SHOULD BE 48 BATTLESHIPS

"Uncle Sam needs as large a Pacific fleet of batteships as an Atlantic fleet" emphatically declared Admiral Robley D. Evans in an interview to the Chicago Record-Herald on May 14th.

He declared that the record in straight shooting made by the men of his command has shattered all records extant, whether of the American, British, French, Japanese, German, or any other navy.

"If that report is given out," said the Admiral, "and I believe it should be, it will cause the most profound sensation in naval, and consequently in political, circles that the world has had for a long time."

Admiral Evans also took occasion to announce what, in his opinion, is the overshadowing lesson to be drawn from the cruise. "The Pacific fleet should be as large as the Atlantic, and the total number of battleships should be increased as fast as possible to 48. At present the navy has but 29 battleships Not the four more battleships asked for by President Roosevelt, but 19 — that is the need of the country, in the Admiral's judgment.

FOREST SERVICE A BUSY DEPARTMENT

Said to Be Aim of Department to Dictate to Private Owners Just What Trees May Be Cut.

A citizen of South Bend, this state, on a visit to the nation's capitol, writes interestingly to his home paper, the South Bend Journal, from which we quote: "Sightseers in Washington seldom visit the forest service building for there are no exhibits except hundreds of busy clerks and I am a little surprised to find that government clerks, at least in this department, really do work and work nights as well as days just for the love of it. Any man from a timber country who can see beyond the end of his nose should be interested in this department just for selfish reasons, just for what it is trying to do for this section. Gifford Pinchot, the chief of this department, recently made the prediction that in twenty years, unless something was done to preserve our forests, there would be a timber famine in the United States. That seems a little strong to us as we look on our magnificent forests, but when we consider how they are being butchered up, how much really good timber is left to rot or burn we might as well begin to look the prospect squarely in the face and admit that his judgment is not far wrong.

"Mr. Pinchot's personality is a most attractive and inspiring one. In the first place he is independently wealthy and is in this work just for the love of it. There is something doing all the time in that department. He well remembered Theo. F. Rixon, formerly of South Bend, now of Port Angeles, and praised his work as an engineer and forester. He commended the scheme of cruising the timber of our state by counties but feared the results of unwise taxation. He is now having a study made of this problem of how to make timber pay its share of taxes and yet not force its destruction. It was quite evident from conversation with other members of the forestry department that it is the aim of the department to ultimately control privately owned timber land as well as the public reserves and dictate to the owner of the land just what trees they can cut and what ones they must leave standing as is now done in Germany."

TRAIL TO CLALLAM COAL MINES

The Board of Commissioners, after thoroughly investigating the Clallam Coal company's mine and the necessity for a road leading thereto, have justly decided on giving the company aid. The company has a tunnel 375 feet long several feet under the surface disclosing three immense veins of coal, ranging in thickness from two to five feet; twenty-two men are employed, requiring a considerable amount of packing to get provisions, material and other supplies into camp. The distance from Clallam Bay is six miles, over a very heavily timbered section, aside from what one must encounter in the general contour of the country, and the board considering these facts decided that it would not be advisable at this time to aid so far as to give the company a road but are helping to the extent of a trail from Clallam, to be put in good passable condition. This shows a good and commendable spirit on the part of the board to aid new enterprises that make for the permanent building up and future development of the county.

BACCALAUREATE ADDRESS SUNDAY

BY REV. SIMONS OF M. E. CHURCH

A Scholarly and Encouraging Discourse. Church Filled with High School Pupils and Their Friends.

The seating capacity of the Methodist church was thoroly tested last Sunday morning, the occasion being the baccalaureate address to the graduating class of the Angeles High School by Rev. Geo. H. Simons.

The class of eight girls marched into the church in a body, followed by the school board and teachers, occupying seats reserved for them, to the music of an orchestra composed of Hazel Hopkins and Jolliette Glen, violinists, and Helen Hopkins, organ accompanist.

Services opened with singing of America by the audience, followed by a very appropriate vocal solo by Mrs. Silverwood, Rev. Loder of the Congregational church offering the morning invocation.

The platform and pulpit of the church were tastily decorated with the class colors, the class banner, and with beautiful flowers.

Rev. Simons took as his topic, "The Highest Seeking," his text being from Math. 6:33: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you." The speaker was in good voice, and many good thoughts and suggestions were given the class. Perhaps the quotation given from Emerson, "Hitch your wagon to a star," will best illustrate the thought permeating the entire discourse. One cannot aim too high; failure in aiming high is not a crime; seeking for the best, and noblest, and highest in life was the only means by which true happiness and honor could be obtained. Ambition, courage and a true sense of duty were pointed out as being the most essential in gaining a reputation and being crowned with success. Ambition must be high, courage strong, and duty must lead.

The aspirations of men in this day and age of the world seem to sway too much towards the practical side of life. But after all, it is only by searching for the ideal that the practical is obtained. Let duty lead and reputation will come of itself, but if reputation alone is sought without regard for duty, it can never be possessed. It should be the duty of us all to teach. Much depends upon the teacher. The teacher should be what he represents. Christ was an ideal teacher, for he was that which he taught—namely, the Truth. This duty can be performed by all to a certain extent and thus strengthen the cords of humanity which bind us all. Many of us fail in this, however, for the very reason that we are ourselves not what we teach.

Another point brought out in the lesson was that altogether too much time was spent in seeking plesaure. Pleasure does not come thru seeking it alone, but as reputation comes thru the pursuance of duty, so is pleasure obtained.

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll
Lease thy low vaulted past,
Let each new temple nobler than the last
Shut thee from Heaven with a dome more vast;
'Till thou at length are free,
Leaving thine out grown shell by Time's everlasting sea."

St. Andrew's Parish Hall and Gymnasium will be formally opened on the night of Monday, June 8th, at 8:00 o'clock. The Ven. Arch Deacon Grimes will represent the Bishop of the Diocese. After the opening the young ladies of St. Margaret's Guild will present a little farce by John Kendrick Bangs, called "The Worsted Man." The play suggests a solution of one of the summer hotel problems. There is no charge for admission and all who can come are most cordially invited to attend.

The Bishop of Olympia has appointed as his committee at St. Andrew's Church for the ensuing year: Peter Grubb, warden, J. Lloyd Aldwell, sec'y, Dr. N. K. Mead, treas., Wm. Fowler, W. W. Payne, T. T. Aldwell, S. A. Owen, James Knight.

MEMORIAL DAY FITTINGLY OBSERVED

FLAG IS UNIVERSALLY HONORED

Beautiful Ceremony of Casting Flowers on Waters ot Bay in Memory of Heroes Who Died at Sea.

Memorial Day was fittingly observed in Port Angeles on last Saturday, May 30, but probably not on as an elaborate scale as in former years. The ranks of the old veterans of the civil war are fast thinning, their step is less elastic, their eyes dimmer, but their patriotism is unabated and their love for the Union as firm and loyal as it was in the early '60's.

Detachments from Pacific Post and Corps went out to Ocean View cemetery early in the morning. The exercises at the graves were simple, though impressive, each grave being honored with flags and flowers.

The procession formed shortly after two o'clock on First street, led by Port Angeles Concert band, the old veterans and women of the Relief Corps, followed by children of the public schools. On reaching Morse dock the beautiful ceremony of casting flowers on the waters in memory of the heroes who died at sea was conducted by the women of the Relief Corps. The procession reformed, marching to the opera house where the exercises were held. The auditorium was draped in American flags and beautified by flowers. On the platform Commander Harding, Adjutant Thorpe and members of the city clergy occupied seats. Commander Harding presided, music by the choir, prayer by Rev. G. H. Simons of the M. E. church, solo by Miss Gertrude Willson, Adjutant Thorpe read Lincoln's Gettysburg address, oration by Rev. A. L. Loder of the Congregational church. Rev. Loder's address teemed with good thoughts. He paid a just tribute to the patriotism and heroism of our citizen soldiers, and told how, from his own personal experience in traveling in foreign lands he had learned that the flag of this nation was not only respected, but universally loved and honored by the peoples of all countries, especially those of the Orient.

Memorial Day is a holiday that the nation does, and should for all time, observe. The day has two objects, "cheers for the living and tears for the dead."

THE TRIUMPHANT WEST

Leader of Progress and Growth, It Knows No Faltering and Experiences No Defeat.

"Who once comes West, stays West," is an advantage not of necessity, but of desire. In the West it is that unlimited resources and unmeasured opportunities are ever present to each and all alike. The vast areas of timber reaching their green vistas to the unbounded skies from the river bottoms, along the mountain sides and even upon the rugged peaks of many a jagged crest; the section after section of fertile and productive soil forever producing under the benign laws of a thriving nature; the hidden mineral wealth awaiting in many a ledge and gulley in the wooded hillsides; the stretches of plain and prairie of exceedingly rich and productive soil awaiting the touch of toil to awaken it to profitable ranches; the great expanse of grazing lands pulsing with the attractive growth of grass, waving its green blades exultingly with desire to feel the tread of hungry herds; the bustling, wide-awake and enterprising cities, towns and settlements, the freedom, the liberty, the equality of and for everybody; the spirit of every living hope—all these are characteristics which weave a web of living reality, as pleasing and novel as an enchanting dream, for success and achievment in the West, which no narrow-minded and one-sided sycophant can experience where the habits of years have riveted chains upon the members of progress, and custom has enslaved the spirit and soul of an ambitious people.

In the West all are equal. In the West the gateway to success is closed to none. Opportunity stands to cheer the heart with ambition to hope; and hope, when once grasped, is changed to the full realization of supreme faith, while supreme faith has already led the trusting heart into the fields of realized and achieved success.

Today the West is triumphant; it stands the leader of progress and growth. The old effete East feels the thrill of its youthful buoyancy as it comes in touch with its members and crosses the boundaries to reach into its domains. The brains, the brawn, the soul, the spirit of the West knows no faltering and experiences no defeat. It is strong in its hope; it is unconquerable in its faith; it is supreme in its achievements. Behold, the triumphant West!

WOMEN AND FASHION

Your Complexion in Spring.

Mme. Millicent Marvin, the noted specialist in beauty culture, gives some excellent advice in April Delineator to women whose complexions are a source of worry owing to the sun and weather conditions prevalent in the spring months. Among other valuable hints, Mme. Marvin says:

"Rubbing the skin once or twice a day with a ripe tomato is said to be most helpful in clearing the complexion; lettuce juice has also a beneficial effect."

While these simple remedies are perhaps not generally known or used, they are none the less valuable.

Probably the safest and most satisfactory thing for general use in keeping the skin soft and smooth and the complexion clear and brilliant is a simple wash, which can be easily prepared at home. The recipe is as follows:

Take two ounces of rose water, one ounce of cologne spirits and four ounces of eppotone. Put the eppotone in a pint of hot water (not boiling), and after it is dissolved strain and let cool. Then add the rose water and cologne spirits.

Apply this wash liberally every night and morning to the face, neck and arms, after thoroughly washing in warm water, and you will soon have a complexion that will be the envy and admiration of every woman you know.

Rebukes for Rude Women.

Men often confess to deliberate plans for checking feminine rudeness. When women tread upon their heels and do not take the trouble to apologize, they sometimes wait for an opportunity and pay them back in similar coin, adding a polite word of regret meant to teach them a lesson. When women refuse to lift trailing skirts men walk upon them regardless of damage, but with apologies which can not be overlooked by any woman with the least pretense to good breeding. A woman who attempts to crowd into seating space that will not nearly accommodate her fares well enough with the women who are rendered miserable, but is likely to remember the conduct of the men on either side of her. Nobody has the least sympathy for her; on the contrary, there is considerable delight in the spectacle of deserved punishment. Women have much to gain by being pleasant and well-bred, but they can not all be brought to the point of believing it.

Driving coats generally have three-quarter length skirts, high waists and picture sleeves.

For open front coats the waistcoat made of pique, linen crash, cretonne, pongee or antique brocade is in high favor.

Dark red linen makes a girlish dress that can be worn with a coat or lingerie waist. The material launders nicely.

Ruby, which was predicted as a popular color, is slowly giving place to green, for, as the season advances, it will be impossible to wear such a warm color.

From Paris comes the Pierrot ruche—a tight-fitting ruche of maline or taffeta, which ties either at the back of the neck or under the left ear with a big bow of ribbon.

Pockets are again the fashion. One finds them in every possible position—on the flaps of embroidered vests, in the tails of the coats and tucked away in the seams of jackets and skirts.

Many of the new coats are without collar, with short sleeves and with insufficient material in front to meet upon the chest, the idea being to let the whole of the elaborate front of the bodice be seen.

One of the most valued introductions in a season of pretty and serviceable modes is the princess dress, with a coat of the same material. The combination, which is made in voiles and the lighter cloths, consists of a princess dress with a gulmpe and a short hip length jacket.

Narrower skirts are undoubtedly the rage, and Paris sends word that some skirts measure only two yards around. One skirt was arranged so that in front there were only two lacers to be tied around the ankles. This sounds very ultra; such skimpy garments could be becoming only to graceful and youthful figures.

To Make a Waist Form.

To make a waist form fit a lining of unbleached muslin to your figure over the corset. Let it extend below the hips. When snugly fitted and firmly stitched tack the lower edge to a board, cut the shape of the body around the hips. Then fill the lining with fine cork, obtainable at any grocer's or fruit dealers. Fill the lining full. Sew on a buckram collar, cut to fit the neck. Fit cardboard pieces to armholes or cut sleeves and fill as preferred. This should be done before you start to fill. A paper pattern for the board may be obtained by bending a wire around the figure below the hips. Fasten the ends, slip over the head. Mark the oval on paper and cut out. For a little work and less expense you have a model of your own figure which will prove a blessing for fitting purposes.

Keep Skirt and Waist Adjusted.

Take a piece of tape long enough to go around the waist, stitch to the waist line for about six inches in the back, leaving the ends to tie in the front. Then sew on three good-sized brass eyes, equal distance apart. Sew on the skirt band corresponding hooks. These can be sent to the laundry without fear of rust, or in any way damaging the finest lingerie waist.

Don'ts for Health.

Don't eat when fatigued or overheated.

Don't bathe the body for at least an hour after eating.

Don't eat an excess of sugar, sweets and starchy foods.

Don't eat foods that disagree with you.

Don't be gloomy at meal time.

Don't eat too much of highly seasoned food.

Don't eat between meals habitually, and learn to eat fruit before breakfast.

The Girl Who Snubs.

Says the Atchison Globe: "There is a girl of 24 in Atchison who snubs her whole family. There may be more like her, but she is the only one we know of. She snubs her mother because she thinks she knows more than her mother. She snubs her father because he does not wear a dress suit and go to parties, though probably if her clothes cost him less he might afford to. She snubs her younger brothers and sisters. They do not dress well. She forgets that their share of the good things has always been given to her because she is the oldest. We wish some one would tell her that instead of snubbing her family her family should really snub her. She is a good-hearted girl and we believe it would really do her good."

The Wedding Gown.

Exaggerated simplicity is the keynote of modern wedding gowns.

Often the silk is embroidered in gold or silver thread.

Lace at neck and sleeves is, however, all that is needed.

Ivory white satin continues to be the favorite material.

Nevertheless, messaline, chiffon and olga cloth are all used.

Satin crepe de chine makes an economical selection.

There has been a return recently to the court train.

A high collar should be placed on the yoke of the gown.

Practically any length of sleeve is now permitted.

Whatever their length, they should be extremely soft.

Ventilate Without Drafts.

To properly ventilate a room at night, at the same time shut out early morning light, lower the shade and fixtures eighteen inches, then as close as possible above place another shade to roll upward and away from the window with a catch pulley in ceiling eighteen inches from the window. The window may be dropped from the top any distance, allowing free passage of air, which cannot blow directly on the child.

Lovers and Quarrels.

Many lovers' quarrels, and even broken engagements might be avoided, says an observer, if lovers would simply refrain from seeing too much of each other. No two people can be together all the time without boring each other, and when this point is reached a shadow is cast upon love's young dream, and the most trivial circumstance may wreck it. If Romeo spends an evening with his chums once in a while and Juliet seeks the society of her girl friends, both will enjoy each other's companionship all the more when they meet again.

Ozone Indoors.

Successful experiments have been made at the Royal theater in Stuttgart with a new apparatus designed to distribute ozone at fixed intervals throughout the building. The ozone is conducted by small tubes to all parts of the house and turned on, regulated and turned off at will. The result has been excellent, the air being completely purified within a few minutes.

Cleaning Cane Chairs.

To clean and restore the elasticity of cane-bottom chairs, turn the chair and with hot water and a sponge saturate the cane-work thoroughly. If the chair is dirty, use soap. Afterward set the chair to dry out of doors and the seat will be as taught as when new.

Save Hat Bands.

Do not throw away the silk hat bands on men's straw hats or soft felt hats as they make excellent belts to be used in a buckle or take the place of belting for skirtbands.

Sashes in Style Again.

Wide sashes of black satin, with long fringed ends, are seen on exclusive models in cashmere visiting gowns. These are draped in high corselet fashion and fit snugly to the figure.

Waste-Basket in Every Room.

Try having a small waste basket in every room, and notice how much longer your rooms will stay clean.

THE GRADUATION ESSAY.

A WOMAN distinguished in literature and philanthropy receives every spring from pupils who are to graduate letters asking her for material for their graduation essays and orations. The essays show a mixture of good and weak motives. The writers are groping through some subject in which this lady is known to be interested; they have a sincere desire for information; they "do not know how to begin;" they say that they are intending to use as "part" of their composition anything the lady may be so kind as to send them; they even hint that they are willing that the lady should write their pieces for them.

Coincident with the period of preparation for commencement exercises is another strange symptom of lack of moral responsibility, which must be more common than one likes to believe. It is the appearance of advertisements of oration factories which offer to furnish graduates with ready-made compositions. That such syndicates continue to exist is proof that they have found a profitable number of customers.

No one expects any great originality in a graduation address; but the address must be the result of honest labor. If it is not, the delivery of it is an act of deceit, and the purpose of the exhibition of oratory and essay—the training of the mind by competitive exercise in composition—is defeated. In general, it is well for teachers and parents to advise young graduates to choose simple subjects which lie partly within the range of youthful experience, to recommend that the treatment be brief, direct, free from palaver and bookish words.—Youth's Companion

THE MEN AND THE CHURCHES.

THERE was recently held in Detroit the first convention of the Congregational Brotherhood of America, whose object is said to be "to revitalize the interest of the men in the church." The necessity for such a work seems to have been emphasized by the first session of the body, at which only 200 of the 500 delegates were present. Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, of Columbus, O., made an address in which he said: "There should not be such a predominant feminine influence in the church and its work."

There is no doubt that there is a marked predominance of women, not only in the Congregational body, but in most Christian churches and denominations. Possibly the preponderance is more marked now than formerly, but it has existed in every age. The founder of Christianity Himself was surrounded chiefly with women who "ministered unto Him of their substance," and who were the last at the cross and the first at the sepulcher. It is a bold pastor, therefore, who hopes to see any other condition in his church

Some pastors are jealous of this prominence of women in the early history of the church. One of them, it is reported to have said in a sermon on the resurrection that women should not become vain because Christ first appeared to a woman, for it was, no doubt, in order that the news might spread the faster. On the other hand, a grateful pastor in Nebraska, after reporting the splendid work the women had done in raising money for foreign missions, devoutly exclaimed: "God bless the women—and help the men!" This sentiment is commended to the favorable consideration of Rev. Dr. Gladden.

The prominence of women in every church will be no reproach to religion as long as another well-known fact is kept in view. If there are more women than men in the church it may possibly be accounted for on the same principle that there are more men than women in the penitentiary.—Chicago Record-Herald.

WHEN ONE SPENDS MONEY.

ONE would think that money would be saved in prosperous times when there is plenty of it about. But no, that is not the time when it is saved. It is then that it is spent. Everybody spends it—governments, railroads, corporations, capitalists, housekeepers, house builders, collectors. People expand their wants in such times and satisfy some of them, and then is when it is most of all impossible to live on anything a year. But after all the money has been spent a few times over and has begun to be scarce, and borrowing has become a serious matter, and folks have much less to spend and no expectations; then everybody groans and begins to save, not only trying desperately to squeeze back inside of the bounds of income, but to pay back what was spent in expectation of a time when saving would have become convenient. To most of us that time never comes. And yet there are things for which we spend more than we can afford, that really do justify our expenditures, so that after the money has been spent and we are pinched for the lack of it, we would still rather have what it bought than have the money back.—Appleton's.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

HOW much better it would be for the American people if the courts here were to close their doors occasionally and shut out the public when gross details of immoral relations or of crime are required to elucidate the issues involved in celebrated cases! As long as the doors remain open publicity is inevitable. The better class of newspapers prune and trim down their reports as far as they can, and even yet there will remain at times a residue which offends the finer sensibilities. The less considerate press treats its readers to the full dish of nauseating stuff. Meanwhile the courtroom is packed with a morbid crowd of sensation seekers, gloating over the spectacle of shamed womanhood or wretched manhood and carrying away the most demoralizing impressions to be scattered broadcast by word of mouth.—Washington (D. C.) Star

NO OBSEQUIES.

A group of interested citizens lingered recently to watch the work of demolishing the ancient single-track tunnel by which the railroad has so long passed under the ridge where winds the beautiful elm-shaded High street of the old city of Newburyport. The tunnel is about to be replaced by an open bridge of width sufficient for several tracks. The scene was a lively one—men digging, carts dumping, engines puffing, heavy blocks of stone moving away, and huge timbers swinging into place. A pleasant old house stands almost over the tunnel, its long garden running far back along the cutting where the trains emerge.

"When the railroad first came through, and dug a cutting like this one at the foot of my grandfather's garden," said a watcher, pointing to a rich gleam of bright irises and peonies, caught between the straddling guys of a tall derrick, "the old gentleman strolled out early one day to sniff the morning coolness, and found six strangers — rough-looking men — earnestly digging a long, deep hole in the middle of the cherished asparagus bed.

"He hastened to the group and demanded to know what they were doing.

"'Planting a dead man' one of them answered, unconcernedly.

"'Planting a dead man!' roared my grandfather, who was a peppery old gentleman. 'Take him away, you rascals, take him away! What do you mean, trespassing on my property and defying law and decorum, you shameless villains? How dare you?'

"'Boss' orders,' said one of the men, laconically.

"'I don't care whose orders!' shouted grandfather. 'Take him away this minute! I won't have him in my asparagus bed, I tell you. Put him in the cemetery!'

"Just then the boss came along, and an explanation ensued. A 'dead man,' it appeared, was the name given by workmen to a heavy piece of wood buried in the ground, to which the guy of a derrick might be attached.

"The amusing character of the mistake was enough to soothe the feelings ruffled by the men's trespass in his asparagus, and grandfather allowed them to complete their task in peace."

WINSTON CHURCHILL.

English Parliamentarian and the Son of an American Mother.

One of the most brilliant of the young Liberal leaders in England is Winston Churchill, who holds a cabinet seat in the ministry of Premier Asquith and who was defeated last week in a Parliamentary contest in one of the divisions of Manchester. Mr. Churchill, whose official position is that of the presidency of the Board of Trade, is the son of a former New York woman, Miss Jennie Jerome, who in 1874 married the late Lord Randolph Churchill and in 1900 George Cornwallis West. He has many of the qualities of his brilliant father, who at one time was regarded as the most promising statesman in England. He entered the army in 1895, after an educational course at Harrow and Sandhurst and fought the same year with the Spaniards in Cuba. During subsequent years he served in several of England's little wars in the east and fought in the Boer struggle, until he was taken prisoner. In 1900 he entered Parliament, representing Oldham, and two years ago captured the strong Tory division of northwest Manchester, where he has just now suffered defeat. His defeat, however, does not mean his retirement from Parliament. A seat will be found for him in another constituency, according to the English system. It is not unusual for cabinet ministers in England offering themselves for seats in Parliament to meet with defeats. Gladstone under similar circumstances was defeated and so were John Morley, Sir William Harcourt and even Lord Balfour. So that Churchill will continue the even tenor of his way as a cabinet minister as though he had been returned from Manchester.

Minister Churchill is a writer of books, as well as a soldier and politician. He is a strong speaker, a quick debater and a man of superb nerve and daring. England probably has in reserve for him many political honors. He is a descendant of the great Duke of Marlborough, one of the greatest soldiers England has produced and the hero of Blenheim battle.

A Little Satire on Certain Tendencies of Time.

Once upon a time there was a man who, having gambled in the street, played the races, gone up in a balloon, traveled to the Yukon, and done other adventurous things, decided that he would raise a family.

"I wish," he said, "to hear the patter of little feet on the stairway, to tell fairy stories in the gloaming, to have chubby hands in mine, and all the other accessories. Before doing so, however, I will examine a specimen American family, which, I believe, is the latest and best example of the art of civilization."

So he called on a friend who had one.

"The latest idea," said the father, proudly, "is to bring up your children on an equality. We conceal nothing from them, and give them the benefit of all the latest information. This is Bessie, my 14-year-old."

"Have you read this article on sex?" asked Bessie, languidly, after shaking hands. "Really, it is very crude. I could write a better one myself. Its pathology is lamentable."

"This is Bobbie, my 10-year-old," volunteered the happy father, bringing forward number two. "Bobbie, shake hands."

"The old gentleman there," he said, "insists on introducing me to everyone. Sorry I can't stay and give you my views on the conduct of the administration, but I have a date with a vaudeville queen. Get to bed early," he said, warningly, to his father as he went off. "When you sit up late you're irritable at breakfast, and your manners are simply unbearable. At your time of life there ought to be nothing doing at all."

"This," said the father once more, "is my little 4-year-old, the apple of my eye. Here, Mildred, dear."

"Go 'way," said Mildred, shaking her curls. "You're a bounder—any man with a waistcoat like that is. Now, pap," she added, "don't scold, 'cause I have a right to say just what you and mamma say—isn't it taught now in my primary?"

But the man waited to hear no more. Two hours later he was seen by our private detective in a real estate office signing a ten-year lease for a bachelor apartment.—Harper's Weekly.

When a boy of 14 or 15 takes a girl to an entertainment for the first time, he looks as though he were trying awfully hard to make himself believe he is having a good time. Everyone can tell it is his first time by the way he acts. But you cannot detect any awkwardness in the girl.

There is also an exaggerated idea as to the number of good things to be found in the average refrigerator.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

RELIGIOUS

A Story from Real Life.

A young girl, destitute and friendless, wandering in the city streets, was arrested for vagrancy. She was not more than seventeen, and had tried in vain to get work. People wanted references and experience. She had neither, nor did she look strong.

Quite likely there was not much she knew how to do; but that was not her fault. She had never had a chance. Almost starved, cold and weary, she had slept in doorways, or any poor shelter she could find, only to resume her fruitless quest the next morning, faint with hunger. There could be but one result of her arrest. She was "committed for vagrancy."

When she came out, the stigma followed her. She could not get work. No one was ready to trust her before; now, when she had come from "a refuge," "the island," or whatever it might be, her chance was even less.

After she had received many rebuffs, a restaurant keeper, who did not know where she had been, hired her as a waitress. She tried hard to suit, and learned quickly, was quiet and civil, and had begun to feel encouraged. She was earning her living. For the first time in her life she had enough to eat, and far better food than she had ever before tasted. She was tired at night, but she had a room to herself and slept in a clean, comfortable bed, instead of a shed or doorway; and a kind word now and then cheered her more than the one who said it could ever guess.

One day a woman, showily dressed, no doubt calling herself a lady, came in, and ordered a meal. This girl was not the one who waited on her, but the customer, looking idly about the room, saw her, recognized her, and knew she had once been arrested; for what, or in what circumstances, she neither knew nor cared. When she went to the desk to pay for her meal, she said to the proprietor:

"Do you know you've got a thief among your waitresses?"

"Oh, I guess not," he answered. "Our girls are all honest. They may be poor, and not very well dressed, but honest they all are."

"You're mistaken about that one," she said, indicating the girl by a gesture. "She has been in a reformatory. You had better keep watch. She will steal from you yet, if she hasn't already."

The man felt uneasy. In spite of himself, his mind recurred again and again to what the woman had said. He could not find fault with the girl. She was self-respecting and did her work faithfully. But he was doubtful and suspicious. As his better judgment told him all the while, there was no reason for it except the idle chatter of a chance patron, and he made no move for a time.

But unfortunately, three or four weeks later, a tablecloth was missing. Directly the new girl was suspected of stealing it; all the others were "above suspicion."

The dining room was searched, as was thought, in every nook and cranny where the cloth could possibly be, but without success. The girl was charged with the theft, and dismissed, of course without a recommendation.

Where could she turn? What could she do? Hungry, cold, shelterless again, with no chance of getting employment of any kind, no one to say a word in her behalf. So far, she had never stolen a penny's worth, and she had kept herself morally clean. But what were the alternatives? Starvation, suicide. And starvation was no easier to her than it would be to the happy women in homes of comfort and affection.

Some days after she was turned away the tablecloth was found in a drawer, overlooked or left there by mistake. But no one knew where she was, and nothing could be done. There had been robbery, indeed, a grievous one, but who was the thief?

In her sore need and dire temptation some of the Salvation Army found this girl, and held out a helping hand. Just how it happened need not be told. Certain it is that they found and rescued her. They took her home, fed and clothed her, and, after a few days' rest, obtained a place for her. It was domestic service in a respectable family in the country, where she would be kindly treated, and they could have an oversight.

This was two or three years ago. The girl has given satisfaction, and is contented and happy. She has a comfortable home, bears a good character, and is trusted and valued, as she deserves to be.

One of many that the Salvation Army and Volunteers of America have rescued from sin, suffering or shame, and brought into the sunshine. "Queer" they may be in some of their ways, but the "blessing of those that were perishing" is theirs. — Youth's Companion.

When We Need to Pray.

We most need to pray when it is hardest to pray. We most need quietness and patience when everything within us and about us is clamoring and impatient. Yet we constantly yield to the temptation of supposing that prayer will be most profitable only when we are spontaneously in the mood for it, and that time is to be given to quiet communion with God only when it is easy to devote time to this. Because so many make this mistake, there is a constant ignoring of the source of power; and most persons, waiting for a time to come which never will come, grow steadily less able to make the most of the time that is theirs. When cares and perplexities multiply and tend to encroach on the time devoted to prayer, then is most needed the power that comes only from prayer and communion with God in the secret place. "A little while apart" is the secret of many a triumph over the real difficulties and anxieties that beset the Christian's daily path and is the true source of strength for the onward way.

A Prayer.

Heavenly Father, we would come closer to Thee to feel the quickening of Thy spirit. Fill our hearts with more desire to learn Thy will and to work out Thy great and holy purpose in us for the furtherance of the kingdom. Grant that we stand fast in the time of temptation and teach us to depend on Thine unfailing arm to save and strengthen in every hour of distress. Give us grateful hearts for the daily benefits that fall from Thy hand and make us ready of heart and hand to serve our fellow men. Strengthen the weary and uphold the faint and give us the courage and cheer of Thy abiding presence on our onward way. Lead us into peace and life eternal.

AUTOMATIC COURAGE.

The journal of an old-time Penobscot woodsman and river-driver, as quoted in Mrs. Fannie H. Eckstorm's book, "David Libbey," gives little notion of the dangers and hardships involved in the woodsman's life, as David Libbey led it. Neither of the following entries, for example, sounds like the record of a hairbreadth escape:

"1852. Dec. 22. Tremendous wind, snow nearly suffocated us before we got through the fields; two feet of snow in the woods; sunk to our knees at every step, on snowshoes, too. Took us five and a half hours to get to Work's Mills, seven miles."

"1858. Feb. 10. Got lost on military road; crossed it and did not know it; kept on going west to Carleton Brook; very cold and windy, on to Maddaceunk Lake; down the lake to an old camp; found a bedspread and stayed there until sunrise; then went down to Thibadeau's camp, got something to eat, and came back to camp."

Interpreted, this record reveals such dogged endurance as few men can equal. I have the story in full from his son and his hunting companion, James White.

In a strange country, expecting to get his bearings by the old military road to Houlton, Libbey crossed the unbroken woods road without seeing it in the twilight, and was lost.

His wet clothing froze quickly in the cold night wind, and his matches would not light. None of the ordinary expedients of the woodsman could save him. He must have shelter and fire or perish, and he was alone, after dark, in an unknown country.

Twice his life was saved by the merest chance happening. When nearly exhausted, he sat down on a log to rest a moment, and fell asleep. But for his rifle rolling from his knees and striking on his feet he would have frozen to death sitting there.

He rose and stumbled on, and came in time to a camp. But the camp was deserted; no food, no fire, his own matches useless. He sat down on the edge of a bunk, resigned to a fate which apparently not far off, when, falling backward from exhaustion, he struck upon an old bedspread left by the former lumber crew, and had just enough consciousness left to roll himself over and over until it was closely wrapped about him.

That spread saved his life, for it held in the natural heat of his body and thawed the ice from his clothing. The next morning, when he crept into Thibadeau's camp, he was too used up to drink the hot coffee the cook poured for him.

Finer, almost than courage in facing sudden danger is such a dauntless struggle against fate; but with trained woodsmen this resistance to death is almost automatic, and many of them have saved their lives by refusing to die when death looked inevitable.

All the Same to Her.

The mistress looked dejectedly at the latest domestic, just over, and willing to begin at only four dollars a week.

"What can you do?" she asked, with no hope in her heart.

"Annything at all, sure!" was the encouraging response. The mistress glanced about the room. There was everything to be done.

"Could you fill the lamps?" she ventured.

"I can that!" and the lamp was seized in a stout embrace. Then, with the air of one wishing above all else to suit the possible whims of a new employer, she paused to ask:

"And is it gas or wather you do be liking it filled wid?"

A Philosopher's Woes.

Diogenes dropped into the corner store. "Gimme a new candle for my lantern," he said, "and charge it," he added at the psychological moment.

"Now, see here, Di," protested the proprietor, "that blamed old lantern of yourn is on my books yet. Say, when yeh find yer honest man I hope he'll convert yeh."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Yorkshire Pudding.

The recipes usually seen produce a soggy mass, very different from the "broad-acred" shire's product. Try this from a genuine Yorkshire woman: Beat thoroughly, two eggs, yolks and whites together, six tablespoonfuls flour, salt to season and milk, until the whole is the consistency of thick cream. Pour into a roasting pan and bake in the drippings from the roast, or heat to the boiling point one tablespoonful of lard or drippings, and bake in this twenty minutes. It is truly delicious with the accompaniment of roast beef and brown gravy.

S.S.S. CURES MALARIA

Malaria is due to impurities and poisons in the blood. Instead of being rich, strong and healthy, the circulation has become infected with germs of disease which destroy the rich, red corpuscles that furnish nourishment and strength to the body, and reduced this vital fluid to such a weak, watery condition that it is no longer able to keep the system in health, or ward off the countless diseases and disorders that assail it. The loss of these red corpuscles takes the color and glow of health from the cheek, and we see pale, sallow faces and washed out, chalky complexions among the first symptoms of Malaria. But Malaria is a general systemic disease, and as the blood becomes more heavily loaded with its germs we have more serious and complicated symptoms; the impure blood having its effect on all parts of the body. The appetite fails, digestion is weakened, chills and slight fever are frequent, and the sufferer loses energy and ambition because of a constant tired-out and "no account" feeling. The lack of necessary nourishment and healthful qualities in the blood causes boils and abscesses, skin affections, and in some cases sores and ulcers to break out, and sometimes the patient is prostrated with a spell of malarial fever which may leave his health permanently impaired. To cure Malaria both a blood purifier and tonic are necessary, in order to remove the cause and at the same time build up the system from its weakened and run-down condition. S. S. S. is the medicine best fitted for this work. It is the most perfect of all blood purifiers, and the purely vegetable ingredients of which it is composed make it the greatest and safest of all tonics. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and removes every trace of impurity or poison, and at the same time gives to the blood the health-sustaining qualities it needs. It cures Malaria thoroughly and permanently because it removes the germs and poisons which produce the disease, and while doing this tones up and strengthens every part of the system. When S. S. S. has cleansed the blood the symptoms pass away, the healthy color returns to the complexion, the old tired, depressed feeling is gone, and the entire health is renewed. Book with information about Malaria and any medical advice free.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

During 1900 I was running a farm on the Mississippi river and became so impregnated with Malaria that for a year I was almost a physical wreck. I tried a number of medicines recommended as blood purifiers, chill cures, and Malaria eradicators, but nothing did me any good until I began to use S. S. S. The result was that after taking it for awhile I was as well and strong as I ever was. I have never had a chill since nor the slightest symptom of Malaria. I hope others will be benefited by my experience, and with that end in view I give this testimonial, knowing that S. S. S. is the best remedy for Malaria.

FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1908

The state supreme court has again confirmed the constitutionality of the state Sunday closing law. The test case was brought in Seattle in the form of a habeas corpus proceeding on behalf of a threatical manager for keeping his show house open on Sunday. The attempt was made to upset the law because the original bill passed by the territorial legislature exempted Snohomish county from its provisions. The court in its decision says that the penal code into which part of this old law was copied, which copy omitted this exemption, is a new law, supercedes the old, and holds that the act is valid and denies the application for habeas corpus.

People in all parts of the South and Middle West seem to be taking a new interest in the investigation of conditions here in Angeles since the granting of the franchise to the Terminal Co. Every mail brings a score of l tters of inquiry as regards the future of the place. Port Angeles is just now in the fore-front of publicity thruout the entire country.

Portland's second annual rose festival opened in that city Monday, June 1, and closes Saturday evening, June 5th. The event is a marvelous advertisement of the climatic conditions, for nowhere else in the world can flowers be found more beautiful than the roses of the North Pacific Coast.

According to weather reports for May, given in the Seattle papers, there was not a real clear day during the month. Here in Port Angeles the majority of the days in May were clear sunny days.

PUGET SOUND AS A NAVAL RENDEZVOUS

From the Seattle P.-I.

It is not at all surprising that Admiral Sperry, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, should have been profoundly impressed with the advantages which that great body of water, known colloquially as Puget sound, possesses as a naval rendezvous. The surprising thing would have been to have these advantages overlooked by any naval officer who has had opportunities of observation. Indeed, it is doubtful whether elsewhere in the world are presented so many advantages for a naval rendezvous as are to be found in these waters.

There are almost countless bays and inlets, with deep water, with an almost entire absence of rocks, shoals or other dangers to navigation. There is maneuvering room for dozens of fleets equal in size to that which has just visited our waters, and without any one of these fleets necessarily coming in sight of another. For boat drill, for landing parties, engaging in maneuvers similar to those with which must inevitably take place in time of war, when the fleet is co-operating with the army in an attack on an enemy's shore, here is presented every kind and nature of topographical feature which is likely to be encountered anywhere.

As far as target practice is concerned, it is not necessary to go outside the waters of the United States and ask a favor of Mexico in the use of Magdalena bay, with Port Angeles, on the Strait of Fuca, open for this purpose. To Port Angeles, for many years, the small Pacific squadron was in the habit of resorting for its annual target practice, and many fine records were made there. When proper precautions are used, target practice at Port Angeles can be had without danger to passing ships. The vessels can lie in the calm waters of that bay and yet fire to seaward, out in the waters of the ocean, without endangering life or property.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

HEARST WINS FIGHT FOR COUNT OF BALLOTS

New York, May 28.—Wm. R. Hearst won an important victory today in his long fight for a recount of the ballots cast in the mayoralty election in 1905, when George B. McClellan was declared elected, and at last the boxes are to be opened.

Justice Lambert today overruled the objections made by counsel for McClellan, and issued an order that the ballots be recounted.

McClellan has opposed the action at every possible point in the courts, high and low, and has caused delay after delay. Hearst and his friends declared he was elected mayor by a wide margin, but that he was deliberately counted out by McClellan men, who certified to the results.

McClellan denied the charge of fraud, and the case has been battered about the courts of New York and has twice been before the state legislature, where efforts were made to pass special legislation providing for a recount.

FAMOUS FILIBUSTER

LA FOLLETTE BREAKS RECORD FOR LENGTH OF SPEECH IN SENATE.

Talks Over Eighteen Hours on Financial Measure — Senate, However, Passes Measure and Senator Moves a Reconsideration — Other Strong Speakers Take Up Filibuster When La Follette Stops.

Washington, May 30.—The conference report of the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill was adopted by the senate this afternoon. The roll call was begun at 4:27 p. m.

All the affirmative votes were cast by republicans, but Senators William E. Borah of Idaho, Norris Brown of Nebraska, Jonathan Bourne of Oregon and Welden B. Heyburn of Idaho, republicans, voted with the democrats against the bill. Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin voted in the effirmative for the purpose of moving a reconsideration of the vote. The motion to reconsider was laid on the table by a vote of 45 to 17.

Whatever else has been accomplished by Senator La Follette in his filibuster, he has gained a championship. At 7:03 this morning he yielded the floor to Senator William J. Stone of Missouri, after having spoken almost continuously for eighteen hours and forty-three minutes, and his voice seemed to be almost as fresh as when he began.

The republican leaders apparently had no program other than to try to wear out the filibusters.

The previous record for long speech in the senate was made by former Senator W. V. Allen of Nebraska, who opposed the repeal of the silver purchasing clause of the Sherman act, and he was aided by other senators who took much of the strain from his voice by frequently reading extracts from documents.

La Follette had no such assistance. In fact, his task was made as difficult as possible by placing interpretations of the rules of the senate which interfered with his demands for calling of the roll to determine the existence of a quorum. This ruling was made after there had been more than thirty calls of the senate and was based upon the fact that there had been no business intervening since the former call, debate being held not to be business.

Old Ruling Invoked.

After La Follette had been twice recognized by the chair, an old ruling invoked a number of years ago at the suggestion of former Senator David B. Hill of New York, to the effect that a senator cannot speak more than twice on a subject in one legislative day, unless other business intervenes, was brought up. As the senate will continue the currency discussion under the legislative date of May 29, La Follette realized that he could not get the floor again if he surrendered. As a result he gave an unprecedented exhibition of endurance. His exploit is all the more remarkable for the reason that his own party was wholly without sympathy for his effort, and he had but few supporters in the democratic ranks.

The night was one that will long be remembered by senators. The heat in the chamber was oppressive and the attempts to maintain a quorum prevented the fifty-odd senators in the city from getting rest. Finally the sergeant-at-arms was directed to keep these senators at the capitol, which was an almost impossible task. As soon as some of them were brought they would answer to their names and depart for their homes.

The republican leaders were particularly anxious that Senators Stone and Gore should not be permitted to get an undisturbed night's rest and they were kept out of bed by the sergeant-at-arms of the senate. They were brought into the chamber half dressed, but they did not remain long enough for their dishabille to be generally noticed.

Slight Sustenance.

Throughout yesterday and last night La Follette sustained himself on a punch of egg and milk, and on one occasion during a roll call he ate a sandwich. He husbanded his strength by sitting on the arm of his chair as he talked and for the most part his speech was delivered in a conversational and dispassionate tone.

There have been many famous filibustering periods in the history of the senate; but none, perhaps, ever has been supported by so small a body of men as the "lone filibuster" of La Follette. Never yet has the senate failed to finally act on a measure when a majority of that body favored such an act.

President Cleveland summoned congress in extraordinary session and the fight was then made to repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman law. Congress met August 7, 1893; the law was approved November 1, following, and adjournment was taken November 3, 1893.

On October 11 the senate met at 11 o'clock in the morning and did not adjourn again until 1:45 on the morning of October 13. About 6 o'clock on the night of October 11 Senator W. V. Allen of Nebraska, a populist, took the floor and began a speech in opposition to the bill. He held the floor uninterrupted until a few minutes after 8 o'clock the next morning, speaking all the time, save when points of no quorum were brought up or he was "spelled" by someone else for a few minutes through reading of newspapers and other articles with which his speech was interpolated.

Allen Made a Record.

Allen was on his feet fourteen hours, and up to date held the record for long distance speaking in the congress of the United States.

At the time it was stated it had been exceeded but once, and then by only a couple of hours, in the British house of commons. Allen was materially aided by Senators Peffer and Kyle. Senator Peffer will be remembered as the possessor of the longest whiskers that ever obtained a seat in the senate.

QUICK ADJOURNMENT AFTER CURRENCY MEASURE PASSES

Washington, May 31.—In the dying midnight oil the first session of the Sixtieth congress completed its work. At 11:50 p. m. the dismissal came from President Roosevelt and the session passed into history. Its acts of commission and omission will be the theme of political orators this fall; its merits and demerits, the people will judge. The second session of this congress will convene Monday, December 7, at noon.

With the currency bill out of the way, the senate and house entered with zest on the work of the closing hours. The public buildings bill and the general deficiency bill slid smoothly through on well-oiled grooves and went to President Roosevelt for his signature. The passage of these bills was the opportunity for Chairman James A. Tawney of the appropriations committee to defend the republican party for its expenditures and an attack on the majority for extravagance by Representative Fitzgerald of New York.

Earlier in the day Tawney issued a statement warning congress that if the deficiency bill was not signed tonight the government printing office would have to close, throwing several thousand out of employment, and the June pensions would be defaulted. He sharply criticised the filibuster of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin and the democrats' dilatory tactics in the house, which had delayed legislation and threatened the catastrophe.

Last Bill to Pass.

The last bill to pass the house was one authorizing the secretary of the treasury to transfer from the treasury library to the libraries of the life saving stations such books and publications no longer of use to the treasury department, but which will be of use to members of the life saving crews in instructing them in their duties.

The president signed the government "employers' liability" bill granting compensation to the employes of the government service last night. The act grants one year's salary to the injured man or woman and the same amount to their families in case of death.

MORE FISH HATCHERIES FOR PUGET SOUND WATERS

Washington, May 30.—A bill has been passed by the house providing for the establishment of two or three more fish culture stations on Puget sound, Washington, for the propagation of salmon and other food fish. The bill gave rise to a good deal of criticism of the speaker by several democrats, as they charged he had shown favoritism in allowing that particular measure to be considered while others of a similar nature must remain in committee. Mr. Humphrey of Washington urged the passage of the bill, pleading that the hatcheries were necessary in order to prevent the salmon from becoming extinct. The bill was opposed by Messrs. Williams, Spight and Canler of Mississippi. It was supported by Mr. Payne of New York, who said that it was a case of legislating for the whole country.

JOHN MITCHELL MAY RUN FOR GOVERNOR

Chicago, June 1.—John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers, wants to run for governor of Illinois on the democratic ticket. He will decide whether to make the race on June 15, when the Illinois Federation of Labor meets. It is expected that a boom for Mitchell will be started at that meeting. Roger C. Sullivan, democratic national committeeman, thinks Mitchell or Samuel Alschuler would make the strongest candidate the democrats have had in years.

Crow to Receive Decree.

State College, Pullman, Wash., June 1.—Among sixty-five graduates who will receive diplomas from the Washington State College at the close of the college year is Judge Herman D. Crow, justice of the supreme court of Washington. Judge Crow will receive a degree of LL. D. He was for several years a member of the board of regents of the state college and served for two years in the state senate. Judge Crow is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University.

G. N. Stock Goes to Hospital.

London, May 30.—Lord Mount Stephen, former president of the Canadian Pacific railway, who had previously given $2,000,000 to the King Edward hospital fund, has now further given 5,000 shares of the Great Northern Railroad Company, of the United States, to the same fund.

SUNDAY CLOSING

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF STATE LAW IS UPHELD BY THE SUPREME COURT.

Act Was Attacked by Theater Interests of the State, but Court Holds It Applies to Theaters as Well as to Other Businesses—Law Is Sustained in Its Entirety.

Olympia, May 30.—The constitutionality of the Sunday closing law as applied to theaters was sustained by the supreme court in refusing a writ of habeas corpus in the Frank Donallen appeal, prosecuted from a conviction for Sunday law violation obtained in a justice court in Seattle.

The Donallen proceedings were prosecuted by the theater interests of the state in a hope of at least having the law declared unconstitutional in its application to Sunday theaters orderly conducted.

The law was attacked as unconstitutional because it was alleged to be unreasonable, arbitrary and unjust and unnecessary for the protection of public health, safety and morals; because the original act of 1866, upon which the present Sunday law is based, exempted Snohomish county from its operations; because the act of 1881, also territorial, embraces more than one subject not expressed in the title, and because the amendatory act of 1891 is not sufficient to include theaters under its title. In none of these contentions does the court find merit and sustains the law in its entirety.

CHAMBERLAIN LEADING IN OREGON PRIMARIES

Portland, Ore., June 3.—With the exception of the United States senator, the entire republican state ticket has been elected. The senatorial contest returns show some changes from last night's figures, but the indications are that Chamberlain, democrat, will be the people's choice over Cake, republican, with a majority of about 1,000 votes. Incomplete returns from ten counties outside Multnomah give Chamberlain a lead of 201. Multnomah may give Chamberlain a majority of about 500.

Prohobition was a hard fought issue in twenty-eight counties, and while the tally clerks cannot give any figures of a definite character, the indications are that a large majority of the counties voted "dry."

Equal Suffrage Defeated.

Single tax has been beaten.

Woman's suffrage has probably been beaten. No estimate can be made at endum measures.

Otherwise than for United States senator, with the exception of Linn this time on other initiative and referand perhaps one other county, the republicans have walked away with practically every office from supreme judge to constable.

While local option returns are slow coming in, Wasco and Jackson counties appear to be the only ones in which the prohibition question was an issue that it did not carry.

The following candidates are known to be elected:

Representative, First congressional district—Willis C. Hawley, republican.

Representative, Second congressional district—W. R. Ellis, republican.

Justice of the supreme court—Robert S. Bean, democrat-republican.

Oregon dairy and food commissioner—J. W. Bailey, republican.

Railroad commissioner, First congressional district—Thomas K. Campbell, republican.

Railroad commissioner, Second congressional district—Clyde B. Atchison, republican.

To Meet American Battleships.

Sydney, May 30.—Vice Admiral Poose, in command of the British Australian squadron, will sail on July 10 for Suva, Fiji islands, to meet the American fleet. The China squadron will not be able to come to Australia for the celebrations. The postmaster general of the commonwealth has issued a special series of postal cards with the British and American flags intertwined.

Talk of Strike Ends.

New York, May 30.—President Percy Thomas, of the New York local of the Commercial Telegraphers, has announced that all strike talk among the operators had been called off, and declared that the men will not quit their keys on June 1, at least not until after the convention of the union is held on June 8.

Successful Submarine Test.

Newport, R. I., May 30.—After a successful service trial of twenty-four hours, a quarter of which time she was completely under water, the submarine torpedo boat Octopus returned here last night. The Octopus carried eighteen persons and did not renew air supply.

To Investigate Telegraph Lines.

Washington, May 30.—In the senate a resolution offered by Mr. LaFollette and directing the secretary of commerce and labor to investigate conditions in the business of telegraph and telephone companies doing an interstate business was adopted without debate.

ADMIRAL EVANS AGREES WITH NAVAL CRITIC

Washington, May 30.—In a report issued as a senate document, Rear Admiral Evans sustains many of the charges made against the United States navy by Henry Reuterdahl in a recent magazine article.

The former commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet frankly agrees with the author-artist; for instance, that the height of the deck should be increased and their views on the main armor plate are nearly the same. On this vital question Admiral Evans says if these belts had been placed about six inches or one foot higher better protection might have been afforded.

Reuterdahl's statement that the ships are inadequately protected from attack by torpedo boats is also upheld by the admiral. Evans declares that all flying and after bridges, except those on flagships, are unnecessary, and that hoists are altogether too slow for hoisting ammunition required by the rapid-fire modern guns.

On the question of freeboards and the height of the broadside guns the board of construction of the navy does not agree with Admiral Evans, and says concerning the location of the main armor belt: "The distribution of armor protection on battleships, like so many other questions relating to battleship design, is necessarily a compromise, and the fundamental principles governing such distribution which have been heretofore observed are, in the opinion of the board, entirely sound, and should be adhered to in the future."

CONVENTION OF FARMERS FROM THREE STATES

Pullman, May 30.—The Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union, some 600 or 700 strong, will meet in Pullman June 15 and 16, representing the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho. National President Barrett will be present and it is understood that before the convention is adjourned, the formation of a state union from the various local and county unions present will be effected. The organization of the farmers' union in Washington is at present by local and county organizations only. Officers of the new state organization will be elected at the coming convention.

The Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union is an organization which emphasizes educational co-operation in the sale of farm products and in the purchase of the many necessities to the farming occupations. Last year, for instance, 11 cents was paid for sacks by farmers in the Pullman territory of Whitman county, as well as elsewhere in Eastern Washington. This year the local union has succeeded in getting the price of sacks down to a fraction below 7 cents. Reckoning on a basis of 160,000 sacks, the number just bargained for by the union, this item alone represents a saving of $6,400 to the farmers interested.

RURAL CARRIERS MUST CHOOSE BETWEEN EVILS

Gresham, Ore., May 30.—Whether to run the risk of being run down by thirty-horse power automobiles, with the certainty of arrest if they escape alive, or to resign their positions and see their families starve is the quandary in which two rural mail carriers in east Multnomah county have been placed by a clash between the state authorities and Uncle Sam.

Governor Chamberlain has issued a proclamation forbidding traffic on the base line and section line roads on June 4, the date of the road races to be held by the Portland Automobile Club. The postoffice department has issued orders to its rural mail carriers in that district to make their regular trips over these roads on this date. If the men obey the governor they will lose their government positions; if they obey Uncle Sam they will either be killed or arrested. About thirty high-power automobiles will be entered in the race, and there is little danger of the carriers going to jail if they venture on the forbidden territory.

The course laid out for the races is fourteen miles over the two roads. One race is to be 100 miles and the other fifty miles. This means that there will be automobiles on every mile of the roads throughout the day. The local postal authorities have informed the carriers that the government will defend them in event of arrest, but will not be responsible for their death or damage to their rigs.

Plasterers' Union Split.

Seattle, May 30.—Rebelling against the attitude of the Labor Temple authorities and Plasterers' Union No. 77, 180 members deserted the union and organized one of their own, to be known as the Plasterers' Exchange. Officers were elected and the men declared themselves in favor of the open shop and will work in conjunction with the Builders' Exchange of Seattle.

New Factory Planned at Everett.

Everett, June 1.—A New York company engaged in the manufacture of fuel from peat has a representative in Everett investigating the properties of the immense peat deposits in marshes of Snohomish and Island counties with a view of establishing a factory here. The manufactured product is known as "gaset."

Advertises for Non-Corrosive Paint.

Washington June 1.—The navy department has advertised for proposals for 50,000 pounds of non-corrosive paint for ships' bottoms to be delivered at the Puget Sound navy yard.

ALASKA GOLD OUTPUT

NORTH COUNTRY SHOULD BREAK ALL RECORDS DURING CURRENT YEAR.

Expected to Take First Place, Distancing Colorado—Cleanup Gets Under Way Early and Showing Is Better Than Anticipated—New Creeks Will Swell the Total Over Last Year.

Seattle, June 1.—The Post-Intelligencer in a long review of the Alaska mining situation says:

A banner year is predicted for Alas-. Word comes from all the North-n camps that the cleanup, which got ıder way unusually early, is making better showing than anticipated.

Every district in the North will make better showing this season than last, .nd it will only be a few weeks before .he golden harvest will begin to ar-ive here. A million from the Tanana is already on the way to Seattle.

Men in touch with the North say that, judging from the most conservative estimates, the output from Alaska this year will exceed the $26,000,000 mark. If the North is permitted to go through the season without any strikes Alaska will this year lead the United States in gold production, putting Colorado, which has been at the head, in second .lace, Alaska, in 1906, producing $22,000,000 and Colorado $23,000,000. Last year on account of strikes there was a decrease in the output.

Tabulated Estimate.

From the views of bankers, operators and merchants who are familiar with Alaska, the following is a conservative estimate of the gold output of the North for 1908:

Tanana	$12,000,000
Seward peninsula	8,000,000
Koyukuk	1,500,000
Susitna	250,000
Fortymile	1,000,000
Southeastern Alaska	2,500,000
Birch creek	1,000,000
nnoko	100,000
Chandlar	100,000
Total	$26,450,000

This estimate is arrived at by comparing the output last year with the development of both old and new districts. Every creek which was worked last year will have an increased output this season. In the Nome district the discovery of another beach near Fort Davis will add materially to the output of that region. Many new claims are also being worked, and Nome will in all probability show that its placer area, which is equal to the auriferous area of California, has entered upon an epoch of development that will last for scores of years.

New Discoveries in Tanana.

In the Tanana district new and valuable discoveries on Vault, Salchaket, Tatlanika, Bonnifield and the Chatanika will increase the output to a considerable extent. On the old creeks the paystreaks have been worked with increased activity during the past winter.

Two districts, old so far as gold discoveries are concerned but new in rich strikes, are the Susitna and the Koyukuk. In the latter region for many years men have worked on the theory that it was a country of shallow diggings, and what was considered to be bedrock proved during the last winter to be only the overburden for a richer gravel wash ranging in depth from 100 to 150 feet. Should other creeks besides Nolan prove that the ancient channels have been covered by country rock and that underneath this well-packed debris there is rich pay, the estimate of $1,500,000 will be a low figure. As a rule the Koyukuk has been turning out $300,000 each year for a number of seasons.

NOME SHOWING BETTER THAN HAS BEEN EXPECTED

Nome, June 1.—As the spring cleanup progresses the output of the winter dumps is showing up far better than expected. From all the camps on the Seward peninsula comes similar word and this district will have a banner output.

Mining is in full swing and the hydraulic companies throughout the peninsula are taking full advantage of the water supply. By the time the first boats sail for Seattle there will be fully $2,000,000 for shipment. Merchants are looking forward to the coming season as the most prosperous ever known. Much new ground is opened, especially on the beach lines, and the recent strikes near Fort Davis will add much to the production this year.

TANANA DISTRICT CLEANUP PROVES GREAT SURPRISE

Fairbanks, June 1.—Winter dumps ›ing washed up are showing up bet-· than estimated and operators are ilant. Especially is this true on er Dome and Vault. Dome is be-worked from eight above to nine-below. Chatanika pay also is ·ding expectations. Smallwood ower Fairbanks, both being d for the first time, are also ʒ surprises.

rts coming from all the creeks that Fairbanks will, with f labor, no strikes and a wet lean up $15,000,000. This es-vhich was considered high a hs ago, seems to be justified ıt amount of work done on the old creeks and the development of a number of new and rich streams.

TWO THOUSAND LEAVE ON FIRST NOME BOATS

Seattle, June 2.—Approximately 2,000 passengers sailed on the three vessels which left Seattle yesterday afternoon for Nome.

Long before the ticket offices opened yesterday morning crowds of men clustered about the entrances and what few berths were left were eagerly snapped up.

The Victoria, operated by the Alaska Steamship Company, was practically sold out Saturday and applicants were turned over to the Ohio. The Victoria carried about 700 passengers and 2,000 tons of freight.

The Ohio, of the Frank Waterhouse fleet and now being operated by the Alaska Steamship Company, carried 3,000 tons of supplies and machinery and 850 passengers. She was scheduled to leave at 10 o'clock yesterday, but ˇ large amount of freight which arrived on the Governor from San Francisco consigned to Northern points had to be transferred to the Ohio, and it was late in the afternoon when s·e got away.

The Pacific Coast Company's steamship Senator sailed at 2 o'clock with an 1,800 ton cargo and 450 passengers, bound for Nome and points on Norton sound. Many of the passengers on the Senator were from California and arrived Sunday night from San Francisco on the Governor.

CAMP INSTRUCTIONS.

Orders Regarding Maneuvers of Troops at American Lake.

Seattle, June 1.—Orders from the war department detailing the plan of the encampment of federal and state troops to take place at American lake in August and specifying the organizations of regulars that will take part have been reecived at Fort Lawton. There will be fewer of the maneuvers of large bodies of troops and more work in company and battalion movements this year, and the officers at Lawton say this will be an improvement. Flooring of tents and other semi-permanent camping arrangements are forbidden.

There will be a minimum of formal ceremonies and a total absence of merely spectacular exhibitions, read the orders.

Economy of management is suggested also. All troops participating are obliged to walk 200 miles in going or returning from camp, or half of that distance each way. The troops to participate are specified below:

Headquarters and four troops, Fourteenth cavalry, Fort Walla Walla; headquarters and two batteries, Fourth field artillery, Vancouver barracks; headquarters and three companies, Third infantry, Fort Lawton; seven companies, Third infantry, Fort Wright; headquarters and three companies, Sixth infantry, Fort William Henry Harrison, Montana; three companies, Sixth infantry, Fort Lincoln, North Dakota; three companies, Sixth infantry, Fort Missoula, Montana; three companies, Second infantry, Fort Assiniboine, Montana; engineer corps, one company (D), Fort Flagler; signal corps, one company (E), the Presidio, San Francisco; hospital corps, one company (B), the Presidio.

The machine gun platoon of Fort Lawton, consisting of eighteen men and fourteen mules, carrying two rapid-fire machine guns, has left for American lake for target practice. They will march the entire distance. The two guns have not been tried before. They are of recent introduction in the army and fire 600 shots a minute. They are made in England and are said to be the most rapid fire guns in existence.

Next Thursday companies E and F will go to American lake for target practice and companies E and F will return.

Company E, Tenth infantry, left Haines on the steamship Humboldt May 18 for Seattle. Company E of Fort Lawton returned Saturday after a practice march of three days.

MILLION IN GOLD IS COMING ON FIRST BOAT

Dawson, Y. T., May 30.—The steamer Tanana, the first boat of the season from Fairbanks, arrived with thirty-five passengers and $1,000,000 in gold for Seattle. All leave here on Monday night. The steamer Prospector, which is the first boat going through to Whitehorse this year, has Judge Reid and James H. Rogers, manager of the Tanana Mines railway, aboard en route to the coast.

The steamers at Whitehorse are laden ready to sail as soon as the water is a little higher for the head of Lake Laberge. Passenger accommodations on the first three steamers from Whitehorse are sold, others going fast. Incoming travel is heavier this year than previously, largely for Fairbanks.

Whitehorse advices say it is expected there the first steamer will leave for Dawson June 4, after which there will be one daily for Dawson through the season.

Olympia Daily Suspends.

Olympia, June 1.—The Daily News, which was started eight months ago by Gordon Mackey and a number of local business men, announces its suspension. This leaves the field open to the Morning Olympian and the Recorder, an evening paper, both of which are owned by S. A. Perkins of Tacoma. Lack of support is given as the cause of suspension. The News was a morning paper.

NEW CURRENCY LAW

PROVIDES FOR URGENCY CIRCULATION UP TO FIVE HUNDRED MILLIONS.

Various Kinds of Bonds Acceptable as Securities—Change Also Made in the Percentage of Reserve Funds Required by National Banks—Act Also Provides for Currency Commission.

Washington, June 1.—The following provisions are carried in the compromise currency bill, retaining the principles of the Vreeland bill and adding thereto from the Aldrich bill:

The reserve required to be retained in central reserve and other reserve cities is 10 per cent straight. A redemption fund of 10 per cent instead of 5 per cent required by the present law is stipulated, and all of it shall be held in Washington. The emergency currency issuable shall not exceed in the aggregate $500,000,000. Such emergency shall be subject to a retirement tax of 6 per cent for the first two months and an additional 1 per cent per month thereafter until 10 per cent is reached.

State, county and municipal bonds shall be acceptable as securities for emergency currency at 90 per cent of their market value. Other bonds and commercial paper shall be similarly acceptable at 75 per cent of their market value.

No bank shall be allowed to take out emergency circulation in amounts excessive of 30 per cent of its capital and surplus when the security offered is commercial paper. No emergency currency may be taken out under any circumstances unless the obligant bank has already taken out, acording to the present law, an amount of currency equal to 40 per cent of the capital stock and surplus.

Discretion of Secretary.

The provision in the Aldrich bill is incorporated in the conference bill that banks which hold state, county or municipal bonds may, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, take out additional currency directly upon them up to 90 per cent of their market value—that is, they may do so on their individual initiative and responsibility.

The use of commercial paper as a basis for taking out emergency currency may be exercised only by banks which affiliate themselves in groups of not less than ten with an aggregate capital and surplus of not less than $5,000,000. Such groups shall be known as "national currency associations," instead of "national clearing house associations," the clearing house associations of the country having objected to the use of the latter name.

The clause creating a currency commission to be composed of nine members of the senate and nine members of the house is carried in the bill.

Additional Provisions.

The bill provides:

"That after January 1, 1909, national banking associations located outside of reserve or central reserve cities, which are now required by law to keep a reserve equal to 15 per cent of their deposit liabilities, shall hereafter hold in their own vaults four-fifths of their reserve, either in lawful money as national banks required by law, or in the securities enumerated in this act, which shall have been approved by the secretary of the treasury; provided, however, that not more than one-third of the reserve required to be kept in the vaults of such associations shall be held in such securities.

"That the deposits under the section of retiring notes secured by the deposit of bonds other than bonds of the United States shall not be covered into the treasury as required by section 6 of an act entitled, 'An act directing the purchase of silver bullion, etc.,' approved July 14, 1890, but shall be retained in the treasury for the purpose of redeeming the notes of the bank making such deposit.

Investment of Funds.

"That no national banking association shall invest any part of its funds or deposits in the stocks or other security of any corporation or association any of the officers or directors of which are officers or directors of such banking association, and that any officer or director of any national banking association who knowingly violates or consents to the violation of the foregoing provision shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall upon conviction thereof in any circuit or district court of the United States be imprisoned not less than one year and not more than five years.

"That it shall be the duty of the comptroller of the currency to cause such reports of notes in circulation to be verified by examination of the bank's records, and any officer of any banking association falsely representing the amount of its notes in circulation shall upon conviction thereof in any circuit or district court of the United States be punished by a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000, or by imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

ANOTHER ATTACK ON DIRECT PRIMARY LAW

Olympia, May 30.—Another attempt to test the direct primary law is to be made in this county.

It has become known here that plans are being formulated to file a suit attempting to restrain Secretary of State Sam H. Nichols from incorporating in the official ballot any reference to the second choice provision of the law.

The action is to be brought in the name of some taxpayer upon the ground that the printing of the ballot with the second choice provision included is an unnecessary and unlawful expense, the further contention being that the section of the primary law relating to second choice is unconstitutional.

By filing this sort of an action it is probable a decision could be secured from the supreme court before the date of the primaries. The supreme court has original jurisdiction in injunction proceedings directed toward state officers and the case could be filed direct in that court. It would not be necessary for the hearing to be postponed until the next term of court, but it could be taken up and argued between terms.

While the statement that such a case is to be commenced comes from a good authority, the names of the real persons back of the effort are being withheld for the present.

ORGANIZED A BRANCH OF AMERICAN MINING CONGRESS

Seattle, May 30.—At the final session of the Northwest mining men's three-day convention a Northwest branch of the American Mining Congress was organized and Seattle was selected as permanent headquarters.

The following were elected as officers of the new branch:

No members of the board of directors were selected for Montana and Idaho, and members from those states will be asked to name their representatives on the board.

Vice-presidents selected are: Washington, J. Conaway; Oregon, E. A. Sessions; Alaska, J. W. Range; Yukon territory, Dr. Willis E. Everett; British Columbia, Kay McKay.

PRESBYTERIANS TAKE STEP TOWARD CHURCH UNION

Kansas City, Mo., May 28.—A step which may lead to the unity of some, if not all, of the Protestant churches in the United States has been taken here by the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church of America.

The assembly adopted a resolution announcing that the Presbyterian church stands ready to co-operate with any church in an effort to unite with any church of the Protestant faith.

The committee on co-operation and union declares there is no question but that such a plan would meet with the approval of the Methodist Episcopal church, the Methodist Protestant, the Reformed Presbyterian church, the Moravian church and the reformed churches in the United States.

GOVERNMENT MAY SUE MINERS FOR MILLION

Butte, Mont., June 1.—A federal survey corps is engaged in running survey lines in the mountains near Phillipsburg, Mont., to determine the amount of cordwood cut for the mines of Granite county, and the location of the ground from which the timber was taken. This wood was cut, it is claimed, from land belonging to the government, and it is intimated that suits may be begun to recover for about 700,000 cords of wood cut, approximating in value about $1,000,000.

The bulk of this wood was cut about ten or twelve years ago during the boom days of silver and was used at the Bimetallic and Granite Mountain mines, owned by Charles D. McClure and his associates of St. Louis, together with a few Montanans. The area of timber land stripped clean is 10 miles wide and 12 long.

HOUSE WOULD LEARN ABOUT ALASKA ROADS

Washington, May 28.—Resolutions were adopted in the house asking the secretary of the interior for information of all railways built and projected in Alaska. This may be the means of bringing out facts showing the large dominance of the Guggenheims over Alaskan transportation.

Opponents of the Guggenheims alleged today that they would make this the occasion of revelations of the Guggenheims' control of the territorial government of Alaska under Governor Hoggatt.

China Planning Navy.

San Francisco, June 1.—A Chinese navy of from fifteen to twenty war vessels is to be constructed by the Chinese government. This was agreed upon at a meeting of Chinese officials in Peking six weeks ago. The plans for the vessels are under consideration, and soon the government of the empire will appropriate the money for the armada.

Cordova to Have Daily Newspaper.

Cordova, May 30.—Local capitalists are behind a daily newspaper venture which will be launched here with the advent of the cable. A new and up to date plant will be installed immediately.

Print Waterways Report.

Washington, June 1.—A bill was passed by the house before adjournment providing for the printing of 10,000 copies of the preliminary report of the inland waterways commission, with illustrations.

LUMBERMEN IN POLITICS.

Will Support Candidates on Platforms Favoring Power to Review Increased Rates.

Seattle, May 30.—Lumber and shingle manufacturers in the Northwest, through a committee, have decided to take the freight rate question into politics by requesting business connections and other commercial organizations all over the United States to urge delegates to nominate candidates who stand for a plank in the platform supporting the enactment of legislation by congress giving the interstate commerce commission power to review new rates before they become effective. A confidential letter has been sent out to more than 2,000 correspondents calling upon them to urge other business men to assist in the plan, which, if carried through the conventions successfully, it is hoped will be the means of heading off any attempt of railroads to advance freight rates.

Stability in freight rates, the letter states, is what is needed more than anything else to safeguard the business of the country. Lumbermen in their letter point out that the advance in lumber rates from the Northwest has demoralized the lumber industry and has been the one cause of the big decrease in the earnings of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads.

S. GOMPERS ADVISES DEFEAT OF J. CANNON

New York, June 1.—President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, issued the following appeal to the 4,000,000 organized workingmen and farmers of the country to unite on the political field to prevent the re-election of Speaker Joseph G. Cannon of the house of representatives:

"No member of congress can complain that he is in ignorance of the desires of his constituents, or that he has failed to receive warning that labor and its friends intend to elect only those who have promoted and voted for the legislation demanded.

"Many congressmen plead that under the domination of our genial Uncle Joe Cannon it is impossible to get these bills before the house. They assert that Speaker Cannon holds the house in an iron grip; that he will not allow a bill to come to a vote if he does not wish to do so; that no matter how sincere their desire to pass these bills, Uncle Joe will not give them a chance.

"The workers and their friends will insist in the coming campaign that candidates pledge themselves to vote for certain measures regardless of party affiliations. If we had twenty-five or fifty members who would not obey the party whip, but would stand fearless and independent, obeying the wishes of their constituents—then we might hope to defeat the Uncle Joe type of brutal autocrat and secure a speaker who would perform his duty to the people and serve their interests by permitting full freedom of debate and full opportunity for passage of legislation.

"Candidates who receive the support of the workers will have to pledge themselves to elect a new ruler in the house, which will permit the business of the people to be transacted.

"Letters pour into the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor daily reporting that the workers, and indeed the whole people, are awakening and making ready for a campaign which shall usher in a new era of justice and freedom for the whole country."

MILKMAN CONVICTED ON CONSPIRACY CHARGE

Seattle, Ma 30.—A. Z. Erickson was found guilty yesterday afternoon of conspiring to raise the price of milk. The maximum punishment for conspiracy is a fine of $500 or a year in the county jail, or both fine and imprisonment.

The state charged that the Seattle Milk Exchange, of which Erickson is a member, was a combine to control milk prices. F. W. Anderson, S. Stray, J. C. Burnam, Alex. Murray, F. O. Kalberg, A. W. Lundberg and C. Jonnson, also members of the milk exchange, will be tried on a similar charge later.

Senator J. K. Jones Passes On.

Washington, June 2.—Former United States Senator James K. Jones, of Arkansas, died at his residence here at 5:30 o'clock yesterday after an illness of a few hours, aged 69 years. He was one of the leading democrats in the senate from 1885 to 1903, and was one of the strongest supporters of William J. Bryan, having, as chairman of the democratic national committee, conducted the campaigns of 1896 and 1900.

Largest Balloon in the World.

Danville, Ill., May 30.—The Chicago, said to be the largest balloon in the world, which is 150 feet high when inflated, will make its first ascent from St. Louis next week, where it will be taken from Springfield, Ill., Monday.

Colonel Coey, owner of the balloon; Captain Bumbaugh, the pilot, and G. W. Cannon, of this place, will go up on the initial trip.

River Steamer Has Great Treasure.

Dawson, June 2.—Judge Reid left last night on the steamer Prospector, the first boat of the season through from Dawson for Whitehorse. The boat has 100 people, $1,000,000 of Tanana gold and $750,000 of Klondike gold.

Resist the devil and he will flee from you, but rest with the devil and he will flee with you.

If you would be a friend to happiness, you must care for the happiness of your friends.

No man knows the love of the Father who thinks of it as an excuse for his laziness as a son.

Many a man will be astounded to find how large his little kindly deeds look in the light of Heaven.

Lots of people who court the devil all the week think to even up by listening to castigations of him on Sunday.

The rich man who steals the poor man's horse wants the trumpet of charity blown when he sends him the hoofs.

The wide-open saloon will not lose much sleep over the attacks of the church that stays shut tight ninety-seven per cent of the time.

THEY CAN ALMOST YODEL

Civilization does not invariably bring improvement in its train. Man, in his growing domination over the animal world, has forced a reputation on the pig and obliged it to live up to that reputation by imposing unsanitary conditions. The pig in its more natural state is a very different object from the dirty, wallowing swine of tradition. Howard P. Arnold, in "Gleanings from Pontresina," gives a picture of the self-respecting pig of that Alpine region.

Pigs are more numerously represented than any other domestic animal. They are popular because of the slight cost of support. The winter they spend in unobtrusive retirement, fed on a rank, coarse dock of which huge quantities are salted down during the summer.

In June all swine are sent up together to the high Alps for the season. Here they ramble in the sublimest scenery, consuming whey, and putting on what little fat their peculiar construction will permit.

Being no longer demoralized by the enfeebling seductions of man, and free to gratify his own tastes, which are dainty rather than otherwise, piggy is neat in person and select in diet. He shows very plainly that he does not chose to wallow in mud nor to eat garbage.

The pig of the Engadine is not as other pigs, Even in the fulness of growth he offers little resemblance to the bloated bondholder generally seen elsewhere. He is not shaped after such a model, nor does his hue of rusty chestnut recall the popular ideal. His legs are long, his body slender and his ribs apparent. He is picturesque rather than beautiful, and like Cassius, "hath a lean and hungry look."

There is nothing morbid about these pigs, however, and on their native heath their movements are nimble and sprightly. Their snouts turn up with a defiant air, and their pendent ears and crafty eyes are never off duty.

I have watched these frisky sybarites capering to and fro, hilarious in the sunshine, their queer little twisted glittering tails drawn out into elaborate diminuendoes. They never forget their sense of propriety, and do not die rending the sky with discordant protestations, but slip away with a subdued grace.

Post Graduate Work.

"When you graduate from that cooking school," asked Tess, "do you get a diploma?"

"Sometimes," replied Jess, "you get a certificate for a post-graduate course."

"A certificate?"

"Yes, a marriage certificate."—Philadelphia Press.

Behind the Guns.

"My proudest boast," said the lecturer, who expected his statement to be greeted with cheers, "is that I was one of the men behind the guns."

"How many miles behind?" piped a voice in the gallery.—London Answers.

The Washington Harbor base ball team came up and played against the Blyn team last Sunday, the game stood 13 to 24 in favor of the Blyn team.

A dance was held at the hall last Saturday at which a large crowd enjoyed themselves.

The rhododendrons here are just beautiful; they are larger and prettier than they have been for years.

Della Fritz has returned home from her sisters at Chimacum, where she has been attending school all winter.

Everyone in Angeles can testify to the fact that our good friend, the Hon. D. W. Higgins, is a rustler for and a warm friend of Angeles and her future prosperity. He believes that Angeles has a future before her second to no other city on the Straits. The Victoria Colonist copies each week items that appeared in the columns of that paper forty years ago. Mr. Higgins was then, as now, also a friend of the British Columbia Capital. Here is what the Colonist said of him: "The steamer George S. Wright left the wharf yesterday for Portland. Among her passengers was D. W. Higgins, Esq., of the Colonist, who after a number of years of assidious labor, has gone to visit his relatives and friends at home. Mr. Higgins, as editor of this paper, has been an unflinching friend of Victoria and the colony and has earned the respect shown him on leaving. A few particular friends on the previous evening met him at the Colonial, where Driard served them up a recherche supper at which the kindliest of feelings prevailed. In the morning a number of his fellow-citizens went down to the Wright to wish him good-bye, and a safe and pleasant trip. Before returning to his editorial duties, Mr. Higgins intends visiting London, and during his stay in England will lose no opportunity of doing justice to the colony."

The Elks excursionists were compelled to go to Everett by way of Seattle. As the steamer neared the metropolis a meeting of the Elks aboard the Whatcom was called to formulate some plan of action and it was decided to appoint a committee of four to confer with the officials upon the arrival in Seattle. This committee comprised Messrs. H. M. Fisher, and H. R. Tucker of the original transportation committee, and E.E. Day and A. H. Thompson, and was authorized to make a demand that the company carry out their agreement by putting the passengers off at Everett and calling for them Friday morning, and in the event of refusal to do this to notify the company that they would find other means of getting back home, via Victoria, the Pike or the Albion. The committee on reaching Seattle met with Mr. Coker of the company and it was speedily arranged that the excursionists go to Everett by special boat, and the Whatcom would call Friday on her way to Angeles.

A picnic at the lower Elwha bridge last Sunday was attended by about fifty people. Among those present from this city were Mr. and Mrs. E. O'Brien, Roy LaFlower, Miss Roberts and John Winters. The affair was more in the nature of a re-union for the farmers of Eden valley, the Elwha basin and immediate vicinity than otherwise. A grand good time was had and an elegant basket dinner enjoyed, after which games were indulged in, and prizes given the winners. John Winters and Abe Bradshaw carried off the honors. The gathering was a complete success in every way.

PROPOGATING CATFISH

Clallan County, As Usual, Can Furnish the Goods.

From the Port Townsend Call we learn that one Captain Morrison, that present and future generations might rise up and call him blessed, hied himself to Clallam county upon a fishing expedition that thereby he might stock the one or two small lakes near our neighboring city with catfish. But we'll let the Call tell its own story.

"Captain C. H. Morrison returned Saturday from an outing in Clallam county. While there he spent several days fishing in the lakes in Leland valley and succeeded in catching a large number of catfish. He brought about one hundred with him to this city and sent them out to be placed in Bookman's lake and one or two other lakes near this city, and it is believed that in the course of a few years the lakes will abound with them. They are the genuine eastern catfish and are most excellent food fish."

TO CLEAR LOGGED-OFF LANDS

Senator Piles has been informed by the agricultural department at Washington that it has been definitely decided to take up the suggestion of the Everett chamber of commerce and to make an investigation of the most economical manner of clearing Puget Sound logged-off lands. The department has had the matter under consideration for some time and holds that it has full authority to proceed with the work with funds already available. An agent of the department will be sent west this summer to conduct the work.

This decision is regarded as one of great importance not only to this county, but to the entire Western Washington district. It is believed that a thorough government investigation may disclose some means of getting rid of the big fir stumps that encumber logged-off lands, more expeditiously and economically than the methods now in vogue, and if that results it will mean a rapid increase in the population and wealth of the agricultural districts of Puget Sound.

Ever since the idea was first suggested general interest has been taken in it. Gifford Pinchot, head of the department of forestry, has had his special attention called to the plan by Edward Nubert, an engineer, of Seattle, who suggests government aid; also the utilization of stumps in the production of tar, turpentine, creosote, charcoal and other products. Is is stated on good authority that one fir stump contains values in these products for in excess of the lumber cut from the tree which originally stood upon it.

Wayne Orson Flowers, 9 years old, third son of Mr and Mrs. L. R. Flowers, died at the Seattle General Hospital, May 6th. This is the second son Mr. and Mrs. Flowers have lost since leaving Angeles, Richmond, the second son, having died last winter. In their sad bereavement they have the sympathy of a host of friends in Port Angeles.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to return thanks to all the kind friends and neighbors who brought us flowers and wreaths for the funeral of our little son Willie.

A bud the Gardener gave us,
A pure and lovely child;
He gave it to our keeping
To cherish undefiled.
But just as it was opening
For the glory of the day,
Down came the Heavenly
Gardener and took our bud away.

Mrs. and Mr. J. Solf.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes, broadcast and on each bottle-wrapper, what his medicines are made of and verifies it under oath. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region, accompanied, ofttimes, with a debilitating, pelvic, catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nervine and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.
