UNION PACIFIC WILL BUILD ITS OWN LINE

To Port Angeles Over its Surveys and Right-of-Way via Soleduck and Lake Crescent.

The close relationship between the Hill, Harriman and Milwaukee systems, betrayed in the construction of the line to Grays Harbor by the Oregon & Washington and the Milwaukee and the signed agreement for the joint use of a passenger station to be built in close proximity to the Hill union passenger station in Seattle, says the Times, will be limited to these respective deals. Word to this effect has been passed out by high railroad attorneys and operating officials of the systems named.

In the development of the four Pacific Northwestern states — Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana —each of the three systems will work out its own plans without further regard to the heretofore fashionable "community of interest" idea. The Milwaukee has but lately brought in its last engineering parties in the Olympic peninsula, where the Harriman system has surveys for a road north of Aberdeen extending across the Hoh river into the big forests of Clallam and Jefferson counties. Railroad authorities here and in New York have long believed that the Harriman and Milwaukee interests would jointly develop the coal and timber areas of the peninsula, but the fiat has gone out that each road will be on its own footing there.

COAL MINES AT GETTYSBURG

Superintendent D. J. O'Brien of the Clallam Coal Co., is interested in a new company soon to begin operations in the neighborhood of Gettysburg and Crescent. They have purchased a diamond drill and will proceed to bore for coal this year in the locality mentioned. The Lyre river country has been examined closely and is shown to be a coal bearing region having coal in it similar to the mineral produced at the Nanaimo mines across the straits on Vancouver island. The company has secured the right to prospect and develop 800 acres of land in that part of the county.

The mine near Clallam Bay is successful and plans are now on foot to build larger bunkers and wharf to increase shipments. A boarding house to seat 120 men will be built this year and a number of dwellings or families. The crew will then be largely increased. Steps will be taken to secure a district school. It is further proposed to provide wharf room so that tugs and steamers requiring coal can get supplied at the mine. One order recently secured by the company is for 5,000 tons for North Yakima. — Clallam Bay Press.

MILWAUKEE BRANCH LINES

Under strict orders as to secrecy and directed to proceed with the utmost diligence and dispatch, a party of engineers for the C., M. & P. S. has been sent from this city, says the Seattle Times, into the eastern limits of Lewis county where the Milwaukee will build a branch road 35 miles in length, tapping a large undeveloped agricultural and timber district. This district has for years been fenced up like a private preserve by the Northern Pacific.

Finding its schemes to build feeder lines blocked at almost every turn by the Hill roads, the Milwaukee has planned an elaborately calculated aggressive campaign, which will surely open up much undeveloped territory in this state which the Hill roads have kept confined within a sort of steel rail trocha. The Lewis county coal and timber fields will be opened up among the first and next year, it is semi officially announced, active construction will be begun on the Milwaukee's Aberdeen Straits branch thru the vast forests of the Olympic peninsula.

MOST PROSPEROUS TIMES EVER KNOWN

Weyerhauser Believes Lumber Demand Will Be Greater than Ever This Fall.

Mr. Frederick Weyerhauser, the largest owner of timber lands in the United States, who has acquired his great fortune thru the lumber trade and who naturally follows its fluctuations with the closest interest, expresses the opinion, in an interview in the Post-Intelligencer, that there is an exceedingly prosperous time ahead in that industry, and that within a short time there will be as large or a larger demand for lumber in the Pacific Northwest than there has ever been.

Mr. Weyerhauser is in a position to know as much on this subject as any man in the United States can know and his opinions and predictions are authoritative. Should he be correct in his views, the state of Washington promises to see the best time it has ever known before the close of the present year. Every industry upon which this state depends will be in the best possible condition this year.

A great wheat crop is being harvested, with prices higher than the average by considerable; the salmon pack is commencing, with the certainty that the output will be the biggest known in at least four years; newcomers are visiting the state by the thousand daily, the great majority of them determined to stay or to invest here; the gold product of Alaska mines is coming into this city weekly, entering the channels of trade and investment, and every local industry is prospering.

Now if the lumbering industry can get back to the highwater mark of 1906, as Mr. Weyerhauser believes it will, the state of Washington will have money, flowing into it from many different directions, and every man willing to work will be employed at high wages. Certainly it would be difficult to improve upon the present outlook, and hard indeed to improve very much on present conditions, which are good in themselves

Exceptional prosperity for the Northwest this year is predicted by W. W. Broughton, traffic manager of the Great Northern Railway, as the result of the bumper wheat crop. Mr. Broughton studies wheat carefully each year, and this time he observes that the farmers are going to make a big killing. Speaking of the situation Mr. Broughton says: "I have come across the country slowly for the express purpose of getting out among the producers and wheat dealers to ascertain crop conditions. Not for many years has the vast stretch of country from Minnesota to the Sound been so prolific with its wheat yield. The crop in Washington state is especially good and heavy. I have crossed the country many times but never did I see a people so happy and contented with their lot as the farmers in the region tapped by the Great Northern and its branches. Railways keep just as good an account of the crops as the banks and grain dealers. We know what is doing in districts other than our own. So it seems reasonable to say, that with good crops from Minnesota to salt water, from the Platte to the Saskatchewan in Canada, the entire West will enjoy remarkable prosperity this year. I look for the greatest travel the west has ever seen between the middle of July and the middle of September.

HOME TALENT PRODUCTION

Mr. W. A. Cornish has been rehearsing the home talent of our city for the past two weeks in the play called "California," which will be produced Saturday night in the Opera House. This is a western play of the days of '49 and from general reports the young people will very agreeably surprise their friends on Saturday evening. This play is the one with which he has met his greatest success, being especially adapted to amateurs, proof of which is his phenomenal success throughout the east and middle west. There will be a number of specialties between the acts by our home people and all who attend will be assured an enjoyable evening.

TELLS STATES HOW TO OUST TRUSTS

Paducah, Ky., July 10.—State control of corporations doing an interstate business was discussed in an address before the State Bar Association by Attorney General Wickersham here. The address, considered as outlining the attitude of the national administration toward trusts, was notable chiefly for its recommendation that congress should enact a law providing for nationally created corporations to carry on interstate commerce.

An important feature was the speaker's effort to show the separate states how they may control the business of the foreign corporations in their limits.

"It has seemed to me," he said, "that an effective method of legislating on this subject would be to enact such laws that no foreign corporation should be licensed to do business within a state if 50 per cent of its capital stock or upwards were owned or held by any other corporation, domestic or foreign, and that if at any time after the obtaining of such license, more than 50 per cent of the capital stock of such corporation had been acquired by another corporation the license should be ipso facto vacated.

"The device of the holding corporation is the only thing that has made possible the rapid growth of great trusts."

G. N. May Invade Saskatchewan

Helena, Mont., July 10 —There has been filed with the secretary of state an official resolution adopted by the board of directors of the Great Northern railway showing its purpose to construct a branch line from Poplar Valley county to the Canadian border, a distance of eighty miles. The inference is that a line will be extended further north, tapping the grain fields of the Saskatchewan, thus invading the Canadian Pacific territory.

IRRIGATION SYSTEMS ON OKANOGAN RIVER

Okanogan, July 10—With the development of various gravity irrigation systems throughout this part of the state there is also coming into vogue along the Okanogan river the scheme of pumping water from the stream and irrigating the broad stretches of low lands that otherwise are of little valne, as the character of the soil is usually such that irrigation is necessary in order to get good returns for the farmer. In the vicinity of Okanogan there are a large number of old ranches that have heretofore been used for pasture or hay land whose owners are now putting in pumping plants and lifting water from the river for irrigation purposes. These lands are largely being cut up into small tracts and put on the market. They readily sell at from $200 to $300 per acre and are being utilized for fruit growing and intensive farming generally.

PERKINS IN ALASKA

MORGAN REPRESENTATIVE AND PARTY LEAVE TO INSPECT COUNTRY.

Sailed From Seattle Thursday on Steam Yacht Yucatan—Says Trip Is Not For Pleasure and that Inspection of Country Will Be Thorough.

Seattle, July 10.—George W. Perkins, lieutenant of J. P. Morgan, left Seattle Thursday on the steam yacht Yucatan for a tour of Alaska. With him are Mrs. Perkins and a small party of other pleasure seekers.

"I will be gone a month," said Mr. Perkins, "and will visit every business center in the territory and look at every railroad now under construction there."

"Meaning that your tour of inspection will not be confined entirely to the properties which your company is interested in, but to other railroads as well?" Perkins was asked.

No Initiary Prepared

"Yes," replied the financier. "This trip is one of pleasure for the other members of my party, but for myself it is purely business. I never get a vacation in the real sense of the word. My object is to acquaint myself thoroughly with every section of Alaska, with all its resources and with all its possibilities. I will look over the Copper River & Northwestern, the White Pass & Yukon and the Alaska Central. I do not know whether the Yucatan will go as far north as Nome, but if we have the time we probably will visit that section. We have no itinerary prepared. Our course will be governed entirely by the conditions that confront us.

"For years it has been a misconception of the East that Seattle's prosperity is dependent upon Alaska. Neither Mr. Morgan nor any of the officers of our company have believed so. Although this is my first visit to the Pacific Northwest, I have a thorough knowledge of the state of Washington and the city of Seattle. The state of Washington is a nation in itself. Seattle would become one of the great maritime ports of the Pacific seaboard if Alaska never existed—if it were wiped off the map. Thirty years ago I visited Denver and it was then predicted that when the mines began to peter out, that city would experience a slump. Denver today is one of the greatest cities in the country, and it no longer depends upon mines, but is maintained by agriculture—grain and fruit.

To Lead Simple Life

"I have visited every exposition of any importance given in the United States. The Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, for artistic arrangement, is superior to them all. Its electrical illumination and floral arrangement are incomparable. What has made a deeper impression on the East than any other feature—what has, in fact, caused the name of Seattle to be on everyone's lips—i sthat the exposition opened completed on time.

"I have been caused a great deal of annoyance by the erroneous impression gained from a press dispatch that preceded us from the East to the effect that our trip North would put to shame the extravagant display of the luxury-loving Romans," complained the Wall Street man. "It was at first reported that Mr. Morgan and other financiers would accompany us. As a matter of fact, when I first heard that, Mr. Morgan was motoring in the south of France.

"We are going to travel as simply as any American should and would. We are not one whit different nor are our teeth a bit longer than any other American's. We work as long hours as anybody else in this country. Look at me: Here I'm on what is popularly supposed to be a vacation. Is it really a vacation? It may be for the other members of my party, but so far as I'm concerned it is purely business that draws me North."

Prof. Simon Newcomb Dead

Washington, July 12.—Professor Simon Newcomb, the famous astronomer, died at his home in this city early yesterday morning at the age of 74. Professor Newcomb was recognized as one of the world's great scintists. In his capacity as professor of mathematics, he contracted for and supervised the construction of the great telescope used today in the Naval Observatory at Washington. He also assisted in equipping the great Lick observatory in California. From 1877 to 1897 he was director of the Nautical Almanac, a government publication famous throughout the world

Many Texas Saloons Closed

Austin, Texas, July 12—At midnight Saturday more than 100 saloons in Texas closed doors because of the coming into effect of the law invalidating all liquor licenses issued after February 20, 1909, limiting the number of saloons in each county to one for every 500 of population, and barring new licenses in conjunction with hotels.

Wheat in Hands of Farmers

Washington, July 12.—It is estimated by the department of agriculture that on June 1, 1909, there was in farmers' hands 195,000 bushels of wheat in Oregon; 215,000 in Washington, and 130,000 in Idaho; total 540,000 bushels.

MILLIONS OF ACRES ARE STILL UNCLAIMED

The census bureau at Washington has just issued a bulletin containing statistics on the resources, population and extent of progress of all the states and territories of the country. Although there is much complaint heard from time to time as to the vast amount of land in the state of Washington which is reserved by the federal government as forest and other reservations, it is shown by this volume that in 1908 there still remained in the state 4,600,000 acres of land which is not resered nor claimed by anyone for any use whatever. Thereare 368,000,000 acres of such land in Alaska.

A section of the publication devoted to irrigation shows the reader what an immense amount of help the federal government is extending to the state of Washington in reclaiming its arid lands. There are four principal irrigation projcets under construction by the government in Washington which, when completed, will represent an expenditure of approximately $10,000,000, appropriated as follows: Okanogan project, 9,000 acres, $530,000; Sunyside project, 88,500 acres, $2,800,000; Tieton project, 30,000 acres, $1,800,000; Wapato project, 120,000 acres, $3,600,000.

There are 2,500,000 acres of land in Washington set aside as Indian reservations. There were last year 8,500 indian residents in the state.

In 1907, according to this statistical table, there were 188,989 children enrolled in the public schools of the state, an increase of 9,000 over the previous year. The sum of $5,500,000 was paid to the 6,208 teachers of the state during that year. Another table shows that there were 10,751 pensioners in the state of Washington. The federal government pays these veterans or the families of veterans $1,651,313 every year.

SASKATCHEWAN PROVINCE NOW OWNS TELEPHONES

On June 30 the telephone system of the province of Saskatchewan passed out of the hands of private companies and will now be under the control of the province. The deisrability of the public control of telephones has been so decidedly held in this new province that special governmental action was taken to oversee the situation and the officials chosen to do this were placed on an equal footing with those supervising railways —the result being that a department of railways and telephones has been in existence for some little time, and under its direction this absobrption of the lines has been managed.

The price paid is undserstood to be favorable from a public viewpoint. The property includes 348 miles of long distance wires, four exchanges and 31 toll stations. There are only four cities in this new province, but there are 39 towns and 94 vilalges, which, being scattered over an extensive area depend greatly upon their telephone connections for sociability as well as for business arrangements. The area of Saskatchewan is about 260,000 square miles—larger than Germany.

Big Irrigation Tunnel Through

Montrose, Colo., July 10.—The last shots in the east heading of the Gunnisn irrigation tunnel have been fired. A few minutes after the final shot the workmen from the two headings shook hands through the opening. The tunnel is six miles long and has been under construction four years and a half This project has been carried on by the federal reclamation bureau at a cost of $3,500,000. It will furnish water for the irrigation of 150,000 acres of land.

LAUGHED IT DOWN

SUFFRAGE PROPOSAL GIVEN MERRY HAHA BY EDUCATORS.

Tacked on to Proposal for Citizenship For Porto Ricans and Filipinos at National Educational Convention—Next Convention to Meet in San Francisco.

Denver, Colo., July 10.—San Francisco will be the next meeting place of the National Educational Association. The board of directors of the association, breaking precedent in the respect that conventions heretofore never have been either East or West twice in succession, decided to hold the next association gathering on the Pacific coast.

The militant spirit of independence burst forth when Edwin G. Dexter, commissioner ofeducation for Porto Rico, offered a resolution urging that congress be asked to confer citizenship upon the people of Porto Rico.

But Mr. Dexter emphasized too strongly the word citizenship, for immediately a delegate from Alabama arose and proposed to tack on a little suggestion about freedom for the Filipino.

Immoderate "Ha Ha's," which met this proposition, did not deter another exponent of freedom from offering a straw of relief to what she termed a "down-trodden" element. This was Miss Mary Shirley, of California.

Pities the Down Trodden

"Now if there is going to be any freedom advocated here," she said, "I want to make another amendment. If the savages of Porto Rico and of the Philippines are going to get support here I want the voice of this association to be raised in behalf of those who deserve it most—the women of the United States."

This was too much. When the Porto Rico resolution came out it was at least taken seriously. When the Filipino clause was added, it brought a smile, but the "votes for women" proposition caused a roar of laughter which was the signal for its burial by the ballot.

The election of James Yadkin Joyner, superintendent of public instruction of North Carolina, as president of the National Educational Association this afternoon led up to a series of parliamentary stiuations that threatened for a time to rend the inner circle of the association.

Mr. Joyner was elected on the second ballot and his rise to the presidency was the cause for gratification on the part of the enemies of the so-called "book trust."

Frown for Fraternities

One section of the report of the committee on resolutions maintained that the high school fraternity should be abolished. The ani-fraternity clause went through without amendment, after a skirmish. Henceforth, therefore, the fraternity will meet with official frowns in the high school. The fraternity clause brought out more resolutions, each of which proved a burr under the saddle of the pedagogic equine. First of all there was a clause about simplified spelling. It reiterated that this might not be a propitious occasion for the renewal of the Roosevelt-Matthews innovation, but that the matter might bear inspection. For that reason the resolution was merely for the purpose of investigation and did not bind the association to simplified English.

Irwin Shepherd of Winona, Minn., was re-elected secretary, a lif honor already conferred. A. H. Chamberlain, of California, was re-elected treasurer and Lorenzo D. Harvey, the retiring president, was elected first vice president.

The report of the treasurer showed expenditures of $33,609 and a balance of $3,089.

ANSWER OE STATE IN SCHIVELY CASE IS BRIEF

Olympia, July 13.—To J. H. Schively's sixty-six-page answer to the impeachment charges the board of managers made a reply covering less than four pages, but putting at issue the entire proceedings.

Of Schively's demand that sixteen senators be debarred from hearing the charges because of alleged bias and prejudice, the reply say [illegible] be overruled because the constitution requires the whole senate to try impeachments; that there is no provision for excusing any senator and that the objections do not state facts sufficient to disqualify any senator.

To the motion to strike out the forgery matter because it is pending in the Spokane superior court, the reply cites the section of the constitution that sets out impeachment is no bar to criminal prosecution for offenses.

To Schively's attempt to throw all responsibility upon Sam H. Nichols, head of the department, the reply denies he was simply an employe and asserts he was duly acting and appointed deputy insurance commissioner.

Replying to Shively's affirmative defense further, particularly to the assertion in his answer that he is responsible for the improved insurance laws, that under his administration as an elected officer the department has been conducted properly and that the department has now a high reputation, the board of managers say those are no defense to the impeachment, are incompetent immaterial, designed to cloud the true issues and that the denials in the affirmative defense are simply denials of conclusions of the investigating committee and do not deny nor attempt to deny allegation in the impeachment charges.

The reply was prepared by Representative Lester P. Edge, of Spokane, of the board of managers; Attorney General Bell and Assistant Attorney General Lee and will be served upon Schively's attorney tonight or tomorrow.

INCOME TAX AMENDMENT POPULAR IN THE HOUSE

Washington, July 13.—By the decisive voate of 317 to 14, more than the necessary two-thirds, the house passed the senate joint resolution providing for the submission of an income tax constitutional amendment to the states. The negative votes were all cast by Republicans. The resolution now goes to the president for his signature.

The debate lasted four hours. Chairman Payne, of the committee on ways and means, voiced the sentiment that such a tax would make "a nation of liars."

The burden of the Democratic speeches was that it was simply a case of stealing Democratic thunder.

At a conference at the White House today it was decided that the rate to be levied under the new corporation tax shall be reduced from 2 per cent. to 1 per cent. and that in redrafting the measure now in conference along with the tariff bill, consideration shall be given the demands of the mutual life insurance companies.

President Taft was the central figure in a number of conferences today. He told several of his callers that he is finding the conferees concilatory and that he is hopeful that a satisfactory measure will be drafted.

As to the mutual insurance companies, it is said that the redrafted bill will provide what portion of the income may be deducted before the tax on funds available for dividends is assessed. It will be so arranged that the tax shall fall upon the profits of stockholders. Allowances will be made for annuities and other long term outstanding contracts.

GOVERNMENT IN MARKET FOR BIG BILL OF LUMBER

Seattle, Jully 10.—The government is in the market for 2,385,000 feet of fir lumber for shipment to the Philippine islands. The quartermaster has called for bids on this lumber. The government wants rough merchantable lumber, grading equal to the export list "E" of the Pacific lumber inspection bureau. Delivery must be made of at least 150,000 feet daily at Seattle, Tacoma or other deep water ports on Puget sound, and delivery must commence five days from the time contract is let. July 23 is the date for opening bids.

To Spend His Last Million

Chicago, July 10.—Daniel K. Pearsons, "the Sage of Hinsdale," alreday famous for his munificent benefactions to the small colleges of the country, has announced that he will spend the remainder of this, his ninetieth year, in distributing among the various educational and philanthropic institutions of this city his last million dollars.

Alaska's Exhibit:

For General Interest and Educational Value It Has Had No Equal at Any of the Former Expositions.

The exhibit of the territory of Alaska, shown at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific epoxsition, has for genuine interest and educational valne never been excelled by a former exposition. The enormous building erected by the federal government for the purpose of exploitation of the northern territory is crowded with a collection of articles representing every source of wealth of the land. The products along agricultural lines, the results of the fisheries, the forests, the minerals, the ethnology of northern aboriginee and the flora and fauna are elaborately represented.

As gold was the loadstone breaking down the barriers of the Arctic country, so it is one of the magnets of the exhibit buildings of the exposition; the grim steel cage in the center of the floor shows a gleaming pile of gold bricks, nuggets and dust, taken from the placer deposits of our northern possessions. Visitors eagerly watch the dull flash of light over the yellow surface, and on leaving are almost sure to return for a last look before quitting the building.

Gold in quartz, in the sand of the river banks and beds and yet bearing the precious metal, represent all the different sections of the land; the machinery and methods of separating it from the earth and rock are shown and the operation explained.

The baser minerals are all found in Alaska and they are fully displayed; anthracite and peroleum from the districts about Katella show the most valuable deposits known on earth. Iron, copper, antimony and the many metal producing rocks are all exhibited and with them are lucid explanations and descriptions from government officials.

It is in the agricultural way, however, that the great surprise of the exhibit is found. A great pile of vegetables confronts one as the main doors are passed, and the size, variety and quality are bewildering. All cereals, grains and many berries and fruits grow to perfection, and what the country of Alaska gives definite promise of to the tiller of the soil is almost unbelievable.

A corner of the main room is devoted to a magnificent panorama, and, standing on the raised platform of this, an Alaskan scene of mountain, valley and rushing stream, presents a picture of exceptional beauty and vividness. It depicts the miner at work amid the glacier-covered hills, and the changes of morning, noon, evening and night are accomplished in a startlingly realistic manner.

In display cases arranged about the entire room, are displayed collections of Indian implements and specimens of their crude art, which cannot be duplicated even in the territory itself. Arts and crafts which flourished years ago have become obsolete and forgotten, and such specimens as remained at the advent of the white man have been mostly lost or destroyed. Of these the only known examples in existence are those secured by the early setlers who were provident enough to become collectors in a modest way. The exposition exhibit contains these speeimens gathered from every corner of Alaska and Yukon. The educational advancement of the Indian is demonstrated by work from the many public schools, and constitutes a valuable exhibit. It has been gathered with the utmost care and judgment and from it can be gleaned a splendid idea of what the little school house is accomplishing in developing the people native to the land of the midnight sun.

TARIFF BILL PASSED

GOES THROUGH SENATE BY A VOTE OF 45 TO 34.

Ten Republican Senators Join Democrats in Final Vote—Beveridge, Bristow, Brown, Burkett, Clapp, Cummins, Dolliver and Nelson the Insurgents.

Washington, July 10.—The tariff bill passed the senate Thursday by a vote of 45 to 34. Republicans voting in the negative were:

Beveridge (Indiana), Bristow (Kansas), Brown (Nebraska), Burkett (Nebraska), Clapp (Minnesota), Crawford (South Dakota), Cummins (Iowa), Dolliver (Iowa), La Follette (Wisconsin), Nelson (Minnesota).

McEnery, of Louisiana, was the only Democrat voting in the affirmative.

As passed the senate the bill contains almost 400 paragraphs. The senate made 840 amendments to the house bill, many of which were added today. Consequently the enrolling clerks are finding the preparation of the bill for the house an arduous task. They have been following as closely upon the heels of the senate as was possible and have the work well in hand, but say they probably will not be able to complete their labors before late tomorrow.

The closing hours of the consideration of the tariff bill were given over to general debate, in which the "insurgent" Republicans took a leading part.

Insurgents With Democrats

It was during this debate that Senator Beveridge announced that the "insurgents" would vote with the Democrats against the bill. This negative vote, he said, would be cast as a noticeto the conferees to report back a bill containing reductions in tariff schedules.

"Our vote," he said, "shall be cast in harmony with our party's pledges, as voiced by our party's leader and the national president."

Mr. Beveridge was answered by Mr. Aldrich, who said he had often seen men interpret their own judgment as the judgment of their party.

"The Republican party is a party of majorities," he added, "and the views of the majority in matters of legislation control party policies. The senator from Indiana does not speak for the Republican party. He has no right to call here the name of the president of the United States in support of any suggestion that he has made."

Mr. Aldrich declared that the pending bill was a fulfillment of the party's pledges. If senators wished to vote against the bill, he said, they should not attempt to speak for their party.

"I have listened with deep interest to the tearful and prophetic funeral oration," said Mr. Stone, from the Democratic side of the chamber. He declared it reminded him of the old hymn, "Hark, From the Tomb a Doleful Sound."

Mr. Crawford delivered a vigorous protest against any attempt on the part of Chairman Aldrich to prevent Republican senators from the exercise of their judgment.

"It will take more than the senator from Rhode Island to read the state of Minnesota out of the Republican party," said Mr. Nelson, amid applause, which called down the gavel of the vice-president with an announcement that such expressions were not permitted.

The bill was then put on its passage and passed.

Vote in detail:

Yeas—Aldrich, Borah, Bourne, Bradley, Bandegee, Briggs, Bulkely, Burnham, Burrows, Burton, Clark (Wyo.), Carter, Crane, Depew, Dick, Dixon, Dupont, Elkins, Flint, Frye, Gallinger, Gamble, Guggenheim, Hale Heyburn, Johnson (N. D.), Kean, Lorimer, Jones, McCumber, McEnery, Nixon, Oliver, Page, Penrose, Perkins, Piles, Scott, Smith (Mich.), Smoot, Stephenson, Sutherland, Warner, Warren, Wetmore—45.

Senate Confeers

Upon motion of Mr. Aldrich the vice-president announced the senate conferees as follows:

Senators Aldrich, Burrows, Penrose, Hale, Cullom, Republicans; Daniel, Money and Bailey, Democrats.

Before the final debate began, many amendments were offered to the bill, and in several instances increases of rates were secured. The duty on salicylic acid was increased from 5 to 10 cents a pound; on steel sheets from 2-10 to 3-10 of 1 cent a pound. A duty of 35 per cent ad valorem was placed on nickel sheet strips and wire.

Zinc was taken from the free list and a duty of 2 cents a pound was placed on it. A duty of 2 1-2 cents a pound was placed on licorice; on orange oil a rate of 50 per cent ad valorem, and on lime the present rate of 5 cents per 100 pounds was doubled.

Mr. Burton, of Ohio, introduced an amendment placing crude asphaltum on the free list. He said that such action would reduce the cost of asphalt paving from 5 to 15 per cent. Senator Flint, in reply, said that free asphalt meant further strengthening of the asphalt trust.

Mr. Burton's amendment was defeated, 37 to 39. A deluge of amendments continued to come from Republicans and Democrats, but with automatic regularity Mr. Aldrich caused them to be laid on the table.

Fiht Over Old Issues

It appeared that the senatorse were practically fighting over in the senate all of the issues that had been contested while the bill was in committee of the whole.

An amendment by Mr. Dixon, of Montana, raising the exemption clause of the inheritance tax; an amendment by Mr. McLaurin placing farm implements on the free list, and an amendment by Mr. Beveridge making inoperative the drawback provision of the tariff on tin plate, were successively laid on the table, through the efforts of Mr. Aldrich.

Mr. Aldrich said he had no doubt that the appropriations necessary for the tariff commission provided by the bill would be made.

Mr. Beveridge expressed great pleasure over this statment, and Mr. La Follette added that he intended to rivet down that assurance, as well as to strengthen the tariff commission provision generally.

The uncompleted tax provision was the first subject of the day's consideration, and Senator Daniel resumed the speech he began yesterday. His remarks were in defense of his amendment levying a tax of one-quarter of 1 per cent on the gross receipts of corporations having a capital stock of more than $300,000.

Aldrich on the Job

Mr. Bacon suggested that the Virginia senator change his plan for taxing corporations to make it apply also to corporations that have gross receipts of more than $300,000 annually.

On suggestion of Mr. Daniel, Mr. Bacon offered his amendment as an amendment to the proposition by the Virginia senator. On motion of Mr. Aldrich both amendments were laid on the table.

Other amendments to the corporation tax amendment were quickly disposed of in the same way.

The corporation tax amendment as perfected by the committee then was agreed to, and Mr. Aldrich announced that with the exception of the tobacco tax the bill was perfected so far as committee amendments were concerned.

Mr. Bacon offered an amendment to the bill providing for a special tax and for the regulation of sales on stock exchanges, and insisted on a strict adherence to parliamentary rules in disposing of it.

At the first opportunity Mr. Aldrich moved to lay the amendment on the table, which was agreed to by 44 to 34.

The tobacco tax amendment was laid before the senate after the disposal of the other measures.

Tobacco Schedule Adopted

Senator Bradley's amendment permitting tobacco growers to sell their products without the payment of a tax, was accepted, and the tobacco tax schedule as a whole was adopted. The measure is practically the same as that which passed the house. It removes the tax of 6 cents a pound on the tobacco grower as a vendor and thus removes what is supposed to be the cause of the night rider attacks in Kentucky and Tennessee.

An amendment proposed by Senator Curtis, of Kansas, providing for countervailing duty on crude oil from any country imposing a duty on American oil, such duty to be one-half of the duty levied on American oil, was adopted by a vote of 44 to 31.

Senator Burton said the purpose of the amendment was to prevent oil ing in free from Mexico, where, he said, the Standard Oil Company had three refineries.

Senator Gore offered an amendment providing that importers of crude petroleum shall not be entitled to the drawback provision of the tariff bill. Senator Aldrich and Senator Curtis promptly accepting this provision, it was made a part of the amendment offered by Mr. Curtis.

The Curtis amendment was then agreed to.

Mr. Stone offered an amendment placing hides, leather and shoes on the free list. It was, on motion of Mr. Aldrich, laid on the table, 45 to 28.

Von Buelow Tax Plans Much Amended

Berlin, July 12.—The reichstag finished the financial reform legislation Saturday evening. So many substitutions have been made since the measures were first introduced that completed legislation resembled but little the government's original proposals. The scheme finally adopted consists of higher taxes on beer, tobacco and brandy; higher duties on coffee, effervescent wine, cordials and tea. The house also adopted a stamp tax on check stubs and a tax on transfers of real estate.

Lumbermen Oppose Pulp Boxes

Spokane, July 10.—The Spokane Lumbermen's Club has started a campaign against the use of pulp paper or fiber boxes and packages. It is estimated that fully 30 per cent of the lumber manufactured in the United States is used by the box factories and the substitution of pulp has made serious inroads. Resolutions will be sent to every manufacturer in the United States and to all lumber organizations. It is asserted that lumber for boxes will be sold at the same price as pulp paper or fiber.

TAFT'S TRIP WEST

PRESIDENT TALKS ABOUT PLANS FOR VISIT TO COAST.

Leaves Summer Home September 15, Coming Direct to A. Y. P. Exposition, With Brief Stops at Denver, Salt Lake and Spokane—Will Not Visit Alaska.

Washington, July 12.—Presiednt Taft has given an outline of his tentative plans for his trip through the West and South this fall. The president has abandoned all idea of visiting Alaska this year, because Mrs. Taft will not be able to go with him. Upon his arrival here Friday the president received word from Beverly that Mrs. Taft was rapidly improving in health. He feels, however, that she will hardly be strong enough to take so long a trip.

As soon as the tariff bill is out of the way, Mr. Taft will leave Washington for Beverly. He will remain there until September 15—his fifty-second birthday—when he hopes, if Mrs. Taft continues to improve, to begin his Western journey.

The president will go directly to Seattle, stopping for brief visits en route at Denver, Salt Lake and Spokane. After visiting the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, the president will swing down to the Southwest, stopping for a time at Portland, where he will be the guest of Senator Bourne, and proceeding thence to San Francisco, where he will spend several days with his sister.

From Los Angeles the president will go to San Diego and then into Arizona and New Mexico. If the weather is pleasant and his arrangements permit, the president hopes to visit the Yosemite valley before going to Los Angeles.

Coming out of New Mexico the president will stop for a time at El Paso, Texas, where he expects to meet President Diaz, of Mexico.

After his stop at El Paso the president will visit San Antonio, where he will inspect Fort Sam Houston, which he was instrumental in building up to its present importance. After visiting Austin and Dallas, the president purposes spending several days on the ranch of his brother, C. P. Taft, at Corpus Chritsi, Texas.

Continuing East, the president will stop at Houston and go to New Orleans to attend the meeting of the deep waterways congress.

After attending the convention Mr. Taft wants to stop for a time in the Bayou Teche country of Louisiana, the land of Evangeline and Arcadia. From there the president will proceed to Jackson, Miss., thence to Montgomery, Birmingham and Macon. From Macon the president will go to Augusta to have a game or two of golf on the links, where he spent much time last winter. Leaving Augusta, the president goes to Savannah, and thence begins his northward trip to Washington, stopping at Wilmington, N. C., and Richmond, Va.

CONSERVATIONISTS CALLED TO MEET IN SEATTLE

Seattle, July 10.—Joel Shomaker, mayor of Tukwila, who is chairman of the Washington state conservation commission, has issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas, The First National Conservation Congress of the United States of America will be held in the auditorium of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, August 26, 27 and 28, under the auspices of the Washington Conservation Association, and with the approval of the conservation commissions, committees of states and the joint committee between the states and nation; and

"Whereas, It is necessary that the most active and brilliant men and women of our country be enlisted in a vigorous campaign of public education, for properly disseminating the principles of conservation among the people, in order that we may conserve, protect and perpetuate the national resources of land and water, prevent individual waste and national extravagance and assist in instructing all the people in the art of conserving and utiliizng our national resources for the benefit of present and future generations; and

"Whereas, The congress promises to be a general convocation place for many prominent leaders in statesmanship, representing the best thoughts of the nation, and the executive, educational and religious personality of various communities on the roadway to modern progress, and will present an exceptional opportunity for obtaining practical knowledge of the fundamental principles of conservation;

"Now, therefore, I, Joel Shomaker, chairman of the Washington state conservation commission, do extend a most cordial invitation to all people interested in the subject of conservation, to attend the First National Conservation Congress of the United States of America, in Seattle, Washington, August 26, 27 and 28, 1909, and, on behalf of the conservation commission of the state of Washington, do welcome every visitor and delegate, carrying the banner of conservation and seeking to uplift humanity to higher appreciation of the values bestowed upon our people, through the gifts in natural resources, from the hands of mother earth."

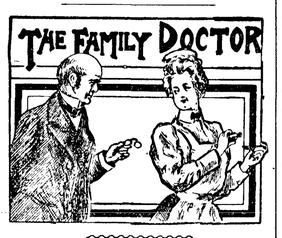
The trouble with psychotheraphy in churches, according to the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, is that it identifies health with salvation. On the other hand, it might be remarked that the trouble with the churches where psychotherapy is anathema is that they take too little heed of the welfare and happiness of their members this side the grave. Health and salvation are not necessarily inconsistent.

Kidnaping stirs the emotions of the world more than any other crime. One reason is that it is happily infrequent. When a case like that in Pennsylvania comes before newspaper readers, it is always accompanied by the story of Charley Ross. That story is remembered because the boy was not found, and therein it differs from most other true stories of kidnaping. American parents have less to fear from kidnapers than from firecrackers or measles, or a hundred other dangers which do not keep us awake at night. It is the infrequency, not the nature, of the crime that renders it comparatively insignificant. It can be more horrible than murder, and those who suffer receive universal sympathy.

It begins to look as if some of the magnates who have acquired the control of most of our theatrical affairs during the last ten or twenty years were becoming conscious of the weak points in their syndicate system and seeking to escape threatened disaster by a reversion, in part at least, to older and sounder methods. Of two facts, patent to all observers, they, as shrewd business men of their kind, must be fully aware. They must know that all actors and actresses of the first rank in this country have practically disappeared without leaving any successors to take their places, and that there is no certain source to which they can look for capable recruits. Such recruits must be found, or nothing can stop that progressive degeneration of the theater which has already reduced it almost to the level of the music hall.

It may be that schoolboys of America will remember Willie Whitla as an awful example of what may happen to them when the kidnapers come, but it is more probable that they will remember him as the innocent cause of a movement that is making truancy, or even a justifiable leave of absence from school, hard to win. Just as the legislatures are everywhere hastening to make kidnaping punishable by death, or life imprisonment at the least, so the school boards all over the land are passing a regulation forbidding teachers to let children go hom on written or verbal word from the parents without first submitting the request to the school principal and having its genuineness verified by direct appeal to the parents. The Chicago school board has passed such a rule for its elementary schools, and no doubt the principals and teachers will be glad to enforce it while all truant officers will be glad that they do enforce it. Whatever the main motive is which leads to such unanimous and speedy adoption of this rule, it is well justified for the protection it gives the children against kidnapers, even without considering any further reasons. After such a case as that of the Whitla boy, exceptional precautions should be taken till the memory of the crime has died out, in addition to the very careful precautions which ought to be taken at all times against such crimes.

The forestry service is dealing with a vast domain as the property in common of the people and is continually working up schemes for the general good. Of three circulars which it sent out recently the longest is a description of the policy that is pursued toward stockmen. There is a large demand for grazing privileges on the national forests, and the policy of the government is to make a fair distribution of permits. How it is carried out is illustrated by a Wyoming case. Six years ago a single sheep owner was grazing 60,000 head of sheep or 47 per cent of the total number on the forest. As new settlers entered the country they derived the benefit of a pro rata system, and to-day the number of individuals and firms grazing stock has largely increased and the percentage of sheep belonging to the man referred to has been reduced from 47 to 4. "One of the basic principles in handling grazing matters on the national forests is that it is better to help a small man make a living than a big man a profit." Another bulletin reveals the service working in co-operation with the schools in teaching forestry and related subjects, and it is now engaged on model courses of study for graded and high schools. The third bulletin tells of experiments that are to be made by the service in introducing eastern hard woods into California. Small patches of chestnut, hickory, basswood, red oak and yellow poplar trees will be planted near the forest rangers' cabins, "and if these do well larger plantations on a commercial scale will soon be established on larger areas." Can anyone doubt the value of this care and activity to the country? The pity is that the beginning was not made many years ago. For the lessons in conservation were much needed, and after such an experience as we have had they should certainly be taken to heart now. Theories of government have nothing to do with the case, though there is a disposition in some quarters to complain of a present tendency toward paternalism. What we are striving for is an effective method of saving the timber and encouraging its growth, and the effective method will be adopted, no matter what the "ism" may be. The country is to be congratulated on the intelligence and devotion that are being shown in the forestry service and on the good work it is accomplishing as it faces one problem after another.



Treatment for Cut.

However deep, if it only escapes an artery, shoot straight and hard from the point of a douche, hung high, water as hot as can be borne directly into the cut. The larger the cut the longer it will take to close. The cuts will close in just the situation in which the flesh grew naturally without leaving a scar. After the flesh has closed fasten court plaster over the wound until there is no danger of its being torn apart. Sometimes it will take half or three-quarters of an hour to heal a deep cut, but then the work is done and no suppuration to follow.

Poisons.

When poison has been accidentally swallowed no emetic is better than mustard. Mix three teaspoonfuls with a cupful of warm water and swallow. At once the stimulative action upon the stomach causes that organ to reject all its contents, the poisonous ingredients with the rest. The emetic of mustard leaves no ill effect behind it, but instead, a feeling of pleasant warmth and stimulus. It is one of the quickest of all emetics and the most harmless.

Headache.

The first thing that ought to be prescribed for a headache sufferer is fresh air. Avoid sitting in closed rooms as much as possible. Walk the streets and lounge in the parks, if you can't do better, but keep out of doors. Headache sufferers should never sleep with closed windows winter or summer. Opening the window in the next room won't do. You must have fresh air from first hand.

Insect Bites.

For stings or bites from any kind of insect apply dampened salt, bound tightly over the spot. It will relieve and usually cure very quickly.

Bluffing is one common trait which distinguishes all living things. All kinds of animals have their ways of bluffing. A snake is nine-tenths bluff.

HEN OVER BILLION-EGG MARK.

During Last Year American Fowl Laid 492,494 Miles of Them.

Let us sing the praise of the greatest American hen, who during the last year may well have crackled with pride over the production of nearly 1,300,000,000 dozens of eggs! Do you realize what that means? says the Woman's Home Companion. Well, listen:

If, instead of remaining quietly at home in Iowa, she had chosen to demonstrate her powers to the universe at large the hen might have laid those eggs, each two inches long, end to end, in a continuous chain reaching 238,818 miles up to the moon, back again, and then more than half way around the world for good measure—a total of 492,424 miles of eggs. Furthermore, if those eggs had been made into one omelet half an inch thick that omelet would easily have covered Manhattan island, an area of twenty-two square miles.

An old Mohammedan legend tells that King Solomon used to travel through the air with all his armies on a wonderful flying carpet, protected from the rays of the sun by the wings of a host of birds. Now, according to the poultry census, there are in the United States about 280,000,000 of chickens, guinea fowls, turkeys, geese and ducks of the poultry voting age, which is three months or over. If required to furnish a moving canopy like that of King Solomon the barnyard of this country, allowing only a foot of spread to each, could easily shadow a space of 149 square miles.

There is an unseemly scramble on for the seat in congress made vacant by the lamented death of F. W. Cushman. So far a total of thirteen possibilities have been mentioned. The term began with the convening of the sixty-first congress in special session in April and ends March 4, 1911, the successor to be elected at the November election in 1910.

[illegible] Sheeks of Chehalis and Judge [illegible] of Pierce have each "taken [illegible]" at the anti-cigarette provision of the criminal code adopted by the last legislature. Judge Sheeks holds, in a test case brought at Montesano, that cigarettes may be smoked but neither cigarettes nor the "makins" can be sold by dealers in this state. Judge Sheeks did not pass on the constitutionality of the law. Judge Clifford of Pierce, however, declares the cigarette law unconstitutional, on the ground that it attempts to override a federal statute.

In face of these superior court decisions, a dispatch from Everett says that Attorney General Bell insists that the law is valid and in his belief will stand a court test when carried to the supreme bench.

Hereafter every person filing a claim against the county, no matter how small, must make an affidavit before some officer authorized to have a seal that the bill is true and correct; that the services or material therein mentioned was actually rendered or furnished; that the material furnished is charged at the lowest current price; that no rebate of any character, or promise of such, has been made to any person or persons whomsoever; and that the same or any part thereof has not been paid."

County clerks and auditors are required to take such affidavits without charge. All road bills, if the law be followed, must be sworn to by the party to whom the warrant is to be issued, and in order to do this it will be necessary for the Board to make every supervisor a justice of the peace. The new law is known as the uniform system of public accounting and applies to cities and school districts as well as the county.

Never a summer season passes without a record of fatalities and prostrations from excessive heat in the Eastern cities, and frequently in the smaller towns and rural districts of that region.

The Easterner who is now in this Pacific West harks back to the days when he sweltered with the rest. His sympathies go out to those who continue to suffer; but he thanks his stars or his good sense that he is no longer of that country.

No one expects everyone to move from the East to the West, notwithstanding what has been said of the "course of the empire." But the West and particularly the Pacific Northwest holds out the lure of a climate where excessive heat or excessive cold is unknown. That climate is one of the chief inducements that this region has to offer, because it means so much to those who swelter every summer or freeze every winter in all the region east of the Great Divide. Every other opportunity for comfort, maintenance, or affluence is matched and more than matched; but in this matter of a climate unsurpassed on the globe, it is superlative enjoyment for the Pacific Westerner. Let the skeptical Eastern man or Easterner, who is without knowledge and open to conviction, drop in upon us for a round of seasons; and if he can possibly so arrange his affairs the East will know him no more, except as a visitor.

An illustration of what is often seen here, with tourists who come to make a short visit to Washington and find themselves unable to get away from its fascinations, was the experience of a gentleman from North Dakota, says the P. I. yesterday. Two months ago he came on a pleasure trip, intending to make a brief stay. The other day he telegraphed his family to wait for him no longer at the pleasure resort where they had gone to spend the summer. He cannot find time to join them until he makes a trip home to close out all his interests there, so that he can return to Washington to remain. This gentleman, Mr. Gulstine, is of the opiinon the people here do not fully realize what they have. As he puts it, this prodigally rich country is now scarcely scratched Some day it will literally teem with cities and wealth. He predicts that, if the people who are coming here to see the Fair will only stay long enough to realize the great future of every section of the country, more than one half of them will return here to become residents. As a matter of fact, that is what the exposition is for. It is impossible to make the people of the rest of the country understand the truth about the State of Washington in any manner save by seeing it. The fair has the primary purpose of inducing them to see the country. If they will stay here awhile and look around, the lure of it gets them all, and those who are not able to remove hither are regretful over the fact.

The women of Washington are now prepared to wage an active campaign for the ballot in this state. They will go into the field at once to agitate in behalf of the constitutional amendment that is to be voted on next year. They are a unit on this proposition and expect to make considerable headway from this time forth. A great deal of enthusiasm was aroused at the suffrage convention held in Seattle recently. Tho there were some differences as a result of overzealousness on the part of some of the suffragists, no serious rupture resulted and the conference ended harmoniously. Many speakers of national and international prominence were present, and the Washington suffragists will have the cooperation of the entire organization in their contest for the right to vote.

The Board of Commissioners, in session at Raymond, has appropriated $25,000 to be used in the construction of two bridges within the limits of that city. The city has voted bonds to the amount of $35,000 for the same purpose.

Governor Hay has said that he will not call a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Congressman Cushman, but will defer to the legislature at the coming special session.

Reclamation In Bible Lands.

A vast region in Asiatic Turkey, having for its center Bagdad, which for centuries has been arid, is to be brought back to cultivation if engineering and irrigation experts have their say. Modern methods will be used, but they can only serve to put in operation the forces of nature which the ancients once manipulated so as to transform a primeval desert into a garden. Consul Magelssen, writing from Bagdad, calls attention to a vast irrigation programme which engineers have declared feasible. He says:

In ancient times, when the whole of Babylonia-Mesopotamia and the greater portion of the country lying between the Tigris river and the mountains of Persia and Kurdistan were artificially irrigated, these parts held the principal granaries of the world. The luxurious growth of grain upon these alluvial flats excited the wonder of the Greek travelers who visited the east, and, according to Herodotus, the soil yielded commonly two hundred fold and sometimes three hundred fold. Herodotus would not tell the whole truth for fear that his veracity might be doubted. When the Chaldeans peopled the delta of the Tigris and the Euphrates they constructed vast irrigation works, which turned the whole land from a desolate waste into one huge garden. The whole plain was studded with prosperous and populous cities, set in the midst of engirdling areas under wheat; for it is from this region that wheat, at first found in a wild and uncultivated state, was taken and gradually transplanted all over the world.

In those days the land was protected against the inundations of the rivers and watered in seasons of drought by a stupendous system of dikes and canals, which at the present day, in a ruined and sand choked condition, cover like a network the face of the country. Once the crown of the possessions of the powers which swayed the east, it is now a barren waste. The irrigation works of the ancients perished because the country was so torn asunder by strife that they ceased to keep them in repair. The scene of the sudden destruction which overwhelmed the cities of the plain is still visible. The river Tigris burst its bonds and temporarily engulfed a great area, and from that day to this desolation reigns supreme around ancient Opis.

It seems that the Euphrates changed its course some years ago, and valuable date gardens as well as rice lands are dying out. One of the schemes proposed for temporary relief while the larger works are under construction is to pump water into the old bed of the Euphrates during the dry months.

The man on the end of the street car seat is with us once again as the summer cars are brought out and the people take to the trolleys for pleasure. He sits as tight as ever and refuses to budge. He minds not the knees that bump into his own, or the feet that tread upon his feet, or the black looks cast his way, or the sarcastic remarks that fall for his correction. He is case hardened, oblivious, indifferent. He recks not the discomfort he causes so long as he maintains what he considers his rights. Perhaps in time he may be softened by repeated applications of heel and toe as congested passengers make their way past him, but only such treatment is likely to be effective.

The French deputies may comfort themselves with the reflection that they are not the only people who have trouble over a wine bill occasionally.

The customs officers are constantly coming into contact with people who favor free trade in practice whether they advocate it in theory or not.

FARMERS' DAY AT THE EXPOSITION

Big Doings Promised for Wednesday, September the 8th. Banner Day of the Fair.

Parades, picnics, music, fireworks and sporting events will mark the celebration of Farmer's Day at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, September 8th.

G. D. Wilson has been appointed director general of the day and is preparing an elaborate program in which all farmers in the Northwest will be interested. At both the St. Louis and Jamestown expositions all arrangements for the day set aside for the farmers were made by Director General Wilson.

The morning parade at the exposition on Farmer's Day will be participated in by agriculturists from Washington, Idaho, Oregon and British Columbia. Then will come the address of welcome by President Chilberg. Shortly after 12 o'clock the farmers will assemble on the grounds near the shores of Lake Washington for a basket picnic. During the afternoon it is proposed to have an unusual feature known as the Bells of Christendom in which 700 young girls from various parts of the United States will take part. Wire connections will be made with bells in Seattle and about the cities of Puget Sound and at a given signal the young girls will press electric buttons ringing hundreds of bells. The rainbow banquet in the evening will be an international affair, for invitations are to be sent to foreign countries to have representatives present on Farmer's Day.

Farmers from all over the Northwest will come to Seattle in great numbers for the celebration of Farmer's Day and September 8th will no doubt be a banner day in the history of the Pacific World's Fair.

Many people with chronic throat and lung trouble have found comfort and relief in Foley's Honey and Tar as it cures stubborn coughs after other treatment has failed. L. M. Ruggles, Reasnor, Iowa, writes: "The doctor said I had consumption, and I got no better until I took Foley's Honey and Tar. It stopped the hemorrhages and pain in my lungs and they are now as sound as a bullet." W. J. Mathewson Drug Store.

BASEBALL GLOVE'S EVOLUTION.

It Has Undergone Changes Since First Used by Arthur Irwin.

It was in 1883 that Arthur Irwin, playing shortstop for Providence, broke the third and fourth fingers of his left hand—and revolutionized the fielding game. He still shows a little finger bent in almost at right angles and says as he shows it, "That did it," says Collier's.

Then a club was a team, not two or three teams. They entered the struggle with ten, or at the most, eleven men—a full team and one or two substitutes. If there were two pitchers the one not in the box served as an outfielder. A man took a day off only for serious cause. So Irwin, star infielder, had to devise some way of beating his injuries. He consulted a glover. They took a buckskin driving glove, many sizes too large, padded it, made a fastening at the back, and sewed the third and fourth fingers together to make room for bandages. The crowd, Irwin knew, would forgive him because of his mangled condition. From the first time he took a grounder with that glove he noticed that he could now "meet" the ball solidly. He did not have to "ease off" and he could get away his throw quicker than any other man on the infield. John Montgomery Ward, of the New York team, observed this. With monumental moral courage he got a glove like Irwin's and used it in a game. No one hooted him for his cowardice. Within two weeks after Irwin and Ward first took their gloves around the circuit a sporting-goods firm had orders from professionals for a hundred like them. By the next season nearly every professional was wearing one of the "Irwin gloves." Denny, the rugged old third baseman, was a conspicuous exception. To the end of his days in baseball he played bare-handed.

In one respect this improvement came in the very nick of time. In 1883-4, after long years of experiment and argument, the pitchers had got their liberty. They could now throw the ball overhand and free-armed. Having a box to get a running start and a shorter line to the plate than at present, they developed unprecedented speed. It needed more catchers than pitchers for a first-class team, so hard was this delivery on hands. The catchers took up the newfangled glove with enthusiasm. Manufacturers made them larger and larger, but still the fingered glove did not quite serve the purpose. In 1888, Jim White, a third baseman, sewed a leather plate on the face of his infielder's glove and got thereby good results with hot liners. Immediately the big catcher's mitt, claimed by two or three different inventors, became a feature of the game.

Wit of the Youngsters

"Say, mister," said little John to the florist, "will you sell me a plant for a dollar?" "Sure," replied the florist. "What kind of a plant do you want?" "An electric-light plant," was the reply.

"What's the matter, dear?" queried the mother of 5-year-old Helen, who was crying as if her little heart would break. "What are you crying about?" "I w-want s-somethin'," sobbed Helen. "What do you want?" asked her mother. "I've f-forgot what I w-want," answered the little miss. "Th-that's what m-makes me c-cry."

Mrs. Smith was showing a visitor a new hat tree she had recently purchased, when little Samuel came in and neglected to remove his hat. Thinking to teach him a lesson, she said: "Samuel, what did I buy that hat tree for?" "For $1.98," answered Samuel, promptly, "but you said I wasn't to tell anybody."

FATE OF SOME PINS.

The Disappearance of at Least a Few Thousands Accounted For.

"It's an old question, What becomes of all the pins? and I wouldn't undertake to tell what becomes of all of them; but," said a young woman who had just had her new spring coat fitted, "I can tell you what becomes of some of them.

"The fitter uses many pins in pinning up seams. She may carry about with her a big cushion stuck full of pins, handy to get at, or she may have a paper of pins hanging down from her belt, and when she fits she finds use for many pins.

"She pins and pins and pins, and sometimes in reaching for a pin or in pinning or in taking pins she drops one. But she doesn't stoop to pick that pin up, for that would be a waste of time and effort; she simply lets that pin lie where it fell and reaches to her cushion or the paper of pins that she carries for another, and so in the course of a day the floor or a fitting room gets littered with pins.

"And then does somebody at the end of the day when they straighten things out pick up these pins and save them? No. It wouldn't pay. It would take time to pick them up, and time, labor, costs money. It is cheaper to buy new pins than it would be to pick and save these pins that have been dropped.

"So these dropped pins are not picked up, they are simply swept out with the rest of the litter, and that is the last of them: There must be hundreds of fitting rooms, and they would account for the disappearance of at least a few thousands of pins daily."

MANILA A MODERN CITY.

Parks, Paved Streets and a Fine Trolley System Features.

"Manila is a modern city now," said William N. Snyder, an American business man of the Philippines capital, at the New Willard, according to the Washington Post. "It still has the cheerless, gray, musty appearance of the old days, and the mediaeval architecture helps this out, but in five years as much building has been done as there was in fifty years before.

"The streets are clean and well paved," continued Mr. Snyder. "One of the best trolley systems in existence anywhere is in operation. An up-to-date fire department, installed by the late Hugh Bonner, is in operation. It is the pride not only of Manila, but of the entire Orient.

"There is a modern police department. Modern sanitary conditions prevail. Parks have been developed. The government is building a new harbor system, so that vessels may come right up to the wharves inside the breakwater, and a new business city will be built with the custom house as the central feature.

"The walls of the old city have been punctured and easy egress and ingress is now afforded. Electric lights are everywhere. It is a modern city, with ancient settings, and it is as picturesque a place as one can find.

"Education in English has so spread that children speak to you in the streets in your own language. Within a year even the modern institution of bootblacks has been established and it is one of the sights of Manila to see a native getting his old shoes shined, when the money he has to pay for it would help to fill his empty stomach."

Short Suggestions.

Vinegar diluted with water will remove grease from a stove.

Wash the refrigerator every week with soda water and keep a saucer of charcoal in it.

It is much easier to skin onions if they are covered with boiling water for a few moments before peeling.

Never throw away pea pods; they give a delicious flavor to the puree for the next day.

A roast of meat which is to be served cold should be wrapped in a cloth when it is put away. It keeps its flavor better.

After scrubbing potatoes to bake, grease them with lard, and the outer skin will come off like burnt paper when the potatoes are served.

To clean batter from the cake pan let it harden in the pan and scrape out with a steel knife, or first grease the pan before making the batter. Pour hot water in cereal pans, place on the lid and steam the vessel and it will clean easily.

THOS. S. CLARK

Thos. S. Clark, youngest son of Mrs. Elsie Clark of Eden Valley, died at his home at Dungeness Tuesday at 9:40 of spinal meningitis, after an illness of four weeks. The funeral was held from the family home at Old Town, Dungeness, yesterday at 1 p. m., and was attended by all the people of the community. Interment was had in the Dungeness cemetery.

Deceased was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1868, and shortly after removed to this country with his family, and has resided in Clallam county for the past 28 years. A wife, five children, three brothers, one sister and an aged mother survive him, all of whom are residents of this county. He was a young man beloved by all in the community in which he has lived so long, and his death is a sad blow to his family and his many friends. He was a man of model habits, industrious, hard working, home loving: a true husband and loving father.

He was taken sick some four weeks ago, with what was believed to be the grippe. From this he rallied and took up light duties about the house. He suffered a relapse, and pneumonia set in, when his temperature went to 106. On Monday indications of spinal meningitis were discovered and in alarm the family was summoned. The aged mother arrived at midnight Monday with her son Jim, while the patient was in a delirium. He recognized her but a few minutes, then no more until the end came. The mother returned to this city last evening and is spending a few days at the home of her son William K., who is just convalescing from a severe attack of the dread disease, pneumonia.

The stricken family has the sympathy of a host of friends in their great bereavement.

The Perdita, which came down from Seattle on Tuesday in place of the Whatcom, brought no eastern mail. It is evidently a difficult task for those who handle the mails on Seattle's docks to keep track of the frequent changes in Port Angeles' boat service.

Rev. Rogers slipped away so quietly, or in "a state of aroused or excited vital activity," ten days ago that he forgot to leave notice of no services at St. Andrews the following two Sundays However, we have word, by grape-vine telegram, from his quiet retreat at the Delabarre Lodge on Lake Crescent—and who could imagine of a more delightful and secluded spot at which to pass one's honeymoon—that he and Mrs. Rogers are well and happy and will be "at home" at St. Andrew's at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday, July 25, "Providence permitting."

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pearson, who have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Morse, returned to their home in Port Angeles today.—Aberdeen Herald.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drains, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements, caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines, and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.
