THE REPUBLICAN RALLY MONDAY NIGHT

A Great Meeting. An Immense Audience and Much Enthusiasm Manifested.

One of the most representative audiences which has greeted a political speaker in recent years was out Monday night to hear the people's choice for U S. Senator, Hon. Miles Poindexter, at present one of the Representatives at large from the State of Washington. The hall w s crowded to its capacity. Hon. Stanton Warburton of Tacoma, Republican nominee for Congress to succeed Congressman McCredie, also spoke at length. The county candidates occupied seats on the stage.

County Chairman, R. Treby, introduced the speakers, and in presenting Mr. Poindexter, paid a tribute to the efficiency of the primary law which made it possible for the people to choose, despite the efforts of the politicians to read the honored nominee out of the party.

Mr. Poindexter's talk was a gem in that he constantly referred to the superiority of man over money and the necessity of the people thinking for themselves if they are to rule. I am here, he said, to advocate the election of the Republican ticket. Some harsh things were said in the campaign before the primary, and it is not the intention to take back anything then said as only the truth was spoken. The present methods of the politicians in control of the Republican party are rotten and that is why the progressives of the party are out to do away with gag rule and to reinstate the rule of the people. People care little these days for a mere party name. The question before them for settlement is "whether the rule of the people is to continue, or are we to relapse to a period where a few will dominate the many". "Will the people or the corporations rule?"

We look back to 1904 in this state and find a Republican Convention assembled in Tacoma which adjourned during its deliberations to send an ambassador to Seattle to confer with the attorneys of the Great Northern railroad as to who was to be nominated for Governor. And that ambassador was a Democrat. We found that the corporations named the Republican ticket, also the Democratic ticket, and then sat serenely back and allowed the people to elect either. They did not care which.

The Republican party was born in a similar period, when the country was mis-governed by the Democratic party then in power, and the first great president the party gave to the nation was on the principle of "no class and no special privilege"—the principle of free labor and untrammeled expression of thought. For a generation this principle ruled and the people prospered and democracy spread.

There are standpatters and insurgents in both parties, and it is true that the former stand together regardless of party. The question therefore again arises, shall the people or the corporations rule? Our duty is plain.

Here I want to correct the statement of my friend Mr. Warburton as to his remarks about Champ Clark, Democratic leader. If Clark's will had prevailed, the people would now be in control of the house, but with the aid of 23 Democrats who refused to stay by his views the speaker was retained in power, temporarily.

Judge Grosscup, of the Federal bench and the man who overruled the decision of Judge Landis in fining the Standard Oil company $29,000,000, has said that monopoly has come to stay. In the face of the returns of the recent primary election which has swept the nation, I want to emphatically deny the assertion. Mr. Poindexter then spoke of the benefits of competition, and referred to many instances where railroads held people in subjection paying tribute to them until competing lines forced them to do otherwise, and incidently reminded us in Port Angeles that only with the coming of competition will we get our

INDICATIONS POINT TO D. S. TROY

The work done by Hon. D.S. Troy. in the legislature during the session of 1907 showed thoroughly what could be accomplished by him in the way of the most important line of legislative work—that of the committee. During his first term in the legislature, Mr. Troy appeared on a number of the various committees of the lower house and as chairman of the dairy and livestock committee he accomplished more valuable work than had been done in years by former committees. His name on any committee was evidence that the work of that committee would be done honestly and concisely, and his opinions were always given close consideration.

Mr. Troy will, from all indications, be in the upper house in the next session of the legislature, and in view of the many important measures soon to come up for consideration, this selection will be very opportune and satisfactory. This appreciation of the Democratic candidate for state senator is generally recognized throughout this senatorial district, and the favor his candidacy is meeting with in San Juan, Clallam and Jefferson counties is one that could be expected. The press of the district is with scarcely an exception pronounced in his favor and the opinions expressed by these papers is the opinion of the people at large. Mr. Troy possesses a personality that easily brings him in touch with his fellow workers, and that his ideas are worthy of consideration may be best judged by the success that has followed his effort along lines of public welfare and improvement. In the legislature in which he served three years ago, no man was accorded a larger following of friends and supporters than he; he is a fearless fighter and he fights fair. He understands certainly as well the need of the district he will represent as any man, and that he will give his district a dignified standing and honorable prestige is universally acknowledged. The requirements of senator are of necessity considerably different from those of the lower house, and with the required ability, a successful senator must possess such qualifications as will give him a support and standing with other members that makes him and his opinions, matters of due consideration. The senate needs men of the Troy class; party lines have been erased in this year of intelligence, and the actual qualifications of the man are now considered above party collars.—Irondale News.

TEACHERS ENTERTAIN

In accordance with the custom of several years, the "old teachers" of our school welcomed and entertained the "new teachers" at Parish Hall last Friday evening. The school board and wives were invited and each teacher bidden to bring a guest, so quite a company gathered to enjoy the evening. The hall was prettily decorated with banners, posters, evergreens, streamers of red and white, and large bowls of sweet peas and roses. One end was screened off by a lattice wound in vines as a dining room. In this, small tables were set and decorated with dahlias.

Each guest was given a booklet, scissors and paste, and from magazines cut and pasted pictures illustrating the history of some guest present, into the booklet. Some very interesting and unique booklets were made and each guest was presented with his history, past, present and future, as a memento of the occasion. This was followed by a short program consisting of a piano solo by Miss Robinson and vocal solo by Mr. Edgar. The music was heartily encored and greatly enjoyed. An original poem, dedicated to the new teachers and a reading by Miss Watson caused a considerable merriment. Old fashioned games were played, refreshments served, and all went home feeling it was good to meet in a social as well as a professional way.

A BETTER ROAD DEMANDED

A petition was freely circulated this week, which was numerously signed by our business men and heavy taxpayers, asking the county comissioners to have the county road between Port Angeles and the site of the Olympic Power Company's plant on the Elwha river, put in proper condition for the hauling of heavy machinery over the road this fall and winter, to the end that the company might at once begin their work of development.

The people of Clallam county believe in good roads, and, judging from the way the taxpayers of Port Angeles and vicinity have signed this petition, the board of county commissioners will be justified in going ahead with the work at once as prayed by the petitioners

The Olympic Power Company's plant, when in operation will mean much for Clallam county and its future development, and the Olympic Leader is glad to know that so large a number of our people—those who will have the burden of the taxes to pay—are so liberal minded and willing to put their hands in their pockets and give Mr. Aldwell and his associates encouragement in the work they have undertaken.

DEMOCRATIC MEETINGS

Hon. Maurice Langhorne, Democratic candidate for congress from the second district, and Hon. David S. Troy, candidate for state senator from this district, will address the people of Port Angeles and vicinity in the opera house on next Wednesday, Oct 26, at 8:30 p. m.

These gentlemen will also address the people at Dungeness Thursday, Oct. 27th, at 2 p. m , and at Sequim in the evening at 8 o'clock.

Everybody cordially invited to attend these meetings.

FREE LECTURE AT HANING HALL

Mrs. R. S. Lillie, the inspirational speaker and poet, will deliver an inspirational lecture and poems at The First Spiritualist Society, Sunday evening, October 23rd, at 8p.m. Mrs. Lillie has lectured for many years, in the largest cities thruout the United States, to immense audiences. All people interested in the great psychic question, that is interesting the scientists in the world today, that "if a man die shall he live again", will have a rare opportunity to listen to an inspirational discourse.

The subjects for the lecture and poems will be given by the audience, please prepare your written subjects and questions and bring them to the chairman at the hall; subjects from skeptics especially welcome.

Mrs. Grace Aitkin, the well known medium of Seattle, will follow the lecture with tests, also give private readings on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, at the residence of David Craig, 7th street, between Race and Francis. Phone 163.

Fine music will be furnished by Mr. John T. Lillie, the noted vocalist, and Mrs. Minnie Troy, Miss Wolverton accompanist.

All seats free, the public cordially invited.

Lecture begins at 8p. m. SHARP.

E. W. Merrill & Co. announce this week their intention to help out the efforts of the Woman's Literary Club to build the much needed Tumwater bridge, and so have decided to give a "Bridge Fund Week," beginning October 24th. Minor Happenings of the Week

The National League of Postmasters of the United States held its annual convention at Chattanooga last week.

The interstate commerce commission has decided to suspend the effective operation of the proposed rate increases on Eastern lines until February 1.

By order of United States Judge Kohlsaat, the Illinois state railway commission has been enjoined from enforcing its order for a general reduction of express rates in Illinois.

About 1,000 women in Denver have permits to operate automobiles. There are 15,000 licenses of this kind outstanding, although there are but 6,000 automobiles and motorcycles in Denver.

Gardening among pupils in the suburban schools at San Diego is being introduced with success. Plots adjacent to the schools, and in some cases a portion of the playgrounds, are being cultivated.

Reports are being received in San Antonio that the promise is for an unusually large pecan crop in Texas this autumn. The harvesting begins about the middle or last of October and continues until the holidays.

Six new steamers, two of which have been ordered in Japan, are to be built to replace the steamers now used by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha in the trans-Pacific service to Seattle, according to advices brought by the Awa Maru.

The interstate commerce commission will promptly file an appeal at St. Paul from the decision of last week in the circuit court there adverse to the shippers in the lumber rate case. The appeal will be taken to the supreme court.

Machinists of the Baltimore & Ohio and Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroads, who went on strike about a year ago, will be reinstated, according to an agreement reached at Chillicothe, Ohio. No announcement of the terms of settlement was made.

Charles S. Mellen, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, has been elected president of the Boston & Maine Railroad. Mr. Mellen has been acting president of the Boston & Maine since the recent resignation of Lucius Tuttle, who has been made chairman of the board.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Oregon Short Line railway it was unanimously voted to increase the capital stock of the corporation to $100,000,000, 257,352 shares being reported at the meeting. The old board of directors was re-elected, with the exception that Marvin Hughitt of Chicago was chosen to succeed P. A. Valentine.

AMBITIONS OF ROOSEVELT SCORED BY DEMOCRATS

Thomson, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Although the name of Theodore Roosevelt was not mentioned, there was no mistaking the bitter shafts of criticism hurled at him by John A. Dix, Democratic candidate for governor, who, with the other nominees on the state ticket, was officially notified of his nomination at Pine Nest, his country home.

Mr. Dix declared that any American, who, occupying a position of authority or having the public ear, assails the courts, is a public enemy.

"New nationalism," fathered and advocated by the new apostle of discord and dissension, was characterized by the candidate as a menace to the various institutions of the country.

Herbert P. Bissell, chairman of the nomination committee, spoke of "the inordinate and reckless ambition of a former president, whose record, doctrines and methods present a menace to constitutional government and business prosperity," while Thomas A. Carmody, candidate for attorney general, said that the people "want a constitution without a boss, not a boss without a constitution."

SENATOR J. P. DOLLIVER OF IOWA PASSES ON

Senator Dolliver was a West Virginian by birth, and was 52 years old. He began his political career as member of the Fifty-first congress, and has been either in house or senate ever since. Both in house and senate he was prominent, and especially so in the insurgent movement of the past year.

Admitted to Practice Law.

Olympia, Oct. 15.—As a result of the recent examinations the following have been admitted to practice law in the supreme court: Harley J. Boyle, of Spokane; Thomas L. O'Leary, of Wenatchee; C. E. Collier, of Olympia; Louis J. Muschek, of Tacoma, and D. O. Dean, Elliott Henry, Jr., C. E. Hughes, Emory E. Hess and Frank A. Paul, of Seattle.

Washington State News Items

Authority has been given to the Farmers' and Lumbermen's Bank of Elma to begin business.

Many growers in Walla Walla valley have been compelled to delay the picking of their fruit because of the shortage of apple boxes.

On the recommendation of Senator Jones, Dr. F. H. Brush has been appointed pension examiner surgeon at North Yakima in place of Dr. J. B. Burns, resigned.

Dearth of country school teachers has delayed the opening of a number of schools in Clark county, according to a statement of Oscar McBride, county superintendent.

The big Pasco irrigation ditch will be opened at Zillah Friday with a monster celebration, in which delegations from a large number of towns of Washington will take part.

According to a report read by General Missionary L. W. Terry at the Western Washington Baptist convention at Seattle 10,300 persons belong to the Baptist churches west of the Cascades.

Edward N. Whitson, judge of the United States circuit court, of the Eastern district of Washington, died at his home in Spokane Saturday, following an attack of paralysis a few days previously.

The state railway commission has announced that the hearing regarding equalization of telephone rates in Seattle will be resumed Thursday, October 20, at the assembly room of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce.

The late John H. McGraw, former governor of Washington and pioneer of Seattle, left an estate valued at $258,501.20, according to an inventory and appraisement filed in the probate department of the superior court of King county.

G. W. Rounds, who has been connected with the Stone & Webster interests in a similar position at Savannah, Ga., has been appointed general superintendent of the Tacoma Railroad & Power Company and the Puget Sound Electric Company, with headquarters at Tacoma.

The Seattle chamber of commerce is to have a big exhibit of mining, forestry, fishing, agricultural and horticultural resources of Western Washington in a traveling exhibit train to be sent all over the country by the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound Railway. The exhibit was shipped to Chicago Friday.

From the pulpit into politics is the ambition of Dr. W. J. Hindley, for seven years pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church in Spokane. Dr. Hindley resigned last Monday evening and Tuesday announced himself as a candidate for the commissionership of the city under the new form of government now being worked out.

County bridge contracts are void unless the commissioners follow the law as to advertising and calling for bids is the decision of the supreme court and the contract let by the commissioners of Okanogan county for a bridge across the river at Okanogan city to the Puget Sound Bridge & Dredging Company and Charles Ostenburg is null and void.

SPOKANE MAY BUY PUBLIC UTILITIES

Spokane, Oct. 15.—There is every probability that the proposed new city charter, now being drafted by the freeholders' committee, will include provision for purchase by the city of all the holdings of public service corporations. This is the provision introduced by Warren W. Tolman into the charter prepared by Mayor N. S. Pratt's original committee.

Under this provision it will be possible for the city to take over the Washington Water Power Company or the Spokane Traction Company, street car companies, at any time it becomes necessary for either of these companies to have either a renewal or an amendment in franchises. It will also be provided that in such an event it will be necessary for the city to take no account of the value of the franchise, only the fair actual value of the plant itself being considered.

$675,000 REALIZED FROM SALE 600 CARS APPLES

Wenatchee, Oct. 15.—The pool of 600 carloads of apples handled by the Wenatchee Fruit Growers' Association has been sold to J. H. Bahrenburg Brothers & Co. of New York City for an average price of $1,350 per carload, according to advices received here. This will bring the growers who marketed through the association $675,000 for their crop.

Less than one-third of the fruit grown in the valley is handled through the association, some of the growers selling direct, others shipping on a commission basis and still others filling orders from firms with whom they have dealt for several years.

Record Catch of Seals.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 15.—The sealing schooner Jessie has reported from Akatan with 878 sealskins, making a total of 1,110 for the season on board. This is the biggest catch for some seasons. Four other schooners hunted in Bering sea from this port and no report has been received from them.

TACOMANS PROTEST CENSUS FIGURES

Commercial Bodies Wire Protests to Washington—Believe Their Town Has Full Number Enumerated, Though Admitting Tabluation of Returns Was Faulty.

Tacoma, Oct. 17.—Protests against Census Director Durand's allowance of 82,972 as the population of Tacoma and demands for a recount have been wired to Washington by the Chamber of Commerce and the Commercial Club.

Mr. Durand's padding charges are generally considered ligntly and as unwarranted by facts.

Members of the civic organizations declare that if any of the regular enumerators were guilty of padding they should be punished to the fullest extent of the law.

Tacomans feel that after the "near recount," as they call it, of September was made, Special Agent W. A. McKenzie either double-crossed them when he told them in a conference just prior to his departure from the community that the population figures would be between 104,000 and 107,000, or that Director Durand has picked on Tacoma as an example to the entire United States, "penalizing beyond all bounds of reason," as some put it, that the lesson might have the maximum strength.

General indignation was expressed against Special Agent McKenzie because of the hurried manner in which the recount recheck was made, and the small number of men that he employed to do the work.

Chance to Even Up.

Numerous claims of injustice were made and one instance pointed out was that in the recheck the re-enumerators found one district containing twenty-eight residences that had been missed completely during the April work. McKenzie, it is charged, arbitrarily refused to allow the names of the occupants of the homes to be added in the re-enumeration.

Little credence is placed here in Director Durand's charges of fraud against Special Agent Stacey M. Corwin. Corwin received a straight per diem remuneration of $5, and other than possibly as a matter of pride could not have benefited financially through a larger number of names than legitimate. Corwin left Tacoma soon after census taking ended in April, saying he was going either to the Philippines or Panama.

He had formerly been in the government service in both places, but had not determined which he would visit when he left.

Corwin's one blunder, it was declared, was overzealousness. Four days after the census began it was seen that with only seventy-three enumerators the entire city could not be counted in the fifteen days allowed.

At that juncture the civic organizations took a hand, distributing upwards of 250,000 blanks containing the regular census questions, but not of official form.

Toward the close of the census a perfect flood of the special slips began coming in as the civic organizations increased the supply of special enumerators. Corwin had charge of the comparing of these slips with the regular schedule, but was unable to keep pace with the supply.

Names Entered Promiscuously.

He asserted at the time that the names were all bona fide, but that there was not time to enter all on the schedule by the districts in which their address was given. So, rather than not have them included at all, it is said he allowed the names secured during the last few days to be entered promiscuously. Thus, when Special Agent McKenzie began his recount, he found persons living in Regents park entered as residing in the Third ward, but not entered in the Regents park schedule. It is believed that irregularities of this kind, which were not to be consirered padding because the names were not duplicated, is at the bottom of the charges against Corwin. Certain it is, say his friends, he did not have a dollar to gain by any padding.

GREAT GROWTH HAS STAGGERED OFFICIALS

Washington, Oct. 17.—Staggered by the enormous growth shown by the returns of the new census for a number of Western cities, Director Durand, of the census bureau, ordered an investigation, the result of which appeared in the announcement that gross frauds had been perpetrated.

Mr. Durand gave out also a letter from President Taft, directing that persons implicated in the alleged frauds be prosecuted.

Cities especially mentioned as being affected by the frauds are Tacoma, Seattle and Aberdeen, Wash.; Portland, Ore.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Boise, Idaho; and Fort Smith, Ark., but it is said that there are many others.

The result of a second enumeration of Tacoma, Wash., was announced. The city shows a population of 82,972, an increase of 45,258, or 120 per cent, over the population of 1900. The first figures turned in for Tacoma were 116,248.

APPLE SHOW CARLOAD ENTRIES CLOSE NOV. 6

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 17.—Official announcement was made today by Ren H. Rice, secretary and manager of the National Apple Show, that entries in carload contests for prizes aggregating $3,800, including the championship sweepstake of $1,000, will close in Spokane at 12 o'clock noon on November 6. Entries in other contests for $16,200 in premiums will be accepted up to 6 o'clock the afternoon of November 9. Professor H. F. Van Deman and his assistants will begin judging the morning of November 14, with a view to completing their work on November 18.

"The rule requiring that each exhibit, except district displays, must be of fruit grown on one orchard only, is not open to broad construction," Mr. Rice added. "It means just what it says. The reason for insisting that an exhibit shall be taken from one orchard is to make the competitions fair. It is apparent that if a grower with a small tract were compelled to compete with an association or company, which would pick up boxes here and there, he would be counted out before the scoring began.

"Each carload exhibit must be accompanied by a sworn statement that the apples entered were grown on one orchard. In all other classes the exhibitor pledges his word of honor to the same effect when he signs the entry blank.

"There are no restrictions as to the number of orchards from which the fruit was gathered for the district displays. However, these contests, one for fruit grown on irrigated land and the other on non-irrigated land, cannot be entered by individuals. They are for collective displays exhibited by commercial clubs, associations, unions, counties or districts."

AIRSHIP AMERICA OFF FOR EUROPE

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 17.—Sailing into a thick fog that hung low over the Atlantic ocean a few minutes after 8 o'clock Saturday morning, Walter Wellman, with a crew of five men, is believed to be on an epoch-making voyage to Europe in the huge cigar-shaped airship America.

The men making the flight are Walter Wellman, commander; Melvin Vaniman, chief engineer and next in command; F. Murray Simmons, navigator; J. K. Irwin, wireless operator; John Aubert and Albert Louis Loud, assistant engineers.

The airship is equipped with provisions for thirty days and a twenty-seven-foot lifeboat is carried. If the ship gets into difficulty in the way of motor trouble to the two eight horsepower engines and a donkey engine, which it carries, the wirless will be depended upon to summon ships.

New York, Oct. 17.—Swept onward by a sturdy westerly breeze, Walter Wellman's great dirigible balloon America, first of air craft to hazard transatlantic passage, was following the steamship lanes up the Atlantic coast at midnight last night out of wireless range from shore points, but presumably continuing her unbroken course with all well on board.

The giant craft passed Nantucket island early in the afternoon with propellers idle and held brief wireless communication with the Marconi station at Siasconsett.

In all the other messages there was no hint of the airship's location, but a signaled good-by indicated that Wellman, whose dream is to be the Columbus of the air, on passing Nantucket turned the nose of his craft in a northerly direction, with the British isles as his goal.

A wireless message amplifying those of the day was relayed to Siasconsett last night, thence to Sagaponack, L. I.

It was faint and hard to decipher, but as patched together was as follows:

"All well. Machinery working well. Have turned more northerly to reach transatlantic steamer track. Exact position not sure; somewhere between 300 and 800 miles off shore."

None of the messages received spoke despairingly, though one communication received by the New York Times referred to the outlook as "not favorable."

In the same message, however, was a cheerful "We are keeping up the fight."

RAIN EXTINGUISHES EASTERN FOREST FIRES

Winnipeg, Oct. 15.—"Thank God for the rain" was the message sent by Mayor Williams of Beaudette, in his report that the forest fire crisis in northern Minnesota had passed.

A soaking rain fell throughout the night, and the smouldering fires in the Rapid river country were quenched. Twenty-one men and boys who walked twenty-five miles from International Falls, declare that every home in the Rapid river section was destroyed by the flames that raged for three days over a great area. They said, however, that they saw no human bodies.

Merger Hearing Ended.

St. Paul, Oct. 15.—The Union Pacific merger hearing, commenced in the United States circuit court last Monday, has been closed. It is expected that a decree of court will be issued in a few months. Both sides agree that the case will be taken to the supreme court.

TO DISCUSS COUNTRY LIFE PLANS

MEETING TO BE HELD AT SPOKANE NOVEMBER 17 FOR THAT PURPOSE

Basis Will Be Plans Prepared by the Country Life Commission Appointed by Governor Hay a Year Ago—President David Brown Discusses Work of Commission.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 17.—Ranchers, business men and educators from various parts of the Northwestern and Pacific states will meet in Spokane on November 17, to discuss plans prepared by the Country Life Commission of Washington for the establishment of redirected rural schools and community centers. This is the initial step of a nation-wide movement, co-operative with the state departments of education, to teach the fundamental principles of agricultural and domestic economy and manual and industrial training.

David Brown, of Spokane, chairman of the state commission, appointed by Governor Hay a year ago, announces that the plans prepared for a model community center include a consolidated country school, with a curriculum that will be far in advance of the present rural school idea by teaching the practical things of modern life.

"Primarily, the school is for the average boy, whose institutional education ends even before he finishes the secondary school," Mr. Brown said, "while another purpose is to solve the problem, perhaps the greatest before the country today, of restoring the balance between rural and urban population. It is a 'back to the farm' movement in every sense of the term.

"The keynote is that the best defense against misfortune is to give every child in the country such education that it will be able to earn its own living on a piece of land, if necessary, when it reaches its majority. It is also purposed to urge the people of the open country to work together, not merely with a view to forwarding their economic interests or in competing with those who are organized, but to develop themselves and establish a real neighborly interest and an effective community spirit.

"Students of affairs believe the time is at hand when every child in the United States should learn how to earn his living on a plot of ground, as well as being taught the principles of living. This necessity is becoming more apparent every day. The entire country is alive with educational activity. Ignorance of farming and inertia have become so widespread and so heavy as to constitute a national menace. It is the result of neglected agriculture and the decline of farming interest."

Mr. Brown said that the chief aim of the conference in Spokane, during the week of the third National Apple Show, when growers from many districts in the United States and Canada are assembled, is to arouse intelligent public sentiment in a plan to make farm life so attractive that the average boy and girl will have no desire to rush to the city, also to attract more city dwellers to the farm.

The country life school plant is designed to occupy ten acres of land. It will be formed by consolidating a number of schools, taking in an area of thirty-six square miles, which will make the most distant point from the school about three miles. In addition to the school building there will be a cottage for the principal, athletic and picnic groves, models of good roads and irrigating plants and orchard and farm plots.

"The teachers will be men and women with red blood in their veins," Mr. Brown added, "and able to adapt themselves to the high ideals of a center and school of the type outlined, rather than technical education. The school will be in charge of a principal, who has been educated in practical agricultural as well as advanced school studies.

"Thousands of letters have been received by the commission from practically every state in the Union, and we have reasons to believe that this rural education movement will meet with favor in the larger cities as well as in the country districts, as every citizen must be interested in maintaining the growth and development of the country's agricultural resources."

WOMEN'S CLUBS CLOSES

Walla Walla, Oct. 15.—Delegates to the state federation of women's clubs ended their session yesterday afternoon after electing officers, picking Olympia as the next place of meeting and passing resolutions. The resolutions, however, contained no reference to suffrage, because most of those on the committee were anti-suffragists.

At the election of officers the suffragists won, as none from Tacoma or Seattle were elected. The officers follow: First vice-president, Mrs. L. F. Williams, Spokane; second vice-president, Mrs. O. E. McGlauflin, Hoquiam; recording secretary, Mrs. W. W. Robertson, North Yakima; auditor, Mrs. A. E. Goldsmith, Puyallup; second trustee, Mrs. Thomas, Tacoma.

NEW RAILROAD COMPANY FORMED AT SOUTH BEND

Seattle, Oct. 15.—A Post-Intelligencer special from South Bend, Wash., says:

Articles of incorporation have been filed for a new railroad from Portland to Tacoma, via Raymond, South Bend, the new town of Willapacific and Brooklyn. It will be called the Willapa Harbor & Coast railroad. The directors are local men.

The route is described as running from Portland in a northerly direction, crossing the Columbia and Willapa rivers, to Willapacific, thence running down the right bank of the Willapa to and up the left bank of North river to Brooklyn, and from there to Tacoma.

South Bend is the place of meeting of the directors and stockholders. The capital stock is $10,000,000, divided into 100,000 shares.

Whether the North Coast or the Milwaukee is back of the new road is not known, but there is little question but that they have backing. The local directors are themselves responsible men and well supplied with funds, though not, of course, enough to build the road.

SUPREME COURT SAYS NAMES BUT ONCE ON TICKET

Olympia, Oct. 18.—The state supreme court has sustained Judge Carey's decision in the King county superior court denying a writ of mandate to compel the auditor of King county to place the names of five supreme court nominees under the party designations of both the nonpartisans and the Democrats. The decision was written by Judge Chadwick, a Democrat, and was concurred in by Justices Dunbar, Mount and Crow, Republicans. These are all the members of the court who are not candidates for re-election on the Republican ticket.

Judge Chadwick wrote that technically the case was not before the supreme court, as the application for the writ was made before the auditor had received notification as to the names of the candidates or by whom they had been nominated, but, says the opinion, "because of the supposed political advantage which the relators assume will result to them from a decision by this court, and the public importance of the question, we shall unhesitatingly meet the issue."

Must Choose Designation.

The law in question provides that the name of no candidate shall appear more than once upon the official ballot and that any candidate who has been nominated by two or more parties must notify the clerk of the board of county commissioners under which party designation he desires his name to appear. This law was attacked by the nominees as unconstitutional, the contention being based upon a decision of a California court.

The supreme court says that this California decision was rendered by a divided court of four to three; that the California constitution was subsequently changed to permit such a law to be enacted; that similar laws have been sustained by the courts of other states and finally that this California decision has been cited in many cases brought to defeat the modern trend of elections by the people, mentioning in particular that it was used before the supreme court of Washington in an effort to overturn the direct primary law of this state.

Constitution Knows No Party.

Judge Chadwick asserts in his decision that neither the federal nor the state constitution takes concern of political parties and that the constitution goes no further "than to protect the elector in his right to cast a ballot, not a coerced party ballot, but for the candidate of his choice, whether it be upon one ballot or another."

The decision further says that should the court sustain the arguments presented by Mr. Shepard and the other candidates in this case on the ground that it was unconstitutional because it tended to destroy party organizations, "the Australian system, the primary law and the commission form of government must all fall upon the first attack."

TO BEGIN WORK ON LAKE WASHINGTON CANAL

Work on the excavation of the Lake Washington canal between Lake Union and Salmon Bay will begin as soon as the government engineer's office can draw specifications, advertise for bids and award the contract.

The announcement was made by Major Kutz at Seattle, following a letter from State Land Commissioner Ross notifying him that $100,000 of the $250,000 proceeds of the sale of Lake Union shore lands is now available for aiding the Lake Washington canal.

The work is in the hands of the government engineers. Contracts for excavation work to the extent of $100,000 will be let by them.

T. P. O'Connor to Speak on Coast.

Winnipeg, Oct. 15.—T. P. O'Connor has departed for the Pacific coast after a successful tour in Canada in the interests of the Irish parliamentary party. He will speak at Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and Spokane. Then he departs for Chicago and New York, sailing from Quebec November 4.

THREE ARRESTS FOR COAL FRAUDS

SEVERAL OTHERS IMPLICATED BY GOVERNMENT IN ALASKA IRREGULARITIES

Accused Are Charged With Having Conspired Against the Government by Means of Dummy Entries in Various Groups—Investigation Wide in Its Scope.

Seattle, Oct. 15.—Attorney Charles F. Munday, Attorney George Simmonds, formerly a judge in Colorado, and Cornelius Christopher, a mining promoter, were arrested Friday by Deputy United States Marshal George B. Devenpeck, on bench warrants issued by Judge George Donworth at Tacoma, charging conspiracy to defraud the government out of Alaska coal lands valued at $100,000,000.

Trials Next Month.

The accused men gave $2,500 bail each for appearance before Judge Donworth at 10 o'clock Monday morning. J. E. Munson and Allen B. Simmonds, son of the accused, signed the bond of Simmonds; Cornelius Christopher gave cash bail, while N. H. Latimer and M. W. Peterson signed bonds for Munday. The cases will be tried at the November term of the federal court in this city.

Dummy Entries Charged.

The accused are charged with having conspired to defraud the government on fictitious entries in what is known as the "Christopher group," consisting of seventy-four claims, and the "English," or "Stracey," group of eighty-two claims, located in the Bering river coal fields, between Bering lake and Kushtakah glacier.

Others Implicated.

The charge aganist Munday is for alleged conspiracy to defraud in the "English group," and warrants were issued on similar indictments for the arrest of Algernon H. Stracey and Achie W. Shields. Christopher and Simmonds are charged with irregularities in the so-called "Christopher group."

Heney's Secretary Indicted.

A bench warrant was issued for the arrest of Earl E. Siegley, private secretary to Contractor M. J. Heney, who is now on the way from California to Seattle with the body of his late employer. He will be arrested immediately after the funeral services. The whereabouts of Stracey, an Englishman who has never taken out final papers, is unknown, but he will be arrested as soon as found. It is believed he is in Vancouver, B. C. Shields is in Alaska and the machinery of the federal government was set in motion last night for his apprehension.

Investigation of Wide Scope.

The probe has been inserted far into all the coal claims of Alaska and it is declared at the land office that few, if any, of the so-called "groups" will escape contact with the criminal courts at some angle. A mass of evidence was submitted to the grand jury by Andrew Christensen, special assistant United States attorney and chief of the Seattle field division of the general land office, and B. D. Townsend, of Portland, special assistant attorney general, who was detailed from Washington to take charge of the prosecution of the cases in the criminal courts.

Covers 18,000 Acres.

Special Prosecutor Christensen said: "The cases wherein the grand jury returned indictments involved about 155 entries and approximately 18,000 acres of coal lands in the Bering river fields in Alaska.

"No special instructions have been given by my superiors in Washington with reference to any of the Alaska coal cases. I have general instructions to investigate thoroughly all pending entries, with a view to determining which shall be canceled and which allowed to go to patent. If during such investigation facts were discovered which would warrant criminal prosecution, I was to proceed along these lines. There is no difference so far as the special agents of the general land office are concerned between the frauds involved in the Alaska coal cases and those involving other violations of the public land laws. It is our duty to present all cases to the United States attorney wherein it appears that the public land laws have been violated. I was ably assisted in securing and marshalling the evidence in these cases by Special Agents John Asmeth and J. H. Carnahan."

Railroad Ties Big Item.

Northwest fir lumber manufacturers supplied 9,068,000 ties to the steam and electric railroads during 1909, or 1,181,000 more than were furnished during the previous year. Notwithstanding that the mills furnished 1,181,000 more ties than during the previous year, they received only $155,000 more than during 1908. The railroads paid $3,754,000 for the ties received during 1909 and $3,599,000 during 1908.

Start to Raise Sunken Maine

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 15.—With the final approval by President Taft for plans for raising the battleship Maine, it is expected work on the sunken warship will soon be completed, and the memorable hulk will be taken out to sea and given a deep water burial forever.

SEVEN BOATS TO GO ON NEW PANAMA RUN

Seattle, Oct. 15.—H. S. Bates, head of the firm of Bates & Cheseborough, of San Francisco, while in Seattle announced the intention of his company to charter seven steamships for the Seattle, San Francisco and Panama run, instead of three, as previously announced.

In the first plans of the new line between Atlantic and Pacific coast ports via the government railroad on the Isthmus of Panama there were to be three vessels on the Atlantic side and three on the Pacific side. Already five vessels have been chartered on the Pacific coast, and it is planned to charter two more. Mr. Bates refused to state exactly how many ships would be employed on the Atlantic side, but it will be more than the original three, although not as many as on the Pacific coast.

Three of the vessels chartered on the Pacific coast will run only as far north as San Francisco, while four will run into Seattle. With these four steamships it is planned to maintain a fourteen-day schedule, in order to compete with the fine service of the Hawaiian-American line, which maintains a bi-monthly schedule via the Tehuantepec railroad.

Thursday marked the opening of the new service, when the steamship Mackinaw, the biggest of the fleet, sailed for Panama with a cargo of nearly 20,000 cases of salmon. But the regular sailings every fourteen days will not be in force until the first of the year, as the company has only five vessels instead of the seven required to maintain the schedule.

FLAMES BELCH FROM CRATER AT BOGOSLOV

Seward, Alaska, Oct. 15.—The famous volcano Bogoslov, in the Aleutian Islands, is in more violent eruption than ever before, according to a report brought from the west by the revenue cutter Tahoma, which arrived yesterday.

Smoke and ashes are rising a mile and a half above the crater, according to triangulations made by the Tahoma's officers. Flames burst from the cone, lava is flowing down the sides, and huge boulders are thrown high into the air.

A lake in the center of one of the Bogoslov Islands is boiling, and dense clouds of steam rise from the caldron. The island was formerly a rendezvous for uncounted thousands of sea birds, all of which probably were killed. Not a live bird was visible from the Tahoma, but great numbers of dead ones floated in the sea.

The Tahoma anchored ten miles from the volcano, not daring to approach nearer, the cutter's decks being covered with hot ashes even where she lay. The officers spent a whole day in viewing the magnificent spectacle of the troubled mountain, and in making photographs.

While bound to Attu Island early in September the Tahoma's officers noted recent and remarkable changes in the topography of the Bogoslov group, a new island having lifted its head where deep water formerly had been, and other islands having diminished.

A party of volunteers under Lieutenant R. R. Waesche asked to be permitted to land on the islands and make observations until the cutter's southward trip in October, but Chief Engineer Bryan, who knows the freaks of Bogoslov, warned the men of the peril of their undertaking, and the proposed expedition was abandoned. If the explorers had remained on the islands they must have perished, for when the Tahoma returned the chief peak was ablaze and the other islands in commotion.

STATE BANK DEPOSITS SHOW GOODLY INCREASE

Deposits of state banks increased approximately $6,000,000 between June 30 and September 1. The state banks increased their cash approximately $1,000,000 between the same dates. Loans were reduced about $300,000. A statement showing the condition of the state banks on September 1 has just been issued from the state bank examiner's office.

Deposits stood at $80,230,085.41, compared with $74,598,613.74 on June 30. The Dexter Horton National Bank no longer reports to the state bank examiner and on that account the examiner's deposits totals have been reduced about $10,000,000 and other items proportionately. When this is considered, the deposits are now about at the highest point in the history of the state.

The capital stock, surplus and undivided profits of the state banks on September 1 stood at $16,295,553.09, compared with $18,360,124.94 on June 30; stocks and other securities stood at $8,698,516.10, compared with $9,997,423.57 on June 30.

Plan Unity of Action.

Tacoma, Oct. 15.—With the view of doing away with inter-city jealousies among the communities of the Pacific Northwest, the Rotary Club of Tacoma started an active campaign. It is proposed to get all the cities of Oregon, Washington and Idaho to work together for the general upbuilding of the Northwest in general.

Treasurers Handle Millions.

Olympia, Oct. 15.—During the year 1909 the county treasurers of the state handled $31,500,000, according to figures compiled from county reports by the state bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices.

SAMUEL HILL RAPS RAILROADS

SPEECH AT GOLDENDALE FRIDAY NIGHT CAUSES SENSATION.

Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Harriman Lines Taken to Task—Asserts Unless People Obtain Concessions, They Will Seriously Consider Taking Over Properties Themselves.

Samuel Hill, son-in-law of James J. Hill, and for years a prominent figure in the railroad world, created a sensation here Friday night in a speech denouncing the management of the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and Harriman lines, for a policy that has retarded the development of Washington and Oregon.

Mr. Hill's speech came at the close of a meeting of the Southwestern Development League, to which delegates had been sent from all towns in the southwestern part of the state, Portland, Seattle and Tacoma. Mr. Hill, who resides in Seattle, attended the meeting as honorary president of the state Good Roads Association, and as the head of the Maryhill Land Company, which is developing about 6,000 acres of land in this county.

In his speech, Mr. Hill declared that contralization of control in the Pacific roads among Eastern capitalists, who had no conception of the Western country and no interest in the development either of Washington or Oregon, was responsible for retarding the growth of these states.

Mr. Hill declared that the wave of insurgency, which had spread through this country, is traceable to the fact that railroad and other public service corporations have refused to listen to pleas of the public for a fair deal. Mr. Hill charged that failure of railroads in this stae to encourage development is responsible for much of the unrest shown by the people.

May Force Public Control.

Unless the railroads will manifest a deeper interest in the welfare of the people of the Northwest, Mr. Hill declared that it would be necessary for the legislatures of Oregon and Washington to enlarge the powers of their railroad commissions and to compel the roads to give attention to the needs of the two states. Mr. Hill asserted that unless this is done and remedies can be had through the railroad commissions, the people must seriously consider a proposition to take over the transcontinental lines themselves.

The speech of Mr. Hill created a tremendous sensation among the delegates to the development league's meeting and among the people who attended the closing session. Aside from his relationship to the chairman of the board of directors for the Great Northern, Mr. Hill is an old railroad man himself and leader in the good roads movement, not only in this state, but throughout the country. He has been one of the prime movers in the organization of the International Good Roads Congress and was speaking officially in his denunciation of the railroads of the Northwest.

Samuel Hill has filled practically every important post with the Great Northern and is intimately acquainted with that road's policy. He interested James J. Hill in the good roads movement and has induced the Great Northern's chief to give closer personal attention to all development movements in the territory traversed by that road.

Big Man in Great Northern.

During the time he was identified with the Great Northern Mr. Hill rose to the general management of the Montana lines, and at one time was regarded as the principal operating official of the Great Northern. He was the purchaser of the Minneapolis terminals and the inspiration of the scheme for joint terminal facilities in the Twin Cities.

When Samuel Hill quit the railroad service to come to the coast he abandoned all connections with the Great Northern. Mr. Hill's first work in the West was the reorganization of the Seattle gas plant, and until he closed out his gas plant interests was not actively identified with other interests in the state. Since then, however, Mr. Hill has become one of the most extensive land owners in Washington.

For several years Samuel Hill has been on the brink of an open rupture with high railroad officials of lines in Washington and Oregon. Mr. Hill has insisted that the railroads were not manifesting any interest in the permanent development of the state, and that they should do so, because the railroad interests are dependent wholly upon the success of the agricultural districts.

Fight on Younger Hill.

It is an open secret in railroad circles that while Samuel Hill and James J. Hill are close personal friends, there is little love lost between Louis W. Hill and the Washington man. Samuel Hill has not shown much respect for Louis Hill's railroad ability, and in railroad circles it is believed the good roads advocate's speech Friday night may have been directed principally at the younger Hill.

Those who know him are convinced that Samuel Hill, having openly declared war, now will keep up his fight against the railroad lines and will throw the weight of his influence into a legislative contest to compel the Pacific roads to launch a general development plan. His primary interest is in the development of highway building, but Mr. Hill also declares that settlers in the two Northwestern states are entitled to assistance from the roads in building up their new communities.

MANUEL GLAD TO LAY DOWN CARES OF THRONE

Lisbon, Oct. 15.—Captain Desa, who commanded the royal yacht Amelie on the voyage to Gibraltar, says that during the night King Manuel discussed the situation frankly with his uncle, the duke of Oporto. He expressed a certain feeling of satisfaction and declared he was utterly weary of the burden of the crown and disgusted with the army of sycophants and place hunters around him. He even expressed admiration for some of the republican leaders for their courage and energy, whereas the opposing sections of monarchists had shown neither resolution nor ordinary pluck.

Captain Desa believes the king bitterly felt his complete desertion in his hour of trial, not a single minister having tried to see him or inform him of the course of events. The members of the cabinet all fled or went into hiding except the premier, who was confined to his residence by an injured foot.

Amnesty Granted.

The government has issued a decree granting amnesty to all military and naval offenders.

The huge iron safes containing the treasure of Quelhas convent, which reverts to the government, have been placed in the Bank of Portugal. A commission composed of officials of the ministry of finance has been appointed to make an inventory of the royal palaces and decide what property belongs to the king personally. This commission will also investigate the outstanding debts of the royal family.

Jose Relvas, the new minister of finance, in an interview, said that one of the first acts of the government would be to impose obligatory secular education. At the same time the republicans would fully recognize liberty of conscience, he declared, and did not desire to destroy religious sentiment, but only would obligate the priests to confine themselves to spiritual matters.

Manuel and Mother Going to England.

Evesham, Eng., Oct. 15.—King Manuel of Portugal and Queen Mother Amelie have accepted the invitation of the Duke of Orleans to become his guest at Woodnorton. The duke received a cablegram from the queen mother saying King Manuel and she would embark on the Victoria and Albert as soon as the imperial yacht reached Gibraltar, and would proceed at once to England.

STATE TREASURER LEWIS FILES ANNUAL REPORT

Olympia, Oct. 15.—The report of State Treasurer John G. Lewis, for the two years ending September 30, 1910, has been completed and is in the hands of the printer and has been checked and found accurate to the penny by the state bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices and by an expert of the company which furnishes the treasurer's official bond.

The report covers much data not heretofore appearing in the report of a state treasurer, and also includes several recommendations for legislative action. Mr. Lewis suggests that the present plan of fifteen separate district horticultural funds be abolished and that the payments be handled through the state general fund.

Wants Law Changed.

Instead of having state $25 liquor licenses issued for a year from the date the saloon started business, as now the law, the treasurer urges that the law be changed so that all will be for the calendar year beginning January 1, that existing licenses be paid up pro rata to that date and that the collections be made and licenses issued by the tax commission, instead of through his office.

A feature of the report is the showing that the state general fund debt, which was $873,598 September 30, 1906, and was $967,576 two years ago, has been reduced to $472,163. This debt means the balance after subtracting cash on hand from the aggregate of outstanding general fund warrants, bonds and interest thereon, normal bonds and interest. It makes no account of the debt of the capitol building fund nor of the A.-Y.-P. exposition, both of which, while interest is guaranteed by the state general fund, are debts against lands specially set aside to meet the obligations.

Hop Picking Machine Invented.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 15.—A hop picking machine is one of the latest products of inventive genius. Such a contrivance has been set up on the ranch of E. C. Horst, near Eola, Ore., and does all that could be expected of it. It gathers the hops from the vines, which are thrown into the machine by the wagon load, and segregates the leaves from the hops.

In one day Mr. Horst, who is a large grower of hops, picked 27,000 pounds of hops on his ranch with this machine.

PRESIDENT TO AGAIN VISIT PANAMA

COLONEL GOETHALS CONVINCES HIM THAT CANAL PROBLEMS NEED ATTENTION

Starts November 10 and Will Be Gone Twenty Days—Fixing of Tolls, Management of Railroad and Regulation of Coal Sales to Be Considered

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 15.—President Taft will sail for the Isthmus of Panama November 10 from Charleston, S. C., on the cruiser North Carolina, convoyed by her sister ship, the Montana. The president will be gone about twelve days, spending about four days on the isthmus.

The president had practically given up all idea of visiting the canal this year until Colonel Goethals, chief engineer, called upon him yesterday. At the end of the visit Mr. Taft had been convinced that the problems confronting the officials of Panama require his presence.

Some of the problems to be dealt with in the immediate future are:

The extent and character of the fortifications, the fixing of tolls, a proposed increase in wages, the future management of the Panama railroad, the form of permanent government of the canal zone and the regulation of the sale of coal.

May Enter Coal Business.

The government may go into the business of selling coal itself in order to prevent the possibility of extortion or a monopoly.

Mr. Taft had thought that several of these questions would not require settlement for a year or more, but Colonel Goethals put matters in a different light. The question of tolls, which it was thought could wait until the canal is much nearer completion, was explained by Colonel Goethals to be one of the most pressing for congress to meet. An international conference of steamship owners and shipping interests is to be held in Berlin in the summer of 1911. It is believed to be highly important that congress should have fixed the rates of toll by that time. The canal must be made to attract shipping and at the same time an effort will be made to have the toll charges meet the interest on the $400,000,000 investment which the canal will represent.

Date Set for Opening.

The date for opening the Panama canal has been set for January 11, 1915. President Taft and Colonel Goethals believe it will be completed and open long before that time.

The proposed early opening of the canal is already having an effect upon shipping interests, especially in the Pacific, and inquiries are coming in as to the estimated rates of tolls. President Taft was informed that one line supplying the Hawaiian trade would have forty-five ships in commission by the time the canal is opened. This line now has its freight transferred across Mexico by rail. If the rates of toll through the canal will make the cost of shipping less, the company will use the waterway, otherwise it will continue its present method.

NOTED ART IMPORTERS ARRESTED FOR FRAUD

New York, Oct. 15.—The entire Fifth avenue establishment of the five Duveen brothers, known the world over as dealers in rare art objects and antiquities, was seized by federal officers Friday and Benjamin J. Duveen, one of the firm, was placed under arrest, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government out of customs dues.

Henry J. Duveen was arrested on the Cunard liner Lusitania when the vessel reached quarantine. He was taken off on a revenue cutter and hurried to the federal building for arraignment.

Henry A. Wise, United States district attorney, in asking for extraordinarily heavy bail, $100,000, in the case of Benjamin Duveen, said he had evidence that the frauds would reach more than $1,000,000, and that all five brothers were implicated, as well as another man.

Bail was finally fixed at $50,000, which was given, and Benjamin Duveen was released.

A search for undervalued articles began, and more than a van load of "suspicious" goods was found.

When the prisoner was taken before United States Commissioner Shields District Attorney Wise said the case was the most important the government has had thus far to deal with in connection with import frauds. He said information was recently placed in his possession tending to show that the Duveens for years had been defrauding the government out of customs duties on imported works of art and antique furniture by means of false consular invoices.

Big Prizes at Spokane Tourney.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 15.—Ten thousand dollars in prizes and $2,550 in guaranteed purses for the highest individual and three-team scores will be offered at the 1911 tourney of the Western Bowling Congress in Spokane, beginning March 6 and continuing ten days. The $1,000 prize for the high five-man team is the largest ever hung up in a bowling tournament. The other special prizes are: High three-man team, $750; high two-man team, $500; high individual score, $300.

OF WORLD'S FIFTY LARGEST CITIES U. S. HAS NINE

Washington, Oct. 15.—The United States, by the 1910 census, places nine of her cities among the fifty largest in the world, with a possible tenth if San Francisco lives up to local expectations of growth when the totals are reported.

The United States has the largest number of cities in the list, England and Germany next with five each, Russia four, China, India and Italy three each, France, Japan, Austria-Hungary, Spain and Australia two each.

The populations of the three Chinese cities are conservatively estimated. Several others, on which only wild figures are available, are omitted entirely, the reports being absolutely untrustworthy.

Bearing in mind that San Francisco may crowd Rome off the list, here's how they stand—the fifty largest cities of the world:

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION TAKES UP LABOR MATTERS

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 15.—The house of deputies of the Protestant Episcopal convention took action on a world's conference of churches of the Christion faith yesterday.

It appointed a committee of seven clergymen and seven laymen to meet with a committee of seven bishops and bring in a report at this session regarding the advisability of holding a world's convention.

The house of bishops decided that it would be inexpedient at this time to bring before the convention the matter of changing the laws of the church regarding marriage and divorce.

The question of changing the name of the church from the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States of America to the Episcopal church of the United States of America was discussed by the deputies, but no action was taken.

"The menace of the idle poor, who must work, but wish to be idle, is no greater than the menace of the idle rich, who give themselves up to pleasures with no thought of work."

This is one of the expressions in the report of the joint committee on the relations of capital and labor, submitted to the convention by Rev. Edward L. Parsons, rector of St. Mark's church, Berkeley, Cal.

Reduce Labor Hours.

Specific recommendations in the report included the gradual reduction of the hours of labor in order to give that degree of leisure that is necessary for proper social life; one day of rest in seven for all who labor, and a living wage as the minimum in all branches of industry.

"The church cannot ally itself with either capital or labor," said the report. "It must be the church of all men. But it must throw its influence on the side of human rights. The first care of Christianity must emphatically be men, not profits."

MANY FROM STATES ENTER CANADIAN LAND

Washington, Oct. 15.—Homestead entries in Canada for the six months ending July 31, 1910, show an increase of 11,852 over the similar period of 1909, the entries numbering 33,416.

For July alone there were 4,260 entries, of which 1,248 were made by Canadians residing in Canada, 58 by Canadians returning from the United States, 959 by United States citizens, and with the exception of 34 entries the whole of the remainder were made by persons from the British Isles and Northern European countries, in which the government is carrying on immigration work.

Of the entries from the United States over one-half were made by people coming from North Dakota and Minnesota. Patents were issued in July, 1910, for 248,223 acres of land, as against 186,013 for the corresponding month of 1909.

Irondale Plant Increases Output.

Irondale, Oct. 15.—During the past week the open-hearth furnaces in the steel plant have turned out 1,100 tons of ingot steel, and both the 22-inch and the 14-inch rolling mills have been kept running to full capacity day and night. The output of the steel mills is steadily increasing, and it will become still greater when, two weeks hence, the new continuous heating furnaces are installed.

WILL SUPPORT PEOPLE'S CHOICE.

Of one thing the voters of Clallam county may well feel assured, and that is that in the Hon. D. S. Troy they have a man who will stand by the people's choice when representing the district in the state senate at Olympia next winter; he will vote for Miles Poindexter for United States senator. The people of Clallam county are earnest in this matter, as shown by the vote at the recent primary election, Poindexter having been the choice of the voters by a majority of nearly three to one.

Before going into the recent primary election, Mr. Troy, although a Democrat in politics, pledged himself to support for the United States senate the man who was named as the choice of the people for that high position. The election in this district and more especially in Clallam county, indicated, positively, that Mr. Poindexter was the man the people desired for that office, and Mr. Troy will do exactly as he said he would before the choice of the voters was known; he will support Mr. Poindexter for the United States senate at the coming election.

When Mr. Poindexter goes to the senate he will go as a Republican, and when a candidate for legislative honors, belonging to the opposition party, pledges himself in advance to vote for the people's choice for United States senator, knowing, in all reason, that that choice would be a member of another political party, it means something. It means that the man who will voluntarily make the pledge can be depended upon to stand by his word—and the people. It means that such a man is liberal in his political views as well as in his business affairs.

Mr. Troy's word is as good as his bond — and both are gilt edged in the community in which he resides. He will enter into no combination with unpledged members of either party in the state legislature to defeat Mr. Poindexter out of the position the people of the state by their votes at the primary decided should be his.

Frank Lotzgesell of Dungeness, who is a candidate on the Republican ticket for the office of County Commissioner from the first district, was an Angeles visitor first of the week, coming down to attend the Poindexter and Warburton meeting Monday, and on Tuesday accompanying other candidates of the party on their tour to the west end of the county.

Mr. Lotzgesell is a Clallam county boy and has lived in it all his life. He was born and raised on the old homestead near Dungeness, his father, the late George Lotzgesell, Sr., coming to the county over fifty years ago. Like the product of the soil of which he is a native, Mr. Lotzgesell is first class in every particular. His life has been an open book and not a charge of any kind has ever been brought against his name. The credentials which he offers to the voters of this county are for good character, honesty, sobriety, and ability. Struggling against great odds in the early pioneer days, he has established for himself a good reputation and has fought his way successfully in earning an honest living out of the soil of Clallam county.

Every day sees an increasing sentiment in his favor for county commissioner. People realize that Mr. Lotzgesell will be free to represent the entire county and not be tied to any one section. He is a man of large experience and good judgment in county affairs, and especially road building, one of the important duties that falls to the lot of county commissioner.

THE REPUBLICAN RALLY

What is the great evil of the day? In my opinion it is commercialism. Not the making of money legitimately, but the sale of those qualities of human nature which are more sacred than money. We might not change in nature in passing from a Republic to a Monarchy, but if we continue to sell for money the finer senses, we are due to a fall the like of which has not before been seen. How much is the soul of a man worth?

Mr. Poindexter paid a tribute to the many ladies present, and thanked the people of Clallam for the splendid vote given him, not for himself, he said, but for the principles he represents. These principles are now the principles of the Republican party. They are the pledges of the party and if they are not carried out I will help you to turn out those who fail to keep their trust.

We intend to tax incomes.

To strengthen the Sherman Anti trust law to restrain monopoly.

To revise the tariff downward, intelligently, by means of the tariff commission of experts. To have a tariff covering simply the difference in cost for production here and abroad.

Another danger is the manipulation of the judiciary. We want a judiciary that is responsible only to the people, and we want a primary law that will apply to the judiciary as well as to other officers.

We need parties. We see the evils of one party in power too long. Parties there will always be, at least two, one to carry out the government and the other to watch them.

Mr. Warburton spoke first and at considerable length. While Mr. Poindexter had the hearts of his hearers it was quite evident that in Mr. Warburton's trend of thought there was too much of self-laudation and self-importance, and his talk compared with the Seattle's P.-I.'s attack upon him created some doubt in the minds of those who heard him if there was not really some truth in the charges.

He referred at length to his work in the legislature, in his efforts in conjunction with Gov. McBride to create a sentiment for the creation of a railway commission, and the defeat by the purchase of the legislature by the corporations. He spoke of the tariff, also at length.

It is understood that Mr. Poindexter came down here for the purpose of assisting Mr. Warburton in his campaign, but his remarks seemingly embarrassed that gentleman for he did not mention Mr. Warburton except to call him to task for his slap at the integrity of the Democratic leader of the house.

THE BAND MASQUERADE

The masquerade Saturday night was a grand success and cleared for the band boys in the neighborhood of a hundred dollars. The music was all that could be desired and the floor was crowded with masqued dancers, all bent on having a gay time and furnishing entertainment for the large crowd of spectators. There were many ridiculous costumes as well as some very handsome ones. Elmer Day wore a magnificent Chinese robe and his make-up was fine, easily winning for him the first prize. About twenty-five prizes were awarded in all but we were unable to get a complete list of all the winners. The two little girls, one dressed as a coon and one in a hobble skirt costume, were the little Miss Kerkes and Miss Guy, they were both awarded prizes and certainly deserved it for the amusement they afforded everyone.

THE LECTURE COURSE.

Any one desiring to engage season tickets to the Lyceum Course of entertainments and concerts to be given during the fall and winter, will please subscribe at once at W. J. Mathewson's drug store. The course this year consists of four entertainments: The Southland Orchestra and Quartet; H. Tremain Dunstan, Lecturer, from Sydney, Australia; Miss Augusta Grimm and Miss Jean Cooper, Readers, Singers and Whistlers; Grace V. Bonner, Ventriloquist, Character Impersonator and Reader.

Season Tickets for the four engagements will be $1.50; students $1.00. Subscription list closes October 31st.

Candidates — not filed—who were nominated at the September primaries had until Wednesday to file, pay the fee and get their names on the ticket. Only one of the four thus named on the Democratic ticket appeared, so that the entire Democratic ticket as qualified is D. S. Troy for Senator, Dr. F. S. Lewis for Representative, A. I. Filion for Commissioner 2nd Dist., Chris Miller, Commissioner 1st. Dist., E. A. FitzHenry, Engineer, John Hallahan, Assessor.

TO THE PEOPLE OF CLALLAM COUNTY:

My name will appear on the ticket at the November election as the Democratic candidate for Representative of the 34th District. If I am elected to that office I shall give the best service of which I am capable to this county, the State and the Nation. For the county, equitable taxation and its fair share in the distribution of the monies raised for roads and other public purposes. In the state at large I shall favor such laws as shall give the people the largest possible share in government, as in Oregon, Arkansas and other progressive states. I believe in the largest individual liberty consistent with good government and a proper consideration of the rights of others, also in the rule of the majority for in no other way can Republican institutions be perpetuated.

In the recent primaries the Hon. Miles Poindexter received a majority over all the other candidates in the state combined for U. S. Senator. In this county a majority of democrats voting supported him. I therefore feel it my duty as well as pleasure to vote for him if elected to the office to which I aspire.

I have lived in Clallam county over twenty-two years. My qualifications for the office are known to a majority of the citizens; and on the facts alone that you believe me capable to fill the office creditably and will work in season and out of season for the interests of Clallam county do I base my appeal for your support.

Respectfully,
F. S. LEWIS,
Candidate for Representative.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE CITY OF PORT ANGELES

At the solicitation of numerous tax payers and friends, I have consented to become a candidate for mayor, subject to the primary election to be held on November 8, 1910.

I am in favor of a sane and progressive policy of street improvements

I am heartily in favor of bridging Tumwater and Valley creek gulches.

I am in favor of urging upon the next congress to pass a bill for the disposition of the government blocks, so that the property may become taxable, and to enable the city to go ahead with much needed street improvements.

I am in favor of urging upon the next congress for an appropriation for a public building, to which Port Angeles is entitled.

I am in favor of establishing the grades of the city so that property owners may know under what conditions to build

I am in favor of making a start on a sewerage system.

I am most heartily in favor of bringing the water of the Olympic hot springs on Boulder creek into the city of Port Angeles, making this the mecca of health and pleasure seekers, the same as Los Angeles, Calif., which hundreds of thousands of people visit every year for health and pleasure, expending in that city millions of dollars for such.

The cost of bringing the water from the springs into the city may be obtained by a bond issue, making the indebtedness a charge upon the enterprise itself, without adding any tax upon the people.

If you honor me with the office of mayor, I promise a faithful performance of the same.

Very truly yours,
LEWIS LEVY.

G. W. Case, formerly of 5th and C streets, Tumwater Hill, passed away Monday from heart trouble and his body was taken to Seattle Tuesday for burial in Mt. Pleasant cemetery. Deceased was 75 years of age and leaves to mourn his death six sons, three of whom are living in Port Angeles, one in Seattle and two in the East.

Mrs. L. A. Jones of Pine Hill is very much elated over her share of the cash prizes awarded Clallam county exhibitors at the Seattle fair and well she might be. Her exhibit consisted of a beautifully decorated peach box containing nine apples and two pears, the three rows of three apples each completely filling the box. Mrs. Jones received a check of $7.00 for her exhibit.

H. M. Fisher, P. J. Williams, E. E. Fisher, Jas. Gallagher, C. R. Jones and State Fish Commissioner Riseling made up a hunting party to the Fisher-Farmer lodge, Lake Sutherland, first of the week. The fish commissioner was here Monday talking over matters with local people relative to the preservation of fish in Lake Crescent and looking over the lakes with reference to the establishment of a fish hatchery, and while he did not give out anything for publication, it is understood that he was very favorably impressed with the situation and it is not at all improbable that he will recommend the establishment of a hatchery in the vicinity of the lakes, presumably on indian river.

Parisian Models

THE model at the left is of striped cloth in two shades of brown. The blouse and sleeves are cut in one piece and trimmed with a brown silk embroidery and straps of cord and buttons to match. It is finished at the neck with an edge of brown velvet or liberty and little frills of cream lace. Similar frills finish the sleeves at the elbows.

The plastron is of brown crepe de chine, and the guimpe or collar is of tucked cream tulle. The skirt is slightly gathered at the bottom and drawn in by a wide band of the material on which the stripes run crosswise and which is trimmed with the straps and buttons. The skirt is finished with a shaped flounce of the velvet or liberty. The girdle is of the material.

The other model is of blue velvet or drap de soie. The blouse, with crossed front, is cut in one piece with the sleeves and finished with an edge of black liberty or velvet. It is trimmed with a multi-colored cotton embroidery which forms a collar, tiny revers and motifs on the sleeves.

The plastron and undersleeves are of dotted tulle, the girdle is of liberty. The skirt, one of the new hobble skirts, is trimmed to correspond with the waist, with the edge of liberty or velvet and with the embroidery, as may be preferred.

MEMENTOS OF ONE'S "HERO"

Much Enjoyment May Be Had in Making a Collection of Matter Concerning Admired One.

Nearly every girl has some special "hero" who embodies in himself the qualities she most admires, and if she be given to "collecting" she will find much enjoyment in gathering together all the mementos of him she can. If it be Napoleon, for instance, she will gradually add every work that has been written on his life to the particular shelf in her bookcase devoted to his honor; while just above it she will hang engravings of him at different periods and of the various battles that made him famous. If her hero be an author she will have one edition at least of all his books and as many different photographs of him as she can muster. Pictures of his birthplace, his early home, etc., will add to the interest of her collection, and if she can obtain his autograph she will feel rich indeed. There is no reason why it should not be a "heroine" instead of a "hero," for women who have shone like stars in the firmament are sufficiently numerous to suit any conception of "greatness."

Women to Have Pockets.

The latest news from the select world where fashions are made indicates that women will no longer have to do without pockets. The latest dresses in tunic form show two pockets attached to the skirt in front, a little above each knee, so that they can be comfortably reached with the hand. The tunic of light material falls over them.

The men dressmakers who have devised the pockets have also stpulated what shall be put in them. It appears that one is for the handkerchief and he other for the powder puff. As no arrangement is made for the purse it may be assumed that the little bag will still be indispensable.

Paints and Dyeing.

If your dress accessories do not quite match your gown, or you wish that gown itself a slightly different shade, try painting with oil colors and gasoline. The effect is marvelous and the slight odor soon goes off. Kid slippers can thus be made to match exactly any costume.

A spot on linen can be painted with water-colors to match the clean material, as the paint sinks into the linen without changing its texture. It rubs off, however, and must be renewed every five or six months.

Hat Trimmings.

Flowers are no more to be seen on the best Paris hats; feathers have entirely taken their place. Black and white ostrich plumes are first in favor, especially in the willow curl.

Paradise aigrettes in the same shades are also popular with the Parisienne, though fortunately most of our really well-dressed women refuse to wear feathers that are obtained at the cost of so much slaughter.

FOR SOFT SHADE OF BLUE

Dress Especially Adapted for Young Girl Should Be Made Up in Some Thin Material.

Some quite thin material must be used for this dress. Our model is in eolienne in a pretty soft shade of blue; the bodice and upper part of skirt are finely tucked, the lower part of skirt is then set in flat plaits turning from front, and is joined to upper under a scalloped band of silk with a button in each scallop. The yoke is tucked net in upper part, and this is encircled by a shaped band of thick lace. The joining of bodice to yoke is covered by a scalloped band of silk. The box-plait in center and the cuffs are also silk.

Materials required for dress: Seven yards 42 inches wide, one yard silk 22 inches wide, three-eighths yard tucked net, half yard piece lace 18 inches wide.

Collar Stitches.

If you get sick of eyelet work and lace insertion in linen collars and jabots, here are a few hints of what can be done in that line:

French laid, padded dots, wallachian, venetian ladder, Italian cut work, soutache braiding, cable stitch, ismit. Every one of these is seen on modish collars, Jabots and belts, and can be used by the clever needleworker who is tired of "the same old thing

HIS LOBSTER RUSE WORKED

The Old Bird reached home late, and found he had exceeded lock-up time.

He rang and rang, and then he rang again. After that he rang, and, as that had no effect, he thought he'd ring, and so he rang. At last his wife's head popped out of an upstairs window.

"You can go away," she said. "I'm tired of this."

"So am I," said the Old Bird.

"You won't get in tonight!" she declared.

"But, my dear," expostulated the husband, "I have brought home a boiled lobster and two bottles of champagne."

Mrs. Old Bird's head popped in, and soon she had stumped downstairs and opened the door.

"I'll make a light, dear," she said, leading the way through the dark hall towards the dining-room.

Then she turned on the electric current, and, looking at her spouse, frowned.

"Well," she demanded, "where are the lobster and champagne?"

"Here, my dear!" said the Old Bird with a laugh, and tapped his vest.

DEAD AND INJURED

BATTLE? NOPE; JUST FINAL RETURNS FOR JULY 4, 1910.

Takes Some Time to Get In All the Figures, but They Show What Doggone Fools We Can Be.

New York. — Although the list of deaths and accidents due to the celebration of the Fourth of July is still large, the "sane" observance of the day this year shows a notable improvement in this respect, according to statistics compiled by the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The decrease in accidents is most marked in those sections where restrictive legislation has been put in effect, the Journal says.

"Two thousand, nine hundred and twenty-three persons were injured July 4 this year, of whom 131 died," says the Journal.

"Sixty-seven deaths were due to tetanus, 19 were killed outright by firearms, 11 by explosions of powder, bombs or torpedoes; 6 by cannon or similar contrivances, while 26, mostly little girls, were burned to death by fire from fireworks.

"Startling as this showing is, it is the best since 1903, when the Journal began keeping its record. In 1903 4,449 persons were injured, of whom 463 lost their lives, 406 of them dying from tetanus.

The grand total for eight years shows that 37,526 persons have been injured in Independence day celebrations. Of these, 1,662 died, 604 as the direct result of their injuries and 968 from tetanus following injuries. One hundred and twenty-two persons have lost their eyesight, 551 have lost the use of one eye, 432 have lost the use of arms, legs or hands and 1,541 have been crippled by the loss of fingers.

"The detailed figures for 1910 show 72 cases of lockjaw, 67 of which were fatal, 7 persons lost their sight, 33 lost one eye, 26 lost arms, legs or hands and 114 lost their fingers.

"The decrease from 1903 to 1910 is due to more intelligent methods of celebration, the most marked decreases occurring in states where the agitation for restrictive measures was most urgent. Massachusetts had this year had only one-seventh the injuries it had the previous year; Missouri, New Jersey and New York reduced their injuries to one-third; Illinois and Ohio to one-half; Pennsylvania reduced its injuries to two-thirds of last year's; Indiana, Iowa and Wisconsin show larger totals than a year ago."

SQUIRRELS GNAW THE CABLES

Little Animals Often "Knock Out" Many of the Telephones in Des Moines.

Des Moines, Ia.—If your telephone service is poor you may be justified in blaming the squirrels that gambol over your roof and eat nuts from your hand.

For a chronic kicker the trouble clerks of the local telephone companies have a brand new excuse for lines which refuse to transmit sound waves.

"Have you squirrels in your neighborhood?" the clerk asks.

"Yes, but what has that got to do with this blanked telephone?" the disgruntled one is sure to inquire.

"Maybe they have been biting your wire," comes the answer.

Usually the receiver at the complainant's end of the lines goes on with a bang at this juncture.

Electricians assert, however, that there is more truth than banter in the trouble clerk's new explanation of telephone difficulties.

"Squirrels have a habit of sharpening their teeth," said the trouble clerk, in explanation. "A telephone cable, with its covering of soft lead, makes a good sharpener. They will climb a pole and gnaw at the lead. Sometimes they will open a hole through the outer covering. Then the damage is done.

"If a drop of water gets to the twisted strands inside the cable, every phone the cable feeds is put out of order. The water acts as a conductor and short circuits every wire in the cable. In some cables there are 300 wires, so you can realize what havoc one squirrel can wreak.

"After the hole is found, all of the lead must be cut away and the twisted wires must be boiled in paraffin to get out the moisture. Not until this is done are the phones in working order again."

SNAKE DEFENDS ITS KITTENS

Pennsylvania Man Reaching Into Barrel Nest Is Bitten by a Big Copperhead.

York, Pa.—A big copperhead was the queer bedfellow of a litter of kittens in a barrel at the home of William Beck, a storekeeper of Conewago township, and Beck made the discovery only at the expense to himself of a bite from the venomous reptile.

Going out after dark to the barrel in which the kittens were nesting, the storekeeper reached it. As he groped he felt something strike his fingers, but thought the blow dealt by one of the kittens in play. A moment later a similar blow struck his palm, followed by a severe pain, and Beck procured a lantern. Coiled about the kittens he found the copper-colored serpent, which he killed, and then had a physician dress his injury. The kittens were not harmed

BOSTON MAN WAS MUSICAL

Must Have Been, for He Found Nothing Good in Opera Performance in Paris.

"Americans have to have a lot of nerve when they're abroad," said the man who had just returned from his first foreign trip. "I fell in with an American at the Grand hotel in Paris who was on his way to the opera, and, as I was of the same mind, we started together.

"Although it was a fearfully hot night we found the opera house packed—the French, you know, are great on opera."

"Who were the singers?" asked a listener.

"Oh, I don't know—it was a third-rate performance.

"Well, we tried hard to get seats and couldn't—not a thing to be had.

"'Wait,' said my American friend; 'I'll be back in a few minutes—I think I can get some tickets,' and he returned very soon, waving two tickets aloft which, as it turned out, were complimentary. To obtain complimentary tickets on a night like that was a master stroke. The French would have called it—"

"Coup d'etat!" suggested some one. 'Tour de force!" said another, but no one was quite certain, so he continued:

"He had represented himself to be a director of the Metropolitan Opera company."

"Did he live in New York?" inquired another listener.

"No—Boston—but he was very musical—at least, I think he must have been, for while I sat enjoying the performance immensely he was exclaiming from time to time, 'Rotten! Hear that tenor! That soprano's awful.'"—Boston Herald.

SOLUTION OF LABOR PROBLEM

It should be beyond the power of either party (that is, labor and capital) to fixe the wages for any specified class of work. As before suggested, it is a matter to be determined impersonally and automatically, and this only can be done by the establishment of a national unit of value for labor, upon which all wages shall be computed with the same universality of application as now inheres in the established tables of weights and measures. Necessarily, such a unit of value for labor must be not only a fixed entity in relation to rates of wages, but must at the same time be susceptible of accommodation to economic changes, so that the money value of wages shall keep pace with fluctuations in the cost of living. It follows, therefore, that the unit upon which the federally established table of wages shall be built must be chosen with respect to some commodity that is so universally used and of so far-reaching an influence that its market price indexes and measures the cost of living in all walks of life.—North American Review.

How to Avoid Cholera.

A cheerful disposition is held by some doctors to be the best protection against cholera. When this disease first visited Paris, in 1832, a notice was issued advising the inhabitants "to avoid, as far as possible, all occasion of melancholy and all painful emotions, and to seek plenty of distractions and amusements. Those with a bright and happy temperament are not likely to be stricken down." This advice was largely followed, and even when cholera was claiming over a thousand weekly victims, the theaters and cafes were thronged. The epidemic was in some quarters treated as a huge joke, and plays and songs were written round it. Rochefort, the father of the brilliant journalist of today, wrote a play, "Le Cholera Morbus," which proved a big success, and another production on the same lines, "Paris-malade," also had a long run.—London Chronicle.

First to Find Gold in America.

North America has counted as a gold-producing continent only since the late '40's. But it might well have done so for nearly 200 years. According to the London Chronicle, in the voyage round the world which began in 1719 the privateer Capt. Shelvocke, found in certain California valleys "a rich black mold which, as you turn it fresh up to the sun, appears as if intermingled with gold dust. Though we were a little prejudiced," he adds, "against the thought that it could be possible that this metal should be so promiscuously and universally mingled with common earth, yet we endeavored to cleanse and wash the earth from some of it, and the more we did the more it appeared like gold. In order to be further satisfied I brought away some of it, which we lost in our confusion in China."

Earliest Spectacles.

The ancient Guild of Spectacle Makers, which is incensed at a recent London County Council leaflet, is numerically one of the strongest of the city companies. Its charter dates from the year 1629 and, though the exact date of its origin is lost, there is ample evidence that the calling of spectacle maker was extensively followed at a very early date. An old book of 1563 mentions the spectacle makers among other trades, and the biography of Carlo Zeno, an illustrious Venetian, who died in 1418, mentions that even at the age of eighty-four he needed no artificial aids to his sight. So presumably spectacles were common in Italy some five centuries ago.

SIGHT IS RESTORED

BLIND MUSICIAN REGAINS VISION AFTER STORK'S VISIT.

New Jersey Man's Recovery of Eyesight Is Considered Marvelous by Physicians Who Thought His Case Hopeless.

Mercerville, N. J.—Although he has been married five years, Peter Mayard, a musician, looked upon the face of his wife for the first time but a few days ago, and he believes that the visitation of the stork to his home resulted in the restoration of his eyesight. He claims that he is the happiest man in the world today, as he found his wife to be prettier than he pictured her in his mind.

Mayard's recovery of his eyesight is considered marvelous by physicians, who believed that he would never be able to see again. When Mayard was ten years old he was struck in the right eye by a baseball and the injury resulted in total blindness. However, this did not interfere with his education, and when he reached the age of twenty-one he was considered an expert pianist.

Shortly after he had attained his majority he met Miss Mary French, a beautiful girl of eighteen, who was deeply impressed with his skill as a musician. The friendship between the two gradually deepened. Dan Cupid took a hand and the two became engaged. Their marriage followed a year later. They have been extremely happy, but are now still happier.

Mrs. Mayard was taken suddenly ill and her husband, although blind, started to run in order to summon a nearby physician. He thought he could reach the house without difficulty, but stumbled over an embankment and fell a distance of ten feet. He was unconscious for some time. When he was recovering he was informed that there was an addition to his family in the shape of a ten-pound baby girl. It was a few moments after receiving this information that he suddenly began to shout for joy, and he made so much noise that he aroused the neighborhood. He discovered he could see as well as when he was a boy. Mrs. Mayard was greatly surprised at the news and her husband, when she had recovered sufficiently for him to see her was amazed at her appearance.

"Why, I didn't know that I had married the prettiest girl in the country!" he cried.

He asserted that he thought his wife's appearance altogether different than it is. Physicians who later examined the musician pronounced his sight completely restored and attributed the restoration to the shock of the fall and the glad news in which the stork figured.

HORSE THIEF IS SHOT DEAD

Whip Loses in Duel With Revolver—Brother of Victim Escapes to Mountains.

Hot Springs, Ark.—In a street battle betwen two alleged horse thieves and several sheriff's officers here George Chitwood, one of the accused, was killed by a deputy sheriff and Sheriff Jade Houpt probably was fatally wounded. Sheriff Houpt and a posse had been endeavoring to arrest George Chitwood and his brother for a week. Unexpectedly the two Chitwoods rode up to the sheriff's office and asked if they were wanted. When they were placed under arrest both dashed from the courthouse, the officers in pursuit. As they reached the street the officers opened fire, the fugitives returning the shots. One of the Chitwoods mounted his horse, but the animal was shot from under him. The horse, however, was forced to arise, and Chitwood rode through Ouachita avenue on the wounded beast, brandishing his revolver and ordering every one from the streets. He escaped to the mountains, but was finally captured and taken to prison in chains. Deputy Sid Houpt pursued George Chitwood, who had jumped into a buggy and fought off the officer with a buggy whip until Chitwod was shot in the abdomen.

CARRIES HOD TO FREE SON

Kansas City (Kan.) Mother, After Many Years of Effort, Rewarded by Youth's Release.

Kansas City, Mo.—Hod-carying was not too hard work for Mrs. Margaret La Trasse, fifty-six years old, of Kansas City, Kan., when she was trying to earn money to aid in getting her son paroled from the Missouri penitentiary, and she received her reward. The boy was paroled by Governor Hadley.

Troubles never came singly for the mother. The floods of 1903-4 nearly ruined her little home. Then her husband became ill and has been an invalid since then. Scarcely had he taken to his bed when the boy was sentenced to ten years in prison for a robbery committed near St. Joseph. The home was mortgaged to get money to defend him.

Willie—as she calls her son—went to prison, and the mother came home to work and earn money to get him out. By much persuasion she obtained a job carying a hod. Then she prevailed upon her employer to let her lath and plaster a house. Her savings she invested in a restaurant, and aided by the profits from this venture she managed to get her son's case before the governor.

IMPORTANT PARTS PLAYED BY GOBLETS OF LIQUOR.

Sir Philip Sidney and the Dying Soldier—Tragic Part of Cup of Wine in Murder of Edward the Martyr.

The proposal of the Dutch to erect at Zutphen a statue to Sir Philip Sidney recalls to a London writer the world-famed episode of the dying soldier, with which his death is inseparably connected. It occurred when that Paladin, on September 22, 1586 received his death wound before the walls of Zutphen. Parched with thirst, he called for a drink. As he was putting the bottle to his mouth his eyes fell upon a desperately wounded soldier, who, as he was being carried past, threw him longing glances, "which Sir Philip perceived, took the bottle from his lips before he drank, and delivered to the poor man with these words: 'Thy necessity is yet greater than mine.'"

In the murder of Edward the Martyr, in 979, a cup of wine played a tragic part. Wearied with his hunting the young monarch was persuaded to seek refreshment at Corfe castle in Dorsetshire, the abode of his stepmother, the widowed Queen Elfrida. Upon his entrance she greeted him with a kiss, and then, as he resisted her invitation to dismount, brought from the castle a goblet of wine. Even as the king raised his goblet one of her retainers drew his dagger and with fatal effect, plunged it into his neck.

During the naval engagement at San Juan the Jesus, which was under the command of Sir John Hawkins, was attacked by almost overwhelming odds. Both by word and deed did the admiral encourage his men, and once when their spirits seemed to flag, he bade his page fetch him a cup of beer. This was brought to him in a silver goblet, out of which he drank to his crew, "willing the gunners stand by their ordinance like men." Scarce had he finished the draught and held the cup aside when it was struck by a ball from one of the Spaniards' ships and carried away.

Every June the quaint old town of Rothenburg celebrates by a costume festival, which goes by the name of "Meister-Drank," the mighty feat of a former town councillor who, in 1631, saved the town from destruction. In that year Rothenburg fell before the arms of the savage Tilly, who at the head of his forces entered the vanquished town, where at the town hall he gave orders for the execution of the civic magistrates. Before, however, the doomed men were led forth to the scaffold, the Burgomaster's daughter presented herself, bearing an immense flagon of wine, out of which the conqueror drank and passed it round to his officers.

All quenched their thirst, and yet the flagon was only but half empty. Seeing this the fair Hebe remarked that one of the councillors present was able to empty the stoup at a draught. "If such be the case," cried Tilly, turning to the condemned magistrates, "I will pardon you all for the drinker's sake. Fill the flagon to the brim."

This was done, and then one of the city's magistrates, stepping forward seized the vessel, raised it to his lips and neither drew breath nor set it down until he had quaffed its contents to the last drop. Then only did he reverse the flagon in proof that the feat had been accomplished. Tilly kept his word, and every year, in commemoration of their deliverance, do the citizens of Rothenburg enact over again this famous event in their town's history.

Oblivion Is Right on the Job.

Mr. Gerald Stanley Lee has experienced woe in a library. Writes he: "I fell to thinking the other day when I had slipped into the Forbes Library, that all the documents that we produce nowadays are being saved as they never have been saved before. I fell to thinking for a second, as I stood there just where the echo is by the door, of what it all meant. I thought of a Springfield Republican 4,000 years old. I was oppressed. Former ages may not have been clever, but they did manage in one way and another to have fair and reasonable conveniences for forgetting. . . . And I thought of my own innocent woolly-lamb works, of the people ten years away, perchance, who would be struggling with them, and it came to me mercifully that oblivion would be attended to, that it could be depended upon sometime."

So it came, and Mr. Lee may cheer up. Not all the wood pulp is consumed as breakfast food. Most of it goes to make paper. Owing to its extreme lack of durability, it may be said to promise oblivion by the carload, expressage paid. Don't write for posterity. Wood pulp paper won't last. Imitate Charles Lamb, who said, "Hang the age. I'll write for antiquity!"—Boston Transcript.

The Reproof.

It was in the midst of the football season, and the students of Professor Blank's class, well aware that their lesson had been neglected, were prepared for reproof, but not for just the way in which it came.

At the end of the hour he slammed down his book on the desk and exclaimed:

"Well, that's the worst recitation I ever listened to! Why, I've actually done nine-tenths of it myself!"

NATURE'S WEATHER PROPHETS

Signs of Flowers and Animals That Were Followed Closely by Our Grandparents.

Men have made some very wonderful instruments which foretell what the weather will be, but old Mother Nature has given us messengers which tell about the weather if we watch the signs which they show. The little daisies were watched by our grandparents, who believed that spring had not come until 12 daisies were blooming on a foot of ground. The chickweeds' starry flowers tell when heavy winds or rains are coming by closing their tiny blossoms. The dandelions have the same habit. Likely the golden flowers do not want to uncover their curly heads unless they can look up to the sun. If you watch dandelions you will see that they do not open on the mornings of the days when rain falls.

Marigolds are such particular little blossoms that they will not even show a ray of their splendor if a storm is approaching or thunder is heard in the distance. The morning glories may wake early to beauty the garden, but when they suddenly wrap their silky scarfs about their faces you may be sure that rain is in the air. Some trees, such as the locust, close their leaves when a storm is coming. If you have a garden you might look to see what prophets are near to warn you of changes in the weather. Our grandmothers said that even peaceful old tabby knew when to expect either rain or snow. When the cat sat with her back to the fire our grandparents looked to have use for their overshoes and umbrellas.

BILL NYE ON FOX HUNTING

He Considered It a Most Thrilling Pastime for Sons of the American Nobility.

"Fox-hunting is one of the most thrilling pastimes of which I know," said Bill Nye, "and for young men whose parents have amassed large sums of money in the intellectual pursuit of hides and tallow, the meet, the chase, the scamper, the full cry, the cover, the stellated fracture, the yelp of the pack, the yip, the yell of triumph, the confusion, the whoop, the holla, the haloos, the hurrah, the abrasion, the snort of the hunter, the concussion, the sward, the open, the earth-stopper, the strangulated hernia, the glad cry of the hound as he lays at his master's feet the strawberry mark of the rustic, all, all are exhilarating to the sons of the American nobility. Fox-hunting combines the danger and the wild tumultuous joy of the skating rink, the toboggan slide, the mush-and-milk sociable and the straw ride. For the young American nobleman whose ducal father made his money by inventing a fluent pill, or who gained his great wealth through relieving humanity by means of a lung-pad, a liver-pad, a kidney-pad or a foot-pad, fox-hunting is first rate."

Miracle of a Bath Sponge.

Henry Savage Landor, at one time a captive of the Lamas in Tibet, tells the following adventure:

"The Lamas had got hold of my bath sponge, which was dry and pressed to great thinness by a heavy weight which had rested upon it. Throwing it from them, it fell in a little pool of water. I addressed the sponge in English and with any words that came into my head, pretending to utter incantations.

"The attention of the Lamas and soldiers was quickly drawn to this unusual behavior on my part. They could not conceal their terror when, as I spoke louder and louder to the sponge, it gradually swelled to its normal size. The Tibetans, who at first could hardly believe their eyes, became panic-stricken. There was a general stampede."

Had Become Matter of Habit.

When Elisha decided to take unto himself a sixth helpmeet, he repaired to the house of a Baptist minister, a venerable man who had officiated at several of Biggs' previous weddings, to make arrangements to be married there the next day. The minister reflected a moment. "Elisha," said he, "I shall, of course, be glad to marry you again. This will be the third or fourth time, will it not? If you don't mind telling me, why is it that you never have a minister of your own race tie the knot for you?" Elisha seemed hurt for a moment, but finally a broad smile illumined his features. "Well, sah," he explained, "I hab kinder got de habit ob gettin' a white man to do my marryin', an' I reckon I'll allus do it."

Smoke.

Don't imagine next time you see in weather promising storm that a "heavy" stratum of air is forcing the smoke of your chimney to the ground. Instead the condition is the opposite and the atmosphere is too light to allow the smoke to rise. To prove this fact in this vacation season fill your mouth full of tobacco smoke and dive in 20 feet of water, releasing the smoke. The smoke appears from the water almost instantly. You may say it comes up in air bubbles, but this does no more than to prove the theory. Your chimney smoke won't rise, because there isn't buoyancy enough in the air stratum to raise it.

PHYSICAL WRECK RESTORED TO HEALTH BY GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY.

I feel it my duty to furnish you with my testimonial as to what your remedy Swamp-Root did for me when I was a physical wreck from kidney and bladder trouble. Some years ago I was not able to do any work and could only just creep around, and am satisfied that had it not been for Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root I would not have lived. After using the preparation for one month I was able to work some and when I had used $8.00 worth of Swamp-Root I could do a good day's work. I used about $10.00 worth altogether and would not take $10,000 for the good that it did me. I consider it a God-send to suffering humanity for the diseases for which you recommend it and have recommended it to many sufferers.

Whiskbroom for Corn.

The shopper who knows just what she wants and insists upon having it unearths many a department store secret. A search for a whiskbroom of unusually fine straw took one persistent buyer into the kitchen department of a big store, where she saw a counter full of brooms labeled, "whiskbrooms for silking corn." Inquiry brought out the information that many housekeepers whose families are fond of corn on the cob have discovered that a fine whiskbroom is the best thing known for brushing silk from the ears and that it pays to keep a supply of extra fine brooms in the regular kitchen department.

Re-making of Our Bodies.

From the fact that every few years we get a perfectly new body throughout from the continual dying of old body cells and new cells taking their places, thus constantly giving ourselves an entirely new living mantle of flesh, if not a new identity, that which seems surest and most secure to our faculties really waves and fluctuates with treacherous changes, and we ourselves slide away from ourselves and are none the wiser. While the spirit or inner man stays unchanged in the midst of all this hourly shift and change like a lighthouse in a whirling change of sands and waters, the mind alone of all the man has the power of being constant. Strange we cannot make a single living thing, yet we ourselves are undergoing a form of reconstruction and death every second and all the time.

Veteran Actor's Good Story of the Theatrical Manager and the Evangelist.

"I lunched in London with Charles Klein, the dramatist and author of 'The Third Degree' and 'The Lion and the Mouse,'" said a veteran actor in New York. "Klein was the hero of the London papers just then. He had gotten into a taxicab one morning and said calmly to the chauffeur, 'Edinburgh.' It was a trip of a thousand miles—the taxicab record. Naturally, afterward," the actor continued, "our conversation turned to advertising. Klein told me an interesting case. While he was conversing with a theatrical manager in London one day an evangelist was shown in. 'My dear sir,' said the evangelist to the theatrical manager, 'I am taking notes and gathering material for a lecture on the evils of the stage. I hear that "The Blonde Widow," your present attraction, is decidedly—a-hem—sensational. May I ask for a ticket of admission that I may gauge its immorality personally?' The theatrical manager beamed with delight. 'Why, certainly, sir, certainly,' he cried, and turning to his secretary, he said: 'Rutherford, give this gentleman an order for a proscenium box, and charge it to advertising.'"

Papa's Specialty.

"Papa," says the little son of the judge who has been given a great deal of newspaper mention because of his decision in a certain famous case, "mamma says I've got to go to bed right after dinner tonight because I disobeyed her today."

"Well, Freddie, what can I do about it? You'll have to take your medicine."

"Huh! I'd think you would give your little boy a writ of habeas corpus, too!"—Judge.

Mothers will find Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup the best remedy to use for their children during the teething period.

Rather Strenuous.

"Sir," announced the would-be son-in-law as he invaded the library, "I have come to—er—have a serious interview with you."

"Oh, very well," rejoined the old man, as he proceeded to remove his coat and roll up his sleeves. "Let's get busy and have it over with."

And a few minutes later the young man succeeded in escaping with his life, but without his hat.

Colds on the Chest

Ask your doctor the medical name for a cold on the chest. He will say, "Bronchitis." Ask him if it is ever serious. Lastly, ask him if he prescribes Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for this disease. Keep in close touch with your family physician.

We urge you to consult your doctor

When you tell your doctor about the bad taste in your mouth, loss of appetite for breakfast, and frequent headaches, and when he sees your coated tongue, he will say, "You are bilious." Ayer's Pills work well in such cases.

Drink Dole's Pure Hawaiian Pineapple Juice

The Drink Delightful

Nature has blended the pineapple's constituents so perfectly that this pure juice, bottled in Hawaii, needs no added sugar or other assistance to increase its delight to the user. It's a fine drink, a healthful drink, an all-the-year-round drink. The rough throats of winter and the delicate stomachs of the cold season are peculiarly in need of just this delightful appetizer from tropical Hawaii.

LAKE CRESCENT NOTES

Supt. Chris. Morganroth, of the forest service, will seed another installment of the the big burn on the Solduck this fall. About twenty-five men will be employed, planting the seed, which is of various species, about a half inch deep, and it is hoped to cover six to eight hundred acres. Several hundred acres of the same tract, which is ten miles long by two wide, were seeded last sprng. Packers are now taking in supplies for the work.

The big boiler for the Solduck hot springs, which gave Mr. Govan and his men some little trouble at first, is now in place at the mill, twelve heavy horses being required to get it in. It is expected that the saws will soon be humming, as over a million feet must be cut for the hotel.

Elmer Nailor visited the lakes the first of the week, checking up sales from his cases of druggists supplies, installed in the various hotels.

Chris Storm, at the Maple Grove Hotel, Lake Sutherland, still has a crowded house despite the lateness of the season—the fall fishing is good.

Order to Show Cause Why Order of Sale of Real Estate Should Not be Made.

In the Superior Court of the State of Washington, for Clallam County.

It appearing to this Court, by the petition this day presented and filed by J. E. Beam, the administrator of the estate of John P. Hawks, deceased, that it is necessary to sell the whole or some portion of the real estate of said decedent to pay the debts of decedent and the expenses and charges of administration.

It is therefore ordered by this Court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased appear before the said Superior Court on Saturday the 29th day of October, 1910, at the hour of ten o'clock, A. M., of said day at the court room of said court, at the court house in the City of Port Angeles, County of Clallam, State of Washington, to show cause why an order should not be granted to said administrator to sell so much of the said real estate as shall be necessary, and that a copy of this order be published four successive weeks, in the Olympic Leader, a newspaper printed, published and of general circulation in said county.

Dated this the 28th day of September, 1910. GEO. VENABLE SMITH, (SEAL.) Court Commissioner of Clallam County, Washington.
