BROTHERHOOD WELL RECEIVED

After Enthusiastic Meeting, Thirty-three Signed Up Membership Roll. Officers Elected.

The Brotherhood of the First Congregational Church of Port Angeles, or more accurately the Men's Club of Port Angeles, was organized last Monday evening with a charter membership of thirty-three of our male citizens, through the efforts of Ralph C. McAllaster, a prominent real estate man of Seattle, and J. V. A. Smith, cashier of the Northwest Trust Deposit Co. of Seattle, who kindly came from upsound last Sunday and spoke morning and evening at the Congregational church in explanation of the purposes and objects of the organization. Mr. Smith gave in an earnest way an exceptionally strong, clear cut address on the work and mission of Christ which won the hearts of his audience.

The objects of the organization are, in the words of the constitution, "To deepen and strengthen the intellectual and moral life of the men in our community and to establish a closer bond of fellowship and to make more effective our efforts for civic and personal righteousness."

The organization of the club was preceded by a supper spread by the ladies of the Congregational church. The Seattle visitors said, in speaking of the supper, after the organization, that none of the feasts of the Seattle and Tacoma organizations they had sat down to were any better than the supper spread by the Angeles ladies.

After explanatory talks by Messrs. McAllaster and Smith of Seattle, the following gentlemen signed the constitution of the club:

Stephen Smith, J. F. Chambers, L. M. Campbell, Wm. R. Ritchie, Herman C. Celian, Harry B. Stiles, R. A. Gilmore, Harold G. Singer, Orin Mason, J. Schweitzer, Henry J. Weeks, Conrad Luppen, Fred Wescott, Chas. M. Wolff, W. Brumfield, David Furgeson, F. A. Stiles, J. W. Gordon, W. A. Stovel, Jos. Pearson, Chas. A. Morse, Robert D. Willson, G. M. Lauridsen, B. F. Edgar, H. A. Campbell, D. W. Morse, Oscar McLaughlin, C, C. McNutt, Geo. W. Welch, A. A. Getchell, William Graham, J. Hansen, Thos. Geisness, A. J. Cosser.

The following officers were then elected: R. D. Willson, president; G. M. Lauridsen, vice-president; Conrad Luppen, treasurer, and Henry J. Weeks, secretary.

About fifty sat down to supper. After a very pleasant evening, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the ladies and to Messrs. McAllaster and Smith of Seattle. The club will meet once a month to sup together and to hear some interesting talk on some national, social, or world-wide topic of interest by selected speakers. The club is strictly not-partizan, non-sectional and non-political.

23 CENTS THE STUMP

A. W. McCormack of Woodland writes to the P.-I. of his experience in burning stumps by the char pit process. He employed a man to remove 174 stumps, at a cost of 50 cents each. Had the man worked ten hours a day, at $2 50 the day, the work would have cost a fraction less than 23 cents the stump.

WEDDING VERY PRETTY AFFAIR

Large Attendance at Reception at Parish Hall Tuesday Evening. Dancing Much Enjoyed.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Trumbull in this city when their daughter, Julia Annette, was united in marriage to Mr. Allan McAntee Trumbull, on Tuesday evening, November 22nd, at 7 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Woods Stewart of Seattle, rector of the Epiphany Episcopal church.

Only the relatives and a few intimate friends of the bride and groom witnessed the beautiful marriage service which made this couple man and wife. The bride was lovely in a handsome gown of white crepe de chine over white messeline with real lace and pearl trimmings. Miss Helen Trumbull, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor and looked charming in a gown of pale pink silk with gold trimmings.

After receiving the congratulations and good wishes of those present, the bridal party were driven to Parish Hall where a large reception was given in their honor by the parents of the bride.

Parish Hall never presented so attractive and home-like an appearance. The library was used as the reception room and resembled a fairy bower with its beautiful decoration of green boughs, ferns and vines, studded over with white crysanthemums.

In the receiving line with the bride and groom were Mr. and Mrs. John Trumbull and Miss Helen Trumbull.

The dining room presented a very pretty scene with its artistic arrangements of vines, ferns and white crysanthemums and the handsomely decorated table from which the dainty refreshments were served.

The table was centered with an exquisite basket of white chrysanthemums intermingled with dainty vines and white ribbons draped from it to the four corners of the table.

In the large assembly hall the color scheme of green and white was prettily carried out. Ribbons of green and white crepe paper were festooned across the entire length and green boughs and vines trimmed the walls, while several pretty cozy corners added to the homelike appearance.

The ladies assisting were Mrs. W. F. Delebarre, Mrs. Wm. Moore, Mrs. Walter Mack Clark, Mrs. Ina McNutt, Mrs. Oscar Morse, Mrs. T. F. Trumbull and Mrs. E. B. Webster.

The ushers were Miss Robinson, Miss Thomas, Miss McCaffrey, Miss Ritchie, Miss Beatrice Allen, Miss Margaret Delebarre and Miss Mae Webster.

The bride, now Mrs. Trumbull, has grown to young womanhood in Port Angeles, graduating from the high school and later teaching both in the country and city schools. She is now serving the last year of her second term as county superintendent.

The groom has been engaged in the practice of law for several years in Port Townsend and expects now to open an office in Angeles. They will be at home after December fifteenth at 508 East First Street, Port Angeles.

The out of town guests at the wedding were: Mrs. Mary Trumbull, Port Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ballinger and son, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Trumbull and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Hall, Miss Anna Trumbull, Mr. Roy Hall, Mrs. Lou Hansen, Mrs. C. E. Shepherd, of Seattle.

VICTOR L. BERGER ON CLASH OF THE CLASSES

St. Louis, Nov. 21.—"At the bottotm of all troubles ailing our society," declared Victor L. Berger, of Milwaukee, Socialist congressman-elect, here, "is the present profit system, which is the result of a long development. And the crowning glory of this profit system is the trust."

The congressman-elect spoke to a meeting of Socialists. He reviewed the growth of the government and said that the vices were accidental.

Two Nations Here

"All human worth is expressed in terms of wealth," he continued. "Within a short time we shall have two nations in this country, both of native growth. One will be very large in number, semi-civilized, half-starved and degenerated through misery; the other will be small in number, overfed, overcivilized and also degenerated through luxury.

"The millions of lean and hungry will turn against the fat and satiated. A fearful restribution will be enacted on the capitalistic class as a class.

Only One Escape.

"There is only one escape. Since monopoly is the inevitable outcome of the present system, let the public as a whole be the monopolist. Since competition invariably ends in a trust, let the nation collectively own the trusts. We want to build up society and raise civilization to a point hitherto unknown in history."

HOOD RIVER WINNER OF BIG PRIZE AT APPLE SHOW

Spokane, Nov 19.—C. H. Sproat of Hood River, Ore., is the winner of the grand sweepstakes prize of the Third National Apple Show.

The winning exhibit, a carload of Spitzenbergs, is given a rating of 99.73 by the judges, who announced the result of the contest. The sweepstakes prize consists of $1,000 in cash and a gold medal banner.

For the second year in succession the most coveted prize of the show goes to an Oregon exhibitor, the sweepstakes last year having been won by Tronseon & Guthrie of Eagle Point, Ore., in the Rogue river valley. M. Horran of Wenatchee was the winner at the first show.

Three other carload lots were close contestants for the prize. These were the exhibits of Avery Brothers of the Hood River Eggermont orchards, who are showing a carload of Yellow Newtons; A. D. Helms of the Rogue river Ashland district, who is showing Yellow Newtons, and Bourgeoise & Kerchell of Zillah, in the Yakima valley, who are showing Spitzenbergs.

Walla Walla Commercial Club won the gold medallion banner and four hundred apple trees for the best irrigated district display. Cashmere, Wash., was second. The two and two contest was awarded to the Ellensburg Chamber of Commerce. The prize carries $200 in gold, gold medal banner and the J. T. Pearson trophy cup.

The $250 prize and gold medal banner for the best full car display of Jonathans will this year go to J. T. Baird of Sunnyside, Wash., the only competitor.

The two and two contest consists of two boxes of apples, two pyramids, two baskets, two plates and two jars.

Eighty per cent of the apples of the Walla Walla valley have been sold, according to the statement of H. E. Browning, manager of the Walla Walla Fruit & Vegetable union.

A. S. Ruth, state senator and publisher of the Washington Saturday Review, announces controlling interest in that paper has been taken by Eugene Lorton, former owner and publisher of the Walla Walla Bulletin. The place of publication will be removed from Olympia to Seattle.

Eighty-three students have been temporarily suspended from the University of Washington. They failed to report "conditions" received in classes, and the faculty has ruled them out to make them pay better attention to the rules hereafter. It is expected that they will all be reinstated in a few days.

Following a conference among 100 apple growers at Seattle last week, it is expected that a definite co-operative plan for marketing the entire output of all the great apple orchards of the Northwest, with the view of turning in the largest possible profit to the grower, will be made public soon for the consideration of the growers.

H. C. Henry, Seattle millionaire, is going into the pawnbroking business for the purpose of helping those who are now compelled to pay exorbitant charges. If the venture proves successful, Mr. Henry will form a corporation to be conduct it permanently. It will be modeled after the Provident Loan association of New York. The interest charged will be from 6 to 10 per cent per annum.

COL. ROOSEVELT SPEAKS THROUGH COL. NELSON

New York, Nov. 19.—"Not a word—not a word," said Colonel Theodore Roosevelt in answer to a question as to what he thought of the recent election, when he returned to his magazine labors Thursday for the first time since November 8.

"They are saying you can't come back," ventured a reporter.

"Not a word," said the colonel as he bounded out of his automobile, which brought him in from Oyster Bay, and hurried into his offices.

One of the colonel's visitors that day was Colonel William R. Nelson, owner of the Kansas City Star. The Evening Post quoted Mr. Nelson as follows:

"The West understands Roosevelt," said Colonel Nelson, "and it understands that he is not merely the leader of the Republicans—he is leader of the American people. The parties are breaking up, and under the influence of the old party it may take two years, it may take six years, for the people to come together in the fight for their own rights, but when they do there won't be anything to it.

"Nineteen hundred and twelve for Roosevelt? It's too early to discuss that, and there are too many cross currents in the political stream. The trouble is people don't realize that that that is the last thing Roosevelt is worrying about. Only those who know him well really appreciate that the thing which concerns him least when he is in action is what may happen to him.

"And this is true whether he is going up in an aeroplane, going into the heart of Africa or fighting to help his party out of a hole."

PROPOSED TO IRRIGATE LANDS ON WEST SIDE

Olympia, Nov. 19.—The first comprehensive irrigation plan for Thurston county lands was announced when an appropriation of 400 cubic feet of water per second of the Nisqually river was filed by L. M. Rice, W. H. Smith and I. L. Mossman. The purpose of the promoters is to irrigate between 50,000 and 100,000 acres of prairie east and south of Olympia.

The men who made the filing are men of large means, who have varied interests in the county. Government soil experts who recently visited this portion of the state assert that the lands will be very productive under irrigation.

The water will be taken from the river in both pipes and ditches.

FAVORS ESTABLISHING COMMUNITY CENTER

Spokane, Nov. 19.—The feature of the Country Life convention, held in connection with the National Apple Show and attended by delegates of renown from every state in the Northwest, was a resolution that efforts be made to establish in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana one or more community centers as a beginning in the direction of improving country life.

The resolution introduced by A. L. Rogers of Waterville was adopted.

J. L. Dumas launched another plan to give gold medals to the winners of competitions in eighth grade schools in agricultural communities after examinations in studies having to do with the soil and the products thereof.

WARDS OF THE STATE AS FARMERS

IN PAST TWO YEARS THEY HAVE RAISED PRODUCE WORTH $94,000.

State Board of Control Has Reports From Superintendents—Home for Blind Between Seattle and Tacoma Contemplated—May Abandon Orting Home.

Olympia, Nov. 19.—More than $94,000 worth of produce was raised on the farms and gardens of the state institutions, according to preliminary reports covering the last two years, made to the state board of control by the various superintendents.

The Eastern Washington hospital for the insane at Medical Lake makes the best showing. It has recently installed an irrigation plant in connection with the water service of the hospital and was able to bring a small portion of the hospital farm under irrigation. The result was the production of more than a million pounds of vegetables, all of which were used in the institution.

May Extend System.

This showing of the possibilities of using the labor of the inmates of state institutions on farms and gardens with the intention of raising a large proportion of the food supplies and thus reducing maintenance cost is apt to bring about important recommendations to the next legislature.

The state institutions for many years have been working along at a minimum of expenditure, and few of them today have anything near what the board of control considers the necessary accommodations for the future. Important changes are desired by the board.

Changes Favored.

The general plan seems to be to amend the laws so that most of the convicts from both the penitentiary at Walla Walla and reformatory at Monroe will be employed on state road work. The Eastern hospital for the insane is overcrowded and new ward buildings will have to be constructed unless the feeble-minded institution is moved elsewhere and the buildings now used by the latter are turned over to the hospital. Such a turnover and the extension of the hospital farm can be accomplished on slight expenditure, and Dr. Semple, the superintendent, believes it will result in the saving of much money to the state.

Buildings Considered Dangerous.

The deaf and blind school at Vancouver are reported to be old frame structures and so arranged as not to offer the best facilities for the inmates to escape in case of fire. The expense of maintaining these institutions has been too high in the opinion of the board and the state lands available there is insufficient for a farm. The board will probably suggest the removal of the blind school from Vancouver to some point, preferably between Tacoma and Seattle or near some large city, whence the blind can make frequent trips to the larger cities, where they can attend concerts and secure education along the only possible lines, that, chiefly by hearing.

The Soldiers' Home at Orting will be recommended for abandonment, probably, and all the old soldiers will be cared for near the navy yard, in Kitsap county. In connection with this latter move, the board of control will probably amend its rules. Some of the inmates of the Soldiers' Home today have because of age and infirmities become addicted to the use of intoxicants, and are too old and weak to break themselves of this habit.

For Less Drastic Rule.

The present rules provide for the summary discharge from homes for intoxication. It is proposed in the case of veterans who are victims of the liquor habit to have guardians appointed to conserve the pension money and to prevent alcoholic excesses of the owners. If this is done, the board has announced its willingness to amend its rules so that summary discharge will not necessarily follow intoxication, and the attorney general has decided that the board may so act.

Another proposed necessary change is the separation of the sexes so that either the boys or the girls will be removed from the state training school at Chehalis to some new branch.

COMMON CARRIER QUESTION AGAIN UP FOR DISCUSSION

Washington, Nov. 19.—Many millions of dollars in payments annually to small connecting roads of nominal trackage and owned, as a rule, by a single shipping interest, are involved in a case which the interstate commerce commission today fixed for a hearing at New Orleans December 8.

It reopens the question of what constitutes a common carrier and what constitutes a rebate.

The allowances as made now to the so-called tap lines are varied in amount, and there is no uniformity in practice as to division rates between them and the trunk lines.

Most of the lumber lines which tap the regular common carriers are in the South and there is a host of industrial tap lines in the central freight association territory.

PRIZES AT NATIONAL APPLE SHOW

C. E. SPROAT OF HOOD RIVER WINS SWEEPSTAKE OF $1,000.

Scored 997 Points in Possible 1,000 on a Car of Spitzenbergs Wenatchee Orchard Gets' Second Place—Next Apple Show to Be in Permanent Coliseum.

Spokane, Nov. 21.—C. H. Sproat of Hood River, Ore., became a world's champion when he won the sweepstake of $1,000 and a gold medal banner at the third National Apple show in Spokane. He scored 997 points out of a possible 1,000 in a car of Spitzenburg apples, the highest mark ever made in a competieive exposition on fruit grown in a single orchard. He also won a prize of $250 on variety. Hinman and Grady of Wenatchee, Wash., were second in both events, taking purses of $400 in gold.

Chahles Mason of Spokane won the world's championship in an apple packing contest against a field of 45 entrants. He scored 378 of a possible 400 points, packing four commercial boxes of a bushel each within the time limit of 30 minutes, which is regarded as a record. The apples were graded by the packer from a heap containing six bushels, wrapped separately in paper and packed in boxes holding from 80 to 165 apples each. W. L. Dresbach of Mosier, Ore., was second with 370, and C. L. Green of Wenatchee, Wash., third with 362 points. Expert packers were judges.

Prof. H. E. Van Deman of Washington, D. C., head of the board of five judges, also announces these class winners:

Winesap—H. M. Gilbert, North Yakima, first, $250, 967 points; O. G. France, Cashmere, Wash., second, $100, 952.7.

Rome Beauty—R. P. Wright, Chelan, Wash., first, $250, 879; J. Howard Wright, North Yakima, Wash., second, $100, 877.7.

Wagener—Spokane Valley Irrigated Land Company, Spokane, Wash., first, $250, 918.5; no second.

Jonathan—J. T. Baird, Mabton, Wash., first $250, 953.5; no second.

Yellow Newtown Pippin—Avery Bros., Hood River, Ore., first, $250, 988.1; A. D. Helms, Ashland, Ore., second, $100, 983.7; T. D. Bradford, Byron, Wash., 945.6.

Nineteen cars, including four mixed cars, were entered in the variety and sweepstake contests. Six of the prize winners and the championship car, 36 district displays from Washington, Oergon, Idaho, Montana, California and British Columbia and winners in the commercial classes will be exhibited in the First Regiment Armory, Chicago, the week of November 28.

Lorr and Ball of Methow, Wash., won $25 for the largest perfect apple. B. M. Chapman of Cashmere, Wash., was second. F. L. Post of Chelan, Wash., won first prize for 50 largest apples, showing a pyramid weighing 79 pounds and 15 ounces. Lorr and Ball were second with a pile of 50 weighing 78 pounds and 13 ounces. These are the largest apples ever exhibited anywhere.

The Lyle Business Men's Association of Lyle, Wash., won the first prize for the best commercial display from a non-irrigated district, Spokane county being second. The latter lost the first place by wrong classification on three varieties of apples. The Commercial Club of Walla Walla, Wash., won the first honors for irrigated districts, Cashmere, Wash., being second. There were 32 other exhibits in this class.

The Commercial Club of Ellensburg, Wash., won the first prize and a gold medal banner for the most artistic display, R. H. Fortune of Salmon Arm, B. C., being second.

The management awarded a total of $20,000 in prizes and premiums in the various contests, which ranged from full cars to single apples. There were 6,000 entries, a total of more than 2,000,000 apples. The exposition was highly successful in every way and will be repeated on a larger scale in 1911.

Howard Elliott of St. Paul, head of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, will be re-elected president at the annual meeting in January, and Ren H. Rice will remain as secretary and manager. A coliseum to cost $350,000 will be erected to house the next show.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 21.—E. E. Cartier Van Dissel, second vice president and chairman of the board of trustees of the Third National Apple Show, announced today that Howard Elliott, president, and Ren H. Rice, secretary and manager of the organization, will be invited to continue in their present offices for another year at the annual meeting in January, adding also that Spokane will have the fourth annual competitive exposition in 1911.

"We shall have to have larger quarters for the next show," Mr. Van Dissel said, "and it is not unlikely that a coliseum will be erected. This could also serve for national and state conventions and other large gatherings, horse shows and other functions which require more room than is now available.

"Our exposition space is a matter of more than three and a half acres this year, but we were not able to accommodate all the exhibits that could have been obtained this year. As it is, we have 30 carloads, including 19 straight cars, and the exhibition easily is the largest of its kind that has ever been put together anywhere.

"The show this year is a greater success than last year, which was far ahead of the first exposition in 1908, and if the plans now in making go through the 1911 show will be as far ahead of the present one as this week's exhibition leads the one in 1908."

Charles M. Fassett, secretary of the Spokane Chamber of Commerce, gave out this statement today:

"The apple show, which is of so much benefit to the entire Northwest, should be provided with a permanent building. There is no doubt that the trustees of the chamber of commerce will solve the problem when it is brought before them."

TO ASK AUTHDRITY TO ISSUE CAPITOL BONDS

Seattle, Nov. 19.—The Olympia correspondent of the Post-Intelligencer says the state capitol building commission will probably ask the next legislature for authority to issue bonds against the capitol building granted lands to clean up the existing debt and to construct in Olympia a new capitol building to cost $2,000,000 or more.

The state capitol commission met in Olympia Tuesday, all the members being present except Governor M. E. Hay, chairman, who had gone to Spokane to attend the opening of the apple show and who returned late in the afternoon.

Little Demand for Lands.

For weeks past the commission has been advertising the sale of capitol granted lands and timber in the counties of Clark, Cowlitz, Douglas, Kitsap, Skagit and Skamania. The lands and timber offered included thousands of acres and millions of feet of all classes of timber, some of the latter being very valuable. One quarter section alone in Skagit county was appraised at more than $17,000.

The aggregate of bids received and opened was less than $16,000, showing that at the present time there is practically no demand for either timber or lands.

Following the opening of the bids, members of the commission engaged in an informal discussion generally favorable toward withdrawing all of the lands and timber from the market, preliminary to asking the next legislature to authorize the bond issue which will enable the work to be started immediately upon the capitol and will permit the lands and timber to be sold in future under more favorable market conditions.

Following the meeting of the commission, S. Warren Gould, a well-known Seattle architect, submitted to Governor Hay plans and drawings of a proposed capitol building which he has prepared in the hope that they may be adopted with legislative permission by the commission.

The present law provided for the completion of the capitol according to the original Flagg plans on the old foundation, but the commission long ago discovered that these plans provided for a building entirely too small and inadequate for present needs, not even considering future growth.

JESSE HUXTABLE GOING AFTER DIRECT PRIMARY

Spokane, Wash. Nov. 21.—State Senator Jesse Huxtable of Spokane, is going down the line at the next session of the legislature with a view to wiping out the direct primary law, substituting therefor a non-partisan plurality election statute. He said in an interview:

"The direct primary has given the best example of minority rule that could possibly be conceived. The Democrats came into our primaries and voted for the candidates that they considered easiest to beat.

"Meanwhile, they had practically no contest in their own primaries, as they had practically only one man running for each office. In one way and another the Democrats managed to secure the defeat in the primaries of the candidates that ran against Republicans, and so their men were elected. If this is not minority rule there isn't any.

"I am in favor of wiping out the whole business. Let as many men file, Republicans and Democrats, as want to run, and let the high man win. This would do away with the primaries and the present system of elections, and after trying that a while perhaps we could fix things so we could hold Republican primaries without the Democrats 'butting in' and nominating candidates they think they can beat."

Ellensburg Banquets Elliott.

Ellensburg, Nov. 19.—The Ellensburg Chamber of Commerce will be host to President Elliot and 20 other Northern Pacific officials and to prominent newspaper men and representatives of the large commercial organizations of the state at a banquet this evening. The new Northern Pacific passenger station, which cost in excess of $50,000, will be thrown open to the public and the banquet will follow an informal reception at the station.

NATURALIZATION OF WOMEN

JNO. SPEED SMITH EXPLAINS PROCESS FOR BENEFIT OF SUFFRAGISTS.

Marriage to American Men Declared Easiest Way—Suffrage Amendment Stirs Inquiry on the Part of Those Who Want to Know Requirements for Voting Privilege.

The easiest way for a woman to become naturalized in the United States is to marry an American citizen, according to Jno. Speed Smith, chief examiner of the United States naturalization bureau for the Northwest.

Since the passage of the woman suffrage amendment inquiries have just poured in upon Examiner Smith to define woman's status.

"All sorts of qualifications for the privilege of voting have been hurled at me," said Mr. Smith the other day, "but the way I have suggested is, after all, the easiest way for a woman to become naturalized.

How It Is Done.

"Unmarried women are naturalizable citizenship of wife follows that of the husband, that is, if a native-born woman marries a foreigner in the United States or elsewhere she loses her citizenship, but if a foreign woman marries a citizen of the United States she becomes an American. A native American woman who marries a foreigner may, however, resume her former citizenship at the termination of the marriage relation, if within one years thereafter she registers with the Amercan consul a declaration that she desires to resume her former citizenship; or by returning to the United States to reside, or, if residing in the United States at the time of the dissolution of the marriage relation, by continuing to reside in her native country.

Retains Citizenship.

"It is also to be remembered that a foreigner who marries an American retains her citizenship in this country if she continues to reside in the United States, and that this holds unless she renounces the sovereignty of the United States.

"Alien women living in the United States whose husbands refuse to become naturalized cannot become citizens of this country unless they get a divorce.

"An unmarried alien woman 21 years old may become a citizen after a continual residence of five years in the country, one full year of which has been spent in the state where she makes her application.

Must Declare Intent.

"She must declare her intention of becoming a citizen before a clerk of some court of record, and then not less than two years or more than seven years after she must file a petition verified by the affidavits of at least two credible witnesses who are citizens of the United States, and who shall state in their affidavits that they have personally known the applicant to be a resident of the United States for a period of at least five years continuously and of the state, district or territory in which the application is made for a period of at least one year preceding the date of the filing of the petition. The next step is a declaration in open court that she entirely renounces all allegiance to any foreign prince, potentate or sovereignty, and that she will support the constitution of the United States."

Provision for Widows.

Examiner Smith said that these in substance were the principal requirements of the new naturalization act as they affect woman, except that the widow and minor children of an alien who died before he is naturalized, after declaring his intention to become a citizen, need not declare their intentions; also that a woman who does not wish to change her name through marriage may change it under the naturalization act, which provides "that it shall be lawful at the time and as part of the naturalization of any alien, for the court, in its discretion, upon the petition of such alien, to make a decree changing the name of such alien, and a certificate of naturalization shall be issued in accordance therewith."

HOWARD TAYLOR TO HAVE SPEAKERSHIP OF HOUSE

Seattle, Nov. 19.—An Olympia special to the Post-Intelligencer says:

Howard Taylor of Eagle Gorge, King county, will be the speaker of the house of the next legislature. At a final conference held here Tuesday night with Taylor, Representatives Ed Sims of Jefferson, W. M. Beach of Mason, Ed Dickson of Kittitas and P. H. Carlyon of Thurston announced their withdrawal from the speakership contest in favor of Taylor, who is assured already of 55 votes, and therefore election.

Taylor's first legislative experience was last session, when he was one of the youngest members.

He was prominent during the session and was a member of the investigating committee. This will be the first time King county has had the speakership in many years.

TWO TRIBUTES PAID TOLSTOY

W. D. HOWELLS CALLS HIM THE GREATEST GENIUS OF THIS GENERATION.

Like Shakespeare and Milton, He Left No School, for His Vast Personality Was Such as to Be Incommunicable—Work Will Live Forever, Says Henry George.

New York, Nov. 21.—William Dean Howells, in commenting on the life of Tolstoy, who died Sunday, took the viwe that the great Russian was perhaps the greatest and best man of his time—greatest writer and most powerful in the portrayal of human emotions; best in his fidelity to Christ's example. He said:

"I remember that Turgeniev once advised Tolstoy to stick to his writing and forget his theories of conduct, but it was a mistake to consider Tolstoy, the man, and Tolstoy, the creative artist, as two separate entities that may be divorced from each other. Who attempts to divorce art and life makes a grave error.

Was Great Realist.

"Tolstoy was a realist in art and life. It is perhaps difficult to estimate what his influence has been on contemporary humanity, but I should say it has been very great. He believed in taking the life of Christ for an example, for a precept, not the dogmas of the schools; and that seems to be the tendency of the younger Christianity.

"In letters, I cannot say that he left a cult, although it may be that three of his books—'Peace and War, 'Anna Karenina,' and 'Resurrection'—will never be surpassed.

Like Bard of Avon.

"But you know Shakespeare left no school; nor Milton; nor Shelley, Zola did. He was a tremendous fellow, Zola, but he is somewhat extinct now. And that's it; the lesser man has mannerisms or even a manner, and a manner can be caught up, taken up, imitated, even absorbed; but a great personality is incommunicable.

"I do not pretend to try to explain Tolstoy's later days. I had never met him, never been in communication with him, but it seems to me that he believed what he loved and that he tried to live what he believed.

"It was unfortunate that his belief forced itself into such pregnantly dramatic expression. There he sat at one end of the table in a peasant's clothes, eating coarse food, while a footman stood at the other end of the table and served delicate viands to his family."

Could Not Be Poor.

Continuing, Howells said:

"Tolstoy lived the life of the poor, wore their clothes and ate their food; but he could not feel the dread that is never lifted from the very poor—the dread of actual want tomorrow.

"It was impossible that he should actually want. We see that in the very circumstances of his death Strive as he might, he did not die a peasant's death—unattended, cold, bare.

"Yet he was a very great and a very good man; perhaps, as I have said, the greatest and best of his time."

HENRY GEORGE SAYS WORK OF TOLSTOY WILL LIVE FOREVER

Henry George jr., whose father's "Progress and Poverty" stirred Tolstoy to espouse the doctrine of single tax, said:

"To me, from my personal contact with him, he was nothing of the poser or seeker for notoriety that a cynical world supposed, but an extraordinary genius who left the pomp and pride of the life of the privileged classes to begin at the physical beginning of things, to work out his own spiritual salvation and thus show the way of Christ, as he conceived it, in a vast country of primitive agriculture, surmounted by a luxurious and corrupt imperial court, backed by a state church that declared that things as they are in this world are as they should be; that the many shall sweat in an agony of toil that the few may riot in luxury.

"To me Tolstoy has been one of the greatest spiritual powers of the earth—a power greater now in death than that of the autocrat of all the Russias. His power was love—to help mankind; a greater power in his own Russia than all the bayonets of the czar. Tolstoy's spirit will still be fresh in the hearts of Russians when the present dynasty of czars has turned to dust."

AUSTRALIAN CENSUS TO BE TAKEN IN 1911

Washington, Nov. 21.—Advance estimates of the population of the commonwealth of Australia, made by the federal statistician, place the total number of people in the six states at 4,474,000, according to consular reports received here.

The taking of the decennial census will be begun on April 1, 1911, and allowing for a normal increase before that date, the population is expected to reach 4,500,000.

This would represent an increase during the last decade of about 725,000.

RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS SPLIT ON TAXATION BASIS

Washington, Nov. 19.—Deciding to hold its twenty-third annual convention in this city October 10, 1911, the National Association of Railroad Commissioners elected these officers. R Hudson Burr of Florida, president; W. H. Connolly, acting secretary of the interstate commerce commission, secretary, and William Kilpatrick of Illinois, assistant secretary.

Many delegates opposed the adoption of the report of the committee on railroad taxes and plans for ascertaining the fair value of railroad property, the opposition taking the ground that market value was impracticable as a basis of taxation of railroads generally.

The committee refused to adopt the report, as well as the reports of the committees on rates and rate making and on car service and demurrage.

The committee report was adopted, urging that the interstate commerce commission early prepare rules and regulations for carrying into effect the uniform classification of freight, authorized by law, and to give to the commissions of the various states and all parties interested an opportunity to be heard before final adoption of the uniform classification.

CANAL PROGRESS IS PRAISED BY PRESIDENT

Colon, Panama, Nov. 18.—President Taft sailed for Charleston at 6 o'clock last evening aboard the armored cruiser Tennessee, which was convoyed by the Montana, after four interesting days on the Isthmus. Before leaving, the president said:

"This is the fifth time I have visited the Isthmus, and I have gone over the whole line and looked into every part of the improvements. It is about 22 months since I was last here, and in that time the progress made has been most satisfactory. Indeed, it is remarkable.

"The first thing that strikes one is the fact that work is being done apparently on every foot of the 50 miles of the canal, and done under an organization of men, plants and materials that operates as economically and effectively as if it were a machine with Goethals in control of a lever which sets and keeps the whole in operation.

Lock Discussion.

"When I was here 22 months ago the main question was the confirmation of the judgment of congress in having adopted a lock type canal instead of a sea level. The extent to which Gatun dam and the locks have been completed has removed from every impartial observer the slightest doubt of the wisdom of the decision made, and the feasibility of the plan adopted. This conclusion is further confirmed and clinched by the difficulty occasioned by slides in Culebra cut, which for a canal of 185 feet level, necessitated only an additional excavation that could readily be taken care of.

"Any attempt, however, to sink a canal in Culebra to a depth of 85 feet below the present proposed level would lengthen the time of construction, wear the patience of the Americans, make the cost almost prohibitory and leave it an exceedingly doubtful question whether, with the difficulty presented by the Chagree river, such a canal would be possible at all.

"The Gatun dam lock, with the lake already 18 feet and slowly rising to a level of 85 feet, which will constitute the key to the whole plan of the canal, is so far advanced that, taken with the Culebra cut and the locks on the Pacific side, a definite picture is given of what the canal is to be, which inspires one with eagerness for its completion.

Can Beat Slides.

"The landslides in Culebra can be easily removed, the further excavation and the widening of the slope where they occur merely adding something to the amount of excavation previously calculated upon and the cost, but the percentage of both time and cost will be very small, not enough to increase the estimates for the completed canal.

"The work is so far advanced that the time has come for the discussion of plans for the management and maintenance of the canal. The government is peacefully pursuing its course and enjoying prosperity and political calm in the republic. The authorities in charge manifest every disposition to assist the United States in constructing the canal and to conform to every detail of the obligation imposed by the treaty."

Would Abolish $5 Fee Law.

Seattle, Nov. 22.—A movement to abolish the fee of five dollars allowed attorneys for instituting and conducting suits in the justice courts has been started by lawyers, and a petition will be presented to the incoming legislature requesting a repeal of the present law. The movement is directed against collection agencies, which, these lawyers assert, are crowding the docket of the justice courts with suits in which small amounts are involved, and which would not be brought in many instances except for the fee of five dollars, which is allowed in all such cases.

Wants Federal Court.

Vancouver, Wash., Nov. 22.—"Vancouver should have a federal court," said Representative W. W. McCredie. "There are several cities of the class of Vancouver that should have federal buildings, I think, and it seems to me they should have one by this time."

MEXICO REVOLUTION PROGRESSING

GOVERNMENT SEIZES TELEGRAPH LINES AS A MILITARY NECESSITY.

Notwithstanding, News of Severe Fighting Reaches United States—Insurgents Capture Gomez Palachio, While Fierce Fighting Occurs at Durango and Many Other Points.

Mexico City, Nov. 22.—Fierce fighting occurred yesterday at Durango, Torreon, Parral and Gomez Palachio, the latter falling into the hands of the rebels. Three hundred of the federal troops at Gomez Palachio are said to have gone over to the insurgents, who have now turned their attention to attacking the loyal forces at Torreon.

The fighting began at Durango at 4 o'clock this afternoon and an hour later all the wires were cut. It is reported on good authority that twenty-five persons have been killed at Zacatecas. The government troops, it is also reported, quelled the uprising there and are in control.

The wires north of Monterey have been cut and no reports are obtainable from beyond that point. It is believed that the insurgents are responsible for the cutting of communications.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 22.—An unconfirmed report reached here last night that 600 federal soldiers at Chihuahua were suspected of disloyalty to the government and disarmed. According to the report a company of rurales visited the barracks and carried away all of the arms and ammunition of the soldiers.

Laredo, Tex., Nov. 22.—The situation in Mexico appears serious. For the first time in fifteen years of operation the leased wire of the Associated Press from Laredo to Monterey and Mexico City was commandered by the Mexican government on the plea of military need and the federal circuit manager in Nuevo Laredo was ordered to cut off the Laredo office of the Associated Press to prevent information being gleaned from messages moving over the wire.

Coming, as it does, after what was officially reported to have been a perfectly tranquil Sunday through the greater part of the republic, this action on the part of the government would appear to lend substance to rumors of bloody riots at Zazatecas, Gomez Palachio and Torreon, the authenticity of which had been in doubt.

An Insurrection Area.

This territory was the scene of the insurrection in 1908, which was quickly quelled by the federal government and which is supposed to have eventually resulted in sending Gen. Barnardo Reyes out of Mexico.

When Reyes went to Europe the element that had recognized him as standard bearer turned to Francisco I. Madero, and nominated him for president of the republic in opposition to the incumbent, Portirio Diaz, in the election last spring.

Madero and his supporters claimed they were not being acocrded fair treatment in the campaign, and Madero was imprisoned on the charge of insulting the government by his statement that he could not get justice in the courts. He was held in prison until some weeks after the election, when the existing government was overwhelmingly returned to power, then he was released on bail.

Plans Revolution.

He made his way to San Antonio, Tex., whence he is alleged to have been secretly preparing his partisans for the widespread revolt which was planned to commence last Sunday, November 20.

On November 18 Madero slipped out of San Antonio, made his way to Cotulla, Tex., where he was met by four companions with horses and a guide and then started in a westerly direction. It was understood he was going to the family estate in Coahuila to take personal comamnd of the anti-government forces. No further word has been obtainable regarding his movements and it is believed he is in Mexico today.

Every precaution is being taken by the American authorities to prevent violation of neutrality laws of the United States. Gov. Campbell is reported to have ordered the entire force of Texas rangers to the Rio Grande and the comamnding officer of Fort McIntosh has placed a double guard over the gunracks in each barracks of the four companies of infantry stationed here, as a precaution against theft or seizure by Mexican revolutionists.

Hard to Get News.

It is difficult to get authentic news from the scene of the disturbances. At the American embassy it was said no telegrams came yesterday from consuls there and the newspapers here also have been unable to obtain information.

The war minister last night in explaining why troops were hurriedly sent to Orizaba, in the state of Vera Cruz, said it was feared the rebels might dynamite the railroad bridges. The net result of the fighting there, according to the minister, was one soldier killed and several persons wounded when a mob attacked and pillaged the market. Two hundred arrests of agitators have been made here.

HOMESTEADERS TO BLAME FOR HIGH LIVING COST

Chicago, Nov. 19.—The United States land irrigation exposition was formally opened today. James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, delivered the principal address. He declared that the homesteader of the West is in part to blame for the present high cost of living, and also predicted a return to hard times under Democratic control of congress.

"The homesteader," he said, "is reducing the field of operations of the ranchman. This is reducing the meat harvest of the West and becoming quite a factor in the cost of living."

Other causes, he said, were the great immigration to this country and the movement to the cities.

The recent tumble in prices of meat he attributed to drought in the range country and to the big corn and oat crops.

He declared that much remains to be done in improving the country's farming conditions.

The new lands opened up under the homestead act of half a century ago "were aften exploited," he asserted, "for temporary profit by soil robbers who were experts of their kind."

Owing to such management the yield of the acre in the United States gradually decreased. Little intensive farming was done.

"But none of our soils," he added, "are beyond redemption. The soils of the country are the greatest asset the nation has."

He spoke in glowing terms of the work being done in the Southern states in the way of offering prizes to boys who would produce bumper crops of corn, potatoes, tobacco and other things.

"It is only a question of time," he added, "when the South will ship cattle and hogs to the great centers of population and contribute toward the food of our people. It has raised its maximum of crops the last two years."

All parts of the country, the East particularly, he said, should produce more of their own fruits, which, he added, "are at home there but not grown anywhere in sufficient quantity to enable the people of the United States to get fruit at reasonable prices. Fruit just now is a luxury."

GOTHAM POLICE SYSTEM REMODELED BY GAYNOR

New York, Nov. 19.—The shake-up in the police department predicted ever since Mayor Gaynor took office came this week. The changes made strike at the foundation of the police department and place the entire detective force on a new footing.

Beginning Saturday there will be no more branch detective bureaus in any of the boroughs except Brooklyn. Detectives will no longer report to captains of precincts or to inspectors of districts, but to a lieutenant captain of detectives, who will be directly responsible to the inspector at headquarters, in charge of the entire bureau, who in turn is under the second deputy commissioner, William Flynn.

In short, the plain clothes man, the handyman of captains and inspectors, the ready errand runner for "the system," has come to the end of his rope.

Detectives will be no part of the precinct command and will work independently of the uniformed police.

This is the policy of the English detective force, which work under Scotland Yard, a centralized control, and it also is in line with the policy of the secret service in this country.

More than 600 detectives will have to adjust themselves to the new order. They will have nothing to do with gambling, disreputable houses and keeping the streets clean of soliciting which will be looked after by a special vice squad. Their business will be to run down criminals and nothing else. They will even refrain from making arrests wherever possible, leaving that to the uniformed officer, whose face can become known to the criminal world without impairing his usefulness.

GOV. HASKELL CASES SWEPT FROM DOCKET

Chicasaw, Okla., Nov. 19.—All cases against Governor C. N. Haskell were nolle prossed here in the federal court the other day. This action ends the legal fight against Haskell and others in connection with the Muskogee charges which have been in the federal courts for several years.

The cases recently came to trial before Judge Marshall of the Utah district federal court, sitting at McAllister.

Judge Marshall sustained a demurrer that the statute of limitations barred prosecution. Federal attorneys then advised that the cases be dismissed and formal action clearing the docket was ordered by Judge Campbell the other day.

Census Figures for Kansas.

Washington, Nov. 22.—The population of the state of Kansas was announced by the census bureau yesterday as 1,690,949. This is an increase of 220,454, or 15 per cent. over the census of 1900. The new figures entitle the state to one additional congressman.

Cruisers' Bids Opened.

Hoquiam, Nov. 22.—Bids for the cruising of the timber of Chehalis county were opened yesterday by the commissioners, but no action was taken. The lowest bid was that of John Sweet & Son of Portland—4¾ cents per acre. Other bids ranged from 8 to 30 cents per acre.

SWEETHEART A MAN

TOOK THIS SMITTEN SWAIN 14 YEARS TO FIND IT OUT.

Meanwhile He Has Written a Bale of Letters and Sent "Her" Something Between $5,000 and $6,000—Dupe Has Recipient Arrested.

Southington, Conn.—Having during the last fourteen years written many love letters and given between $5,000 and $6,000 to a young person he had never seen and from whom he received hundreds of letters, all breathing love and affection, George Osborne now charges that Miss Gladys Wilson of Philadelphia, the ideal of his dreams, is in reality William Barnes, a mechanic in a local factory.

Barnes is charged with having obtained money under false pretenses. He is accused of having invented the young woman, and, with the aid of a friend in Philadelphia, of having carried on a correspondence with Osborne, who, for fourteen years, was under the impression he was winning the heart of a beautiful, accomplished, but singularly glacial young woman.

Osborne says that the only times during the fourteen years when his correspondence struck the same romantic key in which his own letters were written were those times immediately preceding an invitation extended to him to send some of his money to Philadelphia. It irks Osborne to look back over those tinted and perfumed notes, now that he believes they were penned by a man.

Under the influence of the related facts that "they all look good when they're far away," and that "everybody wants something he thinks he may not be able to get," Osborne for fourteen years remained faithful to "Miss Gladys Wilson" and the postal department.

He sent bales of letters and he got plenty back. Whenever he expressed a desire to go to Philadelphia and meet the object of his affections face to face "she" always had a high-grade argument in support of "her" contention that he should stay in Southington and attend to his watch repairing business.

BODY SHIPPED ON LIFE PASS

When the Widow Declines to Pay, Purser Passes Problem to Higher Officials.

Portland, Ore.—Asserting that her deceased husband was just as much entitled to travel on a pass as when he was alive, Mrs. John Chadwick of Black Bay surprised L. K. Purcell of the steamship State of Washington by refusing to pay freight on his body, which she had brought to the vessel for shipment to Seattle.

"My husband had a pass on the State of Washington when he was alive," she said to Purser Purcell, "and no one is going to prevent him traveling on it when he is dead, poor fellow."

Mrs. Chadwick had placed her husband's body in its coffin on the steamship and Purcell hesitated to order it put ashore when she refused to pay charges."

Finally he referred the problem to L. A. Miller, general freight and passenger agent.

Miller replied: "Let the corpse travel free and collect pass." Mrs. Chadwick heaved a sigh of satisfaction and said she knew she would win.

SMITH PATCHES HEN'S BEAK

Lower Jaw Was Short and Chicken Was Likely to Starve, but Can Now Eat Grain.

Anderson, Ind.—Eli Delawater has a hen in his flock that was hatched with a defective lower jaw. It could not pick up grain and as a result was near starving to death after it had passed the soft food stage. Delawater wanted to raise the hen to the laying stage at least and told John Snelson, a blacksmith, his trouble.

Snelson told Delawater to bring the hen to his shop. He measured the lower beak and shaped a piece of tin to fit over the stub, much after the manner of a tooth crown. When the operation was complete Snelson scattered some corn on the floor of the shop and he admits surprise at the ability of the hen to pick up the grain. Now the hen is as good a feeder as any in the flock.

Birds Lead to a Baby's Body.

Pottstown, Pa.—A flock of buzzards led to the discovery of the body of a year-old child by Col. M. M. Missimer and George C. Smith, who were trying out their hounds in the Chestnut hills in Chester county.

The hunters went to a lonely spot on Cedar Flat, over which the birds were hovering, and there found the body.

There was nothing to disclose the identity of the child, or to tell whether it was abandoned alive or was carried there dead.

Lightning Ends Lawsuit.

Frankfort, Ky.—Lightning struck and destroyed a large tree in front of the residence of Mrs. Margaret Innis of Steadmontown and settled a lawsuit of long standing that the courts were not able to decide. Contractors building a road wanted to cut the tree down and Miss Innis secured an injunction preventing it. Hundreds had been spent in litigation, but the bolt split the tree, necessitating its destruction

EXPLORING BARKING ABBEY

Workmen Excavating for New Street Find Subterranean Passage Leading From Old Edifice.

In the course of excavations for a new street at Barking a subterranean passage was discovered which had evidently led from the old abbey.

A workman, while digging at a depth of ten feet, drove his pick into some soft stonework, and after the subsequent collapse of earth the passage was revealed. It was found that the pick had been driven through the arched ceiling of a stone-built passage some eight feet six inches high and about six feet wide. Exploring parties have investigated the interior by the aid of candle light. The walls were found to be damp and clammy, and the floor was covered with a thick carpet of spongy substance, into which the feet sank slightly. For a distance of nearly 20 yards the passage is clear, and at either end of this stretch it is blocked, in one case by a fall of earth and in the other case, presumably, by the character of the structure itself. Two smaller passages turn off the first passage, and in one of the side turnings there were found half a dozen human skulls and a quantity of bones. Among the latter is a number of jaw bones of horses or other large animals. All the bones and skulls are charred, and the walls of the passage also show traces of fire.

The Abbey of Barking is reported to have been built in A. D. 679 by Erkenwald, who afterwards became Bishop of London, and whose sister Ethelberga became first abbess at Barking. It was the first nunnery established in this country. In A. D. 870 the Danes destroyed it by fire, and it lay desolate for a century until restored by King Edgar. Many members of royal families were among its abbesses. From the fact that the main passage runs in the direction of Barking creek, a short distance away, it is believed to have afforded a channel of communication from the abbey to the waterway and thence to the Thames.—London Standard.

HEARD IN JUVENILE COURT

Judge Is No Match for Colored Mammy, Who Outwits Him at Every Turn.

The judge of the juvenile court, leaning forward in his chair, looked searchingly from the discreet and very ragged pickaninny before his desk to the ample and solicitous form of the culprit's mother, says the Youth's Companion. "Why do you send him to the railroad yards to pick up coal?" demanded his honor. "You know it is against the law to send your child where he will be in jeopardy of his life."

"'Deed, jedge, I doesn't send 'im; I nebber has sent 'im, 'deed—"

"Doesn't he bring home the coal?" interrupted the judge, impatiently.

"But, jedge, I whips 'im, jedge, ebery time he brings it, I whips de little rapscallion till he cayn't set, 'deed, I does."

The careful disciplinarian turned her broad, shiny countenance reprovingly upon her undisturbed offspring, but kept a conciliatory eye for the judge.

"You burn the coal he brings, do you not?" persisted the judge.

"Burns it—burns it—cose I burns it. W'y, jedge, I has to git it out ob de way."

"Why don't you send him back with it?" His honor smiled insinuatingly as he rasped out the question.

"Send 'im back, jedge!" exclaimed the woman, throwing up her hands in a gesture of astonishment. "Send 'im back! W'y, jedge, ain't yo' jest done been told me I didn't oughter send my chile to no sech dange'some and leopardous place?"

Knew the Remedy.

"I'll be durned if I didn't have to laugh good an' hard at one uv them there autty-lunatic, although I didn't feel much like snickerin' at the time," said Farmer Chinfuzz to the other soap-box warmers in the cross roads store; "an' here's the answer: On my way down to the county seat the hoss balked good an' stubborn fer a spell an' in the midst uv my rippin' an' snortin' along comes a big red auttymobile with a real friendly feller behind the goggles. When the feller found out that my outfit wuz stationary fer the time bein', what do you s'pose he up an' done? Grabbed a monkey wrench, an oil can an' a hammer, crawled under my wagon, made a noise like a b'ller factry, an' may I be tetotally honswoggled if that there hoss' mane didn't stand up like a porkypine's an' he made tracks so fast I'm thinkin' uv trainin' him fer the ring speedin' at next county fair, b'gosh."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

A Vision of the Future.

"Bishop Potter," said a New York clergyman, "was progressive, but he thought that some churches went too far in their effort to attract the public. He was talking to me very seriously one day about churches that give moving picture entertainments and hire actors and opera singers and have billiard rooms and allow smoking, when he broke off with a laugh and said:

"Why, Jim, if this thing keeps on things will come to a pass that the wife, putting her head out of the window at three in the morning and sternly asking her husband where he has been, will be met with the startling reply, 'I been-h'o-to church m' dear.'"

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1910

The deplorable condition of Front street, as usual at this season of the year, is a positive disgrace to the municipality and a sad commentary upon the mis-management of the present city council, which body refused, or at least neglected to act in the premises during the dry season, although petitioned by property owners on the street to do so, when the work of improvement could have been done economically and satisfactorily, and our people not again subjected to mortification whenever strangers visit our otherwise fair city during the winter months.

The almost unprecedented rains for this section of last Saturday and Sunday caused the streams of the county to swell beyond their banks, but without much damage. The Lost Mountain and Canfield bridges over the Dungeness were carried away. These bridges were temporary ones, costing in the neighborhood of $200. While we were having the heavy down pour of rain, unaccompanied by wind, a 70-mile gale was sweeping the coast, endangering shipping, and the Olympics were covered with a heavy mantle of snow.

President Elliot, in his opening address at the National Apple Show at Spokane, said: "The apple is no mere luxury. It is a necessity. It is a valuable food. If it were grown and used twice as much as it is the cost of living would be lessened and health and comfort greatly increased. It compares favorably with bread in the amount of nutritive material it contains, and excels beef over three times in the amount of energy that equal portions of each provide."

WHY PRICES ARE HIGH.

According to a statement credited to an ice and cold storage trade paper, there is now being held in cold storage:

Fourteen million cattle.
Six million calves.
Twenty million sheep and lambs.
Fifty million hogs.

This number is enough for one entire animal for each adult in the United States, with enough whole animals left over to give two to each family.

This meat is being held by the big packing houses in 558 cold storage plants. In addition, it is stated that in 78 fish freezing plants in the country there are fish waiting to be doled out that are valued at $25,000,000.

In other cold storage plants during any year now, according to the storage man's statistics, there are:

One billion eight hundred million eggs.

One hundred and thirty million pounds of butter.

Fruit valued at $50,000,000.

Then, besides, there are millions of pounds of potatoes, onions, thousands of turtles, eels, cases of canned goods, and milk, butter and cheese valued at $100,000,000.

The total value of meat and food stuffs placed in cold storage during a year at present, is according to the figures of the storage concerns, close to $3,000,000,000. These cattle and other food supplies were bought when prices were low and stored to force up prices. With 85,000,000 whole animals, 1,800,000,080 eggs, etc., held indefinitely it is no wonder there is a shortage in supply, and consequently high prices. It is the old law of supply and demand. Only in this case the supply is short, not from lack of production, but from combination which enables the middleman to hold a portion of the supply from market and so create an artificial shortage.

If the figures given above are correct, and they apparently come from a reliable source, it is evident that a law is needed to prevent the holding of food supplies in cold storage longer than a reasonable time. Such laws if enforced would equalize the supply to the demand and at the same time would prevent the creation of an artificial shortage.—United Presbyterian.

DR. DUNSTAN'S LECTURES.

"Dr. Dunstan's lectures are most forceful and pleasing. He is entirely outside of the beaten trail, as far as American audiences are concerned, but he blazes a trail for himself, and such a trail that it is bound to become one of the highways of modern thought. Born in Cornwall, where he lived until twenty, then holding a responsible pastorate in South Africa, and later, preaching in London—all this gave him a wide experience in the Christian Ministry. Later, he began the ministerial work in Australia, where he has been since. He was eight years pastor of the leading Congregational Church at Sydney, and for five years had charge of a large Institutional Church.

The lecture which we are sure will prove a great feature for Chautauqua audiences everywhere is entitled "Sane Socialism at Work." This deals with interesting experimental legislation of Australia and New Zealand. An American audience will receive a new view point in regard to old age pensions, universal suffrage and several other questions which will become paramount and are al ready of intense interest."

Second number lecture course, opera house, January 13th.

KEPT EVERLASTINGLY AT IT.

The struggle of the women of Washington in their demand for the franchise recalls to the Seattle P.-I. one of Josh Billings' sayings: "Konsider the postage stamp, my son; its usefulness konsists in its ability to stick to one thing until it gets there."

"Unlike Josh's postage stamp, however," says the P.-I., "whose sole usefulness was for the purpose of getting there, the women of Washington are going to show that the "getting there" was merely a long-drawn out preliminary, an initial step up to the plane of usefulness where they may have opportunity to prove their value as civic units, and they are going to live up to the standard the vote on Tuesday has marked out for them. They'd die rather than fail to prove themselves worthy of the confidence men have placed in them. That's the way of women. Aim high in your ideal of them and they'll reach somewhere near the height or perish in the attempt. And it will be so in their politics as well as in their own personal concerns. "No one who is honest and straightforward engaged in worthy enterprise need fear the votes of women."

THE ONLY SOUND DOCTRINE.

It is a heartless policy that considers the dollars and-cents side of the liquor question solely. There is another and a higher phase that the man of breadth and conscience must take into account if the "brotherhood of man" counts anything. If it does, then the strong must help the weak even to the point of self-sacrifice and self-abnegation. If the brotherhood of man is a reality and not pulpit hot air and lodge-room "bull-coon," then the stronger brother, who can "take a glass or let it alone," must be willing to forego such slight self-indulgence that his weaker brother might be made stronger: he must curb his instinct for commercialism that our complex social machinery be made to yield character instead of suicidal inebriety. It is useless to argue the question from any other standpoint. When all the pros and cons have worn themselves phrase-bare this issue, like Banquo's ghost, comes up again to put the same old question to humanity, "Men or Money?"—Mt. Vernon Argus.

THE YOUTHS COMPANION IN 1911.

Just fifty-two good numbers, one after another, of only the best reading selected from the world's abundance of every sort.

Nearly three hundred of the most entertaining stories ever written—not the kind that are forgotten as soon as read, but stories that one loves to remember and talk about.

Then there are the famous men and women who write for Companion readers. It is the next best thing to meeting them face to face, for they choose topics which are sure to be of interest for their audience of three million Companion readers. The Announcement of the enlarged and improved Companion for next year will be sent to any address free, and with it sample copies of The Companion.

Those who subscribe at once, sending $1.75, will receive free all the remaining weeks of 1910; also The Companion's Art Calendar for 1911, lithographed in thirteen colors and gold.

A Chrysanthemum Luncheon.

Judging from the numerous letters from brides-elect, Cupid must have been unusually busy with his little bow and arrow. There are so many requests for pre-nuptial functions, I am sure the description of this chrysanthemum luncheon will be very acceptable.

It was gorgeously brilliant, the color scheme being yellow; especially fitting for this month as November claims the topaz and the chrysanthemum; in this instance it was also the bride's birthday month as well as her wedding day season. For a centerpiece there was a mound of yellow "mums," kept in place by embedding the stems in sand. At each place there was a little yellow jardiniere containing one stiff, straight little yellow "mum" to which the name card was attached with a yellow ribbon. The grape fruit cock-tail had a wee "mum" in the center of the fruit; around the stem of the glass there was a fluffy bow of white tulle. The plates on which the frappe glasses stood had a wreath of yellow "mums" around them and the ice-cream was in boxes concealed by petals of yellow crepe paper "mums." The candle sticks were of silver and had yellow shades. At each place were yellow slippers filled with salted nuts. Just the bridal party were included in the guests, I mean the girls in the party and two matrons of honor.

A Box Shower.

A jolly crowd wishing to "shower" one of their number who was about to leave the state of single blessedness, conceived the bright idea of giving a box shower. The boys were in on it too, and they had loads of fun. All the gifts were in boxes, which in turn were put in a huge dry goods box covered with white paper cambric on which hearts of red, large and small were pasted. When all had arrived, the bell rang and the village expressman appeared and said he had a small parcel for Miss B—— and imagine the surprise when he entered with the assistance of several of the masculine guests bearing the immense box. The honored couple were told they could unpack, but each package was to be shown, the card read and speech made before the next box was opened.

Among the articles were boxes of paper, box of matches, box of tacks, box of soap, of thread, of pins, work box, glove and handkerchief box, stamp box, tool box and a nest of boxes ending with a wee pill box which contained a collar button; box of tin kitchen utensils, box of paper napkins, box of labels, etc. When it came to serving refreshments the hostess had a dainty luncheon put up in pasteboard boxes covered with rose wall paper, a box for each couple, coffee and ice cream completed the repast. There were salted almonds and bon-bons in pretty heart shaped boxes bearing the monogram of the bride and groom elect, which the guests retained as souvenirs.

A Neck-Tie and Apron Party.

This really is an old time stunt, but like many other old things has been rejuvenated. The hostess prepares as many cheese cloth aprons as there are men and as many pieces of silk or ribbon as there are girls. When all arrive the men are given spools of thread and told to find the girl who has an apron to match it. In this way partners are chosen and the girls put on the aprons after the men have sewed the hems and sewed on the strings. Allow half or three-quarters of an hour for this. Next the girls are given the necktie pieces and they are gathered together and put through a door, each girl having hold of an end, the door is closed and the men are to come in and take hold of an end. When each man has an end, the door is opened and the girl who has hold of the other end must fashion a necktie for her swain. The latter puts it on and the girl puts on her apron, and thus partners are selected for supper or refreshments. This is a very jolly party, adapted to private parties or for a church social.

MADAME MERRI.

To Clean a Black Skirt.

To clean a black skirt, lay the skirt as flatly as possible on a clean table. Remove all grease spots with brown paper and a hot iron, then with a sponge dipped in strong coffee rub over the whole of the dress, paying special attention to the front and edge of the skirt. When the whole of the skirt has been sponged and is still damp, iron on the wrong side until perfectly dry.

FANCIES OF FASHION

All-black hats are seen in satin, velvets, brocade, hatter's plush, velours, beaver, beaver cloth.

More dress hats are in all-black or black-and-white with a touch of metal or color than in any other shade.

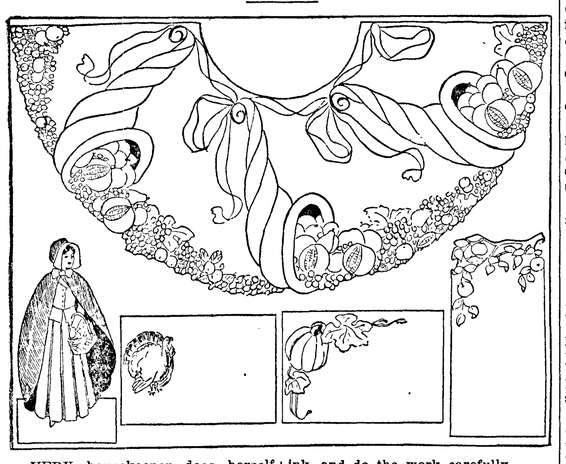
Ostrich feathers, willow plumes especially, are much in demand. Shaded and two-tone effects lead in favor.

Brimmed turbans are seen, with upright brims almost as high as the hat itself and close to it except at the back.

Hat shapes are of three sorts—the large, wide-brimmed hat (the most popular, the clotche, or Charlotte Corday, and the turban.

As a variation on these there is the large hat with the mushroom brim in a wide variety of shapes, all generally following the mushroom type.

For Thanksgiving



EVERY housekeeper does herself proud in getting up the Thanksgiving dinner. Besides the snowy linen, sparkling silver and glass, and savory dishes, some decoration is needed to make the festive occasion quite complete.

These decorations are no small item of expense if purchased in the art shops where hand work brings its price. Any woman or girl may, however, make her own decorations at very small expense and in a short time.

We are giving today several designs which work out attractively in color.

The candle shade, representing the horn of plenty, always in evidence in Thanksgiving decorations, is to be traced on thin water-color paper by means of carbon paper, and tinted in water-color. The horn is to be purple —not too dark—the ribbons green, and the fruit of the gay richness of the natural color. The inside of the horn may be tinted dark green.

To add to the effect when lighted, put a bright bit of color on the wrong side of the shade under any gay colored fruit, such as orange or apples. Leave a little seam on each end of the shade and fasten with brass brods. The edge is cut out irregularly around the fruit. When the painting is done go over all lines with waterproof black ink, and do the work carefully.

Four place cards are given, one a demure Puritan maiden to be colored in light gray gown, darker gray cape with bright red lining, cap to match the cape with a white facing and tie and kerchief—which just shows a little in front.

Paint the face and hands in the natural color. Red and yellow, if properly mixed, will give a satisfactory flesh color for beginners.

The lines in all the cards should be gone over with a pen and ink outline.

The turkey is to be painted brown, light and dark shades, with a bit of red on the head, and outlined.

The pumpkin is a brilliant orange color with dark green leaves, and the apples shaded in light and dark red and green leaves, with brown stems.

The water-color cards may be bought by the dozen, or very stiff and heavy water-color paper may be used.

Those who do not already possess a box of water-color paints may secure a very excellent little box of a new make with all the necessary colors, for 50 cents. A five-cent Japanese brush, which comes to a very fine point, will answer all purposes for doing this work.

LORE OF WERE-WOLF

STORIES OF MEN TRANSFORMED BY DESTINY OF WILL.

Servant Who, Being a Loup-Garou, Found Food for Master—Exposure of the Wife of a Nobleman of Auvergne.

John of Nuremberg relates how a man, lost at night in a strange country, directed his steps towards a fire that he saw before him. On reaching it he found a wolf sitting enjoying its warmth and was informed by him that he was really as human as himself, but that he was compelled for a certain number of years, like all his countrymen, to assume the shape of a wolf.

A strange country, indeed, where wolves when the evenings grow chilly light a fire and in the comfort of its ruddy glow are found ready to entertain the passing traveler with their conversation!

Olaus Magnus, in the early part of the sixteenth century, tells us a story of a nobleman and his retinue who lost their way in journeying through a wild forest and presently found themselves hopelessly foodless and shelterless. In the urgency of their need one of the servants disclosed to him in confidence that he had the power of turning himself at will into a wolf, and doubted not but that, if his master would kindly excuse him awhile, he would be able to find the party some provision. Permission being given, the man disappeared into the forest under semblance of a wolf and very quickly returned with a lamb in his mouth, and then, having fulfilled his mission, resumed his human form.

In Auvergne in 1588 a nobleman, in returning from the chase, was stopped by a stranger who told him that he had been furiously attacked by a savage wolf, but had been fortunate enough to save himself by slashing off one of its forepaws. This he produced as a trophy, when, to the astonishment of both, it was found to have become the delicate hand of a lady. The nobleman felt so sure that he recognized a ring upon it that he hurried to the castle and there found his wife sitting with her arm tied up, and on removing the wrappers the hand was missing. She had to stand her trial as a loup-garou, and, being convicted, perished at the stake.—Hulme's Natural History Lore and Legend.

Pay Physician's Bill Last.

The medical convention held recently in the new Memorial hall in Cleveland, O., brought a lot of physicians together socially. Now, when the profession meets in that way and momentarily lays aside the guardianship of the public health and pursuit of "bugs," a crop of good true stories is sure to be harvested. Here follow a few gleanings:

"The last obligation a man pays off is his doctor bill," said a Beaver county physician in a group in the foyer. All the rest nodded emphasis. "The grocer has to be paid or he refuses credit, the gas company peremptorily shuts off the gas, the landlord goes at once to legal processes and the saloon enforces a strictly 'pay-as-you-enter' rule. The doctor waits and waits, and dares not dun, or the man will go into a rage and haughtily change doctors, and never pay his bill.

"A man laid $10 on my desk the other day and said:

"'There, thank God, that's the last cent I owe.'

"'That's what they all say,' I replied. 'Pay everybody else first, the physician last. Next time you get in debt, I want you to make that remark to the butcher, not to me.'

"The man looked at me in offended amazement, and walked out."

Cats Drive Off Snakes.

For many years I have been running a cattle station in Queensland, where snakes are tolerably numerous. At the head station we have always kept up a standing army of from fifteen to twenty cats, and have been practically free from the presence of snakes about the buildings and yards.

That this was owing to the presence of our cats I have no doubt whatever. They were always on the lookout, and I have often seen members of our feline bodyguard growling over dead or dying snakes and have more than once witnessed savage encounters between them and their victims. On the other hand, martyrs to their duty were from time to time found dead in the morning with all the evidence of a fight and their defeat in the shape of snakebite on their bodies.—Spectator.

A Shoe Tip.

Before putting on patent leather shoes always rub the surface of the vamp briskly with the warm palm of the hand, thus softening the shoe and rendering it less liable to crack. Many patent leather boots "crackle" all over the first time they are worn, when this precaution might prevent the accident. Another method is the gradual warming of the shoe, and it must always be remembered that shiny shoes are never kept in cold places.

In Doubt.

"I see you are still standing pat," said one statesman.

"Yes," replied the other; "but I can't feel sure whether I am still in the game or playing solitaire."

BULL ON A RAMPAGE

MAKES WEARER OF HOBBLE SKIRT HUNT TALL TIMBER.

Animal Chases Autoists and Tosses Up Girl With Freak Gown—Fair Feminines Climb Trees and Jump Fences.

Pottstown, Pa.—A pretty girl automobilist in a big mushroom hat and a hobble skirt had a lively experience with an infuriated bull over in Chester county in the vicinity of Buck. She was one of a gay party of six, evenly divided as to sex, who had come up from Philadelphia in a large touring car, and acting on the suggestion of one of the men, that a stretching would do them all good, they got out.

The three girls, charmed by the rugged beauty of the landscape and anxious to get some wild flowers growing on a slope of the Chestnut hills, ventured forth. Their course lay over a field in which some sleek cows and an innocent-looking bull were browsing.

The girl wearing the mushroom hat with its gay Parisian trimming lingered some distance behind her companions, and the bull saw her and got busy in a twinkling. With a whisk of his stubby tail and a snort and loud bellowing, he charged.

One of the girls in the lead quickly hurdled a fence, while the other sprinted to a tree and clambered up.

But she who had excited the ire of the bull seemed doomed. She moved as fast as she could with the handicap of her hobble skirt, and realizing that her mushroom hat had put the bull into action she adopted the strategic movement of casting it aside. It worked, and her enemy stopped long enough in his pursuit to make it look as if it had been in a cyclone. Then he charged again, and the girl's safety hinged on the question whether she or the bull reached the fence first. She made it twenty feet ahead of the beast; but that hobble skirt was a dead weight to her free movement.

As she reached the third rail the bull came up, and a wicked jab of his horns sent her to the other side. Only a few bruises and some rent garments resulted.

"For goodness' sake, don't tell him who we are!" exclaimed the three girls in chorus when a passerby got inquisitive; and even the license tag was taken off the auto to destroy any clew to their identity.

LIZARDS SCARE STEVEDORES

Ugly Reptiles Send Men Flying, but Norwegian Workers Do Not Fear Them.

New York.—Battle-ax lizards routed an army of stevedores from the deck of the British steamer Parisiana. They had hardly begun taking out the bales and cases from the open hatch when one of the men caught sight of a battle-ax and thought he had seen the devil in person, for it must be understood that a battle-ax lizard is about the ugliest reptile on earth. His yells drew the attention of the other workmen, and one look was enough for all of them.

The stevedores carried the officers off their feet in their mad rush for dry land and nothing could induce them to return to work. Some Norwegians were found who were not afraid of battle-axes or anything else and the work of unloading the ship proceeded.

The lizards were brought on board at Calcutta by a dealer who wanted to consign them to New York, but nobody wanted to assume the care of them. The bamboo cage in which he carried them came apart and they escaped into the hold.

HOUND HEEDS CALL OF WILD

Dog Raised in Captivity Now Leads Coyotes and Returns to Civilization to Steal Chickens.

Portland, Ore.—A grayhound raised by Martin Smith of Sandy has answered the call of the wild and has become the leader of the wildest band of coyotes that community has known for many years.

The hound never returns to the village except to steal chickens or other forage, and residents believe that its knowledge of surroundings has made the varmints it leads much more effective thieves. Several persons have seen the hound this fall and its especial companion is a large coyote. The hound pays no heed to the calls that formerly summoned it from chasing game of any kind. The dog was known in the village from a puppy.

Hen Lays Her Egg Flat.

Athens, Pa.—Athens is to the front with a hen which lays flat eggs. This peculiarity is accounted for by the fact that when she was driven from an irate neighbor's garden she escaped through a picket fence so narrow that in making her exit she nearly had the life squeezed out of her.

An effort to hatch these eggs, laid since her predicament, has proved futile, owing to the inability of the mother hen to turn them during incubation.

Poultry dealers declare the flat egg is one on them, but believe the same effect may be produced by equipping hens with corsets properly laced. Flat eggs would be much safer carried in the pocket, anyway, as they would take up less space. They could be piled up in transportation.

Dainty Sweets

Confections That Guests of All Ages and Sizes Will Appreciate for the Party Supper.

Banana Cream.—Procure five ripe bananas, take off the skins and pound the fruit in a mortar with five ounces of white sugar to a pulp. Beat up half a pint of good cream to a stiff froth, add the pounded bananas and half a glass of brandy and the juice of one lemon; mix well together, then add half an ounce of isinglass dissolved in a little boiling water, gently whisk and fill the mold, set in a cool place until wanted. When required, dip the mold in warm water for a few seconds, wipe with a cloth and turn out into a glass or silver dish.

Orange Jelly.—Dissolve one ounce of gelatine in one pint of cold water for two hours, then add eight ounces of white sugar, the juice of one lemon, and half a pint of boiling water; place on the fire until the gelatine is all melted, add the juice of five oranges and one drop of cochineal, strain through a piece of muslin, and pour into a mold and put into a cool place to set. When wanted, dip the mold into warm water for a few seconds, wipe dry with a clean cloth, and turn gently into a silver or glass dish.

Chartreuse of Pears.—Ingredients: Half a pint of cream, a tin of preserved pears, a little clear lemon jelly, half ounce of isinglass. Cut the pears in slices, dip them in the nearly set jelly, and place them round a plain mold; whisk up the cream, add the juice from the pears to it, and a little sugar (if wanted), stir gently together, then add the isinglass disolved in a little hot water; stir well together, and fill in the mold and let set. When required turn out the same as for jellies.

Hungarian Cream. — Ingredients: One pint of milk, six eggs, half a pint of cream, one ounce of isinglass, eight ounces of sugar, two ounces of dried cherries, and a glass of maraschino. Make a custard with a pint of milk and the eggs, whilst hot stir in the isinglas; take off the pan and stand it in cold water; add the cherries, the cream lightly whipped, and the maraschino. occasionally stirring until nearly set; then fill in a mold and let set. When wanted turn out as directed for jellies.

Charlotte Russe.—Run a little clear jelly into the top of a plain round or oval mold, and lay in some small pieces of fruits of various kinds; such as glace cherries, half-apricots, sliced bananas; allow it to set, then line the sides with Savoy biscuits cut straight at the edges, press well together, then fill with the following: Whisk up half a pint of cream to a stiff froth, add three ounces of powdered white sugar, the juice of half a lemon, three ounces of raspberry jam rubbed through a hair sieve to extract the seeds, a little cochineal and half-ounce of isinglass dissolved in a tablespoonful of boiling water. When the charlotte is required for table, dip the top of the mold into warm water for a few seconds, wipe dry with a cloth and turn the mold on a glass or silver dish.

Vol-au-Vent of Cherries.—Cut out of a sheet of four-fold puff paste one-inch thick oval pieces six inches by four inches, egg the top, and with a smaller size cutter stamp a mark a quarter of an inch deep, bake in a hot oven about thirty minutes, or longer if required; when baked take the soft paste from the center, place the cases back in the oven to dry for a few minutes. Place in an enameled pan the juice from a bottle of cherries, and sufficient loaf sugar to sweeten; let it boil five minutes, then throw in the cherries and boil until soft, stand aside to get cold; fill the cases with the cherries and serve.

Lemon Cream.—Ingredients: Half a pint of cream, two lemons, six ounces of powdered white sugar, the yolk of an egg, and half ounce of isinglass. How to use them: Whisk up half a pint of cream very stiff; add the sugar, the rind of the lemons rubbed on a piece of sugar which must be pounded, and the juice; add the yolk of an egg and stir lightly together. Dissolve the isinglass in a tablespoonful of boiling water, then add it to the cream; pour into a mold and let set; turn out as directed for the jelly.

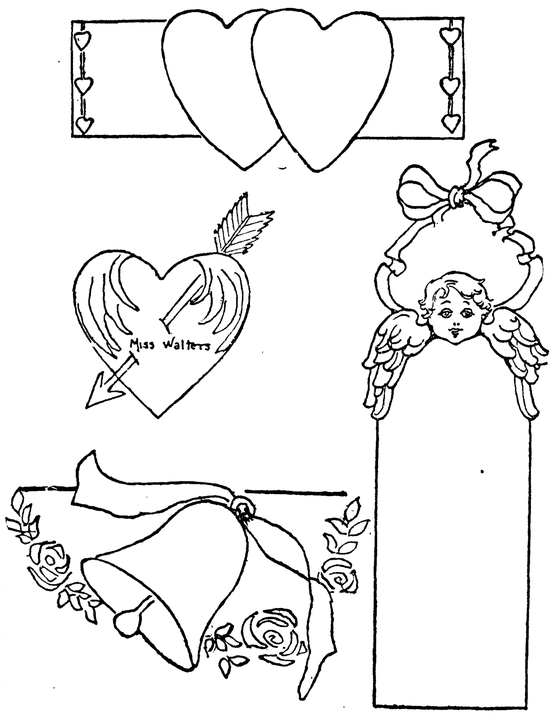
Pretty Place Cards



WHEN Laura announces her engagement to Petrarch it is well to consider those ever-popular little accessories to the decoration of the luncheon table—the place cards.

The little Cupid with outspread wings at the top of the long card is to be traced by means of carbon paper on unglazed paper. Ink the outlines and touch up the face with pink. Gold paint is good to use on the curls and as tips for the wings. A little verse about love, marriage or Cupid can be written or printed below.

Another place card is the arrow-pierced heart. Trace this and as many others on cardboard as there are guests. The head and tip of the arrow will extend beyond the form; the other lines will be drawn in with a point and each name placed as suggested.

If the idea of flowers be preferred, the five-petaled rose, each portion a heart, is good and very easy. It can be tinted with crayons or water colors any shade to match the table decorations. A huge one of this pattern is very effective on the center of the table under the bowl of flowers.

For the long place card the arrangement of hearts is extremely easy. Two red ones on a white card and the little string of hearts at each side, also red, are very effective. This idea is good for a red luncheon or tea.

A garland arrangement of roses and a bell is shown in an attractive design.

Trace the design on gray paper and paint the bell and ribbon white, the leaves a delicate green and the roses white. You can allow for an extension one-half inch wide at the top, to be bent over and hung on the rim of a glass.

These place cards can be quickly made at home; or if you have a facile brush and pen and you wish to do a last little favor for Miss Laura, who will soon be Mrs. Petrarch, why not make a set for her farewell luncheon?

Jail Sold for Chicken Pen.

Sioux City, Ia.—The people of Greene, Iowa, Butler county, have become so law abiding that they have no more use for the city jail. Senator Wade of the state board of control was a visitor at Greene the other day and while there was startled to see a huge traction engine go puffing through the streets pulling behind it the city jail, which had been placed on trucks.

"That was a spectacle a person doesn't see very often," observed the senator. "I inquired what they were going to do with the bastile, and they told me that some enterprising citizen had purchased it from the city for a chicken-house. For deportment, I suppose, Greene deserves the medal."

DOCTOR MAKES A MISTAKE

Good Story Told of a Popular Physician Who Made Blunder in Sending Out Two Parcels.

A droll story is told of one of the most popular physicians in Vienna. He was not a little astonished at the contents of two letters which he received lately. They stated, in terms the reverse of flattering, that his drugs had not merely done no good, but had actually aggravated the troubles they were mentioned to cure.

The doctor consulted his notebook, and the truth at once dawned upon him. About six weeks ago, an actress, a brunette, then performing in the "Merry Widow," called upon him. Her beauty was of the Spanish type, and a perceptible down which shaded the finely formed upper lip of the actress had daily begun to grow darker. She timidly stated her case and besought the doctor to give her a remedy for the unwelcome growth. The doctor promised to send her a remedy with the utmost privacy.

Immediately after the actress had gone a young lieutenant came in to consult the physician. In grave tones he told his tale of woe. The faint indications of his mustache, in spite of all his efforts, would not develop as rapidly as he desired. The doctor laughingly undertook to help him out of his difficulty, and promised the young lieutenant, who was trying in vain to curl the ends of his mustache, to send the remedy to his address by a trusty messenger.

The scales now fell from the doctor's eyes. Either he himself or his messenger had exchanged the small parcels containing such opposite remedies—thence the bitter complaints and reproaches. The drugs had, the doctor found, acted most effectually. The actress was obliged to have recourse to soap and razor to get rid of the luxuriant growth on her upper lip, while the lieutenant was ready to tear out the hair of his head at the loss of the few straggling hairs of his mustache.

Outdoor Life Necessary.

The longest-lived men are those engaged in healthy outdoor occupations, such as farming, simply because they lead an active, muscular life in the open air.

Bodily active keeps at bay the diseases of sedentary middle life. Gout and rheumatism lie in wait for the man who does not walk five miles in the week, who hates games and believes that golf and tennis are silly and a waste of time.

It is the active, busy woman who keeps her complexion when she is past forty years of age, and girls twenty years her junior grow sallow and anaemic for lack of outdoor exercise.

You must live a sedentary life, you say? We don't believe it. Even if your day is spent in an office or a shop, you have the early morning for a cold bath, and twenty minutes with dumb-bells. You have your evenings, and you have your week-ends.

He Got a Permanent Cure.

The various rulings of the commissions and departments at Washington are oftentimes thought to be arbitrary and unnecessary. No less a personage than David Starr Jordan joked about the laws of the International Fisheries commission.

"The fish there have no chance," he lamented; "they have as hard a time of it as the whites in the interior of China.

"A druggist there said to his clerk one day:

"'Didn't I see a foreign devil come out of here as I came down the street?'

"'Yes, sir,' the clerk meekly responded. 'He wanted a permanent cure for headache.'

"'And you sold him——'

"'Rat poison, sir.'"—From "Affairs at Washington," by Joe Mitchell Chapple, in the National Magazine.

Babes Couldn't See the Point.

Wells got an idea the other day, and, calling his children around him, he said:

"Now, my babes, I want to ask you a question, to see how smart you are, for I want you to grow up smart business men."

"Propound, old gent," said the eldest.

"That's disrespectful," said Wells; "but here's the question: What is the greatest grain elevator in the country?"

His babes scratched their heads, examined their toes, and finally "guv it up."

"Why, yeast, you blockheads, you! Humph! It's queer I can't have smart young uns like other people!"—Exchange.

The Wisdom of Solomon.

"I don't see any sense in referring to the wisdom of Solomon," said the man smartly. "He had a thousand wives."

"Yes," answered the woman tartly, "he learned his wisdom from them."

Just as He Said.

"When you sold me that family horse you said he would eat anything."

"Well, doesn't he?"

"He does more. He eats everything."—Washington Star.

Agonizing Death.

How men meet death was a subject under discussion among a little party of doctors. Some gruesome tales were told. One man, a surgeon on a hospital staff, said:

"As a rule, however, death comes peacefully enough and rather as a relief, an easing off from pain and trouble. But I had a notable exception the other night. A burly Russian in my ward, who had been terribly crushed in the mills, was dying. It was in the middle of the night watch. The lights were low. The nurse on duty was with me in the other end of the ward, when the silence was broken by a great, fierce cry. We whirled about just in time to see this huge bearded man leap high in the air, turn over and strike the floor with a terrible impact. We ran to him. He was dead."

The Kind of Danger.

"Mrs. Waggie is a dangerous woman. She is always running down somebody."

"With her tongue or her new auto?"

ANTS DESTROYERS OF FLIES

Why It Is That Inhabitants of the Philippines Are Free of One Insect Pest.

Capt. Percy L. Jones of the army medical corps, reports that flies are comparatively rare in the Philippines because of a species of ant which consumes the larvae of the fly with avidity.

"Upon watching these ants attack fly larvae," he says, "it is interesting to note that they do so in a way which proves that they are no novices at the procedure. One will attack an extremity and apparently bite it, and as soon as the larvae begins to coil and make efforts to escape numbers of others will immediately jump upon it, and in the course of a few moments the larvae will be apparently dead.

"I believe that the ant introduces some venom in the act of biting, formic acid in character, which preserves the larvae as food until such time as the ant needs it—cans it, in other words. As soon as the struggles of the larvae have ceased they haul it off to their nests and return for others. In many instances I have seen them carry away pupae. It will be interesting for the reader to procure a few maggots and place them over an ant bed."

So far as is known this species of ant is not found in the United States and indeed is not yet classified. Captain Jones has considered the practicability of introducing it into countries where the extermination of the fly is destined to become an important feature of sanitation. This ant is said to be an energetic destroyer of bed bugs as well as of flies.—From the Military Surgeon.

SAMENESS OF RIVER NILE

Golden Monotony of Light and Sound in Beautiful Land of the Pharaohs.

Some people talk of the sameness of the Nile; and there is a lovely sameness of golden light, of delicious air, of people and of scenery. For Egypt is, after all, mainly a great river with strips on each side of cultivated land, flat, green, not very varied. River, green plains, yellow plains, pink, brown, steel gray or pale yellow mountains, wail of shadoof, wail of sakieh. Yes, I suppose there is a sameness, a sort of golden monotony, in this land pervaded with light and pervaded with sound. Always there is light around you, and you are bathing in it, and nearby always, if you are living, as I was, on the water, there is a multitude of mingling sounds floating, floating to your ears. As there are two lines of green land, two lines of mountains following the course of the Nile, so are there two lines of voices that cease their calling and their singing only as you draw near to Nubia.

For then, with the green land, they fade away, these miles upon miles of calling and singing brown men; and amber and ruddy sands creep downward to the Nile. And the air seems subtly changing, and the light perhaps growing a little harder. And you are aware of other regions unlike those you are leaving, more African, more savage, less suave, less like a dreaming. And especially the silence makes a great impression on you. But before you enter this silence, between the amber and ruddy walls that will lead you on to Nubia and to the land of the crocodile, you have a visit to pay. For here, high up on a terrace, is Kom Ombos. And Kom Ombos is the temple of the crocodile god.—Century.

Destroys Hair Germs

Recent discoveries have shown that falling hair is caused by germs at the roots of the hair. Therefore, to stop falling hair, you must first completely destroy these germs. Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, will certainly do this. Then leave the rest to nature.

Does not change the color of the hair.

Recent discoveries have also proved that dandruff is caused by germs on the scalp. Therefore, to cure dandruff, the first thing to do is to completely destroy these dandruff germs. Here, the same Ayer's Hair Vigor will give the same splendid results.

Poured Oil on Her Baby Brother.

Pueblo, Col.—Pouring coal oil on her little four-months-old brother's head and then tying a hood around his head, saturated with the same liquid, after which she applied a match, Mary, the four-year-old daughter of Joe Jennetti, an Italian steel worker, attempted to cremate the child.

But for the prompt action of the mother, who was in the next room and heard the baby's screams, the infant undoubtedly would have been cremated.

The girl is termed by doctors a cretan and is weak-minded. She will now be confined or sent to some institution for treatment.

Irony Lost Case for Lawyer.

In his early days at the bar the late Lord Bowen prosecuted a prisoner who had been caught in a house at night crawling downstairs with his boots off and carrying portable property. The evidence was so overwhelming that Bowen ventured to indulge in a little irony and remarked on the thoughtfulness of the prisoner in removing his shoes, thus disturbing nobody, and in selecting only solid silver articles from the plate basket, so that the family had enough forks and spoons left for breakfast. The jury was so impressed by these extenuating circumstances that it acquitted the prisoner. Bowen never employed irony again when addressing a jury.

It All Depends.

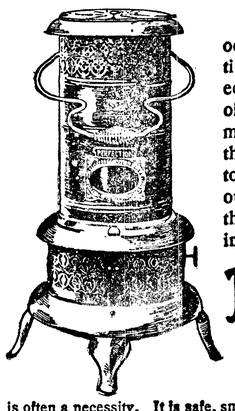
For Business Use



There are a great many places and occasions when the possibility of getting extra heat immediately effects an economy by decreasing the discomfort of the worker. In the office, in the early morning or late at night, before or after the steamheat is on, it is of importance to have extra heat. In the builder's outside office, in the shipping room, in the checker's shack, on exposed lofts in railroad stations, in studios, the

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

is often a necessity. It is safe, smokeless and odorless. Apply a match, and it gives heat quickly. With four quarts of oil it burns nine hours. Has automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be cleaned in an instant.

It has a cool handle and a damper top. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap it is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently, it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for rewicking.

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel. It is strong, durable, well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

Mrs. H. J. Priest gave a party, Nov. 10th, at her home in Sequim in honor of her daughter's, Miss Alice Spaulding's, fifteenth birthday. Twenty-four girls and boys were present to help her celebrate. She received a number of very useful and pretty presents. At eleven o'clock a lunch was served and all returned to their homes wishing her many happy returns of the day.

Harley Edgington has moved into his own place in town.

R. W. Long has moved into his nice home in town from Happy Valley. His son Roy will carry on the saw mill business and Mr. Long will run the lumber yard in Sequim. He is building a barn.

Herman Sindars has his fine home in Sequim nearly painted, which is a great improvement.

Charley McDougal is building a large barn.

George Sherban has moved into his new home in town, and has bo't the bowling alley.

Mairon C. Dougherty, who bought Geo. Sherban's ranch, has taken possession.

Died, Nov. 11th, at his home in Sequim, John J. McDonald, aged 81. He was born in the Catskill Mountains, New York, in 1829, and later moved to Oswego; there he resided until 1855, when he moved to Iowa. He was married in 1857 to Miss Mary Hankay. Five children, two girls and three boys, were born to this union. The family moved to Nebraska and Kansas in 1879, coming to Sequim in 1902, where his sons, William, John and Lee and daughter, Mrs. Frank Jones, reside; another daughter residing in Kerfey, Cal. He leaves a widow, five children, twenty-two grand children and eleven great grand children to mourn his loss.

A party of about thirty young people met at the home of Jack Long Nov. 15th to help Miss Grace Long celebrate her sixteenth birthday. She was well remembered by her many friends in the beautiful presents she received. After spending a delightful evening a delicious lunch was served, and, wishing their hostess many more happy birthdays, the guests departed for their homes.

When in the well known phrase of a former president of the United States, office holders recognize that "a public office is a public trust," then, and not until then will grafting cease in municipal and other government. With far too many people an office is looked upon as an opening to make money by accepting bribes and robbing the people. The idea of one finding his reward in the honor the office confers and in the opportunity it affords of rendering a service to the public never enters the mind of such people. That to them is so much absurd sentimentalism. They are in office for what they can get out of it, and the people suffer the consequences. Still there is hope that the lofty principle that leads English and Germans to consecrate themselves to the people's good may in time also be widely adopted in this country.

A noted architect recently said that the time will come when Chicago and other cities will be beautiful in the extreme by virtue of what will be accomplished through a highly trained esthetic taste and the application of true scientific methods. No dirty streets, no dust, no smoke, no foul sights or smells, no slums, nothing but beauty, order and prosperity. That, indeed, is a vision that every-e hopes may be realized in every ce. But while waiting for it to erialize it would be just as well everyone to keep his own premises n. By so doing he will make sent conditions better and will forward the municipal millum.

JOHN M. SMITH.

We were sorry to learn of the death of Mr. John M. Smith of Clallam Bay, at his home there last Friday night. He has been in poor health for a number of years and his death was caused by a complication of diseases. His funeral services were held in Angeles Sunday at the Catholic church, conducted by Father Wolfgang. He leaves a wife and one small child to mourn his death. Mrs. Smith will be remembered by many as Mrs. Stikes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard, and she has the sympathy of her many friends in this great sorrow which has come to her. She will return to Angeles to reside.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to return our sincere thanks to the many friends at Clallam Bay for their kindnesses shown our daughter, Mr. Smith, during the last illness of her husband.

Notice of Sheriff's Sale of Real Estate.

Cause No. 2513.

In the Superior Court of the State of Washington for Clallam County.

Charles Tillman, plaintiff, vs. John Cain and Mamie L. Cain, husband and wife, Walter Mack Clark, and Clara Kenisston Clark, husband and wife; L. M. Campbell, and Mary Campbell, husband and wife, and E. W. Fisher, defendants.

Under and by virtue of an order of sale, issued out of and under the seal of the Superior Court of the State of Washington, holding terms at Port Angeles, in and for said County, on the 17th day of October, A. D., 1910, upon a judgment rendered in said Court on the 15th day of October, A. D., 1910, in favor of Charless Tillman, and against the above named defendants for the sum of Two Thousand and Forty-seven and no-100 ($2047.00) Dollars, together with attorney's fees, interest, costs and increased costs, and to me directed and delivered, commanding me to sell the following described property to satisfy said judgment, to-wit:

The south half of the northwest quarter and the north half of the southwest quarter of section twenty-six, in township thirty north range six west, W. M., situate in Clallam County, Washington, excepting five acres now owned by Dr. F S. Lewis, and ten acres, more or less, leased to Herman Filion, et al situated in the southwest quarter of said northwest quarter of said section twenty-six; excepting also all timber on said land, under contract of sale to Roy Madison.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that on Saturday, the 28th day of November A. D. 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, I will sell the above described property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy said judgments, together with attorneys fees, interest, costs and increased costs, in all amounting to the sum of Twenty One Hundred Eight, and 64-100 Dollars.

Said sale will take place at the front door of the court house at Port Angeles in said county and state, and will be at public auction, for cash in hand to the highest and best bidder.

Dated at Port Angeles, Wash., this 21st day of October, A. D. 1910.
