RAILROAD CONTRACTOR HERE

Townsend Call Considers Visit to West End a Good Omen.

A local gentleman who returned on the Whatcom this morning from up sound, conveys the very satisfying intelligence that on her trip down the straits the vessel was crowded with laboring men destined for Port Crescent. Among the passengers was a railroad contractor, who has been operating in the state of Washington for many years. He has just finished a large contract for the Milwaukee railroad in eastern Washington, and is now making a trip from Port Crescent to Moclips, looking over the ground with a view to engaging in construction work in that section. This gentleman is not unfamiliar with the country to be traversed by the lines which it is declared to be the intention of the railroad companies to build into the West End, having done the construction work on the Moclip branch of the Northern Pacific While the contractor did not give any definite information concerning his business in the western section, his presence there, after the completion of the main line of the Milwaukee, lends color to the belief that the big corporation is to begin at once active construction work on the feeders which it must have in order to secure sufficient business for its main line. That the Milwaukee will build through to the straits has been announced so many times that there is no room to doubt, but to date the presence of a prominent railroad contractor in the district, making a thorough inspection of the country which must be traversed, is the most favorable indication that has appeared for many months that active construction will begin at once.

BIGGEST SELL EVER PERPETRATED

Franchise Has Not One Redeeming Feature to Recommend It. Simply a Private Snap.

To the Editor: The city council has passed the water franchise ordinance, and it needs only the signature of the mayor to make it an irrevokable law. It was adopted as soon as it came from the committee and before its provisions could be scrutinized by the people of the city. To an interested taxpayer who recognizes this as one of the city's greatest assets, it would seem that the one great reason for the adoption of a new water ordinance at this time, namely, water for those who have it not, and greatly needed improvement of the present plant has been overlooked. There is not a provision in the new grant that guarantees to the people of Lincoln Heights, outside the immediate vicinity of the Filion mill, and that is very vague, or to the people in other districts where water has not been extended, that they will get a drop for years and years to come. True, there is a provision which says that the council may order extensions of the service, but the beautiful string attached reads that this ordering is authorized only when the company is guaranteed two new patrons for "each 300 feet of 'pipe' laid." There is not a district now without water that can compel extension under this clause, and in our scattered condition with the great area covered by our townsite and our people, it will be years before a condition will exist whereby extensions can be forced under this ordinance. Note that the section does not read for each 300 feet of "main" laid, but for each 300 feet of "pipe" laid, which makes extensions far more remote.

The only reason that we are giving a new franchise at this time with such liberal rates as those charged in this ordinance is that the territory to be covered is scattered and the residences far apart. If, therefore, we are granting this long lease at these rates because of these facts, why not see to it that the provisions are such that we can force extensions to those who want water. If we had a population dense enough to provide all over the city two patrons to each 300 feet of pipe laid, the rates should not be half of those scheduled. Especially is this true where the water simply runs through the pipes and where the supply is exhaustless.

We have always in the past, in the consideration of the water grants, been led to believe that the main thing needed in the next water franchise was a provision that the principal main should be extended along the south limits of the city, so that patrons on the hill might have pressure as well as those on the flat. This might necessitate a strengthening of the pipes on the flat, or a check to hold the pressure, but it is one of the necessities. The pressure should come from the hill to the flat and not from the flat to the hill. The condition of this ordinance is that a pressure of 85 lbs. shall be maintained for a few blocks on the flat, about the same pressure as we have now, and about all the old pipes will stand. Nothing is said of any pressure on the hills.

Then what of the intake? Is not this a point of importance that is not covered? According to this ordinance the source can be at the mouth of Ennis creek, and the contamination as best suits the will and pocket book of the water company. The present dam, save the mark, at the intake is a disgrace to the city, but the new intake may be as bad. There is nothing in the grant to prevent it. There is no mention of service mains or pipes whatever. Are there to be no extensions except along the lines of the past decade or two? All extensions during this time have been made by the consumers wanting water, except the wooden mains put down under the Lingenbrink grant. There are few mains in the city at present and there is little provision for more. The city is covered with pipes of from ½ inch to 2 inches in diameter, and 2-inch mains supply vast districts. Is this the condition to ex-

IT WOULD MEAN PROSPERITY

Little Initial Effort Would Make Angeles Townsite Blossom Like Garden of Eden.

An interesting story of fruit raising, told by our former townsman, J. J. McDonald, comes from Salem, Oregon. While immense profits at fruit culture are made near the cherry city of the world, there is no section of the Northwest better adapted to the raising of small fruits than the logged-off lands of Clallam county. What may be accomplished in this line elsewhere can, with a little effort, be duplicated right here in Angeles. Fruits of all kinds, and especially berries, thrive here to perfection and yield abundantly. All that is needed is a little energy and push on the part of that class of people who incline toward fruit raising and Port Angeles would soon be known as one of the great shipping points for small fruits of the Puget Sound country. Unlike the climate at Salem, there is little or no danger here of the berry bushes being injured by the frosts of winter.

Many gardens in Angeles at the present time contain apple, pear, cherry, prune, plum, and other trees that are literally breaking down with their loads of fruit, and the berry crop the past season was simply phenomenal, both as to quality, quantity and size of fruit. The writer knows of a small garden within the limits of the city where four logan berry plants were put out two years ago last spring, that yielded an immense crop this year. The bushes, trained on a flat trellis, were fertilized this season. Two families were supplied with all they could use on the table and for canning purposes from these four bushes, and there are logan berries going to waste on these same bushes at the present time. Raspberries and blackberries yield equally well under the same conditions. If someone of our enterprising fruit growers would like to have his name handed down to posterity as a public benefactor, and at the same time put dollars in his pockets, let him set out a few acres to logan and other berries. Secure a fruit dryer, as did Mr. McDonald, and his desire is sure to be gratified. An industry would spring up here in a short time that would mean prosperity and large bank accounts to many of our citizens.

The age of small farming has made it possible for the energetic, up to date man to succeed in the growing of small fruits for the market. It has introduced a new era to the tiller of the soil. In other localities many have discovered that a few acres will give greater money returns, when properly cultivated, than large tracts under the old method of farming. The day of intensive soil culture in Clallam county would mean prosperity to all our people. It has assisted in establishing homes and in bringing peace and happiness to scores of families elsewhere. Its value has been recognized in the land of irrigation and its field is widening to extend into the rain-belt regions of this section.

The revenue cutter Tahoma, which is to take the place of the cutter Grant in Puget Sound waters, reached Port Townsend Monday. The Tahoma left Baltimore on a cruise around the world on April 17th last and the cruise of the vessel is said to have been the longest continuous cruise ever taken by a vessel of the service. Beside a list of eight officers, the Tahoma carries a crew of 59 men.

Manager Dave Troy of the Glendale creameries was in town Friday on business. The Glendale people have decided to cut up their model dairy farm at Chimacum into 40 and 80 acres tracts which they will sell to small ranchers on ten years time, and stock them with good dairy cows at one twentieth per month. The company expects thus to enlarge its creamery business.

HENEY SECURES DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION AT SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—The final completed count of the votes in the city's direct primary show that Francis J. Heney won the democratic nomination for district attorney, while Charles M. Fickert gained the nomination on the republican and union labor tickets for the same office. It is expected that a hot campaign will be waged for the district attorneyship this fall and the continuation of the graft prosecutions will be brought forward as probably the most prominent issue. The supporters of Heney contend that the prosecutions will depend upon the election. Fickert so far is non-committal on the subject.

The vote for district attorney was as follows: Republicans—Fickert, 11,658; Heney, 4,364.

The democrats—Heney, 2,384; Fickers 2,260.

Union labor party—Fickert, 3,186; Heney, 684.

AVIATORS AT RHEIMS

MANY MACHINES READY FOR AVIATION WEEK CONTESTS.

Curtis and Bleriots Favorites—On Trial Field Aviators Turn, Circle and Dip at Will in Air—Twenty Eight Machines on Ground At One Time.

Rheims, Aug. 21.—Aeroplanes—flying in straight lines, making wide turns or wheeling abruptly, traveling slow and fast and low and high, offered a striking spectacle to 15,000 persons on the field of Bethany yesterday. Two slight accidents occurred. M. Dumanst, driving an Antoinette machine, came to the ground sideways and broke one of the runners of his aeroplane, and M. Goffroy, in an Esnault-Palterie monoplane, had accomplished a flight of a kilometer when the machine struck a hedge, demolishing the propeller.

This was the second practice day before the commencement of the prize flights of aviation week, and many of the aviators took advantage of the favorable weather to try out their craft. Glenn H. Curtiss, the American, was given an ovation after a flight of seven minutes. Although the motor of his machine was a bit erratic, the bi-plane sped straight without swaying. Mr. Curtiss declared that he was ready for the races.

Hubert Latham also was applauded for a spectacular flight of ten minutes, M. Bleriot, driving a small forty-horse power monoplane, made a series of maneuvers druing which he demonstrated his masterful hand at aviation.

Sommers Sails Out of Sight.

M. Sommers, who recently, though unofficially, beat Wilbur Wright's record for duration of flight, speeded across the plateau during the afternoon and was lost to sight in the haze. It was thought by spectators that he had descended, but he suddenly reappeared. When he landed he announced that he had been to the village of Vinney.

During the evening there was some wind, but Count Lambert and M. Lefevre, both using Wright bi-planes, braved the breeze and simultaneously made evolutions which demontsrated the ease and facility with which machines of the Wright model may be sailed. Lefevre was particularly successful in handling his craft. Once he wheeled abruptly over the heads of the spectators.

There was a great outburst of enthusiasm as Bleriot and Sommer, crossing each other's machines in the air, each politely dipped his machine in salute. There is now a total of twenty-eight machines on the ground, but not all of them are ready for the flight.

An expert in aviation said that if Curtiss' motor held out he had an excellent chance of winning the big international event, and general opinion that this race lies between Bleriot and Curtiss is daily expressed.

Curtiss Not Surprised.

Mr. Curtiss was not greatly surprised when informed that the Wright brothers had brought suit against the Aeronautic Society of New York, alleging that the Curtiss machine infringes cartain of their patents. He said he had known for some time that something of this nature was contemplated, but he failed to see how it would result in anything but a lot of litigation.

"There is nothing to support the charge of infringement." Mr. Curtiss declared. "The best answer to this is the fact, known to everybody, that we made public flights in America long before the Wrights did. This shows that there could not have been an imitation of their machine by us.'

NINE THOUSAND DIRECTORS OE SCHOOLS TO CONVENE

Olympia, Aug. 24.—H. B. Dewey, state superintendent of public instruction, is making plans to bring together the 9,000 school directors of Washington at the first congress of school directors to be held in Seattle at the exposition on September 27, 28, 29. State Superintendents Bell, of Oregon, and Chamberlain, of Idaho, will be present to deliver talks, while Elmer E. Brown, commissioner of education of Washington, D. C., has been invited to be present. The directors will meet twice a day in the Good Roads building and discuss school problems of all kinds.

Lewiston-Clarkston Fair

Lewiston, Aug. 23.—The board of directors of the Lewiston-Clarkston Fair Association announce that the tenth annual fair and racing meeting will be held on the grounds of the association, opening Monday, September 27, and closing Saturday, October 2, 1909.

Okanogan County Fair Dates Set

Riverside, Aug. 23.—The Okanogan County Fair and Racing Association directors announce that the fair of 1909 will take place on the association grounds September 29 and 30 and October 1.

NEWSPAPER CONTESTANTS ENJOY THEMSELVES AT FAIR

Seattle, Aug. 21.—The beauties of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition and the Puget Sound country are being enjoyed by members of newspaper contest parties from every part of the country who have visited Seattle the past two months.

Hundreds of contestants have journeyed by steamer to Victoria, Vancouver, Port Townsend, Bellingham and Anacortes. Others have enjoyed the side trips to the San Juan islands, Deception Pass, Olympia, Hoods Canal and the various points of interest.

A great source of attraction has been the voyage to the canneries at Bellingham, where visitors are admitted. The Puget Sound navy yard, one of the most popular of the short excursion trips on the Sound, has been visited by thousands of tourists from every part of the world. A majority of the contest parties have made this trip and visited the canneries at Bellingham as well.

Out at the Exposition three or four days may be profitably spent in sightseeing. The exhibit buildings are well worth seeing and at night the Pay Streak is crowded with a happy throng of people. The illumination of the buildings and grounds is a feature.

The concerts by Liberati and other musical organizations with a national reputation is a big drawing card. The display of fireworks at Seattle is the greatest ever offered to exposition crowds and other special features serve to hold the attention of exposition visitors.

ALASKAS GOLD LESS IN VALUE THAN HER COAL

Baltimore, Aug. 21.—While Alaska's gold reserves are large they are in no way unique, for refined gold is the same, whatever the source. In the matter of coal resources, Alaska has no competitor, says the American. Its store of high-grade fuel cannot be equaled in quality west of the Rockies—in fact, to find anthracite and bituminous coal which compares in fuel value with that of Alaska, one must come east to Pennsylvania.

A surveyed area of about 100 square miles is known to be underlain by these coals, and it is probable that further investigation may show an extension of the field. A rough estimate of quantity within this surveyed area gave 6,000,000,000 tons, or more than one and a half times the entire production of Pennsylvania since coal mining began. It is fair to assume that this coal is worth $1 a ton, which would make its total value about 40 times as great as the entire gold output of Alaska to the present time.

These coals are practically untouched, for the only coal mining in Alaska is that of some lignites for local use.

JAMES J. HILL OFFERS PRIZES FOR BEST GRAINS

State College, Pullman, Aug. 21.—The state experiment station, at Pullman, has been advised from the head offices of the Great Northern railway, at St. Paul, that J. J. Hill will give cash prizes for the best specimens of grains and grasses grown within twenty-five miles of the Great Northern railway in Washington, to be exhibited at the national corn exposition in Omaha, December 6 to 18. First, second and third prizes of $15, $7 and $3, respectively, are offered for the following exhibits:

Spring wheat, Fife, Bluestem, or Durum; winter wheat, red or white; oats, barley and field peas, any variety; flax; corn, both flint and dent, ten ears each; timothy seed, common red clover, and alsike clover, alfalfa seed.

First, second and third prizes of $6, $4 and $2, respectively, are offered for sheaf exhibits not less than four inches at top band, as follows: Wheat, oats, barley, flax, timothy, common red clover, and alsike clover; corn in stalk, and alfalfa.

FREE PLANTING IN KITTITAS TO REACT LARGE TOTAL

Ellensburg, Aug. 21.—A conservative estimate made from data secured from property owners of the valley is that 84,000 fruit trees will be planted in the valley next spring. Farmers will lay out 1,200 acres in fruit next year, and most of the land set to trees will be in small five and ten-acre tracts.

According to the tree salesmen who are in the city, winter apples are in greatest demand in the valley. The proportion of apple trees is estimated at from 50 to 75 per cent.

Other fruits are in lesser demand, but peach trees will be set out in numbers next year.

Irrigation Committee at Yakima

North Yakima, Aug. 21.—The senate irrigation committee will reach the Yakima valley next Thursday, August 26, and will spend Friday and Saturday looking over the Sunnyside, Wapato and Tieton projects. This was the information received by Senator Wesley L. Jones from Senator Cooper. The committee will stop at Prosser on Thursday evening and will come up the valley in automobiles the next day to North Yakima. The Commercial Club will meet tomorrow to arrange a definite program of entertainment.

U. P. SERVICE DELAYED

MAY NOT RUN TRAINS TO SOUND AT PRESENT TIME.

Reason Found in Hill Invasion of Harriman Territory—Harriman to Put on Another Fast Transcontinental Train to Portland, Oregon.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 21.—It is unofficially reported that the inauguration by the Union Pacific of its train service over the Northern Pacific to Puget Sound points had been abandoned indefinitely. Inability to procure the necessary equipment for the service was the only explanation obtainable, but the recent announcement that J. J. Hill was behind the Oregon Trunk Line, engaged in constructing a railroad into Central Oregon, is believed to be the real reason for the postponement. It is also feared for the same reason that the promised settlement of the terminal situation and other points of difference between the rival railroads, especially affecting Portland, may be longer deferred.

Puts on New Fast Train.

Further evidence of the rivalry between the Hill and Harriman interests developed with the announcement that a new Portland-Chicago train will be placed in operation over the Union Pacific. The improved service will be inaugurated soon. The train will be known as the Oregon-Washington Limited and will be operated on a 69-hour schedule, clipping seven hours off the operating time of the fastest train at present on the Union Pacific run between this city and Chicago.

MR. TAFT WOULD CHANGE INTESTATE COMMERCE LAW

Washington, Aug. 21.—President Taft contemplates making several radical changes in the interstate commerce laws. With this idea in view a conference is to be held in New York within the next two weeks, and several contemplated changes in the Sherman anti-trust law also will be taken up at this time.

The members of the conference will suggest that President Taft recommend the alterations in his next message to congress. He plans a more effective government supervision over railroads and plans to relieve the Interstate Commerce Commission of many burdens and restrictions.

Plans Many Changes.

Taft has requested the committee to put his plans in concrete form. He plans to divest the commission of administrative power, establish it as a quasi-judicial body, with power to determine cases and enforce its rulings, and to limit appeals only to supreme court in constitutional questions.

The president plans to establish a bureau in the commerce and labor department, and to this bureau will be turned over all questions referring to labor administration, safety appliances and employes' laws. This bureau also will have the power to settle all minor differences between shippers and railroads and will control the filing of rates and investigate complaints.

Save Much Time.

President Taft believes that much time will be saved for the Interstate Commerce Commission by this plan. As was Roosevelt's belief, President Taft thinks that the railroads should be relieved of certain operations of the Sherman law, and should be in a position to make combinations and agreements providing they are under the government's supervision and not in restraint of trade. Taft believes that the penalties for combinations in restraint of trade should be heavier. It is understood that the conferences will also consider the advisability of government control and capitalization of interstate corporations.

RECORD WHEAT YIELD FOR LARGE ACREAGE

Dayton, Aug. 21.—Records for big grain yields on large acreages were broken this week, when 200 acres of wheat, grown by Wesley Lloyd, near Waitsburg, yielded an average of 60 bushels an acre, or 12,000 bushels. Several 60-bushel yields have been reported since harvest commenced in the valley, but this is the most remarkable, in that the entire 200 acres yielded so high an average.

The wheat is the Pullman Hybrid No. 123, and is said to be the first crop of this variety ever raised in this locality. It was an experiment on the part of Mr. Lloyd. Mr. Lloyd has not sold his crop, although he has been made offers. He is one of the many farmers who predict a better wheat market before spring.

Thousand Pounds for Longest Flight

The continental edition of the London Daily Mail announces a prize of $5,000 (1,000 pounds) for the aeroplanist covering the greatest number of miles in the year from August 15, 1909, to August 15, 1910. The number of flights is unlimited, the prize being for the total distance covered.

PRESIDENT'S PROGRAM WHILE IN SEATTLE

The special events committee of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition has announced the President Taft day program. For several days there has been under consideration a change in the program on the occasion of the president's visit. Many telegrams have been exchanged between President Taft's secretary and the exposition management, and the program as approved by the president provides for an afternoon of recreation.

As announced, the program, which is subject to change, is as follows:

Wednesday evening, September 29, the president will arrive, and will be met at the depot by a special committee of exposition, state and city officials and escorted to the Washington hotel, where quarters have been reserved.

Thursday, September 30, is Taft day at the exposition. The president will leave the Washington hotel at 9 a. m., escorted by the officials of the exposition and prominent citizens to the exposition grounds. He will inspect the various buildings, and partake of an informal luncheon at the Exposition Club room, New York State building. At 2 p. m. the president will address the people of the state of Washington and the Pacific Northwest in the Natural Ampitheater. At the conclusion of the exercises in the Natural Amphitheater the president will visit the Pay Streak, see something more of the exposition, then return to the hotel in time to rest and dress for dinner at 7:30 p. m. in the Washington State building.

Friday, October 1, will be spent informally by the president in viewing the city and in recreation. Friday evening he will leave for Tacoma.

The exposition management will provide a number of special features, both in the day and in the evening, for the day of President Taft"s visit, such as special musical programs, special illuminations and fireworks.

UTAH SENDS FIVE BIG SPECIALS TO FAIR

At an expense of $15,000, half of which is contributed by a single public-spirited citizen, Col. D. C. Jackling, the copper king of Utah, five special trains bearing 2,000 persons, left Salt Lake City on the night of August 21 for a record run to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.

The first train bore the governor, his personal staff, family and friends. To this train was attached the private palace of Col. Jackling, which he has placed at the disposal of the governor for this trip, the owner of the car being one of the guests.

The third train was entirely occupied by the world-renowned Tabernacle choir of 300 voices and their friends, while the remaining two trains brought the Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade and other municipal organizations, state officials and visitors generally.

WAREHOUSE COMPANIES REDUCE RATES TO FARMERS

Walla Walla, Aug. 21.—Farmers are jubilant over the announcement that the warehouse companies doing business here have cut their rates to what they were two years ago, 50 cents a ton on wheat till the first of the year and 10 cents a month afterward.

The companies started out this summer with an announced rate of 50 cents a ton for the first thirty days and 10 cents a month afterward, thus making the storage charges the highest on record.

An agreement to store wheat in the fields is credited with having brought about the concession. Farmers declare that they will be prepared next year by owning their own warehouses.

DAKOTA INDIAN LANDS TO BE OPENED IN OCTOBER

Spokane, Aug 24.—Supt James W. Witten, who presided over the recent Indian land drawings, announced yesterday that the Cheyenne river and Standing Rock Indian lands, in North and South Dakota, will be opened in October. This is the largest compact area of Indian lands left unopened, being ninety miles long and from thirty to eighty-four miles wide, containing approximately 2,019,000 acres in South Dakota and 217,000 in North Dakota.

Applications will be managed in much the same manner as for the Coeur d'Alene and Flathead reserves. Registration days have been fixed between October 4 and October 23, the registration points being Aberdeen, Pierre, Lemmon, Lebeau and Mobridge, in South Dakota, and Bismarck, N. D.

Paris, Aug. 21.—A special dispatch has been received from Trieste saying that according to a telegram received from the captain of the Italian steamer Thalia, now at Hammerfest, Norway, Walter Wellman left Spitzbergen August 16 in his dirigible balloon, bound for the North Pole.

28 NEW LAWS PASSED

SPECIAL LEGISLATIVE SESSION ENDS BY LIMITATION.

Bill to Restore Supreme Judiciary to Primary Election Law Fails. Appropriations Will Aggregate $237,505 — Marriage Law Is Amended.

Olympia, Wash., Aug. 23.—Uproar characterized the last hours spent by the Senate Saturday in the consideration of legislation. At one time one faction of the Senate openly threatened to elect a chairman of its own and proceed with the enactment of bills.

During a morning divided between filibustering and heated debate, the Senate refused to consider the income tax resolution and defeated the Congressional primary bill, the judgeship primary bill and the new anti-cigarette law, all of which had previously passed the House. Later in the afternoon the Congressional primary bill passed on reconsideration and several other measures were approved. The Senate will continue its sessions as a court of impeachment, but the House is no longer in session.

Legislation Enacted.

The special session just adjourned, added appropriations aggregating $237,505. Ninety-four bills were introduced, of which 60 were House and 34 Senate bills.

H. B. 35, Bell—Exempting Legislators and legislative employes, witnesses and jurors from provision requiring affidavits on salary vouchers.

H. B. 37, Thayer—To provide for reinstatement of corporation whose names have been stricken from records.

Olympia, Aug. 19.—The house yesterday passed the Campbell bill providing for the nomination of supreme court judges by direct primary; the Ghent marriage bill providing that affiidavits of good health may take the place of physicians' certificates; the viaduct bill which will enable Seattle to construct a viaduct on Railroad avenue at the expense of the property benefitted; the concurrent resolution ratifying the proposed income tax amendment to the constitution of the United States; and engaged in a heated discussion over the Halsey committee appointed to investigate the supreme court.

In speaking for the bill restoring the nomination of supreme court judges to the direct primary, Ole Hanson, of King county, said:

"This is the old-time struggle of the people against the special interests. Last winter a bill was sprung, and by clever management of attorneys working in the interests of big corporations, the measure, which took away from the people the right to nominate supreme court judges, passed both houses and received the signature of the governor.

"The people of this state will never trust a supreme court that does not trust them. It is to the discredit of the governor of this state that, while professing to stand for the people, he signed that bill last winter. It is to his discredit that he said not one word about restoring the law in his message to this legislature.

"I say the time has come when you must stand for the people of this state or against them. It is up to you now to hand back to the people what you filched from them last winter."

Others Join in Debate.

Beach, of Mason county, declared that it was no worse for a candidate for the bench to lobby in a convention than it was for the candidate to make a gum shoe campaign throughout the state.

Lambert, of Whatcom county, spoke of the "posters on every barn door" put up by candidates for the supreme court in the last campaign before the primaries.

Palmer, of King county, said that it was only the well-known candidate who had a chance of winning at the primaries. He challenged any ten members of the house to rise and name the nine judges of the supreme court. He spoke of the vote cast at Wellington for R. B. Bryan, who was a candidate for state superintendent of public instruction.

"Mr. Bryan ran 360 votes ahead of his ticket," said Mr. Palmer. "Those coal miners thought they were voting for William Jennings Bryan."

"The most serious question," said Hugh C. Todd, of Whitman county, "is not the method of nominating judges but the restoration of confidence in the supreme court. The only way to do that is to permit the people to name the judges for whom they vote.

Hanson Denounces Weak Members.

The bill was passed by a vote of 64 to 10.

A heated debate arose over a resolution offered by Todd, of Whitman, and Bell, of Pierce, to continue the Halsey investigating committee and instructing it to report to the governor if the legislature is not in session when the inquiry is finished. E. L. Farnsworth, of Lincoln county, declared that the investigation should not drag on unless there was some excuse for the committee to continue its work. He was followed by Ole Hanson, who declared that two members of the committee, whom he did not name, were constitutionally and mentally unfit for service on the committee.

"This cloud should no longer hang over the supreme court," said Mr. Hanson. "This committee has asked to be allowed to continue its work when there is nothing before this house to show what it has done. I object to a committee composed of lawyers, each of whom may have a case pending before the supreme court. It is not so important to me that the supreme court be above reproach as it is to the people of the state."

"The report of this committee cannot but be held in discredit," said Scott, of Adams county, "when one member has been accused of being a go-between from the purchasers to the purchased court. It is the duty of this member to withdraw from the committee. I believe that there is nothing wrong with the supreme court and that it will be exonerated."

Halsey Committee Denounced.

"This committee was appointed on the eighth day of the first spasm of this extraordinary session," said Dr. Beach, of Mason, "and now on the fifty-seventh day it is not ready to report. It has had all the time necessary and now wants to continue the work of listening to anybody who may have a grudge against the supreme court. This man De Wolfe goes out and digs up all the despicable rumors he can find and brings them before this committee. It is proposed, I am informed, to have this committee report to another extra session which the governor will call in February, thus keeping the supreme court in the public eye for a long time, It seems to be the policy to continue the stench uncovered by the committee indefinitely."

Chairman E. E. Halsey, of the investigating committee, said that the members of the committee were just as solicitous for the name of the court as any man in the house.

"We're No Whitewashers"—Halsey.

"If you intended to hand this committee a whitewash brush with instructions to lay the whitewash on thickly, you have selected the wrong men," said Mr. Halsey. "When a reputable lawyer told this committee that the increase in the supreme court in 1905 was in the interest of corporations having personal injury claims to be decided, we believed it our duty to look into the matter. Up to the present time it has been impossible to get the testimony on this matter so far, but we expect to have the witnesses within a week."

When the discussion was ended the house voted to make the resolution continuing the committee a special order for Friday, at 3 o'clock. Instructions were given the committee to make a report this morning.

The house passed a concurrent resolution ratifying the income tax amendment with only two dissenting votes, those of Farnsworth, of Lincoln, and R. A. Jackson.

MADE SIXTY MILES ONE HOUR IN AIR

New York, Aug. 21.—Although C. F. Willard, himself, expressed some doubt of the authenticity of the records, the timers of three trial flights at Hempstead Plains yesterday by the aviator in a Curtiss aeroplane, reported that he traveled at all times at a rate not less than 60 miles an hour, the fastest time ever made in a heavier than air machine.

The flights were made in an aeroplane which the Wright brothers claim infringes on their patents, and for the destruction of which they entered suit yesterday. Over 2,000 witnessed the flights and cheered the aviator. The first flight started shortly before 5 oclock. Willard flew to the Meadowbrook club, over Camp Black, and then toward Hempstead and Garden City, and then back to the starting point, a distance of three miles. The timers recorded this flight in 2 minutes and 6 seconds. The second flight covered the same course, with wider sweeps, and was accomplished in 3 minutes flat, according to the timers.

The third flight was terminated abruptly by a split in the canvas rudder. The accident was not serious, and the machine was quickly undergoing repairs.

MANY QUARTZ CLAIMS LOCATED IN KLONDIKE

Seattle, Aug. 21.—A Dawson special to the Post-Intelligencer says:

Klondike never saw such prosperity in its quartz properties as today. The quartz recording office has been so crowded of late with applications, renewals and the like that an extra clerk has been put on to assist Bert Brown, the quartz recorder.

Last month 110 quartz claims were located, and this month nearly 150 have been applied for to date.

Each quartz claim is 1,500 feet square. Taking this area 150 times, one will see that the quartz properties located during the present month will cover an immense area.

One beauty about the quartz activity is that the new staking is not confined to any one locality. The boom is on in every part of the district, from Twelve-mile to Sixty-mile, from the high ridge dividing camp to points along the Yukon, from Dawson to Whitehorse, in fact, everywhere throughout the territory.

TIETON PROJECT LANDS TO REMAIN IN RESERVE

North Yakima, Aug. 21.—The government land under the Tieton project in this valley, withdrawn from entry some four or five years ago, will not be restored to entry in the coming fall and winter as has been widely reported in the Northwest. This is the statement given out by the local land office. The erroneous report that this land is to be restored had its origin in an order issued by the general land office restoring to entry a few tracts of land in the Tieton district. This land is all on the borders of the Tieton project proper and none of it will come under the ditch.

Franking privileges were greatly abused in days gone by. The government employe's friends shared in his opportunities. In a letter written by Wordsworth in 1815 the poet said: "By means of a friend in London I can have my letters free. His name is Lamb, and if you add an 'e' to his name he will not open the letters. Direct as below, without anything further, 'Mr. Lambe, India House, London.'" Coleridge, too, saw that a postage saved was a postage earned, and made use of the Mr. Lamb of the India House—Charles Lamb.

Patriotism has become the basis of a great American industry. Because of the amazing increase of patriotic sentiment in this country during the last decade the manufacture of American flags has quadrupled. More than three million star-spangled banners annually are made of silk and bunting, but these form only a small portion of the total number of United States flags that are born, that live and die between January and January. In remote farming districts, where ten years ago the national colors were rarely seen, every suitable occasion witnesses a flag display. The flag has been added to the household gods from Maine to California and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian line. So far as individual popularity is concerned, it ranks with the firecrackers on Independence Day, and outranks all else on that day of national patriotic observance, May 30.

Work is begun on the Cape Cod Canal, an engineering project which has been discussed since the days of the Pilgrim Fathers. At its narrowest point Cape Cod is eight miles across and the canal will save sixty-three miles around. The route almost follows an old Indian portage. An attempt is being made by the New Jersey railroads to have the old Morris and Essex Canal abandoned. Many of the old State canals have been abandoned. The main Pennsylvania Canal over the Alleghanies was abandoned years ago. There should be more water transportation. For all heavy freight like coal, lumber, grain and ore water transportation is more economical and suitable than rail transportation. Relieving the railroads of their heaviest freight, with low charges, would enable them to develop their higher-class freight business and their passenger facilities. It would do much to promote industry, as it has in Germany, France and England. The Cape Cod Canal should be the beginning of a protected salt-water route from New England to the land of cotton.

That is rather a bold and sweeping proposition made by the author of a recent book, "Civics and Health," to hitch what might be called free health to our free schools. The tendency for many years past has been to burden the schools with all kinds of collateral issues, which some people call fads, some of which are highly useful and some plainly beyond the scope of such institutions. The danger has seemed to be a breakdown of the public school system from attempting too much; but the zeal of the enthusiastic educator has its praiseworthy side. It is possibly better for the children that the public and the taxpayers should have to restrain him than that they should have to prod him. Secretary William H. Allen, of the bureau of municipal research, contends that the physical basis of effective citizenship has been too much neglected, and thinks that the health of the country may be brought up to a higher standard by a system of school examination and basing promotion from grade to grade upon tests of physical hygiene as well as of scholarship. If the children are found suffering from malnutrition, this must be corrected in some way. If they are tuberculous, proper treatment must be prescribed and enforced; if eyes are defective, the defects must be promptly remedied; if teeth are bad, the mouth must be made clean and sound by adequate dentistry. The plan would include also the enforcement of proper exercise and recreation. Who is to pay for this, Mr. Allen does not say, but it is manifest that some, if not all, of the cost would have to be provided by taxation. The end to be attained is unquestionably desirable. A sound body is as important as a sound mind. But the successful working out of the details of such a plan would seem to be beset by great difficulties.

AN ANCIENT ORDEAL.

How much the vacuum-cleaner has done to destroy the comedy of spring-cleaning is indicated by an account of the old-time methods printed in the Boston Transcript. One cannot help suspecting that the vividness of recollection has helped to brighten the colors a bit here and there.

Laying a carpet sounds as simple as writing a poem—paper, pens and ink, hammer, tacks and carpet. But the divine afflatus is necessary for each.

My cousin, Julian Cleghorn, thought he had it—the carpet-laying afflatus—and as his adventures are fairly representative, they may serve as the type. Cousin Julian happened to be visiting us at the time, and hearing that the library carpet awaited the tack-hammer, announced blithely:

"Just leave that to me, Aunt Anne. I lay carpets blindfold with one hand tied behind me."

"The library floor is very difficult to fit, Julian," faltered mother; but she was secretly rejoiced, for father had balked that morning.

"Shucks! If nobody bothers me I'll have that carpet down in twenty minutes from the time I begin."

After dinner he unrolled the carpet and took a mouthful of tacks. Sarah held the lamp—there was no place to put it down—and I was supposed to hand him the tack-hammer.

We admired him openly as he made one corner fast with a few deft strokes. Then he signaled us in dumb show. We tried to fit the edges to the hearth, the bay window, the radiator, the base of the pier glass, but nothing suited him. He continued to make horrible grimaces, with semaphoring arms.

"You blithering idiots!" he cried at last, spouting a shower of tacks. "Can't you see I want it stretched?" and he fell to tugging until he was black in the face.

Julian tacked in silent wrath. Then he found he had tacked the hearth rim under the radiator, and it all had to come up. A little later he drove us all out. Some hours after midnight, when things had quieted a little, he came out and remarked that in stretching the carpet he must have upset the lamp. At any rate, the town fire bell began to ring, and while the family were all at the upstairs windows trying to locate the glow, the hose cart arrived on our front lawn.

Cousin Julian was then seen cramming yards of smoldering Axminster out of the French window. The neighbors impulsively moved us out into the side yards, then went home to bed. We spent the rest of the night moving in again.

It won't take a very long prayer to bring fire from heaven when the broken down altars are first built up.

THE FIRST ADVENTURE.

Describing his childhood in Kentucky, the late Prof. N. S. Shaler, in the Atlantic Monthly, wrote that the first recollection he had of places outside the home grounds was of the parade ground and the soldiers of a government post near at hand, and above all of the music and the bugle calls. The earliest place of any kind of activity that he could recall was an adventure with the musician who beat the drum of the barrack's band.

"It was my delight to see the band march round the parade ground, and my cherished ambition to have a whack at the drum. So, craftily, stick in hand, I hid behind a boxed tree and managed to get in a stroke, only to be bowled over by the irate drummer. I could not have been more than four years old at the time, yet the delight of that deed stays by me.

"When I was about five, the musterings for the Mexican war were going on, and the barracks were overfilled, so that considerable hordes of troops were encamped in the open fields which adjoined it. On these fields, then pastures, one of the horse batteries, I believe Ringold's, was for some time drilled.

"I was then exempt from the care of a nurse, and could run about afoot or on a pony. The movements of this command filled my little soul with wonder; there I gained my first sense of the power of men in action, that primitive might of war which impresses the primitive child and the childish man as nothing else does.

"I well remember my longing for the unapproachable splendor of the commander of that battery, who seemed to me a supernatural being. Oddly enough fifteen years thereafter I was in his place, drilling a horse battery on the same field, to find it tedious drudgery, with moments of high life when by chance the work went well."

Use Soap as Economy.

Soap in its modern form seems rather to be an evolution of economy and commercial convenience than an evidence of a great accession to cleanliness. The rich to-day in their homes use unguents, oils, meals and bath powders in preference to it. A lather is not in this age as picturesque as the old method, when a slave poured liquid soap over her mistress from a costly jar before the fair lather stepped down into the water.

A Permanent Thing.

"You have stated," said the badgering lawyer to a witness, "that you were born in 1886. Now you say you were born in 1887. An incriminating discrepancy—though perhaps you may be able to explain it."

"Certainly I can explain it," retorted the witness. "There's no incongruity there. I was born in 1886 and just stayed born. Why, I'm born yet."

Just the Name.

THE NEED OF ANGELES.

What Port Angeles needs more than anything else, in the opinion of this paper, is a few high toned funerals. We have too many kickers about little things; too many men who pinch a penny till the Indian, if there is one on it, yells for mercy; who hold onto what they have and never spend a cent if they can help it. Some men have fattened on the industry of others and have not been very industrious in the way of enterprize themselves. Port Angeles needs more men who will put their money into the swim and make things hum. A few are doing this very thing. They are giving employment to labor, are doing what they can towards improving conditions locally while building up a business for themselves. We talk of offering inducements to home seekers, and during the past two years many families have come here from the east and elsewhere to make their homes. But have we extended to them a cordial greeting? Has not the first thought of many been, how much can I make out of them? How much will they pay for that lot of mine, or how high a rent can I get for my house. There has been too much of the spirit to catch them coming and catch them going for the welfare of Port Angeles. If not this, it is one eternal knock, knock. Why should people living here always kick to the newcomer, or attempt to discourage the progressive one about our town? Shut up! Get busy! Put your shoulder to the wheel.

When a public improvement is suggested these people hold up their hands in horror, especially should that improvement mean a cent of cost to them. They are contented to crawl into their shell and move along in the old rut while sitting down and waiting for something to happen.

The record of some of these people is that of skinflints of the first water, who would skin a flea for the hide and steal wood from their neighbor's lot to boil the remains for tallow, borrowing a wringer to be sure they got it all. Several of their kind are dead. One of them who bought four foot wood shortly before his death begged the man who was sawing it to take out a little of the "set" in the saw, as he was wasting too much wood. The sawdust pile looked large to him. But the stingy soul is now in heaven, and his body is not occupying enough land to materially reduce the crop of spuds in Clallam county. When Port Angeles gets a few more of its old skinflints into the kingdom come, it will be in a better position to prosper.

September 4th has been set apart as Dairy Day at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, and dairymen from many parts of the United States and Canada will be present and take part in the demonstrations. President E. J. Ross of the Washington State Dairymen's Association will bring ten of the best cows in the state to the grounds and will keep them in a tent for several days and make practical demonstrations with the patent milkers.

"These little machines," said President Ross, "will revolutionize the dairy business, when once their merits are fully recognized. Milking by machinery may sound a little 'phony' to some folk but it's successful, and what used to be a hard task under the new system will be a decided pleasure. The great draw back to the dairy business is in finding men who are capable and willing to do the milking, but with these little machines a 14 year old boy can milk as many cows as five men under the old system and do it better."

H. L. Willett, chairman of the Dairy Day committee, when asked concerning the arrangements for the day said, "Mr. Gould of Aurora, Ohio, one of the greatest and most expert dairymen in the world, will be here and deliver an address in the Fine Arts Hall at 3 o'clock p. m., September 4th. H. J. Blanchard, superintendent of the experimental station at Puyallup will also deliver an address. We expect to serve milk, cheese, sandwiches, etc., to the public on that day and in every way possible make it a day of great interest to all the people."

All cities and towns in the Northwest are enjoying rapid growth in population, but Wenatchee comes forward with the biggest claim of all. A municipal census just taken by the Polk Directory Company under the direction of the city council, gives the number of inhabitants in the home of the big red apple as 5,245. In 1900, when the last national census was taken, Wenatchee received credit for 450; so that it has grown more than a thousand per cent. Fruit is not the only thing that seems to thrive in the fertile Columbia river valley, for population goes by leaps and bounds.

The men of Washington will have to tell how they stand on the equal suffrage question for a canvass of all voters is to be made soon. The organization has been extended into every precinct with instructions from headquarters to ask every man whether he will vote for the suffrage amendment in November, 1910, or not. Of course, Mr. Voter can refuse to answer but then the suffragists will be reasonably sure that he is against their cause. They are also raising a campaign fund, pledges ranging from 25 cents to $25 a month, being subscribed. Money is accepted from men and no questions asked if it is tainted or not.

J. C. FIELDS AT REST

How true it is that sorrow is the dominant cord of nature, and yet how equally true that the sorrows that await mankind are often the means of leading the sorrowing to a clearer conception of duty to others and to their Maker. The sad news of the death of Mr. J. C Fields at the Soldiers' Home at Orting was received with mingled surprise and heartfelt sympathy by this entire community, especially so as his death followed so closely upon that of his beloved daughter, Mrs. Anna Willson and grandchild, Master Wilbur Fields. But few of Comrade Fields most intimate friends were aware of his illness until they learned of his death. All knew that he had not been in robust health for some time, but little expected that the end was so near, and it is no doubt true that the recent death of his daughter and home-keeper, Mrs. Willson, had much to do towards hastening his dissolution. While his health was shattered his spirit was strong for doing right and he was ever ready for the Master's call. Death had no terrors for him. In the mellow sunset of an honored life he passed into the valley of the shadow and fell asleep at the sound of the taps of Death. He was an honored member of Pacific Post, and seldom failed to attend its weekly meetings.

John Charles Fields was born Oct. 16th, 1847, at Sugar Loaf Hill, Jackson County, Ohio, and died August 18, 1909, at the State Soldiers' Home at Orting. He was 61 yrs., 10 mos. and 2 dys. old. He was married to Margaret C. Pickens Sept. 22, 1872. To this union four children were born. He was preceded in death by his wife and daughter, Mrs. Anna Willson. There are left to mourn his death three sons, Rev. D. L. Fields of Salem, Oregon, and C. W. and M. E. Fields of this city.

He died in the faith which he so closely lived, without apparent pain. He closed his hands in prayer and peacefully passed away.

He enrolled as a private under Capt. E. E. Wilsons, Co. C., Twenty-second Regiment West Virginia Cavalry, Veteran Volunteers, on the 17th day of December, 1863, to serve three years, and was honorably discharged the service on the 13th day of June, 1865, at Wheeling, West Va.

The entire family moved from Laclede, Mo., to Atwood, Kan., in 1879, and to Aspin Junction, Col., in 1889, and to present home in Port Angeles in fall of 1891, which has since been his home.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist Episcopal church on last Saturday afternoon, conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. M. Hixson, assisted by the church choir, which sang favorite songs of deceased. Pacific Post and Corps, G. A. R., attended the services as organizations. At the close of the regular service, the memorial service ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic was read. The large number of neighbors and friends present, and the abundance of beautiful flowers attested to the respect and esteem in which deceased was held. Following the services at the church, the remains were conveyed to Ocean View to rest on the soldier's lot beside those of his wife, and of his comrades who have gone before.

Wednesday, September 2nd, is to be Smith Day at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. Port Angeles could and no doubt will send a good delegation to the Smith Family Day festivities.

ist for the next 25 years? There is one main across Pine Hill from the intake to Second street, along Second to Valley, along Valley to First, along First to Peabody, along Peabody to 8th, along 8th 800 feet east; across 6th from Peabody two blocks west; on Oak one block, on Laurel the same. The front street main extends .from Oak to Francis with a spur off Eunice a few hundred feet north. This constitutes the water system of the city as far as real mains are concerned and these are not the best. The rest of the city is supplied by ½ inch pipes, put in at the expense of the patrons, and this is what we are to have for the next 25 years.

Then again, think of paying 40c per 1000 gallons for water where it is so abundant as here. The tap open for 15 minutes will let through this amount, and this is the rate charged consumers of less than 5,000 gallons in any one month.

And the idea of the city paying $66.50 per month for hydrants! Such a thing as cities paying rental for a little water once in a while for fire protection is unwarranted. The city should possibly pay for the installation of the hydrants, but to pay in the neighborhood of $1,000 per year or anything for fire protection is a graft. There are many other provisions that should have been incorporated in a franchise of this nature and that are conspicuous for their absence, not the least of which is a clause whereby the council might re-adjust rates upon a proper showing, and a clause whereby the city might purchase as its interests may appear later. A franchise of this nature is a private monopoly and should be granted only after most careful consideration.

To recapitulate, the new ordinance is little better in provisions than the old. It has no more safeguards of the city's interests, and the old ordinance is considered by all as the biggest sell ever perpetrated upon this people. The present system is considered bad, very bad, but there is nothing in this grant to compel material improvement. The same old break downs are just as possible under the new grant. The present water plant is variously estimated to be worth around $15,000, not to exceed $20,000, counting all contributed by patrons. The grantees of this grant will pay less than this amount for the plant. It would not be worth half this amount if proper provisions were put in this ordinance. The assessor figures it worth $5,000. It will cost probably $5,000 to connect with Ennis creek either at 8th street main or at the Front street end, and by so doing and by extending across Tumwater gulch from Pine Hill to Filion mill, will have done all that this new grant compels them to do.

The present net income of the plant, under present rates and present conditions, is about $3,000 to $4,000 per annum. Under the new schedule this will be nearly doubled. So if Port Angeles should remain as at present the company would have a fat thing of it. In a few years at best, however, we expect to be a large and growing city.

I do not wish to impugn the motive of those who voted for this grant, most of the men are above reproach, but it does appear that they were terribly imposed upon.

Yours very truly,
A. J. Cosser.

THE SUMMONS.

One whose time was spent—
As the shadow flickered o'er him—
From the clefts where it is pent
Summoned the Sphinx before him:

"Intimate pulse of my heart—
Nearer than child or wife—
Now that our ways must part,
What can you do for me, Life?

"What are the things you have done?
You cast me out on the sands,
Meshed in a blind web spun
By dead, unthinking hands.

"Fettered here in the dark—
Yet drawn to the spheres afar,
You give us the glow worm's spark
And mock us with the star.

"You take the rose of love
And crush it in your hand;
In hard, cold ways you move—
We can not understand.

"To our last dim lurking place
You bring the spoiler Death."
Over the Sphinx's face
Fluttered a smile's wan breath.

A Thorough Victory

Allan had to face a fierce opposition. The landlords opposed him as a wrecker and robber. The politicians looked upon him as an intruder and meddler. He rather liked this opposition. It developed his fighting resources.

One day Laura Edwards passed an angry man on the stairway. She knew he was angry by his mutterings and his heavy tread and his fiery face.

"Did you just have a caller?" she asked Allan.

He laughed.

"Yes. That was the great McCool."

"The boss!"

"Yes. He came here to have it out with me. He warned me to keep off the grass. He even used threats."

The girl's face suddenly grew pale.

"You mustn't be rash," she said.

"EVERYTHING WILL BE DONE FOR HIM."

Then she hastily added, "The league can't spare such a valuable official.

He laughed again.

"The great McCool is a good deal of a bluffer," he said. "Besides, I fancy I have trimmed his fangs."

"How?"

"There is a certain man who feels indebted to me. I have helped him at times—helped him when his need was urgent. In some way he has come into possession of certain facts regarding the great McCool, facts which are not to that eminent politician's credit. I used a little of this material in my talk with him, and he straightway collapsed. In fact, I don't expect he will trouble me again."

"Why, that's splendid!" Laura cried. "He was such a stumbling block."

Allan glowed at this praise.

"And I have more good news for you," he said. "I am to have an interview on Thursday morning with the dreadful Crimmins. It is the first time he has consented to see me."

"Be careful," said Laura. "He is called a revengeful man. May I come on Thursday afternoon and hear the result of the meeting?"

"May you come?" echoed Allan. "I shall feel much hurt if you fail to come."

When Laura entered the office of the league that Thursday afternoon, Allan was sitting at his desk with a bandage about his head."

She gave a little gasp.

"Wh-what has happened?" she cried.

"Nothing serious," he answered. "Merely a bump with Mr. Crimmins' compliments."

"Tell me about it."

"There is little to tell," Allan answered. "After Mr. Crimmins presumed upon our brief acquaintance by handing me this souvenir, the discussion became absorbing. It ended in my favor. Mr. Crimmins seemed to accept his defeat with a poor grace. This obliged me to use an argument that I had hoped to hold in reserve."

"What was the argument?"

"It was based upon my ability and willingness to hunt up Mr. Crimmins at any time and beat him to a frazzle if he persisted in annoying us."

Laura was a little horrified, and yet could not help smiling.

"And what was the result of this heroic form of persuasion?"

"The wreckers will begin to demolish the Crimmins tenements next Monday morning."

"Splendid!" cried the girl.

Allan was a busy man. while the dreadful old buildings gave up their horde of lodgers. There were homes to be found. there were hungry mouths to be fed.

And then one morning a man in a blue uniform came to the Edwards home.

"I'm a sanitary officer, miss," he said to Laura, "and I bring you a message from Mr. Merling. He has been taking care of a sick boy, miss, and we find it's smallpox, and they've both been sent to the hospital for contagious cases." He saw that Laura's face suddenly blanched. "Everything will be done for him, miss, that can be done. He sent you his kindest regards and asked you to visit the office occasionally, if convenient, miss. If you wish it, miss, will let you know how he is faring from time to time." He paused on the steps. "He is a fine young man, miss, and has done a splendid work, and we all hope it will go light with him."

He saw that Laura was crying and said no more.

The weeks that followed were anxious ones for others beside the girl. The story of Allan's labors, of the good he had accomplished, of the sacrifices he had made, was told throughout the busy city.

So the weeks went by and then a letter came to Laura. Allan was no longer in the hospital. He was at a sanitarium where they were trying to build him up so he could go away—to Colorado or Arizona, the doctor wasn't sure which.

"I am coming to see you before I go, although it will hurt my pride," he wrote. "I'm not scarred up so much, but bony, painfully and unpleasant to look upon. But I want to see you, I want to tell you what you have done for me. I had a lot of time to think it over there in the hospital. If it hadn't been for you I would have gone on in the old profligate way. You saw something in me that nobody else knew I possessed. I didn't know it myself. They tell me I've done a few worthy things, but it is to you the credit is due. In all things I have only been your agent."

Three days later he followed the letter. Laura heard the carriage and ran to meet him, and drew him into the library and put him in the big easy chair.

He was just a little overcome by these attentions, but tried to conceal it.

"This is fine," he said. "Everybody is so good to me. Such funny things happen. That carriage driver out there asked me if he might shake hands with me. And do you see this little bunch of flowers. A woman was waiting at the door of the sanitarium. She gave me that. She's the mother of that sick boy, you remember—the one I helped. You are looking very well, Miss Laura—only a little pale."

She didn't answer him. She couldn't quite control her voice. He was so woefully thin and pale, but the old smile was still there.

"They are having such a time," he said, "finding the right sort of nurse to go with me. I'm quite fussy, you know, and need such a lot of care. Why, what's wrong?"

She was looking down at him, and her eyes were filled with tears.

"Don't," he whispered. "I shall be sorry I came. Can't you see how I'm trying to brace up? Don't you realize how it hurts me to go away from you?"

She suddenly stopped and put her loving arms around him and kissed his scarred face.

"Oh, my dear," she murmured, "you will take me with you and let me care for you—always."—W. R. Rose in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Rare Opportunity.

When the circus came to Bushby the large attendance was a surprise to Squire Bemis, and he said so to William Hamlin, the postmaster.

"It is natural that men and children should wish to go," remarked the squire in his formal tone, "but I must confess to a feeling of amazement on hearing that the ladies of the town had flocked to see wild beasts, and that young woman who leaps from one wire to another, with no regard for her personal safety."

"Tell you just how 'tis, squire," said Mr. Hamlin, confidentially. "I don't think many of the women folks planned to go till Jed Potter came in here one mail time and told Miss Emma Bolles he understood the show was enough to scare anybody out of ten years' growth.

"Miss Emma's getting on, and you couldn't expect her to let a chance like that go—nor any of the other women, now could ye?"

A Little "Worthy."

Eve herself could not have been sweeter than the little Princess Anne, of whom Thomas Fuller tells in his "Worthies of England."

Born in 1637, this daughter of Charles I died in her infancy, when not full four years old.

"Being minded by those about her," writes the old chronicler, "to call upon God even when the pangs were upon her, 'I am not able,' saith she, 'to say my long prayer'—meaning the Lord's prayer—'but I will say my short one, "Lighten mine eyes, O Lord, lest I sleep the sleep of death."'

Maraschino Cherries.

Pit the cherries and weigh them, saving all the juice. To every four pounds of fruit there must be two pounds of sugar and a cup of liquid. Enough juice should exude during the stoning process to furnish the liquid, but if not add a little water. Make a sirup of the sugar and water, set at the side of the range and bring to the boiling point. Take from the fire and, while still warm but not scalding hot, pour the sirup over the cherries. Set aside for half an hour, then put over the fire in a porcelain lined kettle and heat slowly. Boil for five minutes, take out the fruit with a skimmer, boil the sirup for twenty minutes, skimming off the scum as it rises and, just before taking from the fire, add a pint of Maraschino cordial for every four quarts of fruit. Pack the cherries in jars, fill each jar to overflowing with the liquid and seal.

It must be remembered that New is probably the most strict state in its marriage laws. It grants an absolute divorce for only one reason, and the charge must be clearly proved, and by competent witnesses, whether the defendant puts in an answer or not. If Justice Dowling's rulings were more liberal to Mr. Gould's side, the peace and continued existence of a great many marital unions would soon be attacked. The road to a separation would lie through getting one's husband or wife a little tight upon one or two occasions.

An excellent cake, cheap, easily made, and with a flavor of its own.

Five thousand persons are served every day in the restaurant which occupies a whole floor in a department store. A woman has charge, applying, as she says, the same methods she uses in her home—methods which, as outlined in a current magazine, suggest that a successful housekeeper conforms to business principles, but humanizes them while she does so. To plan the day's work ahead is the manager's first rule, and the second is to give each direction a single definite point, and make sure that it is understood. In harmony with this idea, the manager refuses to send word from one subordinate to another. Each employe is reached as each is needed; and if there is a criticism to be made, no one hears it but the person whom it concerns. Again, the manager tries to learn and bear in mind each worker's limitations—to remember that a faithful and willing assistant may have the time, but not the strength, to do a certain task, and that if the burden is regularly imposed, enthusiasm falters and work becomes drudgery. Moreover, the head of the department maintains sympathetic relations with her help, shows an interest in their affairs, invites their confidence, and tries to assist them in their troubles. She believes she has her reward. There is, perhaps, no startling novelty in these laws of conduct; but a point that deserves to be emphasized appears in the suggestion that the plans which make the machinery of a home run smoothly work out equally well in the conduct of a business enterprise.

There is profound sociological meaning in the "rush" reported from the centers of registration for the three Indian reservations recently thrown open to homeseekers. There is also

FRUIT DRIER THE KEY TO SUCCESSFUL ORCHARDING

J. J. McDonald, now of Salem, Ore., was in town over Sunday, being accompanied from Seattle by his son Lyman. Mr. McDonald says he is still conducting the store at that place, but has sold out and intends to devote his time to fruit raising in the future. On his fruit ranch near Salem he has a good orchard of prunes, apples, cherries and pears, expecting to pick three tons of the latter this year, but that prunes are the big crop with him, as well as with most everyone else. He had a splendid crop of logan berries this year, securing three tons of dried fruit worth $400 per ton. In addition to drying his own fruit he handles that of several other orchardists and says his dryer easily makes him $25 a day during the busy season. Many of the growers dug up their logan berry vines the past year, discouraged by the hard frosts of the past winter, but Mr. McDonald says he trains the bearing vine along a three strand wire fence and the growing shoots along the ground underneath, 5,000 stakes being required for the 4½ acres of vines. Lying on the ground, and being partially sheltered by the dense foliage of the vines above, his young vines suffered no injury. He expects to sell about 5,000 young plants this year at 2½ cents each, to neighbors who have seen their mistake and want to plant again. Altogether Mr. McDonald seems to have been doing quite well, thank you, in his new home, and to have excellent prospects for the future.

We would be pleased to have the ladies call and look over our new stock of suitings, twills, chambrays, checked silks, cashmeres, linens, plaids, toweling, outing flannels, light and heavy blankets, that came in yesterday. We have not had time to mark them so as to quote prices but we bought these goods at a discount, thus giving our patrons the advantage of saving money on every purchase. A complete extra line of comforters that you should see. At R. A. Muskett's.

RECKLESS EXTRAVAGANCE

Gettysburg, Aug. 24, '09.

Editor Olympic-Leader:—We read in one of the Angeles newspapers about the reckless extravagance in one of the school districts of a timber region. This time it is in Jefferson county. The writer says that one district with only six children recklessly expended $2000 on a school house and school grounds, with a fence around it—just as though there were prominent people living in the district! And they had the supreme gall to build a woodshed and other out buildings, and possibly a play house for the children in rainy weather! Such reckless extravagance and rascality should be severely punished. To be sure we have taken the road money of these people and left most out lying districts without roads, say the timber men. But what of that? Why don't they sell out their homes and work for us? Timber owners, with the sanction of the legislature, last winter passed a law that makes it practically impossible for these people to clear their land. They are anxious that the tax commissioners should publish all such incidents as the above and thereby assist them in creating public opinion that an amendment to the constitution may be passed that will exempt all corporations from local assessment; that after the state roads are built, these home makers will have to build their own roads, if they have any; that will take their right away to levy taxes for school purposes! Log school houses with a dirt floor is good enough for them. It is true that we, the timbermen, own most of the valuable property in those districts It is also true that we don't want to pay taxes. We should be looked upon as public benefactors.

Oscar Nelson.
