ELECTRIC LINE IS SOLUTION OF OUR DIFFICULTIES

Seattle People See in Electric Railroad Only Hope in Forestalling Portland and Preventing Annexation of Empire by Oregon City.

At the meeting of the delegation of business men and engineers representing the Seattle Commercial Club with the local club Saturday evening, Secretary Wilson of the Seattle Commercial Club was called upon to outline the plans of the delegation. He and others of Seattle had become convinced that the great trunk lines of the country are planning to build a joint line into the west end of Clallam and Jefferson counties from the south, and stopping there to take the wealth of that section out to the Gray's Harbor country. Naturally this does not look good to Seattle. The purpose of the visit of the Seattle delegation at this time is to interest the people of the peninsula in an electric line as above mentioned, believing it the most important common task in which we can engage at this time for the advancement of the peninsula country on the north, which is of necessity by reason of its location tributary to and a valuable asset to Seattle. If the people of the peninsula take sufficient interest in the matter the delegation and their friends with the assistance of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, the Seattle Commercial Club and the Seattle papers will endeavor to have the business men of Seattle see to it that this line is built. As a means to that end would suggest that a committee of 3 be named whose duty it will be to select a committee of 21, 14 from Peninsula and 7 from Seattle, or about that proportion, to take up plan of organization and procedure.

Mr. Aldwell was called on, and stated that he was glad to see Seattle down here on a mission of this nature. It is refreshing from the fact that the greatest obstacle we have had to overcome in the past and some of the present is the remarks the people of Seattle make of this section to people contemplating coming down here. As an illustration the representatives of the eastern bonding house which took all the bonds of the Olympic Power Co. on their recent trip out here, arrived in Seattle two days ahead of him, and when he arrived to bring them down to Angeles they had been discouraged to such an extent that the only reason they came was because they were so close at hand. They were delighted after visiting this section, of course, so much so that one of them took $700,000 of stock and the other $100,000.

They represent much capital and went away believing Seattle very ignorant or very shortsighted, for talking the way they were talked to of what they now know to be one of the greatest countries in the world. We can build this road, said Mr. Aldwell, with assistance promised, and it is needless to say we will do all in our power.

President Seevers here spoke of the future, stating that he firmly believed the next ten years would show a far greater development on the peninsula than the past twenty years. With the opening of the Panama Canal, the great exposition at San Francisco, the great railroad building throughout the state, we must get our share. He believes we were on the right track with the electric line, it would prove a great development and would bring the steam road that much sooner.

THE OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY

Significant Ceremonial By Lessons and Influence Nurtures Patriotism, Heroism and the Love of Friends.

Another Springtime with its reviving life in nature has brought with it the season of flowers and a renewal of our obligation to the memory of of our dear departed friends, and especially to the memory of those brave boys who gave up their lives in the holy cause of their country. As the years go by and the war becomes more and more a memory, and the active participants pass from the field of action, Memorial Day is being more and more generally observed by all our people—in the beautifying of the silent homes of the dead, in caring for each individual resting place of a dear departed friend. Thus will the beautiful custom brought out to its fullest by the Grand Army of the Republic in the observance of Memorial Day be perpetuated long after the men who took an active part in the great conflict have passed away. Let the graceful and significant ceremonial send its impression, its lessons, its influence, from the graves of the dead to the souls of the living, and nurture patriotism, heroism, and love of friends in those who are our country's present trust and future hope. The observance of Memorial Day in Port Angeles last Tuesday was observed in a more quiet way than usual. While Pacific Post did not form in parade—the men of '61 and '65 are getting too infirm for that—the day was generally observed, nevertheless, and Ocean View Cemetery, where rest the soldier dead, was never more beautiful with flags and flowers.

Detachments of the Post and Corps went out early in the morning and the grave of every old soldier in the grounds was decorated with flags and flowers.

The beautiful and impressive ceremony of casting flowers upon the waters of the bay in memory of the sailor dead was carried out by members of the Relief Corps during the forenoon.

The government life saving tug, Snohomish, fired a salute during the noon hour.

Members of the Grand Army Post, Women's Relief Corps, and a large number of their friends assembled at Post headquarters, corner Lincoln and Fifth streets, at 2:30 p. m. and listened to one of the best Memorial Day addresses ever delivered in the city, the speaker being Rev. Stephen Smith, pastor of the First Congregational Church.

The platform was profusely decorated with flags, bunting and beautiful flowers. The standards of the Relief Corps were placed beside the speaker's desk, and Old Glory was draped gracefully around a large picture of the immortal Lincoln. The effect was very pleasing.

The exercises were opened by Post Commander R. R. Harding and the memorial service of the Grand Army read. Music furnished by a special choir, patriotic selections being sung.

The chief thought of the speaker was True Patriotism. He recited in a vivid way how the young men of the nation responded to the call at arms during the dark days of the rebellion, as well as at the time of the Cuban War. We were a united nation now. There was no North, no South. The animositiesbegotten of the civil strife have vanished. The men of the '60s who battled for the Union, marched side by side with the men of the South in 1898 against the common foreigner foe, and today finds the people of the section which attempted secession as loyal to the Union, the constitution and the laws as the people of the North. The sentiment for universal peace was significant, America, as always, takes the lead. May she never more need such service. May wars cease, and "Battle flags be furled in the Parliament of man, the federation of the world."

A monument had been temporarily erected in front of the hall, and at the close of the service, the ceremony of decorating the same with floral emblems was observed by the Relief Corps.

MEMORIAL SUNDAY.

A large audience greeted the Grand Army and the ladies of the Corps at the Sunday Memorial services held at the Methodist church, Sunday. The sanctuary of the church was tastefully decorated with flags, beautiful flowers and greenery, presenting a pleasing appearance. The choir of the church rendered some excellent music. A class of small girls very sweetly sang, "Just Before the Battle, Mother." Mrs. M. J. Wright sang with much spirit and pleasing effect, "Sweet Peace the Gift of God's Love." The Pastor, Rev. M. B. Phillips, preached the Memorial sermon. His address was replete with excellent thought. Paul said, "For I bear on my body the marks of the Lord Jesus". Many of the surviving soldiers of the Civil War carried marks of the battlefield or suffered from the hardships, fatigue and exposure incident to war. One was engaged in warfare for the spiritual body, the other for the material body—the preservation of the Union of States. The speaker gave apt illusions to the causes which brought on the conflict at arms between the North and South, the result a priceless gift to the nation—now advanced to the first great power of the world. He paid a high tribute to President Lincoln and the armies of the Union. The address was well received. With the close came a song from the choir and the benediction. Twenty-two veterans of the Civil War attended services and occupied front seats.

WOODMEN ADOPTION MARKS AN EPOCH

In Annals of Local Lodge. Thirty-six New Members. Total Membership 134.

Camp No. 6043, Modern Woodmen of America, took on new life last Saturday when a class of thirty-six was adopted into the mysteries of Woodcraft. The adoption of the class marks an epoch in the annals of the local organization, of which the order may well be proud, and more especially so since the personnel of the class adopted was made up of the very best citizenship of the community, young active men in all walks of life. Much credit is due Mr. J. D. Reeves, district-deputy, who together with Clerk C. E. Shields, Aug. Swanson, Herman Malchau, W. F. Martin, H. A. Critchfield, and one or two others, made possible the complete success of the occasion.

The Ballard crack drill team of seventeen members, uniformed, and officers of the state oganization, who had charge of the adoption exercises, arrived on the morning steamer and were immediately escorted by the local camp, led by the band to camp headquarters where an informal reception was held. During the early afternoon the visiting delegations were taken for an auto ride to the Elwha canyon for the purpose of sight seeing. All expressed amazement at the work done at the Olympic Power Co.'s plant and at the magnitude of the enterprise.

The line of the parade, formed on Front street at 4:30 p. m., headed by the Port Angeles Marine Band and the Ballard team, was an inspiring one, fully one hundred Woodmen being in line. The march was made up Front street to Lincoln, down Front to Laurel, when an exhibition drill was given by the Ballard team in front of the opera house.

The evolutions of the team were given with military precision and witnessed by hundreds of our citizens from both town and country, who occupied every possible vantage spot. The work of the team was an inspiration to our people and well received,

ART EXHIBIT IS WELL ATTENDED

Purpose of Exhibit to Bring Before Public the Work that Patrons May Criticise or Appreciate.

The School Art Exhibit opened Wednesday. The Junior and Freshmen classes of the High School were in charge of the school exhibit for the day and a committee of ladies of the Literary Society, consisting of Mrs. Hickok, Mrs. LaFlower, and Mrs. Lovejoy, had charge of the art exhibit. The local school exhibit consists of work done by the pupils of the public schools. Aside from the shop work in manual training the display represents work done in the grades, and the grade work, excepting the state eighth grade examination papers, represents the manual arts department under the supervision of Miss Thomas and Mr. Singer. In the manual training department the pupils of the first year high school are making small pieces of furniture and simple mechanical drawings, while in the second year and the last half of the first they have pattern and turn lathe work. The lathe work has been added this year. The pupils doing the second year mechanical drawing do work from real objects. The boys from the fifth to eighth grade have coping saw work and advanced sloyd, while the girls of the same grades do sewing. The boys and girls below the fifth are weaving, paper cutting, card sewing, and constructing other small pieces of hand work. This

WAR WAS WAGED ON WEEDS SATURDAY

Ladies Auxiliary Made Day Occasion for General Cleaning Up; Work Continued Tomorrow.

War was waged on the obnoxious weeds in many parts of our city last Saturday and some splendid work done by both women and children. Lincoln Heights is not so badly infested with thistles as most parts of our city, so the day was mostly observed as a general clean up day. In the district of which Mrs. LaFlower is chairman their energy was expended in clearing the land for a small neighborhood park which will be quite an addition to the looks of the locality as well as a pleasure ground for old and young all summer.

On Pine Hill, the chairman, Mrs. Hickok, seemed to get everyone properly enthused and they certainly made a great improvement in the looks of their streets. Over forty workers enjoyed a picnic dinner on the Hickok lawn.

There was no chairman for Valley street, one of the very worst infested parts of the city for thistles, but a walk through there Sunday showed that some work had been done, and we hope to see more as this is certainly one of the prettiest parts of our town in summer.

Between Valley street and Laurel, Mrs. Frank Fisher and her little army of workers fought the weeds all morning and then enjoyed a splendid picnic dinner on her pretty lawn at noon. The chairman be-

UNITED STATES TROOPS TO REMAIN ON BORDER.

Washington, May 27.—Aside from hastening a change in the command of the maneuver division, the restoration of peace in Mexico will have no effect on the military forces now in Texas. It was deemed prudent to keep Gen. Carter in charge of the division as long as conditions in Mexico were delicate, but he will soon be succeeded by Gen. Fred D. Grant, in execution of the original policy of rotation in the commanding officer. The division itself, however, will remain in Texas at least until next winter for military training.

$25,000 to Probe Steel Trust.

Washington, May 27.—The house yesterday authorized $25,000 for the expenses of the steel trust investigating committee. The committee will begin open hearings by interrogations of John W. Gates regarding the absorption of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company by the United States Steel Corporation.

EIGHT HOURS ONLY FOR "HELLO" GIRLS.

Olympia, May 27.—Under a ruling made by Stephen V. Carey, assistant attorney general, telephone operators come under the provisions of the new woman's eight-hour law.

He holds that a telephone exchange is a mechanical establishment in the broad sense of the term and that therefore the girls employed come under the provisions of the law.

The opinion was given to the state railroad commission, as telephone companies are now under their jurisdiction.

Company to Seek Treasure.

Olympia, May 27.—William J. Four Millions for Water Power.

Spokane, Wash., May 27.—Four million dollars will be expended by the Washington Water Power Company, Spokane, in building its electric power plant at Long Lake, twenty-three miles north of this city, where four turbines, with a maximum capacity of 90,000 horse power, are to be installed, according to W. A. White of New York, chairman of the finance committee. More than $17,000,000 already has been invested in the street railway, lighting and power systems.

CARNEGIE STEEL COMPANY MEETS REPUBLIC PRICE CUT.

New York, May 27.—The cut in the price of steel bars announced by the Republic Iron & Steel Company will be met, it is reported, by the Carnegie Steel Company. The chief subsidiary of the Steel corporation is said to have lowered its price on steel bars to $125 per hundred, at Pittsburg.

The action of the Republic Iron & Steel Company is said in Wall street to mean an open market in all steel products even to the lowering of prices on steel rails which have been selling at $28 per ton since 1901.

It was unofficially reported that the Republic Iron & Steel Company has reduced its prices on beams and other forms of structural steel $3 a ton.

PRESIDENT DIAZ RESIGNS AND LEAVES CITY OF MEXICO---HIS TRAIN ATTACKED

Mexico City, May 27.—President Diaz, in a letter read by the president of the chamber of deputies Thursday afternoon, resigned the presidency of the republic of Mexico, and at 4:54 p. m. the acceptance of the resignation by the deputies was announced.

Every one had expected an uproar and demonstration when the announcement should be made, but within the chamber the words announcing the event were followed by silence. The deputies seemed awed by what had taken place.

Crowds Cheer News.

In the streets, however, black with people, every road leading to the hall was blocked, and news that Diaz was at last no more the president was the signal for wild shouting and manifestations.

There was no violence or destruction of property.

Gen. Diaz's last day as president saw thousands of dollars' worth of property wrecked and the dead and wounded strewing the park in front of the national palace. Under Francisco De La Barra, as provisional president, there were no assaults, no shootings and no wrecking of buildings. For the first time in thirty years the people were expressing themselves without restraint, but it is not too much to state that there was less disorder than on an election night in almost any American city.

Anarchy Not Seen.

Americans who have watched the situation with unprejudiced eye said that the Mexican people have shown themselves able to change their government without that anarchy which was held out as a bugaboo by the government which sought to retain its power.

The people have accepted De La Barra as their provisional president with every indication that they will, as a mass, stand back of him until an election can be held. If the unanimous sentiment holds good, that election will place Francisco I. Madero in the presidential chair.

The resignation of Diaz and his cabinet marks the complete triumph of the revolution.

Diaz's Health Improving.

Maderistas declare with profound conviction that the ability of the Mexican people to govern themselves has been proved. They were weighed in the scales and not found wanting.

Marked improvement was shown in Gen. Diaz's health, according to a recent official statement. He had virtually no fever and was able to walk about in his home.

On the motion to accept the president's resignation 167 deputies voted aye, while two of them did not express themselves. They were Benito Juarez, a descendant of President Juarez, and Concepion Del Valle. As their names were called other legislators arose and bowed their affirmation.

In similar fashion the resignation of Vice-President Corral, now in France, was unanimously accepted, and similarly Francisco Leon De La Barra, late ambassador to Washington, was chosen provisional president. The latter will take the oath of office at noon, in the yellow parlor of the national palace.

Mexico City, May 27.—Porfirio Diaz, to whom, during thirty years, all Mexico has paid deference, secretly left the capital at 2 o'clock Friday morning. Only a few friends, whom he trusted, followed him to the station. He was bound for Vera Cruz to take ship for Spain.

In the distance he could hear the voices of enthusiastic celebrants who were acclaiming the new president, Francisco De La Barra, and shouting "Viva Madero."

Feared Marauding Bands.

So carefully were the arrangements made for his departure that details could not be confirmed until the afternoon. Secrecy was due less to apprehension of a popular outburst here than to a desire that he reach Vera Cruz without the fact being known to marauding bands along the route.

Gen. Diaz undoubtedly will make his home in Spain, probably at Madrid. During the recent centennial King Alfonso conferred a title upon him and made him an honorary general in the army. Senora Diaz was made a lady-in-waiting to the Spanish queen. Gen. Diaz speaks only Spanish, and outside of Mexico he would find the most congenial surroundings in Spain.

Inauguration Cermony Brief.

The inauguration of De La Barra as provisional president was a very brief affair, occupying ten minutes. To spectators it seemed that he had scarcely moved down Avenida Cinco de Mayo with his escort before he was on his way back to the national palace, his carriage smothered with flowers.

The oath was administered by the president of the chamber of deputies

Vera Cruz, May 27.—While escorting ex-President Diaz from the Mexican capital to Vera Cruz yesterday the federal troops engaged a large force of rebels. The troops were successful in beating off the insurrectos, who lost thirty killed, their standards and a box containing 1,000 pesos. Gen. Diaz left the train and gave orders to his soldiers during the battle.

Federals Lose Three Men.

The federal troops, 300 strong, registered three men wounded, one probably fatally. Gen Diaz and his son, Col. Diaz, on arriving at the scene of the engagement, descended from their car and took part in the fray. The ex-president experienced some difficulty in preventing his troops from pursuing the revolutionists.

The Presidential Party.

Gen. Diaz's party, consisting of Mrs. Diaz, Col. Porfirio Diaz and the latter's family, left Mexico City on a special train composed of three sections. The first section carried the Eleventh regiment of infantry, the presidential party was in the second section, which was followed closely by a third, also carrying troops.

The general was received here with the greatest respect. He plans to leave Vera Cruz on board the Hamburg-American steamship Ypiranga, which sails for Europe May 31. No definite arrangements have been made regarding his future.

MANY INVESTIGATIONS KEEPING CONGRESS BUSY

Washington, May 28.—Investigations of the steel and sugar trusts and the expenditures and methods of governments will occupy the committee of the house of representatives early this week. The Democratic wool tariff bill is promised for Friday, and the house will hold no important session until then. The investigating committee will have opportunity to push important inquiries.

The Lorimer case probably will come to a vote in the senate Monday as to the method to be adopted in making another investigation. The La Follette resolution to name a special committee, and the Martin and Dillingham substitutes leaving the inquiry to the regular committee on privileges and elections are before that body.

Steel Trust Up.

The steel trust investigation will be resumed Tuesday, Chairman E. H. Gary of the United States Steel Corporation board being among those summoned. The sugar trust committee will meet Thursday.

At the house end of the capitol there will be no general rally of Democrats until Thursday, when the wool tariff measure will come up before the Democratic caucus. This is expected to be the beginning of a hard fight on the revision of the wool schedule.

While there is much free wool sentiment among house Democrats, the party leaders are confident the revenue bill, drafted by the ways and means committee, will be ratified by the caucus.

Taft Hopeful.

President Taft is reported hopeful that a majority of the senate can now be rallied to adopt the Canadian agreement as it came from the house, but when that hope in the form of a majority will get an opportunity to assert itself is as uncertain as the length of the present session.

The Democratic house leaders plainly are troubled over the doubtful situation in the senate. Speaker Clark has declared, however, that while he does not like the hot weather in Washington, there must be a vote in the senate on reciprocity if congress has to "sizzle" through burning suns until snow flies.

As to the senate's action on the farmers' free list bill, popular election of senators, reapportionment, statehood for Arizona and New Mexico, and wool tariff revision, the Democrats are believed to be not so insistent. There is an assurance now that the popular election of senators measure will be disposed of in the senate June 12th, the date fixed for a vote.

CHARGED BURNS SENT MISLEADING DISPATCH

Washington, May 29.—A charge that Detective William Burns had sent a false misleading telegram to the governor of California in order to obtain extradition papers for John J. McNamara was made by Leo M. Rappaport, an attorney of Indianapolis, before the house rules committee at a hearing on the Berger resolution for an investigation of McNamara's arrest.

Burns in the telegram to Governor Johnson, Rappaport declared, had informed the governor that McNamara was in custody at Indianapolis on a charge of murder in connection with the Los Angeles Times explosion one week before McNamara was under arrest. To obtain extradition papers valid in Indiana, the attorney explained, it is essential that the man to be returned must be under arrest.

Hop Prices Boosted.

Portland, May 27.—The market for new crop hops has been suddenly lifted 3 cents a pound. Julius Wolf, of Silverton, made a contract with Mishler and Gribble, of Aurora, for the delivery of 20,000 pounds of 1911's at 25 cents a pound. Dealers have been offering 22 cents for a week, but finding the efforts futile, Wolf raised his bid to 25 cents. The demand for spot hops was strong.

SAID LORIMER MAY RESIGN TO PROTECT FRIENDS.

Washington, May 27.—After devoting pratically the entire session to discussion of the proposed reinvestigation of the election of Senator Lorimer, the senate adjourned without action, determined to proceed again with the question at its next sitting, Monday.

Senator La Follette concluded his four-day speech and announced that when the voting stage is reached, he will so change his resolution as to provide that the senate shall elect an investigating committee of five from among the new members.

Issue Is Joined.

Senator Borah supported the La Follette proposition and Senators Bailey and Dillingham opposed it. Mr. La Follette said he had been influenced to introduce his resolution for a special committee of inquiry by following the Illinois investigation. New investigators had been provided for because he believed the investigation should go to a committee not handicapped by a previous decision. The next investigating committee, he felt, must have the confidence of the people, which he did not believe the old standing committee on privileges and elections would have.

Want Investigation.

Mr. Bailey said all the Democratic senators desired a new investigation, he himself favoring it because of discovery of new evidence. He said the public sentiment against Lorimer was not well founded, because it had been shaped by newspaper expression, rather than by reading of the testimony.

In the cloak rooms of the senate there was much discussion of a persistent rumor that Senator Lorimer might resign before the new inquiry is actually authorized, to protect his friends from the attacks of those seeking to unseat him.

Neither his colleague, Senator Cullom, nor any of the members of the Illinois delegation in the house would admit they had any knowlege of such an intention on the part of Mr. Lorimer.

PRELIMINARY SURVEY FOR NEW CROSS-CANADA LINE.

Spokane, Wash., May 29.—Preliminary survey work will be soon started on another railroad across the Dominion of Canada, with branches to junction points with other roads in the United States, according to private advices received in Spokane today from Glasgow, Scotland. Back of the project is a Scotch syndicate, which purposes to build a line from Fort Churchill, on Hudson Bay, to Port Simpson, B. C., on the Pacific coast, with branches south to Winnipeg, Man., Regina, Sask., Edmonton and Calgary, Alta., and points in the northern tier of states. One of the advantages in competing for traffic between Asia and European ports is that the main line, approximately 600 miles north of the international boundary, would be from 1,600 to 1,700 miles shorter than either the Canadian Pacific, the Grand Trunk Pacific or the projected Canadian Northern road, between the two coasts. The tentative route is through a region believed to be heavily mineralized, including petroleum, oil and asphalt fields, and valuable fur reserves and commercial fishing grounds.

WISCONSIN AS LEADER IN SOLVING PROBLEMS.

New York, May 29. — Theodore Roosevelt has an article on "Wisconsin: An Object Lesson for the Rest of the Union," in the Outlook, in which he says in part:

"We can now at least in many cases look for leadership to Wisconsin when we desire to try to solve the great social and industrial problems of the present and future, instead of being forced always to look abroad. It is noteworthy that in Wisconsin, when one speaks of such leadership, it is possible to include therein the student, as well as the political leader. In no other state in the Union has any university whatever done the work for the community that has been done in Wisconsin by the University of Wisconsin.

"It is only in Wisconsin, so far as I know, that a really serious and thorough effort is being made to find out how to frame measures which shall give the people effective control over the big corporations without going into wild extravagances; and in this effort, politician and student have joined hands.

"After my visit I felt like congratulating Wisconsin upon what it had done and was doing; and I felt much more like congratulating the country as a whole because it has, in the state of Wisconsin, a pioneer blazing the way along which we Americans must make our civic and industrial advance during the next few decades."

WOULD SHUT OFF THE SINEWS

MEMBER OF HAGUE TRIBUNAL HAS PLAN TO FORWARD PEACE.

Oscar Straus Proposes to Make It Unlawful for Citizens of Neutral Nations to Supply Money or War Materials to Belligerents—Mohonk Conference Commends Arbitration Treaties.

Mohonk Lake, N. Y., May 27.—The representatives of fifty-one commercial organizations attending the one hundred and seventeenth annual meeting of the Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration sent telegrams to President Taft and Senator Cullom, chairman of the Senate committee on foreign relations, saying they "heartily endorse treaties of unlimited arbitration with Great Britain, France and other countries and wish speedy success with such treaties."

Oscar S. Straus, member of The Hague court and former ambassador to Turkey, addressed the conference on "business and international arbitration."

Straus said that American diplomacy had always encouraged unhampered commerce and effective neutrality and he urged the importance of adhering strictly to that policy. A great step forward he declared would be to make it unlawful for neutral nations or their subjects to issue war loans or sell munitions of war to belligerent powers. In part he said:

"The American policy which was so felicitously characterized by Secretary Hay as that of the 'Monroe Doctrine and the Golden Rule,' is an international policy of the highest equity and justice and it should ever be our vigilant care that these two parallel purposes of our national policy in foreign affairs should not be so construed as to become incompatible in guarding our continental interests and our peaceful relations with the nations of the world."

Declaring that now it is entirely lawful for the subjects of neutrals to supply belligerents with arms and money, Mr Straus said:

"The fact that such loans can be legally contracted, not only makes war possible when otherwise either or both belligerents would be prevented by economic necessities from begining a war, or when begun, from prolonging it.

"It requires no argument to prove such acts are against the fundamental principles of real neutrality and no more practical work can be undertaken in the promotion of peace than to hasten the day when such contraband commerce and loans will no longer be considered lawful."

SENATE INQUIRES INTO OPPOSITION ON RECIPROCITY.

Washington, May 29.—John H. Allen and Whidden Graham, of the firm of Allen & Graham, New York, have been summoned by the senate finance committe to appear next Monday to produce the literature which they had issued in opposition to the Canadian reciprocity bill, and to substantiate the claim made in their behalf by the National Grange that their activities were made in the capacity af lawyers for the farmers.

The inquiry also was arranged for the purpose of ascertaining whether the members of this firm had been engaged to "manufacture opposition" to the Canadian bill.

"This firm is not composed of licensed or practicing lawyers," Senator Stone said, "but what, to put it mildly, are called 'promoters,' such as are frequently employed to push along certain matters of legislation. They are not attorneys in the sense that I understand Mr. Hull to mean."

Senator Gallinger, whose frank, it is said, was used by Allen & Graham to send out some of the reciprocity matter to Grangers, said that people had a right to object to the bill, and he himself had sent a number of letters opposing it. He said that N. J. Batchelder, president of the National Grange, be informed of the committee's action, as he might wish to attend the hearing on Monday. He read a telegram wherein Mr. Batchelder said that Allen and Graham had been acting for the legislative committee of the Grange in the work they had done.

Chicago, May 27.—Supported by united delegations from the Pacific coast and middle west, Maj. Everett G. Hines of Chicago.

FRIDAY, JUNE 2, 1911

Deep interest is being taken in the coming quarterly meeting of Southwestern Washington Development Association, to be held at Chehalis in June. Port Angeles will undoubtedly send a good delegation.

The second farmer's day celebration of Jefferson county will be held on Saturday, tomorrow, June 3rd. These celebrations are conducted under the direction of the business men and residents of Irondale, and give the people from the country an opportunity to come in and meet in a social way the people of the town which is the natural market for their products. A gathering of this nature would not hurt the business interests of Port Angeles.

The Prosperity Edition of the Aberdeen World, giving a comprehensive review of the growth and progress of the wonderfully rich and remarkable district of Grays Harbor, is a credit to its publishers. The importance of the Harbor as a shipping point is being emphasized everywhere throughout the Northwest. It will be enhanced by the Prosperity Edition of the World, and by the completion of the Panama canal.

THE WOODMEN ADOPTION

as evidenced by the frequent applause. The adoption exercises, which were necessarily of a private nature, were in the opera house, lasting from 6 to 9:30 p. m. The banquet at Hotel Angeles followed, Mine Host Kerkes fully sustaining the former reputation of this well known hostelry in serving to please the most fastidious.

The grand ball at the opera house later in the evening was a brilliant affair and a pronounced success, fully 300 people, Woodmen, their wives, daughters and sweethearts participating. Altogether the day was one long to be remembered by members of the organization.

The visiting guests from Seattle, Ballard and other points were unstinted in their words of praise and appreciation of the way they were entertained by the local camp and our citizens generally while in the city, and pronounced the occasion an unqualified success from every point of view. The addition of thirty-six new members, increasing the membership to 134 to date, with several other applicants, places the local camp on a solid basis financially. The amount of life insurance represented by the new membership is about $70,000. The age limit of the order is 45 years. Only healthy, able bodied men are admitted. It is worthy of note that there has been but one death in the local camp since its organization twelve years ago.

The stockholders of the Jefferson County Fair Assn., which has held an annual fair at Quilcene for the past nine years, have voted to yield to Port Townsend, where a bunch of energetic men propose to continue the work of thus advertising the products and resources of the county.

ELECTRIC LINE IS SOLUTION

Senator Troy, manager of the Glendale Creameries, was next called for. We have thousands of acres of lands in this and Jefferson counties along the proposed line of this electric road, and if it is built as suggested we will find that it is one of the greatest developers possible. It would be but a short time in my opinion when we would have one of the finest and best developed agricultural sections in the state, if not in the Northwest, or America. We need a market on the peninsula. We can raise anything that can be raised in this whole country without a sweltering sun. By all means build the line. It is up to the people. If we want it bad enough we can have it. We cannot afford to let the opportunity presented slip by.

Mr. Cain stated that we had a country along the line of the proposed road with a large area of richest land which could be purchased for $30 to $50 per acre with water right, and a maintenance fee of $1 per year—the cheapest irrigation on the face of the globe. The road would undoubtedly be a paying proposition from the start. Bulk of the money to build same should be raised in Seattle. While there are other roads in the field and rumors of railroads, we want to help all.

Mr. Mills of Seattle was delighted with this his firts trip to this section and while he did not have a very vivid imagination he believed he grasped th situation. He had learned to view the ordinary Seattle man with intelligence but with suspicion. Only one way to bring him to time I would take a little box, and inside would place a hideous monster and label it Portland. Every time I would see a Seattle man I would spring this fellow. But this scheme has been worked out. If this country is anything, it is a dairy country, and if it is a dairy country Seattle is naturally its market. Seattle as the gateway to Alaska is the market place for the surplus products of the Northwest. I came from Wisconsin, now the greatest dairy state in the Union, but if you would put a man from the Peninsula and his easy-worked soil into the heavy clay woods of Wisconsin and expect him to work it up he would drop dead. You have a country here adapted in every particular to dairying, from the ideal climatic conditions to the vast productiveness of your soils, and the availability of your lands for such purposes. You have the greatest possibilities as a diary country of any on the face of the globe, capable of supporting 1,000.000 people and a market which cannot be equalled anywhere. The boys of the eastern states have taken up their homesteads along side the old folks in the past. They cannot do this now; they have to move. Let them know what you have here, and they will move to the Olympic Peninsula.

Mr. Peace of Seattle, a recent arrival from Iowa, has had considerable experience with electrical lines, and has found that one of the most serious drawbacks has been the endeavor to accomplish too much without sufficient capital. It is just as easy to get a safe working capital as it is to get a road built without it, then your future is assured. The electric road can move more freight than a steam road and more economically. It can have grades that a steam road would be worthless with. It is easier of construction, much cheaper because of the fact that it can practically follow a county road, locomotives can be had for from $6000 to $8,000 each. $16,000 per mile will furnish the road bed, ties, rails, work and rolling stock, which approximates less than $1,000,000, or the road contemplated.

Capt. A. O. Powell, consulting engineer, does not like to make any statement unless he knows what he is talking about by having all the facts before him, and therefore would not touch on the engineer's side this time. People may make a good living on the soil of a given section, but in order to prosper to the full they must have transportation. You have the lands here without a doubt, and the soil cannot be beat, and your people are enterprising and ready to grasp any opportunity which may present itself. The purpose of this meeting is to provide for the second requisite, transportation, and I believe the electric line is the solution of our difficulties. When I first came to Puget Sound I took a map of Washington and studied it and picked the Olympic Peninsula as a fertile field of opportunity. Lines will be built to Seattle, the Sound will prove no barrier. The fact presents itself to us that the handling of freight in New York harbor by ferries has proven the cheapest in the world. The electric line and the ferry is the solution for the Peninsula. But I want to warn you to get plenty of money at the outset.

Mr. Carrigan possibly struck the keynote of the meeting. He believed with Capt. Powell that the electric line was the thing but it is apparent that the people of the Peninsula will have to write their own emancipation proclamation. You must plan wisely. These gentlemen from the Seattle Commercial Club are here with the very best of intentions, are here as a friendly relation, without funds, but with the thought that it is possible and practical to build an electric railroad. We are here to offer our good offices and such moneys as we can in financing. At present there is nobody and no money behind the scheme, except what we will secure after we get the organization. We must put out of our minds for present that any of the great railroads are going to build in here soon. They will put us off with promises of various kinds, but they won't build the road. They will endeavor to pull off any strong men you might get on this Board, they will apply the soft pedal, they will preach through their mouthpieces that it is too early to build into this country just now, that it is too early for this project. We have already heard it, and one strong man has already been pulled down, they have satisfied him and he will stand aside for present. The way to get this road, and the only way to get a road at this time, is to put men at the head of this project who will play fair, who are strong and capable, who will work unceasingly and untiringly, and who can command the respect and confidence of the people. We can then get rights-of-way, franchises, etc. The personnel of the committee must be so honest that the man who puts in money will know that he is safe. It must be made so popular that the man who puts in $50 will be on the same foundation as the man who puts in $5,000. It must be a straight out proposition. If all this is done, you will get the line without any doubt, and this Peninsula will be ablaze with enthusiasm. First contract with Mr. Aldwell for sufficient power to operate line, and you can show to people of money what cheap power you really have, and a great deal of money can be raised right in Seattle. Then when you have the rights-ofway, terminals and sufficient money to guarantee the building of the railroad you will find that is as far a you need go unless you want to put in a line in opposition to the steam line, for you will find that when the big railroad companies find you are going to have a line, they will allow no special interests to longer control and will be only too glad to take your interests and pay you for them and guarantee you a road at once. We will then find with the railroad here that none of us have dreamed strong enough of the future. But, like Seattle in the early days, the people of the Peninsula have got to wake up and realize that if they are to get a road they will have to build at least the foundation of it themselves.

Mr. Cronin of Seattle spoke enthusiastically of the prospects here. He had walked over the proposed right of way some time since and was much impressed with the country. He had heard much of the great undeveloped section and was not prepared for the great evidences of development which he saw on every hand. He had planned to go to Oregon, but on making this trip had concluded to remain and will soon be a resident of this section. He is now planning to dispose of property elsewhere to buy here.

Dr. Ghent of Seattle was the next speaker. Like Alaska we have to fight for our rights, and Seattle is the friend in need, as she will prove. Only demonstrate that you mean business and you will get all kinds of assistance from Seattle, he said.

Mr. E. G. Anderson, pres. Western Dry Good Co., Seattle, said that while Seattle in the past has been, selfishly perhaps, looking more to her own development than else, she was now ready to reach out and help the surrounding country. This, too, was perhaps a selfish move, as Seattle recognizes that the best way to help Seattle is to help the country tributary to Seattle. This visit would enable all from there to speak of this great country intelligently.

Mr. Wilson then moved, That a Committee of 3 be named by the Chair which in turn would name a committee of 21, after due and deliberate consideration, on promotion, education and organization, and that the latter committee meet in Seattle in two weeks to form organization. Seconded by Mr. Carrigan andcarried. Chair named Rufus R. Wilson, of Seattle, D. S. Troy of Chimacum, and G. M. Lauridsen of Port Angeles.

DAVID DUNCAN, SUCCESSFUL ORCHARDIST

A good illustration of what can be done in the line of fruit raising in this locality may be found in the orchard on the David Duncan farm, four miles southwest of town. This orchard contains about 10 acres, and is planted to apples, cherries, pears, plums and prunes, also a few bearing peach trees. It has been in full bearing for a number of years, the planting having been done in 1891--96, and is the best paying commercial orchard in this district. Last year Mr. Duncan shipped 3,000 boxes of apples, but of all his small fruit he did not ship a crate, finding a ready home market for the whole yield, and it was a heavy one, too. In connection with his orchard he has two well ventilated, double walled fruit houses for storing and keeping fruit; one 16x16 feet. Last fall they were filled from floor to ceiling, but are sold empty now. Besides developing and caring for his fruit, Mr. Duncan and his sons have been steadily clearing and improving his quarter section farm, until at present he has 70 acres of producing land—good, rich Dungeness bottom and bench land. We quote him as saying that "five acres of land in this locality, planted to fruit and well cared for, will not only maintain a family comfortably, but will yield a good net profit besides." This, coming from a man of Mr. Duncan's stamp—a man not given to idle talk--a tried and proven horticulturist, carries more weight than a column of theory.—Sequim Press.

We Have Just Received a Shipment of DRIED BREWER'S GRAIN

Its food value is shown by the following analysis.

Pullman Wash., Nov. 16, 1909.

Gentlemen:

We have completed the analysis of the sample of dried brewers' grains you sent in under date of the 25th ult. We found the following percentages: moisture 7.28; ash 3.86; crude protein 21.21; either extract 5.92; crude fibre 17.72. nitrogen free extract 44.01. The percentage of crude fibre in this sample of brewers' grains and the ether extract and crude fat and crude protein are correspondingly slightly lower. This class of material is very generally regarded as being a very valuable food, particularly for dairy animals, on account of its high protein contents.

Yours very truly,
R. W. Thatcher, Chemist.

GATES GIVES DETAILS OF STEEL DEAL

MANY ADMISSIONS DRAWN OUT BY CONGRESSIONAL INQUIRY.

Corporation Came Into Existence by Absorbing All Its Rivals—Tennesee Coal and Iron a Big Factor—Carnegie Wins Million from Frick and Moore.

Washington, May 29.—Hearings before the special committee elected by the house of representatives to determine whether the United States Steel Corporation is operating in violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws began Saturday. That the investigation would be thorough and prolonged was indicated by the special direction of the resolution creating the committee, the members of which unanimously expressed the determination to go into every phase of the industry that may have any bearing on the questions at issue.

Representative Stanley, of Kentucky, author of the resolution and chairman of the committee, unsuccessfully urged a similar inquiry in the last congress. The first witness summoned by the committee, John W. Gates, was called especially to enlighten the committee regarding the amalgamation of the United States Steel Corporation and the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company. The committee also purposed questioning Mr. Gates concerning the steel corporation's relations with the American Steel & Wire Company.

The special committee, of which Representative Stanley, of Kentucky, is chairman, had determined that an investigation of the Tennessee Coal & Iron deal, which is said to have been approved by President Roosevelt, should be the first subject taken up. Mr. Gates was the first witness to appear.

Asked by Mr. Stanley if the deal with the United States Steel Company was not prompted by the embarrassment of the Trust Company of America, Mr. Gates declared he had heard that J. Pierpont Morgan had suggested the transaction to relieve a distressed condition of a banking house.

Not Dollar Changes Hands.

"It has been stated on apparently good authority," said Mr. Stanley, "that at the time the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company was acquired by the United States Steel Corporation, a certain business firm, the name not given, would have failed if help had not been given and that this firm had among its assets the majority of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company stock and that advances were made to the United States Steel Corporation to purchase this stock in order to avert a panic. What do you know about that?"

"In the exchange of this stock," Mr. Gates replied, "not a dollar changed hands. No bank gained any assets by it."

"Did any member of a firm or bank make a proposition to the United States Steel Corporation to accept the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company as a comparatively worthless property?" asked Mr. Stanley.

"In other words who flew the signal of distress?"

"There are a great many underground wires in New York," Mr. Gates replied. "I was told that a certain bank in November, 1907, applied to the clearing house for assistance. A committee was appointed to examine its assets. They discovered several millions of the bank's funds out on stock of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company. They reported to the clearing house that too much had been loaned on Tennessee Coal & Iron collateral.

Morgan Makes Suggestion.

"Stock brokers told me that as a result of this investigation a gentleman was invited to Mr. Morgan's house. Mr. Morgan suggested to him that to relieve the situation the United States Steel Corporation might acquire the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co. That led up to the negotiations afterward concluded."

Mr. Stanley wanted to know if Mr. Morgan and others had ever tried to acquire the Tennessee Company before with a view to securing a monopoly. Mr. Gates said he could not tell what was in the minds of the purchasers.

He outlined at length the sale of stock to the United States Steel Corporation. He said that in 1904 or 1905, during his absence in Texas, a syndicate was formed, managed by Grant B. Schley and Charles S. Guthrie, then president of the Republic Iron & Steel Company, which purchased the stock of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company. He related how Mr. Guthrie died soon afterward and S. C. Hanna, brother of former Senator Hanna, had been made assistant manager.

"In July, 1907," said Mr. Gates, "I sailed for Europe. I returned in November, 1907, and on the ship I bought a paper that read that the stock of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company had been sold to the United States Steel Corporation. The panic was on then. I met Mr. Schley at his office as soon as I reached New York and found negotiations going on between Mr. Schley, Mr. Hanna and their associates and Judge Gary, Mr. Frick and Mr Morgan.

How Trade Was Made.

"The latter were then in conference at Morgan's house trying to acquire the Tennessee Coal & Iron stock. The terms proposed were that for each ten shares of Tennessee Coal & Iron stock we were to get one United States Steel second fives mortgage bond. I said it was not enough and held out until we made a trade on the basis of 119¾ in United States Steel sinking fund fives. The next day I insisted that the minority stockholders be given the same terms and the deal was made."

"Mr. Schley," suggested Mr. Stanley, "has declared that the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company was a forced sale. Do you so consider it?"

"I regarded it as a forced sale," said Mr. Gates.

"What financial power forced it?"

"Well, as I have said, I surmised it was the finding of too much Tennessee Coal & Iron stock as collateral in one of the banks."

"Did Mr. Morgan have a decided influence over this bank?" persisted Mr. Stanley.

"I do not know," said Mr. Gates. "It is difficult to tell where a man's influence starts or ends in Wall street."

Mr. Gates said the bank in question, the Trust Company of America, wanted $10,000,000, and he added, "they got it."

COPPER RIVER RAILWAY TO BE EXTENDED 60 MILES

Cordova, May 25.—The officials of the Copper River railway have announced that a preliminary survey will be started at once for an extension of the railroad into the White river country. The extension proposed will start from mile 191 on the present road and run through a highly mineralized district for over sixty miles.

This will take in the well known creeks of Nazina, Chittitu, Dan and others on which properties are now being worked and making excellent showings.

The road will extend easterly up McCarthy creek to the Nichols and Mother Lode properties.

The railroad announces that it is willing to extend a line to any mining district or section as soon as development shows sufficient tonnage.

INDUSTRIAL INSURANCE LAW DEFENDED BY HAY

Spokane, Wash., May 27.—Defending the new industrial insurance law, effective in the state of Washington on June 8, and explaining the work of the employers' liability commission, Governor Hay said at a meeting of manufacturers in Spokane that of $95,000,000 collected in a stated period by casualty companies only $15,000,000 had reached the injured employes, the rest being consumed in lawyers' fees, court costs and profits of the companies. He declared that 40 per cent. of the court business of this state consisted of personal injury suits, adding that most of this litgation would be eliminated by the new act.

Two test cases will be instituted, the first in the state supreme court on June 18, the second going to the federal court on October 1, when the assessments begin.

PUGET SOUND MILLS GET LARGE ORDERS FOR LUMBER

Seattle, Wash., May 29.—An order for 8,000,000 feet of fir lumber has been placed with G. N. Skinner, manager of the Port Blakeley Mill Company, by the Grand Trunk railroad. Mr. Skinner has also received an order for 1,000,000 feet of lumber for use on the Copper River & Northwestern railroad.

The Grand Trunk Pacific order is said by lumbermen to be the largest individual order ever placed with one firm in the Puget Sound district. Railroads have bought more lumber at one time, but have themselves distributed the business among various mills. The Grand Trunk order will be filled by Seattle mills. Mr. Skinner has distributed it among the following manufacturers: The Moran Company, Brace & Hergert, Ballard Lumber Company, Bryant Lumber & Shingle Company and the Queen City Lumber Company.

Both orders are largely for ties, timbers and other construction materials.

Spokane Building Operations.

Spokane, Wash., May 27.—More than $17,500,000 will be expended on municipal and railroad work and building operations in Spokane this year, and of this amount the city's share is approximately $6,000,000. The Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound, the Northern Pacific and the third division of the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation Companies have plans for work costing $6,500,000 and architects and contractors estimate that fully $5,000,000 will be invested in new buildings before the close of the year.

Municipal work in progress or confirmed amounts to $1,721,280 to date, and in addition there is $3,936,280 for bridges and buildings, as follows: City hall, $665,000; South Central High school, $450,000; Monroe street bridge, $450,000; Latah bridge, $245,000; reservoir, $150,000; fire station, $40,000; isolation hospital, $25,000.

Object to "Merchant of Venice."

New Britain, Conn., May 27.—On the ground that the character of Shylock is in effect a reflection on the Jewish race, the play, "The Merchant of Venice," which was to have been given in connection with the graduation exercises of the Central high school, has been barred at the request of the Hebrew pupils.

INDICATIONS POINT TO GOOD YEAR

COMPREHENSIVE REPORT ON TRADE AND CROP CONDITIONS ISSUED.

Wheat Yield Promises to Be 50 Per Cent Greater Than in 1910—Oats and Hay Crop also Large, But Yield of Fruit Will Not Be Heavy.

What is considered by officers of the bank as the most comprehensive crop, trade, industrial and financial report ever prepared on conditions in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Western Montana will be issued next week by the Seattle National Bank. The report is similar in many respects to reports published from time to time by the largest banks in the leading Eastern cities. This is the first time that such information has been collected and published by a Northwest bank. Officials of the bank plan to publish similar reports from time to time in order to keep thoroughly posted on conditions in the Northwest.

The report says in part:

"Replies from a majority of 200 correspondents show conditions to be quite satisfactory in nearly all cases. The wheat crop is especially promising and the last reports received after the rains of early May are enthusiastic.

Palouse Country Good.

"The report from the Palouse country especially mentions the largest known acreage ever had there. A note of warning is sounded from many sections as to the hot winds which sometimes do great damage in June and early July, yet, barring these winds, and with a little late rain, a perfect yield will be the result in all directions.

"The area sown in wheat is about 10 per cent greater than 1910 and the yield expected is about 50 per cent more than in 1910.

"The oat crop promises to be more than 10 per cent greater than in 1910 on an equal acreage with last year.

Crop of 1910 Marketed.

"A very small percentage of the wheat crop of 1910 is left in the farmers' hands, the amount having dwindled rapidly in the past several months, and it seems to be an almost unanimous opinion that the crop of 1911 will be more quickly marketed than has been the case for the last several years. This is a very satisfactory report from a bankers' standpoint, as it insures a rapid liquidation of loans and an increasing quick circulation of cash throughout the country.

Hay Crop Large.

"The hay crop for 1911 promises to be about equal to that of 1910 and with the exception of Skagit county, where there appears to be about 10,000 tons of the old crop left, the 1910 crop is nearly all liquidated.

"The fruit crop is the greatest exception to the general outlook for 1911, as it esems doubtful from the reports if the yield as an entirety through this territory will aggregate 75 per cent of the 1910 yield. Yakima valley promises a falling off of about 30 per cent from 1910, Walla Walla about 20 per cent, and the Hood River about 25 per cent."

Comparison Is General

In making requests for reports the Seattle National bank did not ask so much for accurate statistics as for the general comparison of the present year with the past and the relative conditions as they have bearing on the business situation generally.

Information was also asked upon the lumber outlook, poultry, live stock, dairy products and the small crops and with the few exceptions the returns show a uniform increase expected for 1911 in nearly all lines. The report continues:

"The lumber outlook for 1911 is not so bad as might be expected from general reports from other sources and a general uniform improvement is predicted for the current year to the extent of about an average of 25 per cent.

Dairy Outlook Good.

"The dairy products are almost all expected to show betterment for 1911, the outlook being especially fine in the Skagit valley, where an increase of 60 per cent is predicted, and in the Nooksack valley of 50 per cent. Tillamook cheese does not promise so well for 1911, though the sum of $700,000 is expected to be realized from this well known product this year."

A number of questions were directed on general conditions. Among these was as to the amount and character of building going on throughout this section. The average answer to this reveals a very great deal going on throughout the country sections generally on the farms and in the towns, mostly frame houses, though a considerable amount of public buildings is noted and the farmers generally seem to be making themselves more comfortable with new residences everywhere.

GUNS TO AID ASTORIA'S CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

Astoria, Ore., May 29.—Huge, dangerous, foe-repelling coast artillery will boom across the harbor at Astoria for the edification of visitors to the Astoria Centennial. Lieutenant-Colonel Foote, commanding officer at Fort Stevens, has issued orders for a special parade and target practice August 15 and 16, for the special benefit of those who attend the Centennial.

The monster guns, which protect the mouth of the Columbia river, will carry heavy service charges and the big shells will be shot out into the sea for miles. It is seldom that the visitor to the coast resorts has an opportunity to witness target practice such as this, but on account of the unusual importance of the Centennial the Secretary of War has authorized the commander of Fort Stevens to shoot thousands of dollars' worth of powder and shell into the ocean.

This big target practice of the Astoria Centennial is one of the best of the features on the programme, which runs from August 10 to September 9.

General Manager Tremp reports that Mesdames W. O. Barnes, H. F. Prael and P. A. Stokes, of the Women's Auxiliary of the Centennial committee, are distributing thousands of aster plants to the women of Astoria, so that August 20, Astor day, there will be an abundance of these typical flowers for decorations to receive Colonel John Jacob Astor, who is due to visit the centennial pageant that day.

EGG-LAYING CONGRESS TO OPEN AT SPOKANE

Spokane, Wash., May 29.—Problems of continent-wide interest are to be solved at the first American Egg-Laying Congress in Spokane, beginning next November and continuing twelve months. It is free and open to the world. Plans are to have at least two entries of six chickens each from every state and territory in the Union and province in Canada. Among other things this information is sought.

Will 300 chickens support an average family.

What breeds are best for commercial eggs?

What is the actual cost of producing eggs?

What are the prime requisites for successful egg-culture?

What state, province or territory produces the best layers?

John C. Lee, a former newspaper man, now a poultry rancher at Hillyard, Wash., who originated the congress idea, has submitted tentative plans to A. C. Ware, chairman of the poultry and game committee of the Spokane chamber of commerce, for formal discussion and action at the next monthly meeting of that body early in June.

"This is not to be a competitive exposition for fancy breeds or feathers, nor a money making scheme," Mr. Lee said, "but an educational affair in the best sense of the term. There will be no medals or cash prizes, though diplomas and ribbons may be awarded for the best producers. Primarily, we are seeking accurate information which is not now available through the regular channels.

"Present plans are to set aside a tract of land near Spokane and erect the necessary buildings for the care of the fowls. Experts will be placed in charge and a record kept of every pen, the money returns going to the owners. We believe we can accomplish good results here, as we have an even climate and none of the diseases common to the chicken family, such as cholera and gapes."

MRS. HARRIMAN LIKELY TO BUILD UNIVERSITY.

New York, May 27.—The American says that Mrs. E. H. Harriman plans a great university as a monument to her husband on the Pacific coast, probably in California, but as California is well equipped it is not impossible that Washington may get the institution. Joseph W. Harriman referred all questions to his aunt, who refused to discuss the plans.

Philadelphia, May 27.—In the presence of the governor and a delegation of visitors of the state for which it was named, Miss Dorothy Eunice Knight, daughter of former Chief Justice Jesse Knight, of Wyoming, christened the battleship Wyoming, the nation's latest dreadnought, when the warship was launched at the yards of the Cramp Ship & Engine company in this city.

Ice Goes Out at Nome.

DOUBLE OF THE CZAR

DANE WHO PROUDLY COPIED HIS IMPERIAL MODEL.

Played the Role So Well That Finally He Began to Dread the Nihilists and Went Insane.

There is an old story to the effect that a man who may be called Jones was assured by Smith that he was the very picture of Robinson. So he hunted up Robinson, and apprised him of the comparison.

"Well, I'll punch Smith's head for him when next I come across him!" Robinson said.

"Oh, I have already done that!" was Jones' reply.

It was in a very different spirit from this that a banker in Copenhagen, named Carlsben, received the intimation of a friend that he resembled Alexander III., czar of Russia. He had never seen the czar, but so far as he could judge by such portraits as were available, he found, on looking in the mirror, that his friend had not exaggerated the resemblance. The idea pleased him greatly, and from that day forward he left nothing undone to increase the likeness, and to enable him to play the part of double to the czar.

For example, whereas he had formerly belonged to the confraternity of the clean-shaven, he now allowed his beard to grow and wax bushy and had it trimmed like that of his model.

The great desire of his heart, however, was to be presented to the czar. This, too, he accomplished a year ago, when Alexander III. was staying at Fredensborg, and the autocrat of all the Russias is said to have been much amused at the striking resemblance between himself and his double. This was the acme of Carlsben's happiness, compared to which all the other events of his life were vanity. From that time forth he studiously copied his imperial model, drove about through the streets of Copenhagen in a four-in-hand, and was often saluted by policemen and civilians in the belief that he was the czar, and that he was visiting his father-in-law, the king of Denmark.

But Carlsben played his role too well. He identified himself so completely with the czar that he gradually began to experience the cares and to dread the dangers to which the latter is exposed. One morning he awoke with a fixed idea that he was Alexander III. Soon afterward his peace of mind was disturbed by the machinations of the Nihilists, and at last he had to be confined in a lunatic asylum, where he died a few weeks ago.

Her Awful Neatness.

Two of the boarders were discussing a third. "She's a nice girl; very neat," said one. The young man groaned. "That's the only objection I have to her," he said. "Not exactly to her neatness, but to the way she accomplishes it. Her room is across the court from mine and every night, just after I have fallen deliciously asleep, she shakes her silk petticoat out of the window. The sound is ever new to me and never fails to waken me—a swish, swish, as the silk whips through the still night air. I am getting so nervous over it—knowing that I shall inevitably be awakened—that I have tried to time my retiring after the swish has occurred, but in vain. She seems to have some diabolical knowledge of the exact time when it will be most unpleasant for my peaceful and childlike slumbers to be disturbed and at that instant she cuts the night air and my sleep in two simultaneously."

"Couldn't you speak to her about it?"

"Well—I—ah—now, really—could I, don't you know?"

Vegetarians.

An old doctor friend of mine who loses money by giving a lot of his time to one of the big hospitals, where he is ranking surgeon, heard my story of the vegetarian dogs. "It's worse," he said, "with my own patients. They've got the belief that meat is bad for them, and yet it is true that most of my patients who have rheumatism were never much as meat eaters. I have men who eat too much meat, and need a bit of toning once in a while, because they don't take enough exercise, or drink a bit too much, but my experience of 40 years leads me to think that there isn't much in this theory that meat and rheumatism are generally twins. I have a baked apple, a bit of toast and a cup of tea in the morning, but in my other two meals I always have meat, unless I'm sure I can get fish that is really fresh. Vegetarianism is good for people who think it's good for them."—New York Press.

Another Painful Ailment.

"My husband," remarked the caller, "is always interested in some kind of 'ology."

"My husband isn't," said Mrs. Lapsling, "but he has 'em just the same. He suffered from the neurology last night so bad he couldn't sleep a wink."

GREETS WRONG WOMAN

CLEVELAND MAN MAKES A MOST DEPLORABLE MISTAKE.

She Is Not His Chum's Wife, but Wishes Her Husband Were There to Thrash "Low Wretch."

The Cleveland man's old college chum out in Chicago had written him that his wife and little boy were going through here on their way east to visit her mother. They would be in Cleveland over night, the Chicago chum wrote, and he wanted to know if his old friend here would mind meeting the little wife and kid and taking them out to his house to meet his own wife, and let 'em stay there over night.

Naturally, the Cleveland man wrote back that he would be delighted. He had never met his chum's wife as the marriage had taken place since the two men separated, but the description in her husband's letter seemed sufficient to identify her and her offspring.

"The youngster's a chubby little cuss with sandy hair about like mine," the letter said, "and as for my wife, well, all you have to do is just pick out the niftiest little woman of 25 or so that gets off the train, and if she has with her the sandy-haired youngster before mentioned, and is rather slender, with dark hair, it's a safe bet she's the one."

So the Cleveland man went down to the station and waited for the Chicago train to pull in. Among the first passengers to alight was a charmingly wholesome looking little woman of perhaps 25 years, slender, well-groomed, and good to look upon. She carried a small alligator satchel in one hand, and with the other clutched a small sandy-haired boy.

"This certainly is an easy one," thought the Clevelander who was to meet the woman and child. "No chance to go wrong here."

As the woman and youngster squeezed through the exit gate, he took off his hat and walked over to meet them. He knew his old friend wouldn't have married a girl without a sense of humor, so he began jauntily: "Well, my orders were to meet the most charming looking woman that got off the train, so——"

He was cut short by the sharp, indignant look the woman gave him.

"Why, my dear girl," he resumed, smiling, "can't you guess who I am? I'm——"

"You're a low wretch trying to take advantage of a woman traveling without an escort," she put in.

"But, madam, Frank wrote me that——"

"I don't know any Frank. I only wish that my husband were here, though, to give you the thrashing you deserve. If you speak another word to me I shall call a policeman."

The Clevelander saw several people looking at him and thought the woman might make a scene if he tried to explain. So he lifted his hat once more and turned away in considerable confusion. On his way out he heard several people talking under their breath, using such phrases as "fresh masher," "no respect for a nice woman," and the like.

When he got home he found waiting for him a telegram from his Chicago friend, saying that his wife had found it necessary to go straight through to the east without stopping at Cleveland, after all.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Colonial Rug.

The old hand-made rug, sometimes called the Martha Washington, has come into vogue again. It is particularly effective and appropriate for bedrooms where simple mahogany furniture and soft, gray papering is used.

The rugs are made of long tubes of silk, soft hued and low toned in color, tufted with cotton. Three separate strands are plaited together and then this plait, starting from a solid center, is wound round and round, being caught securely into place, the circle becoming ever wider until the required size of the rug is reached.

Some are oblong, but more often round ones are seen. They help to give quite an old-time touch to a room, an effect which is eagerly sought for these days.

He Violated the Law.

When New York on Thursday morning unexpectedly found her streets coated with March ice, a humane merchant on a side street covered a portion of the concrete with ashes, as he could not endure the slipping of the poor horses.

A rival across the street saw his opportunity. He obtained a warrant for the man who had strewn the ashes.

The judge heard the evidence, and gave his verdict. "This man," he said, "is certainly guilty—guilty of a meritorious and humane act. I fine him one cent, and the sentence is suspended during good behavior. You take with you, sir, the thanks of the court."

She Misunderstood.

"Dear."

"Well?"

"I'd like to talk to you about a second——"

"Why, dear, I ain't never thought o' outlivin' you, but if I should I've thought I'd like Mr. Jinx to be my second, he—now what in the nation is the matter of him!"

Worms

"Cascarets are certainly fine. I gave a friend one when the doctor was treating him for cancer of the stomach. The next morning he passed four pieces of a tape worm. He then got a box and in three days he passed a tape-worm 45 feet long. It was Mr. Matt Freck, of Millersburg, Dauphin Co., Pa. I am quite a worker for Cascarets. I use them myself and find them beneficial for most any disease caused by impure blood." Chas. E. Condon, Lewiston, Pa., (Mifflin Co.)

ORIGIN OF BLACK HAND

CRIMINALS ADOPT PHRASE COINED BY NEW YORK REPORTERS.

American Societies of Blackmailers Are Dreaded as Much in Europe as Organizations From Which They Sprung.

New York.—Black Hand outrages, murders, kidnaping and bomb throwing, now of frequent occurrence in all parts of the United States, have led many persons to believe that the "Black Hand" is a closely associated secret society, similar to the Mafia and Camorra. That is not so, according to those best informed. Mono Nera, or "Black Hand," has been adopted as the common name by the gang of assassins and blackmailers in different parts of the country in the last seven years. The phrase was coined by a New York reporter who wanted to get a "beat" while covering a kidnaping case. He got the beat, his paper and finally other papers took up the name in designating crime among the Italians and Sicilians and the blackmailers themselves then adopted it.

Today the name is known throughout the country, and even in Italy, it is said, the signature Mono Nera is frequently as potent a factor in wringing tribute from a victim as the sign of the dreaded Camorra in Naples and Southern Italy or the Mafia in Sicily.

"The story of the 'Black Hand' is interesting as showing what a sample suggestion will do and to what lengths it may go," said a man who was familiar with the origin of the "society." "Following the murder of the chief of police in New Orleans and the lynching of his murderers, few Italian crimes came to the public notice until about nine years ago. Of course, the Mafia and the Camorra were secretly blackmailing wealthy residents of the growing Latin colonies in this country, and occasionally there was a murder. These, however, escaped more than casual mention in the papers.

"Following New York's 'barrel murder' in New York city and the release of the suspects, crime among the Italians increased to an alarming extent. It was while 'covering' a kidnaping case of unusual pathos that the inventor of the 'Black Hand' hit upon a name that has now become synonymous with Italian crime. He was glancing over some blackmailing letters in an East Side station house. In themselves the letters were commonplace, the usual threats being made and the missives adorned with crudely drawn pictures of coffins and the stiletto-pierced hearts. In one letter the stiletto was held against the heart by a hand, and it was on this circumstance that the name of the now dreaded 'secret society' was founded."

HEN IS MOTHER TO SIX PIGS

Sow Converts Eggs to Pork and Chicken Gets Her Revenge by Adopting Little Pigs.

Pilot Rock, Ore.—A hen mothering a litter of six wee pigs is the unusual spectacle to be witnessed on the irrigation farm of William H. Evans, just south of town. The hen had made her nest in the pigpen, filled it with eggs and started to setting before it was discovered by an old sow, who converted the eggs into pork.

Though her nest had been destroyed, the hen's mother instinct remained, so she adopted the sow's litter of pigs. During the day she follows them about, as they pay little attention to her, and follow the mother pig until evening.

Then it is that the hen calls the young porkers to her and hovers them with her wings, just as she would little chickens.

The pigs seem to appreciate the downy couch thus afforded them, remaining under the wings throughout the night.

LONGEVITY RUNS IN FAMILY

Health Record of Pennsylvania Family Is Remarkable—No Death in Forty-Eight Years.

Philadelphia.—A remarkable instance of family immunity from death is afforded in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bierman of Shenandoah, who will shortly celebrate their golden wedding and who have relatives living in this city. Eleven children, seven boys and four girls, were born to them, all of whom are living. Indeed there has not been a death in the immediate family in 48 years.

There are now 13 grandchildren. Mr. Biermann is seventy-three years old and his wife sixty-nine. Longevity seems to be common in the family, for an older brother of Mr. Biermann, a veteran of the Civil war, who resides with him, is hale and hearty in his eighties. A sister of Mrs. Biermann, Mrs. W. Schley, of Easton, recently celebrated her golden wedding.

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Erie, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. Endlich, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Universal Habit of Wastefulness.

We have not yet organized our economic life with sufficient reference to the poor. A French family of very small income can and will get along well on a very small part of what an American family of the same size requires. We lack thrift—not only thrift in the buying and the use of food, but a corresponding cheapness in growing it, in transporting it, in marketing it, in distributing it. Waste—a habit of wastefulness, even a universal habit of wastefulness—that's our trouble; and it takes many forms. The thriftiest poor family must live ill in New York on an income that the same family would live very well on in Paris or in most continental cities. The whole organization of our life is wasteful.

AT MODERATE COST

HOUSES MAY BE FURNISHED IN ARTISTIC STYLE.

Special Attention Is Now Being Paid to the Designing of Moderate Priced Fabrics of Every Shade and Color.

A woman who is furnishing a recently-built house told a friend that it was now the easiest thing in the world to get furniture covering of the style, the color and the grade preferred, says the New York Sun.

"In the store where I placed my order," said she, "there were hundreds of varieties to select, representing almost as many grades of price. As a result I think I will have a very artistic house at relatively small cost."

At the store where she shopped a man who has been handling the upholstery goods for 30 years said that manufacturers and retailers now paid special attention to the designing of moderate priced fabrics, for the reason that the demand for them was far ahead of the demand for the cheapest or the costliest. As an illustration he showed jutes, cotton reps, mercerized reps and cotton tapestries, all of which he said are in great demand at this time of the year, which included designs and colors as good as those in high-priced goods.

Cotton tapestries, for instance, used extensively for bedrooms and plain living-rooms may be had in nearly any shade of art green, in old Venetian red, old rose, ecru or brown, both self-toned and two-toned. One design in jasper effects showed small French wreaths of old rose on an ecru ground. One of the newest patterns had five-inch long, very narrow bars of champagne or cream color on a green, red or rose background.

Some of the jutes look like and feel like oriental fabrics and they cost only from $1 to $2 a yard and are 50 inches wide. The ground color in the most beautiful is champagne, patterned with inch and a half stripes in a tiny flower design done in Persian colors. Between these stripes, which are five inches apart, are small oblongs of Persian colors. Other designs in oval have stripes, wreaths or oblongs of beautifully blended colors on a smoke color, a gray or a cream ground. Some charming French wreath designs are self-toned.

The mercerized cotton rep, which like the others is stout, strong and a good wearer and has a silk-like finish, is shown in three wales, the widest nearly a quarter of an inch, and the greens and reds and ecrus are the most effective.

New basket weaves and colors distinguish the arras cloths, classed also among the inexpensive upholstery fabrics and more popular perhaps than any for use in dens and studios in town and in foyer halls and living-rooms out of town.

Going up the scale, the expert said that woolen rep in plain colors was one of the best wearing and for the time being best liked fabrics for upholstering foyer halls and living-rooms both in and out of New York, the paler greens and yellower ecrus being popular shades.

Plain colors are the rule for library, sitting room and parlor, tapestry colors and effects being reserved for drawing rooms and the costlier grades of goods, that is if purchasers want to follow the trend of fashion and the most artistic weaves.

Mohair glace is the technical name for what looks like a cross between panne velvet and dull satin, and this is a favorite for parlors and living-rooms and is suitable also for libraries because of its stout qualities. This is of plain colors, very dull green perhaps the favorite.

Creamed Dried Beef.

Tear the beef, or rather shred or chop it fine, taking out the skin and strips of tallow. Place in heavy spider, add a good tablespoonful of butter and let melt, adding one tablespoonful of flour. Stir, then add slowly, two to two and a half cups of milk, stirring till smooth and thick. Pour over platter of toast. This may be served without toast and with baked potatoes. The quantity of milk used must be determined by the amount of beef you use.

The remnants of a boiled ham may be chopped and served in the same way.

English Beef Patties.

Make a good pie paste or rich biscuit dough; roll very thin, as for pie. On half of this thin paste cut small pieces of fresh beefsteak, turnips, carrots, potatoes, onions, small bits of suet and butter, salt and pepper, but no water, as beef makes plenty of juice. Fold other half of paste over this and edge as you would a pie. Bake in slow oven one hour. You can make as many as there are people for dinner. These patties, served with coffee and fruit, are sufficient for a meal.

Baked Tapioca Pudding.

Five tablespoons of tapioca, one quart of milk, two ounces of butter, a cup of sugar, four eggs, flavoring of vanille. Wash the tapioca and let stew gently in milk on the back part of the stove for a quarter of an hour, occasionally stirring it, then let it cool. Mix with it the butter, sugar and eggs, which should be well beaten, and flavor with either of the above ingredients. Butter a dish, put in the pudding and bake in a moderate oven for an hour.

Backache

Is only one of many symptoms which some women endure through weakness or displacement of the womanly organs. Mrs. Lizzie White of Memphis, Tenn., wrote Dr. R. V. Pierce, as follows:

"At times I was hardly able to be on my feet. I believe I had every pain and ache a woman could have. Had a very bad case. Internal organs were very much diseased and my back was very weak. I suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, in fact, I suffered all over. This was my condition when I wrote to you for advice. After taking your 'Favorite Prescription' for about three months can say that my health was never better."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Bluff Quite Like Men.

"No, sir," said the showman, "animal trainers are not what they used to be. I'm not speaking of the elephant men—they've got to deliver the goods just as I had to, when I was handling the elephants. But take the lions and tigers—in the old days there was no kindergarten school for them. They were handed over to us when they were three, four or five years old, full grown, and with a full knowledge of the goods they could deliver.

"That was the kind of animal we had to train.

"Did we go right into the cage with them? No; we weren't quite so rash. We sized the animal up first. A lion or a tiger is a good deal like a man. The one that walks up and down the cage and growls and looks ugly can be counted on to be a bluff. The one that you want to look out for is the one that sulks and lies back in his corner and doesn't say anything. When you get into the cage with a critter like that he is not apt to say much. He simply does things."

What?

"What is the object of your primary elections?" inquired the foreigner in search of information.

"To determine who shall be the nominees of the various political parties for any given office," said the native.

"I see; then the candidate who carries a primary election gets the solid vote of his party when the real election comes."

"Not necessarily."

Going Back.

"Who was that man who just went out?"

"That was a magazine scout."

"Eh! What did he want?"

"He's working up an article which will prove that the grandfathers of plutocrats are usually undetected criminals."

Mothers will find Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup the best remedy to use for their children during the teething period.

Not on the Market.

"I suppose it is costing you a good deal to bring up your twins?" a neighbor remarked to Mr. Bromlers, a recent victim of a double blessing.

"Yes," he acknowledged, "but the cost isn't bothering me any; what grates on my nerves is the annoyance. Last week, after I had chased all around the city, trying to get a suitable high chair for the kids, I found that the only thing I could do was to get a chair for each."

THE TRUTH ABOUT BLUING.

Talk No. 3.

Avoid liquid bluing. Liquid bluing is largely water. Water is adulteration, adds nothing to real value to the consumer. Think it over.

Be wise. Use RED CROSS BALL BLUE, the blue that's all blue; makes the laundress smile on wash day. AT ALL GOOD GROCERS.

Disqualified.

One boastful woman who thought herself an ardent suffragist was surprised to learn that other members of the sisterhood did not share her opinion.

"Why do you doubt my devotion to the cause?" she asked. "What have I done to make you think me less earnest than the rest of you women?"

Their answer was a letter which she had written to headquarters the day before.

"You wrote on your husband's stationery," they said. "No suffragist who is worth her salt will write a personal letter under her husband's letterheads."

SCHOOL ART EXHIBIT WELL ATTENDED

year a few of the girls have been permitted to take the high school manual training and have proven themselves as apt with the tools as as their brothers. The teachers who have given sewing in connection with the regular work are certainly deserving of much credit for the results obtained. The lessons in sewing in fifth to eighth grades have been given one period a week, during the time that the boys have been employed at their manual training work. The teachers of these respective grades supervise the sewing entirely. The girls have been required to complete at least two articles during the term. These pieces are to be the everyday sewing, such as every person finds useful, namely hemming, gathering and putting aprons on belts, etc., also hemstitching of handkerchiefs. This is work that all girls in these grades can do whether they have a talent for sewing or not. After these pieces are completed the girls are permitted to embroider if they wish to do so But no work is accepted by the teacher unless it is neatly done. That this work has a useful as well as an ornamental side is shown by the fact two girls of the sixth grade have made their own hats this spring. These hats, together with representative work of the of department sewing, are at the school exhibit. The drawing (except mechanical drawing) and music departments are under the supervision of Miss Thomas. Miss Thomas works out the outlines in these subjects for the several rooms of the city schools, giving one lesson each at least once a week. The teachers of the several rooms carry out the work thus outlined. The outlines in drawing include studying light and shade, colors, proportion, designing and sketching from nature, and still life work, free hand cutting and stenciling. The stenciling deserves special mention as it gives the pupil a chance to work out designs of their own and transfer it to articles of value as boxes, pillow covers, curtains, etc. In accordance with these outlines the different departments have produced articles to be seen at the exhibit, such as water color, charcoal sketches, pencil drawings and cut work. The flowers are painted directly from the flower itself, the children mixing their own colors and copying directly from the natural study before them. Until very recently this work has been given only once a week never more than twice. The purpose of the school exhibit is mainly to bring before the public the work of the schools in order that patrons may see, criticise or appreciate, all of which may have good effects in stimulating those concerned to greater efforts. The superintendent and teachers desire to express their gratefulness for many kind expressions of appreciation as well as for the assistance in the work of the exhibition on the part of the patrons of the school. Special thanks are due to the ladies of the Ladies Literary Society, The Parliamentary Club, and the Reading Club for their interest and assistance.

WAR WAGED ON THISTLES

tween Laurel and Peabody, also between Valley and Laurel south of Sixth street, postponed their work day until this week Saturday, when they hope every one will turn out to help destroy weeds and generally improve the looks of the streets and alleys.

Mrs. Christopherson reports a great deal of work done in her district but lots still to be done in the way of cleaning up rubbish, a great deal of which belongs to private families and should be attended to by them. Her district takes in First and Front streets from Peabody to the Brewery and another day will probably be set to work here with combined forces. The workers in her district also partook of a picnic dinner on the green.

Mrs G. V. Smith, as chairman from Peabody to Eastern city limits, reports her surprise in going over the territory to see in what a good, clean condition it was kept. So she just notified the members of her committee where she had seen thistles and weeds and they promised to see that they were destroyed, and that tin cans and other rubbish were to be put in piles and later some action will be taken in regard to having them removed.

In Seattle and other cities the city street cleaning department cooperated in the work of cleaning up "Weed Day" and sent teams to remove the rubbish as it was collected in piles. That is what is needed in Angeles, also a place where such things can be dumped. We would suggest that the council take action on the matter.

At the annual convention of the Western Federation of Improvement Clubs to be held in Bellingham August 10, 11, 12, a date will be set for fall crusade against weeds and rubbish.

Members of the Women's Auxiliary will please remember their ten cent monthly dues. If you cannot attend the meetings, the money can be left with Sec'y Cosser at the Commercial Club room.

Mrs. Everett informed us that the trail, commencing two miles the other side of the Mountain Inn, had been put in first class condition, and that much improvement work was being put on the grounds at the springs, the cook room and dining hall enlarged and new sleeping quarters put in. These hot springs are located on Boulder Creek, in theheart of the Olympics, twenty-two miles from Port Angeles, and in one of the wild and romantic beauty spots of that region.
