.

The petition of R. A. Whitcom for the improvement of the Solduck river received, and the board referred the same to the county engineer for his report.

The board took up the matter of the county printing for the year 1908, and after due consideration rejected the bids for the reason that they were too high, and instructed the county auditor to re-advertise for bids.

Whereas, it appearing from the records that W. J. Dyke had been asessed for a personal tax for the year 1906, for improvements on government lands, in Townships 30 n, r 12 west W. M. and it further appearing that the claim on which improvements were made, was contested by another party, and the land office decided the case against said W. J. Dyke and he lost the claim.

Therefore the board ordered the county treasurer to cancel said personal tax on the tax rolls.

The board instructed the auditor to draw a warrant on the current expense fund of $50.00 for the Incidental expense account.

Whereas, it appearing that Ludwig Hahn, had been charged with poll tax for the year 1907, and that said tax had been attached to his real estate, and it further appearing that said Ludwin Hahn was over 50 years of age, and therefore exempt from poll tax, therefore

They ordered the Treasurer to cancel said poll tax on the tax roll.

A Western industry very much neglected in proportion to its returns, so far as publicity goes, is poultry raising. It returns to the farmers of Washington and Oregon more than $10,000,000 a year at the most conservative estimate, and this with thousands of cases of eggs shipped from the Middle West to meet the local demand. The climate of the Pacific slope is particularly adapted to the rapid and healthful growth of poultry.

LADY ATTENDANTS

AS TO CORPORATIONS

NOW HOLDING OPPOSITE VIEWS EXPRESS OPINIONS AT PHILADELPHIA.

Congressman Burton Believes Question of Boundary Line Between State and Federal Control Will Be Determined in the Future Largely By the States Themselves.

Philadelphia, April 13.—The closing session of the anual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science was held last Saturday afternoon and evening, at which the questions of "The Nation and the Railways" and the "Federal and State Control of Corporations" were discussed by men who hold opposite opinions concerning federal control of corporations. Among the speakers at the evening session were Congressmen Burton of Ohio, John Sharp Williams of Mississippi and James L. Slayden, ex-State Circuit Judge C. M. Hough of New York and Henry M. Moyt, solicitor general of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Judge Hough in his address said:

"I regard as axiomatic those propositions that corporations requiring governmental control have received too little in the past and will get a great eal more in the future; that the desire for such control grows largely out of the majority belief that men accustomed to large affairs are somehow untrustworthy and must be restrained by those less competent in business, but more numerous at the polls; wherein the trustee is to be governmentally coerced into conduct primarily pleasing to the majority and, it is charitably hoped, incidentally profitable to himself, and that this governmental control must usually be in the hands either of congress, or of a legislature, but in some cases is divided between them."

Congressman John Sharp Williams spoke on "Federal Usurpations," and said:

"Every government abuse is based on some plea or pretext and the usurpations of power by government is generally based on 'necessity,' the tyrant's plea. This real or fancied necessity generally grows out of war. This has been especially true with regard to legislative and executive usurpations by our federal government."

Mr. Williams said that what had been actually accomplished "by legislative rebulation or pretending to regulate interstate commerce is nothing compared to what is proposed."

Representative Burton discussed "The State and Nation as Units of Control," and in conclusion said:

"The question of the boundary line between state and national authority will be determined in the future largely by the states themselves. There need be no fear of usurpation on the part of the federal government."

A letter was read from President Roosevelt, inviting President Rowe f the American Academy of Political and Social Science to participate in the conference of governors of states and territories in conservation of general resources, which is to be held at the White House May 13-15.

Martin A. Knapp, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, in a speech referring to the Sherman anti-trust law, said:

"Nothing indicates more the profound sagacity of the president than his call on congress for a modification of the bill."

WIPE OUT LAST LOTTERY.

Federal Officials Rejoice Over Result of Chicago Trials.

Chicago, April 14.—Fines aggregating $10,150 have been imposed by Judge Bethea in the United States district court against 28 men who were arrested in various parts of the country on the charge of being connected with a lottery. The heaviest fine was $6,000 and it was placed upon David H. Jones of Chicago, said to have been the owner of the Old Reliable Guaranty Loan and Trust Company and the head of the lottery concern. John Miner, the chief agent of Jones, was fined $1,000 and the other defendants were fined from $100 to $125 each.

One man, David Sharp, of Fort Madison, Iowa, failed to appear and his bond was forfeited. Five others asked time in which to consult their attorneys and their cases were continued.

The federal authorities declare that with the breaking up of the Jones concern they have finally wiped out all lotteries in existence in the United States.

Workmen Elect Officers.

Spokane, April 11.—The Ancient Order of United Workmen assembled here in state convention has decided to meet next year in Seattle. W. S. Danner, of Seattle, has been elected grand master workman; J. H. Hemer, of Seattle, grand recorder; Thomas Jacka, of Hoquiam, grand foreman; Harry A. Fisher, of Tacoma, grand receiver, and T. L. Brown, of Olympia, grand outside watchman.

Big Engines at Stampede.

Tacoma, April 13.—One of the two big Mallet type of locomotives, which the Northern Pacific railroad will put into service in the Cascade mountains, pushing freight trains over what is known as "the hump," arrived Friday at Stampede and the other will be on hand within a few days.

MILLMEN WILL CONTEST FOR GROUP BONDS

Seattle, April 13.—In an oral decision, Federal Judge C. H. Hanford ruled that the lumbermen who are members of the Pacific Coast Lumber Manufacturers' Association, and the Shingle Mills Bureau, may file group bonds in lieu of one large bond in the sum of $200,000. For the purpose of facilitating matters, Judge Hanford arbitrarily divided the lumber and shingle shipping portion of the state into twelve districts, in each of which two bonds, one to guarantee the payment of rate differences on lumber shipments, the other to guarantee the rates on shingles may be filed.

The districts as outlined by Judge Hanford are to follow county boundaries and are as follows:

King, Kitsap, Snohomish, Skagit and Island, Chehalis, San Juan and Whatcom, Mason and Thurston, Lewis and Cowlitz, Pacific and Wahkiakum, Pierce, Jefferson and Clallam, Clark and Skamania.

The decision provides for twenty-four separate bonds. The amounts of these bonds will be fixed by the court, as is the case of intervention bonds, on the showing of probable amount of shipments that will be made by the shippers in each group.

Judge Hanford continued the injunction until next Thursday, by which time all the bond arrangements must be completed. The court held that the injunction will be dissolved next Thursday, except for those who are properly bonded in accordance with the decision handed down yesterday.

TEN THOUSAND HOMELESS AS RESULT OF CHELSEA FIRE

Chelsea, Mass., April 14.—Ten thousand persons rendered homeless, at least three burned to death, half a hundred injured, and a property loss of approximately $5,000,000 summarizes the record of disaster which confronts Chelsea as the result of a great fire that Sunday swept through the business section, covering an area of 350 acres of ground and representing nearly a third of the total area of the city.

Mayor Appeals for Aid.

Chelsea, April 14.—The following appeal, signed by the mayor of Chelsea and the chairman of the Chelsea relief committee, has been handed to the Associated Press:

"We have been visited by a most terrible catastrophe. One-third of the area of our city has been swept by fire. Five million dollars' worth of property has been destroyed. Our business section is almost wholly wiped out. We are in sore need. We have not lost our courage, but are applying ourselves with all our ability to the task before us. The task is stupendous and we ask assistance of all who are benevolently inclined. He who gives quickly gives double. Subscriptions may be sent to the city treasurer, Thomas B. Frost."

HARRIMAN SOON TO HAVE ERIE RAILROAD

New York, April 11.—Following the action of E. H. Harriman in providing $5,500,000 Wednesday for the payment of maturing notes, it was said in Wall street that the Erie railroad will shortly pass under the absolute control of Mr. Harriman and his associates, who stand ready to spend, under certain conditions, from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 for improvements in terminal tunnels, trackage and rolling stock. If these plans are completed, Mr. Harriman's long cherished plans of a perfectly equipped, complete transcontinental road, with the Erie as the eastern outlet, will be realized.

In addition to furnishing the necessary money to take care of the maturing notes, Mr. Harriman, it was stated, will himself take $5,000,000 of the new six per cent notes, so as to provide the company with funds to meet immediate needs.

FLEET'S VISIT TO SEATTLE IS EXTENDED ONE DAY

Washington, April 13.—Secretary of the Navy Mtecalf has decided to extend the visit of the Atlantic fleet at Seattle. Representatives Humphrey, Cushman and Jones of Washington visited the president and Secretary Metcalf and stated that the people of Washington were greatly disappointed because the ships would stay no longer than outlined in Secretary Metcalf's program of last week. After the conferences Metcalf announced that the fleet would not leave Seattle until May 27, instead of May 26, and that the remainder of the Puget sound itinerary would therefore be set back one day.

Mexico to Control Railroads.

Chicago, April 14.—S. M. Felton, who was recently elected president of the Mexican Central Railway, has arrived here from New York. Regarding the proposed merger of the Mexican Central and the National Railroad Company into one company to be controlled by the Mexican government through stock ownership, Mr. Felton declared it would be the best thing that could happen for the railroads and commercial interests of Mexico.

"It does not mean government ownership," he said, "but a control which is most desirable."

Millers Want Free Wheat.

Chicago, April 13.—A resolution was adopted by members of the Millers' National Federation, in convention here, to petition congress to amend the tariff law so as to admit Canadian wheat billed for foreign countries free of duty.

NEW LIABILITY LAW

SENATE PASSES HOUSE MEASURE WITHOUT AMENDMENT OR DIVISION

Believed It Will Meet Objections of Supreme Court to Former Measure—Contributory Negligence Not a Bar to Recovery but Reduces Amount of Damages Recoverable.

Washington, April 11.—The bill relating to the liability of common carriers for injuries to employes, passed in the house of representatives on April 6, passed the senate without amendment and without a division,

The senate bill on the same subject was not confined to railroads, but covered all forms of common carriers, and Senator Dolliver, who had reported it from the committe on education and labor, sought to substitute it for the house bill, but his motion was defeated. Numerous amendments were offered to the bill, but all were voted down. As passed, the bill is expected to meet the objections of the United States supreme court to the common carrier liability law of 1896, decided to be unconstitutional by the court. The bill abolishes the strict common law liability which bars a recovery for personal injury or death of an employe occasioned by the negligence of a fellow servant. It also relaxes the common law rule which makes contributory negligence a defense to claims of such injuries, and permits an employe to recover for an injury caused by the negligence of a co-employe.

Nothing Barred

The bill does not bar recovery even though the injured one contributed by his own negligence to the injury. The amount of the recovery is diminished in the same degree that the negligence of the injured one contributed to the injury. The bill is now ready for the president's signature.

Three times during the day in the house the Democrats caught the Republicans napping and forced them to produce a quorum. On one other occasion a vote by tellers disclosed the absence of a quorum, but Speaker Cannon peremptorily applied the Reed rule and secured a quorum. In doing so he had a brief but lively clash with Mr. Williams. Notkithstanding repeated roll calls progress was made in the transaction of public business. Both the army and the fortifications appropriation bills were sent to conference; the senate bill to increase the efficiency of the revenue cutter service was, with Democratic help, passed, and the bill to promote the safe transportation of interstate commerce of explosives was considered.

MILLION INVESTED IN WASHINGTON FRUIT

Olympia, April 1.—The commissioner of horticulture, F. A. Huntley, has submitted a report to the governor showing in this state a total of 71,162 acres planted to apples, with 5,337,094 trees; 6,504 acres of pears, with 851,892 trees; 10,630 acres of peaches, with 1,392,760 trees; 7,434 acres of plums and prunes, with 1,044,946 trees.

In addition to the foregoing there are 133,883 trees of apricots, quinces, nectarines, almonds and English walnuts. The total number of acres in the state devoted to the raising of small fruits is 12,325. Beginning with the year 1908 the value of the orchards in the state was $93,821,600.

Huntley further reports that he is formulating plans for a state horticultural exhibit at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition on a scale commensurate with the great importance of this industry in the state.

CANADIAN BOUNDARY AND FISHERIES TREATIES SIGNED

Washington, April 13.—Secretary Root and Ambassador Bryce signed two treaties, Saturday, negotiated recently between the United States and Great Britain. One provides for a commission to determine the boundary between the United States and Canada and the other regulates fishing in the great lakes and contiguous streams. The boundary commission will be charged with the work of resurveying certain sections of the boundary line and determining disputed questions in that conection. It is understood the fishery questions also are placed in the hands of a commission by the terms of the treaty.

New Daily for Tacoma.

Tacoma, April 11.—Announcement of the publication of a new evening newspaper for Tacoma is made in a circular letter sent out by R. F. Radebaugh and F. H. Eastman. The first number is to appear "about the 15th of May," the statement says, "and will begin with twelve, fourteen or sixteen pages." Shortly thereafter "a Sunday edition is promised. The paper is named the Tacoma Daily Tribune." The United Press is depended upon for a telegraph report.

Chinese Boycott Effective.

Hongkong, April 14.—As a result of the Chinese boycott on Japanese goods and vessels, the Japanese steamer America Maru left here for San Francisco without a single package of Chinese cargo. Furthermore, she carries only 25 passengers, as compared with 730 passengers on board the British steamer Empress of India, which cleared from this port for Vancouver.

HILL WILL SPEAK.

To Address Conference of Conservation of Natural Resources of Washington.

Washington, April 14.—J. J. Hill, chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern, will make one of the leading addresses at the White House conference of governors in May on the conservation of natural resources. His subject will be "The Relation Between Rail and Water Transportation."

It is understood that Mr. Hill's subject will lead him into a discussion of the competitive relations between the railroads and the canals of this country. Mr. Hill is one of five distinguished citizens who have been personally invited to attend the conferences.

The others are Grover Cleveland, William Jennings Bryan, John Mitchell and Andrew Carnegie. These guests, with the governors of the states, will be entertained by President Roosevelt at a dinner on the evening of May 12. The sessions will begin the following morning. The plan is to hold two sessions a day for three days.

President Roosevelt will open the conference with an address, and he is also expected to preside at each session. The meetings will be held in the east room of the White House.

Indications already are that the room will be crowded. Each governor will be attended by three delegates and some 40 great uational organizations will be represented. Cabinet officers, the justices of the supreme court, members of congress and the inland waterways commission have been invited, and arrangements will also be made for the accommodation of newspaper and magazine writers.

The importance of the conference and its notable personnel as well as its non-partisan character are indicated by the fact that it happens that practically all of the Republican and Democratic presidential probabilities are on the invitation list. Taft and Cortelyou will be there in their capacity as cabinet members. Knox and LaFollette are invited as senators. Fairbanks and Cannon received invitations because of their positions as presiding officers of the two houses of congress.

Hughes will be on hand as the governor of New York. Bryan is one of the five to receive a personal invitation. Johnson has the same standing as Hughes by virtue of being governor of Minnesota. Judge Gray will attend as a delegate from Delaware.

FINK'S DOG TEAM WINS RACE FROM NOME TO CANDLE

Seattle, April 11.—A Nome cable dispatch to the Times says: In the face of terrible storms, Albert Fink's dog team won the annual race across the Seward Peninsula, from Nome to Candle and return, covering the distance of 420 miles in four days, 23 hours and 15 minutes. Berger came in second and Atkinson third.

The winning team reached Nome Tuesday morning at 6 o'clock and in spite of the early hour, 800 people were lined up expectantly at the finish, as the progress of the race on the trail was reported from time to time by telephone. Fink's team was greeted with such an outburst of enthusiasm as has seldom been seen or heard in Nome.

No less than $200,000 was wagered on the outcome of the event. The ten teams, which started in the contest last Thursday morning, belonged to Fink, Berger, Atkinson, Kjistadt, Lawton, Contu, Adams, Heron, Cary and Derrick. No race in past years has been run under more trying conditions. The trail was bad and the winds were terriffic.

Fink, who is one of the leading lawyers of the north is a dog fancier, and his team wins the championship of Alaska as a result of this race. The test is one of canine endurance and speed that is hard even for the best seasoned dogs of the country. Following its arrival, the winning team received a hearty reception.

HEAVY RUSH OF AMERICAN FARMERS INTO DOMINION

Ottawa, April 14.—The movement into the Canadian Northwest from the border states will be somewhat larger this year than last. It is pointed out that the move Canadawards is principally from Utah, the Dakotas, Minnesota and other Western states, the people disposing of their lands there at upwards of $50 per acre to take up lands in Canada at $10 per acre or less. If there has been an increase of arrivals from the United States, the same cannot be said of those from Britain. This is due to the stricter regulations which have been adopted by Canada in connection with settlers from the British isles.

A feature of the present movement from the United States to Canada is the repatriation of French Canadians. Thousands of these people are this year abandoning the manufacturing centers of New England and the middle states, and are either returning to Quebec or are swelling the tide of newcomers into the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. So far Rhode Island and New Hampshire have furnished the largest contingents of those returning north.

Rid City of Undesirables.

Seattle, April 14.—Orders have been issued at police headquarters by which a large percentage of the force will work overtime in an effort to clear the city of yeggmen and other undesirables. An extra force will be kept in the residence sections late at night, and every man found out after 10 o'clock at night will be closely questioned, and if he cannot give a good account of himself, will be arrested. The order follows the killing of Marshal Henry Miller by tramps at Kent.

ROOSEVELT PLANS

PRESIDENT INTENDS TO MAKE FOREIGN TOUR ON LEAVING OFFICE.

Alaska Trip for Big Game Must Await Return to This Country—As to Politics, It is Said President Will Simply Be "Interested Observer."

Washington, April 13.—Should President Roosevelt's p.esent desire be realized he will spend the first year after his retirement from office in travel outside the United States. Mr. Roosevelt's itinerary has not been determined. His plan is to see some of the rugged and little frequented portions of foreign lands as well as to travel the beaten track of the tourist. That the president will indulge in his fondness for hunting big game is believed by those to whom he has confided his intentions.

It was at the recent dinner of the Boone and Crockett Club in this city that the president last told of his intentions for next year. He was told of the opportunities for hunting in Alaska and urged to arrange a trip there. This, he said, would interfere with his plan for foreign travel and would have to be considered, if at all, at some future time.

To Stop Criticism

President Roosevelt is quoted as adding at this time:

"If William H. Taft is nominated and elected president, which would be very gratifying, it would make impossible criticism if I were abroad, to the effect that I was dictating to him, or that I had dictated and had been turned down in my suggestions."

Plans for the occupancy the coming summer of the president's Sagamore Hill home are under consideration and it is expected "the summer capital" at Oyster bay will be opened for business before the end of June. It is the president's intention to remain at the White House until the returns from the Chicago convention have been received, but it is likely that Mrs. Roosevelt and the children will be settled in the old estate before the president reaches there.

Quiet Will Prevail.

It is predicted that the usual regime of "quiet" will prevail at Oyster bay. Secretary Loeb is working out the old plans for keeping the calling list down to the minimum and nothing but the most important business will be allowed to come over the direct White House wire and through the special mail pouch from Washington.

As to the politics, the president will be simply an "interested observer," and politicians will find no cause to make pilgrimages to Sagamore Hill.

Before the return from the summer's outing the president will undoubtedly have prepared his last annual message to congress, besides doing many other important tasks, all of which are made to fit into his perfected plans of rest and recreation.

SEATTLE BAPTISTS AND DISCIPLES TO UNITE

Seattle, April 13.—Initial steps toward the organic union of the Baptists and Disciples of Christ of Seattle were taken at a meeting of the Baptist ministers of Seattle and the Christian ministers of the entire Puget Sound district during the past week. The movement was given the unanimous indorsement of the ministers and future meetings were arranged to perfect plans for the union. Dr. B. L. Whitman, recently called to the First Baptist church of Seattle from the First church of Philadelphia, made a strong plea for the Seattle churches to start this movement, which he said was bound to sweep over the country. He said that there was practically no difference in the doctrines and creeds of the two organiations.

Rev. A. L. Chapman of the First Christian church and great-grandson of Alexander Campbell, founder of the church, said that the two doctrines that had kept the two churches apart so long would no longer do so, as the Christian ministers of the city all agreed with the Baptists in the matter of the divinity of Jensus Christ and no longer believed that baptism is a saving ordinance.

Washington, April 14.—The postoffice department has decided, upon recommendation of a prominent citizen of Everett, to continue the mail service between Everett and Whitby island by steamer. An order was given several weeks ago to discontinue service during the summer, but a protest caused a reconsideration of the matter.

Railroad Contracts for Buildings.

Tacoma, April 15.—The Milwaukee railroad has let contracts for the construction of 100 houses at Midland, a little station on the Tacoma Eastern in the southern suburbs of the city. The construction of the houses at Midland is also giving credence to the reports that the Milwaukee road intends constructing shops at Midland.

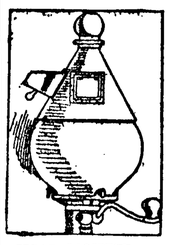
Adjournment of Congress.

Washington, April 13.—Representative Mann of Illinois, who more than anyone is in the confidence of the speaker, states that he expects to see congress adjourn about May 20, provided a rule is brought in to expedite the disposition of bills which have been to conference.

NOVEL CIGAR LIGHTER.

Lights Cigar or Cigarette Without Contact with the Flame.

Two Boston men have discovered that in the ordinary method of lighting a cigar by placing it in the flame and drawing the flame into the cigar smoke and other incomplete products of the combustion of the flame are inevitably drawn into the tobacco. They exercise a deleterious effect upon the flavor of the tobacco, vitiating to a greater or less extent the delicacy of aroma which belongs to certain grades of tobacco. They accordingly designed the cigar-lighting apparatus shown here, which consists of a globe surrounding a glass burner and flame. Above the globe is a hood having a small passage at the top through which the combustion escapes. The lower portion of the hood contains a screen, which prevents the flame passing into the hood, the flame being about an inch below the hood. In the hood are two openings—normally closed by small swinging doors. When a smoker desires to light a cigar he presses the end of it against the door, thus pushing it a little way into the hood. At the same time he depresses a knob which turns the flame up full. This immediately generates a large amount of heat, which cannot be carried away. The cigar quickly lights without having been in contact with the flame; thus it preserves its full natural aroma without impairment. The door automatically closes and the knob automatically turns down the flame again.



CIGAR LIGHTER.

Wit of the Youngsters

"What great event occurred in 1861?" asked the teacher of the juvenile class. "Dunno," answered the small pupil. "I wasn't born then."

Small Myra's mother had just returned from a visit to the hairdresser with her hair all fluffy. "Oh, mamma," cried Myra, "who fricasseed your hair?"

"Now, Johnny," said the Sunday school teacher, "can you tell me one of the most remarkable things Moses did?" "Yes, ma'am," replied the bright youth. "He broke all of the commandments at the same time."

Little Harvey—Mamma, has your tongue got feet? Mamma—Of course not. What made you ask such a silly question? Little Harvey—I heard papa say your tongue was running all day long, and I wondered how it could run without feet.

Little Elsie wasn't feeling well and her father asked her what was the matter. "Chickenpox," promptly replied the small invalid. "Why, how do you know?" he asked. "'Cause I found a feather in the bed this morning," answered Elsie.

Small Harry had just been promoted from frocks to a sailor suit, and as he was starting out with his father for a walk the latter attempted to take his hand, as usual. "Never mind, papa," said Harry. "I'm big enough to hold my own hand now."

"Johnny," said the teacher to a small pupil whose face and hands were badly soiled, "you didn't wash this morning, did you?" "No, ma'am," replied truthful Johnny. "Why not?" asked the teacher. "'Cause," explained the youngster, "mamma wasn't home, and I didn't have to."

Force of Cyclone.

Careful estimate of the force of a cyclone and the energy required to keep a hurricane in active operation reveals the presence of a power that makes the mightiest efforts of man appear as nothing in comparison. A force equal to more than 400,000,000 horsepower was estimated as developed in a West Indian cyclone. This greatly exceeds the power that could be developed by all the means within the range of man's capabilities. Were steam, water, windmills and the strength of all men and animals combined they could not even approach the tremendous force of this mighty power.—Chicago Journal.

Does an Ad Pay?

Lillian Braythwaite Hill, the very successful writer of humorous advertisements, spoke at a business men's dinner in Chicago on "Fun in the Ad." Miss Hill began in this way:

"Does it pay to advertise? Well, I should say so. A man came to an editor in the town of Shelbyville one day and asked that question.

"'Does it pay,' said the man, 'to advertise in your paper?'

"'Does it pay to advertise in my paper? You just bet it does,' the editor replied. 'Look at Sands, the cash grocer, for instance. Sands advertised for a boy last week, and the very next day Mrs. Sands had twins—both boys.'"

Making Good.

"I shall blow out my brains."

"That will prove the truth of what papa said?"

"What was that?"

"That you looked like a person who would blow out the gas."—Houston Post.

EASTER THOUGHTS.

"Go back thou dove of peace,
With myrtle on thy wing,
Say that floods and tempests cease
And the world is ripe for spring."

Winter is past — the balmy breath of spring has fanned the ice-bound bosom of the sleeping earth, and where the winding sheet of winter wrapped its snowy folds, we see once more the bloom of field and wood, and flowering hedge, where the thrushes build and the swallows fly. Instead of the solemn dirge of wailing winter winds, we catch the murmur of the brook, the happy song of birds, the joyous music of the summer rain, and the rythmic rustle of the whispering leaves. Thus Nature, ever moving in a cycle—ever weaving from the warp and woof of life and death the mystery of eternal change, is ever teaching the lesson of immortality — that the tomb is but the home of the living, and the grave is but the mountain top of a fair new world.

Our word Easter is from Ester, the Goddess of Spring, who in the ancient days was worshipped as the renewer of life, and in whose honor a festival was celebrated at the close of winter and the budding of spring. Christendom has borrowed the custom from the ancients, but for the worship of the Goddess of Spring has substituted the worship of the founder of the Christian faith and celebrate his resurrection from the dead.

Tributes of praise and honor are paid to the mighty ones of earth, and their deeds are told in story and song, and is it not meet and right that at this time we tell the Story of Easter, for where will you find the magnificent courage, the matchless love, and the sublime faith of Jesus Christ. View him from whatever standpoint you will, he is still divine, and he stands today as he has stood through all the centuries that have passed since he walked by the sea of Galilee, the grandest figure in the history of man, the marvel of the ages. Renau, the great French writer and orientalist, in his history of Christ says: "Whatever may be the surprises of the future, Jesus will never be surpassed. His worship will grow young without ceasing, his legend will call forth tears without end, his sufferings will melt the noblest hearts; all ages will proclaim that among the sons of men there is none born greater than Jesus."

At the time when Christ entered upon his mission, the Jewish theocracy, founded by Moses, while still all powerful in its political aspect, had lost much in spiritual power, purity of purpose, and comprehensiveness of design. The law had become a huge superstructure of forms and ceremonies, in which spiritual truths were not only corrupted by a gross materialism, but were often lost beneath a multiplicity of ceremonial observances. While the Jewish hierarchy, a priestly and learned caste—interpreters of the law— arrogated to themselves all those peculiar privileges and powers, that a law of heredity necessarily bestows on the dominant class, and were only conscious of the people, as the "common herd," the "dim multitude."

In the character of Jesus Christ, in the purity of his motives, the austerity of his ethics, the communism which he preached, the socialism which he advocated, the utter contempt for all forms and ceremonies which he exhibited, his superb disdain for all social distinctions or temporal power, and the grand humanity of his nature, we find the perfect antithesis of Jewish ecclesiastical power, or the gross materialism of the age.

In the beginning of his ministry, the great Jewish hierarchy, in the plentitude of pride and power, looked with derisive scorn and indifference upon the unique spectacle of one of the "dim multitude,"— a Galilean peasant, coming from a despised province, presuming to explain the prophets, expound the law, and promulgate a new school of ethics. But, as his influence widened, as his popularity increased, as his power developed, indifference merged into fear, scorn into hatred, ridicule into hostility, until finally we see Pharisee, Sadducee, and all the various sects of the Sanhedrin, dropping all minor differences and, forming into one solid phalanx, make common cause against him.

We follow him step by step, through those three long years of labor. We see him strong under temptation, true under affliction, faithful in adversity, loving in everything. We see him feeding the hungry, giving health to the sick, sight to the blind. We see him with unflinching firmness rebuking the wicked, with infinite tenderness comforting the broken-hearted, with God-like charity raising the fallen.

We are with him in that triumphant entrance into Jerusalem, we see the waving of the palm branches and hear the loud hozannas. We shrink from the blaze of his righteous indignation with the money changers in the temple, and weep with him at the grave of Lazarus. We hear the thunders of that grand denunciation of hypercritical scribe and Pharisee, and listen to that wail of unparalleled tenderness and regret:

"Oh Jerusalem, Jerusalem! thou that stoneth the prophets, and killest those that are sent unto thee! how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings and ye would not."

We are with him in that upper chamber and look into the faces of his disciples—men from the rank and file of life--as one by one they gather round the table and pledge that solemn covenant in bread and wine; we listen to his words of deathless love and beauty and feel the solemn hush that fills the room as they fall from the Master's lips.

We go with him into the garden of Gethsemane and walk with him beneath the fragrant olive trees, whose dark branches standing out against the night look like wierd spectres of the coming doom.

We hear his prayer for strength, see the advance of the Roman soldiers, and witness the betrayal kiss.

We are with him through the night; with him before the Sanhedrin, before Pilate, before Herod, back to Pilate. We hear the sharp hiss of the scourge, see the bleeding shoulders, the crown of thorns, the purple robe. We are present at that travesty of a trial, that unequal contest between a mad populace and a weak governor.

We see him, clad in robes of mimic royalty, his blood staining the marble mozaic of that splendid judgment hall, calm, serene, God-like in the majesty of his unflinching courage, as he faces that furious mob which is howling for his life.

Oh Jerusalem, Jerusalem! Her gilded domes and marble palaces shine and glitter in the morning sun, but her fair streets are filled with hoarse echo to murmurs of many voices and tread of many feet that are surging on to Calvary.

We feel the dull thud of the cross as it lifted up and settles into place. We hear the mocking laugh, the vile taunt, the cruel jest.

At a little distance stands his mother, and over yonder a few friends are huddled together, stricken witnesses of the last great tragedy.

The hours pass on. A gloom as of night is gathering over us. Darker and denser it becomes, until dropping down like a mighty pall, the light of the sun is hidden, the world is wrapped in darkness, and we are standing in the valley and the shadow of death.

The hours pass on; the laugh, the the taunt, the jest have died away— we hear no sound but the throbbing of our own hearts as we stand waiting, waiting for the end. Suddenly, out of the gloom comes that awful cry of agony, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" The sponge is pressed to the patient dying lips, and as that last triumphant cry comes ringing from the cross, "It is finished!" the veil of the temple is rent in twain, the earth shakes beneath our feet, and Jew and Gentile, priest and soldier, hide their blanched and quivering faces in trembling hands, as they shrink and cower from before the wrath of an outraged God.

The first day of the week dawned clear and beautiful. All the world was glad, but the friends and followers of Jesus were exceedingly sorrowful. The sun shone, the birds sang, the flowers bloomed— but they heeded them not. He was dead. The star of Bethlehem had set. The hope of Israel, the light of the world, was gone. They had dreamed bright dreams, had seen fair visions of future power and earthly grandeur, but he was dead, and all that was left of their fair visions and brilliant dreams was hidden in the sepulcher.

But lo, even from the depths of sorrow and dispair, from the pain of love and longing there was born in the hearts of men the shadow of a mighty hope, which flung across the starless night of Death the radiant splendor of the Resurrection morning—Christ has risen!

As it came to them, so it comes to us, and to all the sons and daughters of men; through every age, through every clime, that world wide whisper runs. To the wanderer on the stormy seas, to the prisoner in his lonely cell, to all the weary ones of earth it comes—a messenger of peace, a harbinger of hope, Christ has risen!

His was no formulated creed, no rigid statement of the moral law through contrived and circumscribed assertions of limited application. He simply lived a divine life, taught the doctrine of divine love, gave all for love and died. And in founding Christianity he led one of the most daring revolutions that the world has ever witnessed. It defied all past customs; it aimed at the overthrow of all the religions of the world; it overlapped the barriers of nationality, and it desired to fuse all mankind into one family and one faith.

Robert Ingersoll said: "Life is a narrow vale between the barren peaks of two eternities; we cry aloud, and the only answer is is the echo of our wailing cry."

True! but in the dawn of the resurrection morning those lofty heights glow with the golden gleam of everlasting life, and the mystic vale of life is spanned by that bow of promise—Christ has risen!

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them medicines of Known Composition.

[illegible] Dr. Pierce has shown [illegible] has one of such excellence [illegible] to subject them to [illegible]

[illegible] the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the [illegible] medicine for weak stomach, torpid [illegible] biliousness and all catarrhal diseases [illegible] located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small [illegible] compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

EDITORIALS

Opinions of Great Papers on Important Subjects.

WHY WOMEN CAN NOT VOTE.

THE reason why women have not yet obtained the right of suffrage was made very plain in New York's capitol while the argument went on over the proposed constitutional amendment to strike out the limiting word "male" from the provision regarding the right to vote. A number of equal suffragists were present, but there was also a strong delegation of women from all parts of the State opposing them, and these women were just as voluble, fluent and argumentative as the suffragists.

Their presence there lent point to Gov. Hughes' remarks when he said that the decision of the question of female suffrage rests with women themselves. What the women of New York really want they will have, for men will not dare to deny them.

But so long as the women are divided on the subject, men cannot be blamed for taking no action. Some women want the right to vote; but, on the other hand, as many women, perhaps more, do not wish the right, and say so emphatically.

Before suffragists ask the voters to give them the suffrage they should go out and convert their own sex. When that is done they will have no more trouble.—Kansas City World.

AS TO A HUSBAND'S POCKETS.

A MASSACHUSETTS husband has been granted a divorce because he averred his wife interfered with his personal liberty by searching his pockets while he was asleep.

The wisdom of the court's decision may have been perfectly proper in that instance. But probably the husband should have had his pockets searched. He may have been a husband who compelled his wife to beg for every penny given her, and the poor woman may have been driven to desperation in her necessity for money to buy articles for the home or for herself. There are husbands so mean that their wives are justified in not only searching their pockets, but in using a club to compel them to disgorge.

Or it may be that the wife has reason for believing her husband's pocket contained certain letters of which he desired to keep her in ignorance, and that she is being made the victim of a domestic tragedy in which her life's happiness is at stake. In such an event she is justified in going to any extreme, and every court in the land should stand back of her.

The average wife will not object to her husband searching her pocket at any time. She knows she is safe, because she has no pocket. Should she have one she is equally safe, for no man could find it, even with the assistance of a search warrant.

Neither do we believe the average husband objects to a search of his pockets by his wife, for we are constrained to believe the average man is such a good husband that he supplies his wife with money without the necessity of her going to such extremes to secure it. Also he is so true that he does not fear she will find any incriminating letters.

Of course, we suppose there are wives who are so suspicious of their husbands and so mean and ill-tempered that they search their husbands' pockets for no other reason than from pure cussedness. It may be this Massachusetts woman belongs to that class. In that event, the court acted wisely in granting the divorce, but it would not be judicious for other courts to use this case to establish a precedent.—Toledo Blade.

IMMIGRANT LABOR'S COST.

THERE are two powerful streams, quite reciprocal in nature—the one flowing toward, the other away from, this country—that have created new forces in our economic life, while changing the whole current of events in parts of Europe. Both are to-day at high-water mark. Every year from 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 aliens are admitted to American ports. Some come to work and save and found new homes; others to work and sweat and save so that, finally, they may relapse into a life of ease in the land of their nativity. They form the westward-flowing stream. Out of this stream there is created that other one whose current is eastward. But, whereas the first is of humanity, the second is of gold. Out of the savings of the foreign-born in America $250,000,000 a year is now going abroad. The annual increase is about 10 per cent. If this money were retained here, it would be sufficient, every year, to liquidate our interest-bearing debt. It cannot be controlled. It is the quid pro quo, the international credit balance, to which the immigrant laborer is entitled if he is worthy of his hire. The annual distribution of this great sum of money throughout Europe is in the following proportion: Italy, $70,000,000; Austria-Hungary, $65,000,000; Great Britain, $25,000,000; Norway and Sweden, $25,000,000; Russia $25,000,000; Germany, $15,000,000; Greece, $5,000,000; all others, including France, Switzerland, Belgium and Denmark, $10,000,000.—North American Review.

BUILDING ASSOCIATIONS PROSPER.

THE man who invests his savings in a building and loan association has one advantage over the man who buys stocks or goes into business. His savings are not likely to be swept away in times of panic.

Last year, while banks were falling on every side, while stocks were tumbling, while business was unsettled and far from profitable, the building and loan associations of the United States increased their assets by $77,000,000. They now care for $728,000,000 of the people's savings. Not a single association was affected by the financial flurry of last autumn, even to the extent of a run by investors, much less to the point of closing its doors. All flourished throughout the country.

Investors in building and loan associations deserve this immunity, for they are benefiting the country as well as themselves. They are erecting their own homes, and thus improving their citizenship, because the man who owns his own home is not likely to be unpatriotic. He regards the country's interests as well as his private interests.

A nation of home owners can defy any fate, and building and loan associations are doing much to put the United States into that position.—Chicago Journal.

HOW SHE FELT.

"Well," said the family friend, as she glanced around the library, "I must say the room looks a little more orderly than it usually does at this time in the evening."

The mistress of the household sighed. "Yes," she said, "it does."

"Isn't it a comfort?" asked the family friend.

"No," replied the mistress of the household, rather shortly, it isn't."

"I should think it would be," said the family friend. "John Rickerson is a good man. I'm not saying anything against your husband, my dear."

"You'd better not."

"Of course I wouldn't," said the family friend. "But I've heard you complain a thousand times of his careless habits. I know they'd drive me to distraction."

"He's a man," explained the mistress of the household.

"Oh, of course, but a man might be a little neat and pick things up after him. I think I've got my husband educated to that. He was just as careless as John was when we were first married."

"You've told me that before."

"I know I have, and you've always said you wished I could take John in hand. When did you hear from him last?"

"On Thursday," replied the mistress of the household. "He's at Kansas City now and he'll be home Monday. The next time he takes a trip like that I'm going with him. I'm not going to stay all alone in this poky house."

"Poky!"

"Yes, poky. If it doesn't look poky now I don't know what does. If I could smoke without its strangling me and making me sick I'd smoke."

"My dear!"

"Yes, I would, and I'd throw the ashes all over the carpet. Look at those cushions on the lounge, all smooth and plumped out, and all the books in the bookcases, instead of half of them scattered over the floor, and not a burned match anywhere. It makes me want to cry."

The friend of the family looked shocked. "Well," she said at last, "if you feel like that why don't you burn some matches and throw them around? You could have Bertha bring up some ashes from the furnace and sift them on the rug, too."

"I was thinking of doing something like that when you came in," said the mistress of the household, "only it wouldn't be quite the same thing."

"You mean you wouldn't have anybody to scold for it?"

"I'm not going to scold any more. I know I do scold about it, but I don't believe I ought to. It may be a little aggravating sometimes to have him put his hat on the china cabinet instead of hanging it in the hall on the rack and put his gloves on the mantel and kick off his rubbers in the reception room and things like that, but it doesn't seem worth while making a great fuss about."

"If you don't think it is why do you do it?" asked the friend of the family. "Why not encourage him to be careless?"

"He isn't careless," protested the mistress of the household. "He's just a little forgetful. He means to put things in their places, and he does sometimes—when he thinks of it. And he's always as sorry as he can be. Anyway, I don't like to see things too prim. I'd sooner the place was a little untidy. It's homey, anyway."

The family friend laughed.

"I don't care," said the mistress of the household. "I wish his hat was on the cabinet this minute and his rubbers on the—on the mantelpiece. I shouldn't mind if the room was blue with smoke, if he was making it, and there was a Dead Sea of ashes all over the Morris chair."

The mistress of the household went over and rumpled up one of the smooth pillows on the lounge with her face.

"Oh, tut, tut!" said the friend of the family. "You mustn't be foolish!"—Chicago Daily News.

Could We Live on Mars?

The physical conditions on Mars are in many ways intermediate between those found upon the earth and the moon, and it seems plausible that the life existing upon it should similarly be of a higher type than that found at present on the surface of the earth. Even if the physical conditions, as we understand them, were equally favorable with those in the earth, civilization would by no means be a necessary consequence. Had it not been settled by Europeans the United States would still be a wilderness. How much less should we hasten to accord civilization to a planet of which we know little, except that if we were transported there ourselves we should instantly die. Professor W. H. Pickering in Harper's Magazine.

FORTUNE IN CROWS.

Uncle Joshua Has a Million in His Wood Lot Worth 25c Each.

"Gosh all hemlocks, but it's a fine thing to be rich!" exclaimed Uncle Joshua Vanderhoof of Pine Brook, N. J. "I've just been to the city and ordered a piano for my daughter Lizzie, and one of them buzz wagons for my wife, to be sent up to the farm. But I did tell the old woman she was putting on a good deal of style at her age."

"You must have got rich quick, Uncle Josh," said Ambrose, who keeps the hotel on Bloomfield avenue, Montclair, where the farmer was refreshing himself.

"No, it's taken more than a dozen years," said Uncle Josh, "but the result come mighty sudden. I'll tell you all about it.

"You know that 40-acre wood lot up on my farm, don't you?"

'Brose allowed that he did.

"Well," Uncle Josh went on, sipping his applejack, "before mother died she made me promise not to sell that lot nor cut the timber off it.

"'There'll be a fortune in that lot some day,' said mother.

"I kept my promise, and the crows—they're mighty wise, 'Brose—got to know they were perfectly safe in the trees on that lot. So thousands of 'em went there, until, by jiminetty, the trees are as black—as black as the inside of an empty black bottle.

"Yesterday Eliza—sharp girl she is, too—read in the newspapers that 1,000 women belonging to women's clubs in Chicago have sworn off using any but crows' feathers in their bonnets. And Eliza read, too, that these good women are going to get thousands of other women all over the country to take the same swear-off.

"So Eliza put her arms around my neck and kissed me and told me what she read and said she—bright girl, 'Lize is:

"'Granny was right, par. There's a fortune in that wood lot, but the crows is the fortune.'

"Lize and her mother went to the lot and counted the crows afore dusk yesterday. They say there's more than a million of 'em. We calc'late that a million crows at 25 cents apiece is $250,000, and that's what your Uncle Joshua is worth this minute."—New York World.

RELIGIOUS

At the Set of the Sun.

At the set of the sun,
When our work is done,
With all its tangled web;
When the clouds drift low,
And the stream runs slow,
And life is at its ebb;

As we near the goal,
When the golden bowl
Shall be broken at its fount;
With what sweetest thought
Shall the hour be fraught?
What precious most shall we count?

Not the flame of the sword,
Nor the wealth we have stored
In perishable things of earth—
Not the way we have trod
With the intellect broad,
Though that were of precious worth.

Nor the gain we achieved
Through the hearts we have grieved,
And left unhelped by the way,
Nor the laurel of fame,
When, for worldly acclaim,
We toiled in the heat and the fray.

Ah, no! 'tis not these
Will give our hearts ease.
When life sinks low in the west;
But the passing sweet thought
Of the good we have wrought,
The saddened lives we have blest

And the love we have won,
And the love beckoning on
From His islands far and dim;
Love out of the light,
Shining into the night,
The night which leadeth to Him.

Stirling Sons, and Father.

At the close of the service a prominent business man of the village stood in the back part of the church, talking with some excitement to one of his acquaintances.

"It isn't right!" he declared. "Mr. Stirling ought not to do it, and we are more than ungrateful if we allow it."

"What do you mean?" asked his friend.

"Just this," returned the other. "Mr. Stirling has been with us a week, holding services every day and evening, and the good results of what he has done will be seen here for years. Think for a moment how he has helped our young people. Why, my own—my own boy has been moved to adopt a wholly different life during these meetings. And yet, after all the good he has done, we are letting Mr. Stirling go away without saying a word about paying him for his services. As a matter of fact, they cannot be measured in terms of money. He has done for us what we can never repay. But he is growing old, in spite of his energy and youthful spirit. Preachers are not men who accumulate much money in their profession. I think it is criminal to let him go without a good, generous collection, and I am resolved he shall have it!" declared the man of business, drawing some rustling bills from his pocket. "Now," he demanded, "you put something with this, and I will go round among the other men, and we will soon have a good sum."

But the other merely smiled, and laid a restraining hand upon the arm of his friend.

"Wait just a moment," he said. "I happen to know the reason why Mr. Stirling does not charge anything for his services, and why he does not wish to be paid for them. He has been a minister and an evangelist for many years, and you can see that his heart is in his work. He has two sons. I have an idea that when these sons were boys, he had a strong desire in his heart that at least one of them should become a minister, but that desire was not gratified. The sons appreciated and honored their father, but neither of them felt called to the work of the ministry. They wanted to be business men, and their father, without making too much of his own disappointment, encouraged and helped them in fitting themselves for a business life.

"As the years passed on, these sons prospered greatly, and at last they said to their father:

"'Father, we know that you were sorry that neither of us was inclined to be a minister, but we did not feel that we were adapted for that work. But we love and honor you and the work that you have done, and now we want to go in with you, as silent partners.

"'We will attend to the entire financial part of the work. Go where you please, stay as long as you think you are needed, never stop to think whether the people can pay or not. We don't care whether you hold your services in a rich city church, in the slums, or in the remotest country church; we will pay all your expenses, and give you a large salary in addition. Perhaps in that way we can help to do more good than as if we had become ministers ourselves.'

"So for a number of years John Stirling has been conducting his meetings on that basis; going where he is most needed, and leading hundreds of lives out of darkness into light."

The man of business slowly folded up the bills which he held in his hand, and returned them to his pocket.

"Well," he said, "I certainly will never do anything to disturb a scheme like that. It is the finest partnership I ever heard of, and I don't know who is drawing the most desirable dividends, John Stirling, or his sons—or the rest of us."—Youth's Companion.

The Attitude of Obedience.

When, after much battling with doubt and struggling with recurrent despondency, doubting Thomas found the Christ as a risen and a resurrecting Savior he owned that Christ as his Lord and Master. "My Lord and my God!" was his cry. It was a personal appropriation of the Redeemer. Every man who is working out from the cloud of unbelief to faith must come to the point where he finds in Jesus his Lord. While Christ would teach men, He must also rule them, and no man has placed himself in the right attitude to Christ until he can sincerely cry in the words of Thomas' adoring acclamation, "My Lord and My God!" The attitude of obedience is the first requisite in the new believer for a further revelation of his Redeemer's will.

The Free Man.

To go in and out of a house at will is the mark of perfect liberty. It is the mark, not of a servant nor even of a guest, but of a son; he who at will goes out and in is conscious that he is a member of the family. Our Lord says that the saved man is the free man—the man who goes in and out at the door. He says that the saved man has alone the right to be called the man of the world, alone the right to come out into the secular pleasures of men. He says that such a man will not only get no harm from the world; he will get positive good from it, "he will find pasture." He will get from the things around him what he has brought to those things—a pure heart.

Counting Our Mercies.

There is one kind of mental reckoning in which every Christian believer should be proficient—and it is, in reckoning up the mercies which a kind Providence continually sends. Count your mercies, for as you do the mercy will grow. As sorrow brooded over seems the worse so grace meditated over appears the more lovely, gracious and helpful. Gratitude has sometimes been defined as a lively sense of favors to come, but it is certain that the very effort to recall the favors God as shown in the past both honors Him and prepares the mind and heart the more intelligently and profitably to use such blessings as may yet be in store.

ONE LONG STREET IN ITALY.

Paved State Road Which Skirts the Mediterranean from Nice to Spezia.

The whole northern shore of the Mediterranean, from Nice clear around to Spezia, four hours by express east of Genoa, is one long street. That street is a splendid, paved state road, running along a bank high above the sea. To the right villas have their front doors on the street, while their gardens and their lemon and palm groves descend steeply to the sea.

To the left the splendid maritime Alps, fold on fold, covered with an ocean of verdure, keep step all the way, and the villas are bowered among them, their gardens descending to the street. Now and then rivers and brooks break through the mountain wall, and one gets enchanting glimpses up a long ravine, cutting deep into the hills, with perhaps a gray old castle high on some rocky precipice.

At intervals are little pink villages, each with its little central square, its little old church that was there before the village came or the barbarians of the North found out that the Riviera was a pleasant place to live. One of the queer things about these villages to the American is that there are absolutely no little one-family houses such as make up American villages. All the people live in great pink apartment houses.

One loses almost the whole of this in traveling by rail, for he travels through the bowels of the earth, with all that glorious Riviera above him, and only brief, maddening glimpses through windows in the walls that shut him in. The Italians have a totally different system of railroad construction from ours. It is all tunnels. He who hopes to see Italy from a car window will be disappointed. He will see nothing but a black hole through which he shoots with dismal monotony.—New York Press.

We Work, Eat and Drink Too Much.

Physicians have long been preaching the doctrine that American business men live too fast. With the telegraph, the ocean cable, the telephone and other modern facilities the man of affairs can do in one hour work that formerly would have occupied six. It might be thought his working day would be correspondingly shortened. Nothing of the sort has occurred. The speed with which trade can be effected has simply accelerated his pace, and he not only works faster but more hours than ever, with corresponding increase of business and responsibilities. To keep up this energy he eats too much—sometimes drinks too much—for a man who spends most of his working hours at his desk and takes no open-air exercise. Physical deterioration is inevitable, and when a period of more than usual stress and anxiety arrives he is liable to succumb.

What American business men must learn is to slow down, take wholesome recreation, and above all quit worrying, even over real troubles when they come, whereas most of them now worry over troubles that never come.

Sure About One of Them.

"The man who painted that spurious picture was an artist, at all events," said the connoisseur.

"I don't know about him," answered Mr. Cumrox, ruefully, "but the dealer who sold it to me was."

According to statistics, one woman out of a million can open a telegram with as little emotion as she displays in opening a can of corn.

NATURE AND ADVERTISING.

What Publicity Did for Mammoth Caves a Half Century Ago.

What happens when advertising stops is well shown in an article recently printed in the Philistine. The writer takes up the Mammoth cave of Kentucky as an example of what publicity does for even a wonder of nature.

Up to about 1870 the cave was well advertised. As the Philistine remarks, a visit to it was considered a sort of finishing touch to one's education, and a person who could not talk intelligently about it had no standing in polite society.

Records kept at the Mammoth Cave hotel from the time it opened in 1837 show that while the place was being advertised in various ways the number of visitors was many times what it is now, when the publicity promoter knows it not. In 1844, for instance, when the population was less than twenty millions, instead of the eighty-odd millions of to-day, those who came to see the natural curiosity numbered on an average ninety-three a day. They traveled hundreds and thousands of miles—for many crossed the Atlantic to behold it. Sixty-one years later—in 1905—the average was less than a dozen a day.

The public simply has been permitted to forget that Kentucky's Mammoth cave exists. The man who owned it died in 1869, and his thirteen heirs, scattered all over the country, simply devoted themselves to spending the income that they derived from the $2 a head admission fee. They thought the financial stream would keep on running without any expenditure on their part for advertising. They have been disappointed, of course.

As soon as the advertisement was abandoned the people became indifferent about the cave, and finally it figured no longer as one of the great show places of the world.

In the language of the Philistine, caves are not necessary to human happiness until some man by astute advertising fills men and women with a desire to see them, and when the advertising ceases the desire ceases also.

Liberal advertising is essential to success. The story of the Mammoth cave of Kentucky is only one of thousands that prove the truth of this.

Few husbands ever stop to think that in the years to come their sons will be talking about the pies their mother used to make.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Now, with a little energy any contestant can readily learn of people who are buying or have bought pianos or musical instruments, sheet music, etc., of us, or people contemplating buying pianos or musical goods of any description in the near future. The purchasers will receive votes on their purchases and can enter their own name as contestants or give them to whom they please; but, as comparatively few of our thousands of customers will be actual contestants, a large percentage of these votes can be had for the asking.

A FINE FORTY-ACRE FARM FREE

To make this contest hum right from the start, we are going to give the person having the greatest number of votes at the end of the First Thirty Days of the contest a Deed and a Clear Title to a Fine 40-Acre Farm valued at $40.00 an acre. Understand, this is a special prize, and will be awarded to the winner on May 5. This is certainly an incentive to get started in the Big Contest at once, as the winner of this farm ought to stand a mighty good chance of capturing the Capital Prize—the Magnificent $3.000 Weber Art Grand. Start NOW and you can win them both.

Among the prizes are scholarships from

Washington's Biggest Business Training School

Remember, there are 2,061 separate and distinct prizes and 2,061 persons are going to win them. If you really want one of these rich Prizes and have got any get-up and energy you can easily win any one you set out for, but it's up to you.

If there is any detail of the Contest that you do not understand or if you do not know just how to get started, write or call on the Contest Manager and he will gladly help you.

No person directly or indirectly connected with this house, or members of his or her family, will be allowed to either solicit or purchase votes or in any manner compete for any prize. Address all communications to Contest Manager.
