ANGELES WOMEN INSPIRE VISITORS

Editor New Citizen Compliments Ladies of Port Angeles Auxiliary.

This wonderfully energetic body women is auxiliary to the Comial Club of that promising city. e club has been organized only a th, yet it has a hundred active mbers. With each one a booster Port Angeles, the combined work- force is telling. The officers are rs. W. F. Delabarre, president; Mrs. C. Luppen, vice-president; Mrs. E. B. Webster, secretary; Mrs. A. A. Smith, corresponding secretary.

The editor of this magazine was favored with an invitation from the Auxiliary to attend The Olympic Peninsula Development banquet in Port Angeles the night of April 22nd, and was also wired by the Commercial Club a request to respond to the toast "Our New Fellow Citizens" at that banquet.

The Press Club excursionists were met by the Auxiliary reception committee and The New Citizen's editor had the pleasure of exchanging greetings with the members thereof, Mrs Edward Webster, Mrs. E. E. Seevers, Mrs. Thos. Trumbull, Mr. J. Kirschberg, Mrs. C. J. Farmer, Mrs. W. J. Mathewson, Mrs William Delabarre, Mrs. Chas. Haswell, Mrs. S. Thompson, Mrs. Ed. FitzHenry, Mrs. E. E. Hopkins, and Mrs. C. Luppen. Also with the entertainment committee, composed of Mrs. N. K. Mead, Mrs. T. T. Aldwell, Mrs. D. E. McGillivray, Mrs. Stoval, Mrs. G. V. Smith, Mrs. H. Phelps, and Miss MacClure. These ladies certainly did the honors of the city and the day in royal style.

Every woman was a host that day. The ladies of the excursion party were entertained at the Masonic Temple which was prettily decorated, and where tea and wafers were continuously served.

The Slogan of this woman's organization is, "Get Together," and the result of the united pull is a strong and harmonious body whose activities for a larger and better city are rivaling the good work done by the Men's Commercial Club.

Visitors are inspired by these wide-awake women who so well know the advantages of their home city, including its fine harbor and adjacent agriculture, dairying and fruit raising facilities. The great beauty of the surrounding scenery with a view of the everlasting white peaks of the Olympics, the blue bay and the green forests and foothills are almost unrivaled.

We were informed that Port Angeles had 3,000 population, but from the crowd that lined the docks and the streets to welcome the scribe excursionists we would have placed the number at five thousand.

BROTHERHOOD ENJOYS CUTTS' LECTURE

The Men's Club of the Congregational Church was treated to one of the best talks since its organization, Monday evening. Oliver F. Cutts, International Secretary of the Student Department of the Y. M. C. A., was the speaker. Mr Cutts is a famous athlete, having been captain of one of Harvard's foot-ball teams, from which he took his topic and called it, "Character Foot Ball Team", comprising Love and Service.

After his outline of each position, and the bearing of the team, he gave and named them according to character, which made a deep impression, and brought forth hearty applause from all present.

Mr. R. E Gilmore was elected as secretary to fill the vacancy left open by Mr. Weeks.

The usual excellent supper was served by the ladies, to which every one present did ample justice. The increasing interest taken in these monthly meetings of the club, as well as the large attendance, argues well for the moral, social and literary uplift of the male population of our city.

FISHING TACKLE

We exhibit with great satisfaction and pride our new line of fishing tackle to our many friends who have grown into the habit of looking to us for everything new and practical in the tackle line.

Our experience as fishermen has taught us just what to buy for all kinds of fishing, and our experience in buying has taught us where to buy to get the right goods and at the right prices.

A new and complete line of Leaders and Flies, Lines, Poles, Special Reels, Salmon Eggs etc. direct from the makers, at saving prices.

LESLIE M. SHAW ON SEATTLE'S FUTURE

Former Secretary of Treasury Sizes Up Conditions on Puget Sound.

Seattle must and will become a great manufacturing city. Since coming here, I have seen much and am more and more impressed. Seattle is big with resources, which her people know and appreciate. But, in my judgment, Seattle is still more fortunate in opportunities not understood and even dreamed of by few.

In water-power, coal, iron, and copper. Seattle is better situated than any city on the Pacific Coast. She possesses every essential for becoming an industrial center. There is an abundance of water-power at hand which can be developed cheaply for commercial purposes. Seattle has coal and copper, locally from Alaska, literally in inexhaustible quantities. She will have iron as long as there is iron ore anywhere.

Seattle has a climate unequaled on the continent. This is important because it is impossible to get results from labor where the thermometer registers one hundred in the shade or twenty below zero at different seasons of the year.

For her market, Seattle has an empire bounded on the south by Cape Horn, on the north by the Arctic circle and on the east by the Rocky Mountains. The freight rate on ordinary metal products from Pittsburg to the Coast is $ 5 per ton.

Every pound of iron, every ton of steel, every piece of brass and every sheet of tin consumed on the Pacific Slope can and should be produced within this territory. Seattle may not produce all of it, but the per cent will depend upon the alertness and the enterprise of her citizens.

The early settlers of America did not hesitate to declare that this country could never succeed in the field of manufacture. They even thought the climate would prevent. Their fears were ill considered. The United States produces more finished products than all the shops and all the factories of Great Britain, and Germany combined, plus five thousand million dollars' worth every twelve months, and we pay out as much in wages as all the rest of the world.

Early settlers of every locality are as pessimistic as the fathers were. I have met a few doubting Thomases even in Seattle. They seem incredulous, for instance, when told that the best steel ever made in America is being produced right here in their midst at the rate of over 100 tons per day.

The importance of the lumber interests of this region has not been exaggerated, but lumber never made a large or permanent city. Michigan and Wisconsin were rich in timber and the early growth of Detroit, Milwaukee, etc., was materially aided thereby, but were it not for their manufactures, these cities today would be unknown, as is evidenced by the history of many sawmill towns of the states. Coal is an essential of commerce and the manufacture of steel is the king of industries. Pittsburg pays out a million dollars a day in wages and produces more freight than any other city in the world.

If the people of Seattle will spend the next few years in keeping the price of real estate attractively low, and if they will seek and encourage factories as Eastern cities encourage them, the babies born today may reasonably expect to cast their maiden votes in a city crowding the million mark.

If I were a young man, I would not go into banking, law, or any of the other professions. I would come to Seattle and embark in the manufacturing business. For instance, with the hardwoods of the Philippines to draw from, Seattle should be a great furniture manufacturing center.

The Panama Canal when completed will aid some, but the Coast city whose people make it the chief manufacturing center will eventually become the second largest city in the nation.

STATE DEVELOPMENT LEAGUE ORGANIZED

Will Exploit Resources of Western Washington Thru Local Organizations.

For the purpose of exploiting the resources and oppoitunities of Western Washington and establishing 50,000 home makers on the farms of the state there was organized Tuesday in the rooms of the Seattle Commercial Club the Washington Development League, representative of virtually all the commercial bodies of the state west of the Cascades.

All commercial, business or development organizations operating within the state shall be eligible to membership in the league. The league is to meet quarterly, in January, April, July and October, in various cities of the state as the executive committee may decide, and the officers chosen yesterday will serve until July, 1912.

Yesterday's meeting, which was attended by 188 delegates, chose the following list of officers:—President, J. W. Maxwell, Seattle; vice-president, Albert Pancoast, Bellingham; secretary-treasurer, Rufus R. Wilson, Seattle; chairman of committees, finance, L. B. Faulkner, Olympia; legislation, Walter D. Peters, Bremerton; publicity, Louis W. Pratt, Tacoma; good roads, Dr C. C. Cox, Everett; transportation, G. M. Lauridsen, Port Angeles; logged-off lands, Frederick Ornes, Mount Vernon; irrigation, Dr. D. W. King, Wenatchee.

Speeches commendatory of the action taken in forming the league were made by Albert Pancoast, Bellingham, Wallace R. Struble, Bremerton; W. D. Paulhamus, Puyallup; James Brady, Edison; Edward Hazeton, Monroe; G. M. Lauridsen, John Cain, Port Angeles; G. H. Wescott, Blaine; Clyde L. Peach, Port Townsend, and Charles G. Heifer, Rotary Club.

It is proposed to issue a semi-weekly bulletin of inquiries which will be mailed to all members of the league, giving them an opportunity to address the man inquiring about matters in which they are interested. Particular care will be taken to keep this bulletin from the hands of real estate operators and promoters.

"The idea is to clear the ground for local organizations to make the best use of their money and efforts," said Mr. Wilson. "The average cost of a live name is never less than $1 and the assessment of each member will be $10 for every thousand of population, with a minimum annual assessment of $24. In this way all parts of the state will have an opportunity to concentrate their forces in advertising and receiving the benefits along the lines that interest them most at a minimum of expense.

The business and "booster" meeting over, the delegates were taken for an auto ride through Seattle as guests of the Commercial Club, the Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary Club.

Memorial Day exercises will be held in Memorial G. A. R. Hall on corner of 5th and Lincoln Sts., at 2:30 p. m. Rev. Stephen Smith will deliver address. All citizens are cordially invited to attend these Memorial exercises.

Are you a member of the Woman's Auxiliary? Well! don't you think you ought to be?

WILL ORGANIZE ELECTRIC RAILWAY

Seattle Commercial Club Will Take Up Wilson's Scheme In Earnest.

Club met upon call of chair, present, Seevers, Lauridsen, Christensen, Lutz, Willson, Hansen, Secretary and a number of members.

Communication read from Seattle Chamber Commerce special committee relative to conference with Mr. Green relative to change in time of leaving Seattle and reduced rates, in effect that Mr. Green would be glad to change schedule to have Whatcom leave Seattle in morning, but would expect majority petition from points affected covering change. Rates were not considered for reason that a change is contemplated later. Moved by Lauridsen, That Secretary draft petition suggested, and that chair name a special committee to circulate same. Seconded by Christensen and carried. Chair appointed G. M. Lauridsen, F. P. Fisher and John Cain.

Letter read from R. R. Wilson, Chr. Arrangements Com., asking that delegates be named at once to the Western Washington Development League, to be held at Com. Club rooms, Seattle, 2 p. m., Tuesday, May 16. Upon motion of Christensen, Vice-Pres. was authorized to hunt up a committee of not less than five who would be willing to attend and pay their own expenses. G. M. Lauridsen, R. D. Willson, John Cain, T. S. Gorman, C. J. Farmer, E. E. Seevers, H. F. Phelps, H. E.

ANGELES FAR AHEAD OF CALIFORNIA

Were Every Man of Us an Isler Things Would Move With a Whirl.

Jacob Isler, one of Angeles best citizens, says that when he talked of coming here a few years ago, parties in Seattle tried to dissuade him from doing so, but that as soon as the boat neared Port Angeles with the beautiful Olympics in such close proximity he at once knew that this was the place for him, and he has ever since been a booster for and not a knocker against Port Angeles. He is heartily in accord with the get together spirit which prevades the community just at present, and is doing what he can to bring emigration here. A nephew, Adolph Rupp, is a recent arrival from California; has bought a ranch in the Blue Mountain district, and sent for his family. He expects to bring another nephew here, who is coming soon from the Fatherland, Switzerland. If every man in Port Angeles were an Isler, things would move with a whirl.

TO THE BUSINESS MEN OF PORT ANGELES.

The Farmers of Dungeness wish to meet the business men of Port Angeles at the time and place they wish to name and there decide whether it takes brains or brawn to play base ball. This challenge bars all players and substitutes of either the regular Angeles or Dungeness teams.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke, who resigned last November as the Murray professor of English literature at Princeton University, has withdrawn his resignation at the request of the trustees and will retain the chair.

Minnesota railroads are considering advancing passenger rates to 3 cents a mile as a result of the recent rate decisions in the Senate. This will mean an increase of about $7,000,000 in the passenger revenue of the roads.

Surface, elevated and subway transportation lines of New York carried 1,490,000,000 passengers in 1910, more than the estimated population of the world. Of these, according to the report, elevated roads carried 450,000,000, the subway 270,000,000 and surface lines 770,000,000.

CONSERVATION ASSOCIATION ISSUES PAMPHLET

Spokane, Wash., May 15.—The Western Forestry and Conservation Association, composed of the principal timber owners and lumber mill operators in California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, and headed by Judge Albert L. Flewelling of Spokane, has issued a pamphelt regarding the needs and methods of saving life and property from destruction in forest fires, and urging the observance of the following simple rules:

Don't toss away burning matches or tobacco.

Don't make a camp fire in leaves, rotten wood or against logs, where it may spread or where you cannot be sure it is out.

Never leave a fire until it is out.

Don't burn a slashing in the dry season without a permit and without taking care to keep the fire from spreading.

Put out any fire you find, if you can; if you cannot do so, notify a fire warden, some other public officer or the land owner.

The text of the pamphlet consists of a series of questions and answers, with a view to interesting school children as well as adults in the forest protection movement.

After showing that the states of Oregon, Washington, California, Idaho and Montana contain more than 50 per cent of all the timber in the Union, E. T. Allen, forester of the association, who compiled the data, says:

"Next to food itself, no product is so necessary to the human race as wood. People must have it for fuel, for their houses, barns and fences, to build ships and railroads, and for almost every article used by civilized man. Having plenty of it, we not only get all these things cheaper ourselves, but can sell it to other states and countries which have no forests."

President Flewelling announced in an interview that twice as many men will be sent into Northern Idaho forests the coming summer, beginning early in June, as were used for patrol work in 1910. Additional facilities will be provided and the railroad telegraph and telephone lines used in case of emergency.

Appointments Are Made.

Olympia, May 15.—Gov. Hay has reappointed A. A. Tozer, of Everett, as state oil inspector, and named Julius Lyse of Wilbur, to suceed O. W. Stone, of Davenport, as a member of the state board of embalmers' examiners. The governor also gave R. R. George, Seattle justice of the peace, the right to leave the state from May 17 to August 6, 1911.

The award had been recommended by Maj. C. W. Kutz, chief of the local United States engineering corps, and was made by the Secretary of War.

HOQUIAM HONORS MEMORY OF CAPT. ROBERT GRAY

Hoquiam, May 13.—It was 119 years ago last Sunday that Capt. Robert Gray, of the American ship Columbia, on a voyage of exploration along the North Pacific coast, sighted the narrow entrance of the harbor which now bears his name, and laying his course by a great lone spruce tree on the north point, sailed his vessel inside and anchored. He landed near the tree and his accounts of the discovery mention the lone tree.

Last Monday the work of Capt. Gray was comemmorated by the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution—Robert Gray chapter—by the unveiling of a bronze tablet set in a great granite boulder which had been moved to a resting place under the lone tree. The tablet is inscribed:

Tradition Links This Tree With the Name of
CAPTAIN ROBERT GRAY,
Who
On May 7th, 1792,
Entered This Harbor in His Ship Columbia.
This Tablet
Was Placed in His Honor
By
ROBERT GRAY CHAPTER

AMERICAN REVOLUTION,
May 7, 1911.
This Site Was Donated by Mr. A. O. Damon.

The ceremonies were attended by the largest assemblage of pioneers and Daughters of the American Revolution which has been seen in Chehalis conuty in years. It was also attended by pioneers and prominent men of the Northwest, including Geo. H. Himes, secretary of the Oregon State Historical Society, and W. H. Gilstrap, of Tacoma, secretary of the Washington State Historical Society, both of whom gave addresses on the history of the Northwest and of Chehalis county. The former presented the donors of the monument with a fine picture of Capt. Gray.

GYROSCOPE INVENTION TO BE TRIED BY NAVY

New York, May 15.—The Navy Department is installing on one of the fleetest vessels of the eighth division, now in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, one of Elmer A. Sperry's gyroscope compasses for the purpose of giving the invention an exhaustive trial.

The Navy Department also is preparing to install on one of the torpedo boat destroyers one of the Sperry heavy gyroscopes for the purpose of testing the ability of the invention to keep the boat on an even keel. The gyroscopic compass weighs only a few pounds. The gyroscope that is expected to keep vessels stable on the high seas weighs several tons.

Sperry said that one of his small gyroscopes, weighing 23 pounds, was tried on an aeroplane in Connecticut and proved a success in keeping the aeroplane perfectly stable.

Cost of Ash Heap Grows.

New York, May 13.—Non-safety matches are condemned in a resolution adopted by the National Board of Fire Underwriters today. Fire losses in this country last year exceeded those of 1909 by $25,000,000, according to the report of a committee.

DICKINSON RESIGNS CABINET JOB

HENRY L. STIMSON, OF NEW YORK, ACCEPTS PLACE THUS VACATED.

Business Reasons Given for Step by Secretary of War, but Naturally There Are Rumers—New Appointee Was Roosevelt's Candidate for Governor of New York.

Washington, May 13.—Secretary of War Jacob M. Dickinson, of Tennessee, the Democratic member of President Taft's cabinet, has resigned. Henry L. Stimson, of New York, recently defeated Republican candidate for governor of that state, has been given the portfolio. This announcement was made from the White House last night. In the letters exchanged between the president and Mr. Dickinson no reason other than that of pressing private affairs is given for the secretary's retirement.

Secretary Dickinson will go to his Tennessee home immediately upon the qualification of his successor. He expects to devote his attention to business. He was engaged in the practice of law when President Taft appointed him secretary of war, March, 1909.

Second Retirement.

He is the second member of Mr. Taft's cabinet to retire to private life, Secretary of the Interior Ballinger having severed his connection with the president's family only a few months ago. Coincident with the announcement of Mr. Dickinson's retirement came that of the appointment of C. S. Millington, of Herkimer, N. Y., to be assistant treasurer of the United States in New York.

Mr. Stimson was the Roosevelt candidate for governor, while Mr. Millington was a former member of the house from the Twenty-seventh New York district, and is a close friend of Vice President Sherman.

Friends of the president were pleased over the political outlook.

Reasons Suggested.

Unofficially Washington discussed with relish the resignation of the secretary of war. Unofficially, also, there were those who found other reasons than that given in his letters.

Mr. Dickinson is a Democrat. His presence in the cabinet of a Republican president has not been looked upon with favor by some of Mr. Taft's political advisers, who were of the opinion that the office of secretary of war should be held by some one of the president's own party and who also pointed out that Mr. Dickinson might prove a source of embarrassment when the 1912 presidential campaign begins. Naturally, Mr. Dickinson often found the discussion in the cabinet of party measures a personal embarrassment.

There were others who thought Mr. Dickinson had incurred some criticisms by his conduct of the war office. As was pointed out recently, there have been reports of friction over the Mexican situation between the state department and the war department.

In some quarters it was asserted that Secretary of State Knox was being overshadowed by Mr. Dickinson and there were reports that the former contemplated resigning, but these met with official denials. There had been no hint that Mr. Dickinson contemplated retirement.

HOUSE ORDERS TWO WIDE INVESTIGATIONS

Washington, May 13.—Two resolutions for important investigations have been agreed to by the House of Representatives. A complete investigation of the Postoffice Department, proposed by Representative Saunders of Virginia, to determine whether political influences were operating in the department, whether the employes are discharged for political reasons, and covering other features of postal operations as authorized by the adoption of one resolution.

The other, that of Mr. Hardwick of Georgia, provides for a sweeping investigation of the American Sugar Refining Company to determine what influences it has had or is having on the prices of sugar, or the control of competition.

WOULD FORCE ARIZONA TO CUT OUT RECALL

Washington, May 13.—The House territories committee has voted to favorably report a resolution providing that the people of Arizona shall vote again on the recall of judges clause in their state constitution, and that the people of New Mexico shall vote again on an amendment which will make it easier to amend their constitution. The House will consider the report on Tuesday.

Long and Short Haul Upheld.

Washington, May 13.—Denial has been made by the interstate commerce commission of the request of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad to make lower class freight rates between El Paso, Tex., and Phoenix, Ariz., than to intermediate points. The rates must conform to the long and short haul provision of the law.

JUDICIAL RECALL IS BAD, SAYS TAFT

HE TRUSTS, HOWEVER, IN GOOD SENSE OF PEOPLE TO SAVE THEM.

Fear of Judicial Tyranny, He Believes Unfounded—Our Judicial Procedure Unfavorably Compared With That of Great Britain—Speech Before Conference for Reform of Criminal Practice.

New York, May 13.—President Taft came out publicly last night against the recall of the judiciary. In his speech before the conference on reform of the criminal law and procedure, the president made his attitude plain.

Most of his speech was devoted to a comparison, highly unfavorable to this country, of the judicial systems of Great Britain and the United States. He lamented the tendency manifested, even in England, but more particularly in this country, to put limitations on the power of the judge.

To Try Judge.

"And now," he said, "not content with reducing the position of the judge to one something like that of the moderator in a religious assembly or the presiding officer of a political convention, the judge is to be made still less important and to be put still more on trial and to assume still more the character of a defendant by a provision of law under which, if his rulings and conduct in court do not suit a small percentage of the electors of his district, he may be compelled to submit the question of his continuance on the bench during the term for which he was elected to an election for recall, in which the reason for his recall is to be included in 200 words and his defense thereto to be equally brief.

No Greater Power.

"It can hardly be said that this proposed change, if adopted, will give him greater authority or power for usefulness or constitute a reform in the enforcement of the criminal law of this country. It will certainly not diminish the power or irresponsibility of counsel for the defendant. Let us hope that the strong sense of humor of the American people, which has so often saved them from the dangers of demagogy, will not be lacking in respect of this 'nostrum.'

"The statistics which show the crimes which go unpunished in this country as compared with those in England are startling and humiliating to any American who has pride in his fellow-countrymen as a law-abiding and law-enforcing people. A study of the English system will show that their procedure and their guarantees in favor of the individual as to indictment, trial and conviction, and their provision for the security of the liberty of the individual are exactly the same as ours, for we derive ours from them.

Judges Show It.

"Wherein is the great difference, then, between the effectiveness of the two systems? I believe it to exist in the character, experience and learning of the judges, in the power which they maintain and exercise in the course of the trial for the saving of time and the simplification of the issues and the respect and obedience given to their intimations from the bench as to the proper behavior of counsel in the conduct of the case. If there is any other reason for the difference, it cannot be found in procedure.

"I wish to comment on the effect that the change in the power of the judge in this country in the matter of the management of the trial has had upon his ability to shorten the methods of counsel for the defense and their conduct in the court room.

Unfounded Fear.

"What I believe to be an unfounded fear of judicial tyranny and an unreasonable distrust of judges have led to statutory limitations upon their power in the conduct of criminal trials which have made the trial by jury in this country, and especially in the Western states, an entirely different institution from what it was understood to be at the time of the adoption of our constitution.

"In many states judges are not permitted to comment upon the facts at all. They are not even allowed to charge the jury after the arguments of counsel, but they are required to submit written charges upon abstruse questions of law, with no opportunity to apply the principles concertedly to the facts of the case.

"The restraint that a judge in the course of a trial imposes upon the manner and conduct of counsel in an English court is thus wholly wanting, with the result that there seems to have been a substantial change in the order of professional ethics governing counsel and in the extreme to which counsel in the defense of their clients seem to think it is entirely proper for them to go. Their conduct makes neither for the dignity of the court, for the elevation of the ethics of the bar, for the expedition of criminal procedure nor for the reasonable punishment of crime."

FEDERAL SUPREME COURT ORDERS STANDARD OIL COMPANY TO DISSOLVE

The supreme court holds in the Standard Oil case:

That the Standard Oil Company is a monopoly in restraint of trade. That this giant corporation must be dissolved within six months.

Corporations whose contracts are "not unreasonably restrictive of competition" are not affected.

Other great corporations whose acts may be called into question will be dealt with according to the merits of their particular cases.

The court was unanimous as to the main features of the decision, Justice Harlan dissenting only as to the limitation of the application of the Sherman anti-trust law.

President Taft and cabinet will immediately consider the entire trust situation and the advisability of pressing a federal incorporation act.

A decision in the tobacco trust case, which was expected simultaneously, was not announced and may be handed down May 29.

Washington, May 15.—The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its nineteen subsidiary corporations were declared today by the supreme court of the United States to be a conspiracy and combination in restraint of trade. The dissolution of the combination was ordered to take place within six months.

Thus ended the tremendous struggle on the part of the government to put down, by authority of law, a combination which it is said was a menace to the industrial and economic advancement of the entire country.

At the same time, the court interpreted the Sherman anti-trust law so as to limit its application to acts of "undue" restraint of trade, and not "every" restraint of trade. It was on this point that the only discordant note was heard in the court. Justice Harlan dissented, holding that cases already decided by the court had determined—once for all—that the word "undue" or "unreasonable" or similar words, were not in the statute.

Harlan Dissents.

He declared that the reasoning of the court in arriving at its finding was, in effect, legislation which belonged in every instance to congress and not to the courts.

Ever since the decree in this case in the lower court, the United States circuit court for the eastern district of Missouri, was announced, hope has been expressed by the "business world" that the law would be so modified so as not to interfere with what was designated "honest business." Tonight that section of the opinion calling for the use of the rule of reason in applying the law is regarded in many quarters as an answer to the prayers of the "business world."

The opinion of the court was announced by Chief Justice White. It contained more than 20,000 words. For nearly an hour the chief justice discussed the case from the bench, going over most of the points in the printed opinion, but not once referring to it in order to refresh his memory.

Before him sat an audience of the most famous men of the country. Senators and representatives left their chambers in the capitol to listen to the epoch-making decision of the court.

Attorneys Anxious.

Most eager to hear were Attorney General Wickersham and Frank B. Kellogg, special counsel for the government, who had conducted the great fight against the Standard Oil.

Today, as on previous decision days for months, rival brokers' agents, with messengers in line to the various telephone and telegraph instruments throughout the capital, were on hand, but to their dismay the announcement of the decision was not begun until an hour after the close of the stock markets.

Looked for Tobacco.

Many expected that the decision in the dissolution suit against the tobacco corporation would be handed down immediately after the decision in the Standard Oil case. This was not done. However, the decision is expected on May 29, the last decision day of the court until next October.

The opinion of the court was construed to mean that the tobacco case, like every other case in which restraints of trade are alleged, must be subject to the new test of reasonableness of the restraint, as laid down in the Standard Oil decision.

By far the greater portion of the opinion of the chief justice was devoted to the justification of the court in requiring that the "rule of reason" be applied to restraints of trade before they were held to be violations of the Sherman anti-trust law. The court found this justification in the common law and in the general law of the country at the time the Sherman anti-trust law was passed.

Reason Needed.

In short, the court held that the technical words of the statute were to be given the meaning which those words had in the common law and in the law of the country at the time of the enactment. This meaning of the words, according to the court, called for the exercise of reason in determining what restraints on trade were prohibited.

GOMPERS AND MITCHELL SENTENCE NOT SANCTIONED BY FEDERAL SUPREME COURT

such, relinquishes the right of individuals. It also establishes that legal prosecution can be leveled not only at the union itself, but at its officers as well.

Opinion a Unit.

In handing down its unanimous opinion, read by Justice Lamar, the court reviewed the suit brought by the Buck Stove & Range Company against Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison, seeking to enjoin them from placing the company on its "unfair" and "we don't patronize" lists published regularly in the American Federationist, the official publication, the company contended, constituted a boycott.

The opinion in conclusion reads: "The judgments of the court of appeals and the supreme court of the District of Columbia are reversed and the case remanded with direction that the contempt proceedings instituted by the Buck Stove & Range company be dismissed but without prejudice to the power and right of the supreme court of the District of Columbia to punish, with proper proceeding, a contempt if any, committed against it."

It is not considered likely that the district supreme court will take advantage of the supreme court's opinion to reopen the proceedings.

Washington, May 16.—Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, president, vice president and secretary of the American Federation of Labor, respectively, stepped from the shadow of the jail yesterday when the supreme court of the United States set aside their sentences of imprisonment for contempt, growing out of the litigation between the Buck Stove & Range Company, of St. Louis, and the federation. The decision has left with the lower court the right to reopen the contempt proceedings, but the case probably is ended.

Civil Contempt.

The basis of the court's opinion was that the proceedings brought against the labor officers was for civil contempt, which could be punished only by the imposition of a fine. The sentence of the lower court to imprisonment was the penalty for criminal contempt, and in the premises, therefore, it was not a legal punishment.

The case, which grew out of the so-called boycott of the stove corporation by the American Federation of Labor three years ago, is one of the greatest importance alike to union labor and to employers. The supreme court holds that the published and spoken utterances of organized labor can be enjoined or attacked legally because organized labor is a combination, and, as

BEEF TRUST OFFICIALS NOW FACE CRIMINAL TRIAL

Chicago, May 13.—J. Ogden Armour and nine other Chicago packers must go to trial on federal indictments charging them with conspiracy to control the price of fresh meat, in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

This was decided by Judge Carpenter, of the United States district court, who overruled a demurrer in which the packers held that the Sherman law failed sufficiently to define the offense it sought to prohibit.

The men, indicted September 12, 1910, and who are affected by the decision are: J. Ogden Armour, president of Armour & Co.; Louis F. Swift, president of Swift & Co.; Edward Swift, vice president of Swift & Co.; Charles H. Swift, director of Swift & Co.; Edward Tilden, president of the National Packing Company; Arthur Meeker, general manager for Armour & Co.; Edward Morris, president of Morris & Co.; Francis A. Fowler, director of Swift & Co.; Thomas J. Connors, superintendent of Armour & Co.; Louis H. Heyman, manager for Morris & Co.

The indictments charged that the packers, controlling the greater part of the meat industry, are divided into three groups—the Armour, Swifts and Morris, and have a combination medium of exchange of price lists and of instructions through the National Packing Company. The indictments also charged that the three groups have an arrangement whereby they would not compete in one another's territory.

In the demurrer to the indictments, the packers held that the Sherman law was too indefinite in defining the elements of the crime to justify the indictments. Judge Carpenter denied this.

"The statute defines the acts declared to be unlawful in simple English," he ruled. "The purpose of the act, when ascertained from the language used, is as clear as may be."

WOMEN OF ATLANTA WIN GREAT VICTORY

Carry $3,000,000 Bond Issue for Improvement of Their City.

Through the efforts of the women of Altanta, Georgia, a sordid political fight has been changed to an earnest movement for civic betterment; still further, the city has been treated to a thorough scrubbing, which is to become a permanent semi-annual institution, impressing the citizens with the advantage and necessity of keeping the streets and premises clean and wholesome. Atlanta with all its enterprise and vigorous growth was subject to the unsanitary conditions that so often accompany rapid development. The sewerage was inadequate. There had been an epidemic of typhoid and over sixty cases of diptheria. The schools, both for white and for colored children, were badly crowded. During the summer months it had been necessary to pitch tents on the lawn of the Henry Grady Hospital to accommodate surplus patients. There were few parks and no play grounds. To raise funds to rectify these conditions the city government, headed by the progressive young mayor, Robert F. Maddox, advocated a three-million-dollar bond issue. This plan was bitterly opposed by those who sought to make political capital out of the administration's alleged "extravagance," with whom were joined many who were not sufficiently informed as to the need for the outlay. In this extremity the mayor, the city council and the chamber of commerce appealed to Mrs. W. Woods White, President of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, to enlist the interest of the women in the campaign. iThe women of Altanta had never taken part in political movements, nor were politics ever discussed at their club meetings; but in this instance the health of the city and the welfare of the children were involved.

Mrs. White issued a call to the sixty-three presidents of the affiliated clubs. Forty-eight, representing charitable associations and institutions, art and literary clubs and the Women's auxiliaries of several labor unions, responded. A central committee, made up of twenty five women representing every element in the federation, was formed, meeting every day to report on what was soon known as "the women's whirlwind campaign." They did not seek votes from men, but members of committees, by personal visits in the districts where improvements were most needed and at a series of women's meetings showed uninformed mothers exactly what was to be done with the money derived from the bond issue, emphasizing the advantages of better sewerage, pure water, new hospital and school facilities and parks and playgrounds, thus dispelling the delusion that the proposed issue would burden the city with a huge debt for the improvement of "the rich man's property." As the women's gatherings multiplied, the meetings of the men changed in spirit. They were no longer mere brawls for office, because the wives were informing their husbands upon the actual issues. Ignorance, prejudice and blind political partizanship were largely overcome; in the last week of the contest, labor organizations which had been fiercely fighting the bond issue were among its strongest supporters, and the campaign resulted in a great victory for the measure.

Yet this was but the beginning. Mrs. White determined that her quickly improvised but solid organization should become a permanent force for civic improvement. After a systematic investigation she called together her ward committees and informed them that "the city clean" came before "the city beautiful." There were dirty streets and back yards to be cleaned and accumulations of garbage to be burned or carted away. So it was decreed that October 26th should be "Cleaning-Up-Day" in Atlanta. Accordingly the following coupon was published in the city papers which gave the movement their generous cooperation.

Atlanta, October, . . 1910.

Dear Madam—Sympathizing with the cleaning-up day program of the women of Atlanta, I promise to have my premises put in good order October 26th, the day agreed upon.

(Signed) . . . . . .
No. . . . . Street.

This coupon was to be signed and mailed pasted on a postal-card or inclosed in an envelope to the chairman of the committee for the signer's ward and a prize of twenty-five dollars was offered the ward having the greatest number of responses; other remiums were offered for the most difficult work. "Cleaning-Up-Day" was enthusiastically observed in all sections of the city and the third prize was won by a band of negro women under the chairman of one of their number. This municipal house-cleaning is to be repeated each October and April; but of even greater importance than the immediate improvement in sanitation is the progressive civic spirit stimulated by an organized body of five thousand earnest club-women.

A good many logging companies and firms throughout the western part of the state are taking advantage of the present unusual dry period to burn their old works on the theory of disposing of these danger spots before the hot season arrives when it would be dangerous to have them catch fire. They state that fire now will consume the loose, dry, fine material which makes the hot blaze, and even if the slash does accidentally catch fire later in the season, it can be much better controlled and prevented from doing damage to standing timber. Fire will not run in the green timber at this time and slahing can consequently be set on fire with comparative safety. The rains which will no doubt fall between now and the dry season will put out any smouldering fire, and if this risk can be eliminated in this manner it would seem to be the wise thing to do.

Another Alaska resource will be developed soon by the opening of a graphite deposit on the Seward peninsula, north of Nome. C. E. Christopherson discovered the graphite, and is planning to erect a plant on Puget Sound for the reduction of the raw material, and the manufacture of various graphite compounds, such as lubricants, paints, etc. Most of the graphite consumed in the United States comes from Ceylon. Importations amount to about 20,000 tons a year. In the manufacture of graphite a particular grade of amber oil is used, and this is produced by the Katalla, Alaska, wells; this oil is soon to be shipped to the market. About twelve barrels of oil are used to each ton of graphite, so a 5,000 ton plant means the utilization of between 50,000 and 60,000 barrels of Alaska oil. This is likely to be the first enterprise to divert the northern petroleum from the California refineries.

Summons by Publication.

No. 2606.

In the Superior Court of the State of Washington, for Clallam county.

Charles Tillman, Plaintiff, vs. H. M. Fisher as administrator of the estate of James Stuckey, Deceased, The Unknown Heirs of the deceased, and B. E. Woods, Defendants.

The State of Washington to the Unknown Heirs of the Deceased, Defendants:

You are hereby summoned to appear within sixty days after the date of the first publication of this summons, to-wit: within sixty days after the 5th day of May, 1911, and defend the above entitled action in the above entitled court, and answer the complaint of the plaintiff, and serve a copy of your answer upon the undersigned attorney for plaintiff, at his office below stated; and in case of your failure so to do judgment will be rendered against you according to the demand of the complaint, which has been filed with the clerk of said court.

The object of said action is to recover judgment against the defendant H. M. Fisher as administrator of the estate of James Stuckey, deceased, and The Unknown Heirs of said James Stuckey, deceased, upon one certain promissory note in the sum of $400, executed and delivered by said James Stuckey on the 7th day of December, 1908, to the plaintiff Charles Tillman; for interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent. per annum from the 7th day of December, 1910, until paid, and for attorney's fees and costs; and to foreclose a certain mortgage made by said James Stuckey to secure the payment of said note, which said mortgage is recorded in Volume 18 of Mortgages, on page 108 of the Records of said Clallam county, and which said mortgage conveys to the plaintiff the lands described as follows:

Lots 15, 16, 17 and 18 in Block 266 of the Government Townsite of Port Angeles, all in the City of Port Angeles, Clallam county, Washington.

And the further object of such action is to foreclose the interest of each and all of the defendants, if any interest they have in said premises, and for a decree declaring such interest junior, inferior and subordinate to plaintiff's mortgage, and that the equity of redemption of each of the defendants be forever barred and foreclosed. And the further object of said action is to obtain a decree for the foreclosure of said mortgage and the sale of the premises to satisfy said judgment.

Dated this 5th day of May, 1911, the day of the first publication hereof.

JAMES STEWART,
Plaintiff's Attorney.

Quilcene, a thriving little town on Hood canal in Jefferson county, has organized a Commercial Club with a membership of fifty. L. D. McArdle, representative from Jefferson, is president. Chimacum, the home of State Senator S. David S. Troy and Wm. Bishop, ex-representative, will also organize a club. The get-together spirit prevades the entire Olympic Peninsula and every Community should organize a Commercial Club, which should become an adjunct to the Olympic Development League.

The present high price of potatoes in Port Angeles would seem to emphasize the fact that potatoes are not grown in sufficient quantities in Clallam county to supply the local demand. Surely potatoes growing on an extensive scale on the logged-off lands of the county would spell a mighty profitable business in view of the prices now being paid for that vegetable all over the Northwest.

A movement is on to start a commercial club at Sequim to work for the interests of the east end of the county.

The committee, E. A. FitzHenry chairman, selected by the Commercial Club to make recommendations regarding the opening up of the Olympic National Monument, which was established by President Roosevelt in 1909, suggests that the Club enlist the aid of all commercial organiations in the state to secure the establishment of a national park, by act of Congress with an appropriation for the building of a road up the Elwha valley. The committee recommends new boundaries, excluding all grazing and farming lands and all merchantable timber, eliminating Hurricane Hill and certain river valleys south for the Olympics. The proposed lines would include 660,000 acres, equal to 1,000 square miles, or 32 miles square, affording ample refuse for game and including all the high peaks.

The Quilcene Fish and Oyster Co, of which S. A. Stevens is the manager, is getting a carload of Eastern two-year-old seed oysters for the company's beds in Quilcene bay. The oysters are now on the road from their native habitat.—Megaphone.

The daily papers of yesterday publish the startling announcement that President Diaz at a meeting of his Cabinet ministers held on the 17th, definitely offered to resign the presidency of Mexico before the end of the present month.

At the regular meeting of the city council Tuesday evening the city clerk was instructed to notify Mr. Morrow to appear before the city council within one month and show cause why railroad franchise granted him should not be revoked.

Organized Boosting Will do Great Good

Organized effort is precisely what is needed in the peninsula section of the state, and the announcement that in all the cities and towns of the ection strong commercial clubs will be organized shows that the people there are keen to their opportunities, says the P.-I.

It would be worse than idle for the people living in the rich territory beween Puget sound and the Pacific ocean to content themselves with mere talk and scattered individual effort. They must organize and act in concert. That is the only way of doing the work they are anxious to do, the only way of solving the problems which must be solved before that portion of the state is fully to enjoy its heritage.

Every community in the counties lying west of Puget sound ought to have a strong commercial organization, an organization composed of the ablest and most substantial and progressive men to be found in these communities; and when each of these communities is provided with such an organization they should all pull together for the same thing, namely, the development of the peninsula counties.

It is not possible to overestimate the good which may be accomplished in this way

Organization will do what the individual cannot do. Of course, individual effort is all right as an aid to organized effort. But the booster organization is the thing, and the people of the peninsula section seem to realize it.

The Joint Fair

"The movement now on foot to hold a joint fair of the different counties of the West Side of Puget Sound, is a step which should receive attention from the country interested," says the Irondale News. "There has in the past been no extensive opportunity such as offered through the county fair for the presenting of the native wealth and possibilities of the West Side. It is something which would be of direct benefit to the entire country, and in no other way can the resources of the land so comprehensively be brought to the general notice than by means of an extensive exhibition of what the country can actually do in the matter of agricultural and manufacturing occupations. The Olympic peninsula is now being placed extensively before the public and its native wealth is great enough to insure a fair of the combined counties which would be attractive enough to bring in a large number of people who are desirous of viewing actual products of the district now being exploited."

Two points are being mentioned as desirable places for holding such a fair, Sequim prairie and Port Townsend. Sequim prairie is the center of the largest agricultural, dairying and fruit raising section of the west side, and is therefore the logical location for a joint fair of the counties of Clallam, Jefferson and Island. It is as easy of access as any other point, and whatever may be said in favor of Port Townsend, is equally true of Sequim. The good people of Sequim should get after the location of this fair with a determination to win.

Professor Mahaffey Dead

The many friends of the former principal of our city schools, Professor Mahaffey, were very much grieved to receive word that he had passed away at his home in Sunnyside, Wash, May 9th. Prof. Mahaffey had not been well for a number of years and tho undergoing two operations, his life was seemingly not prolonged as he was but fifty years of age. Besides a wife, he leaves two sons and two daughters to mourn the loss of an affectionate and indulgent husband and father.

The sympathy of their Port Angeles friends is extended to the family in their sorrow. Prof. Mahaffey was a member of the Masonic lodge and Eastern Star, also of the Methodist church, in which he and his family were always enthusiastic and faithful workers during their lengthy residence in Port Angeles, and where they have many warm friends.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES.

Evangelists Davis and Reed will conduct the following services at the First Methodist church, May 21st. At 11 a. m. Mr. Davis will preach on the subject "A Glorious Church." Prof. Reed will sing one of his popular solos. In the evening the Evangelist will preach on "Excuses." If you want to hear one of the great song leaders, come and listen to Prof. Reed of Tacoma. Stirring scenes are looked for Sunday. Come and enjoy the services.

Angeles Schools Will Give Art Exhibit

During the three days beginning May 31st, the school will give an exhibit of work of the year in the old Muskett store building opposite post office. In connection with the local exhibit there will be on display an exhibition of pictures consisting of carbon photographs and engravings loaned by A. W. Elson & Co. of Boston, Mass. The local exhibit will use the first floor of the building while the Elson exhibit will be on display on second floor. The local exhibit will be free as usual but an admission of ten cents will be charged for the Elson Art Exhibit, the proceeds of which are to be used for purchase of pictures for the schools of the city. The local school exhibit started last year appeared to meet with the approval and hearty endorsement of many of our citizens and an effort will be made to make this exhibit more representative of the work of the school and better in eve y way than before. The object of the Art exhibit in connection with our own local display is two fold:

First, to give people an opportunity to see a collection of the world's famous master pieces of painting, sculpture and architecture.

Second, to make it possible for the public to own a few of these pictures in the schools.

The pictures that will be exhibited will not be for sale, but it will be possible, through the art section, to purchase exact duplicates, and the money raised through private sales of this character will also go toward the fund for purchasing pictures for the public schools. It is now generally recognized among education authorities that education in culture and refinement can easily be aided through the wholesome influence of pictures of the right sort on the school walls. The larger the attendance at the exhibition, the greater number of pictures that can be secured for the schools.

The collection consists in large part of carbon and photogravures made directly from original master pieces, and is selected by art experts.

Fancy Dress Party

Those who failed to attend the children's fancy dress party at the Parish Hall last Friday evening, certainly missed one of the most amusing and enjoyable entertainments of the year. There were about fifty children in fancy costume all unusually well gotten up, and making a very pretty sight as they went so perfectly through the intricacies of the grand march, then the three step and later the heel and toe polka and Virginia reel. Interpersed with the dancing were songs and recitations by the children and the cake walk by Ester Davies, Marion Woodcock, Jerry Wilson and Carl Fisher. This last was certainly fine and literally bro't down the house. The credit of the success of the entertainment is due Miss Angeline Ritchie who had complete charge of the training of the children and giving of the party. She certainly deserves a vote of thanks for the time and patience expended. The proceeds of the entertainment and the home made candy sold netted a nice little sum for the St. Andrew's Guild. Miss Verna Wolverton furnished splendid music at the piano. About twenty prizes were awarded the children.

Mrs. Farmer Entertained

The social event of the week was the large card party at the pleasant Farmer residence on Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. Farmer entertained most charmingly forty ladies at five hundred. The spacious rooms were decorated in trailing vines, with a profusion of flowers in evidence everywhere. The air was sweet with the fragrance of the first full blown roses of the season. In looking over the company one was impressed with the many new comers to Angeles and also with the cordial hospitalty of the hostess. Prizes for the highest scores were awarded to Mrs. Morganroth, sterling silver Port Angeles spoon, and to Mrs. Mathewson a large sterling silver button hook; the consolations went to Mrs. W. B. Webster and Mrs. Wright. A very dainty luncheon was served. Mrs. Farmer was assisted in entertaining by Miss Ada Mathewson and the Misses Bernice and Beatrice Allen.

ICE CREAM SOCIAL.

Don't forget to come out to the big ice cream social given at Lincoln Heights church on Wednesday, the 24th of May. Ladies will serve from 3 p. m. on, during the early part of the evening. Come and bring your friends and enjoy the first ice cream social of the season.

Will Organize Electric Railway

Lutz, named.

Letter read from J. E. Barnes, Vice-Pres. for Washington Western Development Asso., asking that President and Secretary attend the meeting at Portland, May 17, if possible. Upon motion of Mr. Cain it was agreed that if Mr. Seevers would attend the expenses of the trip would be guaranteed.

Note—Mr. Seevers later consented to make the trip but did not want any subscription started to pay his expenses. He would pay his own way.

Mr. Cain, Chr. of special committee to Seattle to see Mr. Morrow and Mr. Wilson, reported as follows: Four of delegation from Angeles present, five each from Irondale and Townsend, and two each from Sequim and Dungeness, nobody from Bremerton. Met with Mr. Morrow at Palace Hotel. Statements he made were not for press and were not really of any great importance. He expected of course to build the road, and would have returned grant if did not. He proposed two outlets which would necessitate building of 136 miles, and was reasonably sure of success. If people would be patient for 90 days he would build road or return grant.

Committee of Messrs. Farmer, Mead and Cain met later with Mr. Wilson of Seattle Com. Club. He did not believe Morrow would build road, and the electric proposition would not interfere anyway. Expected to bring 20 capitalists down here on 27th and organize railway company.

Mr. Wilson moved that we acquiesce in Morrow's request and that we do all in our power to entertain delegation from Com. Club upon arrival, and that delegates be asked from other points on peninsula as requested in Mr. Wilson's letter to Club. Carried.

Committee on data for National Park Roads reported somewhat as to plans and stated that they were not fully prepared. Upon motion the committee was given until 17th to report.

Mr. and. Mrs. E. Beaumont were very happily surprised Monday night, on the occasion of Mr. Beaumont's 67th birthday, by their neighbors at the Filion & Wright's mill, who brought down baskets of refreshments and spent the evening. Here's hoping "Dad" may grow up and live to celebrate his 134th birthday!

The sum of twenty-five dollars was, on motion of Mr. Dustman, appropriated by the city council Tuesday evening for the purpose of cleaning and beautifying Ocean View cemetery. Work to be done prior to Memorial Day.

CHRISTOPHERSON AND LELAND

MEXICAN INSURRECTOS CAN NOW IMPORT ARMS--MORE PEACE TALK

Juarez, Mexico, May 15.—The provisional government of Mexico has made such progress with its organization that it is believed that the state officials of Chihuahua and Sonora will be completely administered by its state and municipal officers within a few days.

The establishment of garrisons in various places in Northern Mexico, the installation of local officials, the opening of all railway and telegraph lines is being accomplished by direction of Provisional President Francisco I. Madero and his cabinet.

Having dissolved their original peace commission of three, the rebels now may conduct their peace negotiations through their newly organized department of foreign relations, of which Dr. Vasquez Gomez is secretary. A gleam of hope for peace is contained in the fact that some rebel leaders have declared they would be willing to accept Gen. Diaz' manifesto as sufficient evidence of his intention to resign and go ahead with peace negotiations, provided the government consented to the immediate appointment of governors for fourteen of the twenty-seven states and a general transfer of power into the hands of the revolutionist party.

What will come of this plan is not known, but it is said to be favored by prominent insurrecto leaders, and with the question of the President's resignation eliminated progress toward peace is certain to be made. On the other hand, some of the insurrecto leaders believe the military successes of the insurerctos soon will include Mexico City, where the provisional government will be moved, and that submission at this time hardly would afford as complete a transfer of political power as surely would fololw military triumph.

It is pointed out that the rebel chiefs in the south would consent to nothing but immediate abdication of Gen. Diaz, yet authentic advices on this point are lacking.

Income Is Due.

The provisional government, by taking possession of the customs house will begin to receive its first income.

Taxes are being levied and tariffs will be exacted as heretofore by the federal government, the funds being used to prosecute the revolution.

The news that arms can now be passed through the American lines was joyously received here and arrangements already are being made for the purchase of much ammunition and artillery.

The insurrectos in the north are well supplied, but those in the south and west are not.

Ban Is Removed.

The United States customs house officials have received word from Washington to pass arms and all classes of articles through to Juarez, and already the war department of the provisional government, of which Venustiano Carranza is secertary, is making preparations for their distribution. Senor Cararnza has been in conference with the military chiefs, arranging for the apportioning of garrisons in various parts of Chihuahua and Sonora, and the movement of the present large force of insurrecto troops in Juarez southward. As the railroad between here and Casas Grandes has been opened, and it will be possible for the insurrectos to convey their men rapidly to any point along the line, they feel in complete control of the situation.

The war department is in constant [illegible]unication by telegraph now with [illegible] chiefs south of here, and [illegible] is entertained that Gen. Ra[illegible] any other federal will be able [illegible]e much headway.

Mexico City, May 1[illegible]—Gen. Diaz will [illegible]ot leave the presidency while the country is in its present state of unrest.

He stands ready to state in more explicit terms than those contained in his recent manifesto, if necessary, his attitude with reference to his retirement. He has demanded to know from his opponents the terms in which they expected him to announce his willingness to resign and it waiting a reply from them.

The President's declaration last Sunday is said to have been made in good faith and with the desire to serve the interests of his country. There was no subterfuge in his declaration. He meant what he said—that he would lay down the reins of government when he could do so without danger of anarchy or chaos following his action.

Jaurez, Mexico, May 15.—Peace negotiations, unofficial but auspicious, have been resumed between the federal government and the insurrectos and the prospects are that a definite understanding would be reached within twenty-four hours.

Rafael Hernandez, the original go-between, when efforts were first made to bring the warring factions together a few months ago, has transmitted propositions looked upon favorably by both sides. Messages were passing back and forth yesterday, but it was not expected that a plan of procedure would be determined upon before some time today.

Diaz Questions.

The propositions are somewhat different from those hitherto considered, though similar in intent.

The question of the resignation of President Diaz, vaguely handled in the Diaz manifesto, it is now felt, was emplified and explained sufficiently by Minister Limantour in an Associated Press dispatch two days ago, and the insurrecto leaders are satisfied.

What they really want and have been wanting for some time, is a guaranty that the reforms they desire would be put into operation, and that they be able to participate in the administration of the republic.

Some Proposals.

To satisfy both these conditions, the propositions now under consideration include an immediate reorganization of the cabinet of President Diaz, probably by a blanket resignation of that body, and the introduction into the new cabinet of four members from the revolutionist party.

President Diaz could remain in power until complete tranquility is restored; the revolutionists have no objections to that. They themselves have nothing personal, they say, against the aged executive and are willing that he retire decorously, permitting a new administration, and a complete change of politics in the republic.

To Name Governors.

To re-enforce the effect of the change in the cabinet, a proposition is under consideration, which, however, will cause little difficulty as it already has been tentatively agreed upon in previous parleys—that is, to allow the revolutionists to name the government of fourteen of the twenty-seven states. This will strengthen the more important guarantees which the revolutionists have been clamoring for. The change in the cabinet, of course, is placed above all other propositions by the rebels, as they consider that a reorganization of that body means a practical overhauling of the federal government.

Armistic Planned.

With the acceptance by the federal government of those propositions, immediate arrangements will be made for a general armistice throughout Mexico. It is true that Provisional President Madero considered sending a large part of his force southward to meet Gen. Rabago, reported to be moving northward on Juarez with about 1,000 federal troops, but as communication along the railroad line which is to convey the troops is now open, orders can be given at any minute for a cessation of hostilities.

Plans Discussed.

Provisional President Madero has discussed with his military advisers, Gen. Villjoen, the Boer war veteran, a plan for mobilizing his troops in Chihuahua, but the possibility of peace was taken into consideration in their discussion.

If peace is declared, the efforts of the provisional government to rehabilitate the state governments in Chihuahua and Sonora will not be in vain, as these are two of the fourteen states where the rebels will be allowed to name governors, and it is believed secrtaries of state also. The provisional government has ordered the reconstruction of telegraph and railroad lines, and in the custom house here the former employes of the federal government had been retained by the new government. Already about $7,000 has been received from import duties.

LUMBER CONSOLIDATION STORY DENIED BY GRIGGS

Tacoma, May 13.—Everett G. Griggs, president of the Pacific Coast Lumber Manufacturers' association, says the announcement of the consolidation of the three large lumber associations of Washington and Oregon is premature, as no action of that kind has been taken. Committees have been discussing the advisability of such a union for several months, he says, but thus far no definite action has been taken.

In his annual report to the association in January President Griggs made the suggestion that the position of general manager should be created and that a practical and experienced man should be appointed to the position. This matter, President Griggs says, is still "in the air" though the suggestion was received with favor. The name of W. C. Miles, formerly at the head of the Globe Lumber Company, whose plant was destroyed by fire, has been mentioned for the place but no appointment is yet made.

Victor H. Beckman, secretary of the Pacific Coast Lumber Manufacturers' Association, has tendered his resignation which was accepted. President Griggs announces the appointment of Thorpe Babcock, for some time secretary of the Lumbermen's information bureau, as secretary of the association and at the same time says Mr. Beckman's long association with the organization as its secretary is highly appreciated.

Mr. Beckman expects to go into business for himself.

Farmers for Reciprocity.

Chicago, May 13.—Members of the executive committee of the Illinois State Farmers' Institute expressed themselves in favor of the proposed reciprocity agreement with Canada at a meeting here.

ASTORIA SOON TO CELEBRATE CENTENNIAL

Astoria, Or., May 15.—An even hundred years ago—April 12, 1811—the good ship Tonquin, owned by John Jacob Astor, sailed into the mouth of the Columbia river, rode over the bar and anchored ten miles up the river in a cove opposite what has now become Astoria. The Tonquin brought the first white man to the great Oregon country, which at that time embraced all the land from which the states of Oregon, Washington and Idaho have since been carved.

It is in celebration of this settlement that the Astoria Centennial was projected. The pageant will be opened with simple ceremonies on August 9th. The public opening will be the following day and the centennial will continue for thirty days, or until September 9th.

The Legislature of the State of Oregon appropriated $50,000 toward the expense of the centennial. Clatsop county made a special tax levy which brought $25,000 additional funds to the committee; Col. John Jacob Astor of New York city donated $10,000 to the cause and the business men of Astoria contributed $50,000. Additional subscriptions from the transportation companies and Portland business men have brought the available sinews of war up to $150,000.

This centennial celebration is the only official exposition on the Pacific Coast this year and offers the following attractions:

Pacific Coast motor speed boat regatta, with $12,000 in cash prizes, lasting one week—September 4th to September 8th, inclusive. The displacement boat championship will also be decided at this regatta, as will supremacy in the fishing craft classes, sail rigged hulls, sculling contests, tub races, canoe races between various Indian tribes of the Northwest and such features as are usual at western regatta tournaments.

Glenn Curtiss will have an aeroplane and a hydro-aeroplane exhibition lasting four days of the third week of the celebration. Mr. Curtiss is under contract to fly over land, seas and rivers, starting from the surface of the Columbia river, running at a speed of at least thirty-five miles an hour down to the mouth of the Columbia river, rising from the water without mechanical aid, circle over the beach to the Gearhart Hotel and return to the starting point, flying in the air overland.

From the opening of the centennial to the close there will be two fleets of battleships in the harbor, one detailed by the United States Government and one from the pick of the British squadron. In addition the South American republics and China and Japan have promised to detail battleships to the scene of the centennial and participate in land and marine pageants.

The Gearhart Hotel has been selected as the scene of the great naval hop which will be given in honor of the officers of the various battleships.

General Finzer, head of the Oregon National Guard, has decided upon Astoria for the scene of the annual summer encampment of the Oregon National Guard during the continuance of the Astoria Centennial.

Officers from the national guard of the various states will be invited to participate in the evolutions and observe the work of the combined national guard and the United States regulars who will be assigned to Astoria for war practice.

Gearhart Beach, the scene of the big coast automobile race meets annually, will be the mecca for the motor car speed experts during the celebration. This meet will be in charge of the Automobile Club of Portland and the Northwest and will be officially sanctioned.

The Oregon Development League has selected Astoria as the meeting place for the annual convention of the 118 cities holding membership in the league.

"Early Days of Astoria, or the Destruction of the Tonquin," is the title of a pyrotechnical display which will be offered as a night feature of entertainment during the centennial.

Eight different conventions will be in session during the centennial celebration, including the school teachers' State Institute, to which national educators have been invited for a week.

Special allegorical floats are being constructed for a series of land parades, which will be different in character each week. These floats will be fully as magnificent as those used at the annual Rose Festival at Portland, and the school children will be drilled to participate in the exercises by the order of the Board of Education.

Specially interesting will be the opportunity for visitors to witness the fishing for salmon at Astoria. There are more than 3,000 salmon fishing craft at Astoria and the salmon fishing season will be open until August 25th, allowing the visitors to see how the mighty salmon is caught and canned. These fish weigh as high as seventy pounds and average about twenty pounds each.

The Governors of the various states will be invited and a number have already accepted invitations to be present on special days set apart for the respective states. With their military staffs they will be royally entertained and add greatly to the social life at the centennial celebration.

CHINESE GRAND COUNCIL REPEALED BY CABINET

Pekin, May 15.—An edict abolishing the grand council and substituting a constitutional cabinet of ten members has been issued.

The cabinet as announced, however, is made up of the present grand councillors with the addition of Liang Tun Yen, the former president of the foreign board, who is now traveling in the United States.

Prince Ching becomes premier and minister of foreign affairs, and Na-Tung and Hsu Shih-Chang are made vice prime ministers. Otherwise the presidents of the various boards become the ministers respectively of their departments.

The change is in line with the demands of the assembly for a constitutional cabinet responsible to that body instead of to the throne, but in what respect the new ministry is made responsible to the assembly has not been promulgated.

Washington, May 15.—With the substitution of the cabinet for the old grand council a long step toward the establishment of a true constitutional government in China has been taken, it is believed by officials here.

It is a part of the plan to make cabinet ministers' tenure depend upon the will of a majority in the constituent assembly.

Since this was one of the principal demands of the liberal element, it is expected that the action of the government will reduce the probabilities of an extension of the insurrection in Kwangtung province.

A cablegram to the state department from Minister Calhoun indicates that, while Prince Ching will continue to supervise the board of foreign affairs, the actual minister for foreign affairs will be Liang Tun Yen.

Tsou Chia Lia will act as head of this department until the new minister, who is now traveling in the United States, returns to China.

GLORY OF THE SEAS TO BECOME FLOATING CANNERY

Seattle, May 15.—The Southeastern Alaska salmon packers next season will have as competitor a modern floating cannery equipped with the latest machinery, which will be shifted up and down the coast, and the catch cleaned, canned and placed in store rooms direct from the nets.

The famous old American ship Glory of the Seas, which was brought to Seattle last week by the tug Tyee from Victoria, B. C., wil lbe sacrificed for the experiment, which will be watched by shipipng men and cannery interests all over the country.

The Glory of the Seas was purchased recently at public sale at Victoria by Frederick C. Johnstone, president of the Tongass Trading Company, of Ketchikan, representing a number of Seattle and Alaska men. Mr. Johnstone is the head of a new company, which will take over the Glory of the Seas and convert her into a modern floating cannery.

It will be possible to shift the vessel from place to place and to always have her where the run is best.

The Glory of the Seas is 240 feet long and forty-four feet beam and it is estimated that there is as much floor space aboard her as in a modern cannery. It is planned to install quarters for the employes on the top deck, canning machinery on the second deck and construct store rooms for the catch in the hold and other parts of the vessel.

AUTO AND MOTORCYCLE OWNERS MUST PAY TAX

Olympia, May 15.—All automobile and motorcycle licenses issued in Washington for the fiscal year 1910-11 expire on May 31, and on June 1 I. M. Howell, secretary of state, will send men into all sections of the country to find owners of machines of all kinds who are operating without licenses. He says that he has found that in many instances owners of cars, particularly motorcyclists, laugh at the man who does pay his license money regularly.

Inasmuch as failure to pay means the assessment of a fine not to exceed $100, the owner who refuses can be taken into court. The law requires all motor vehicles to carry the license number and to be registered. It is expected that numerous arrests will be made.

Farm Value of Wheat Shows Loss.

Washington, May 15.—According to crop reports of the Department of Agriculture, issued recently, the farm value of wheat in Oregon on May 1, was 78 cents per bushel as against 93 cents on May 1, 1910.

In Washington the farm value May 1 was 74 cents as against 88 cents one year ago and in Idaho 70 cents as against 90 cents on May 1, 1910.

Probe Freight Rates.

Washington, May 13.—A comprehensive investigation of alleged unreasonable freight rates on wool, hides and pelts from western points of origin to eastern destinations has been ordered by the interstate commerce commission. The inquiry will affect wool, hide and pelt rates throughout the country.

Second Choice in Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., May 15.—By a vote of 15 to 9 the State Senate passed the McConnell bill, giving voters the opportunity to express a second choice at primary elections. The bill, in a measure, follows out the Oregon plan. The bill already had passed the House.

SUPREME COURT TO HEAR COAL CASES

APPEAL FROM HANFORD RULING ON STRACEY GROUP INDICTMENT DOCKETED.

Fight Over Probably Richest Coal Lands in World Transferred to Highest Court in this Country—Fictitious and Fraudulent Entries Charged in Original Indictment.

Washington, May 13.—The fight over probably the richest coal land in the world was transferred to the Supreme Court of the United States when the Government on Thursday docketed an appeal from the order of the Federal Court of Washington quashing the so-called "Stracey group" indictment.

Judge C. H. Hanford, of the lower court, quashed the indictment on the ground that under his interpretation of the coal land laws applicable to Alaska the indictment had not stated an offense. The appeal from the decision will bring before the Supreme Court the determination of the law under which Alaskan coal land may be entered and sold.

Charles F. Munday Involved.

The appeal involves the indictment against Charles F. Munday, an attorney of Seattle, Wash., and Archie Shields, employed by Algernon Stracey. It does not include that against Algernon Stracey, who was indicted along with Munday and Shields.

It was from the alleged interest of Stracey and his brother, Sir Edward H. Stracey, an English baronet and Liberal member of Parliament, in the land that the name "Stracey group," or "English group," was given to the claims.

Valued at $10,000,000.

The Government charged in the indictment that Munday, Shields and Algernon Stracey entered into a conspiracy to defraud the Government of 6,000 acres of coal land, valued at $10,000,000, just west of the so-called Cunningham coal land claims. The scheme alleged was to induce "by Cunningham persuasion and promises of pecuniary reward and other corrupt means" persons to make fictitious locations and fraudulent entries of the coal lands, ostensibly for the exclusive use of themselves, "but in truth and fact for the use and benefit of the Alaska Development Company and the Alaska Coal & Oil Company."

Seams Sixty Feet Thick.

The land in question is still held by the Government, no patent having been issued to any Alaska coal claimant. Some of the coal seams are said to be sixty feet thick. Nearly 1,000 claims have been filed upon these coal lands, many of them forming the basis for indictments in Spokane, Tacoma, Detroit and Chicago. The present appeal is the first to come to the Supreme Court as a result of the Government proceedings. Action on it may affect the other indictments.

The apepal docketed would not be heard in the regular course of business for nearly two years. The Government, however, is preparing to ask the court to advance the case, and it is probable that it will be argued next October.

GUGGENHEIM SMELTER ON COAST TO HAVE RIVALS

Seattle, May 15.—With millions of dollars in ready money behind it, the United States Smelting, Refining & Mining Company, one of the strongest mining corporations in the world, and the most formidable opponent of the Guggenheims for control of the copper smelting industry in the United States, has quietly invaded the Alaska field, obtained options on a number of properties and is laying plans to build big smelters on the Alaskan coast and on the shores of Puget Sound.

Peace Pact Is Prepared.

Washington, May 15.—The first draft of the proposed arbitration treaty between America and Great Britain practically is complete.

The principal difficulty encountered was in the consideration of matters excepted from the scheme of general arbitration, but it was found that the desired object could be attained satisfactorily by the exchange of notes between the two governments, explanatory of the plan and scope of the treaty, leaving the convention itself very simple in outline.

Want Facts on Seals.

Washington, May 15.—The House, by resolution, has called on the Secretary of Commerce and Labor for all correspondence and records relating to the conduct of the seal fisheries off the Alaskan coast for the last six years. Charges that the seals were slaughtered in a merciless manner last summer are specifically mentioned.

Asks $200,000 for Imperial Valley.

Washington, D. C., May 13.—Congress has been asked for an additional appropriation of probably $200,000 with which to complete the reclamation work in Imperial valley, according to a plan upon which President Taft, Secretary Fisher and Brig. Gen. Marshall (retired), consulting engineer of the interior department, have agreed.

CLEAN HOUSE ALL AT ONCE

Best Way If Family Can Be Banished —Hints on the Spring Ordeal.

"The easiest way to clean house is to do it all at once, turning everything upside down, having all carpets taken up at the same time, all the windows washed in succession, all the paint scrubbed in one piece of work. If the family can be banished, this plan may be followed, but when the ordinary business of the home has to go on, such drastic measures should never be practiced. The house should be cleaned a room at a time, but before going to these make an attack on the closets," says Christine Terhune Herrick in Woman's Home Companion.

"Devote one day to the china closet. Take the china and glass out, put it on a table and scour the shelves. Have a blow-gun and inject insect powder into any cracks or crevices of the shelves as a discouragement to invading insects. Wipe off every piece of tableware before you put it back and discard ruthlessly broken and cracked pieces.

"When you put your china on the shelves use care in its arrangement. Tall pieces should go at the back, and so should piles of saucers and plates. Be careful not to make the piles of plates too tall. Plates of delicate china at the bottom of a stack may be cracked and broken by the weight of the china upon them. Turn the glasses and tumblers upside down.

"Go over the contents of your sideboard, especially the table linen, laying aside such pieces as need mending and are worth it and putting the hopelessly worn objects aside with your store of old linen. Wipe out the sideboard drawers and let them get entirely dry before laying in fresh papers and restoring the linen to its place. Use the insect powder here, too."

THIS MAKES MEAT TENDER

Implement With Cutter Wheels Which, Rolled Over a Steak, Loosen Up the Fibers.

Even the best of butcher shops sometimes have tough meat, and at the other shops it is a toss-up whether you get a good steak or not, unless you are willing to pay fancy prices. A Pennsylvania man has invented an implement for making meat tender that will be found useful in any family, but especially in households that cannot afford to buy the choicest cuts. A handle with a fork to it has a shaft running through the ends of the fork. Revolving on this shaft are a lot of sharp little cutter wheels, with teeth that will bite through sole leather, if necessary. When a steak is found to be too tough, the cook can lay it on the kitchen table before putting it on to be fried or broiled and run this implement back and forth over it until the fibers have been loosened sufficiently to make it tender. There are other devices for this purpose, among them a hammer with sharp projections in the head, but the wheels are said to have the advantage of penetrating all the way through an ordinary steak and doing the work more rapidly.

Improved Cheese Cakes.

Two cups of cheese, one cup of sugar, one-fourth cup of melted butter, one lemon rind and juice, one salt spoon of salt, one-half cup of milk or cream, three eggs beaten separately, then beaten all together well, adding stiff whites last. Line pans with rich pastry. Bake like a custard. This recipe fills a deep squash pie plate. To be eaten cold. Grate nutmeg over the top before baking.

Rice Balls.

Take hot cooked rice, season with salt, pepper and butter, and add very finely minced chives and parsley—a tablespoonful of chives and a teaspoonful of parsley to each cupful of rice. Mix well and form into small balls the size of a walnut and set away to get cold. When ready to use dip each ball in beaten egg, roll in ground peanuts and fry a golden brown in boiling fat. Drain and serve as a garnish to meat or game.

Cranberry Frappe.

One quart of cranberries, two cups of water, two cups sugar, juice of two lemons. Cook cranberries and water for eight minutes. Force through sieve, then add sugar and cook ten minutes. Strain juice of lemon in and cook five minutes longer.

Years of Suffering

Catarrh and Blood Disease—Doctors Failed to Cure.

Miss Mabel F. Dawkins, 1214 Lafayette St., Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "For three years I was troubled with catarrh and blood disease. I tried several doctors and a dozen different remedies, but none of them did me any good. A friend told me of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took two bottles of this medicine and was as well and strong as ever. I feel like a different person and recommend Hood's to any one suffering from catarrh."

DYSPEPSIA

"Having taken your wonderful 'Cascarets' for three months and being entirely cured of stomach catarrh and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to 'Cascarets' for their wonderful composition. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies but without avail, and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year." 100 Years Old — Peters's Eye Salve

Dried Beet Pulp.

Dried beet pulp is a better food than corn silage and a cheaper food than roots. A dried beet pulp ration will produce 10 per cent. more milk than a silage ration. It contains all the milk-making materials of original sugar beets—only the sugar being extracted. It is as palatable and succulent as a vegetable food. Any number of dairymen who are feeding dried beet pulp write us they would not go back to their old silage feed, even if they could get it for nothing. Dried beet pulp loosens up the ration so that it is easily digested. It all comes back to you in the milk pail. It is not a medicine—not a patent food or cureall, not a mixed feed, but a straight natural vegetable so necessary to keep cows in first-class condition.

FARMERS USING MORE CHECKS

Gratifying Information Secured From Government Sources Regarding Banks as Depositories.

From a government source comes the gratifying information that more farmers are using the banks as places for depositing their funds than ever before. This is a marked indication that the farmers are becoming better business men. Incidentally it also indicates that they have more money to put into the banks.

The use of checks in business is not alone a great convenience and a safeguard in the matter of receipts, but tends toward dignity and order. And this we regard as of prime importance, particularly among farmers whose business is too often conducted loosely.

A clear idea as to how little real money is used in a business way can be had from the following figures compiled by the National Monetary commission:

Out of the total retail deposits in five states amounting to $4,894,181, the proportion of checks was 72.8 per cent.; currency, 21.8 per cent., and specie 5.4 per cent. The percentage in each state in the order of the highest ratio of checks was: Nebraska, 78.5 per cent.; Iowa, 75.2 per cent.; Kansas, 74.4 per cent.; Illinois, 70.5 per cent., and Texas, 68.5 per cent. Other states, like North Dakota and South Dakota, show a similar condition of affairs.

Notes of the Sheepfold.

Sheep do not require much shelter except to keep off the rain. I always put my flock up in falling weather except during the summer when it is hot and the rain is a relief to them, says a writer in an exchange.

It is best to leave them out in the coldest weather, except of course at lambing time when they must be sheltered.

Lambs will stand the cold better than any other young animals and there is not much difficulty in saving them if they get full of their mother's milk once.

Not an experiment, but a proved fact Hamlins Wizard Oil has cured numberless cases of painful ills for which we recommend it. We have testimonials as proof.

Contents of Food.

Protein, starch, fat, sugar and fiber are the nutriments that make up foods. Protein is the only one from which muscle and tissue can be made; the others serve to produce heat, energy and fat. Starch and sugar are equal in food value. The fiber in the plant cut green has the same food value as starch—when the plant is mature the fiber becomes largely indigestible, as in starch. Fat serves the same purpose in the animal body as starch; it is more concentrated, having two and one-fourth times as much nutriment in a given weight.

OTTUMWA WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to you for my cure."—Mrs. Harriet E. Wampler, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous medicine, made only from roots and herbs, has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, confidential, and always helpful.

To Restore Fertility.

To restore fertility sow a mixture of oats and peas early in the spring, plow down just before the oats ripen and sow to the acre 15 pounds of crimson clover and a half bushel of oats. Plow again in the first part of October and sow to rye, adding such grass seeds as desired, and in March of the next spring broadcast eight pounds of red clover seed to the acre. If all of the plowing and harrowing are done thoroughly the soil will be in good shape to produce grass. If a dressing of 300 pounds per acre of guano and 25 bushels of wood ashes per acre each year is used, and if this course is pursued for three or four years the fertility of the soil will be restored so it will produce a large yield of corn.

IS WONDROUS PLACE

Famous Mammoth Cave Reveals Some New Wonders.

"Violet City," Discovered in Recent Explorations, Is So Called From Violet Tint of Walls Reflected by Lights of Guides.

Louisville, Ky.—Recent exploration has revealed new wonders in the famous Mammoth cave of Kentucky, among which is a beautiful "Violet City," and it is confidently expected that further exploration now in progress will result in many discoveries of new wonders in this underground world of mystery. The "Violet City" is so called from the beautiful violet tint of the walls reflecting the glimmering light carried by the guides. The bridal altar is another feature which attracts much attention and before it a number of marriages have taken place.

Mammoth cave, which is situated in Edmonson county, Central Kentucky, near Green river, has been one of the world's marvels ever since its discovery in 1809 by a hunter who, according to tradition, pursued a wounded bear into the yawning mouth of the cavern. Since that time it has been the mecca for tourists from all parts of the world.

The early history of the cave is largely concerned with the history of the manufacture of gunpowder. This great industry was inaugurated in Kentucky, early in the nineteenth century, and the War of 1812, with its embargo on foreign commerce, greatly increased the importance of Mammoth cave, as a center whence this all-important product might be produced. Vast quantities of soil, charged with lime nitrate, were found and mined; and Philadelphia and Lexington capitalists controlled the cavern, and its exploration went on with a view to securing, for practical business purposes, its vast mineral wealth. Fortunately, the war with England soon ended, and Mammoth cave was saved.

Echo river is a feature of the cave that especially attracts the scientist. The cave is in five tiers or stories, and at the lowest of these the river is reached. It is about 270 feet below the surface of the earth, and comes no one knows whence, and goes—no one knows where. Only a small portion of the river is accessible to visitors, and that only during the dry season. During the heavy rains of spring and autumn, this mysterious stream fills to the top of the great River Hall, blotting out the Dead Sea and the River Styx, which are parts of this underground stream. It is possible, under favorable conditions, to traverse it for a half mile in the low, flat-bottomed boats, which ply on its surface. The acoustic properties of the walls rising from it, and arching above it, are well-nigh perfect, and its wonderful echoes are an unfailing source of amusement to the merry travelers that cross it, in constant wonder at its teeming horde of sightless fishes, crustaceans, leeches, beetles and crickets. What need of even rudimentary eyes for those creatures, doomed to dwell in perpetual night?

HOW UGLY MEN WIN BEAUTIES

Canadian Lecturer Ascribes Peculiar Choice Often Made by Girls as "Blind Psychic Impulse."

Chicago.—Several Chicagoans have found out why it is that so many beautiful women marry ugly men. They had noticed this fact before, but it awaited the explanation of Dr. H. F. Cameron of McGill university, Canada, who cleared up the mystery in a lecture to the class in sociology at the University of Chicago.

The real reason is what Dr. Cameron describes as "blind psychic impulse." But, he says, in spite of the blindness of said impulse, it often strikes the right trail to a fat bank account, or a lucid, sharp sense of humor, or manners and good breeding, which compensate for the mere physical ugliness of the lucky men.

"Persons like J. P. Morgan and John D. Rockefeller, as well as gentlemen of blue blood," were among those whom Dr. Cameron described in his lecture as having overcome the handicap of slight personal pulchritude in their race for the girls of their choice.

Net profits, $108,975.

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well.

TO BUILD POULTRY HOUSES

Can Be Successfully Constructed of Almost Any Material—Three Important Essentials.

A poultry house can be successfully constructed of almost any material as lumber, brick, stone, adobe, sod or cement and even a dugout will answer very well. Many of our fanciers put too much money into the buildings. All that is necessary is that the houses are warm, properly ventilated and well lighted. The wall does not need to be doubled providing the single one is tightly constructed. With a frame house one thickness of good matched lumber such as drop siding, flooring or shiplap is all that is necessary. It is a good plan to build the outside wall of some of the cheaper materials than matched lumber—such as barn siding with battons—and then lath and plaster on the inside or line it with building paper, preferably tar paper. This makes a warm house, which is somewhat more expensive than a single walled but does not present so good an outside appearance. However, for a good cheap house that presents a good appearance, there is nothing better than the single wall, covered with drop siding.

Suspicious.

Bjenks—How is that lean, unsciissored Bohemian getting on these days?"

Bjarks—Why, they say he is desperately in love with the girl in the laundry and is to be married soon. Something suspicious about it, though.

Bjenks—I should say so. What is a true Bohemian doing around a laundry, anyway?"

Hints for the Hog Raiser.

If the litters begin to run down in number and size the fault is seldom to be found with the boar, but it generally lies with the sow.

More small hogs have probably been marketed in the past two years than ever before during the same time.

When a hog reaches 200 pounds in weight it requires extra good care and an expert feeder to continue to lay on flesh at a profit.

Too many farmers have an aversion to feeding hogs in cold weather because it is an unpleasant job and sell off their herd early and then when the weather becomes good haul their corn to market.

ELWHA

Much credit is due Miss Gilbert for the excellent training evidenced by the school children last Saturday night, in giving the cantata "Goldenhair." The stage setting was beautiful, and with its fairies and forest children, brought to mind the fairyland visions of childhood.

Miss Edith Isbell made a beautiful appearance as the forest queen, and Marion Coventon an ideal "Goldenhair." As for the three bears, they were the marvel and delight of a very appreciative audience.

Quite a number were out from town and surrounding neighborhoods. Our school term being ended, Miss Gilbert, the teacher, will soon leave us, but we all hope to see her again next fall. Mr. Stakemiller and daughters of Port Angeles, Sundayed at the home of Mr. T. Lauridsen.

Mrs. Hansen is having her home papered and newly fitted, in preparation for the summer boarders who will soon be here to enjoy the excellent table, the beauty of Elwha scenery and pleasures of rod and gun.

The Elwha Lumber & Shingle Co. are now running nights too, so as to fill their orders.

Mr. Broughton of Blue Mountain is visiting at Mrs. Campbells, and will take his daughter Dorothy, who has been here the last six months attending school, back with him.

The Miller boys of Port Crescent spent the week end with Sam Lauridsen and took in the entertainment of the E. S. C.

Beautiful Washington. Though we wander away, sooner or later, we feel your call to return.

H. C. Breckenridge received a letter from his son Charles, in Toledo, Ohio, stating that he and his wife and her brother will soon be with us. We will be glad when all deserted houses resound with the owners animated voices.

Dorothy Broughton, who has been with her cousin, Earline Campbell this winter, is home again.

Mr. Fred Machenheimer Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Machenheimer visited with the latter's parents last Sunday. Twenty-seven attended Sunday School. The visitors were Edwin Champion of Fairview and Mr. Lawrence of Texas Valley.

The cemetery board met last Saturday to arrange for bids for clearing more ground.

Grant Critchfield has moved his family from Wildcat Valley to the city where he and Bryon Hedge are running a livery stable.

There is to be a farewell party at Omer Meyer's next Saturday evening.

AN IDEA.

Contributed by a reader of the Leader.

What was I ever born into this world for anyway, was it jest to work, work, work, accumlate wealth, or merely to exist, the same as the animal? Well, my idea s that we were born into this world to make it better and brighter for being in it. We are in debt to the past for the many advantages we have received in the way of knowledge, education, etc. We must work with all our physical and mental powers to leave it better than we found it for our successors, or our life has been a failure, and it were better we had never been born. We must so live, that when we have to leave it, we can with a clear conscience say, Well, I have done my best, my debt to the world is paid, I have paid my Debt not only to the world but my Creator as well. If we do not carry out this idea, then selfishness will predominate and everything will go to the bad. On the other hand, one who gives his or her services to making others happy is a great blessing to the world. Such a one always carries with them an uplift for the unfortunate, down-trodden or oppressed, and usually their joy in so doing is a great reward to them.

A house on the bluff opposite the Baptist church owned by "Auntie Cooper," was destroyed by fire Wednesday morning. It was occupied by the family of James Raycraft, who lost almost everything they had in the house. We understand there was a small insurance on both house and goods.

FOUND DEAD IN SHACK ON BEACH

After Twenty Years of Dissipation, Man of Good Family Dies Friendless and Alone.

Harry Lane, better known here as "Stubby", was found dead in a fishing shack on the beach Saturday morning. His body was taken to the Fulmer undertaking parlors, where it was kept until directions for its disposition were received from his family. It's another case of an early start the wrong way, and liquor getting the best of it. Back in Wisconsin Stubby Lane started life in a good innocent way, his people being well known and respectable, but he fell in with a bad crowd while at college, which finally brought on his suspension. From that time on it was a case of going from bad to worse, spending most of his time gambling, tending bar, and living a dissipated life.

THE ELWHA VALLEY AN IDEAL HOME

Ideal homes in park like beauty,
Greet the eye at every turn.
Farmers with their crops and dairies,
Readily the shekels earn.
Soil, that answers to each calling,
Water sparkling from the mountain spring,
Climate unsurpassed by any country,
And to the cheeks the roses bring,
The Elwha.
Canyon and gorge of marvelous beauty,
Rocks, ferns, and moss of varied hue,
Thru all seasons charm and hold us,
With God's wonders e'er in view,
The Elwha.
Music, in roar of river, mountain echo and lilt of bird,
Song of falls, and sough of wind in tall pines heard,
The Elwha.
Land in plenty for the stranger,
Prospects good for miners too;
Industries of varied nature,
May be succesfully carried thru,
On the Elwha.
Noted for its pretty children
Progressive, harmonious, intelligent club;
If you wish to find the most desirable spot
Free from the world's strife and rub,
The Elwha.
School and club feed brain and thought,
Hotel, grocery and blacksmith supply many wants,
By telephone and U. S. mail are brought

MRS. E. BELL

VINE AND FRONT STS.

THE MANDARIN'S FAN

Mrs. Hoffman was sewing in the deep, cool veranda of the bungalow. Jeremy, her husband, was coming up the path.

"What have you got today, Jeremy?" she asked laughingly as he laid an oblong package on the wicker table.

"Another cumsha (gift), sweetheart," he smiled, clapping his hands at the drowsy punkah boy on the mat.

The great fan swung again into motion as the boy awoke to energy, and a servant brought the inevitable tea tray and tall glasses of iced lemonade

Jeremy Hoffman leaned back in his chair with a sigh of relief. "It has been beastly hot down in the city, Nell. I've been closeted with Sheldon all the afternoon over that tiresome business, and when I returned to my office I found an envoy from Liung Weh, bearing many friendly messages and this gift for you."

IN ANOTHER INSTANT SHE WAS LYING UNCONSCIOUS IN HIS EMBRACE.

Mrs. Hoffman held out her hand for the package. "There, Jeremy! I told you the mandarin entertained the kindliest sentiment toward you. He was perfectly charming and warm in his praise of you."

"I could not help feeling that he suspected my mission. He's a sharp old beggar, and Sheldon has always been very lenient with him. Still, one can't refuse a gift in China."

"Not one like this," said his wife breathlessly. "Look, Jeremy! Is it not beautiful?"

As she spoke she held to view a fan. The sticks were of richly carved ivory covered with lustrous green silk, gay with embroidered flowers in various colors. The fan was connected by a chain of ivory links with a bracelet of the carved ivory.

"How exquisite!" sighed Mrs. Hoffman, slipping the bracelet on her wrist and fanning herself gently with the toy.

Late in the evening she was chatting with that polished Chinese courtier, who, ample of figure, with serene countenance and watchful eyes, was one of several of his countrymen whose gorgeous apparel made splendid dashes of barbaric color among the simpler clad Europeans and Americans at the brilliant public reception.

"I am sure this fan has a history," suggested Nell Hoffman, after she had thanked the dignitary for his gift. "Pray tell it to me."

Liung Weh smiled inscrutably and shook his sleek head. "Madam must contrive her own history for the fan," he said. "Perhaps the mission of madam's husband might form the basis for a romance."

Mrs. Hoffman paled and turned away. A wave of repulsion swept over her, and for a brief instant she was prompted to return the fan to the mandarin, quite reckless of the breach of politeness. The cold, deadly glitter of the little black eyes threatened harm to something—some one—she loved, and Jeremy's mission was a delicate one and dangerous, indeed. Her husband's work might become the theme for a tragedy, never a romance.

At that moment Jeremy Hoffman appeared and carried her away, with parting apologies to the great mandarin.

"You are looking ghastly, Nell. What is the matter? Do you feel ill, dear?"

As he asked the question Jeremy's arm was outstretched to catch his wife's swaying form, and in another instant she was lying unconscious in his embrace.

"Too much dancing—playing too hard—nerves unstrung—verge of prostration," snapped out the wiry little English doctor as he left the Hoffman bungalow in the pale dawn.

Jeremy went back into the sickroom and looked down at the white face on the pillow. He bitterly reproached himself for letting his fragile wife dance her way so merrily into an illness. But they had been married only a brief three months, and his important mission had carried them directly to Shanghai, his sole thought outside of business had been to make her happy and keep her amused, and now if anything happened, if Nell should die, he would leave the cursed country forever, career or no career.

He recollected with a sudden misgiving that his predecessor had thrown over the task because his wife had died—Elwin had returned to America and chucked the service forever.

Several days afterward Nell had rerecovered sufficiently to be brought out into the cool, matted sitting room. Her illness had taken the form of a strange inertia. Hour after hour she would lie with dark lashes fringed against her white cheeks, her bosom scarcely stirring with each feeble breath.

The little English doctor was plainly puzzled. He fetched a clever French physician, and together the two men consulted over the case. The French man went away without offering an opinion, but the next day he came back and ordered Jeremy to take his wife away.

"It is poison—so insidious—so subtile—to linger here is to die. Take her away."

"Where can I take her?" demanded Jeremy, wild with fear and anxiety.

"Anywhere—down to Hongkong if you like. It will be a change."

So Jeremy gave up the bungalow and discharged all the servants, even the faithful old nurse, whom Nell had learned to love. After them he tossed the medicine bottles and pills and powders. If a secret enemy lurked in his household, one whose object was to destroy his beautiful bride, the general clearing out would include him.

The sea voyage and the arrival at the picturesque island, with its delightful points of interest and its charming English population, did Nell Hoffman a world of good. Gradually the apathy left her and her bright spirits returned. The French doctor made a special trip down the coast to see her and pronounced her on the road to recovery.

"Be careful of her," he urged Jeremy. "She is not strong. I cannot determine what drug or how it has been administered, but surely some slow poison has been given to your wife Watch, and take care if you have an enemy."

That very evening they attended a dinner party. Nell lovely in pale green with the mandarin's fan swinging from her wrist. An hour after her arrival Jeremy accompanied her home again, sitting beside her in the carriage, holding her unconscious form in his arms.

This time her illness was of longer duration, and in his distress Jeremy vowed he would return to America immediately upon her recovery. But the recovery was slow, even under the skillful ministrations of the French doctor.

"I told you to take care—to watch!" he hissed impatiently at Hoffman.

"I did, Dr. Davesne," groaned Jeremy, flinging himself into a chair and dropping his head into his hands. "God knows I have protected her. If she recovers sufficiently I will take her home."

There Ralph Elwin found him.

"Sheldon cabled me to come out—said you were in trouble and that I might help you out on the business," said the former as he shook hands with Hoffman.

"The business can go hang!" said Jeremy passionately. "All I care about is to take my wife away from this cursed country. Forgive my temper, Elwin, but you can understand."

Elwin nodded gravely. "I can understand. I waited too long and lost my wife. What is the matter with Mrs. Hoffman? I thought her looking unusually well when you sailed."

Jeremy explained, and Elwin listened with his face in shadow. As he finished, Jeremy picked up the mandarin's fan from the table where he had flung it the night of their return from the dinner party.

"She was looking quite well and fanning herself with this thing, when all at once she just crumpled into a heap," he said.

"Let me see it," said Elwin in a strange voice. He examined the fan with keen intensity, lifting it once to his nose and then hastily withdrawing it.

"Where did she get it?" he asked sharply.

"A gift from Liung Weh. You know, I'm on friendly terms with the old scoundrel, although"—

"Enough! So was I! Liung Weh was lavish in his gifts to us. He gave my wife a fan like this one, and—oh, my God, if I had only known in time!" Elwin's voice rang harshly as he leaped to his feet. "It is impregnated with some cursed poison, Jeremy. Ask Dr. Davesne! Let him examine the fan. If he recognizes the poison he can supply the antidote and cure your wife. As for Liung Weh"—

"But why—why should he attack Nell? Why not me—why"— stammered Jeremy excitedly.

"Liung Weh does not fight in the open, old man. He killed my wife, and it sent me home. He thought to do the same for you and would have done so in the end. Mary was taken ill in the same way, only, being of a weaker constitution, she succumbed to the poison at once. My advice to you, Jeremy, is to take Mrs. Hoffman home as soon as she is sufficiently recovered. Let your career go. You can find plenty to do at home. I will settle with Liung Weh. I will carry this mission through without one concession in his behalf."

"I will stand by you, Elwin, and together we will fight it out," declared Jeremy, clasping the other's hand.

"Nay," said Elwin; "love is greater than fame or revenge or the carriage of justice. Love is greater than all. Guard it carefully, Jeremy, and some day I will return to San Francisco and tell you how the romance of the mandarin's fan turned out to be a tragedy after all."

Port Angeles, Washington.

Another Alaska resource will be eloped soon by the opening of a phite deposit on the Seward peninsula, north of Nome. C. E. Christopherson discovered the graphite, and is planning to erect a plant on Puget Sound for the reduction of the raw material, and the manufacture of various graphite compounds, such as lubricants, paints, etc. Most of the graphite consumed in the United States comes from Ceylon. Importations amount to about 20,000 tons a year. In the manufacture of graphite a particular grade of amber oil is used, and this is produced by the Katalla, Alaska, wells; this oil is soon to be shipped to the market. About twelve barrels of oil are used to each ton of graphite, so a 5,000 ton plant means the utilization of between 50,000 and 60,000 barrels of Alaska oil. This is likely to be the first enterprise to divert the northern petroleum from the California refineries.

SUMMONS.

In the Superior Court of the State of Washington, for Clallam County.
James M. Lakin, Plaintiff, vs. Felda Lakin, Defendant.
The State of Washington to the said Felda Lakin, defendant.
