OLYMPIC LEADER

VOL. 21. NO. 31 | PORT ANGELES, WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, MAY 22 1908 | PRICE 5 CTS

HOTEL PIEDMONT, LAKE CRESCENT.

THE VISIT OF THE BATTLESHIP FLEET

Admiral W. H. Emory and Officers Will Enjoy Fishing Trip to Lake Crescent, Angeles' Greatest Attraction.

At 5:30 this morning, Thursday, the Atlantic battleship fleet, upon which the eye of the world is now focused, led by the Connecticut, Rear Admiral Sperry in command, steamed slowly up the strait thru the thin mist that hung low over the water, until, when abreast of the spit that forms Port Angeles bay, the first and second divisions, making up the contingent scheduled for Bellingham, left for that port, the third division rounding Ediz Hook and coming to anchor in our harbor, and the remaining four proceeding on to Port Townsend.

The early arrival of the fleet having been made known last evening, by wire from Cape Flattery, several hundred citizens were enabled to view the superb sight from points of advantage along the bluff.

The third division, which will remain with us until Saturday morning, now consists of the Louisiana, a 16,000 ton ship, Capt. Richard Wainright, the Virginia, 14,948 tons, Capt. Seaton Schroeder, the Missouri, Capt. G. A. Merriam, and the Ohio, Capt. C. H. Bartlett, both of 12,300 tons. Rear Admiral W. H. Emory, division commander.

During their stay in this harbor the officers will be entertained with a reception and ball at the opera house, given this evening by the Commercial Club and City Council, and the men, to the number of about a thousand, will be invited to participate in a barbecue dinner, given by the citizens under direction of the Commercial Club, in Civic Park from 11:00 to 2:00 Friday.

Admiral Emory and Flag Lieutenant Henderson, Captain Merriam, Captain Bartlett, Captain Sharp, Dr. Spratling, and other officers, accepted the Club's invitation for an outing at Lake Crescent, and in company with Messrs. Aldwell, Delabarre and Clark, left this afternoon for Marymere and Beardslee Bay camps, where they will have an opportunity to catch a few of the famous Beardslee trout.

Thru the kindness of Admiral Emory the ships' bands will be detailed to furnish music for the ball, the barbecue, and ball games at the park.

Visitors will be welcomed aboard the ships between ten and four each day. The schools will be closed at 1:30 Friday in order that all pupils who desire may visit the ships. Mr. Gorman has extended them all an invitation to make the trip on a barge in tow of the cannery launch Pike.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE

On Memorial Sunday, May 24th, services will be held in the opera house at 2:30 p. m. Oration by Rev. A. Davis, who is well along in years and has talked to the G. A. R. Boys for over a third of a century; his address will be well worth hearing. Clergymen of all denominations and all patriotic organizations and citizens are cordiallly invited to attend.

On Memorial Day, May 30th, the parade will form at 1:30 p. m. on First street, right resting on Laurel. Band on the right. G. A. R., W. R. C., Mayor, Council and City Officers, civic societies, school children, in order named. Parade will march on First to Oak, Oak to Front, Front to Laurel, to wharf, where W. R. C. strew flowers on water; return to opera house. Services at opera house at 2:30 p. m., address by Rev. A. L. Loder. All are invited.

DEMOCRATS OUT FOR STRAIGHT PROHIBITION

ENDORSE BRYAN FOR PRESIDENT

E. A. FitzHenry of Port Angeles Chosen One of the Five Presidential Electors. A Splendid Platform.

The Democratic State Convention, held at Spokane on the 18th, endorsed Wm. J. Bryan for president, declared itself for immediate tariff revision, for the Oregon law of initiative and referendum, for absolute prohibition, control of trusts, postal savings banks and the guarantee of bank deposits.

From the report of the Clallam county delegation, E. A. FitzHenry and Dr. N. K. Mead, who returned Wednesday, we gather that the convention was more like a temperance rally than a political gathering, a large majorty of the delegates seemingly being determined to go the Republican party of the state one better and adopt a plank in their platform that read prohibition. The idea was a new one for the party, which has heretofore stood as against what it usually termed summary legislation, and it took two hours to get the plank in shape. At the close of the debate the vote stood 450 for to 126 against. The convention simply went wild over the announcement, and every member decorated his Bryan badge with the white ribbon of temperance. The prohibition plank is as follows:

"We favor the submission to the voters of Washington of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture or sale of spirituous liquors within our borders."

The platform adopted pledges that if the Democratic party is restored to power it will speedily enact legislation "on lines of justice to all and special favors to none." It demands a non-partisan tariff commission, an emergency currency, graduated income and inheritance tax, election of senators by direct vote, improvement of the Columbia and other navigable rivers, and opposes encroachment by the national government upon rights reserved to the state. It demands that land grant railroads comply with the terms of their grants in selling lands to the people and advocates the forfeiture of lands if the railroads refuse to comply; contains a resolution urging Congress to enact an amendment to the inter state commerce act whereby the commission may investigate advances in trade rates as to their reasonableness before becoming effective. It condemns the sale at less than their actual value of great tracts of lands set aside for the schools of Washington and favors the policy of leasing instead of sale.

EXCURSION SATURDAY

Saturday morning, May 23rd, the Bellingham will leave Angeles promptly at 5 a.m., calling at Dungeness and Port Williams as usual, and arriving at Townsend in time to accompany the fleet to Seattle. Returning, will leave Seattle at 6 p. m., the 23rd, for Williams, Dungeness and Angeles with excursionists. Fare round trip $2, tickets good on May 23rd on Bellingham and Whatcom only. The Whatcom will lay at Townsend until 7 p.m., 23rd, to take Chippewa's Seattle passengers.

The official hours for the fleet's movements are: Leave Townsend at 11:30, arrive Seattle 2:00 p.m.

A sample frame of the Commercial Club's collection of photos of Lake Crescent and the Olympics has been placed on exhibition at the Club rooms, where it is receiving unstinted praise from everyone. The photos of the lake by Elmer Nailor and of Olympus and Meany by Curtis are not only splendid examples of the art, but form a collection of scenic views impossible to equal anywhere on the Coast; being placed in the saloons of all the steamers on the Sound, they will form an irresistible attraction to the pleasure seeker and sportsman and should result in a greatly increased travel to the lakes.

Just received a full line of rubber and cotton hose, lawn sprinklers and lawn mowers. Good rubber hose 6c per foot. H. Gutenberg Hdw. and Fur. Co.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES JUNE 5TH

EIGHT "SWEET GIRL GRADUATES"

Grammar School Graduating Exercises to be Held Tuesday Evening, June 9th, at Opera House.

School will be dismissed at 1:30 Friday afternoon, giving everyone ample opportunity to go aboard the battleships if they so desire.

Commencement is near at hand and the Seniors are busy getting ready for it. The following members of the Senior class will receive their diplomas on June 5th: Leah Myers, president of class; Ruth Fulmer, vice-president; Irene McDonald, secretary; Lucy Bonker, treasurer; Grace McKechnie, Eunice Stakemiller, Rose McMullin, and Laurena Ester. The Commencement program follows:

Junior Reception to Seniors, May 21st at Parish Hall.

Baccalaureate Sermon, by Rev. Simons, May 31st at Methodist church.

High School Graduation, June 5th, at Opera House.

Alumni Reception, June 6th, at Haning Hall.

Graduating exercises for the Grammar School students of the county who pass the State examination to be held May 21st and 22nd will be held in the Opera House Tuesday evening, June 9th. A class of about twenty is expected to graduate.

The greater number of these students will be from the Port Angeles schools.

The annual High School picnic will occur, weather permitting, Saturday, May 23rd, at Morse creek.

The final contest in percentage between the different schools of the city resulted in a victory for Joe Hall and Nicholas Heuschlein of Lincoln Heights.

The following is the program for the State Eighth grade examinations to be held in Central School May 21st and 22nd: Thursday morning, grammar and orthography; afternoon, history and geography. Friday forenoon, arithmetic and reading; afternoon, physiology and reading circle work.

The Eighth grade class has chosen for a motto "More Beyond," which indicates that they all intend to enter the High School next year.

POLITICS UNDER PRIMARY LAW

Probably F. R. Archer merely designed to be facetious when, in resigning as chairman of the Chehalis county republican committee, he remarked that there is no further need of the office, "since there is no more politics under the primary law." That all depends on what you call and how you conceive politics, truthfully remarks the Tacoma News. If Mr. Archer means to say that there is no more politics under the direct primary law in the sense that there is no more manipulating of party conventions, no more debauching or traducing of delegates, no further orders from the throne room of the bosses, no such jobbery, juggling or chicanery as characterized nomination under the old system, then we agree with the retiring chairman. But is that a thing to be lamented? Not upon your honor. The methods employed tended to the degredation of citzenship and destruction, if you please, of representative government.

Still the new law leaves room for politics. The field is widened. Therein is the chief difference. The appeal now is to a convention of the people, to the whole party, not to an assemblage of delegated powers. But the political chessboard has not been thrown on the rubbish pile. Party organization is still necessary, still effective—only it deals now with those things that should more properly concern it. There is plenty of politics. It all depends on how you construe "politics." The brethren should not despair. The new game is played differently, but it is just as exciting.

SUPERIOR COURT NOTES

Jury Acquits Harvey Smith. Verdict for $650 in Jamison-Kempton Case.

Monday and Tuesday of this week the attention of the Superior Court was taken up with the case of Ida S. Jamison vs. L. H. Kempton, both new residents of this city, late of Fort Francis, Manitoba. The suit was brought for the recovery of $650.00, which Mrs. Jamison alleged she was defrauded of by the defendant and his attorney, G. V. Smith, in the purchase of the Jane Jarvis property on Albert and Second Sts., being the difference between the price paid Mrs. Jarvis and the price charged Mrs. Jamison.

According to the evidence of the plaintiff the defendant left Fort Francis early last year to hunt a new home in the west and was instructed by plaintiff to secure a home for plaintiff; that defendant did this, as she said for friendship's sake, refusing to accept any commission; that upon arriving here the property in question was shown Mrs. Jamison, and $2200 fixed as the value, later Kempton advised plaintiff that if she wanted the property he could get it for her for $2150 but for no less. He was instructed to buy, and a check for $2150 given him. That night defendant closed the deal with Mrs. Jarvis for $1500, giving her a check for $600 and assuming a mortgage of $800 and $56 interest. He asked that Mrs. Jarvis not mention the purchase price, the deed passing to him. Next day plaintiff and defendant appeared at the auditor's office, presented deeds from Jarvis to Kempton and the latter to Mrs. Jamison, who paid for the filing of both on the explanation of Kempton that he was getting nothing out of the deal and it was only right that Mrs. Jamison should pay all expenses. Next day, May 10, they appeared at the Jarvis home and Mrs. Jamison was introduced as the lady and little girl the property was purchased for. Because of these relations plaintiff claims Kempton acted as her agent and therefore defrauded her when he represented to her that the purchase price was $2150.

Defendant alleged that he purchased the property for himself and sold it to defendant ot an advanced figure; that no agency existed, and that he had paid an agent, Mr. Hurlbert, $400 additional.

The jury was out fifteen minutes returning with a verdict for plaintiff in the sum of $650. The jury comprised Charles Larson, Fred Nelson, Byron Bowman, John Donaldson, James Burrowes, G. F. Hutsell, Albert Loveless, Thos. Donaldson, Jos. McKissick, E. W. Merrill, John Bowers, J. M. Grant.

REPUBLICANS FOR LOCAL OPTION DEMOCRATS FOR PROHIBITION

Spokane, May 16.—The dramatic and unexpected feature of the Washington Republican state convention was the adoption of a local option plank by a vote of 506 to 258. A minority report, signed by only four of the thirty-seven members of the platform committee, declared:

"This convention records itself in favor of a reasonable local option bill to be enacted by the next legislature," and it was adopted with loud cheers. Then came a unique incident. The Elks' quartet, of Spokane, was in the big armory, and had entertained delegates with a number of songs. A delegate called for the singing of "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?"; the famous old temperance song was readily given, and a large number of the delegates joined in the song.

The convention adopted unanimously the following resolution for Taft:

"We recognize in the Hon. William H. Taft, of Ohio, a statesman of lofty patriotism. He has proven his genius for public affairs; he is experienced in the public service and is in sympathy with the aims and desires of the people as to governmental principles. We want the Roosevelt policies continued, and we believe Mr. Taft is pre-eminently the man for the task. We pledge him the support of the Republicans of the state of Washington if he is nominated, and we instruct the delegation from this state to vote for his nomination as long as his name shall be before the convention."

General James M. Ashton, of Tacoma, was temporary chairman of the convention, and former Governor John H. McGraw, of Seattle, permanent chairman.

The following ticket was nominated:

Presidential electors—J. R. O'Donnell, of Chehalis; C. G. Kerlee, of Pacific; W. P. Trimble, of King; J. M. Fish, of Stevens; Frank M. Dallam, of Okanogan.

Delegates-at-large to national convention—R. A. Ballinger, of Seattle; Emerson Hammer, of Skagit; R. L. McCormick, of Pierce; Frank T. Post, of Spokane.

Alternates—F. B. Hubbard, of Lewis; Dr. M. Pietrzycki, of Columbia; Dr. J. J. Smith, of King; A. L. Rodgers, of Stevens.

Delegates from district No. 1—Robert Moran, of San Juan; W. J. Rucker, of Snohomish.

First district alternates: Pat Halloran, Skagit; F. K. Baker, Snohomish.

Alternates—Dr. F. H. Collins, of Klickitat, and H. H. Bugge, of Clallam.

Delegates from district No. 3—Dr. J. C. McAuley, of Kittitas, and D. T. Ham, of Spokane.

Third district alternates: Thomas Bollman, Chelan; D. L. Bradley, Ferry.

The Platform.

The platform as reported by the committee before amendment is as follows:

"We, your committee on platform and resolutions, report the following for your consideration:

"Section 1—Preamble. The greatest issue of the coming campaign is: Shall the Roosevelt policies live with the next administration? The Republican party of the state of Washington unanimously declares that the honor of the nation and the welfare and happiness of the people demand that those policies be perpetuated as cardinal principles of the Republican party.

"Section 2—We indorse the national and state administrations. We commend the delegation in congress for its devotion to the interests of the state and for the spirit which its members have manifested in co-operating and working harmoniously in all matters.

"Section 3—We recognize in the Hon. William H. Taft, of Ohio, a statesman of lofty patriotism. He has proved his genius for public affairs. He is experienced in the public service and is in sympathy with the aims and desires of the people as to the governmental principles. We want the Roosevelt policies continued, and we believe Mr. Taft is preeminently the man for the task. We pledge him the support of the Republicans of the state of Washington if he is nominated and we instruct the delegation from this state to vote for his nomination as long as his name shall be before the convention.

For Tariff Revision Commission.

"Section 4—Tariff: In the proposed revision of the tariff, to which the Republican party is virtually committed, and which we favor, the principle of protection for the American laborer, farmer and manufacturer should not be impaired in the slightest degree. Tariff duties not needed for protection, by means of which trusts and other unlawful trade combinations extort unjust profits from the consumers, should be removed. The question of revision should be referred to a congressional commission, as recommended by the president.

"Section 5—We believe that the paramount need of our state is an increased population, and to encourage the development of every resource that will provide for the maintenance of more people. We urge the appropriation of money by congress for the purpose of reclaiming the arid lands of the state, thus making them available for the use of the ligitimate homestead settler.

"We also urge and demand that our agricultural lands within the forest reserves of this state be made immediately available for the use of home builders.

"We approve of forest reserves and the principles which actuated their creation. We believe the control of the natural resources of the public domain should be vested in a national commission under supervision of the proper departments.

Want Bureau of Mines.

"Section 6—We urge that the congress of the United States establish and maintain a 'bureau of mines and mining,' for the purpose of promoting, encouraging and supervising, within federal authority, the development and exploration of the mineral resources of our states, territories and insular possessions, and of conserving their use insofar as may be necessary.

"We are in favor of a postal savings bank system with such safeguards as will keep the money in the community where the depositors reside. We favor the enactment of such laws in both state and nation as will safely protect and guarantee the deposits in all banks.

"We urge that congress enact an amendment to the interstate commerce act, whereby the interstate commerce commission may, at its discretion, upon proper complaint, investigate advances in freight rates as to their reasonableness, before becoming effective.

"We recommend that the secretary of this convention be instructed to forward copies of this resolution to President Roosevelt, the president of the United States senate, the speaker of the national house of representatives, members of congress from this state, the chairman of the house and senate committees, respectively, on interstate commerce, and the interstate commerce commission.

Ask Permanent Pacific Fleet.

"We ask that the honorable secretary of the navy establish a permanent Pacific fleet of at least twelve battleships and eight armored cruisers for the protection of the Pacific coast line.

"We heartily reaffirm the indorsement given in the last Republican state convention two years ago of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. We therefore approve of every aid pledged this important undertaking, and especially commend the active support and interest manifested by the state and different counties in their preparations to fully and comprehensively exhibit their various resources at the exposition.

"We heartily indorse and commend the good work done by the state railroad and tax commission.

"We favor effective supervision of all corporations doing business in the state. We pledge the Republican party of this state to the enactment of a law similar in spirit and purpose to the public utilities law of the state of New York, but so extended as to assure continuous and adequate supervision of all corporations chartered by the state or doing business within the state, and we favor the fullest publicity as to all public service corporations.

Want School Lands Conserved.

"We believe in the proper safeguarding of our state school and granted lands, the educational birthright of our children; and we pledge the support of our party to its special interests and protection, and favor such action by congress as will permit the state to select from the federal forest reserves within the state a sufficient amount of land to fully satisfy the grants made the state for educational, charitable and other purposes, and to indemnify the state from the loss of more than 500,000 acres belonging to the public schools of this state rendered valueless by reason of their perpetual isolation in such reserves.

"For the benefit of the wage earners, we are in favor of establishing in the centers of population free reading rooms, to be supplied with the leading newspapers and magazines.

"We favor the enactment of such laws as will regulate commission merchants and all dealers who handle fruit and farm produce on a commission basis.

"We believe in substantial state and national aid in the construction of our public highways, and our state legislators and our senators and representatives in congress are urged to support all good roads legislation.

Prohibit Child Labor.

"The extensive use of child labor throughout the land, whereby children are deprived of physical care and education, is not only inhuman, but a dangerous menace to our future citizenship; therefore we favor legislation preventing the same.

"We favor a bill drawn in conformity with the federal statute known as the employers' liability act, also one providing for an eight-hour day for underground miners, also an amendment to the present female labor law making the lawful hours worked, for the person to whom the law applies, eight instead of ten.

"We are in favor of an appropriation by congress of at least $50,000,000 a year for the improvement of the rivers and harbors of the country. We are especially in favor of the opening of the Columbia river and Snake river and tributaries for navigation from the British line to its mouth.

Insist on Primary Pledge.

"Whereas, the direct primary law of this state was passed as a Republican measure, in response to the demands of the people and in fulfillment of a pledge made at the last Republican state convention; and

"Whereas, section 37 of said law provides a method by which United States senators may be chosen by the people, if members of the legislature obey the will of the people as expressed at the polls,

"Resolved, that we, as Republicans, demand that candidates for legislative nominations who solicit the suffrages of Republican votes shall file with their declarations of candidacy their written pledges that they will, if elected, vote always for the candidate of the party for United States senator who receives the highest vote in the state at the primary election, as prescribed by said section 37 of the direct primary law."

DEMOCRATS DECLARE AGAINST THE SALE OF SPIRITUOUS LIQUORS

Spokane, May 19.—After as stormy a session as was ever seen in a convention hall in this state, the democratic state convention, just before midnight, adopted a plank declaring for the submission to the voters of a constitutional amendment forbidding the sale and manufacture of spirituous liquors within the state. Whether by oversight or design, nothing is said about malt and vinous drinks. The plank was adopted by a vote of 530 to 168, following a night of fiery oratory for and against.

A double delegation of twenty, each with half a vote, was elected to the national convention and instructed to vote for Bryan "first, last and all the time."

The prohibition resolution was defeated in a sub-committee of the platform committee, adopted in the platform committee itself by a vote of 19 to 9 and adopted in the convention itself only after one of the most fiercely fought floor battles ever witnessed in a political convention in Washington.

The convention nominated for chairman of the state central committee George P. Wright of Pierce county; elected as delegates-at-large to the national convention the following delegates, with half a vote each:

A. R. Titlow, Pierce; L. E. Bignold, Chehalis; Fred E. Baldwin, Spokane; Dan Paul, Douglas; George F. Christensen, Adams; A. G. Ketchum, Lincoln, and Charles G. Heifner and F. A. Macdonald, KiKng county. No alternates were elected.

Nominated for presidential electors: J. M. McKernan, Garfield county; E. A. Fitzhenry, Clallam county; Wilmon Tucker, King county; Thomas M. Vance, Thurston county, and George F. Richardson, Benton county.

In addition to the eight delegates-at-large the following were elected by congressional districts:

First district—John L. Lukes and W. M. Pemberton of Whatcom county and Daniel Currie and W. W. Black of Snohomish county.

Second district — Tal Brattan of Klickitat county, W. W. Cannon of Lewis county, Frank R. Spinning of Pierce county and J. C. Conine of Thurston county.

Third district—T. A. White of Whitman county, M. A. Smalley of Okanogan county, Jerome Drumheller of Spokane county and A. L. Simmons of Kittitas.

Chairman George Turner evoked great applause during his opening speech by declaring:

"President Roosevelt is as great a president as the nation has ever had, and as good a democrat in principle as any man in this hall."

The Platform.

The platform adopted pledges that if the Democratic party is restored to power it will speedily enact legislation "on lines of justice to all and special favors to none." It demands a non-partisan tariff commission.

It also urges an emergency currency, postal savings banks, graduated income and inheritance tax, election of senators by direct vote, improvement of the Columbia River and other navigable rivers, and the enactment of the Snake River dam bill. The state's right plank opposes encroachment by the national government upon rights reserved to the state, and the platform opposes government "by injunction and the blacklist, admission of Oriental labor, ship subsidies, private monopolies, watered stocks and board of trade gambling in farm produce."

Railroads Must Obey.

It demands that land grant railroads comply with the terms of their grants in selling lands to the people and it advocates the forfeiture of lands if the railroads fail to comply. The platform contains the resolution urging Congress to enact an amendment to the interstate commerce act whereby the commission may investigate advances in trade rates as to their reasonableness before becoming effective.

Copies of the resolutions are to be sent to the President, both branches of Congress and to the chairman of the committee on interstate commerce in Congress and to the interstate commerce commission.

The platform, after endorsing the eight-hour and other labor laws, instructs the delegates from Washington State to Denver to support Bryan, "first, last and all the time."

It condemns the sale at less than their actual value of great tracts of land set aside for the schools of Washington and favors the policy of leasing instead of sale.

The liquor plank reads:

"We favor the submission to the voters of Washington of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture or sale of spirituous liquors within our borders."

Republican Contests.

Chicago, May 18.—Thirty contests have been filed with Secretary Elmer Dover of the republican national committee and he expects 88 more before the time limit, May 27. Seven will be state, the remainder district contests.

LARGE APPROPRIATIONS BY SIXTIETH CONGRESS.

Washington, Monday, May 18.—The Sixtieth Congress will have earned the title of a "billion dollar congress" at its first session before adjournment is taken at the end of this week. It is estimated that the total appropriations will reach the enormous sum of $1,026,000,000, which is said to be the largest amount ever appropriated at a single session.

The various items contributing to make up this prodigous aggregate are as follows:

Sundry civil, $120,000,000; legislative, executive and judicial, $33,000,000; army, $95,382,000; postoffice, $221,765,000; pensions, $163,000,000; fortifications, $11,500,000; agriculture, $11,642,000; District of Columbia, $11,500,000; diplomatic and consular, $4,000,000; naval, $122,662,000; Indian, $9,000,000; urgent deficiency, $26,000,000; public buildings, $25,000,000; general deficiency, $17,000,000; military academy, new immigrant station at Philadelphia, relief of cyclone sufferers in the South, etc., $1,500,000; permanent annual appropriations, $154,000,000.

These appropriations are for the fiscal year which begins July 1, 1908. It is too early to give anything like an accurate estimate of the revenues of the government during that period of twelve months, but members of the appropriation committees think they will reach somewhere between $850,000,000 and $900,000,000. This would mean a deficit of between $125,000,000 and $175,000,000.

Chairman James A. Tawney, of the House committee, warned the House last week that the deficit would reach $150,000,000, and if this prediction is fulfilled the surplus now in the treasury will be wiped out by June 30, 1909, inasmuch as at the end of this fiscal year there will be a deficit of between $60,000,000 and $65,000,000.

TEXAS RAILROAD TAX LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Washington, May 20.—In deciding the case of the Galveston & San Antonio Railway Company vs. the State of Texas, involving taxes on that and other Texas roads, the supreme court of the United States held to be unconstitutional the Texas law of 1905, fixing the tax rate on railroads equal to 1 per cent on their gross earnings when they lie wholly within the state and a proportionate sum when they lie partly within the state.

The opinion was delivered by Justice Holmes, who held that the law is an effort to regulate interstate commerce and that therefore the tax could not be collected. The chief justice and Justices Harlan, White and McKenna united in a dissenting opinion, which was delivered by Justice Harlan. Justice Harlan expressed the opinion that the decision strikes a very serious blow at the taxing law of the state.

TELEPHONE COMPANY RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS.

Spokane, May 18.—A telephone company in this state is liable for loss of business to a subscriber resulting from interruption of communication over the line, through carelessness of employes, according to a ruling made by Judge Stocker in the case of Dr. M. E. Hughes against the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Dr. Hughes, it developed, had waited at the office all of one night, expecting a telephone call for a special case. The call did not come because a careless lineman had cut the wire leading to the office while working about the building. The $35 fee which the doctor declared he lost the judge ordered the telephone company to pay.

WILL TRY TO DEFEAT ALL LABOR CANDIDATES.

New York, May 18.—President Van Cleve, of the National Association of Manufacturers, is holding a number of conferences with New York political machinists relative to building up an organization with which the manufacturers hope to combat the strength of the labor organization.

Van Cleve states that he intends to defeat every candidate for an important state office or congress that has the support of the organized labor vote.

VREELAND FINANCIAL MEASURE PASSES HOUSE

Washington, May 16.—The Vreeland currency bill, agreed upon by the Republican caucus, has passed through the house under a special rule by a vote of 184 to 145. Fifteen socalled insurgents of the majority party voted with the Democrats, who went on record solidly against the measure.

As soon as the bill reached the senate Mr. Aldrich called a meeting of the committee on finance to consider it. The committee voted unanimously to amend the house measure by striking out all after the enacting clause and inserting the provisions of the bill which was passed by the senate.

The senate approved the action of the committee. The effect of this course is to send both the Vreeland and Aldrich bills to conference.

New National Park.

Washington, May 16.—Bills were pessed by the senate yesterday establishing the Glacier National park, west of the summit of the Rocky mountains and south of the international boundary line in Montana, comprising 1,000,000 acres.

CODE COMMISSION

SEATTLE ATTORNEY HAS PLAN FOR PASSING ON PROPOSED LAWS.

No Amendment to State Constitution Necessary Under His Plan—Similar Bill Introduced Several Years Ago—Would Have New Commission Also Prepare New State Code.

Seattle, May 13.—The Post-Intelligencer publishes the following:

A permanent commission to pass upon the constitutionality of proposed legislative enactments, instead of the constitutional amendment providing that the supreme court shall be clothed with such power, is advocated by Richard Saxe Jones.

"A great many years ago I prepared a bill to create such a commission," said Mr. Jones, "and sent it to the judiciary committee of the legislature, presenting it through the medium of the Hon. Harold Preston, who was then a member of the legislature. That bill, as I drew it, contained a provision which would not require any amendment to the constitution.

"It provided for the appointment by the governor and ratification by the legislature of three permanent code commissioners, whose terms of office should be during good behavior.

"It provided for a large salary, and the salary should be larger than that of the judges of the supreme court, because the duties would be more arduous and would compel a lawyer to give up any idea of practicing law.

Provisions of Bill.

"It provided that these commissioners should be constantly in session and that their first duty should be to revise the codes of the state of Washington and provide for a permanent code, to be adopted as such by the legislature, thus doing away with all the conflicting acts which are now grated upon the laws of our state, and making only one act for each subject.

"My bill provided further that after a permanent code had been adopted, then no new act should be passed by the legislature until it had been referred to this permanent code commission, or, as it might be called, permanent judiciary committee.

"If the code commission found that the act had nothing to do with constitutional questions or questions affecting the permanent code which had already been adopted, then the code commission would immediately return it with such a notation. If, however, the code commission found good and sufficient reason to advise against the passage of the act, then it was the duty of the code commission to return the act with the reasons, in writing, for rejecting the same, or with such amendments as would make it conform to the constitution and the permanent code which had been adopted.

"The bill further provided that members of the legislature might send bills which they might intend to introduce to the code commission at any time, whether the legislature was in session or not, and the code commission was required to return the same, with its comments, within a limited period to be fixed by the act.

To Prevent Hurried Legislation.

"The act further provided that no bill should be passed by the legislature which had not been submitted to the code commission at least ten days before the adjournment of the legislature, thus preventing hurried legislation at the last few days of the session.

"I do not contend that the bill drawn by me was perfect, but my idea was to get before the legislature just what is now suggested, only in a more permanent form. In my judgment, if these three code commissioners were now doing business, we could dispense with two judges of the supreme court. The preliminary expense might be a little more, but the saving to the people in litigation would much more than compensate for the salaries paid.

Easy to Prepare New Bill.

"I have not before me a copy of the bill which I drew and submitted to the Hon. Harold Preston, as it has been packed away with old papers in boxes in the garret, but it would be little or no trouble to prepare a new bill of this kind, if the newspapers of the state will agitate the appointment of such commission, so that the public mind can be educated to it before the next session of the legislature. I would gladly give the time to such preparation if I believed there was any chance for the establishment of such a commission.

"I say that there would be no necessity of a constitutional amendment because there would be no delegation of legislative authority whatever, the code commission being simply a committee to recommend, without authority to compel legislation. I would not favor a constitutional amendment, nor any act of the legislature which took away from the legislature its full power to act, for by giving to a code commission any legislative authority is contrary to the spirit of our institutions. The people should govern and will govern, and no committee should have authority to legislate for us, although it is unfortunately true that committees do most of the legislating."

Differences Are Settled.

Washington, May 18.—Secretary of War Taft returned to Washington today from his Panama trip. He says the differences of the Panama canal commissioners have been amicably settled.

JUNE 3 SET FOR TEST OF RAILWAY COMMISSION LAW

Olympia, May 16.—The Thurston county appeal, designed to test the constitutionality of the railway commission law, originally set for the first day of the May term of the supreme court, has been postponed until June 3. Railroad attorneys have made an effort to have the case go to the foot of the docket, which course would have practically prevented the calling of a special session of the legislature to submit a constitutional amendment in time for the next general election. As it is the court will have but little more than 30 days in which to reach a decision and still leave time, in event of an unfavorable decision, to provide for a constitutional amendment to give the commission rate making power.

The railroad attorneys contended that their time was so fully occupied with the Ritzville hearing that they did not have time to present the case properly. They also asked for a full day to argue the case although it is the custom of the court to hear six cases every day of the term. The court declined to set a later date than June 3, on which date but five cases had previously been assigned.

Should the court arrive at a conclucion adverse to the commission within 30 days there will be ample time to call a special session, with, however, little time to lose. In order to begin the legal publication of an amendment to the constitution in one newspaper in every county in the state it will be necessary to have the first publication before the last week in July.

FOREST FIRE SERVICE PREPARING FOR WORK

Olympia, May 16.—A meeting of the state forestry commission will be called shortly to take up the state forest fire work for the coming summer.

This year promises to see the best protection given the forests of Washington in the history of the state. In addition to the service and patrols maintained by the state department under the personal direction of State Fire Warden J. R. Welty in the twenty-two timbered counties of the state, the timber land owners, through the Washington Forest Fire Association, recently incorporated by the heavy timber land owners, will more than duplicate the forest service of the state.

Between 80 and 100 forest rangers will be put in the field by the association at its own expense. These men will be commissioned as deputies by Warden Welty and, although drawing no salary from the state, will have full authority to make arrests and enforcing forest fire regulations. Notices and warnings for posting will be furnished them through the state office and they will co-operate with the state service generally.

DEBS IS NOMINATED BY SOCIALIST PARTY

Chicago, May 16.—Eugene V. Debs of Indiana was nominated for president on the first ballot by the Socialist party national convention. Debs received 152 votes. The poll of the votes had proceeded until 194 had been counted and, upon the showing, it was moved by Victoria Boyder of Milwaukee that the nomination be made unanimous. The motion went through with a deafening shout.

The fiction of the National Magazine for May is of that wide-awake, popular and keenly interesting kind that finds a coterie of readers everywhere. Poetry and fiction alike have predominate the spring note, the fluttering gaiety of the just arrived song birds and the universal romp and gladness of spring life. In this May issue also the serial "The Keeper of the Door" has its initial opening. It is one of the best serials in recent periodical literature, and comes "well recommended" by widely known critics. It is founded upon the massacre of the Eris by the Iroquois in 1685, but is not otherwise historical. It is an accurate picture of life among primitive peoples of the Long House. The serial shows a marvelous insight into Indian lore and character. It is a compelling story, and the ever present love element has a real charm because of the sympathetic delineation of primitive emotions.

Contract Hops at 8 Cents.

Albany, Or., May 16.—(Special.)—Hop contracts were filed here today whereby the owners of three yards near Brownsville agree to sell their 1908 crops to McNeff Bros., of Portland, at 8 cents a pound. W. C. Cooley & Company have contracted 8,000 lbs. at this figure; D. G. McClaran and D. O. Cross have contracted 6,000 lbs. and William Milligan and Mrs. J. M. Moyer 6,000 lbs.

Last Supply Bill Passed.

Washington, May 20.—The passage by the house of the general deficiency appropriation bill, carrying an appropriation of $17,368,672, marked the completion by that body of the last of the great supply measures. The bill was put through under suspension of the rules with no time allowance for general debate.

Passed Consul Examinations.

Washington, May 17.—Nineteen men passed and eleven failed of the thirty who presented themselved for the April examinations for the grade of consul and appointments to the student interpreter corps. This is a higher proportion of successful candidates than at any previous examination.

TO STOP THE WASTE

WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE MARKS BEGINNING OF A NATIONAL MOVEMENT.

Permanent Organization by States and Nation Will Probably Result—No Limitation by the Constitution as to Agreements That May Be Entered Into Between States—Many Prominent Speakers.

Washington, May 16.—Two ideas destined to mark material progress in America's future resulted from the three days' conference at the White House at which President Roosevelt, the governors of forty-our states, cabinet officers, supreme court judges, senators, representatives and experts participated in efforts to reach conclusions on the best methods of conserving the natural resources of the United States.

The first is that a permanent organization by the states and nation is necessary, and will likely result from the present conference, to accomplish the end sought. The second—suggested by Secretary Root—is that there is no limitation by the constitution to the agreements which may be made between the states, subject to the approval of congress. The two ideas, fully developed, it is predicted, would result in the conservation of the energies and resources of the nation through uniform and unconflicting laws, both national and state.

Permanent Organization Postponed.

The idea that the conference should be perpetuated developed in the form of resolutions offered for later consideration by Governor Glenn, of North Carolina, and Governor Folk, of Missouri. There were many others, but a parliamentary move to save time sent them to a committte for consideration.

Forty-four governors of the states of the Union sat on gilded chairs in the historic east room of the White House and chatted from 10 to 11 o'clock the first morning. Five hundred other persons taxed the capacity of the room. They were cabinet officers, supreme court justices, senators, representatives and experts in all lines of industry. With a flourish of trumpets, the president and vice president entered at 11 o'clock and the conference, the first of its kind in the history of the nation, began. The president had been at work in the executive office up to the very minute of convening. He entered the east room on the minute of 11 o'clock and the marine band rendered the presidential honors. The governors arose; they clapped their hands; they shouted. Five hundred others took their cue and the demonstration became tumultuous.

Submit to Camera.

The president's speech ended the morning session. The governors were photographed with the president on the portico of the White House. The picture will also show William J. Bryan, Andrew Carnegie, J. J. Hill, and Gustav Schwab, the special guests. While the group was being formed President Roosevelt chatted enthusiastically with Governor Hughes of New York, also with Mr. Hill, Mr. Bryan and others.

At the afternoor session the real work of the conference began and lasted until 5:05 o'clock, proceeding at a rate that broke all speed regulations. It developed first that the president finds it impossible to devote entire time to the conference meetings. He called them to order and then designated a governor to preside. The first honor fell to Governor Noel of Mississippi. In making this announcement, as if his political instinct had received a shock, the president suddenly called on Mr. Bryan to interrupt the program and, incidentally,the prepared speech of Andrew Carnegie, and address the meeting. Mr. Bryan acknowledged the enthusiasm his name aroused by lifting his hands and then indicated a desire to speak Friday.

Addresses were made at the afternoon session by Andrew Carnegie, John Mitchell, Governor Johnson of Minnesota, John Hays Hammond and Secretary of State Root.

Mr. Hill Sounds Warning.

James J. Hill, the railroad king, sounded a note of warning at the second day's session, when in a carefully prepared address, he declared that if immediate steps for the conservation of the forests on the Pacific coast are not taken some varieties of timber will be exhausted within 10 or 12 years.

"The Pacific coast," he said, "has a considerable body of merchantable standing timber, but we are consuming yearly three or four times as much timber as the forest growth restores. Our supply of some varieties will be exhausted within 10 or 12 years. Without re-foresting the present century will see the complete wiping out of these forests.

"The exhaustion of the coal supply is not in the definite future. Fifty years ago the annual per capita production was a little over a quarter of a ton, while now it is five tons."

Regarding the unsettled lands in the west, the speaker said that practically the whole interior had been settled within the past 50 years, and asked what the country will offer next.

"It is no longer possible," he declared, "for us to say that 'Uncle Sam has a farm for all of us.'"

Mr. Hill closed with a strong plea for the conservation of the minerals.

President Roosevelt opened the morning session and after announcing that Governor Charles S. Deneen of Illinois would preside at the afternoon session, introduced Mr. Hill.

CONFERENCE ENDS WITH DECLARATION OF PURPOSE.

Washington, May 15.—The first conference of the governors of the states of the American Union has ended. Like many of the important events of history, time is needed to reveal the epoch which the president and the governors believe has been made.

The printed record of the conference, which will later be available to every American home, will be a compilation of facts, startling in their meaning, convincing in their universal conclusion, that the states must act and that the states and the nation must co-operate to the end that to the whole people of the nation may accrue the lasting benefit of its natural resources. Besides the compilation of facts by the experts and the freely expressed opinion of the governors, the conference leaves as its permanent record a thousand words of "declaration." Not a "declaration of independence," but a "declaration of co-operation."

Permanent Organization.

Perhaps of greater importance than all else was the determination of the governors of the states to perefct a permanent organization whereby a heretofore unknown intimacy may be developed among the executives of the forty-six states, made strong by a common purpose and potent by pronouncements which may not lightly be disregarded.

Of the last day the story is one of many features. The set program was swept aside. The president presided throughout. He interjected remarks and speeches. He brought to the platform men who made plain the prevailing feeling, that thought and care must be exercised for the future. The prepared papers were not presented, but they will be printed in the permanent record. Their place was taken first by the "declaration," which was adopted after discussion which brought to light no serious objection to its affirmation.

Then William J. Bryan was presented by the president. He touched the same chords which had produced the vibration of harmony and co-operation. A governors' discussion brought many state executives to the platform, but the product was altogether that of harmony and the sentiments expressed were applauded alike by all.

RAILROAD TITLE TO LAND IS ASSAILED BY SQUATTER

Tacoma, May 16.—Roy Minckler, living near Vancouver, in Clarke county, today filed suit in the federal court here against the Oregon & California railroad to compel that company to sell to him eighty acres of land upon which he has settled at $2.50 an acre. The case is the outgrowth of the recent attempt of the administration to coerce railroads into letting go of their granted lands declared to be illegally held. The suit is said to be the first of its kind brought in the northwest.

The petition is in printed form, indicating that provision has been made for numerous other suits of a similar character. It is a test case, and represents concerted action on the part of many settlers to compel railroads to dispose of their holdings at the uniform price of $2.50 per acre.

In his petition Minckler alleges that he squatted on the eighty acres in question, and that the railroad company refuses to sell it to him at the price of $2.50 an acre, as is stipulated in the land grant made to the company in 1870, when the government gave the road the land to assist in the construction of its line from Portland to Ashland.

Liquor Barred From Convention.

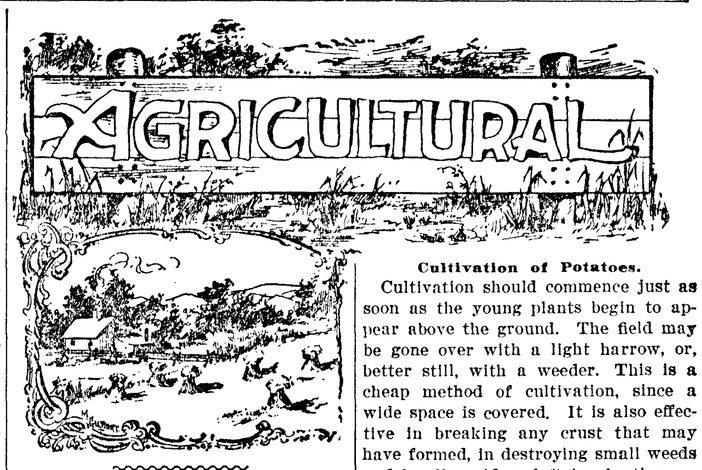
Chicago, May 16.—The subcommittee on arrangements of the Republican national committee passed a rule today which declares that liquor shall not be sold, served or brought into the convention hall either at the committee meetings or during the convention week. The committee also placed a ban on portraits as adornments for the walls of the halls. The reason given for the latter prohibition was the number of favorite sons whose pictures delegates might insist upon having placed and the jealousies and friction that might grow out of the placing of them.

Senate Passes Alaska Coal Bill.

Washington, May 16.—The senate passed the bill providing for the opening of the Alaska coal fields to development. The paragraph providing for the surrender of title or lease in case a monopoly is attempted was taken from the measure upon motion of Senator Kean. This bill is one of the most important Alaska bills before congress and it is claimed that its passage by the house will give employment to 10,000 men in renewing railroad construction in Alaska this season.

Roller Wins Match.

Seattle, May 16.—Dr. B. F. Roller won two straight falls from Fred Beel. The first fall was obtained at the end of one hour and sixteen minutes and the second after thirty-five minutes of spectacular work. The wrestling enthusiasts saw some spectacular work and Roller's band of rooters raised the roof with their cheering when he got the first fall.



Grafting Methods.

Apple trees are usually propagated in the nursery either by budding or root grafting two-year-old seedlings. Larger seedlings may be taken up and the roots cut into a great number of sections five or six inches long. Upon these the scions of the desired varieties should be grafted by means of the whip and tougue method of grafting, as shown in the accompanying illustrations. This grafting does not require any wax, the parts being simply held together by binding with twine or raffia. Root grafting of this kind is usually done during the winter time, and the grafts stored in moist sand or soil until the ground is fit for planting them outside in the spring. They should then be planted in nursery rows, and in two or three years should make trees large enough to transplant to permanent positions.

Top grafting is usually done by the cleft method, as shown in the illustrations. In this method the scions are cut wedge-shaped and fitted firmly into the cleft made in the stock, which is usually cut off squarely where the branches are from one to two inches in diameter, two scions being placed in each stock. In this, as in all methods of grafting, great care must be taken to get the cambium layer, or inner bark, of the stock and scion in contact in at least one side, for it is at this point that union takes place, and any failure to connect the cambium layers of stock and scion is sure to result in failure of the scions. In top grafting, the wounded surfaces should be covered with grafting wax. A good formula for this is: Four parts of resin, two of beeswax and one of tallow, by weight, melted together. Top grafting should be done early in the spring, before growth commences.

In all this propagation work great care should be taken to select scions from trees bearing the very best type of the varieties intended for propagation. Nurserymen, as a rule, are not careful enough in this respect and take scions from any trees so long as it is of the desired variety.—H. L. H.

About Cow Testing.

Prof. Fraser of the Illinois Experiment Station says that a complete knowledge and mastery of the dairy business cannot be secured without testing each cow. Many farmers and dairymen think this testing of the cows is too much trouble, and do not want to "fuss" around with it, but if they considered the profits to be realized from a herd of really good cows as compared with one of poor cows, or even a mixed herd, they would soon see that it really pays to "fuss" around with the scales and Babcock test. Where one cow will give good returns for her feed and care there may be another in the stall next to her that is not paying her board, but is eating up the profits from the paying cow. But how is the owner to know this if he does not test them? A pair of scales and a tester do not cost much, but they pay big profits on the investment.

Agricultural Extension.

One method employed by the State agricultural colleges of reaching the farm boys and girls of the country is through departments of agricultural extension. Such departments have been established at most of the older colleges and they are doing a vast amount of good. The extension department of Ohio is one worthy of the attention of the agricultural world, for through its monthly bulletins thousands of children and teachers in the State have been interested in farm education who would otherwise have never heard of the college and what it is doing.

Vaccination of Hogs.

Secretary Wilson states in his annual report that blood serum from hogs which have been proved to be immune to hog cholera has been used in vaccinating other hogs, which are thus protected from cholera for about three weeks, as shown by experiments. If blood from diseased hogs, however, is injected with the serum the protection is extended to about three and a half months.

Cultivation of Potatoes.

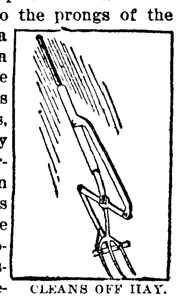
Cultivation should commence just as soon as the young plants begin to appear above the ground. The field may be gone over with a light harrow, or, better still, with a weeder. This is a cheap method of cultivation, since a wide space is covered. It is also effective in breaking any crust that may have formed, in destroying small weeds and leveling ridges left in planting.

As soon as the rows can be seen the cultivator should be used. If the ground has become packed the first cultivation may be deep and close to the plants. Subsequent cultivation should be frequent. The conservation of moisture by frequent tillage cannot be too strongly enforced. The old notion that tillage must cease as soon as the blossom appears is wrong. It should be continued as late in the season as the vines will permit. As the tops begin to spread out and cover the space between the rows they partially shade the soil and thus lessen the loss of moisture by evaporation.

The cultivator should be set as narrow as the space between and keep it covered with a loose mulch. Experience and experiments favor nearly level cultivation. Excessive hilling intensifies the injurious effects of dry weather. The best cultivator is one having a number of small teeth, so that it will leave the soil fine and comparatively level.

Pitch Fork Attachments.

In gathering up freshly cut grass or hay, etc., with a pitchfork a small quantity adheres to the prongs of the fork each time a pile is lifted. In a short while the fork becomes clogged and useless, it being necessary to remove each particle by hand. In order that this cleaning may be done almost automatically, a Wisconsin man has designed the attachment for pitchforks shown here. A transverse clearer bar is arranged below the tines of the fork, guides on each end of the bar partly encircling the end prongs, permitting the bar to slide freely on the prongs. Pivoted on the handle of the fork is a bar which connects with other bars extending to the cleaning bar and to a sleeve which slides on the handle. moving the sleeve on the han cleaning bar slides over the pr the fork, removing anything a to them.



CLEANS OFF HAY.

Dressing Chickens for Market.

Have them in proper flesh and keep them from feed at least twenty-four hours before killing. Cut the throat so they will bleed properly, leaving the head on. Scald in water that is not too hot, in order to have the skin nice and smooth when dressed. A large kettle with plenty of water is much better than a boiler or small kettle. Draw entrails from a small aperture, crop end of wing bone over base of wing bone in front and back. When they have become perfectly cold by hanging by the feet, cut the head off smoothly close to the ears, nearly, and the skin will remain in place. This is better than cutting the head off with hatchet or ax at killing, and tying skin over end of neck.

Poultry Tips.

Eggs need to be turned in the incubator. Don't neglect it.

Make the nests handy not only to clean out but to gather the eggs from.

The wet grass is no place for the young chicks to run unless they are expected to die of cramps.

Fowls like green food as well as any other class of stock. They need it in their business, so it is good policy to keep them supplied.

A bushel of grain a year for each laying hen is said to be the proper amount to count on in estimating the cost of keeping poultry.

Pig Pen Pointers.

When fed dry, shelled corn is more economical than cornmeal to feed to fattening hogs.

The swine breeder is responsible not only for the conditions he provides but for those he permits.

The boy and the pig, generally speaking, are the important factors on the American stock farm.

Desirable breeding qualities in a herd are fixed by a long line of careful selection and breeding.

When an all-corn ration is fed to growing pigs the muscles of the body do not develop to their normal size.

To secure the best results care should be taken to feed the hogs according to age, conditions and time of marketing.

In selecting breeding stock it is an item to know they are from a family noted for fertility, as this is an inherited quality.

In the Sheep Fold.

But don't neglect the old sheep. Feed them at the right time and in the right place.

There is that sheep with hair in place of wool. Get her out of the flock. Wool is what we are after, not hair.

FRIDAY, MAY 22, 1908

The last conventions for the election of delegates to the republican national convention were held last week, and the nomination of Secretary Taft for president on the first ballot, if not by acclamation, is now deemed almost a certainty. Of the 980 delegates who will sit in the convention 563 have been chosen under positive instructions to vote for Taft, or under resolutions of endorsement or preference that were the equivalent of instructions. 225 delegates have been instructed for other candidates. Of the uninstructed more than 100 are known supporters of Taft, thus assuring the Secretary a total delegate strength in the convention of a little short of 700.

"We believe that the issue of local option is purely a local one, and this convention records itself in favor of a reasonable local option bill to be enacted by the next legislature."

By the adoption of this plank at the Spokane convention the republicans of Washington have gone on record as being in sympathy with the temperance wave that is sweeping the country. It is well. The plank is not a very strong one but it will do. It is gratifying to know that the great republican heart of Washington has exercised the courage of its convictions and decided to go on record for sobriety, the home and the family fireside. The one delegate from Clallam county who voted "no" on the proposition must have felt lonesome.

Skagit county's plan of assessing timber lands on the basis of accessibility is a common sense way. The lumberman bases the value upon distance from railroad or water transportation. The scale of graduation adopted may not be fully equitable, but the valuation schedule, running from 40 cents a thousand to $1.75, certainly is conservative. The owners of timber, however, are objecting to this valuation as oppressive, and will go before the commissioners at equalization time to protest. The indications are that in every county in which an effort has been made to put a fair valuation on timber lands the board of equalization will have a protracted and busy session.—Everett Tribune.

One week from tomorrow will be Memorial Day. Port Angeles will observe the day as becomes a patriotic community. Pacific Post and Corps will have charge of the exercises, and the graves of our country's dead will be remembered and respected in quiet reverence by the living.

The democratic state convention honored Port Angeles as well as one of her best citizens by the selection of E. A. FitzHenry as one of the five presidential electors of the state of that party.

The republican convention also honored one of Clallam county's citizens by naming H. J. Bugge as one of the ten alternate delegates to the national convention.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The case of the State vs. Harvey V. Smith of Quillayute on the charge of raping his 12-year-old adopted daughter, Christina Miller, occupied the attention of the Superior Court Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, going, at 4:30 Saturday, to the jury, composed of the following gentlemen: Fred Nelson, James Burrowes, Chas. Larson, Albert Loveless, Martin Doyle, James Chapman, R. D. Willson, John Bowers, E. W. Merrill, Bryan Bowman, Arthur Ahlvers and Charles Jones.

The prosecution, thru the complaining witness; Christina Miller, made out a strong case, but failed on corroborative evidence, owing largely to Mr. Smith's having previously obtained from the State's witnesses signed statements annulling their testimony given to Prosecuting Attorney Cochran. Even the prosecuting witness had signed such a statement, having, she said, been threatened with the reform school.

The defendant made a general denial, in which he was supported by testimony tending to prove his good character, given by many of his neighbors. A verdict of not guilty was reached by the jury at 6:05 Saturday.

MRS. H. E. LUTZ IS NO MORE.

This community was shocked Wednesday morning by the announcement that Mrs. H.E. Lutz was dead. Although her death was not entirely unexpected by some of Mrs. Lutz closest friends here, who were aware that she had undergone a severe operation for tumor at Minor Hospital, Seattle, yet the announcement of the sudden death of this estimable woman came none the less as a painful surprise.

Mrs. Lutz is survived by her husband and four sons, Ralph H. Lutz, student at Heidelberg, Germany; Donald H. Lutz, law student at the University of Washington, Harold H. Lutz and Hugh W. Lutz.

Mrs. Lutz was a member of Pilgrim Congregational Church, Seattle, a promintnt church and club worker; her happy disposition and lovable character won her a large circle of friends in Seattle and Port Angeles, her former home.

C. C. Lollick returned Tuesday from his winter's visit at the old home in Denmark; he says that while he met many of his old friends, the town, as he knew it, had almost entirely disappeared, but two or three of the old houses remaining.

D. H. Bodley returned from Everett, Saturday, where he has spent the past few months, to put in a crop on his Mount Pleasant ranch, upon which he recently received a patent. Mr. Bodley will spend the summer in clearing and improving.

Yesterday was opening day for the fine new soda fountain that W. J. Mathewson has just installed in his drug store. The fountain is a beauty and one of the latest patterns. The marble top counter as well as the frame work for the large mirror that stands immediately behind the fountain is of oak and artistic in design. Mr. Mathewson will serve ice cream soda on the two tables that he has provided for his customers. Altogether the fountain is a pleasing innovation and will no doubt prove a profitabe investment to its owner.

NEARING END OF ANTHRACITE?

A GRIM reminder of the approaching exhaustion of anthracite coal is furnished by the Girard estate. When the great philanthropist died an important part of his legacy to humanity was in hard coal lands. Mining from these big deposits has gone on steadily for seventy years or more. It was formerly the custom of anthracite mine owners to lay aside 10 cents for each ton of coal taken from the ground, which money constituted a sinking fund. When the mine should be exhausted this sinking fund was expected to equal the original cost of the property.

But recently the Girard estate has put to the sinking fund account the total selling price of all the coal mined. That is to say, if $1,000,000 worth of coal is taken out, the $1,000,000 is placed to capital account as an asset, which has been merely transferred from under the ground in the shape of anthracite to above ground in the form of money. Only the interest on the $1,000,000 is spent.

Not only is this conservative policy another proof of the exceptional wisdom which has characterized the management of the estate which supplies Girard College its life blood, but it is a sign that anthracite must now be regarded as a most precious commodity.—Philadelphia Press.

NO ROOM FOR ANARCHISTS.

FOLLOWING the murder of a priest at the altar in Denver and an attempt on the life of the chief of police of Chicago, the Secretary of Commerce and Labor sent a circular to all commissioners of immigration and immigrant inspectors, directing them to co-operate with the police in securing the deportation of all foreign anarchists.

The order does not mark the beginning of a new policy, but is in line with the course of the department since the passage last year of the new immigration law, which defines anarchy and forbids admission of anarchists to the country.

Ill-balanced persons who have suffered under the rule of despotic government are prone to oppose all government and to urge the killing of all public officers. In the United States, where government rests in the hands of the people, there is not the slightest excuse for even the most unreasonable and unreasoning person to be an anarchist. The anarchical murders done here are crimes of so horrible a character that it is difficult to find words adequately to characterize them. The crime of one who is carried away by passion or out of his senses from strong drink can be comprehended; but when a man in cold blood shoots down another against whom he has no personal grievance, and no grievance at all save that his victim is a representative of organized society, all the forces of orderly society must be used, if necessary, to bring about his punishment.

The anarchist, or the man of his type, is more dangerous than a pack of wolves running wild—the wolves can be seen and shot. He is like the fer-de-lance, the poisonous reptile of Martinique, which strikes without warning and without provocation. The fer-de-lance is killed at sight. The anarchist is not punished until he has done some overt act, and then only after he has been tried by orderly process and convicted; but he can be banished from the country if he is an alien.

When the civilized governments unite for his suppression, as they must do in the near future, the anarchist will have to abandon his pernicious principles or find refuge in some savage land where government does not exist.—Youth's Companion.

FLAT LIFE AND TUBERCULOSIS.

THE example of Paris seems to indicate that types of domiciles have much to do with the pulmonary health of the people. Indeed, a government commission which has been investigating the subject does not hesitate to declare that the appalling prevalence of tuberculosis in Paris is due chiefly to the general occupancy of "flats" and apartments. In London, where the mortality from that disease is not half as great, such tenements are little known, and cottage dwellings, with far more light and air, are the rule. Moreover, in Paris, as in New York, many houses seem to become infected with tubercular germs, so as to menace all their occupants. Thus in Paris in 1906 there were 9,573 deaths from tuberculosis, of which 7,807 were in houses in which deaths from the same disease had previously occurrred. Of the latter number 4,838 were in houses in which fewer and 2,969 in houses in which more than five tubercular deaths each had occurred. The sanitary authorities reckon that there are in Paris 5,263 "contaminated" houses, in which occur nearly 30 per cent of the deaths. Thus in one group of 281 houses in twelve streets there were in 1906 no fewer than 114 deaths from the disease, and in 1905 there were 105 in the same houses.—New York Tribune.

DEVILIZATION IN AFRICA.

THE ordinarily sober-sided pages of Liberia (which it must be understood is the bulletin of the American Colonization Society, a survival of the ante-war attempts to set a backfire on the sweeping flames of abolition, and now under the wing of the American Missionary Association) are lighted up by this fantastic new word. "Devilization" is a pun on "Civilization" and represents its antithesis. The word is a native African product, first seeing the light in the Lagos (Guinea Coast) Weekly Record, invented to describe the veneer of civilization imposed on natives of Africa at the whites' points of contact with them. This Lagos publicist finds that "after a century of trial it is fitting that the native should call a halt, and in his own interest take stock of the result of this foreign system imposed on him."—Boston Transcript.

THE GROCERYMAN.

"There ain't but four or five termatters out o' the whole basket you brought me yest'd'y that's any good at all," complained the pretty cook. "The celery is about the poorest I ever seen, too. You can take them right back with you. What's the reason you can't bring me vegertubles that's half-way fresh?"

"Search me," replied the groceryman. "I always pick you out the best there is in the store. I know that, and the boss picks out the best that there is in South Water street. I give him special instructions to, anyway."

"I'll have to tell him a few things myself," said the pretty cook. "I'll tell him that he'd better get him a new man to fill the orders I give him."

"That ain't kind of you, Evelina," said the groceryman, reproachfully. "I know you don't mean it, but it hurts me to hear you speak cross even in fun. These here termatters is all right as far as I can see. They're soft in places, but that's only because they haven't ripened even. These termatters come from down south an' the sun shines on them only in spots there. It's better to have 'em soft in spots, though, than to have 'em soft all over."

"You take 'em back," said the cook, uncompromisingly.

"What's the matter with the celery?" asked the groceryman.

"Nothin', only it's green an' stringy," replied the cook.

"That's because it wasn't left in the bed long enough," said the groceryman. "You take celery and if it ain't left in the bed until it's white it stays green. You take it upstairs and tuck it under the blankets."

"Smarty!" said the cook.

"I ain't smart," said the groceryman. "I wish I was. What I need is a smart wife."

"What you need is a little sense," said the cook.

"I've got a scheme, Evelina," said the groceryman. "What's the matter with me spadin' up a little patch right here in the yard an' plantin' a few vegertubles in it for you? I could do it just as well as not an' I'd be tickled to death. I could do it in my spare time an' you could look out o' the winder an' watch me, an' when I got tired I could come in an' set down for a spell an' rest myself an' cheer you up."

"Fine business," said the cook, indifferently, carrying her pan of potatoes to the sink.

"I could set out some green onions an' some spinach an' termatters," pursued the groceryman, thoughtfully. "An' I could plant some string beans along the fence an' sow some radish seed an' lettuce an' some parsley an' things for flavorin' an' then you'd have 'em fresh all the time. How does it strike you?"

"If they was as fresh as you are it might be all right," said the cook.

"Wunst in a while if you had a pie you wanted me to sample an' tell you if it tasted right I could help you out that way," suggested the groceryman. "All I'd ast you to do would be to wave your hand and smile out of the winder at me. I never done any gardenin', but I don't see no reason why I couldn't. Funny it never struck me before."

"You'll have somethin' strike you that won't be so funny pretty soon."

"That seems to be about the proper thing," said the groceryman. "The man out in the garden diggin' an' the woman in the kitchen, singin'. I wonder if your boss wouldn't give me a job as outside man."

"If I thought it would keep you outside I'd be willin' to give you my reckermend," said the cook. "Anyway I haven't got no boss. I want you to understand that."

"I forgot all about you bein' the cook for the moment," said the groceryman. "Well, I must be goin'. Cheer up, Evelina, an' I'll bring you the celery. Or did you ask for celery jest so's I'd come back?"—Chicago Daily News.

The Best Men.

"I can get an English coachman a place twice as quickly as a German or a Yankee coachman," said an employment agent. "Each country, I find, is supposed to turn out one kind of workman of peculiar excellence. Thus England's specialty is the stableman.

"France's specialty is the chauffeur. The cook, too, is a specialty of France.

"Scotland is noted for its engineers, and in the field of sport for its golf coaches.

"The Swiss are considered to be the best watchmakers. It is never any trouble to get a Swiss watchmaker a job.

"The Swedes are the best sailors.

"Italians are in demand as plaster workers, a trade wherein they wonderfully excel."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

What Hurts.

THE DUST IN THE AIR.

Without It the Heat of the Sun Would Be Unbearable.

The usefulness of dust is proclaimed by science despite all the housewives of all the ages. Dust is part of the machinery that produces cloud and rain. It is also a protection from the sun. Without it the sun's rays would be unbearable. The reason that sunburn is more easily acquired on the mountains than in the lowlands is said to be probably because of the comparatively dustless air of the mountainous regions.

A dustless atmosphere during rain would mean a much greater degree of discomfort than rain ever brings. Trees and buildings would be dripping with moisture, our clothing and the exposed parts of our bodies would be constantly wet, umbrellas would be classed as useless curios, and instead of trying to conquer the dust in the house we should have to face a much greater enemy in wet floors and dripping walls. In every drop of rain and in every particle of cloud there is a particle of dust. A sample of air may be taken anywhere and the number of its dust particles accurately determined. Dust, too, produces the glorious sunset effects in the evening sky, thus causing the faint obscurity we call twilight.

Twilight is always reflected glory. The light comes from the sun, which has in the meanwhile sunk below the horizon. The reflector is an upper layer of dust. Were the air perfectly dustless there would be no twilight. Darkness would immediately follow the sunset.

For the Sea-Horses.

The grown-up world is not much wiser, after all, in judging the unknown than was the little girl whose summing up of the situation is given in the New York Times. The child is 5 years old, and lives in an inland town near which there is no river, nor, in fact, any water but the Erie Canal.

The child's mother made a visit to New York, and on her return was telling of her trip down the bay, and of how wonderfully the sea looked to her. Her little girl was listening eagerly.

"Tell me just what the sea is like, mamma," she said.

Her mother made an effort. "There's the beach," she said, "all smooth white sand. You stand on it and look out over the ocean, and all you can see is just water, just moving water, waves coming in and breaking, nothing but water and sky."

The child sat trying to picture it, then in an awed little whisper, asked: "O mamma, isn't there even a towpath?"

RELIGIOUS

"Hold Fast."

On the island of Martha's Vineyard is a church that gathers its congregation, and takes the people home again. It has pursued this method for sixteen years, with constant success and efficiency.

The Seaman's Bethel of Vineyard Sound has a widely scattered constituency in every one of the seven seas; but almost every day in the year some of its long-absent members come back.

Not many ships discharge their cargoes at Vineyard Haven; but more ships are said to put in there for safety than at any other port on the Atlantic coast. Three hundred vessels of all nations have been counted there at once. Yacht clubs and fleets of battleships; fishing vessels and ocean liners; lumber schooners and merchantmen—all know the way to Vineyard Haven; and in time of storm or fog the congregations increase at the Bethel meetings.

But the sailors must be gathered, or they cannot get ashore. An hour before the evening service the Bethel launch puts forth and picks up a congregation—one man from one ship, two or three from another, until a dozen or a score of ships are visited. And when the launch returns to the Bethel, it has on board fifty, seventy-five, and sometimes even a hundred men.

Some of these know each other, but meet for the first time in years; others are strangers, but meet in the fellowship of a good work of world-wide proportions, and in the clean, light Bethel chapel they join in song and praise. They tell of victories over temptations and gain strength for new duties. They receive help and encourage each other, and then set sail again.

It is not a rough or poorly dressed set of men that gathers in the Bethel. Unlike the rescue work in the cities, which takes seamen after their shore-work, this brings them from the ship, sober and clean, and sets them back on deck again, cheerful and strong.

It is a thrilling experience to accompany a boatload of these men back to their respective ships after a testimony meeting in the Bethel. Out into the fog, and if it be winter, into the ice and storm, the launch makes its way, sailing many difficult miles among the shipping to find the vessels where the men belong.

A ship looms up ahead. The searchlight reveals its name, which is shouted back into the cabin, that the men who are to board it may clamber to the roof of the cabin and be ready. The launch comes alongside; the sailors scramble up. There is a hurried "Good night!" and "God bless you!" shouted back into the night, and a parting, perhaps for years.

But on whatever sea a sailor sees a blue button with a white dove and the words "Hold Fast," he knows he meets a companion of the company who have made that journey to and fro, and have entered into covenant with God and each other to be clean and strong and brave.—Youth's Companion.

"Inasmuch as Ye Did It."

It is not much the Master asks of thee;
Only a tender smile, a kindly word,
To some poor, lonely, troubled, stricken soul,
That feels alone amidst life's busy crowd.

It is not much the Father asks of thee!
Only a helping hand to His poor child
That wanders blindly out o'er mountains cold,
Or loses love and life in deserts wild.

It is not much the Saviour asks of thee!
Only to love the sinner for His sake;
Only to seek the fallen and the lost;
Only the consecrated cross to take.

It is not much the Christ doth ask of thee;
Only a cup of water in His name;
The hungry fed; the naked clothed again;
A word of cheer to halt, and sick, and lame.

It is not much that I can give to thee!
Oh, Master! Father! Saviour of us all!
But may the words, "Ye did it unto me,"
To love and labor be to me the call.
—Rev. J. T. Stephens.

The Duty of Right Living.

To live right is a duty we owe first to God, and then to self, and it is also a solemn duty which we owe to those whom we profess to love, that we may make it as easy as possible for them to do right and as hard as possible for them to do wrong.

We are to be lights in the world to show forth the Christ-life. Our business is not so much to make professions of religion or display good works, in themselves, as to shine, to give out an influence that will brighten those lives around us, and like the brightness of the sun, bring forth the fruits of love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, meekness, and faith.

Eternal Realities.

Eternity is a reality; we shall soon be there in reality, and time shall soon be finished. From our stand in eternity we shall look back on what we did in time, and what then shall we think of it?

The wise man, in making his choices will take eternity into account. Those things that will satisfy him then are the things he will seek most earnestly. Whatever he knows will perish in a little while, he will put in the seeds to the obtaining, not of "the meat which perisheth," as Christ puts it, but of "that meat which endureth unto everlasting life."

And the blessings that abide are within reach of all. For all that the world offers we must toil, and often toil in vain. But heaven's gifts are never denied to those who seek them. The best and choicest may be ours, and in abundance, if we but seek them.

Living With God.

We are, always, in God's presence, but that presence does not touch our souls, strengthen our will, help us to overcome our faults, companion us in our loneliness, or console us in sorrow unless we open ourselves to its influence. The Holy Spirit cannot force an entrance to our hearts; we must open the door. The secret of living with God lies in continually directing our thoughts to Him; the practice of His presence is simply keeping consciously with Him in all times and in all places.

A Simple Creed.

To do Thy will,
My fate to fill,
My daily work to do;
To scorn the mean,
To keep me clean,
Nor chide, tho' gains be few.

To bear the rood,
To see the good,
To help my brother's need,
To be forgiven,
To hope for heaven—
These sum my code and creed.
—Susan M. Best.

FREE AND EASY RULERS.

Kings Who Mingle with Their Subjects Unescorted.

In view of the long series of assassinations of European rulers, culminating in the tragedy at Lisbon, one might expect royalty to take all sorts of precautions against sudden death, says the New York Tribune. The life of the czar of Russia, who is reputed to change bedrooms nightly and to eat his meals in apartments chosen at the moment, who is encompassed with a legion of spies and a regiment of devoted soldiers, would seem to be a proper model for all those engaged in the hazardous trade of kingship. It is no doubt uncomfortable and trying on the nerves to suspect everybody and everything, to look under the bed at night and to fear that a courtier drawing a handkerchief may be reaching for an automatic pistol; but such are presumably the drawbacks of holding most royal jobs to-day.

However, some monarchs take as few precautions as presidents of republics and sometimes mingle with their subjects in public places absolutely unescorted. The killing of Carlos has checked only momentarily the free and easy habits of such of his fellow rulers. Alfonso of Spain, for instance, may not be going out in the crowd every day just now, but he will not long endure the prudent advice of his councilors.

There may be, in fact, a deal of solid sense on the risk taking of kings. Their average years of existence might be increased if all followed the caution of the czar, yet a few precautions would entail more, and by making themselves hard to get at they would excite the desire of a portion of their subjects to overcome obstacles and "get them." A king who hides seems to admit that he is a tyrant.

Then it may well be argued by royalty that their chances of death are not much greater than if they were miners or artisans, and that a short life free from care is better than days prolonged in terror. The lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place. At least, such seem to be the arguments of Alfonso, who keeps his friends in a state of nerves by his habit of going about unprotected.

It is well known that King Edward of England goes to the racetrack like any English gentleman and freely promenades at a French bathing resort, while King Leopold of the Belgians frequently slips away to Paris to have a good time in the boulevards all by himself. King Humbert of Italy, who was assassinated, never took any great care of his safety, but he would not extend the risk to his queen by having her ride in the same carriage with him.

Depew Not Eager for Heaven.

Senator Depew called at the White House the other day. As he came from the President's office he was accosted by a venerable clergyman from the west, who said:

"Senator, I want to pay my respects to you. I met you many years ago, when you came to Galena to deliver an oration on the dedication of the Grant memorial."

The Senator acknowledged the greeting.

"Good-by," said the minister. "I trust we may meet in heaven."

"Well," replied Mr. Depew, "I hope it will be a good while before you go there, and still longer before I meet you there."

SOLVES SECRET OF WIRELESS.

Boy Says He Can Project Power Without Use of Wires.

Harry M. Grout, a high school boy of Spencer, Mass., says he has discovered the secret of transmitting electric waves through the air without the aid of wires. He has been studying electricity for five years and has already become an expert operator with wireless methods of communication, according to the New York World.

He now lights a dozen incandescent bulbs in different rooms in his house by merely pressing a small lever in his room and projecting the electric waves. There are no connecting wires between these different lights and the machines which he operates. Each light is merely connected with a small battery of its own.

Just how the electric power which the hundred-odd batteries in the operating room produce is made to travel through the air young Grout as yet refuses to disclose. He declares that he can now cause this wireless electric power to be projected several hundred feet and he further insists that when he is able to own a dynamo and produce sufficient electricity at once he will cause it to perform all the maneuvers of customary operation from the shore or from his own room.

He asserts that when he has accomplished this he will apply his tests to torpedoes. The young inventor is now in communication with a United States weather observatory official in Haddam, Conn., who has been studying along similar lines with Grout and whose first letter to the high school boy said that the Connecticut man believed the two together would be able to communicate with the planet Mars. Young Grout admits that he believes such a thing possible, and he also is convinced that it can be accomplished from what he has already discovered, providing power enough can be obtained to send the force waves such a long distance.

Many electricians have visited the boy and have satisfied themselves that he is actually causing electric power waves to travel through his home by merely turning on and off the lever.

The young electrician said: "I am merely in the experimental stage of my work and now, of course, am not willing to explain just how I can light the electric bulbs in my house without wires. It is sufficient to say that I do hope to do something more practical with these power waves before spring. I can operate a motor at 900 feet and feel sure that I shall soon be able to put a motor boat through all kinds of paces from the shore within a short time. When I have accomplished that of course the way will be open for sure and safe propulsion and operation of other craft of greater or less size and also of torpedoes in time of war from the land."

Grout is only 18 years of age. He became interested in electricity at high school and immediately branched out beyond the routine work of which his courses consisted. He has charge of the electric equipment of a large manufacturing concern in Spencer.

If not an air-line across the continent Mr. Harriman at least has an a-erie-al one.

A Hard Knock.

Railroad claim agents have little faith in their fellow creatures. One said recently: "Every time I settle a claim with one of these hard-headed rural residents who wants the railroad to pay twice what he would charge the butcher if he gets a sheep killed, I think of this story, illustrative of the way some people want to hold the railroad responsible for every accident, of whatever kind, that happens. Two Irishmen were driving home from town one night when their buggy ran into a ditch, overturned, and they were both stunned. When a rescuer came along and revived them the first thing one of them said was, 'Where's the train?' 'Why, there's no train around,' he was told. 'Then where's the railroad?' 'The nearest railroad is three miles away,' he learned. 'Well, well,' he commented. 'I knew it hit us pretty hard, but I didn't suppose it knocked us three miles from the track!'"—Argonaut.

Laundering Table Cloths.

When rinsing gather up and wring lengthwise. If they are not pure linen add one pint of flour starch to two or three gallons of rinse water. Then shade well; if fringed, shade each side separately until the fringe is straight, then hang lengthwise on the line, with the lower edges perfectly even. Let them dry; take from the line, sprinkle well, folding them and rolling very tight, with the edges even. Have the irons very hot. Lay them double on the ironing board, iron on both sides, and again on the first side, fold and iron each fold with care, then lay on a flat surface to dry thoroughly before putting away, and your tablecloths will always look nice.

The progress of the enormous new system of waterworks of New York City has made necessary the creation of a large new aqueduct police force, for the patrol and protection of the watershed. The chief of the force is a popular college graduate and society man. The news of his appointment brought applications to take the civil service examinations from three hundred college men, who are attracted by what they regard as a vacation in the beautiful scenery of the Catskills, with one hundred dollars a month as a gratuity. The physical examiner of the civil service commission pronounced the candidates the finest body of men, physically, he had ever examined, and the young men came away from the mental tests grinning, and declaring that they were "easy." The aqueduct force ought to be able to rob the city police of its title of "the finest."

S.S.S. HEALS OLD SORES

No old sore exists merely because the flesh is diseased at that particular spot; if this were true simple cleanliness and local applications would heal them. Whenever a sore or ulcer refuses to heal readily, the blood is at fault; this vital fluid is filled with impurities and poisons which are being constantly discharged into the place, feeding it with noxious matter and irritating and inflaming the nerves and tissues so the sore cannot heal. These impurities in the blood may be the remains of some constitutional trouble, the effect of a debilitating spell of sickness, leaving disease germs in the system, or the absorption by the blood of the fermented refuse matter which the bodily channels of waste have failed to remove. Again the cause may be hereditary, the diseased blood of ancestry being handed down to posterity; but whatever the cause, the fact that the sore will not heal shows the necessity for the very best constitutional treatment. There is nothing that causes more worry and anxiety than an old sore which resists treatment. Every symptom suggests pollution and disease—the discharge, the red, angry looking flesh, the pain and inflammation, and the discoloration of surrounding parts, all show that deep down in the blood there are morbid and dangerous forces at work, constantly creating poisons which may in the end lead to Cancer. Local applications are valuable only for their cleansing and antiseptic effects; they do not reach the blood, where the real cause is located, and can therefore have no real curative worth. S. S. S. heals old sores by going down to the fountain-head of the trouble and driving out the poison-producing germs and morbid matters which are keeping the ulcer open. It removes every particle of impurity from the circulation and makes this life-stream pure, fresh and health-sustaining. Then as new, rich blood is carried to the place the healing begins, all discharge ceases, the inflammation leaves, new tissue and healthy flesh are formed, and soon the sore or ulcer is well. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers and finest of tonics, just what is needed in the treatment, and in addition to curing the sore will build up and strengthen every part of the system. Special book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice desired furnished free to all who write. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA

I want to recommend S. S. S. to any who are in need of a blood purifier, and especially as a remedy for sores and obstinate ulcers. In 1877 I had my leg badly cut on the sharp edge of a barrel, and having on a blue woolen stocking the place was badly poisoned from the dye. A great sore formed and for years no one knows what I suffered with the place. I tried, it seemed to me, everything I had ever heard of, but I got no relief and I thought I would have to go through life with an angry, discharging sore on my leg. At last I began the use of S. S. S., and it was but a short time until I saw that the place was improving. I continued it until it removed all the poison from my blood and made a complete and permanent cure of the sore. JNO. ELLIS.

THE GREATEST WEDDING.

Over Twenty Thousand Persons Were Married in One Ceremony.

The biggest wedding ever known to history was when Alexander the Great and over 10,000 of his soldiers took part in a wedding in the court of Darius, king of Persia, after the latter's conquest by Alexander. Twenty thousand two hundred and two persons were made husbands and wives in one ceremony.

The facts are these: After conquering King Darius, Alexander determined to wed Statiro, daughter of the conquered king, and issued a decree that on that occasion 100 of his chief officers should marry 100 women from the noblest Persian and Medean families. He further stipulated that 10,000 of his Greek soldiers should take to wife 10,000 Asiatic women.

For this purpose a vast pavilion was erected, the pillars being sixty feet high. One hundred gorgeous chambers adjoined this for the 100 noble bridegrooms, while for the 10,000 soldiers an outer court was inclosed. Outside of this tables were spread for the multitude.

Each pair had seats and ranged themselves in a semi-circle round the royal throne. As it would have taken several weeks for the few priests to have married this vast number of couples had the ceremony been performed in the ordinary way, Alexander invented a simple way out of the difficulty. He gave his hand to Statiro and kissed her, and all the remaining bridegrooms did the same to the women beside them, and thus ended the ceremony that united the greatest number of people at one time ever known.

Then occurred a five days' festival, which for grandeur and magnificence never has since been equaled.

Legal Information

The United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Hillhouse v. United States, 152 Federal Reporter, 163, holds that automobiles come within the classification of "household effects," under the tariff act of July 24, 1897. This decision is largely based on the case of Arthur v. Morgan, 112 U. S. 495, 5 Supreme Court Reporter, 241, 28 Lawyers' Edition, 825, wherein the United States Supreme Court held that carriages were properly classified as "household effects."

If the conductor of a street car, while engaged in the prosecution and within the scope of his business in collecting fares, falls and refuses to give a passenger correct change, and upon request therefor draws a pistol and fires at the passenger, but the ball misses the passenger and strikes a woman passing on the public street through which the car is running, causing her death, the street car company is liable, according to the decision of the Georgia Supreme Court in Savannah Electric Company v. Wheeler, 58 Southeastern Reporter, 38.

A person may be guilty of smuggling even before he has passed the custom lines on the docks of an incoming steamer, according to the decision of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York in United States v. 218½ Carats Loose Emeralds, 153 Federal Reporter, 643. When the proper customs officer examines an incoming passenger's baggage, and questions him whether he has any personal property which he has not declared, such passenger is obliged to state the truth, and when the examination is finished, and the passenger still has precious stones in his possession without having admitted it, the act of smuggling is complete.

A number of southeastern railroads gave notice of an increase of rates on lumber in 1903. Before the rate became effective, a bill was filed in the United States Circuit Court to restrain the establishment of the new rate as being unreasonable. A temporary injunction was granted, but later dissolved, on the condition that the reasonableness of the rate should be passed upon by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The commission found the rates to be unreasonable. A supplemental bill was then filed to obtain restitution of the excess of rates charged in accordance with a prior stipulation that, if complainants prevail, a decree of restitution might be made. A decree was so rendered and affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals. Upon appeal to the Supreme Court it was again affirmed. Railway Co. v. Tift, 27 Supreme Court Reporter, 709, 206 U. S. 428.

A Domestic Breakdown.

A well-known lord discovered a thief in his London house. Aided by the butler, he secured the man and then rang the bell. A servant appeared, whom the peer requested to "go into the kitchen and bring up a policeman or two." The domestic returned and said there were no policemen on the premises. "What!" exclaimed his master in incredulous tones. "Do you mean to tell me that with a cook, two scullery maids, a kitchen maid and three housemaids in my employ there is no policeman in the kitchen? It is indeed a miracle, and our prisoner shall reap the benefit. Turner, let the man go instantly!"—London Standard.

There should be some title placed before a man's name to show that he is married. His face never tells whether he is or not. A woman is labeled with "Mrs." Why should not a man be?

What is Pe-ru-na?

Is it a Catarrh Remedy, or a Tonic, or is it Both?

Some people call Peruna a great tonic. Others refer to Peruna as a great catarrh remedy.

Which of these people are right? Is it more proper to call Peruna a catarrh remedy than to call it a tonic?

Our reply is, that Peruna is both a tonic and a catarrh remedy. Indeed, there can be no effectual catarrh remedy that is not also a tonic.

In order to thoroughly relieve any case of catarrh, a remedy must not only have a specific action on the mucous membranes affected by the catarrh, but it must have a general tonic action on the nervous system.

Catarrh, even in persons who are otherwise strong, is a weakened condition of some mucous membrane. There must be something to strengthen the circulation, to give tone to the arteries, and to raise the vital forces.

Perhaps no vegetable remedy in the world has attracted so much attention from medical writers as HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS. The wonderful efficacy of this herb has been recognized many years, and is growing in its hold upon the medical profession. When joined with CUBEBS and COPAIBA a trio of medical agents is formed in Peruna which constitutes a specific remedy for catarrh that in the present state of medical progress cannot be improved upon. This action, reinforced by such renowned tonics as COLLINSONIA CANADENSIS, CORYDALIS FORMOSA and CEDRON SEED, ought to make this compound an ideal remedy for catarrh in all its stages and locations in the body.

From a theoretical standpoint, therefore, Peruna is beyond criticism. The use of Peruna, confirms this opinion. Numberless testimonials from every quarter of the earth furnish ample evidence that this judgment is not over enthusiastic. When practical experience confirms a well-grounded theory the result is a truth that cannot be shaken.

Manufactured by Peruna Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio

In a meeting of a prominent woman's club, one of the members made a humorous criticism on the character and performances of man, who, she said, significantly, was created immediately after the brutes. And in Current Literature for April there was a symposium by a lot of anonymous philosophers, such as a "street car conductor," "a tenement-house commissioner," and "a udge"—they were afraid or ashamed to give their names—who cheerfully express the opinion that women, as a sex, are wholly destitute of "honor." It is a singular freak of human nature that whenever a person becomes irritated by the character or conduct of another person the fault is ultimately attributed to the offending person's religion, nationality or sex. This blundering conclusion may be the result of prejudice against a certain religion, nationality or sex, or it may be the effect of sheer shallowness and ignorance. But if it is not the result of prejudice it is sure to beget it. The harsh criticisms of women by men and men by women are to be viewed in this light. They betray an utter absence of close observation and reasoning. And where the criticisms are not jocose they are to be deprecated, as tending to produce what are called "men haters" and "women haters," and to give false ideas of life.

IMPROVEMENT MANIFEST THROUGHOUT CITY

Substantial Improvements Noted on Lincoln Heights by Reporter for Olympic-Leader.

That Port Angeles is growing and will soon be known as a little city of beautiful homes is becoming apparent more and more each day. Substantial dwellings are going up and other improvements made in all parts of the city. The spirit of progress has, seemingly, taken hold of our citizens, and Angeles is taking on a new dress. Our Scientist people have the lumber on the ground and work under way for the neat new church they propose building on Eighth street. The large Parish House and gymnasium of the Episcopal Church is nearing completion and the date set, the first Tuesday in June, for a formal dedication of the same.

A resident of Lincoln Heights hands us a partial list of improvements made in that thriving part of the residence district since the new order of things.

Charlie Filion, 9th St., between C and D, built a new house and generally improved his premises.

Tom McRoberts, C St., built house, set out a fine orchard and made other improvements.

John McLeod, B and 10th, addition to house, well, etc.

Mr. Rodgers, 10th st., addition to his house, besides making other improvements.

Mr. Higgins, B and 11th, erected a neat house and otherwise improving the premises.

A. W. Hall, 9th, bet. C and D, neat porch and pantry, 150 feet picket fence.

C. W. Harding, 9th and D, new out-buildings, 200 feet picket fence and 340 ft. other fencing.

Mike Doyle, 8th and D, house, out buildings, orchard, 340 feet picket fencing, enclosing a very neat place.

Martin Doyle, 8th st., new fence.

Mr. VanKuren, 7th and B, house and out buildings. Mrs. VanKuren is a great lover of the beautiful and has a fine flower garden.

Ernest O'Brien, 6th and B, house, barn, well, 300 feet fence.

Antone Coble, 6th, near B, new house.

John Solf, 13th, bet. B and C, a house, barn, well, orchard, etc.

Mike Henhslein, cor. 12th and C, house and barn, well, and greatly improved his yard and surroundings.

J. B. and L. C. Fleming, 9th, bet. C and D, house, wood house, chicken house, put out a fine orchard, enclosing street front with 100 ft. picket fence.

Mrs. Gran, 6th, bet. B and C, house, wire fence, etc.

J. E. Cochran, 6th and C, raised his house, adding a second story, improving the premises in fine shape.

Mr. Green, 6th and C, new barn and other improvements.

A. I. Filion, 12th and C, is preparing the ground with intention of putting up what will be one of the finest residences in town.

Lee Boyd, 12th and B, house, out buildings, well, etc.

James Hutchinson, 11th st. substantial improvements to house and barn.

Fred Poole, 11th st., a fine new house.

Lincoln Heights makes a good showing. Can either of the other sections of the city present equally as good a showing? Will some good resident of Fine Hill, the East End or Central Port Angeles send us a list of improvements from their various sections?

There is a class of people in every community which continually criticises the home newspapers for publishing this or that item of news. These people fail to realize that the newspapers don't make the news, but must take the news as they find it. On the other hand, if the newspapers were to print one-half the things they know about individuals or business concerns about their town, there are reputations which would go gilmmering and families that would be broken up.

Newspapers suppress far more than they print. Scandals are suppressed out of consideration for the families concerned and crockedness in business is passed over for the general good of the town. The newspaper, like the clergyman, preaches a pure morality. It stands up for domestic purity and civil righteousness. It advocates public spirit and progress. And it will generally be found pursuing the even tenor of its way, despite the ill natured criticisms of those whose axe is dull, or who have that they wish concealed.—Townsend Call.

Everything in the line of granite and tinware and cooking utensils at Bakers. Prices surprisingly low.

Have You a Cough

A dose of Ballard's Horehound Syrup will relieve it. Have you a cold? Try it for whooping cough, for asthma, for consumption, for bronchitis. Mrs. Joe McGrath, 327 E. 1st St, Hutchinson, Kans., writes: "I have used Ballard's Horehound Syrup in my family for five years, and find it the most palatable medicine I ever used."

Sold at Mathewson's Drug Store.

PEOPLE WHO "RUN THINGS"

The following from the Anacortes Citizen appears to us to be right to the point at the present time, when some of those who never take any interest in the Commercial Club are inclined to criticise the work of the faithful few—so very few—who started the movement to secure the visit of the ships and then put their shoulders to the wheel to make the affair a success.

"I don't like the way a few fellows have of wanting to run things," remarked an Anacortes man, one day this week, in speaking of the work of a society to which he belonged We suspect that, if there was any work, or sacrifice, or thought necessary, this man didn't want to run things.

Some one in society, in business, in church, in lodge, and in party has got to "run things," and the burden generally falls on the shoulders of a very few.

There are, in Anacortes, near fifty different organizations, the membership of which runs into the thousands, and there are very few men or women who do not belong to one or more. Yet, when it comes to running things, possibly not over twenty per cent of the members take any active part or give the welfare of the institution any thought.

Take, for instance, the lodge of a hundred members. It is the rarest occasion that the attendance runs above twenty. From these the officers must be elected, the committees chosen, and to them all work assigned.

The church with two hundred members has an average attendance of forty or less. The clubs are no better off. The social organizations begin with a good attendance, but soon dwindle down to almost nothing.

Church societies have the same experience. Commercial clubs get out little more than a quorum to do business and the burden falls on the shoulders of the few willing workers, who are always on hand to bear the burdens, do the work, provide ways and means, and keep life in the organization.

What do you imagine the condition would be in our churches, our lodges, our societies, our clubs, and if the little band who "run things" would do as their indifferent neighbors do, and neglect this public and semi-public work. Bless your soul, the whole machine would go to the bow-wows in less time than it takes to tell it. The progress of the universe, politically, religiously, socially and commercially rests on the few who want to "run things." True, they sometimes make mistakes, but for each mistake there are a hundred things well planned and carried out. The world should give all honor to those who want to "run things."

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heartburn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., Author of American Dispensatory; Prof. Jno. M. Scudder, M. D., Author of Specific Medicines; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., Med. Dept. Univ. of N. Y.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., Author of Materia Medica and Prof. in Bennett Medical College, Chicago. Send name and address on Postal Card to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive free booklet giving extracts from writings of all the above medical authors and many others endorsing, in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in conjunction with "Golden Medical Discovery" if bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

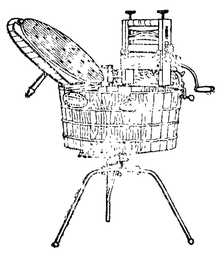
Our good friends over in Victoria are looking hopefully forward to the day, not far distant, when the gold produced in the Yukon and Northern British Columbia will pass thru the capital city of British Columbia instead of Seattle, as at present. The Ottawa government will soon be in position to coin the yellow metal, and inducements by the provincial government are expected that will cause the miners to bring their gold to Victoria instead of to the Sound Metropolis. Possibly our English cousins are not aware of the "Seattle spirit" in such an emergency.



SOMETHING NEW.

It will pay you, when looking around, to come in and see how easy and what a labor saving washing machine you will find in the new make, "The New Home." It is ball bearing, easy on the clothes, and so easy to operate that a child can do the washing. Well and durably made intended for long and continuous use. See this machine, it is certainly a pleasure to show and talk about it, for we know it does as we say it will. H. Gutenberg Hdw. & Fur. Co.
