CANDIDATES FILING ANNOUNCEMENTS

Several Citizens Have Declared Intention to Become Candidates for County Offices.

Last Friday, July 15, was the first day on which candidates for state and county offices could file their declarations of candidacy for the September primaries, and several candidates availed themselves of the opportunity by visiting County Auditor Hawkin's office and publically declaring their intentions to become candidates for county offices on the Republican ticket, and by depositing their money in the county's hands.

The filing fees received from candidates for county offices and for the legislature amount to quite an item. Superior Court judges pay $40 for filing their candidacy, and the schedule under the primary law runs from that sum down to $1.00, which is the price paid for the privilege of running for Wreckmaster, a position largely honorary in its duties. Legislative candidates pay $20, and candidates for county offices from $10 to $14 each.

For superintendent of schools, Mrs. Ina M. McNutt, the present efficient assistant superintendent, has filed. It is not likely Mrs. McNutt will have any opposition on the Republican ticket for the office she seeks, and probably none from the opposition party.

County Clerk Horace White will again be a candidate for clerk, and Deputy Auditor R. S McLaughlin has filed as a candidate for county auditor. It is not known whether these gentlemen will have any opponents on the Republican ticket for the offices for which they have filed, but it is not likely any Republicans will contest their candidacy.

Three candidates have declared their intentions to become candidates on the Republican ticket for the nomination for county treasurer. They are F. L. Thompson, C.L. Babcock and W. A. Lange. For county attorney the present incumbent, W. B. Ritchie, will be a candidate for renomination.

Willis D. Cook has declared his intention of entering the race for the office of assessor, and so far has no opposition.

James R. Gallagher has filed for the office of sheriff. Garfield Davis had not filed when this report was made, but no doubt will. These men are both strong, active workers and a lively and interesting race is anticipated.

For commissioner of the first district, Frank Lotzgesell and P. S. Govan have filed for this important office of trust. Ray L. Haynes and J. C. Hansen have each announced their candidacy for the office of commissioner of the second district. Neither of these gentlemen had filed up to noon on Thursday.

So far no one has filed for the office of senator for this senatorial district. There seems to be no unusual activity in this county just at present among would-be aspirants for the state senate. For the past two weeks and more it has been currently reported that C. J. Farmer would be Clallam county's "wet" candidate for this office, instead of J. G. McClinton, whose candidacy has been urged in some quarters for some time.

While E. E. Fisher has announced his candidacy for re-nomination for representative in the local papers, he has not as yet filed his intentions.

Doubtless the Democrats will have a ticket in the field, and it is understood that the Socialists will also name a ticket, but no one of either party up to last evening had parted with his cash and declared his intention of becoming self-sacrificing public benefactor.

Happy Birthday Party.

Little Miss Marion Day celebrated her fifth birthday anniversary in a very delightful manner on the beautiful lawn of the Farmer home. About thirty little friends were bidden to come and enjoy the afternoon with her, and it was a pretty sight to see the little tots flitting here and there about the lawn so happy in their childish games and play. The tables were spread out under the trees and were beautifully decorated in flowers and the ice cream and cool drinks served were particularly appetizing this hot afternoon. Little Marion was the recepient of many pretty gifts from her numerous friends.

THAT FERRY BOAT SERVICE AGAIN

Great Northern Railway Company Considering Connecting West Side of Sound with Everett.

Reports from prominent officials indicate that the Great Northern Railway Company will shortly establish a ferry boat service between Irondale and Everett, says the Irondale News of last Friday. The move on the part of the Great Northern seems to be made with the expectations of reaching out for the new business now coming into prominence on Port Townsend bay, and the securing of the lumber trade between the big saw mills at Port Ludlow, and the large shingle industry at Port Angeles and the eastern markets.

Similar reports were rife some three years since, when extensive additions and drying facilities were installed in the big mill at Port Ludlow. At the time when the enterprise appeared the price of lumber took a decided slump in the markets, and the matter was dropped for the time being. Now the proposition has again croped up, and from all indications it seems very probable that a ferry service, operated by and with the Great Northern Railway Company will be inaugerated. The products of the Western Steel Corporation in Irondale will in itself be a valuable contributor in the freighting business, and the chemical works of the Classen Chemical Company will soon constitute another valuable contributor to eastern shipments. The eastern demand for western lumber and Washington shingles is now extensive, and the proposed service will communicate with the lumbering and shingle mills of Port Hadlock, Ludlow, Townsend and Angeles.

It is believed that the putting in of such eastern railway connections between this side of Puget Sound and Everett, has been brought about through the Chamber of Commerce of Everett. This body has been actively interested in establishing more satisfactory connections between their city and the centers across the sound. The operating of the proposed ferry service will open to Everett a territory for commercial exploitation which is at present unavailable, and will be of equal value to the cities and hamlets of this side. It will open up a new field of commerce for both sections of the State of Washington, and will place Port Townsend, Irondale, Port Hadlock, Port Ludlow, Port Angeles and other west side cities in direct rail communication with the eastern states and markets.

ELKS' ASSOCIATION MEETING IN ANGELES

A Large Crowd and a Big Time Anticipated. Roast Steer to Be Served at Barbacue.

PORT ANGELES, July 18.—The members of the local lodge of Elks are making preparations for the entertainment of the Washington State Elks' Association, which meets in Port Angeles August 10, 11 and 12. Representative E. E. Fisher, who is in charge of the local committee on arrangements has already secured many attractions and the indications are that the annual meeting of the Elks of the state in Port Angeles will be a notable occasion.

The people of this city are getting Civic park into condition to entertain the crowds that are expeeted. Port Angeles has won distinction in times past for the excellence of its barbecues Upon the occasion of the assemblage of the Elks a large steer will be barbecued in the park. The roast steer will be stuffed with chickens and the chickens will be stuffed with clams. Mr. Fisher believes that the combination of steer, chickens and clams will appeal to the visitors.

"We had planned to barbecue an elk," said Mr. Fisher, "and we asked the authorities for permission to capture one in the Olympic mountains. The reply we got was permission to barbecue any Elk in Port Angeles that we desired to. After thinking it over we decided to roast a steer and to carry out the illusion by putting elk horns on it.

"There is no lodge in the state more competent to barbecue a steer than Naval Lodge, of Port Angeles. When we did it before we made a decided hit, and we propose adding a few features to make the occasion memorable. In addition to the barbecue there will be a big clambake, and we shall serve planked salmon and trout.

"The lodge has appointed a commitee of women to entertain the wives and daughters of the visiting Elks. Every minute of the three days will be full of entertainments. We have secured a big band of Indians to give canoe races and whale chases in the harbor. The Indians will be dressed in their hunting costumes and will give exhibitions of throwing the whale lance, hunting the sea otter and driving the war canoes through the water. There will be other sports on land and water and a carnival will help to make things lively.

"It has been the purpose of the Port Angeles Elks to make the programme different from anything ever given before. We expect a large crowd and have obtained rates on the steamship lines. The round trip from Seattle to Port Angeles will be $1.50. In addition to the Bellingham and the Whatcom, the steamships regularly on the run, we have secured the Chippewa and the Iroquois. There will be at least one trip to the ocean from Port Angeles."

H. M. Fisher, brother of E.E. Fisher, also of Port Angeles, is president of the state association.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

CLALLAM COUNTY ALL RIGHT.

A correspondent of the P.-I. accompanying Senator John L. Wilson in his speaking tour about the state, wrote his paper as follows from Sequim:

"Senator Wilson passed the day in visiting the people of the Dungeness valley, Sequim Prairie, Port Williams, Washington harbor and Sequim. He was the guest at dinner at the home of County Commissioner H. J. Bugge.

Senator Wilson passed through one of the most fertile and prosperous sections of the state today. The majority of the farmers are Republicans of the old-time sort, who will vote true on election day to support the policies of the Republican party and President Taft.

"Senator Wilson pointed out that Clallam county ultimately would become a great dairying and farming country under a policy which permitted settlers to find homes upon the vacant agricultural lands. He declared that the withholding of 21,000 square miles of land from settlement in the state of Washiagton must in time seriously affect the prosperity of the people and retard their progress.

Minor Happenings of the Week

The national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians is in session at Portland this week.

The London County Council has voted not to allow exhibitions of the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures.

Washington.—Amarillo, the principal city of the Panhandle of Texas, grew from 1,442 in 1900 to 9,957 in 1910, according to figures made public by the census bureau.

Shanghai newspapers received by the Empress of China state that Taku forts taken during the Boxer war are to be retroceeded to China in September.

Richard L. Metcalf, assistant editor of W. J. Bryan's Commoner, filed a petition with the secretary of state as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator.

Winnipeg, Man.—The Roblin government of Manitoba and government ownership of grain elevators won at the polls last week, the Conservatives electing 27 and the Liberals 15 seats.

No session of the senate will be called to confirm nominations for justices of the supreme court of the United States and no justices will be named until fall. This assurance has been given by President Taft.

Plans have been completed for the new building for the bureau of engraving and printing, which is to cost $1,750,000. The building is to be 850 feet long, four stories in height, classic in style of architecture, and is to be built on the site of the present structure.

A crowd numbering 750,000 persons, including thousands of American tourists, witnessed the annual military review at Longchamps Thursday in celebration of the French national fete day. King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium witnessed the review of 60,000 troops.

According to an official statement just issued, the total earnings of the National Railways of Mexico for the fiscal year, 1909-10, ending June 30, were $34,540,127 gold. This is an increase of $3,176,375 over the previous year. The total trackage of the system is now 7,226 miles. A year ago it was 6,965 miles.

GREAT COALING STATION AT PUGET SOUND YARD

Navy Yard, Puget Sound, July 16.—This yard will become the chief coaling station for the Pacific fleet if present plans of the navy department are carried out. Under direction of the navy department the civil engineer's force of the yard has begun a preliminary survey for a 200,000-ton coaling plant to be located at the west end of the navy yard immediately east of the present yard coal bunkers.

Such a plant, it is estimated, would cost close to $2,000,000. The present coaling pier of the yard has a capacity of 25,000 tons under cover, with room for 25,000 tons more on adjacent ground. This plant was established at a cost of more than a quarter of a million dollars. In the contemplated bunkers provisions are to be made for the storing of a reserve supply of coal submerged in salt water. Tests recently conducted by the navy department has proved that coal keeps better in that condition.

Huge submersible steel tanks to hold the reserve supply of coal for the Pacific fleet will probably be one of the features of the immense bunkers. The pier will probably be constructed of steel with concrete piers.

The fact that the navy department has authorized the survey indicates that high officials of the navy favor the project and that probably the next congress will be asked to make an appropriation for the beginning of the work on the institution.

WILL FINISH CANADIAN NORTHERN AHEAD OF TIME

Vancouver, B. C., July 16.—"All our plans are being made to finish the construction of the Canadian Northern in British Columbia one year ahead of the specified time for its completion. That means the last touch on the undertaking in the summer of 1913, for our agreement with the government of this province calls for the finishing of the work within four years from the first day of the present month."

This statement was made by D. D. Mann, vice president of the Canadian Northern, before leaving Seattle yesterday for Victoria, where he will look into matters connected with the Victoria and Barclay Sound railway, which will be under construction this year.

Youngest Woman Takes Degree.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 16.—The youngest person ever to take a master of arts degree from the University of Michigan, and possibly from any university in the United States, is Miss Dorothea Jones, of Harrisburg, Pa. She was 17 years old.

The forty-first session of the Grand Lodge of Washington, I. O. G. T., is being held this year, for the first time since 1899, in the Good Templar building at Chautauqua, Vashon island. The opening session was on Tuesday.

A contract, made prior to final proof by a homesteader, to convey water rights or rights of way for water power ditches, is void, declares the state supreme court, and the courts will not attempt to enforce such a contract.

Two Indian reservations in this state, the Yakima and Colville, are expected to be opened to settlement next year, according to Judge James W. Witten, superintendent of the last land drawings for the interior department.

The Yakima General Hospital Association, recently reorganized, plans the erection in the near future of a three-story non-sectarian hospital on lots on Nob Hill now owned by the association. The building will cost nearly $50,000.

A site near the Tacoma high school stadium for the buildings of the Washington state historical society and the Ferry museum was purchased at auction from the board of education for $10,000. The tract is about an acre of ground.

Denial is made by the engineering department of the Great Northern that the order for twelve million feet of lumber, to be used in the construction of the Wellington snowsheds, had been cancelled. On the contrary, it was asserted that the work is rapidly progressing.

The Washington branch of the National Industrial Peace Association perfected organization at a meeting at the Commercial Club in Seattle Friday afternoon. Prof. E. S. Meaney of the University of Washington was elected president; Pliny L. Allen, permanent secretary.

JUDGE PUTS END TO WORK OF LAND AGENTS

Portland, Ore., July 16. — Judge Charles E. Wolverton today put an end to the activities of land agents in connection with locating prospective settlers on granted lands of the Oregon & California railroad and the Southern Pacific company.

With more than 5,000 persons in every state in the union represented as intervenors in the suit by which the government hopes to forefeit 2,300,000 acres along the right of way of the Southern Pacific in Oregon, it is stated that approximately $700,000 has been obtained from homeseekers.

While not declaring the operations of the land locators and their attorneys to have been fraudulent, the court assumed judicial knowledge of the statement of Assistant United States Attorney Walter H. Evans that some of the claims have been filed upon from six to ten times, and that "somebody would certainly be loser" no matter what may be the final decision handed down from the federal bench.

LUMBER COMPANIES SEEK UNIFORM LIABILITY LAW

Seattle, July 18.—Lumbermen of Western Washington, through the legislative committee of the Pacific Coast Lumber Manufacturers' Association, have launched a campaign for the enactment by the legislature of an employers' liability law whereby employes of all kinds shall be paid for injuries received, and without the costly litigation now so frequent.

The lumber companies now propose to arrange for a state-wide conferenec of employers, employes, representatives of organized labor and others to shape the legislation desired.

"We desire to do away, so far as possible, with the animus of personal damage suits and take out of the hands of the unscrupulous attorneys a business which deprives the injured of what is rightfully theirs," said Paul Page, of the Lumber Manufacturers' committee. "We want the men injured in the mills, logging camps, on the railroads, in the shops and elsewhere to receive every penny due them and not the pittance they now so often receive in case they are injured.

"We believe that the amount of money yearly spent in personal damage litigation, together with the large sums paid by employers to employers' liability insurance companies, would go far toward making every injured workingman comfortable."

Corporations Pay Government

Washington, July 16.—Reports received at the treasury department give the total payments on account of the corporation tax as $25,793,610 out of an assessment of over $27,000,000. These figures were for the close of business Saturday.

TWO TRIPS PLANNED BY ROOSEVELT

SPEAKING TOURS WEST AND SOUTH IN AUGUST AND OCTOBER.

Will Resemble Campaign Trips by Presidential Candidate—Two Notable Speeches Expected at Chicago and Milwaukee—Indiana Date Not Fixed.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 16.—Theodore Roosevelt has given out the itineraries of the two speaking tours he soon is to make—one into the west late in the summer, and the other through the south in the early fall.

The two tours will resemble a campaign trip by a presidential candidate, for Col. Roosevelt will not only make as many set speeches as his traveling card permits, but probably he will deliver talks from the rear end of his private car.

For the first trip a car already has been chartered. The western trip is to begin August 25 and will end September 11. The southern trip will extend from Octiber 6 to October 13. The itineraries follow:

Whirlwind Trip.

Western trip—August 25, leave New York; August 27, arrive Cheyenne; August 29, Denver; August 31, Osawatomie, Kan.; September 2, Omaha; September 3, Sioux Falls, S. D.; September 5, Fargo, N. D.; September 6, St. Paul; September 7, Milwaukee, September 8, Freeport, Ill. and Chicago; September 10, Pittsburg; September 11, arrive New York.

Southern trip—October 6, leave New York; October 8, Atlanta, Ga.; October 10, Hot Springs, Ark.; October 12, Peoria, Ill.; October 13, speech in Indiana for Senator Beveridge, place not yet chosen.

Colonel Roosevelt's secretary has been studying time tables for the last two weeks, squeezing in as many speeches as train connection would permit.

Urgent requests for a "few words" have come by hundreds from political organizations, clubs, schools and personal friends.

The most of these Col. Roosevelt has been obliged to decline, and in announcing his program today he said he wished to make it understood clearly that he could consider no further invitations. Already he has been compelled to refuse many that he wished to accept.

Two Noted Speeches.

At Chicago Col. Roosevelt will speak before the Hamilton Club, a political organization with which his relations for years have been cordial, and which is sure to give him an enthusiastic reception.

At Milwaukee he speaks before the Press Club.

The first address on the southern trip will be on Uncle Remus' day, named in memory of Joel Chandler Harris, who in his lifetime was a warm friend of Col. Roosevelt. The Peoria speech will be before the Knights of Columbus, a Roman Catholic organization.

The place for the Indiana speech in support of Senator Beveridge will depend upon political exigencies.

Thus far Col. Roosevelt has only considered his subject matter in a general way. He knows he will deal with current questions which form the basis of political discussion, but he knows that his speech for Senator Beveridge will be politics pure and simple, an open plea for the senator's success in his campaign. There were no political conference today at Sagamore Hill. The colonel was busy with his editorial work and his correspondence.

SHERIFFS WANT LONGER TERM AND MORE PAY

Everett, July 16.—Resolutions adopted by the Washington State Sheriffs' Association recommended the submitting of a constitutional amendment at the next general election to take away the limitation of the sheriffs' and prosecuting attorneys' terms of office to two years, and that the legislature enact a law making the terms four years and increasing their salaries. The association further recommends the re-enactment of a law relative to drawing checks on a bank where the party drawing the checks has no funds. This law was repealed.

The association favors the lengthening of the term of superior and supreme court judges from four and six years to eight and ten years and that a special election be held for the election of judges.

A resolution was also adopted criticising the practice of the state board of control and the governor for releasing prisoners on parole without first notifying the officers of the county to which the convict goes of the release. The present system of release, the sheriffs claim, leaves them "up in the air" and causes confusion.

Toppenish Count Announced.

Washington, July 16.—The first of Washington towns to have its population announced is Toppenish, Yakima county, with 1,598. The figures were given out today. No comparisons are possible because Toppenish was not a separate municipality ten years ago.

At Northwest Chautauqua, Maxwelton, Whidby Island. Chautauqua Opened July 19, Ends July 31.

NORTHWEST CHAUTAUQUA NOW IN SESSION AT MAXWELTON, WHIDBY ISLAND

The opening of the first session of the Northwest Chautauqua Assembly at Maxwelton, on Whidby Island, on Tuesday, July 19, marked an epoch in educational and religious circles in the Northwest.

The combination of amusement and education afforded by the Chautauqua assemblies has seldom failed to prove attractive in the East, and from the interest manifested in the coming assembly there is little doubt the movement will prove fully as popular in the Northwest.

The Northwest Chautauqua Assembly aims to be representative of the best elements in the commercial, labor, temperance, religious, educational organizations and women's clubs in the Puget Sound region. Its board of directors and advisory board is composed of a representative from many such organizations. The best talent obtainable from the lyceum lecture bureaus has been engaged, at an expense of more than $3,000, in order to make the assembly a success.

An auditorium with a seating capacity of 4,000 has been erected, with the seats arranged on the sloping hillside that every seat has an unobstructed view of the 100-foot platform.

List of Speakers.

The list of lecturers includes such well-known men as former Gov. Joseph W. Folk of Missouri; Judge Frank P. Sadler, of Chicago; Edwin A. Layton, Oriental traveler; Albert Thompson of Nebraska; Rev. E. Tremayne Dunstan, president of the Chautauqua; Rev. Thomas J. Shuey, Prof. Julius C. Zeller, president of Puget Sound university; Rev. Joseph L. Garvin, president of the Ministerial Federation of Seattle; Mrs. Ida M. Snyder; Rev. Sam Small; Mrs. Lulu Loveland Shepherd, president of the Utah W. C. T. U.; Willis R. Hotchkiss, and Rev. W. H. W. Rees, pastor of the First Methodist church of Seattle.

The musical part of the program has not been neglected, and during the session the Chautauqua Ladies' orchestra, the Fort Casey band, the University Methodist Episcopal church choir and other musical organizations will be heard.

Special features are Zint Kalla Nuni (Lost Bird), the Indian girl entertainer; Rev. Billy Sunday; Elias and Oranne Truitt Day, dramatic entertainers; Ross Crane, cartoonist; Mrs. Francis King Headlee, illustrated picture lecturer, and Master Rex Parrot, 5-year-old musical prodigy.

Governor Opens Session.

The assembly was opened by Gov. M. E. Hay, who delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the Chautauqua association.

Special days are: July 20, Epworth League day; July 21, Woman's Suffrage day; July 22, W. C. T. U. day; July 23, Labor day; July 25, Conservation day; July 26, Grange day; July 27, Patriotic and G. A. R. day; July 28, Recognition day; July 29, Children's day; July 30, Educational day.

The Western Washington Baptist Assembly convened at the Chautauqua grounds on July 19 and will continue for ten days.

A thorough course in Bible study has been planned, but the schedule has been arranged so as to conflict as little as possible with the regular Chautauqua program.

Many Opportunities.

Free courses in physical culture, expression, voice culture, and nature study have been prepared for those who wish to take them.

The location of the assembly is described as ideal. There is a fine bathing beach, a large stretch of level ground, suitable for camping, and plenty of woods and hills in the background.

The grounds can be reached by three boat lines from Seattle, Everett and Port Townsend. A reduced rate of one fare and a third has been obtained upon all railroads from points in Washington and from Portland to Seattle or Everett. Boats from Seattle leave the Galbraith dock and from Everett leave the city dock.

Any information as to tents, locations, etc., can be obtained by application to the Chautauqua headquarters, 816 Third avenue, Seattle.

PRESIDENT TO DEFEND PARTY ON ITS RECORD

It has been authoritatively announced that President Taft's participation in the campaign this fall will be wholly of a general character. Whatever the president may have to say on politics will have to do with the work of the last congress and in proclaiming that to his way of thinking the Republican representatives placed in power two years ago have kept their faith and have carried out the party pledges.

The president will attempt to read no one out of the party. Neither will he have any candidate for any office. Personal friendship for William Loeb led the president in a friendly way to suggest that he would make a good candidate for governor of New York. But he has stated that it was not his intention to meddle in the affairs of any state and he will adhere strictly to this policy.

Studies Money.

President Taft is giving considerable thought to the forthcoming report by the monetary commission, which, it is expected, will recommend to congress sweeping monetary reforms. It is doubtful if the report will be ready for consideration until a year from next December.

If the next congress is Republican the president will make an effort to get a monetary reform bill through. Senator Aldrich, the leading spirit in the commission's work, will have retired from congress by that time, but it is said that after leaving the senate he will spend considerable time in going through the country making addresses in favor of a central bank of issue.

The president is also mapping out a line of work for the economy commission, to be composed of department chiefs at Washington.

To Probe Effect of Rate Cut.

Chicago, July 16.—The effect of the reduction ordered by the interstate commerce commission in railroad rates of Western railroads is to be inquired into in fifteen western cities, according to plans made today at a conference between representatives of the railroads and the commission. The accounts of the different roads are to be checked for a month by agents of the commission and railroad men.

MORANE, FRENCH AVIATOR, CAPTURES FIRST PRIZE

Bournemouth, England, July 18.—Leon Morane, the French aviator, has been officially awarded the first prize at the meeting just ended for speed, altitude, sea flight and general merit. J. Armstrong Drexel, son of Anthony Drexel, was awarded second place, while Graham White, the English aviator, takes third place.

Morane reached an altitude of 4,100 feet and covered 18 miles around the Needles lighthouse and return in 25 minutes.

The condition of Alan Boyle, son of the Earl of Glasgow, who was injured while making a flight here, was considered alarming by attending physicians.

Boyle's aeroplane fell from a considerable height, and the aviator was picked up unconscious. He suffered from concussion of the brain.

MILLION IMMIGRANTS ENTERED IN A YEAR

Washington, July 18.—Nearly 2000 of the immigrants who arrived at United States ports during the fiscal year ended June 30 last were denied admission by the immigration officials and were compelled to return to the countries from which they came.

Various reasons were assigned for refusing to allow them to remain here, including those of physical defects and the probability of their becoming public charges.

The fiscal year 1910 was a "million immigrants" year, the first for several years, the total number admitted being 1,041,570. Of the arrivals 786,094 came to New York; 53,617 to Boston; 37,641 to Philadelphia, and 30,563 to Baltimore.

To Complete Road to Ocean.

Montesano, July 16.—That the road from Copalis Crossing to Aloha, a distance of nine miles, connecting with the state road from Seattle and Tacoma to the open beach at Pacific, will be built by Chehalis county, is now a certainty. The county commissioners have ordered the survey and work will be begun so as to have the thoroughfare open for traffic by next July.

THINK WATER CARNIVAL A GREAT OPPORTUNITY

"It is certainly within the power of the people of Seattle to carry to a successful issue a water carnival that will far outrival the Portland rose festival, the St. Louis Veiled Prophet and the New Orleans Mardi Gras, if we go about it in the enthusiastic manner Seattle people do in other matters," said Mrs. L. W. McCoy, at the meeting of the Women's Commercial Club, at the monthly meeting at South Alki Thursday night. Mrs. McCoy had been a visitor at the Portland rose carnival.

"Portland people are quietly but surely boosting their own city," resumed Mrs. McCoy. "While there I did some marketing, and on asking for a certain brand of ham was told, by a small corner grocery, 'We do not carry that brand, but have a ham, made in Portland, very much superior.' Asking for a widely advertised biscuit, they replied, 'We do not carry that, but have a home-made cracker that is far superior.' On asking for Hawaiian pineapple, the same reply, 'This pineapple made by a Portland firm is much more delicious and salable.'

"The Women's Commercial Club wants to know why Seattle merchants do not adopt the policy of our sister city and courteously, but firmly, insist on selling Seattle-made goods. To get the women interested in buying them is the all important question."

The club is studying the city charter, and discussing its various points at the special meetings. It is contemplating making a large exhibit at the Yakima state fair, and sending some member to take charge of the exhibits.

IMPORTS FOR 1910 BREAK ALL RECORDS

Washington, D. C., July 16.—The total value of the foreign commerce of the United States during the fiscal year of 1910, which ended on June 30, was $3,302,821,047, according to complete returns made public by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor today.

The total imports were valued at $1,557,854,854, exceeding those of 1907, the previous high record year, by more than $123,000,000. The total exports were exceeded only by the years 1907 and 1908, and were valued at $1,774,966,203, falling off $136,000,000 behind 1907 and $110,000,000 below 1908. They exceeded 1909, however, by $82,000,000.

A rapid decline of excess exports is evident. They exceeded imports by $187,000,000 as against an excess of $351,000,000 in 1908, and $666,000,000 in 1908, the latter a high year for excess of exports.

Imports free of duty were $756,000,000 as compared with $644,000,000 in 1907, the former high record year for free imports. The dutiable imports were $802,000,000 against $790,000,000 in 1907, the previous high record year for dutiable imports.

CABINET OFFICIALS OFF FOR ALASKA

Washington, July 16.—Secretary Nagel, of the department of commerce and labor, has telegraphed here to have the Albatross ordered from Seattle to meet him and Attorney General Wickersham at Vancouver, B. C., sailing from there direct to Alaska on July 23.

The party will visit Seattle on their return.

The tentative itinerary calls for stops in the following order: Comox, Metlakahtla, Ketchikan (two days), Loring, Yes Bay, Wrangell, Juneau (three days), Skagway, Glacier bay, Killisnoo, Sitka, Yakutat, Valdez, Kodiak and Karluk, sailing from Karluk about August 28 and reaching Seattle about September 5.

GOVERNMENT PROVIDES FREE CAMPING GROUND

Longmire Springs, July 16.—The government has opened up a free camp site in the Mount Rainier national park to meet the demand for a public tenting ground. Supt. Edward S. Hall has had a few acres cleared and graded, and more land will be added as required. Already several parties have pitched tents in the new camping place. The grounds are in a sightly location amid the big tember bordering the government road, and not more than a quarter of a mile from the postoffice at Longmire Springs. Water is being piped to the camp site and tent poles will be furnished gratis by the government. Campers are permitted to cut an ample supply of fuel from the surrounding timber.

ADVERTISING READY FOR SUFFRAGE LAW

Olympia, July 16.—Gov. Hay will issue no proclamation for the primary election of September 13, the attorney general having advised him that none is necessary, but one will be issued later for the general election. Secretary of State Howell has prepared advertisements announcing the constitutional amendment to be voted on this fall permitting the legislature to enact laws which will enable women to vote.

STATE ASKS FOR BIDS ON CAPITOL LANDS

E. W. Ross, secretary of the state capitol lands commission, will sell to the highest bidders, August 4, 16,000 acres of land in the counties of Clarke, Cowlitz, Skagit, Skamania and Snohomish. Bids for the sale are being advertised for, and information as to the submission of proposals is being given out by the auditor of each county in the state. The acceptances will be made at Olympia by Secretary Ross and the commission.

FOR INTERNATIONAL RAILWAY BOARD

UNITED STATES AND CANADIAN AUTHORITIES TO CONFER ON SUBJECT

Increasing Traffic Across Border Making Control of Through Rates Difficult—Conference the Result of Correspondence Between the Two Countries—Meeting to Be at Ottawa.

Washington, July 16.—An international railroad commission with supervisory authority over the railways of the United States and Canada probably will be the result of an action taken today by this government in the appointment of Chairman Martin A. Knapp, of the interstate commerce commission, as the representative of the United States to confer with Hon. W. J. Mabee, chief of the railway commission of Canada. Announcement of Judge Knapp's appointement has just been made by the department. The appointment of Judge Knapp and of Mr. Mabee are the results of correspondence between the United States and Canada.

More than a year ago the subject was broached in a letter from Mr. Mabee to Judge Knapp. It was pointed out that the increasing traffic between the United States and Canada would render full control over rates in the future more difficult until joint action was taken. It was realized that the acquisition of Canadian terminals by American roads and of American roads and terminals by Canadian railways presented ever-increasing difficulties. It is not possible to compel railway or express companies to establish joint and through rates to and from points in the two countries.

Present Procedure Unhandy.

The reasonableness of rates between points in this country and points in Canada also is a question of great importance to shippers. To determine any question as to rates that may arise it is necessary for the shipper to institute a proceeding before the interstate commerce commission and before the Canadian railway commission, and even then the result is uncertain. The difficulty practically precludes any inquiry by existing tribunals into the reasonableness of through rates, as applied to international traffic.

While no arrangements have been perfected for the conference, it is likely Chairman Knapp and Mr. Mabee will meet in Ottawa in August. It is not improbable a subsequent conference may be held in Washington.

It will be the aim of the representatives of the two governments to make it possible to submit a recommendation before the reconvening of congress.

WITHDRAWALS FOR CONSERVATION PURPOSES

Beverly, Mass., July 16.—President Taft this week withdrew several million acres of coal lands in different states of the west, bringing the total acreage of coal land withdrawals made by him up to the enormous total of 71,518,588.

About half of this amount are new withdrawals. The work is now complete and is epitomized in the following letter to the president from Secretary Ballinger.

"My Dear Mr. President—The orders for the withdrawal of coal lands which are transmitted here will complete the series which have been prepared in accordance with your instructions. These orders confirm and continue all existing coal land withdrawals and add materially thereto. The areas covered are as follows: Arizona, 161,280 acres; Colorado, 6,191,161 acres; Montana, 20,208,865 acres; New Mexico, 2,944,279 acres; North Dakota, 17,828,182 acres; Oregon, 192,542 acres; South Dakota, 20,280,287 acres; Utah, 5,274,247 acres; Washington, 2,207,967 acres; Wyoming, 11,097,077 acres.

"The total of coal lands now withdrawn in the United States is therefore 71,518,588 acres.

"The order for withdrawal for Alaska, approved by you on July 2, is of necessity in general terms on account of the lack of land surveys. In the explored portion of Alaska, which comprises about 20 per cent of the district, the supposed areas of coal fields aggregate approximately 12,000 square miles.

"In these coal fields the areas believed to be underlaid by workable beds of coal are about 1,200 square miles, in more than three-fourths of which area only the lower grade coals occur. Thus the known coal lands of Alaska, which are believed to be affected by your withdrawal, aggregate some 770,000 acres. Very respectfully,

(Signed) "R. A. BALLINGER,
"Secretary."

Withdrawals Are Re-withdrawals.

Washington, July 16.—Assurances were given at the general land office that all the great withdrawals of coal land in the state of Washington just announced are merely re-withdrawals of coal lands previously withdrawn. The new withdrawals, however, are less severe, inasmuch as they permit entry of the surface for agriculture.

ROOSEVELT DENIES BOTH REGULARITY AND INSURGENCY

Oyster Bay N. Y., July 18—Theodore Roosevelt said with emphasis, that he has taken no stand in favor of either the insurgents or the regulars in the Republican party, and he desires to correct any impression of favortism.

"I want you to make it clear," he said to interviewers, "that I am seeking both sides. I wish you would make that emphatic.

"My main interest is in the state, but on national issues I want to see both regulars and insurgents, party men and independents. I want to see Democrats as well as Republicans."

"But you don't want to see Democrats win?" he was asked.

"Not if the Republicans do the right thing," replied the colonel.

"You know the insurgents had cold feet when I came back from abroad," said the colonel, "because the first four men with whom I conferred were Senator Lodge, Secretary Meyer, Secretary Wilson and Nicholas Longworth.

"I had similar experiences when I was in the White House. When J. P. Morgan came to see me they said I had sold out to Wall Street, and when Samuel Gompers came they said I was going to hoist the red flag.

"But," he added, "I did not do either."

Carrying his point further, the colonel mentioned that on the same day last week he saw Senator Carter, a regular, and Senator Beveridge, an insurgent, and had a talk with Speaker Wadsworth in the morning and with Gov. Hughes at night, while today insurgency was represented at the luncheon table by Mr. Fowler and regularity by Mr. Cocks and Mr. Woodruff.

HIGHER FARE PROPOSED FOR RIDES ON PULLMANS

Chicago, July 18.—The managements of the Harriman lines, the San Pedro and the Western Pacific roads are considering trying an experiment of charging a higher passenger rate in Pullman cars than is charged in day coaches. If it is decided to put this new principle into effect, it will be done all other trains between Salt Lake City and Los Angeles and San Francisco and on all trains between Ogden and Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The occasion for the change is to be found in the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the Spokane rate case, in which passenger fares between points named were reduced by order of that body.

The conference was attended by E. O. McCormick, of the Harriman lines; by S. A. Wann, vice president of the San Pedro route, in charge of traffic, and by E. L. Lomax, passenger traffic manager of the Western Pacific. It has not been decided what will be done with respect to other Pullman passengers on other portions of the road.

Salmon Big This Year.

Anacortes, July 19.—Sockeyes are running fairly well for the local canneries, with an average daily aggregate of 30,000. A remarkable thing about the run this year is not the number of fish but the extra large size. Indications for a good season for the off year are better than at first anticipated.

Chief Appraiser Appointed.

Washington, July 19.—President Taft has appointed Henderson Somerville, of Washington, as president of the general board of appraisers. Mr. Somerville has been appraiser of merchandise at New York for many years.

Will Purify Illinois

Chicago, July 16.—The committee of seven appointed at the recent Peoria legislative conference met here and decided to open permanent offices in Chicago and Springfield and also to canvass the state to arouse interest in honest government.

STRIKE AVERTED ON PENNSYLVANIA

CONFERENCE RESULTS IN BASIS FOR SETTLEMENT OF WAGE DISPUTE.

Negotiations Have Been in Progress Six Months—Over 8,000 Train Men on Grand Trunk Road Strike, Refusing Offer of Company—Better Conditions Demanded on All Western Roads.

Philadelphia, July 19.—General Manager W. H. Meyers, of the Pennsylvania railroad, and the committee representing the 15,000 trainmen and conductors employed on the lines of the road east of Pittsburg have agreed on a basis for the settlement of the wage controversy. Each side claims to have gained all that it had been contending for.

The negotiations have been in progress for six months, and culminated last week in the strike vote by the employes.

The proposition offered today by the railroad and accepted by the men includes a minimum day of ten hours, as detailed in the New York Central award.

The question of overtime was left to be decided at later conferences.

It was further agreed that the men would be guaranteed twenty-six days' work a month.

While the men regard this as a concession, the railroad officials say that during the recent hard times the men were benefited by being worked on short time instead of being laid off altogether.

OVER 8,000 MEN OUT ON GRAND TRUNK ROAD

Montreal, July 19.—On a prearranged signal, the entire system of the Grand Trunk railway, having its terminals at Chicago and Portland, Me., and having 4,600 miles of tracks, was tied up at 9:30 last night by a general strike. The men refused the company's offer of an advance of approximately 18 per cent and a promise of the standard wages prevailing on the Canadian Pacific when its system is completed to the Pacific coast.

The total number of men affected is 3,500 trainmen and conductors on the Grand Trunk and 350 on the Central Vermont, from Montreal to New London, Conn. In addition, 5,000 men engaged in shop work will be temporarily laid off.

The telegraph operators will not strike with the trainmen and conductors, as had been promised.

Late last night the word from the conference was that the wage dispute will be referred to arbitration, with the understanding that both sides will accept the award.

RAILWAY BROTHERHOOD SEEKS BETTER CONDITIONS

Spokane, July 19.—An eight-hour day, an increase in wages, better working conditions, a full train crew, white flagmen and trainmen on all trains, and a mileage basis for passenger brakemen, are among the chief demands to be made of all railroads operating between Chicago and the Pacific coast and the Gulf of Mexico to and including Canada by representatives of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, who will meet in St. Louis August 1. The first information regarding the meeting and the probable demands to be made has just been given out here by A. F. Whitney, second vice grand president of the order.

Railway Growth for Year.

Washington, July 19.—A preliminary summary of the statistical report of the interstate commerce commission for the year ending June 30, 1910, shows that there was a total single track railway mileage in the United States of 234,868 miles, an increase over the previous report of 3,215 miles. More than 1,000 miles increase is indicated in the railroads of Arkansas, California, Idaho, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Texas, Virginia and Washington.

The par value of railway property was $17,487,868,935.

Milwaukee Pushing to Everett.

Everett, July 19.—The Milwaukee Railway Company has begun construction on the south end of Ebey island, just outside of the city limits. Work in the city will be started within a few weeks.

Peace Cause Progresses.

Washington, D. C., July 19.—The personnel of the universal peace commission provided for in the closing days of the last session of congress will be named in the near future. Friends of the project still are hopeful that former President Roosevelt will accept the chairmanship. Five members will constitute the commission, all to be appointed by the president.

Twenty-eight Paroled at Once.

Everett, July 19.—F. C. Jackson, secretary of the board of managers of the state reformatory at Monroe, who was in Everett yesterday, said that 28 inmates were released on parole Saturday by direction of the board.

"OLD BILL MACABBE."

Saw Halley's Visitor from Deck of the Constitution in 1835.

Probably one of the most interested spectators of the comet's journey from the eastern to the western sky last night was William Macabbe, an inmate of the United States Naval home at 24th street and Gray's Ferry Road, the Philadelphia Inquirer says.

"Old Bill," as he is familiarly called by his comrades at the home, is 106 years old, and when Halley's comet made its last appearance in 1835 he was a sailor, 31 years old.

When seen yesterday Bill was propped up in bed, for he has had a broken leg which has kept him indoors for more than a year, and when asked if he remembered seeing the comet seventy-five years ago, the old sailor, taking another pull at his corncob pipe, said, "Yes, I believe I do."

"Now, since it comes back to me, I remember the night distinctly. It was my watch, and we all had been on the lookout for the comet to cross the sky for several days. I do not remember exactly what boat I was on at that time, but I think it was the old United States frigate Constitution.

"I had been pacing the desk for some time when I suddenly spied the comet, and I called some of my shipmates to witness it as it trailed across the sky. It was not very large, probably as big as a head of cabbage, and it had a long, milky tail. We saw it after that for two or three nights, and then it disappeared.

"I have seen many comets while at sea, and several times I have seen huge meteors shoot through the sky and fall with a loud hiss into the ocean, while a column of steam caused by the meteor's contact with the water rose into the air."

Last night "Old Bill" was wheeled out on the naval hospital veranda to see the comet. He has been very much interested hearing the other inmates of the hospital ward where he has been for so long a time talk about it, and he expressed a desire to again see the aerial visitor on its journey across the sky.

TALKS ON ADVERTISING

For the sins of their business few men punish their stomachs. People eat three times a day in dull times as well as in active times. They will buy those things of the man who tells them that he has them for sale. People do not buy as much in dull times as in good times, nor will they buy certain things at all when depression comes. However, at dull seasons they have time to think about these things beyond their present reach and will cull out certain objects of desire which they will surely purchase when pocketbooks are fuller. In the dull time, therefore, press upon the public mind the worth and beauty and utility of the goods you have for sale. Then, when money is more plentiful, the goods will move. Emulate the furnace makers, who advertise in summer, and the refrigerator people, who fill the winter magazines with their advertisements.

He didn't have a dollar, he didn't have a dime; his clothes and shoes looked as though they had served their time. He didn't try to kill himself to dodge misfortune's whacks. Instead, he got some ashes and he filled five dozen sacks. Then next he begged a dollar. In the paper in the morn he advertised tin polish that would put the sun to scorn. He kept on advertising and just now, suffice to say, he's out in California at his cottage on the bay.—Mecca Herald.

That advertising may bring the most returns for the outlay, and that it may be definitely known that it is or is not paying, requires concentration of effort, experience and careful calculation.

Some one has said that trying to do business without advertising is like winking at a girl in the dark; you know what you are doing but nobody else does.

The Hope Chest of a Maiden.

Every German girl has a hope chest. This is much different from the dowry chest which the American girls, on becoming engaged, begins to fill in advance of her wedding day. The German maiden begins to stock her hope chest even before she meets the man to whom she is to be married. She begins to save for her wedding day long before she is engaged. She is imbued with a sense of thrift and also with an ambition to have a larger dowry than her mother had. Often the German girl begins to collect things when she enters her 'teens. Silently she saves her money to use in buying articles for her chest. With skill she embroiders her initials on each article of linen. Thus by the time she is engaged to be married she is thoroughly equipped with hundreds of little articles that are useful in housekeeping.

IN THE CASE OF FIRE

Some Ways in Which It May Happen and Hints on Action When It Does.

HOW TO EXTINGUISH FLAME.

Conflagrations at Night and the Best Methods of Escape From Burning Buildings.

Attics and closets are the breeding places of many fires, according to Good Housekeeping. An attic is generally the asylum for all sorts of inflammable material, and as it never is properly ventilated it becomes a fire incubator when the summer sun strikes the roof.

Among the odds and ends that make up the contents of the average attic are old varnished furniture, dry as tinder; rags, many of them greasy and ripe for spontaneous combustion; painting oils, liable to take fire when the sun beats on the roof; broken toys and old clothes, the pockets of which may contain matches. Attics and garrets often have a temperature of 110 degrees Fahrenheit, which is the ignition point for matches.

Floor sweepings under furniture or in a closet are liable to take fire spontaneously or from a flying match head. Sawdust used in sweeping floors, if left in a corner where there is no current of air to carry off the heat it generates, is very likely to become hot enough to ignite itself. Greasy overalls kept in a tight wardrobe have been known to ignite. The most dangerous closet is that under a stairway, because inflammable materials may hide there, and if a fire starts in it the best avenue of escape from upper stories is cut off. Furnace ashes in the cellar have in them so much fine coal and litter that they are liable to spontaneous combustion if an open window permits them to get wet by a rainstorm. The fine coal from the winter's supply may ignite if wet. Playing with fire and matches by children is a prolific source of fires in residences.

How to Extinguish Flames.

One's ability to extinguish a starting fire depends upon intelligence and self-control. If the blaze is just starting throw water on the burning material, not on the blaze. One bucket of water will do more good if thrown on by handfuls or with a broom than dashed on at once. A small fire may be smothered with a rug or blanket, or beaten out with a wet broom.

If you cannot put out the fire in a minute then give an alarm at once. Do not leave a door open when you run out to give an alarm. If the doors and windows are closed when a fire starts you may be able to get the firemen there in time to put it out while it is in only one room. The fire soon consumes all the oxygen in a closed room and may die out if it gets no fresh air.

After the firemen are called work at getting out the things you want most to save. Don't throw the clock from the window and then carry out your clothing, as some persons have done.

If awakened in the night by the smell of fire don't dress. Wrap yourself in a blanket or quilt from the bed and get out the quickest way you can. Shut the doors you pass through. After calling help look in and see where and what is the danger. If the fire is on the first floor it is very dangerous to go above, because heat and smoke ascend.

One can often get out through a hall filled with smoke by going on hands and knees when one would fall choking if one ran. The smoke is thickest at the ceiling. Holding a wet towel or anything made of wool or even a coat collar over the mouth greatly lessens the danger of injury to the lungs or death from the carbonic acid gas in the smoke.

If a man is in a burning building with no fire escape and the stair below is burning or the hall filled with smoke he should shut the door and transom to keep out the gases. Then he should throw open the window to get cool air and to let the firemen and neighbors see where he is, so that they may bring a ladder to the window.

The Horse's Prayer.

Pathetic and ironical as it may seem, the horse looks up to man as his god. In the Swedish they have a "Prayer of the Horse," addressed to his human lord and master, which in sum is as follows:

"O lord, my master, I thank and adore you for the kind word you spoke to me long ago, and I strive in the hope that you will pet me once in a while. If I cannot understand what you wish me to do, please be patient and show me. Don't beat me or jerk on the reins, but look and see if something is not wrong with the harness.

"I beg of you not to whip me going up hill, nor give me loads heavier than I can pull. Keep me shod so that I can get a foothold, and don't let the farrier cripple my feet. If I am sick or have an ulcerated tooth, go easy with me for a day, as I am beside myself with pain.

"Oh, grant me cool, clean water in the hot weather, and let me not eat my fodder dry.

"Finally, when my strength is gone, and I cannot any more work for you enough to be worth my keep, I beseech of you don't let me be sold to drag a vender's cart, but take my life in the quickest and easiest way, and God will reward you in this life and in heaven. Amen."

Your second thoughts may be best—if they arrive on time.

LEPERS OF THE HAWAIIS.

Conditions on the Island of Molokai Have Been Misunderstood.

No greater misconception of any public institution prevails to-day than the general idea of the leper settlement on the island of Molokai, R. B. Kidd says in Harper's Weekly. Instead of the entire island being used for such purpose, the settlement comprises only eight square miles of a total area of 261 square miles. It occupies a tongue of land on the northern side of Molokai. The north, east and west shores of this tiny spot are washed by the Pacific, while on the south side rise precipitous cliffs of from 1,800 to 4,000 feet, which make the isolation seem even more hopeless than the beautiful deep-blue waters of the sea ever could. The most difficult and dangerous trail, constantly manned by government guards, foils escape, if it were ever contemplated by the land side.

Naturally the fear of being isolated at the settlement caused the natives to thwart segregation. Generally it was done by secreting their afflicted, yet there are instances of lepers using violence to resist arrest. The necessity of severing ties of the strongest affection involved grief of the deepest description, and many are the cases of abnegation where the clean have accompanied the afflicted to the settlement to die there with them. Then, too, by degrees there grew up the belief among the natives that terrible mistakes of diagnosis by the physicians were consigning innocent and helpless people to the living sepulcher. And as each year failed to eradicate the disease as had been represented, but still claimed its toll, the belief became almost universal that a larger proportion of those committed were sacrifices to the despotism and ignorance of the white man's medical science that boasted but could not cure.

By degrees, as the government realized the inability of the afflicted to care for themselves, conditions were improved, until finally the authorities took entire charge of the lepers, and to-day the appropriations for the maintenance and care of these wards are most generous and exceed $125,000 annually.

JADED GLOBE TROTTERS.

Many Cheerless American Tourists Who Lack Assimilation.

On a day of winter sunshine last January I chanced to be in Yokohama, and found that agreeable city enduring an unusual invasion, George Gascoyne says in the National Review. A swarm of American tourists had been "dumped" on the shores of Tokyo bay from a great German liner, which lay at anchor in the roadstead. I forget how many hundreds they numbered, but they seemed to pervade the entire landscape.

They had started from New York and were making a tour around the world at express speed, and they were not an exhilarating party. They were Mark Twain's pilgrims over again, the passengers of the Quaker City on a new and extended scale. At Yokohama they had plainly reached the stage of intense, unutterable boredom. Luncheon was the only thing that really interested them. They sat in stolid rows in the lounge of their hotel, they hung about the entrance hall, they filled every seat in the drawing room. They were too languid to talk to one another, and they even forgot to explain to the unsuspecting stranger that they were American.

The comment of the head waiter was instructive. "One small ginger ale is the only order I've had all through lunch," was his melancholy complaint. It was tolerably obvious that their one desire was to get back to New England, from whence most of them seemed to hail.

Those cheerless tourists at Yokohama, with their leaden eyes and dazed expressions, have learned too late one great truth about world travel. You cannot vegetate for fifty years in a small town or city office and then expect to swallow the whole world at a gulp.

Bremerton voted on the local option question in June, and, like Port Angeles, voted to retain the saloon. At each place the saloon is directly responsible for the tragic death of one of its citizen since the elections were held. In both instances death resulted while the men were under the influence of liquor. The suicide of John Markworth on July 1st can be traced as the direct result of too much liquor drank in a saloon in Angeles. At a drunken row in a saloon at Bremerton on last Saturday a fireman on the cruiser Washington was shot down by a local bum, also under the influence of liquor. And there are people in Angeles who have the gall to stand up and say that the question of morals did not enter into our late campaign; that it was purely one of business. Isn't it high time the question of morals did enter into the question of saloon regulation in Port Angeles?

Because he refused to leave a$3.50 a day job for a day to fight forest fires, when called upon by a deputy state fire warden, Charles Simon, of North Bend, is serving ten days in the county jail here, being the first man ever imprisoned for that offence in the county. The state law so provides that upon an emergency call from a deputy fire warden any citizen may be called upon to help fight a dangerous fire. The Washington Forest Fire Association is more active this year than ever before in its fight against destructive forest fires. Several small fires have occurred already this season in Western Washington. But the Association and its patrolmen and the officials are on the watch for each blaze, and hope to get through the dry season without any disastrous fires such as have each year wiped out many thousands of dollars worth of fine timber. They are warning farmers against burning slashing at this season and campers against leaving any fires of any sort behind them.

The work instituted by President Taft to secure a more enconomical administration of the postal department has borne good fruit and this year has seen a big saving. The postal deficit for the year ending June 30, 1909, was $14,500,000. The deficit for the year ending Thursday was only $5,500,000. Five million dollars of the amount set aside to defray the postal deficit has been returned, since January 1, by the postmaster general. That doesn't look like extravagance. Instead, it indicates that other reforms that are now in process of evolution, before the term of President Taft expires, will have entirely eliminated the remainder of the deficit.—Everett Herald.

Miss Verna Wolverton left last Saturday on a two weeks tour with Mr. and Mrs. Dumont, as their pianist. Miss Verna seems to have a natural talent for music and we expect she will make quite a name for herself some day.

The public conscience can always be depended upon. It is always responsive to the appeals of right and justice. And the cause which bases its claims for public recognition upon principles of right that will bear the most public scrutiny, can always safely carry its cause up to the court of public opinion with assurance that the supreme judiciary of that court, the conecience of all the people, will render full and fair justice. A news-paper which has the courage to champion the things which are right, and to make public it own convictions and opinions, is absolutely sure of the support of the people, without regard to the class or party. Every community needs such a paper. As a rule, the public is not adequately informed as tothe facts of great public issues; but when informed, it is invariably the rule that the public is ready to stand by what is right.—Inland Herald.

"THE RED HORSE SENATOR."

It was in 1897 that Legh Richmond Freeman was known as the "Red Horse Senator" as distinguished from the "dark horses" that were being balloted for at Olympia. He had six majority pledged to him, but the millionaire's sack bought the caucus the night prior to the day on which he would have been elected. That cognomen was given to him because he had explored the western two-thirds of America on red horses.

His home is at Seattle and he is a candidate on the Republican ticket for U. S. Senator.

Mr. Freeman was in Angeles this and quietly informed the editor of this paper that he was a sure winner and would be the next United States Senator from Washington. He claims to be Washington's great Commonee and says if you were to engage in a horse race on the track at the state fair and the horse of your competitor were to reach the three-quarter post before you started from the wire, would you consider yourself beaten or not? That was the status of the senatorial candidates when Freeman had campaigned over three-fourths of the state, consuming three-fourths of a year, before any other candidates started, he says.

The Pacific Coast has some profitable seed farms to her credit. California devotes probably 6,000 acres to growing lettuce and onion seed. Oregon supplies many carloads of the onions planted for seed in the fields of California. Washington is equal to Long Island and takes first honors in growing cabbage and cauliflower seed. We have about 200 acres of the most valuable land in Skagit valley planted to cabbage for seed. Growers harvest from 700 to 1,500 pounds of cabbage seed from an acre and get 20 to 25 cents a pound. Cauliflower gives 10 to 100 pounds of seed per acre and the growers get $8 to $10 a pound.—The Coast.

Ice Cream and Cake or Sherbt and Cake will be served at the home of Mrs. J. J. MacKichnie cor. 8th. and Lincoln Sts. Wednesday the 27th. inst from 2 to 8 o'clock.

WEST END ROAD WORK TO THE FRONT AGAIN

O. M. Klaboe Replies to F. N. Nourse and O. Mulholland of Ozette.

Editor Olympic-Leader: In a recent issue you published an article signed by F. W. Nourse and O. Mulholland of Ozette. I do not want to be personal, but as I am made the chief subject of their text, I ask the opportunity to reply just once.

I, or we, don't know of any ring or ringleaders. All who signed that Declaration of Principles are honorable men and had the principles too. No one was forced to sign by threats or otherwise—if any one has told you so, its a lie.

Let us analyze what they say. The first year the late road law became operative, I was supervisor of District 3. With most of us it was a matter of guess, how, and what results it would bring. I got $1400 to work with, from Clallam to Ozette. $40 for the by-trails at lake. The reason for this small sum was, there had previously been several hundred dollars spent there. The policy was to place it where it was most needed and the bulk of this $1400 was worked out on a fifteen mile distance. There were seven good sized bridges put in and 1½ miles new trail made, puncheon laid down, and trail shortened in some places. We had no powder, either. In regard to county tools, Mr. Nourse could probably make a better account of that than I, no need of a grand jury for that. No, my dear unfortunate weeping friend, you will not get any satisfaction by trying to put us in the hole, you can't do it.

You gave us as a sample, N. Nelson and C. Grader. You certainly don't mean to compare the road you two have made with Nelson's or Grader's? As a matter of fact, they had about as tough a little piece of road to make as you could find anywhere. You worked in the river bottom on easy level ground and where you had the letter S of a road ready, what was its length and its cost? You say $2000 per mile. Well, now, honey, are you sure of that, eh? Is the hay you packed over this trail included in that? Is it true hay costs the county nearly $80 per ton at Ozette? Is that bill of $500 for powder also included? Was it all used? Or was some of it sold, and for what figure? May be there are a couple of stumps left in the Clallam-Ozette road yet? Perhaps people have no business to poke their noses in this peek-a-boo corner of the county, but you know what Hamlet says: "For some must watch while some must sleep," and yet they claim to know the expenditures to a cent.

They speak of Ozette river, a stream four miles long, like it was the Amazon. They say twenty people were on Ozette bridge at one time. Well, gosh all hemlocks, that must have been the Grand Opening! Years ago, they say, Furgeson & Willoughby had a schooner in the river. Well, I declare, it must be ten or twelve years since they quit, and its eight years since you came here, and yet you tell us the river is better now than twenty years ago. May as well tell us the Pacific is not as rough now as it was years ago, and expect it to glide down the guzzle of a reading public. Perhaps Providence saw who was coming and got to work after Ferguson left. It is not many years since one man lost his life there; no one could help him when he was seen drifting out into the Pacific, still clinging to the half of a smashed boat. Is that the means of in and outlet F. W. Nourse, O. Mulholland and K. O. Erickson propose to give us?

And again they say, we don't want roads. No, we only did a lot of charity trail work 18 to 20 years ago when the county was riding the bumpers. We have paid taxes for years, but we have nothing coming now. Under the conditions we have paid for the privilege of making homes here.

They say that they can get provisions from Seattle to the ocean beach for 1½c per pound. Clallam Bay, with regular boat service and wharf, should get much lower rates, being forty miles closer. That's why a road up the Hoko is wanted and people are depending on it. Of course Erickson tells us he can't do much, as he has two against him always. We are sorry, that makes it bad.

The people of Forks and Quillayute did not seem to be content because K. O. Erickson ran a store at Mora. They wanted a road to Clallam Bay, and the same will be the case should he do that at Ozette river. You say K. O. Erickson don't make promises. We havn't heard it. If it is not so, of course one of two things is true. A bunch of work, without promises, in your corner. Or else for some particular interest.

Yours Respectfully,
O. M. KLABOE.

Two-thirds of the population of the State of Washington live in towns of over 5000 population, and one-sixth are engaged in producing wealth from the land in the way of lumbering, wheat raising and dairying.

Excluding those engaged in lumbering, fishing and the raising of wheat and fruit, only one man in 24 is engaged in producing eggs, poultry, dairy products and the general supplies to feed the people of the State.

At a conservative estimate one family in the country is providing the food to support 1 families in the city.

The result is, the supply is inadequate; food stuffs must be imported, and prices soar. What is needed in the Northwest is more farmers to till the thousand of acres awaiting settlement.—Opportunity.

Watts–Pringle Marriage.

Miss Mable E. Pringle and Mr. William Watts of Port Angeles were married at the home of Mrs. Pringle at San Diego, Cal., July 17th. After a short honeymoon trip they will return to Angeles to make their future home. Mr. Watts has a cozy cottage built for his bride near the site of the Fuca shingle mill, in which he owns an interest.

The Olympic-Leader extends congratulations and best wishes for the future happiness and prosperity of this estimable young couple, who are so well and favorably known in this community.

Mrs. Sylvester, who is a guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. E. E. Fisher, was given a most pleasant surprise on Tuesday by about a dozen of her lady friends. After a most delicious supper, music and other entertainment followed till the happy company departed, leaving with Mrs. Sylvester very pleasant memories and as a souvenir of the happy event, a dainty hand painted bonbon dish.

Bishop Keator's Visit.

Bishop Keator of Tacoma arrived on Sunday's boat, but too late to hold morning service. The church was well filled in the evening to listen to his excellent sermon.

Mr. Nelson, late of Victoria, sang beautiful solo, which was very much appreciated.

The bishop called a meeting for Monday evening of all those interested in the Church to discuss the business and future prospects of the Church. He hopes to supply a rector for this parish by September 1st.

Going East on a Vacation.

Mrs. Levis and son Barrett returned to Angeles Thursday, to pack up their goods preparatory to going back to their old home in New York. Mrs. Levis and Miss Watson have just returned from a delightful ocean voyage down to California, Miss Watson remaining in Seattle for a visit. Capt. Levis is to have a two months' leave from duties on the Snohomish, and will accompany his wife and son east, and may remain there permanently.

The Snohomish is now in the Moran ship yard being overhauled and having a new turtle back deck made by order of the Washington officials. This will put it in much better condition to battle with the severe storms.

IGNORANCE IS BLISS.

Rains fall, suns shine, winds flee,
Brooks run; yet few know how:
Do not thou too deeply search
Why thou lovest me now!

Perhaps, by some command
Sent earthward from above.
Thy heart was doomed to lean on mine,
Mine to enjoy thy love.

Why ask when joy doth smile,
From what bright heaven it fell?
Men mar the beauty of their dreams,
Tracing their source too well.
—Barry Cornwall.

Advising Natalie

Whenever people talked it over they invariably ended by saying it was a perfect shame that Natalie Baker was throwing herself away on Tom Arnold.

It was not that they had anything definite against Tom. The objection was more against what he wasn't than what he was. He just wasn't much of anything. He was 24 and had a clerkship in an office where by industry he might achieve $150 a month in ten years or so and then might stick there for the rest of his life. Not that the measure of a man is his income, but it is the measure of his position in the world and Natalie was the kind of girl who would be wasted in obscurity.

Natalie was so extraordinarily and commandingly pretty and so generally fascinating that it was irritating to the community at large that she was not to be carried away in a golden chariot, or rather in a limousine with the requisite bank account behind it.

"Of course," said Mrs. Flecker, who had been a friend of Natalie's mother and who watched rather exasperatedly her father's indulgent method of bringing up his daughter, "it isn't that one is mercenary—or that I don't believe in falling in love or anything like that

DOING HER WORK AND SUPREMELY HAPPY.

—but why under creation Natalie couldn't have picked out some one else to fasten her affections on is a mystery. If her mother had lived I'll warrant she'd have broken up the Tom Arnold affair! Men are so stupid!"

Natalie and Tom had been chums always. And Tom had always been just an ordinary boy, unnoticeably ordinary looking, and with no flashes of brilliance to compensate for his looks. His devotion to Natalie was his chief charm. But he did not get excited about it.

Moreover, he did not appear conscious that it was extraordinary that Natalie seemed completely satisfied with him. He didn't know any reason why she shouldn't like him. They had grown up together, Tom having the run of the house, her father being so used to seeing him about and having him under foot that he had not realized Tom was no longer a boy. Of course, being her father he never would realize that Natalie also had grown up.

Mrs. Flecker and other women did what they could to give Natalie a chance, as they called it. They invited her to dinner and artfully asked eligible young men at the same time. They called her "my dear" and lectured her on making the best of one's opportunities and the awfulness of matrimonial mistakes.

With his salary—or lack of it, rather—Tom could not spend much money in entertaining Natalie. Mrs. Flecker almost wept when she considered Natalie in the glory of her willow-plumed hat and $150 velvet suit going to a mere vaudeville show.

"She's just wasting herself and she'll regret it some day!" prophesied Mrs. Flecker. "If she'd only take an interest in some one else! But she doesn't seem to be amused by another man on earth! I don't wonder Tom is crazy about her, but what she can see in him is beyond me!"

Therefore when one day Natalie confided to Mrs. Flecker that she and Tom were at outs that good woman's heart leaped for gladness.

"He's far too particular," Natalie said. "I wouldn't stand it the other evening. He acts as though his word was law and——"

"I'm glad you have so much spirit," said Mrs. Flecker, while she inwardly thanked her stars that Irving Lawrence was coming to dinner that night. "Telephone your house that you are going to stay with us this evening for dinner!"

Irving Lawrence was exactly the sort of young man Mrs. Flecker would have picked out for Natalie. He was handsome and clever and prosperous and nobody knew where he would stop now that he had begun to climb in business. Natalie found him decidedly agreeable. He certainly was a contrast to Tom, especially now that she was provoked at the latter.

Three months later Natalie's bewildered father was issuing wedding invitations for the marriage of his daughter and Irving Lawrence. That young man had fallen a victim to Natalie at first sight and his wooing had been tempestuous. Tom Arnold simply had been swept off the boards.

"I am glad, Natalie," Mrs. Flecker told her, "that your childish infatuation for Tom died a natural death. You would have been crazy to marry him. You see it now, don't you?"

Natalie turned her big solitaire around on her finger. "I suppose so," she said. "I—I haven't seen Tom for weeks."

"Well, you don't want to see him," said Mrs. Flecker sharply. "I'm so glad you're going to Europe on your wedding trip!"

It was just four days before her wedding day that Natalie and Tom Arnold eloped and were married. She had met him on the street and discovered in five minutes' talk that she hadn't really fallen in love with Irving Lawrence at all. Of course, she was very sorry to treat Irving so and apologized prettily in the letter she wrote him.

Mrs. Flecker hasn't got over it yet. Every time she goes to see Natalie in her four-room flat, where she is doing her own work and seems supremely happy, she comes away madder than before.

"There simply isn't any use trying to do things for some girls!" Mrs. Flecker says.—Chicago Daily News.

From Bedford, in Bedfordshirt, comes an appeal to good Americans for sympathy and practical, financial aid in erecting at Elstow, the little near-by village dignified by the birth and life of John Bunyan, a memorial. This memorial is to take the form of a large public hall devoted to educational, social and religious work. Some money has already been contributed toward the fund needed to erect and properly equip such a building. More is needed. What is more natural than the supposition that among the many American pilgrims who annually wend their way to Bedford town, should be some eager to do their part in honoring in substantial, concrete form the writer of the greatest English allegory.

Bedford, which is only fifty miles from London, is, to be sure, some distance, so far as miles go, from the United States of America. But its people argue justly enough that Bunyan was as truly a world or universal genius as Shakespeare; that he belongs just as much to the descendants of his race in America as to those in his native village. Certainly not one of those Americans who proudly trace their lineage back to members of the little band of Puritans who came over on the Mayflower would dispute the legitimacy of an appeal based on their right to claim him as of the same spiritual mold as their own stern forebears.

The binding ties of a common past, a common blood and a common tongue are stronger than the accidental separations of time and space. A mere geographical detail cannot eliminate a man's literary heritage. Bedford does well when it appeals to a kinship deeply rooted in the intellectual past.

The phrase "intellectual past" is hardly a happy one when used in connection with the Bedford tinker. For his great book, the book which has passed through more editions than any other book except the Bible, was slow in reaching the polite circles which esteem a written work for its intellectual quality; its literary flavor. Its earliest vogue was entirely among the poor, the obscure, the unliterary. It was written for them by an unliterary man whose trade placed him among the lowliest. In the days of Bunyan, a tinker was often no better than a vagrant, a light-handed pilferer whose wandering habits lifted him but little above the gypsies whom the good English yeoman despised.

Bunyan and his father were, however, more respectable than most of the tribe, and though in the story of his conversion, "Grace Abounding," he seems to have suffered from an overpowering sense of his own soul guiltiness, his chief sins appear to have been dancing, bell ringing, playing tipcat and reading Sir Bevis of Southampton. He was like the other Puritans of the stern Cromwellian forces, who had no sense of proportion and shrank from a mince pie at Christmas with as much loathing as from a lie or other deadly sin. He condemned himself for sports which only the godly Puritans have found immoral, but the temper of mind which made him as a 17-year-old boy wrestle with the powers of evil, typified in innocent boyish longings for mirth and jollity, made possible the "Pilgrim's Progress."

He had other human weaknesses, for it was with human though pardonable vanity that he called attention to the fact that in New England has book was thought worthy to appear in superb binding. His comment shows that in England it had not been considered so worthy. It was popular literature very much as the old ballads were, and though it had gone through ten editions before Bunyan died, they were all cheaply printed and poorly illustrated, further evidence that at first the book reached only the lowlier classes.

There are those, and they are not among the uncultured, who assert that every literary masterpiece, every literary creation which has stood the test of time and been accepted by succeeding generations, must be able to make an appeal to the masses of the people who, lacking knowledge of books, do know life and can recognize a vital appeal if a book possesses it. The Homeric tales, Hamlet, Macbeth—the masterpieces of the ages—hold sway over simple, untutored minds as well as over those of learned scholars. The "Pilgrim's Progress" for generations was known to the masses. At last the classes, including the critics, had to accept it as a great book, a vigorous narrative related in strong, homely English.

ENLIGHTENED DUSSELDORF.

Mining and Iron Center Has a Great European Reputation.

Dusseldorf is the center of the great mining and iron districts of Westphalia, but in spite of the nature of the work which goes on all around it it has none of the characteristics of an English manufacturing town.

It is not necessary here to give any detailed description of the city, the Dusseldorf correspondent of the London Chronicle says. It has a reputation all over Europe for enlightened municipal government, and it is, in fact, one of the show places of modern Germany. Broad boulevards radiate from the Central plaza, which are edged with magnificent shops and buildings, and municipal ownership is carried to its fullest development. The whole town is a monument to what German thoroughness can do.

It forms a convenient center for the whole of the Ruhr coal and iron district. A few miles to the north lies Duisburg, which, with its sister town of Ruhrort, forms a busy hive, where ironstone is transformed into steel in all forms. At night the sky glows with the glare of countless furnaces, while the headgears of the coal mines whirl round as they bring to bank the loaded corves. In the near distance are Essen, Dortmund, Elberfeld and Solingen, while across the Rhine lies Crefeld. Electric tramways traverse the whole of the district.

Although 200 miles from the sea, Duisburg has all the characteristics of a great inland port and the Rhine is crowded with steamers and lighters and long rafts made up of wood from the Black forest, which float down the stream. In making use of their inland waterways the Germans teach us a lesson which we might well lay to heart.

PROFIT AND LOSS.

A YOUNG man of wealth married a chorus girl in New York a few years ago. Shortly afterward he enlisted in the navy. From a callow youth with little common sense and less knowledge of the hard facts of life he has returned home, strongly muscled, manly, cheerful and in perfect control of himself and the spirit of temptation. He has ceased, however, to be fond of his wife. She is now engaged in suing his parents for a half million dollars, charging them with weaning away her husband's affections.

Were the lady in the case demanding damages for the loss of the creature she knew as husband the suit were ridiculous. He may have been worth many times a half million dollars in property, but worth not five cents in person. The man is a different fellow altogether now, in the state of his heart as well as his mind. In sheer point of possibilities of value to himself and to the world he is not to be weighed against sordid gold. Unhappily, however, the courts have no other standard by which to measure the price of affections and the object of affection except money. The chorus girl wife must seek such balm as is available. If it is true that the young man is all they say he is, radiant of health, sober, proud of his service and eager to assume a permanent place as a worker, who can blame the wife for lamenting her loss? If the courts can't do more they might give the plaintiff sole possession to the memory of the youth to whom she was married. The parents would surrender that with enthusiasm.—Toledo Blade.

IS WOMAN "ECONOMICALLY WORTHLESS?"

PROFESSOR Patten of the University of Pennsylvania, an original and progressive thinker, declares that one of the four major causes of the increased cost of living is the "new status of women." Civilization and mechanical progress, he says, have deprived women of their former share in bread winning, and they are "left with their hands idle." "Let women take up their share of the work, and the pressure on the resources of the family will be equalized," concludes Professor Patten.

Let us see. The next census will probably show that about 7,000,000 women are engaged in gainful occupations, in spite of our "civilization." It will not show how many millions work longer hours than any factory or office employe, in kitchens, nurseries, tenements, flats, farmhouses, without getting any "wages" at all, but we know that the wife of the laborer, the mechanic, the clerk, the small shopkeeper, the struggling farmer, the young professional man, does not sit with her hands idle. Is not the woman who cooks and washes, cleans, sews, brings up children, doing her share of the work of the family? Is she economically worthless?

The number of idle women is very small in this country, and of this number the majority devote themselves to charitable and reform work, to the cultivation of letters and art, to the propaganda of political and moral causes. Sending them into offices and factories would scarcely benefit true civilization. Man does not live by bread alone, and have not foreign observers extolled American women for their successful pursuit of culture and idealism? Even from an economic point of view, the women who do not toil are not worthless. Morals and aesthetics and culture have their economic value to society.—Chicago Record-Herald.

SICKNESS AND EATING.

YOU are actually committing a crime against your stomach when you eat while suffering from acute disease. I defy any student or scientist to disprove this statement. When you suffer from acute disease, pneumonia, fevers, etc., the principal object of which is simply the cleansing of the blood, every particle of food you take into your stomach retards recovery. As a result of careful experimentation hygienists find that a typhoid fever patient will lose weight and strength faster when being fed than when no food is given. In other words, he will lose less strength and recover far more quickly when no food is given. When the digestive organs do not require food and you persist in putting food into the stomach you are poisoning yourself and adding to the disease. If these statements do not impress you as being reliable, a little experimenting on your own account will soon prove their truth. What is needed in disease is to give the human body, that marvelous mystery that each and every one of us possesses, a chance to cleanse itself; a chance to eliminate the poisons that are clogging functional activity. There is no need of fear, no need of anyone dying of an acute ailment unless vitality has been very greatly retarded through dissipation, through prolonged use of alcohol or some other similar cause.—Physical Culture.

NO FUNERAL DISPLAY.

EFFETE eastern cities that sneer at the tan-booted, slouch-hatted westerner are being committed by their undertakers to new extravagances which, to the humble eye of the plainsman, are not exactly in good taste. Blue, pink and lavender coffins are the very latest in art funerals. The trailing arbutus or winding creeper may bedeck the pall. Artist and upholsterer outrival each the other with gilding and gauds to adorn the narrow house of humanity's cast-off clay.

The march to the tomb borrows trappings from the circus, and the pompous ceremonies with which our dead are to be recommitted to earth's embrace seem to mock the quiet of God's acre. This should not be. The door of the tomb is no place for display. The dignity of death forbids it. Every finer instinct protests at exploitation of grief. It is to be hoped that this latest attempt to restore extravagance in funerals will not succeed.—Chicago Journal.

RICH WOMAN DIES LIKE PAUPER

Elizabeth Hays' Death on New Jersey Farm Reveals $100,000.

Professing abject poverty before the world and living less expensively than her poorest neighbors, Miss Elizabeth Hays, aged 86, died suddenly last night in the midst of a fortune in gold and currency, estimated at more than $100,000, which for fifty years she had been secreting about her old farmhouse. Miss Hays' financial status was discovered to-day when the heirs and her executor, Counsellor Reginald Branch, made a brief search of the house prior to a complete examination promised to-morrow morning, says a Burlington (N. J.) correspondent of the New York World.

Bed and table linen yielded $10 and $20 bank notes by the scores. Bed springs, old coffee pots, several old purses and other receptacles were found to contain hundreds of dollars.

An old family Bible was almost completely leaved with $20 gold notes, some of them bearing dates of issue shortly after the civil war. The book stood on a parlor table. In a cupboard among ods and ends of every description was a little pasteboard box. The investigators were about to toss it aside, when a jingle of coin drew their attention and they raised the lid to discover the box filled with gold coins, mostly eagles and double eagles, amounting to nearly $800. Old salt bags and leather wallets filled with gold were picked up from an odd assortment of trash.

In different receptacles nearly a thousand old coins of copper, nickel, silver, gold and alloys, and minted in a dozen different countries in the last two centuries, were discovered. They were in no order and were mixed in with the modern money of all denominations.

Rolls of bank notes, all of big denomination, were stuffed between the mattresses and mixed in with them were quantities of civil war "shinplasters."

It is said the searchers could not pick up a book without finding money between the leaves. Linen dropped to the floor, disclosing $10 notes between the folds.

Many of the old bank notes bearing early dates were almost crumpled to dust when found and it will take an expert to decipher their value.

To-night the late home of Miss Hays, a fifteen-room farm house, in a sad condition for lack of repairs, is watched by armed guards to prevent any attempt to seek the hidden wealth it still contains.

RATS CAUSE TWO PANICS.

Paterson Woman Who Owned Them Is Charged With Assault, Too.

In her efforts to prove to Edward Mills, a hardware dealer, that a rat trap he had sold to her was useless, Mrs. Lucy Thompson of Hazel stret caused two panics, one on a trolley car and the other in the shopping district, and will have to answer a charge of assault and battery.

The rats in Mrs. Tomkins' home had made a trap a picnic ground for several days, growing fat on the cheese in it without injury to themselves, a Paterson (N. J.) correspondent of the New York Tribune says. From a hiding place in the corner of the room she watched three well-fed rats hop into the trap. The rats were having their customary feast when Mrs. Tomkins placed a bag over the trap and kept the rats prisoners, when she started with her captives on a Main street car for the shopping district to interview the hardware man.

The car had gone but a short distance when a dozen women screamed and jumped almost simultaneously on the seats of the car, while others rushed for the door. One of the rats had escaped from the bag-covered trap. The motorman, with the assistance of a switch bar, drove the rat to the street and the car resumed its journey.

When Mrs. Tomkins ultimately reached the shopping district the jostling crowd caused her to loosen her hold on the bag and the remaining rats escaped to the sidewalk. For a few minutes there was pandemonium among the woman shoppers, but a traffic officer succeeded after some difficulty in restoring order.

Mrs. Tomkins was disappointed at the loss of the rats, but still determined. Going into the hardware store she hunted up the proprietor and hurled the rat trap at his head. As a result of this last maneuver Constable Lee from Justice Botbyl's court served a warrant on her, charging assault and battery.

Retraction with a Sting.

Senator Murphy Foster, at a dinner in Washington, said of a certain retraction:

"It was a retraction without value. It recalls the Nola Chucky scandal.

"Dean Washington, in the heat of a revival, shouted from the pulpit of the Nola Chucky chapel:

"'I see befo' me ten chicken thieves, includin' that thar Calhoun Clay.'

"Calhoun Clay at once rose and left the church. He was very angry. He brought several powerful influences to bear and the deacon promised to apologize.

"So, at the following revival, the old man said.

"'I desire to retract mah last night's remark, namely—I see befo' me ten chicken thieves, includin' Calhoun Clay. What I should have said, dear brethren and sistern, was—I see before me nine chicken thieves, not includin' Calhoun Clay.'"

Stops Hair Falling

Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, will certainly stop falling of the hair. Indeed, we believe it will always do this unless there is some disturbance of the general health. Then, a constitutional medicine may be necessary. Consult your physician about this.

Does not change the color of the hair.

Tricks of the Compass.

Experts say that the steel hull of a vessel is rendered magnetic during construction by the hammering of the metal and that every steel vessel has to have its compass corrected to counteract its own magnetic lines of force. The magnetic influence is further complicated by the load carried by the vessel, if this load is magnetic or capable of being magnetized. The ore-carrying vessels of the great lakes experience great difficulty on this account and the United States hydrographic bureau is endeavoring to teach pilots and captains of vessels plying in this trade how to check their course by means of the pelorus.

The pelorus is an instrument similar to the sun dial, being provided with a gnomon and a graduated arc on which a shadow of the gnomon is cast. The instrument is set in a north and south direction, as indicated by the compass.

By noting the shadow on the graduated arc it is possible to tell by comparison with tables furnished by the government just how far from the north and south position the gnomon really lies, thus showing the compass error.

TOOK HIS OWN PHOTOGRAPH

Clever Method by Which British Hunter Got Good Snapshot of Lion in Jungle.

Penetrating the wilds of British East Africa with a camera and a cinematograph, Mr. Cherry Kearton, the skilled "nature photographer," has brought back to England some amazing pictures of strange beasts. Mr. Kearton had one great disappointment. The lion eluded him so far as the cinematograph was concerned. For a week on end, night and day, the photographer fixed his apparatus in a tree and waited for a lion. But he found the lions extraordinarily wary. The nearest he ever got to one with the cinematograph camera in daylight, was 150 yards. Then the lion, not the photographer, bolted. At this distance the lion appeared so small upon the photographic films that the picture was useless.

But Mr. Kearton had his revenge. He left a camera shielded in a leather case near the lion drinking pool. Above it, in a tree, was a flashlight apparatus. From this a thread passed across the path the lion was known to tread. In the middle of the night down came the lion to drink. He broke the thread, ignited the magnesium, and took an instantaneous photograph of himself before the brilliant flash sent him crashing away in alarm through the forest.

MOSTLY MADE IN TEN YEARS

Harriman's Immense Fortune Absolutely Without Parallel in History of Self-Made Men.

The final appraisal of the late E. H. Harriman places it at a value of $149,000,000. This is more than $50,000,000 over the most liberal estimate made when it was a matter of speculation. As a rule, when an appraisal of an estate of great wealth, which is much talked of, is made, the public estimate is found to be greater than the fact. Estates shrink under careful examination. But in the present case the contrary has been the fact. It is much larger than even his intimates supposed.

The wonder of it is that such a great estate should have been accumulated in the time it was. Mr. Rockefeller's great wealth was built up in a period covering 40 years; that of Mr. Carnegie in about the same time. It took three generations to build up the Astor and Vanderbilt fortunes to their present mammoth proportions. The Morgan estate was erected on accumulations made in a prior generation and the time in which the great Hill, Kennedy and Strathcona fortunes were made was not less than 30 years. Yet Mr. Harriman's great accumulations were made within a period of ten years. It is without parallel in the history of self-made fortunes of huge amounts.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Steel Superseding Wood.

The substitution of steel for wood goes steadily on. Beginning with January 1, or thereabouts, the National Lead Company will pack its white lead in steel kegs, having decided to abandon the use of wooden kegs. This innovation is made because the company has concluded that steel kegs will have many advantages over the wooden kegs. In the first place, the steel package does not absorb the oil from the lead as porous wooden packages do, and there is, therefore, no drying and caking of the lead around the edges, making it possible to remove every particle of white lead easily from the steel keg. The new steel kegs also will be much lighter, as well as being stronger than the wooden ones, and this will effect a saving in freight charges. Taking up less room than the wooden kegs, the new steel package also will save storage space.

Courtship Class for Jap Girls.

Japan has killed the last doubt as to its modern progress by the organization of a "class of courtship" for girls in each of the secondary schools. The Japanese maidens are taught that if they "should be so unfortunate as to fall in love before becoming engaged they must conceal the fact. Above all they must remember that women never propose. Another thing, they are warned that well-bred girls do not exchange photographs with their admirers. In Japan until now there has not been any trouble about courting, and this is the first evidence that the Japanese maidens need instruction in affairs of the heart. Classes to the contrary, however, the point is maintained that there is not a Juliet under the sun who does know the exact formula for dealing with a Romeo.

Stanley's Estimate of Leaders.

In his recent published autobiography Sir Henry M. Stanley says: "The civil war only developed two first-rank men, and those were Grant and Lee, but in the second rank there were many who might possibly, with opportunities, have rivaled the first two. I believe if it were put to the vote of the military class as to which was the greater of the two greatest captains of the war the vote would be cast for Robert E. Lee. Nevertheless there was something in Grant which, though not so showy as the strategy and dash of Lee, makes me cast my vote for Grant."

Restless Royalty.

"Before their marriage he said she should be treated like a queen."

"Well," answered Miss Cayenne, "he has kept his word after a fashion. His household is very like one of those little European monarchies."

Our trouble to-day is not that we do not know how to produce things with economy. It is not that we have lagged in industrial development; it is that those who have most are least willing to assume burdens. This is manifested in the scurrilous way the rich seek to evade their just taxes. It is evidenced in the fight being made against the income tax. In general it is made apparent by those in position to do so by throwing all of the burdens over upon that entity called the public. Indeed, it has been a long dance for the public and they have for long paid the fiddlers in uncomplaining fashion. But more and more the idea is taking root that the time is about arrived for those most able to do so to put their shoulders to the wheel with the rest of humanity and take what is their due and no more.

Not more than one old maid in ten thousand ever finds a man under the bed, yet they all keep on looking.

PORT TOWNSEND LEADER OUT FOR BURKE

Paper Says Seattle Jurist Only Logical Candidate to Succed Senator Piles.

Port Townsend, Wednesday, July 20th.—Under the caption "The Only Logical Candidate," The Morning Leader, a strong Republican daily newspaper, comes out strong declaring unequivocally in favor of the aspirations of Judge Thomas Burke of Seattle to succeed Senator Samuel H. Piles, says the Seattle Times. In declaring itself the Leader admits having been slow, awaiting rather a crystalization of public opinion among its readers who, it asserts, are almost unanimous in their preference for Judge Burke. In the course of the editorial the Leader gives emphatic denial to the oft asserted claim of John L. Wilson that this county, or the West side, is under the slightest obligations to him for alleged past favors.

Explaining its support of Judge Burke, the Leader says:

"Judge Burke is neither a reactionary nor a revolutionist. His personal history and utterances prove him to be a progressive in the true sense of the term. The state has had few opportunities to secure the service in Congress of such a man. There is no doubt that his home city and county are lined up in his support and from all parts of the state come evidences of his rapidly growing strength."

The paper disposes of all chance of the Poindexter candidacy receiving any support in this portion of the state by declaring that Senator Piles' successor must be a west side man, and that looking into the future, it cannot be disputed that the greatest possibility of subserving the best interests of the city, county and state lie in the unstinted support of Judge Burke in his senatorial aspirations.

CITY COUNCIL

The Proposed Saloon License Split in Two. Pre-Election Promises Ignored.

Our city fathers met in regular session Tuesday evening transacting little but routine business.

City Attorney G. V. Smith cited various authorities showing where the city had no legal right to make the saloon license in a town of this class more than one thousand dollars the year.

The matter of the saloon license ordinance introduced by Councilman Elliott some time ago was then taken up and upon motion of Mr. Elliott, seconded by Mr. Myres, section 2 was amended to read six instead of twelve hundred dollars.

Certain citizens having made a protest against thistles being allowed to grow along our streets and upon vacant lots, it was suggested that some action ought to be taken to the matter.

Councilman Myres having brought up the matter of the condition of the old steel pipe that had been stored away for fifteen or twenty years, County Engineer FitzHenry was asked to inspect pipe being laid by Angeles Water Co.

Bids for supplying fuel to city light plant for ensuing year was let to John Donahue.

The proposition of the regrade of Front street was laid over until August 16th.
