IN THE SHADOW OF THE OLYMPICS.

RECEPTION AN ELABORATE AFFAIR

Seventy-five Couples Participated in the Grand March. Ladies Received Many Compliments on Decorations.

The most enjoyable as well as elaborate affair of the kind given in our little city for some time was the reception and ball for the officers of the fleet on Thursday evening, and it certainly reflected great credit upon those who had it in charge.

The interior of the opera house was hardly recognizable in its festive garb of bunting and flags tastefully draped over ceiling and walls and festooned into the prettiest of draperies. The balcony was converted into a cosy "den" with couches, comfortable chairs and card tables. In opposite corners of the hall, dainty booths were arranged where several charming little misses presided over the punch bowls and quenched the thirst of the merry dancers. The ront of the stage was occupied by he musicians, while no amount of work was spared by the ladies of the decorative committee in transforming the rear part into a fairy bower, suitable for the serving of the elaborate buffet luncheon. Flags and bunting with beautiful vines hid many defects, and the long tables, spread with snowy linen and shining silver, with gorgeous bouquets of red, white and blue flowers made a most attractive appearance. The luncheon consisted of chicken and vegetable salads, sandwiches and coffee, chocolate and vanilla ice cream and cake.

At nine o'clock, Captain Niles of the Louisiana and about forty officers were welcomed at the door by Mr. Corsan and duly presented to the reception committee, who at once endeaored to make them all feel at home. Those receiving were Mesdames Aldwell, Farmer, Gorman, Lauridsen, Grubb, Day, Ritchie, A. A. Smith, Delabarre, Webster, Brumfield, Harding, MacGill and Payne. About seventy-five couples took part in the grand march, led by Capt. Niles and Mrs. Aldwell. It was truly a pretty sight; the ladies were all beautifully gowned, and the officers in their full dress suits with regulation trimmings added not a little to the attractiveness of the scene.

The music, provided by the fleet, was a treat to dancers as well as to the spectators. After the closing Home, Sweet Home waltz, the band struck up America and in a moment dancers were at a standstill, and every person in the opera house was on his feet; many joined in singing the national hymn and handkerchiefs were waving all over the room. At the close three cheers was were given by the entire company, which was responded to by the officers.

Will Kallapa, an Indian boy of 17, was accidentally shot thru the heart and instantly killed by Christopher Lacco, aged 13, Wednesday evening at Neah Bay. Lacco then, in fright of what he had done, turned the weapon upon himself and fired a 32-calibre rifle ball into his own body, the bullet entering the stomach. Lacco was brought to this city on the Bellingham Thursday morning and taken to the General Hospital. Dr. Hartt probed for the bullet but was unable to locate it. Lacco died about 7:45, a few hours after his arrival here.

According to the story of John Smith, another Indian who brought the wounded boy to this city, Lacco and Kallappa were hunting in the woods near the village. Giving up the hunt Lacco unloaded his gun and while thus engaged accidentally shot his fellow huntsman. The body will be taken to Neah Bay today for burial.

The illumination of the ships each evening was a most beautiful sight, not only enjoyed by hundreds of people along the bluffs, but also by the citizens of Victoria who gathered on Beacon Hill from where it was plainly visible.

SMALLEST CITY RECEIVES HIGHEST PRAISE

SAILORS MORE THAN PLEASED

Many Spoke of Their Entertainment in Angeles as Being Best Received on Entire Trip.

"Why, this is a regular picnic, just like we used to have down on the river at home," said one of the sailors at the park Friday, when asked how he enjoyed the barbecue. "When we came up along the sand spit, and saw how small the town was, we thought we were going to be marooned for a couple of days, but we've had the best time on the trip. I'd like to stay here two weeks."

"The people here have made us feel at home," said another. We will always remember Los Angeles and Port Angeles as the two places where the men were treated white as well as the officers." A cursory glance about the grounds was sufficient to show that he was really voicing the sentiment of all the men present. Everyone, from the marine who was giving the girls a ride in his one-wheeled auto, and the sailors who were playing hide and seek with the children, to those who were visiting with the citizens who had gathered to enjoy the six o'clock dinner in company with the men, appeared to be in high spirits.

The barbecue — two young steers roasted in a pit on the grounds, the most delicious way of preparing meat, planked salmon, baked clams, tomato sauce, potatoes, ham sandwiches, pies, cakes, cookies, and a great variety of other good things, supplemented with coffee, tea, milk and lemonade—was arranged for and prepared by Lewis Levy, E. A. Jacobs, and T. S. Gorman, and F. P. Fisher and E. E. Fisher, assisted by the ladies of the city. Several hundred sailors and marines did ample justice to the spread at noon, and yet, so well had the committee prepared and so generously the people responded to the call for "home-cooking" for the sailors, that it was possible to send out word to everyone who cared to, to come and take dinner with the sailors at six o'clock that evening. As the day had been observed as a holiday by everyone, in an effort to assist in entertaining the men, there was a big attendance, a social gathering the spirit of which was not "free entertainment" by the ticket route, but an affair given in honor of the city's guests, where every man was on the level. And it might be added, that of all the fleets or single ships that have visited Angeles each summer in the years past, none have given shore liberty to a more gentlemanly party of men.

In the afternoon, the boys enjoyed two games at the ball park, the first between teams from the Louisiana and Ohio, and the other between the Virginias and the Angeles team. During the games, which were not admission affairs, one of the bands from the fleet entertained the spectators, and they also furnished music during the day and evening at Civic Park.

The sailors wish to extend their hearty thanks to the committee who had their entertainment in charge and to the people generally, who, as they expressed it, had given them the best time they had had on the coast.

The Olympia Recorder tells of a surveying crew, presumably C. M. & St. P., starting in at Little Rock, ten miles southwest of Olympia, last Thursday, and running a line easterly in the direction of Plum Station on the Port Townsend Southern, indicating a possible intention of paralleling the new Northern Pacific main line survey and right of way in that vicinity. In the party of twenty are draughtsmen and levelmen as well as compassmen and complete equipment.

For the third time since the establishment of the light at Pillar Point, Clallam Bay, a ship has gone on the rocks there. This time it is the schooner Louise S., in the coal carrying trade for the Clallam Coal Company. The schooner became becalmed off the bay Monday night and despite the efforts of the crew the tide soon carried her on to the rocks. The tug Tyee went to her assistance Tuesday.

COMMENCEMENT DAY FRIDAY, JUNE 5TH

HAVE A SPLENDID PROGRAM

LaFrance Roses, the Class Flower; Pink and Green, the Colors; the Motto—"Too Much for Us!"

Graduating time is one of the chief events in the life of a school boy or a school girl and that time is looked forward to with anticipation. It is then they leave the school, a little nearer the top and with energy and hard work are able to receive the sheep skin, an emblem of careful study, excellent deportment, faithfulness to duty and concentration of thought upon the work. The class which will finish their school life, insofar as the local institution of learning is concerned, on next Friday, June 5th, have an excellent future before them and have many advantages which go towards making life worth living. Of course there will be regret at leaving the school where they have had many happy times and go forth into the world to fight the battles of life. No matter how hard the struggle or how rough the road, they will look backward into the past and one bright spot that will shine out will be the school days they are leaving behind.

Commencement exercises are always looked forward to with much interest, by parents and friends of the school as well as by the teachers and the graduates themselves. The graduating exercises will be held in the opera house and will be greeted with an audience that will tax its capacity. Those having the matter in charge are preparing for an elaborate decoration of the hall and nothing will be left undone to make the last appearance of the class of '08 an event to be remembered.

The present corps of instructors, under the supervision of Superintendent Geisness, is a very efficient one, and their thorough work is seen in the largest class that has graduated from our schools in years.

LANDED 14 POUND BEARDSLEE TROUT

Paymaster Dougherty Brings to Town a Trophy of Which Any Man Might Well Be Proud.

"Bubbling over with enthusiasm," is the way Chairman Corsan, of the Commercial Club's committee, describes the feelings of Admiral Emory and party of officers who accepted the Club's invitation to visit Lake Crescent during the stay of the ships in this harbor. "We had been on board about ten minutes," said Mr. Corsan, "when the Admiral referred to our invitation for a trip to the lake, and immediately began talking tackle, producing a suit case full of reels and other equipment." The party, consisting of Admiral Emory, Captain Bartlett, Captain Sharp, Lieut. McDougall, Flag Lieut. Henderson, Paymaster Dougherty, Dr. Spreckles, Capt. Owens of the Marine Corps, and Ensign Frankenberg, were entertained at Ovington's and Littleton's, and, under guidance of Messrs. Aldwell, Delabarre, and Clark, made a fine catch, the largest of which weighed fourteen pounds. Captain Merriam also accompanied the party, but was recalled by phone after arriving at Ovington's, orders having been received to take the Missouri upsound for coaling on the following day, preparatory to an immediate return to Frisco.

Admiral Emory, speaking of the lake, said it was the finest body of water he had ever seen, and all the gentlemen hoped it might be their good fortune, some day, to make a longer visit to Puget Sound, in order to enjoy the splendid fishing at Lake Crescent.

That Port Angeles' arrangement for entertainment of the officers was appreciated to the full may be understood from the following paragraph by Frederick Palmer, who is on the Connecticut as correspondent for Collier's: "After each bout the tired hosts were thankful it was over, while the guests, dizzy and exhausted, took a cold shower and proceeded against a fresh antagonist. How well anyone who has been with the fleet knows the program! The Reception Committee, a little self-conscious, coming up the gangway, wondering whether they ought to wear high hats or not when they wanted to make the officers feel sociable and homelike; an official banquet; an automobile parade; a garden party; a ball of the social elect (if you would ask those who are present, some absentees taking a different view!)

"Officers and men are looking forward to the free month after their return from Seattle when official holidaying will be over and private holidaying will begin. Then officers will no longer scan the lists to see when and where they may escape appearing in the gold braid that gives glory to a scene. They will get acquainted with their wives."

PARASITE DISCOVERED WHICH IS DESTROYING THE APHIS

Prosser, May 23.—C. A. Warner, a prominent fruitman of Prosser and deputy fruit inspector for some time, has recently made a very important discovery. The past dry winter and cool spring, he says, has brought the aphis out in great numbers in the Yakima valley to such an extent that the peach trees have been entirely stripped of leaves. Mr. Warner has found a peculiar and new kind of a worm or parasite that is completely destroying the aphis. The worm, he says, is about one inch long and green in color. The worms are crawling over the peach trees destroying all the aphis, both green and black. Since this parasite has appeared the peach trees are leafing out again.

FLEET AT SEATTLE

CITY AND VISITORS TURN OUT EN MASSE TO WELCOME BATTLESHIPS.

City's Normal Population Nearly Doubled by the Throngs of Guests Arriving From All the Western States—Golden Key Presented to Admiral Sperry by Mayor Miller.

Seattle, May 23.—The city of Seattle capitulated today to the fleet of battleships under command of Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry. The gates of the city were thrown open wide and Admiral Sperry was given the key made of Alaskan gold. As the fleet came into sight around Point No Point it was caught sight of by many thousand people assembled on the heights, terraces and high buildings overlooking Elliott bay, and the shore of the bay was black with a patriotically impelled people.

The city's normal population was augmented by immense numbers who came from Montana, Idaho and Oregon and from across the Canadian border to witness the unusual naval spectacle.

Great Fleet Reassembles.

At 9 o'clock this morning the different divisions of the fleet, which was divided two days ago, reunited at Port Townsend. The Missouri came up from the navy yard at Bremerton, and from Bellingham came the flagship Connecticut, Kansas, Minnesota, Vermont, Georgia, New Jersey and Rhode Island. From Port Angeles came the Louisiana, Virginia and Ohio. Out of the harbor of Port Townsend steamed the Illinois and the Kearsarge. Forming a single line, the reasembled fleet began the advance on Seattle in precision.

As the flagship arrived off West Point it was met by a flotilla of excursion boats, which turned and followed in its wake as it rounded the forested points of jutting land under the lee of the snow-capped Olympic range along the channel into which in the days primeval the wooden paddle of the Indians' war canoe was dipped.

Mayor Greets Admiral Sperry.

Nearing the city the steamer Umatilla, carrying the reception committee, came abreast of the Connecticut, turned and escorted her to the anchorage ground, while the hundreds of boats in the welcoming flotilla formed into double line and escorted the remainder of the fleet into the harbor. Anchors were dropped amid the firing of salutes, blowing of sirens and cheers from thousands of throats. The reception committee, headed by Mayor John F. Miller, boarded the Connecticut and officially assured Read Admiral Sperry that he, his officers and men were "welcome to our city."

In the name of the city, Mayor Miller presented Rear Admiral Sperry with a golden key fashioned from Alaskan gold. The battleships began to receive visitors and the harbor was soon thronged with excursion launches.

TACOMA NOW SCENE OF FLEET FESTIVITIES.

Seattle, May 28.—The Atlantic battleship fleet sailed for Tacoma at 9 o'clock. Last night all of the sailors on shore leave were ordered to return to their ships before 1 o'clock this morning, and at 3 o'clock the vessels were under sailing orders.

The change in the plans of the fleet made by Secretary Metcalf, of the navy department, yesterday, will give Tacoma three additional battleships for one day, while the second division will remain four days as originally scheduled.

The battleships in the second division are the Georgia, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Virginia. Admiral Sperry made no announcement of the ships that would be detailed to remain twenty-four hours, but the arrangements at the naby yard, Puget Sound, indicate that they will be the Minnesota, Illinois and Kearsarge.

Eleven battleships will arrive at Tacoma this morning at 11 o'clock. Four ships, which will probably be the Connecticut, Kansas, Vermont and Louisiana, will not stop, but after swinging about the harbor will start for San Francisco.

On the trip up the Sound the four battleships will pass through the harbor at Everett without stopping.

Fire in Piano House.

Seattle, May 23.—Fire from an origin unknown did damage to the stock of the Cline piano house, 2009 Second avenue, to an amount claimed to be $20,000. Fifteen minutes after the place was closed for business a great flame burst forth near the rear of the room. An Independent telephone cable was burned so that 200 phones in the north end of the city were put out of order as to be useless for the night. An insurance of $30,000 was carried by the piano house.

To Mine Mica.

Moscow, Idaho, May 23.—A heavy block of mica was brought into Moscow from a newly developed mine at Avon, thirty-five miles northwest in the mountains. The mica is clear and occurs in size to make it highly valuable commercially. Shipping will commence within a month to the Eastern market, where it brings $5 per pound.

SHIP SUBSIDY DEAD

HOUSE REJECTS SENATE AMENDMENTS AND THE SENATE YIELDS.

Another Close Vote Killed Conference Report—House Also Wins Contention in Matter of Mail Weighing—After These Defeats Senate Yields Remaining Points.

Washington, May 25.—The house again wrestled with the subject of mail subsidies to steamship companies and once more recorded itself against the proposition by the vote of 145 to 154. The debate ran well into the night.

Having been overwhelmingly defeated Friday, the conferees on the postoffice appropriation bill came into the house with a new report, agreeing with the senate on everything except the subsidy provision and that relating to the system for weighing the mails. The portion of the report on which there was no disagreement was adopted unanimously under an agreement to extend the time of debate on the subsidy question.

The senate amendment changing the standard of weighing the mail by reducing the number of days on which the weighing should be conducted was snowed under 94 to 186.

By reason of the action of the house in rejecting these amendments, the bill again went back to conference for the third time, although the senate already had agreed to the report.

As soon as the action of the house was announced in the senate, Penrose moved to recede from the remaining senate amendments and discharge the conferees. The motion was carried and the congressional work on the postoffice bill was thus completed. The effect was to leave the mail subsidy provision out of the bill and thus effectually dispose of it for the present session.

PHENOMENAL INCREASE IN CANADIAN WHEAT ACREAGE

Ottawa, Ont., May 23.—Reports received from various parts of the Canadian West indicate that the increase in wheat acreage this year will be tremendous. Local grainmen are of the opinion that about 120,000,000 bushels of wheat will be threshed out in 1908.

While fears are expressed that, owing to labor and other difficulties, the government section connecting the Fort William branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway with its line at Winnipeg will not be finished in time to aid in moving the grain crop of this year, there is little doubt that the facilities for transportation of grain between Winnipeg and the Great Lakes will be enormously developed this fall. This will be brought about, however, by the completion of the double-tracking of the Canadian Pacific main line between Fort William and Winnipeg.

This double-tracking is a stupendous undertaking, involving the expenditure of more than $10,000,000. There being so vast an increase in the area of land put under seed in the Northwest this year, under favorable circumstances the railways will have thrown upon them in the coming fall by far the biggest task they have ever undertaken, but so largely will the handling capacity be increased that, no matter how big the harvest, it is confidently predicted that there will be no more grain blockades.

H. W. McWilliams, an American, who is prominent in the Winnipeg grain trade, and who has reports from every section of the Canadian West, states that 7,000,000 acres of land will be sown to wheat there, an increase of 2,000,000 acres. The coming of the American farmers into the West is largely responsible for this great and rapid progress in grain production.

PUBLICITY BILL IS PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Washington, May 23.—The bill requiring publicity of campaign contributions has been passed by the house by a vote of 160 to 125, with the Crumpacker amendment added. The amendment would have the effect of reducing congressional representation in the Southern states. It is believed the bill will not pass the senate. The bill provides for publicity of contributions made for the purpose of influencing elections at which representatives in congress are elected with what is known as the Crumpacker amendment prohibiting fraud in registrations, and providing data for a reduction of representation among the states.

New Trial Given Harden.

Leipsic, May 25.—The supreme court has set aside the verdict of the lower court under which Maximilien Harden, the Berlin editor, was found guilty of libeling Count von Moltke, and ordered that the case be retired by the lower court. Harden was cheered by the crowd as he went to the courtroom.

Carload of Mail Burns.

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 23.—An entire carload of United States mail was burned near the eastern end of the Wyoming division of the Union Pacific. Fire broke out in a storage car containing several hundred sacks and before the train could be stopped the flames had gained such headway that the car and its contents were destroyed.

CURRENCY COMMISSION BILL PASSES SENATE

Washington, May 23.—The senate, without division, adopted a joint resolution reported by Senator Nelson W. Aldrich from the committee on finance, creating a commission to be called the national monetary commission, to be composed of nine senators, to be appointed by the presiding officer of the senate, and nine representatives, to be appointed by the speaker of the house, to inquire into and report to congress what changes are desirable or necessary in the monetary situation of the United States or in the laws relating to banking and currency, and for this purpose the commission is authorized to sit during sessions or in the recess of congress at such times and places as they may deem desirable.

Aldrich stated that the conference on the banking and currency bill had been unable to agree upon a report, and said that as congress was to adjourn at an early date no agreement could be reached at this session. That there might be a thorough investigation into banking and currency methods, the conferees had agreed that the commission resolution should be recommended for passage.

SUBSIDY FOR ORIENT AND SOUTH AMERICAN SHIPS

Washington, May 23.—Congress has taken an official step looking to the payment of ship subsidies, the conferees on the postoffice appropriation bill having agreed to accept the amendment by the senate authorizing the postmaster general to contract with steamship lines running to ports of South America, the Philippine islands, Japan, China and Australia for the carrying of the mails and to pay to vessels of the second class the same rate that is now paid on American vessels of the first class to Europe, and to vessels of the third class the rate now authorized for vessels of the second class.

There are no American lines of the first class to the countries named, and the effect of this legislation will be to encourage the establishment of mail and passenger steamer lines to ports of those countries.

SEATTLE MAN TO MAKE LONG AUTOMOBILE TRIP.

O. B. Williams, the well-known Seattle business man and automobile enthusiast, will make the trip next month in a Packard automobile from Detroit, Mich., to this city. Mr. Williams will leave for the East next week.

At Detroit he will receive from the Packard factory the new car which he has purchased through the local agency of the company. From Detroit Mr. Williams will take the car to Chicago, thence through Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon and on to Seattle.

The trip will take between one and two months. Mr. Williams is one of the most enthusiastic motorists of Seattle, and his trip will be watched with interest.

EXPOSITION APPROPRIATION FINALLY PASSES CONGRESS

Washington, May 25.—The house and senate today concurred in the conference report on the Seattle exposition appropriation and other amendments to the sundry civil appropriation bills. The amount appropriated for the government's participation is $600,000.

Another amendment adopted is that making an appropriation for the purchase of two large vessels for transport service on the Pacific.

It is understood that the vessels to be purchased are the Tremont and Shawmut, running between the Orient and Puget Sound ports.

Washington, May 25.—The conference report on the exposition bill provides that the exposition must have $1,000,000 to its credit before the government appropriation is available. The provision necessitates raising about $100,000 more by Seattle.

Orchards Free From Scale.

Walla Walla, May 23.—So thoroughly have most of the orchards of the county been sprayed this year for the San Jose scale that an inspection just made by County Inspector Whitney and R. E. Trumble, of the state college at Pullman, who is assisting in the work, shows not a living scale on the trees gone over.

The date of the second spraying for the codling moth has been set as May 28, for the Freewater-Milton district, and May 29 for the Walla Walla district.

Chinese to Have School.

San Francisco, May 23.—A Chinese school where the children of local Chinese may be educated in Chinese is to be built in this city at once. A site has been purchased, plans drawn and teachers selected. It will be the only school of its kind in this country. The school will be built with $50,000 of the $100,000 relief fund sent to the Chinese colony after the fire of April, 1906.

Moscow Against Saloons.

Moscow, Idaho, May 23.—The special election on the prohibition question held here was a victory with wide margin for the temperance movement. Both parties exerted themselves to poll as heavy a vote as possible, and the total far exceeded that of the last regular election. The result was 814 against the saloon, 392 for the saloon

WORK OF CONGRESS

MANY IMPORTANT MEASURES WERE DISCUSSED BUT FEW WERE PASSED.

Conceded Results Would Have Been Greater but for Impending National Election—Democratic Filibuster Also Had Some Effect—Senate and House Not in Accord.

Washington, May 25.—A resolution of the present session of congress elicits the interesting fact that there were more important questions presented to and discussed by congress on which the public generally or sections or classes demanded action than ever before in its history. A majority of these were of President Roosevelt's making. Comparatively, the enactments were few. On the other hand, the aggregate of appropriations was great and when the final figures are obtainable it is not doubted that they will exceed those of any previous session in times of peace.

Standing conspicuously above all other questions with which congress dealt was the effort to pass an emergency currency bill. Thrust upon the attention of legislators at the opening of the session by a financial depression that had not fully subsided, it was the first big question to be considered. Likewise it was the hardest to meet, and did more to delay adjournment than any other measure. The senate and house failed to agree, with the result that a commission of senators and representatives in congress, whose duty it is to study the question and report at the next session, was the alternative adopted.

Labor Bills Considered.

Numerous bills affecting labor were considered by both the senate and house. In the form in which the bills were presented organized labor was not heartily behind them and questions concerning the constitutionality of many of the measures, in the light of recent decisions by the supreme court of the United States, raised other barriers.

It is conceded that more legislation would have resulted had it not been for the pending national elections. The elections placed the majority in a delicate situation, a fact not overlooked by the democrats in the house, who further complicated the republicans' position by a filibus to compel the passage of measures demanded by President Roosevelt and opposed by a majority of the republicans in both branches of congress.

Out of this condition of affairs issued a new employers' liability law to take the place of that declared unconstitutional by the supreme court, and there is pending a bill providing for the compensation of government employes in hazardous occupations who are injured in line of duty. Other matters of equal or greater importance to organized labor failed. These include an anti-injunction law, provision for the exemption of organized labor from the treble penalty clause of the Sherman anti-trust law and other amendments to relieve the labor unions from the operations of this law.

Four Battleships Fight.

The construction of four battleships was urged in a special message to congress and a fight for this program was led by administration members of both the senate and the house, which contest resulted in failure. An appropriation was made for the construction of two battleships and the policy of authorizing two each year was announced by republican leaders, which was generally regarded as a concession to the president's big naval program. Authority to name a tariff commission and to appoint experts to gather data with a view to a revision of the tariff at the next session was strongly advocated. As a result resolutions were adopted in the senate authorizing the committee on finance and in the house authorizing the committee on ways and means to conduct individual investigations on tariff revision.

SEATTLE EXPOSITION GETS APPROPRIATION OF $650,000

Washington, May 23.—Congress has appropriated $650,000 for the Seattle exposition, this being the agreement reached by the conference committee. The entire exposition amendment was redrafted so as to cut off most members of the government board who were supernumeraries, leaving three men to do the work. Exhibits from several bureaus which possessed no general interest have been eliminated. The appropriation for the Alaska, Hawaii and Philippine exhibits is not reduced, nor is there any cut in the appropriation for buildings.

This very favorable compromise, which is entirely satisfactory to the Washington delegation, is due to the earnest efforts of Henry E. Reed, director of the exposition, and of Senator Piles and the three Washington congressmen.

Pythians Elect Officers.

Walla Walla, May 23.—Seattle was chosen at the grand lodge, Knights of Pythias, as the meeting place in 1909. The convention adjourned after installing the new officers. A committee consisting of Oliver Hall of Colfax, E. Weldon Young of Seattle, J. D. Cornett of North Yakima, Otto A. Case of Seattle and R. W. Thatcher of Pullman was appointed to investigate the matter of a site for the proposed Pythian home.

STATE BANKERS PLAN TO HANDLE THE WHEAT.

Tacoma, May 24.—Secretary P. C. Kauffman, of the Washington Bankers' Association, has just completed arrangements for the annual meeting of the bankers of the state, which takes place at North Yakima June 18-20. He expects it to be one of the largest and most important assemblages of bankers held in the Northwest. While the program is not fully completed, Arthur Reynolds, of Des Moines, Iowa, chairman of the National Bankers' Association committee on federal legislation, and W. O. Jones, a prominent banker of New York City, will be among the speakers.

In view of the trouble that was experienced last fall in getting funds to handle Washington's large wheat crop and the probability of there being as large, if not a larger crop this season than last, an attempt may be made by the bankers of the state at the meeting to formulate a plan to make the money market in Washington easier at harvest time.

Mr. Kauffman, who has just returned from the spring meeting of the executive council of the American Bankers' Association, which took place at Lakewood, N. J., found an optimistic feeling pervading banking circles of the country, there being present at the meeting the leading bankers of America. Bankers of the country, he finds, are looking towards the Pacific coast, and since the construction of the new transcontinental railroads into the Northwest, are giving Washington and Oregon and their resources more attention than ever before.

HUDSON BAY RAILROAD OFFICIALLY APPROVED

Ottawa, Ont., May 23.—Civilization will again reach out a long steel arm of railway to snatch from the Indian and trapper a huge chunk of the wilderness.

The dominion house of commons has voted approval to a project to build a line to Fort Churchill, on the westward of Hudson bay. This marks the beginning of the end of the Hudson Bay Company's rule of the Northwest territories, a monopoly which the fur traders have held since 1656.

Sufficient funds for the project will at once be appropriated, in spite of the opposition of the Hudson Bay Company. Its completion means speedy access to all to the furred riches of the frozen North and a new outlet for the hardy wheat of the Canadian plains.

Fort Churchill is one of the few trading posts still maintained and governed by the fur monopoly. It is situated at the mouth of the Churchill river, where the canoes of the trappers from the inland lakes slip silently down each spring to exchange their cargoes of pelts for the coin and rum of his majesty's servants. It is 900 miles north of Duluth and 400 miles from the nearest railroad station.

Water connections by means of the river and a score of inland lakes make the fort the key to the commerce of the provinces of Kunwatin, Saskatchewan, Athabasca and Northeast Alberta. From Fort Churchill large canoes and small steamers can go 800 miles into the interior. The country is the home of the musk ox, the polar bear, the walrus, the brown bear, the caribou and moose. It is one of the richest game countries in the world.

GOVERNMENT FORBIDS USE OF COPPER SALTS

Peas, beans, spinach and other vegetables; cherries, plums and other fruits and preserves now imported from abroad in large quantities, particularly from France, and used most extensively by the high-class hotels and restaurants, which products are kept green by the use of sulphate of copper or copper salts, will be excluded from this country after January 1, 1909. This order has just been issued by the department of agriculture. The sulphate of copper and copper salts are used to give the vegetables or fruits a natural green appearance.

In the past, where these chemicals were not used excessively, the foodstuffs have been admitted without question.

Inasmuch as contracts have already been made for the present year's pack, the law will not be enforced until January 1, 1909, after time has been given jobbers to dispose of their stocks.

PUGET SOUND VESSELS GET FINANCIAL AID

Washington, May 23.—Conferees on the postoffice appropriation bill have agreed to accept the senate amendment providing for an ocean mail subsidy for second and third class vessels on routes from the Pacific coast to the Orient and to South America.

This will mean a substantial aid to vessels sailing from Puget sound.

Big Sensation in Mexico.

Mexico City, May 23.—Financial and business circles of Mexico City have been shaken by the greatest sensation in years through the order of the judge of the second instruction to bring Martin Jacoby, a millionaire and head of the mercantile house of Jacoby, into court on the charge of misapplication of funds which it is claimed will total between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000.

Hughes Signs Bucket Shop Bill.

Albany, N. Y., May 23.—Governor Hughes has signed the bill making it a felony to conduct a bucket shop in this state.

MINING MEN MEET

FIRST CONVENTION OF PACIFIC NORTHWEST OPENS SESSION AT SEATTLE.

Work of Convention Preliminary in Character to the Formation of a Display at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition and Probable Meeting of American Mining Congress Next Year.

Delegates to the first convention of mining men of the Pacific Northwest, under the auspices of the Washington State Mining Association, gathered nearly 500 strong at Egan's Hall yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock for a three days' session. The work of the convention will be preliminary in character to the formation of a display at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition and the probable meeting here in 1909 of the American Mining Congress. Because of these conditions the gathering is one of the most notable ever held in the Pacific Northwest.

A .W. McIntyre, chairman of the convention, called the gathering to order and laid the way for the later deliberations, in an eloquent speech. Governor Albert E. Mead, John Corson of Nome, R. F. Polmie, deputy minister of mines for the British Northwest Territory, and other notables are in attendance and all are scheduled to deliver important addresses.

Mr. McIntyre's Address.

H. L. Thompson is here as special delegate for the American Mining Congress to discuss the work of that organization. In his address Mr. McIntyre said:

"Your greetings touch a responsive chort. In behalf of the American Mining Congress, under whose auspices this convention is held, and in behalf of the men who have blazed the trail of civilization into the unknown in their search for mineral wealth, and in behalf of the less venturesome but no less earnest and helpful men who have given of their means and of their toil to build up the mining industry of the vast region known as the Northwest, than which no part of America has richer or more varied mineral resources. I thank you for your cordial welcome to this state and city.

"While some portions of this splendid region are highly developed, in much of it exploitation has scarcely begun. We are happy in thinking that perhaps our meeting here may be a step in the way toward a more adequate and more rapid progress in the utilization of the mineral resources so abundantly provided by nature amid an environment the most favorable on the globe for the cheap production and easy distribution of the products of the mine and dependent factory.

"No region is economically or financially independent which does not produce and manufacture its own minerals. The full measure of greatness of this city, state and region, the mighty Northwest, can never be attained until they produce for their own use and for the regions tributary to them, the metals and the manufactures wrought from the metals which have made our civilization possible.

The Mining Congress.

"Out of the necessity for mutual information and mutual help in the mining industry has grown the American Mining Congress. At first feeble, perhaps because at first the dangers were not fully perceived or the issues not well defined, it has grown in strength and usefulness until now it is a factor not to be despised in the fight for the fair rate and the square deal.

"In order that the good work may go on and that the national body may come in closer touch with the individual and have a more intimate knowledge of the local needs and wishes of those engaged in mining, the wise plan has been evolved to constitute branches of the American Mining Congress in the various great mining sections of the North American continent.

"By this means the problems and needs of each great section can first be threshed out at home and then, if not solved or met, passed on to the national body.

"The large section rather than or in addition to the smaller section, confined to state limits, is desirable, because the power and influence of the larger community of interests will bring greater pressure to bear, where it is needed, for the benefit of the individual or company unable alone to stem the tide of exaction.

"The purpose of this convention is to get together the mining men of the great Northwest, that they may become better acquainted with one another, and with one another's country, and with one another's needs and with their own power in order that, if they deem it to their interest, they may form a branch of the American Mining Congress as an instrumentality for obtaining and maintaining their just rights in and to the reward of their industry, honestly earned by earnest, faithful toil of head and hand, but not always obtained by the toiler and too often inflicted by the adroit manipulator.

"The immediate occasion that led up to this convention was a request of Secretary of the Interior James R. Garfield made upon Secretary James F. Callbreath of the American Mining Congress for reliable information about Alaska's legislative needs. This naturally opened up the whole question. Changes in mining laws and regulations are undoubtedly desirable, but there are other conditions surrounding the development of the mineral and other resources of the Alaskan country that need changing, among these being transportation rates."

GOVERNMENT ATTACKS NSW HAVEN MERGER

Washington, May 23.—With the object of preventing the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company from exercising any control over the Boston and Maine railroad, and to operate the New Haven road from the extensive trolley system which it has acquired, the government, through United States District Attorney French, filed in the United States circuit court at Boston a petition against the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company and others, charging the existence of a combination in restraint of trade and monopoly within the meaning of sections 1 and 2 of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The petition alleges that the New Haven company has acquired control of approximately 500 miles of electric railway in Connecticut, 400 out of 500 in Rhode Island, and about 600 in Massachusetts, which roads, prior to such control, were engaged in active competition with the New Haven company.

Also that in acquiring about 35 per cent of the capital stock of the Boston and Maine railroad it has secured practical control over that railroad, and that by the acquisition of the electric lines and the control of the Boston and Maine it has established a virtual monopoly of all the transportation facilities in New England, the Boston and Albany being practically the only line of any consequence in the New England states, with the exception of the state of Vermont, not now under control in some form by the New Haven company.

The petition prays that the "combination and monopoly" be declared a violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

Government Suit Depresses Stocks.

New York, May 23.—Demoralization accompanied by unrestrained selling of securities caused today's stock market to be the weakest since the panic last fall. The professed motive for most of the selling was the inference drawn from the government's suit against the New Haven railroad for violation of the anti-trust law. All semblance of support disappeared from the market.

$1,000,000 GIVEN FOR PUGET SOUND DEFENSES

Washington, May 23.—Members of the Washington delegation say that as a result of the conference on the fortifications bill, Puget sound is given a total of about $1,000,000 to be expended next year. An increase of $300,000 is in the appropriation for the installation of a fire control apparatus. Failure to get the full amount asked by Senator Levi Ankeny is said to be due to General Murray, chief or artillery, who appeared before the conference committee and stated the money was not actually needed.

Members of the delegation say General Murray reversed himself on statements he made in a letter to Senator Perkins as to the necessity for an increase in the appropriation given by the senate.

Abandon Special Mail Trains.

Vancouver, B. C., May 23.—There will be no more regular overseas mail specials run over the line of the Canadian Pacific railroad in connection with the transportation of British and Oriental mails, the contract for the fast service having been replaced by one which provides for the handling of mails between Liverpool and Hongkong in 34 days instead of 29 1-2 days. Under the new contract the British and Oriental mails will be carried across Canada by the regularly scheduled Canadian Pacific trains.

Fraternal Order Increases Rates.

Kansas City, May 23.—The Catholic Knights of America in annual convention here advanced the insurance rates of the organization 20 per cent. The organization is a member of the National Fraternal Congress and the increase follows advices from the congress that former rates were not sufficient to handle the expenses of the order.

Oklahoma Bankers Arrested.

Guthrie, Okla., May 25.—L. A. Conners, president, and L. Elzey, cashier of the International Bank of Coalgate, Okla., which has been closed, were arrested upon the order of State Bank Commisioner H. H. Smock, upon their refusal to repay $6,000 and $5,000, respectively, which amounts they borrowed from the institution in violation of the state banking laws. They were released under bonds.

Visit Military Reservations.

Washington, May 23.—A resolution was adopted by the senate today authorizing the committee on military affairs to visit, during the coming recess of congress, military reservations concerning which it may be considered desirable to obtain information.

American Auto Leaves Vladivostok.

Paris, May 23.—A dispatch to the Matin from Vladivostok dated yesterday (Friday) says:

The American car in the New York-to-Paris automobile race left this morning. The roads are very muddy and the weather threatening.

The high price of meat is not a hardship, but a blessing at this season, according to Dr. Bosley, health commissioner of Baltimore. Dr. Bosley is of the opinion that in the spring and summer, when the body does not require so much heat, meat can be dispensed with the greater part of the time. The doctor thinks that with meat at its present prices people will eat more vegetables and be the better for the change.

More than 7,500,000 pounds of human beings, or over 3,750 tons of humanity, are transported through the streets of New York every day in public cabs. In other words, more than 50,000 different people use hired vehicles every day to take them about the city on business or in search of pleasure. Moreover, according to the cab people who have made a study of the situation, there are fully 110,000 people, exclusive of babies and invalids, who never use the street cars.

A grizzled old colonel did not view with pleasure the recent promotions of younger and almost unknown officers who were jumped over his head. Strolling about his camp in the Philippines one day, he came upon one of his officers fondling a monkey. "Colonel," said the officer, "this is the most remarkable monkey I ever saw. Why, he can take a stick and go through the manual of arms, almost as well as one of the soldiers." "Sh!" cautioned the colonel, glancing about in great alarm. "Don't tell anybody. Supposing the War Department heard of it? They'd make him a brigadier-general."

In the English Club at Hong-Kong a white-haired old gentleman who had come down from some Northern port was seated at dinner, when he suddenly became greatly excited. A letter had been brought him by a solemn-faced Chinese butler and he saw something on the outside of this letter which sent him downstairs two steps at a time to interview the hall porter. When he came back he told what was the matter. The hall porter had inscribed on the envelope in Chinese for the information of the butler: "This is for the old baboon with white fur." Unfortunately for the hall porter, the little gentleman was a first-class scholar in the Chinese language.

"I interviewed Alfred Vanderbilt, in Paris," said a foreign correspondent, "on the coaching run he will make this summer from London to Brighton. I know that run well—I made it once myself on a May day—a run of sixty miles, over a firm white road, between parks and gardens loud with bird music. Now I am rather fat and as Mr. Vanderbilt talked he noticed this. 'If you make the run with me,' he said, 'don't order two seats for yourself, as a fat friend of mine did for comfort's sake,' 'No?' said I. 'My friend ordered two seats on the Brighton coach last year,' said Mr. Vanderbilt, 'and found, when he came to occupy them, that the clerk had booked him one outside and one inside.'"

SOLITARY CONFINEMENT.

Italian Who Has Suffered It Thinks It Worse than Death.

There has been much talk of late in France and elsewhere of the suppression of the death penalty. The guillotine is to go and solitary confinement is to take its place. There is a man in Paris who knows what the punishment of solitary confinement really means, and it will be of interest, says the London Evening Standard, to hear what Amilcare Cipriani, who has undergone the punishment in Italy, has to say about it. He lives in Paris, where his gaunt face and long beard are as well known on the boulevards as the Theater des Varietes itself. He was sentenced when Zanadelli was minister of justice to twenty-five years solitary confinement, and he recalls the phrase that Sig. Zanardelli uttered in the Italian parliament to reassure those members of it who thought the guillotine should not be done away with. "We are abolishing the death penalty," he said, "but in its place we shall give criminals a punishment which will make them long for it."

"And he spoke the truth," says M. Cipriani, "for solitary confinement is a thousand times more cruel than a blow from an ax and a leap into eternity.

"Solitary confinement in a cell is a lingering agony, after two or three years of which the strongest man must die or must go mad. He is literally buried alive. His food is just enough to keep life in him. He may neither read nor write and gets no news from outside, even of his family. He may receive no visits and have no intercourse with anybody. He may not talk, and if he does ask a question of one of his jailers the jailer does not answer or answers by a sign. He never leaves his cell except for the madhouse or the cemetery. He sees nobody and hears no human voice. He does not even see a doctor if he is ill. If he breaks into open revolt his jailers may do what they like with him. They may kill him if they wish; and in Italy they often do so. No one has ever yet lived and remained sane for ten whole years of this terrific punishment.

"No one except myself has ever, as I did, remained sane after eight of them. I shall never forget it. I was in mental and physical anguish day and night for eight years, during which time I was chained by one leg to the wall. The worst of my torture was the feeling that brain, will, strength and health were disappearing. I felt death creeping on me and had no power to struggle. There was not a human being who would help me with a smile or with a friendly word, and death or madness seemed inevitable.

"The worst feeling of all is the feeling that one has not a friend in the world (I was elected to parliament four times without knowing it during my eight years imprisonment), and that, on the contrary, everybody is an enemy, coldly watching the wreck of the prisoner's health and brain. I remember vividly even now—I shall never forget it—the terrible depth of my hatred for humanity. I could feel my own brain running off the track, and I could not stem the madness which I felt growing on me, or I thought I could not. I remember the terror with which I found myself beginning to talk to myself aloud. I knew that this spelled madness. And yet I was afraid of sleeping, as I could have slept, through most of the day and most of the night, for I knew that that way lay idiocy, and when a solitary prisoner's legs begin swelling then death is not far off.

"I often wonder how I came to be spared death or madness. The happiest prisoners are certainly those who do go mad. Passanante, who attempted to murder King Humbert of Italy, has been in a madhouse for twenty-seven years. I am the only man who has resisted solitary confinement, the only man who has not died or gone mad in it after a few years. My method was a constant mental struggle, a sort of intellectual gymnastics, by means of which I kept my thoughts off by abominable solitude. I lost all notion of time, of course, and I remember asking my jailer one day what the year was. He would not tell me, but next day as he was putting down my jug of water he muttered '1886.' I had been in prison five years and believed I had twenty more to serve.

"I think I have told you enough, said M. Cipriani, "to show you how much more terrible solitary confinement is than one short unpleasant moment on the guillotine. Solitary confinement, the torture of utter silence, is a torment worse than any Chinese torturers have ever thought of and is unworthy of any civilized nation."

M. Amilcare Cipriani ought to know.

A SPLENDID VEHICLE.

Is That Which England's King Uses on State Occasions.

When King Edward, of England, went to the opening of Parliament on the last occasion he rode in a carriage worth 36,000. Built in 1761, on the occasion of the marriage of George III., the vehicle, one of the most costly and beautiful in the world, has ever since carried the English Kings and Queens on all high state occasions. The carriage, which weighs four tons, was designed by Sir William Chambers.

Despite its 147 years' service its great wheels, gear and body are said to be as sound as when built, and it looks as if it would go on forever. Steel springs were unknown when the coach was built, and its ponderous yet daintily luxurious body is suspended on leather braces, not unlike those of the old Concord stage coaches of America. Its balance is so perfect that a touch of the finger is enough to set the body swinging on the big creaking straps which brace the carved and gilded tritons supporting the driver's seat and hammer cloth. The length of the vehicle is 24 feet and it is 12 feet high.

The elaborate carvings cost more than the carriage proper, the coach builder's bill having been less than $9,000, while that of the carver was more than $10,000. Something of the character of the ornamentation may be guessed from the fact that the artist Cipriani received $1,500 for painting the panels, and that the lace maker's charge was about $4,000, the crimson satin interior of the carriage being most elaborately upholstered.

The preparation of the royal equipage for state occasions is a real sight. Six pairs of milk white horses from the royal stud are always used, and all wear false tails. The coachman, in powder and curls, mounts his seat with the aid of a ladder, but does not really drive, postillions on the horses and state grooms who walk beside being in command of the team.

A man who is close to the managers of the Ankeny campaign was in the city recently, and he was asked how his side stood on the question of pledging the legislative candidates to support the senatorial candidate who received the popular vote at the primary election. The party replied that the Ankeny forces were heartily in favor of the move, but were laying quiet until all the candidates were pledged, when they expected to carry the primaries and then ask the P.-I. and the Perkins press where they stood. Would they stand by what they had been advocating and support the man with the popular vote.—Willapa Harbor Pilot.

Sedro Woolley Courier: As the Courier predicted he would do, Senator Ankeny expressed himself as being in favor of the provisions of the direct primary law which pledges the legislators chosen at the next election to cast their votes for the senatorial candidate receiving the highest popular vote at the primaries. Thus has the Senator silenced another of the black-powder guns of the opposition.

Memorial services were held last Sunday in the opera house for the brave men who have given their lives that this country might live. Rev. A. Davis of Sequim gave a very interesting discourse suitable to the solemn occasion. Tomorrow we go to the cemeteries where rest the bodies of our departed heroes, and lay upon the graves our floral tributes. How naturally and simply is Decoration Day becoming to be one of remembrance, not of soldiers only, but of all our honored and beloved dead. Everywhere in every burial-plot there are more flowers, and more and more people are appreciating the grace of memorial garlands, and going once a year at least to strew flowers and shed a tear on the graves of departed friends.

Mr. Murphy, in the Washington Standard, one of the leading democratic papers of the state, under the caption of "Cause and Effect," says that the saloon men have only themselves to blame for the action of both of the state conventions at Spokane on the liquor question by disregarding the Sunday closing and anti-gambling laws, and that prohibiting the sale of liquors to minors and habitual drunkards, and other provisions of the law for maintaining public decency.

With the republicans demanding local option and the democrats calling for prohibition it looks as tho the saloon men of Port Angeles would bave another guess coming as to whether they will or will not support candidates pledged to the enforcement of the Sunday closing law.

Judging from the candidates declarations, the Sunday closing movement has become quite popular.

FLORENCE HASWELL LUTZ

Florence Haswell Lutz, wife of Harry E. Lutz, died at Seatte, at 4:11 a m., on Wednesday, May 20th, 1908. She was born at Circleville, Ohio, December 31st, 1863, a few minutes before the new year, so that she usually considered New Years as her birthday. She was the eldest daughter of Andrew J. and Mary May Haswell and one of eight children. Her paternal ancestry was of Rhode Island and Plymouth lineage and her great-grandfather was a Revolutionary soldier. Her maternal ancestry was PennsylvaniaGerman. Both parents were natives of Circleville, their families having been among the pioneers of the state. On the 1st day of January, 1885, on her 21st birthday, she was married to Harry E. Lutz, an immediate neighbor, born just across the street. The young couple lived five and a half years adjoining the residences of their parents and during that time two sons were born In 1899 they emigrated to Puget Sound. They lived some years at Port Angeles and three years ago they came to Seattle, hoping that a change might be beneficial to Mrs. Lutz' health. At Port Angeles a third and fourth son were born. Surviving her Mrs. Lutz leaves her mother, two sisters and four brothers; also her husband and four sons, Ralph H., student at Hiedelberg, Germany; Donald H., a law student at the University of Washington; Harold H. and Hugh W. Lutz.

Mrs. Lutz had the composite religious life not uncommon in America. The Baptist, Congregational and Lutheran strains were in her family ancestry. When quite young she joined the Methodist church which her family attended. After marriage she became a Presbyterian in conformity with her husband's family. There being no Pesbyterian church in Clallam County, she joined the Congregational church at Port Angeles, thereby reverting to an ancestral choice, as her great-grand parents were members of Providence "Congregational church on the West Side of the River" in Revolutionary War days. Mrs. Lutz was thoroughly devoted to her church life and delighted in its association and influence, but she was broadly tolerant and desired the good will and esteem of all, many of her dearest friends being Catholics. Every chord of her heart was tuned to sympathetic love and unvaryingly she believed and spoke good, and not evil, of every human being.

To her friends and to her family she leaves the memory of the sweetest character, the most amiable life, the most sunny disposition, the memory of a devoted daughter, wife and mother, faithful to every duty, always cheerful, warmly grateful for every friendship, seeking to increase the happiness of everyone and to promote universal good will and boundless charity.

From H. E. Lutz and Sons.

My sons and I are deeply grateful for the tender messages of sympathy we have received and for the touching tributes expressed to the sweetest of characters whose loving memory we sorrowfully cherish.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN

Leap Year Refusal.

'Tis very kind, indeed, of you
To offer to become my wife;
To say you love me as you do
And wish to share my simple life,
But do not grieve at what I say,
Dear Maud; I really love another.
In anger do not go away;
I will consent to be your brother.

I'm sorry, Maud, I really am,
That you should have learned to love me so;
For me you should not care a—darn;
I never meant to be your beau,
Your husband, Maud, I cannot be—
My heart belongeth to another.
I'm sorry you've proposed to me,
But I can only be your brother.

If you should ever want a friend,
I trust that you will send for me;
On me you always may depend—
I'll come to you where'er I be.
Surely, there is some better man
Who'll gladly take you for his wife;
So find him—I am sure you can—
I'll be your brother all through life.
—Detroit Free Press.

Woman Explains Man's Failure.

"Men who lack popularity among women are prone to say it is because we are attracted by the worst side of man's nature," remarked a matron who thinks. "The man who knows himself to be steady and loyal and above small weaknesses is likely to become rooted in that belief when he sees men he knows to be below him in worth walk off with the matrimonial prizes. He thinks the woman who marries a wild chap does so because of the wildness. It's in spite of it. The chances are that the wild young man takes pains to make himself agreeable to women. He studies their likes and dislikes and always professes, whether he feels it or doesn't, profound interest in their health, their whims, the fit and fashion of their clothes and even the welfare of their pet dogs. Now, the man of sterling worth, as he likes to be called, will not condescend to court favor in those little ways. He is convinced he would make a good husband for any woman. He knows he is honorable, industrious and purposeful, and he thinks those qualities ought to suffice. But they don't. And the woman, repelled by his indifference to her in tiny things, turns to the microscopic devotion of the other, forgiving his wildness for the sake of his charm."

Standing Treat.

A man says that a great deal of unintentional entertaining takes place among women. Women—when they are by themselves—it appears, lack independence of action. They cannot shake off one they have met a moment or two ago with a nod, when they want to lunch by themselves. The spirit of domestic hospitality is too strong. In a weak moment—for it is painfully weak—they insist on paying for the company and the food of an acquaintance they had merely meant to be civil to.

Of course, this sort of thing seems almost incomprehensible to a man. Invitations, in men's clubs, say, have to be backed by pretty sound reason. The pleasant sort of a fellow who waited about for some sensitive man on whom to insinuate his appetite would soon find himself living a hungry life.

This is certainly a strange and disturbing insight into the manners and customs of women. It goes against one's observation, too. Women usually appear to be quite conscious that they are doing an independent thing in an independent spirit.

Top brims of yellow or white straw, with facings of black, brown, blue or red straw braid, are in favor on spring hats.

An important innovation which has crept into the ateliers of the Paris modistes, and which promises to carry all before it, is the vogue for bows and pompons of cretonne veiled with tulle.

The beautiful, lustrous mohairs, greatly resembling Lyons silks, are in favor this season for dressy jacket suits. Many show the diagonal weaves. They copy all the striped, checked and bordered effects.

All the gold laces are dull in tone. Some of the new scarfs are in the oxidized silver, others of a tarnished Etruscan gold. Nothing could, however, be more fully feminine than the new ones of filmy lace in pastel tones.

The hip yoke has again appeared. With the present fashion for glove-fitting skirt tops this was, of course, to be expected; but the yoke is as yet only in the experimental stage, one famous Paris maker standing for it, while the rest look on to see the success or otherwise of his venture.

A recent development of the waistcoat is in a bretelle shape. It is sightly when the coat is removed. In such cases it is made of the material of the skirt and has the appearance of a jumper waist. Some such accessories end at the front in long tabs that fall over the skirt below them. These tabs often end in fringe.

The separate coat in silk and cloth is to be one of the important factors of the summer's wardrobe. No end of such garments are seen in the long range of styles that the present lax fashions permit. One has wide-open front and cutaway sides. Many of the separate silk coats are of this order, with one or two-button fronts; now and then there are three buttons.

Two Hats in High Favor.

The hat on the left is a yellow straw with a fold of black-and-white striped ribbon around the crown. Across the front the ribbon is loosely looped and held in place by two wreaths of blue forget-me-nots. The other hat is made on a wire frame. The edge is bound with black velvet and wide laces are used for the brim with a net which blends well with it draped around the crown. Bands of pink satin hold the net in place and a large bunch of pink roses and foliage is placed upright.

Alum for Clothes Moths.

A correspondent of Science, who has spent many years in China, where insect pests are plenty, writes that she found alum to be a perfect means of preventing the ravages of the clothes moth. After making this discovery the alum was given a severe test in some woolen picture cords which were treated to a solution of the alum, and then exposed to the attacks of the moth for several years, during which time there was not to be noted the least evidence of their presence. Other tests equally severe were made, and in no case did the application of the alum affect the color or texture of the materials experimented upon. The alum does not evaporate, and it is, therefore, permanently effective in materials which are not to be cleansed by washing.

Girls Taught Life-Saving.

A course in lifesaving has been instituted among the women students of Columbia University for the purpose of making them as adept as men in rescuing drowning persons. They receive the regular lifesaving drill, including the grips and breaks, towing to shore and artificial respiration. A fully dressed girl is thrown into the water at one end of the swimming tank and the other girls are obliged to rescue her from the opposite end and take her back, which is already done in fifty-seven seconds.

Czarina Objects to Women Smoking.

The Czarina has not only forbidden the ladies of her court to smoke, but has ordered the Princess Galitzin to inform them that she dislikes the odor of tobacco. It is said that this dislike is limited and only recently acquired. No one has ever heard that she objected to the use of tobacco by her husband or any other man. It is a case of "women only."

Eyes and Seeing.

Prof. W. D. Scott sounds a note of warning about the increasing use of the eyes for reading and the inspection of small near-by objects. This especially affects school children. Prof. Scott says that the human eye was evolved for distant vision, and in its structure is relatively poorly suited for near-by vision. The increase of all sorts of printing augments the trouble every day, and "all things seem to be conspiring to make us use our eyes more and more for the very thing for which they are most poorly adapted." There is, no doubt, much reason in this, but could the world banish its printing presses and retain its civilization?

How Woman Was Made.

According to a legend, Twashtri, the Vulcan of Hindu mythology, created the world, but when he arrived at the final object which was to be his chief d'oeuvre he found to his annoyance that he had run out of materials. He had not a single chunk of solid matter left.

With a mental execration upon his carelessness he fell into a profound meditation, the result of which was that he took "the roundness of the moon, the undulating curves of the serpent, the graceful twist of the creeping plant, the light shivering of the grass blade and the slenderness of the willow, the velvety softness of the flowers, the lightness of the feather, the gentle gaze of the doe, the frolicsomeness of the sunbeam, the tears of the cloud, the inconsistency of the wind, the timidity of the hare, the vanity of the peacock, the hardness of the diamond, the cruelty of the tiger, the heat of the fire, the chill of the snow, the cackling of the parrot and the cooing of the turtle dove."

He mixed these together in equal proportions and the result was woman.

Tea Strainer Pin Cushion.

The tea strainer pin cushion is a useful article that needs no particular skill in its development. You buy the strainer and paint a simple flower upon it, then fill with horsehair and secure this by a cardboard disk covered with a bit of any bright silk, etc. Conceal the edge of the strainer with a frill of ribbon from 1 to 2 inches wide, and tie a bow to the handle by which the cushion hangs.

CHARMING DESIGNS IN GOWNS.

Graceful Litle Wrap.

This graceful little wrap is one of the newest designs imported from Paris. It is simply made, the material being fine cloth and the only ornaments are silk tassels on the corners and silk cord scrolls on the front and in the back where the surplice ends fasten over the back part of the garment.

The Coat Shirtwaist.

This is the very newest thing. As its name suggests, it has the appearance of a coat worn over a vest or shirt front. To produce this effect a double-breasted vest, with a shawl collar, is attached to a stiff chemisette. This design occurs in white butcher linen and the cuffs to the bishop sleeves are often some contrasting shade of linen, which is also used in facing the shawl collar

CHANGING the STARS on "OLD GLORY"

The admission of Oklahoma into the Union has necessitated the rearrangement of the stars on the flag to admit the symbol of the new State, and it has been a big task to rearrange the stars on all the military flags of the country.

Various ideas have been advanced for the simplification of the field of stars on Old Glory. The difficulty in adding new stars is that the rows are necessarily made up of uneven numbers, and this makes it impossible to arrange a field of stars that is perfectly balanced. In order to obviate this difficulty it has been suggested that the stars be placed in a circle, so that no matter how many new States and stars are destined to apply for a place in the future they could all be provided for by the simple expedient of adding constellations to the end on the circular line. This is a radical departure that has found some favor with the government officials intrusted with the work of rearranging the flag, but it has not been thought expedient to adopt the idea without appeal to Congress and through Congress to the nation, for it is felt that such an important matter as the redesigning of Old Glory is a matter of full national consideration.

Far-seeing citizens have pointed out that in time the addition of new States and the unavoidable division of single States into double or treble commonwealths will so crowd the field of stars as at present arranged that it will look inartistic and unsatisfactory. The greater the number of stars the smaller will be the symbols, for the comparative size of the field cannot be changed without spoiling the flag and destroying the appearance of the finest banner on earth or sea. This problem is being discussed by patriotic persons who take an interest in national matters, and a number of designs are on file at the war office that aim to provide an artistic and striking arrangement of stars that, like that suggested by the circular array, will permit of the addition of a great number of constellations without making the flag look at a little distance like a striped banner with a jack of pure white, as would be the case were the blue field crowded with stars.—Williamsport (Pa.) Grit.

AFTER LONG YEARS.

Dear, whom I would not know
If I passed you on the street,
So long and long and long ago
Are the days when we used to meet,

You may be glad to hear
That somewhere out of the blue
Come vague sweet dreams that bring you near,
That I often think of you;

That now and then I thrill
At a rustle in the dark;
That I start as the wind sweeps over the hill,
As I see the fire-fly's spark.

Somebody stepped on my grave?
Or somebody slipped out of yours?
I cannot tell! There are ghosts that crave
A bit of the love that endures.

AUNT HANNAH'S PARTY

"Dear me, Ezra!" said good Aunt Hannah, "I do wish something would happen! Land o' liberty! I get so awful tired of this monotonous life—not a single neighbor less than a mile away an' not a chick or child at home. I ought to be ashamed to complain, and I am! But I do wish something would happen right here in front of our house! Something to look at!"

Aunt Hannah, good soul, little dreamed that before three hours had passed something would happen.

The one great event in her monotonous life was the daily passing of the overland passenger trains, which brought their eager tourists to California or carried home returning wanderers back toward the rising sun.

In Aunt Hannah's daily life this simple passing of the trains grew to be an event of importance. She could catch tantalizing glimpses of women's fair faces and the laughing eyes of little children as the Overland flashed by, not three rods from her own front door.

Sometimes she waved a snowy dish towel at them as they rushed past, and looked wistfully after them till the long cut hid the curving train.

But on this particular day Aunt Hannah's heart almost stood still in her ample bosom. For the Overland came into sight, running more and more slowly, and finally coming to a laboring, clanking stop almost at her very door.

Such a thing had never happened before, and Aunt Hannah was filled with wordless excitement. Something had happened at last! Uncle Ezra was stirring around near the house, keeping a watchful eye upon old Dobbin, the white horse, which was patiently walking never-ending miles in the treadmill which pumped water for the house and garden and the neighboring orchard of young orange trees.

Aunt Hannah speedily informed him of the great event, and Uncle Ezra, as wonder-filled as she, walked down to the railroad track to see what might be wrong.

Aunt Hannah, from the porch, heard him say hospitably to the conductor: "Why, yes, we've got a telephone. Come right in an' use it."

And in a few moments that wonderful creature—the blue-uniformed, brass-buttoned conductor of the Overland was standing on Aunt Hannah's bright rag carpet and talking in crisp, curt, masterly tones to some unseen delinquent at the city ten miles behind. It appeared that some one had blundered.

The passengers swarmed out of the cars and wandered aimlessly along the track. Then the women and children began to stray into Aunt Hannah's front yard, looking with genuine tourist curiosity at every little commonplace thing that met their eager gaze. For this was a trainload of brand-new tenderfeet from the far East, most of whom were stepping upon California soil for the first time in their lives.

Aunt Hannah was radiant and overflowing with hospitality. Before ten minutes had passed she had discovered an old lady from her own town in Iowa, and a young lady from Boston who had known a second cousin of Ezra's first wife's nephew or some such near relative. Aunt Hannah was in her element. Every rocking chair she possessed and every straight-backed one as well, she brought out into the front yard under the great drooping pepper tree, and her unexpected guests sat around and asked highly intelligent questions of every official they could waylay. Noon came, and the long train stood powerless to move. Unaccustomed rivulets of perspiration trickled down the portly conductor's face as he walked up and down in ill-concealed impatience.

Aunt Hannah's hospitable soul expanded. "I'll fry every egg on the place," she said, "and steep that five pounds of coffee I've just got, and cut up the six loaves of bread I baked yesterday, and open every glass of jelly I've got, but these women and children sha'n't go hungry!"

So she bustled indoors and tied on her second-best white apron, made a fire and set things going in her usual capable way. "Land!" she said. "It's a long time since I had such a run of company! Of course, they could get their dinner on the train, but mebby good home cookin' 'll taste good to 'em! Anyway, it wouldn't look right for me an' Ezra to set down and eat an' not ask 'em!"

"I DO WISH SOMETHING WOULD HAPPEN."

The young lady from Boston tied on Aunt Hannah's very best white apron, beautifully ironed and smelling of old-fashioned lavender, and carried plates and cups and forks and spoons out to the waiting travelers under the great pepper tree.

And when Aunt Hannah's famous coffee began to send forth its enticing fragrance, one by one the men came, too, standing around looking sheepishly expectant.

They sat on the porch steps and waited patiently for empty cups. Then the big pan of dougtnuts went around, and generous slices of Aunt Hannah's fresh bread and golden butter and delicious dabs of Aunt Hannah's finest jellies and preserves.

The two dozen eggs did not last long, but Aunt Hannah helped out with crisp slices of home-cured bacon, which, as the blue-uniformed conductor said, went right to the spot.

The white-capped waiters served a few select souls in the dining car of the Overland, but Aunt Hannah's was by far the more popular lunch. She bustled about, flushed and happy. It was like a great beautiful party—a surprise party! Something had happened at last.

Out of the abundance of her generous heart Aunt Hannah had fed the multitude, but the multitude was not content to have it so. The brass-buttoned conductor himself (who had set a very bad example by eating of Aunt Hannah's cooking instead of the colored chef's) passed his official cap and gathered in a shining shower of silver, which he presented with a neat little speech to Aunt Hannah.

Then the ever-present tourist cameras came into action, and Aunt Hannah was taken with her big white apron on by at least a dozen amateurs. Then there were other snapshots, too—Uncle Ezra in his overalls, the great pepper tree, the disabled engine, the perspiring conductor, and even old Dobbin himself.

The old lady from Iowa and the young lady from Boston insisted upon helping with the dishes, and there ensued a merry clatter from the kitchen. Some of the young folks gathered around Aunt Hannah's parlor organ and sang old Gospel hymns, or looked over Aunt Hannah's plush-covered photograph album on the marble-topped center table.

At last the conductor wiped his streaming brow and shouted "All aboard!" and Aunt Hannah's beautiful party was over. There were hurried handshakes, and one or two impulsive hugs and kisses for Aunt Hannah, many cheery words of thanks and appreciation, and then they all ran toward the cars and scrambled aboard.

Aunt Hannah, looking and feeling twenty years younger, stood on the porch and watched the long train as it got into motion and slowly pulled out, waving her white apron in response to a score of waving handkerchiefs, and could scarcely see them for the tears which dimmed her kind eyes.

And thus she stood as the long train entered the cut and slowly disappeared from view.

She and Ezra began to carry the chairs into the house. Aunt Hannah was a little tremulous from excitement.

"Ezra," she said, "when I wished this mornin' that something would happen I didn't really want the Overland should break down, but I'm awful glad it did!"

"My! My! I don't know when I ever did have such a good time! And, Ezra, here's $27 that conductor took up in his cap. What, in mercy's name, can I do with so much money? Oh, I know! I know! I'll pay Ella's fare out here—Ella's and the baby's! Seems like I ought to use it some way like that, seeing my opposition restaurant took a lot of customers away from the dining car on the Overland!"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Art in Spanish Bank Notes.

To baffle the counterfeiters who are both numerous and cunning in Madrid, the Bank of Spain has pursued the policy of changing its notes with great frequency and retiring each issue as fast as possible, says the New York Sun.

The bank has now determined on a new plan. It has placed an order for a series of notes with an English concern and it will rely for safety upon a special color process. In addition the notes are to present pictures of well known buildings in Spain, executed with a perfection that will defy counterfeiting.

"The pictures are to be so beautiful that amateurs will be tempted to frame them," says one Spanish newspaper. "Hardly," rejoins another, "the cost of the set will be 1,675 pesetas, you see." To the Spanish mind $338.50 is a great deal of money.

Then the Quarrel Ceased.

They were having the usual family quarrel. As was also usual, she could not convince him that she knew whereof she argued.

"Didn't I go to school, stupid?" she screamed.

"Yes, dear, you did," he replied calmly. "And you came back stupid."—The Bohemian.

WHY VICTORINE BALKED

When the Ransoms decided to break ground for their new home, it was discovered that the turf was so solid that it could be broken only by the plow, so Napoleon Lazotte was engaged to attend to the matter. Lazotte, however, was much in demand for all kinds of odd jobs, so on the appointed day, although he appeared with his horse and plow, both of which he was willing to rent for the day, he explained that he himself had business elsewhere that would keep him busy for several hours.

The plow worked well, but within half an hour after Napoleon's departure the horse came to a standstill, and refused to budge. Pleadings and threats were of no avail. Half a dozen different persons essayed to start her, but seemingly the stubborn nag had taken root for all time.

When Lazotte returned at noon Mr. Ransom reproached him for the mare's behavior.

"Dose Victorine," explained Lazotte, plausibly, "ees lonesome for som' conversasione hon hees hown tongue. Behol', monsieur. You mus' talk to heem all de taime, jus' lak dis. Me, I vill show you. But me, I'll am 'ave de misfortune to be busy for dese whole day. But take heart, I leave you ma Victorine, an' ees tole you jus' how for talk to dose 'orse. Attendez, monsieur.

"Hey!" yelled Lazotte, suddenly seizing the reins. "W'at for you ees sit down hon top yourself hall day? W'at for you ees mak shame for me? Gad up, you son of som' muskrat! W'at you soppose I'll am bought you for? W'at for you soppose I buy for you hall dose hoat, dose hay, dose harness? For you to sat down lak hoptoad? Mais non, ma Victorine! Eet ees for you to tr-r-rot, to r-r-r-ron, to gallope—gallope, I say! Lif' up dose laig, dose hoof, dose tail! Mak hon yourself som' hump! Ron, r-r-r-ron! Hey! hey! hey!

"Behol', monsieur," said Napoleon, lowering his voice and handing the reins to the renter of the horse, as Victorine came to life and moved off, "you talk to heem jus' lak dat—you got no more troub', I assure you."

NEW LAW PROTECTS OKLAHOMA DEPOSITORS

Guthrie, Okla., May 23.—Within one hour of the time H. H. Smock, Oklahoma banking commissioner, had taken charge of the International Bank of Colgate he had authority to pay the depositors in full, though the bank's cash and available funds in other banks fell $22,000 short of the total amount of deposits. The commissioner was enabled to do this under the operation of the new banking law, and this is the first time it has been called into use.

Under the operation of the guaranty banking law in Oklahoma, a tax of 1 per cent is levied upon the available annual deposits of all state banks and the money thus raised is used in payment in full of all depositors of an insolvent state bank after the funds have been exhausted.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

S.S.S. CURES SKIN DISEASES

There is an evaporation from the body going on continually, day and night, through the pores and glands of the skin. This is nature's way of maintaining the proper temperature of our systems and preserving the softness and flexibility of the skin, and so long as the blood is free from impurities no trouble will result. When, however, the blood from any cause becomes infected with humors and acids, these too must be expelled, and coming in contact with the delicate fibres and tissues with which the skin is so abundantly supplied they produce irritation and inflammation, and the effect is shown by Eczema, Acne, Tetter, and skin affections of various kinds. These impurities and humors get into the blood through a deranged or inactive condition of the system; the members whose duty it is to carry off the waste and refuse matter of the body fail to properly perform their work, and this impure, fermenting matter is left in the system to be absorbed by the blood. The skin is not only affected by poisons generated within the system, but poisons from without, such as Poison Oak, Poison Ivy, Nettle Rash, etc., enter through the open pores and glands, and so thoroughly do they become rooted in the blood that they are ever present, or return at certain seasons of each year to torment the sufferer. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., cannot cure skin diseases. True, such treatment relieves some of the itching and discomfort, and aids in keeping the skin clean, but it does not reach the real cause, and at best can be only palliating and soothing. A thorough cleansing of the blood is the only certain cure for skin diseases. S. S. S., a gentle acting, safe blood purifier, made entirely of vegetable ingredients of the forest and field, is the proper treatment. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation, and neutralizes the acids and humors, thoroughly cleansing and purifying the blood, and curing skin affections of every kind. It supplies to the blood the fresh, nutritive qualities necessary to sustain the skin and all other parts of the body, and rids the blood of any and all poisons. S. S. S. cures Eczema, Tetter, Acne, Salt Rheum, Poison Oak and Ivy, Nettle Rash, and all other skin troubles, and cures them permanently by removing every trace of the cause from the blood. Special book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice desired furnished free to all who write.

I have used your S. S. S., spring and fall, for the past two years, with the result that it entirely relieved me of a form of Eczema which my doctor was unable to cure. My arms, lower limbs, and, in fact, the biggest portion of my whole body was affected, and when I first began S. S. S. the itching, etc., was worse, but I continued the remedy with the result that the dry, itching eruption entirely disappeared. I think a great deal of your medicine, and have recommended it to others with good results. It is the best blood medicine made, and I can conscientiously recommend it for the cure of all blood and skin affections. CHAS. HORSTMAN. Wheeling, W. Va.

WM. LEWIS MARQUARDT

Wm. Lewis Marquardt was born at Mt. Clemens, Mich., Oct. 28, 1866; graduated from Ann Arbor Law School, Mich., Class of '86; married June 1, 1893, at Detroit; came to Washington in 1893 and to Port Angeles the following year; died May 25, 1908. Mr. Marquardt leaves, to cherish his memory, a widow and two children, Carl and Lucy, aged 13 and 9 years; also his father and mother and one sister living at Mt. Clemens, a sister at Cleveland, and a brother at Los Angeles.

Funeral services, conducted by Mr. Wm. Ritchie, were held from the family residence Wednesday, May 27th, under auspices of the A.O.U.W. Mr. Ritchie said, in part:

Friends, as I look around me today, I see many faces saddened with grief and eyes dimmed with tears, where but a few days ago these same faces and these same eyes were full of gladness, and beaming with smiles. On that occasion we met for the purpose of performing a duty to the living; today we meet to perform our last sad duty to the departed.

On the 25th day of May, 1908, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., our departed brother, William Lewis Marquardt, tired of the unequal struggle against disease and affliction, breathed his last and quietly took his departure to a better world. For him life's earthly voyage is over, with all its storms, its tossings, its pleasures and disappointments. He has crossed the Bar that divides the material world from the spiritual world of which Jesus spoke when he said, "In my Father's house are many mansions." Never again will we see his familiar form passing to and fro in our city; never again will we hear his voice in our courts addressing the Judge or the jury. Our departed brother has gone forth to report to the Supreme Judge of the World, and in his passing away this city has lost a valued citizen, and the law an able advocate.

But what is death. Death is but the local or final development of a succession of specific changes in the corporeal organism of man. As the death of the germ is necessary to the birth of the flower, so is man's physical death an indispensable precedent to his spiritual birth or resurrection. Night and sleep correspond to physical death, but the brilliant day, and human wakefulness, correspond to spiritual birth and individual elevation.

As the butterfly escapes from its gross and rudimental body, and wings its way to the sunny bower, and is sensible of its new existence, so may it be with the spirit of our departed brother, may he be conscious of a new and more harmonious existence, one free from those bodily ills to which our departed brother had long been a martyr, and from which he had suffered so intensly.

To the truly enlightened, death has no terrors. It is the door which opens into a new and more perfect existence. It is the triumphal arch through which man's immortal spirit passes, the moment it takes its farewell of the body in which it had formerly dwelt.

For over forty years and six months brother Marquardt played a part on the stage of human existence, but he has appeared upon that stage for the last time, he has gone to that land in which, we are told, the afflicted suffer no more pain, and the weary find rest.

Gov. Hock has appointed Mrs. Mary Cooper probate judge of Mitchell county, Kansas. Mrs. Cooper succeeds her husband, who died a month ago. In making the appointment Governor Hock said, in part, as follows: "You were not only his loving companion in your home, but you were, I understand, his business associate in the office, and I think it entirely appropriate that you should succeed your husband in the office of probate judge. You will be the first woman to hold the office in this state, or in this country, as far as I know." Mrs. Cooper is a neice of Mrs. W. B. Webster of this city.

Rev. E. M. Rogers returned Wednesday from a trip to Vancouver, Wn., where he attended the Convocation of the Diocese, and Portland, where was held the International Clericus and Eighth Dist. Council Missionary: he also visited in Tacoma, Seattle and Victoria.

About a dozen of the young ladies who attended the reception and ball for the officers were invited to an "afternoon" aboard the Virginia Friday: dancing to the finest of music made the time pass all too swiftly.

Miss Nettie Burger, of Ord, Nebraska, sister-in-law of Herbert Baker, arrived Sunday for an extended visit with her relatives here.

BLUE MOUNTAIN

There is nothing doing here but work, work. Still a majority of the inhabitants took the time to go to Angeles to witness the arrival of the fleet.

Wednesday, Mr. Machenheimer received a phone request to send a conveyance down to the Pacific Logging camp to get Ed. Walker, who had cut his foot.

Frank Hebison has given up his school land and Tuesday Dan Jackson moved him out of District 41. Dan made good by bringing Mrs. Jessie Jackson home with him the next day.

Last week word came from Texas Valley that old Mr. Shaw had died of heart trouble. He was negotiating a sale of his ranch with the idea of going where he and his aged wife could enjoy more of the comforts of life. Interment at Sequim. Mrs. Shaw went to Seattle with a daughter.

A number of members of Naval Lodge B. P. O. E. are planning to take in the coming session of the state lodge to be held in Everett, June 3rd and 4th. Excursion rates of $3 for round trip are made on the Whatcom for the 2nd, returning Thursday night, when she will call at Everett for the excursionists.

Mr. Gorman is truly worthy of the many kind words of praise spoken of him. Not only did he spend two or three days getting the park in shape to accommodate the large crowd, but he spent all day Friday taking the school children to the war vessels, helping them in and out of the boats.

Miss Francis Muskett arrived last week Thursday from Vancouver, B.C., on a month's visit with her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Muskett, her cousins, and aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Hoare.

Mrs. Erma Jensen, now a stewardess on one of the Oriental steamers, is here for a visit with old friends.

Miss Lucille Jameson of Spokane is here for a few days' visit, at the home of Mrs. E. B. Webster.

Mrs. Carusi is expected home Friday after spending several weeks with friends in Seattle.

George Davis has leased his hotel and saloon at Dungeness to the Cassalery Brothers of that place, who are now in charge. Mr. Davis has purchased the Will Church residence on Groveland avenue and has moved thereto with his family.

Peter Nelson who has been in the hospital here for the past two weeks with pneumonia returned to the camp at Port Crescent today.

Eber Conley of Port Crescent has rented the Cooper residence on 8th st. and is preparing to move thereto.

Miss Nellie Heater of Eastern Washington is spending the summer here with her aunt, Mrs. M. Snyder.

Attorney A. A. Richardson was a business visitor to Seattle Wednesday.

CLALLAM NOTES

The two masted schooner Louis S. was towed to the Clallam wharf Tuesday morning by the tug Tyee, and is still there lying on its side as it was when towed into the bay. The schooner, while on its way to the Clallam coal mine with freight, drifted upon the rocks near Pysht and sprang a leak. The crew and cargo were safely landed. As the vessel lies with the damaged side up it will be beached and repairs made during low tide.

Mr. Grader and crew of men have begun work on the Geo. Lamb road, which extends from Clallam Bay to the Hoko river.

Master Willie Nelson, age twelve, of Tyee is making quite a record as a wildcat and cougar hunter. A short time ago he spent a few days with Mr. Fisher here at Clallam, and with the add of two dogs got two large bob cats. On his way home he killed a nine-foot cougar. He has killed several cats near his home. Go it, Willie.
