RIGHT LINE OF ENDEAVOR FOR COMMERCIAL CLUB

Equal Assessment Means a Low Levy. High Levies Keep Out Prospective Settlers.

The business men of Hoquiam have announced a plan which will do much toward remedying taxation conditions in that portion of Chehalis county, says the State Capitol Record. They have appointed a committee charged with the duty of ascertaining the actual value of all real property within the limits of that city, to the end that there shall be absolute fairness and harmony in the matter of assessment. The committee is asking to extend its work to cover the entire county.

Of the hundreds of plans for securing relief from high taxation that have been suggested from time to time in the state, this is most meritorious. To change the system of taxation for one that will not tax industry and thrift will require amendments to the state constitution, and three years before anything can be accomplished.

At the last session of the legislature a strong effort was made to put over a law which would exempt all timber from taxation. That bill will undoubtedly come up at the next session. Yet there are those who assert that the present tax on standing timber is far too low and that it has doubtless caused owners of vast timber areas to withhold their property until they can get exhorbitant prices—prices which in instances have been eight and ten times their original investment. This is even a more vicious result from tax law than that which compels the man who improves his lot by the erection of a home to pay a penalty therefor, although his industry has rendered more valuable the unimproved holding adjoining.

The educational value to all the people of the state that will come from such movements as this at Hoquiam will be great. The work of the committee will be a wonderful advertisement and benefit to a county which has as great possibilities as any in the state.

WHIST TOURNAMENT

Will be given by the Womens' Auxiliary at the Commercial Club room on Friday evening August 25th, at which everybody is invited. Tickets will be sold by the committee in charge; also by Mr. Cosser at the Club room. Price of admission is 25cts. Playing will begin at 8:30 sharp, and all are requested to bear this in mind, as you will lose points by being late. A number of handsome prizes will be given.

THE CITY NEWS,

Mrs. Harry Tanner is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. William Gould, with whom she will make her home until the return of her husband from Northern Alaska in the fall, where he is heavily interested in mining.

The Misses Hazel Hooker, Ada Kelly, Hazel Morse, Master Arlof and Dawson Wright and Mrs. Wright their excellent chaperon, returned Thursday after a most delightful stay of two weeks camping at Morse Crrek.

The Snohomish arrived in port Wednesday night, when it was learned that Lieut. Spencer had been found dead in his state room Tuesday night, death due to heart trouble. His body will be shipped to Milwaukee, the home of his relatives. Lieut. Spencer was a chief engineer and has been in the service for over twenty years.

OUR VISITING NAVAL FRIENDS

One of Uncle Sam's fighting ships, the West Virginia, quietly rode into our harbor last Saturday evening, and has remained with us all week, expecting to leave sometime Sunday. The West Virginia is the flag ship of the Second Division of the Pacific Fleet, this division being composed of the armored cruisers West Virginia, Colorado and Pennsylvania, under command of Admiral W. H. H. Southerland. The West Virginia chose our safe and beautiful harbor for a two-fold purpose, that of a Port test of B. C. coal and for the purpose of drill. The vessel has taken on 900 tons of coal from Vancouver on two different occasions and expects to go there for that purpose again as they leave here; they have to give the coal a thorough test at sea as well as at port.

The West Virginia is 504 feet in length and 70 feet beam, draws 26 ft. of water and has a displacement of 14,000 tons. Its capacity is 2,000 tons of coal and it cost five million dollars, while the average expenditures per day are over $1,000; it required $32,000 for the paymaster to pay off the men last Monday.

The armament of the ship consists of 4 eight inch guns, 14 six inch guns, 18 three inch guns, 8 six pounders, and 1 aeroplane gun, and 4 three-inch field pieces.

There are 820 men aboard, including 60 marines; also there are 40 officers, with the Admiral and staff. It is a community by itself, and what a well governed, disciplined one it is! They have their own electric light plant, manufacture their own water and ice, and have all the conveniences of a modern city with the motto "cleanliness is next to godliness," thoroughly drilled into every man. They have their own printing office, repair shops of all kinds, and only depend upon the outside for their supplies of ammunition, eatables, coal and clothing. They have purchased a good many supplies in Angeles, probably the largest contract being that of ten tons of potatoes and onions from E. E. Hopkins.

On Monday about 300 men gave a shore drill which was watched with a great deal of interest, especially by the youngsters. On Wednesday the drills consisted of fire drill, collision drill and abandon ship.

Visitors have been received aboard ship almost every day, between the hours of one and five in the afternoon, and have afforded a great deal of pleasure to our townspeople. On Thursday afternoon the officers had a ball game at the ball grounds which drew a large crowd, and in the evening Admiral Southerland's Marine Band gave an open air concert which was greatly enjoyed. This, Friday, afternoon there will be a ball game between U. S. A. C. West Virginia team and the local team, and in the evening will take place a grand ball for all the men on the ship, with music furnished by the West Virginia Marine Band Orchestra. Saturday night, at the A. A. A. Hall, an informal dance will be given to the Admiral, his staff and officers by the Commercial Club, assisted by the Womens' Auxiliary.

The Commercial Club entertained Admiral Southerland, his staff and a number of the senior officers with a trip to the Lake and Solduck Hot Springs. There have been a number of small social functions in honor of different officers known to friends in the city, and several little tea parties aboard the ship.

Mrs. W. B. Webster chaperoned a party of young people aboard on Friday afternoon, the guests of Junior officers F. J. Lowry and J. C. Thom. Both these young men graduated with honors from Annapolis June 2nd and by request were assigned to the West Virginia, boarding the ship at Seattle June 9th. Mr. Lowry hails from Cresco, Iowa, the former home of the publishers of this paper, and intimately known to them from childhood. He is an exceptionally bright young man and his home state will watch with interest and pride the sucessful career that is surely mapped out for him.

The wives of a number of the officers are here, and with their husbands will be entertained at dinner Friday evening by Captain Halstead. Lieutenant and Mrs. Kenyen, Lieut. and Mrs. Turner, and Paymaster Irwin, wife and little daughter made their home at the Luppen residence during their weeks' stay.

THE ELECTRIC RAILWAY AGAIN

Articles of Incorporation Drawn and Executive Committee Appointed. Work to be Rushed.

Considerable interest was aroused this week by a visit to our city of Mr. Morrow, the gentleman who secured the recent railroad franchise through our city, accompanied by two well known financiers, R. L. Rutter and H. Witherspoon. They made an overland trip from Irondale in an auto, accompanied by W. F. Delabarre and others who were called to the steel city to meet them, and then went out to the lakes and Solduck Hot Springs No information as to the object of their visit at this time has been given out for publication but it has set many to guessing.

MR. MORROW'S VISIT.

The finance committee of the electric railroad project met in Seattle last Tuesday; G. M. Lauridsen and T. T. Aldwell representing the Clallam county interests.

It was decided to draw up articles of incorporation at once, and the matter was put into the hands of Mr. Kerr, of the law firm of Kerr & McCord. As soon as these articles are drawn up stock will be sold to raise the preliminary funds necessary for a survey. Thirty men were selected for incorporation, ten from Seattle, ten from Port Townsend and ten from Clallam county. From these thirty men an executive board will be chosen, and they will take charge of pushing the project along as rapidly as possible. As soon as a survey is secured they will proceed to get the right of way.

T. T. Aldwell, G. M Lauridsen, R. D. Willson, J. P. Christensen, C. J. Farmer, A. I. Filion, John Cain, Donald McInnes, J. A. Adams, E. T. Gierin and Hans Bugge are the men selected for incorporation from Clallam county. From Port Townsend are H. D. Hopkins and N. C. Strong of the First National Bank, D. S. Troy, William Dishop, F. C. Harper, Mr. Duelle of the Irondale Hardware Co., and F. M. Brown, Pres. State Bank of Irondale. The Seattle men are Joshua Green, Lester Turner, P. D. Merrill, Harry B. Lutz, J. C. Slater, M. J. Carrigan, Rufus R. Wilson, Mr. Beales, representing the Lacy Co., and Michael Earles.

AN AUSPICIOUS OPENING.

The opening dance in the pavilion at the Crescent Hotel, given by the proprietors, Mitchell & Christopher, last Saturday evening, was a grand success in every way. The floor and music was all that could be desired and the crowd was a most happy and congenial one, consisting of the people at all the resorts on the lakes, besides many from Port Crescent, Angeles and other places, making something like 200 or 250 guests. Excellent refreshments were served by Mrs. Mitchell aud her efficient corps of helpers, and the occasion was a most happy one, long to be remembered by all participants.

Dances will be given in the future every Saturday evening at the pavilion, and there is not a doubt but that they will be one of the leading attractions for the guests at all the resorts.

AUXILIARY TO PORT TOWNSEND.

An invitation has come to the Womens' Auxiliary from the Civic Club of Port Townsend to spend a day with them in their beautiful city park, at the earliest convenient date. Wednesday, August 16th, has been suggested, but the date will be decided at a called meeting of the club Monday afternoon next, at the Commercial Club room at 3. It is hoped a large party can make arrangements to go as the Port Townsend ladies are anxious to make the visit a most pleasant one.

The boat fare will be one dollar for the round trip. All those who wish to go, whether members of the Auxiliary or not, will kindly phone their names to Mrs. E. B. Webster, Sec'y of Women's Auxiliary.

SANITORIAM AT LAKE CRESCENT.

Dr. Lewis Deckman of Seattle has bought of E. E. Day his beautiful summer home on Lake Crescent, known as Sunshine Lodge, for the sum of $5000.

Mr. Day accompanied the Doctor to the lake Monday and turned over possession. A great many changes and improvements will be made in the place and the Doctor expects to make of it a summer home or sanitarium for his patients and will have it open about six months in the year. The Doctor is very enthusiastic over his new purchase and the many attractions the lake has to offer for one in his profession as a specialist of all nervous diseases.

Dr. Deckman has had a summer camp for some of his patients on the Elwha for the past two years, known as the Qui Si Saame, which will now be moved to the lake.

ITS REV. FATHER ERKENS NOW.

Rev. Father Wolfgang, for the past seven years in charge of the Catholic church in this city, closed his work here and left Monday for Lacey, near Olympia, where he has been assigned as one of the Professors in St. Martin's College. Father Wolfgang is succeeded here by Rev. Albert Erkens, a bright young man who has recently been stationed at Tacoma, but who for fourteen years was secretary of St. John's University, Minnesota. Rev. Erkens is a pleasant appearing, affable and corteous gentleman and no doubt will inject new life into the church here. He will be welcomed by all of our people, both in and out of his church.

GOVERNMENT GIVES WARNING AGAINST AGENTS

Washington, Aug. 7.—Warning to prospective entrymen on government irrigation projects, particularly the Rio Grande in New Mexico and Texas, against accepting staements of land agents without making inquiries of the reclamation service, have been issued by the secretary of the interior.

Complaints received by the interior department were responsible for the order. Settlers on irrigation projects have protested against the misrepresentations of agents by which the settlers have been induced to buy lands afterward found to be without water rights from the government canals.

BRYAN REPLIES TO ATTACK OF LEADER UNDERWOOD.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Voluntarily assuming full responsibility for the editorial recently published in his weekly paper which caused Congressman Underwood, of Alabama, to brand him as a falsifier on the floor of congress, William J. Bryan replied to the attack and declared that he inteded to give the Democratic leader of the house an early opportunity to discuss some other things.

Br. Bryan declared that the information on which the editorial was based was taken from a Washington dispatch in an Omaha newspaper.

If this information is correct, Mr. Bryan declares he will stand by his statements. If investigation shows it to be erroneous, he gladly will acknowledge his mistake.

Mr. Bryan said he himself wrote the editorial which caused the stir in congress.

Wickersham Not to Run.

St. Louis, Aug. 7.—Alaskan Delegate Wickersham, who arrived here Saturday to visit his son, said he would not again run for congress, and that he had enough with two terms.

PEACE TREATIES SIGNED BY FRANCE, GREAT BRITAIN AND UNITED STATES

Washington, Aug. 5.—President Taft has sent to the senate the general arbitration treaties between the United States and Great Britain and the United States and France, signed for this government and for Great Britain here Thursday and signed in Paris for the government of France.

Already there have been mutterings from the senate over these treaties. President Taft is non-committal, but was anxious to put them before that body before the adjournment of the special session.

The ceremony of signing the treaties took place in the president's library in the White House.

Numerous treaties, including that between Spain and the United States, have been signed in that room, and the messages of presidents and many important state documents were written within its walls.

Little Formality to Ceremony.

Little formality attached to the ceremony. Secretary Knox, British Ambassador Bryce, Counsellor Chandler Anderson, of the state department; Osmond Ovey, second secretary of the British embassy; the Vicomte Saint Phalle, of the French embassy; two members of the cabinet, a score of newspaper men and three photographers were present. The treaty with Great Britain was signed at 3:10 this afternoon.

Secretary Knox and Ambassador Bryce signed duplicates at the same moment. The French treaty was signed by Mr. Knox one minute later.

Signs Message to Senate.

The treaties out of the way, President Taft took his place at the desk. Before him were laid two messages to the senate. He affixed his name, and then, so far as the executive end of the government is concerned, the matter was concluded.

Ten minutes after the ceremony Mr. Bryce was walking down the capital streets through the rain and the president and Secretary Knox were planning to play golf together at Chevy Chase.

Jean Jules Jusserand had the honor of signing the arbitration treaty between the United States and France six hours ahead of the signing of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain.

He was the first foreign diplomat to come forward with a tentative acceptance of President Taft's informal proposal to all nations for such a treaty as has been concluded, although during the negotiations comparatively little was heard of the part taken by him in forwarding the great movement.

The British government took the initiative in negotiating for general arbitration, although France was the first to recognize the possibility of such an agreement.

Ambassador Jusserand has been accredited to Washington since 1902. During the Roosevelt administration he was a member of the so-called "Tennis cabinet."

General Features of Treaties.

All differences internationally justiciable shall be submitted to The Hague, unless by special agreement some other tribunal is created or selected.

Differences that either country thinks are not justiciable shall be referred to a commission of inquiry, composed of representatives of the two governments, empowered to make recommendations for their settlement. Should the commission decide that the dispute should be arbitrated, such decision will be binding.

Disputes to Be Investigated.

Before arbitration is resorted to, even in cases where both countries agree that the difference is susceptible of arbitration, the commission of inquiry shall investigate the dispute with a view of recommending a settlement without arbitration.

The commission, at the request of either government, may delay its findings one year to give an opportunity for diplomatic settlement.

The senate will ratify the terms of submission of each dispute to arbitration.

The conventions grew directly out of President Taft's speech in Washington, December 18, last, before the American Society for Judicial Settlement of International Disputes, in which he said:

Taft Leads the Way.

"If now we can negotiate a positive agreement with some great nation to abide by the adjudication of an international arbitral court in issues which cannot be settled by negotiation, no matter what it involves, whether honor, territory or money, we shall have made a long step forward by demonstrating that it is possible for two nations at least to establish, as between them, the same system of due process of law that exists between individuals under a government."

WATER'S FINE, BETTER COME IN, SAYS TAFT TO TOGO

Washington, Aug. 7.—President Taft extended to Japan through the nation's guest, Admiral Togo, at a dinner in the White House in honor of the Japanese naval here, an invitation to join the United States, Great Britain and France in the great world movement for international peace.

Rising from his chair between Admiral Togo and Speaker Clark, the President offered a toast to the Emperor of Japan. Then turning to Count Togo, he said:

Invitation Is Sincere.

"I would indeed fail in my duty and be untrue to my own deep convictions did I not take this occasion of the first public welcome to you as our national guest to express my own appreciation and that of the American people of the broad and humanitarian view taken by His Majesty, the Emperor of Japan and the imperial Japanese government in so readily and generously affirming, in the most positive and solmen manner, that no consideration of selfish interest should be permitted to obstruct the progress of the great world movement for international peace as exemplified in the general treaties of arbitration, between the United States, Great Britain and France signed on the day of your arrival in this country.

"I gladly acknoweldge this important part which Japan has played in facilitating this notable achievement by its prompt and unreserved recognition, in the recent Anglo-Japanese agreement, of the great moral principle of arbitration, and I entertain the hope with confidence that the time may not be far distant when Japan will see fit to join in the movement now so auspiciously inaugurated."

In toasting the Emperor of Japan, the President said:

Toast Drunk to Mikado.

"To one who has shown himself a great ruler, who has given all of his time and energy and intellect to the progress of his country and the preservation of the interests of the people, whose wonderful power in selection of great men to accomplish great tasks has lifted Japan to a place among the first nations of the world, and whose sense of humanity and justice can be always counted on to contribute effectively to the peace of the world—his majesty, the Emperor of Japan."

The toast was drunk standing.

ESTIMATE OF STATE FRUIT CROP IS MADE.

Grandview, Aug. 5.—That there will be 1,920 cars of apples, 180 cars of pears, two of crabapples and 1,180 cars of peaches, apricots and prunes produced this season in Washington is the estimate of W. W. Butler, president of the Washington Fruit Distributing Company, of Grandview. His estimate is low compared with those of other fruit men. By districts it is as follows:

Yakima velley, from North Yakima to the Columbia river—Apples, 600 cars; peaches, apricots and prunes, 250 cars; pears, 125 cars.

Spokane and Palouse country—Apples, 250 cars.

Telephone Lines Valued.

Olympia, Aug. 7.—The public service commission has turned over to Asesssor A. E. Parish, of King county, figures showing the value of the Bell or Sunset telephone system in Seattle as $3,100,000 and the value of the Independent Telephone Company's property in Seattle as $1,500,-000.

TAFT WILL SPEND MONTH IN WEST.

Washington, Aug. 7.—President Taft will leave Washington September 16 for a Western trip that will last at least four weeks and should it later be decided to extend the outing to the Pacific Coast, it will be stretched into six weeks, so that the president will not get back to Beverly or Washington until November.

The president will open the Appalachian Exposition at Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 18 and speak at the Kansas State Fair at Hutchinson, Kan., September 26. From Rochester, the president will make a jump to Hutchinson, Kan., where he is to speak at the state fair, September 28.

On the way he plans to stop at one or two cities in Michigan, at Chicago, and probably will make a few rear-platform, or even other sort of platform addresses in Iowa.

If the trip is to end in four weeks, Milwaukee probably will be the last stopping place. If it should be extended, the president will journey to Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake and the Coast, taking in California, Oregon and Washington, and returning East over a northern route.

PANIC WAS AVERTED SAYS ROOSEVELT

JUSTIFIES QUICK ACTION TAKEN WHEN STEEL MERGER WAS PROPOSED.

Colonel, as Voluntary Witness Before Steel Committee, Says He Approved Measure for Country's Salvation—Advocates Much Closer Supervision of Monopolistic Corporations.

New York, Aug. 5.—Theodore Roosevelt talked boldly before the House of Representatives committee of inquiry into the United States Steel Corporation here today and voluntarily told how his action in consenting to the absorption of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company by the Steel Corporation in 1907 averted a disastrous panic.

The ex-President's action in submitting to a Congressional review of his own administration was almost unprecedented in the history of the United States, and was thoroughly Rooseveltian. He arrived unheralded at the City Hall, vigorously shook hands with members of the committee, declared himself delighted to see everybody, and got down to business.

All Blame Assumed.

First he placed upon himself responsibility for approving the absorption to avert financial distress in Wall street, and condemned any man who would be so weak as not to act as he did in that crisis. Not to have done so, he said, would have been criminal.

Probably nothing in the vigorous life history of Theodore Roosevelt was more dramatic than his public appearance today at the crisis of the investigation of the transaction which has been recorded in hundreds of pages of congressional inquiry.

The chapter he contributed not only dealt with his part in the events of that threatening time, but he gave the committee some interesting opinions on the trust question that loomed up in their importance even more than his recital of facts in the Tennessee Coal & Iron transaction.

Critical Situation Saved.

After declaring that his object in approving the sale of the Tennessee company was to restore confidence, the ex-President, in response to inquiries by Representative Littleton, relating to the case as presented to him by Judge Gary and H. C. Frick at the White House conference in November, 1907, said:

"The situation was so critical that it was liable to break at any moment until the action was taken, and the instant it was taken an enormous improvement occurred."

Then Mr. Roosevelt launched into a discussion with Chairman Stanley of the general trust question, saying that the United States had something to learn from Germany.

"On another occasion I shall have been very glad to have spoken with you on trust remedies. I am sure you will not achieve your purpose by splitting up the big corporations, as I have stated again and again in messages to congress.

Germany Cited as Model.

"While something can be done along that line in addition, and, to my mind, mainly the work must be done by our national government acting, as the government of Germany has, I think, in the potash matter—by actually, in the interest of all the people, interfering and exercising a degree of control over a big corporation which it would be wholly unecessary to exercise over a corporation that has no monopolistic taint."

"I wish to say," Mr. Stanley replied, "that I am not of the opinion that the dissolution of the United States Steel Corporation into its constituent parts is an adequate remedy."

"You are quite right," said Mr. Roosevelt.

"I believe," the chairman continued, "that we must divorce absolutely the United States Steel Corporation from every common carrier on the continent, and by law force the common carriers to charge the Steel Corporation just what they charge other people. We must destroy a rebate which is against the spirit of the law, as well as a rebate which is in violation of the letter of the law."

Comment Arouses Laughter.

"Judge Landis tried to do that and failed," interrupted Mr. Roosevelt, his comment causing loud laughter.

Mr. Bartlett then suggested with reference to the proposition of more drastic control of large corporations that he had won Judge Gary over to his side, and Mr. Roosevelt replied, "I hope so."

"Judge Gary's suggestion," said Mr. Bartlett, "was that the Sherman anti-trust law had remained dormant for nearly 20 years and had never been sought to be enforced so drastically as in recent years."

Government Control Advocated.

"As it has been during my administration," said Mr. Roosevelt, sharply, leaning forward and smiling his broadest smile, "I do not know what was in Mr. Gary's mind—whether he was trying to seek a harbor of safety or not, in advocating government control. I as as sure as I can be of anything that the course I advocated repeatedly while I was president was the proper course for the United States government to take for the control of these big corporations. I am as sure as I can be of anything that the course will ultimately commend itself to the judgment of the people of the United States."

"To the extent of the government fixing prices?' asked Mr. Bartlett.

"If I would have made that suggestion instead of Judge Gary I fear I would have been accused of Socialism," Mr. Roosevelt answered, again with a smile and a vigorous nod of the head.

"Do you think you have escaped the accusation?"

"If I have I should say it is the only accusation I have escaped," was the reply.

ARCHITECTS SELECTED BY STATE CAPITOL COMMISSION

Olympia, Aug. 5.—Wilder & White, architects, of New York, were selected by the Washington state capitol commission today to have charge of the new $5,000,000 capitol to be built on the group plan, construction of which will be started within a short time. The first building will be a $350,000 temple of justice.

The commission held a competition and thirty contestants entered, among them the most famous architects in the United States. The winner takes charge of the actual construction work.

Four Money Prizes.

The first money prize went to Howell-Stokes, of New York, who were awarded $1,000 in cash; the second prize of $750 was awarded to David J. Meyers, of Seattle; the $500 prize to Willcox & Sayward, Seattle, while the $250 prize was won by Ernest Flagg, New York.

Those getting honorable mention were Gilbert Lorensburgh, San Francisco; Milton Lichtenstein, San Francisco; W. Marbury Somerville, Seattle; William K. Macomber, Seattle; Longe & Ewald, St. Louis.

Deliberate Four Days.

The decision of the commission which was reached with the assistance of a board of three advisory architects, was announced by Gov. Hay today, after the commission had spent four days doing nothing but examining plans. In each instance the verdict was unanimous.

WEST AND INSINGER ARE INTERESTED IN IRRIGATION.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 7.—"Any movement which tends to convert the sand dunes and deserts of the arid sections of our country into gardens and farms and to people these now uninhabited stretches of land with homes is a movement of the greatest magnitude and one which will bring to this country the greatest good. Such, I understand, is the purpose of the National Irrigation Congress, which has its nineteenth sessions in Chicago this December 5 to 9, and to such an organization, consequently, I ascribe my hearty approval and offer whatever co-operation it is within my power to give."

Governor Oswald West, of Oregon, thus indicates his interest in the National Irrigation congress in a recent letter to the Chicago headquarters of the organization, where efforts are being made to bring about the most important and most widely attended gathering of the kind ever seen in the United States. Governor West no doubt will be one of the guests at this meeting, as he has asserted he will be in Chicago to attend the sessions if it is possible for him to do so.

Insinger Also Interested.

R. Insinger, chairman of the board of governors of the National Irrigation congress, who was in Chicago recently to attend a meeting of this board, asserted that throughout the entire West there is a keen interest in the forthcoming gathering of irrigationists of this and foreign countries to be witnessed here during the nineteenth annual session of the National Irrigation Congress, to be held from December 5 to 9 this year. Mr. Insinger, whose home is in Spokane, Wash., takes an active part in the work of the congress and has done much, both in the United States and abroad, to spread knowledge of the economic importance of land reclamation. He asserted that the interest manifest in the December gathering prompted him to believe the meeting will be one of the most notable ones ever seen in this country.

Bristol Bay Pack Short.

The 1911 pack of canned salmon in the Bristol bay district is the smallest in recent years. Information just received by the Alaska Packers' Association from its agents in the North show that the pack this season will total but 716,000 cases, or 197,692 cases less than last year and 431,565 cases less than were packed in 1909, one of the best years in the history of the salmon industry.

PEACHES

Years ago we originated the custom of booking orders for peaches for our customers far in advance of the crop.

We have been very successful in handling our peach trade, we sold over 650 boxes last year and expect to handle over 1000 this year. Of course our plan has been adopted by other houses, but the success we have met with gives us confidence to assure you a cheaper price per box than you will obtain elsewhere.

Last year owing to the repeated washouts on both lines in the eastern part of the State, prevented shipping East, so Seattle received the largest part of the peach crop, and was sold regardless of price, but those conditions may n ver occur again.

COTTON TARIFF BILL PASSES HOUSE

VOTES OF THIRTY INSURGENTS FOR MEASURE ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Proposed Attempt to Pass Wool Bill Over President's Veto Causes Republican Leaders to Call in Absent Members From All Parts of the Country.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Supported by all the Democrats and by thirty insurgent Republicans, the Democratic cotton tariff bill, the third of the big tariff revision measures brought forward by the Democratic house of representatives, passed that body, 202 to 91.

The bill cuts the average tariff on cotton manufactured goods from 48 to 27 per cent ad valorem, a 21 per cent reduction. The Democratic leaders estimate that it reduces revenue by about $3,000,000.

Not an amendment was offered to the bill, although the Republicans attacked it vigorously on account of alleged increases in certain items over the rates of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

Scarcely had the cheers that greeted the passage of the cotton revision bill subsided when Democratic Leader Underwood, calling up the free list bill, as it passed the senate a few days ago, accomplished a strategic move which surprised the Republicans.

He asked for a conference on all the amendments to the free list bill, except that of Senator Gronna, of North Dakota, putting cement in the free list. He urged that the house accept that amendment, adding to it lemons.

Lemons On Free List.

Pacific Coast Republicans made ineffectual attempts to stop this sudden and unexpected putting of lemons on the free list, but the amendment carried.

Republican leaders in both houses of congress have called in absent members from all parts of the country, in preparation for a threatened atempt of the Democrats to pass the wool tariff bill over the president's veto.

The Democratic leaders in the house have asserted within the last twenty-four hours that they have the necessary two-thirds majority to pass the wool bill over the president's veto.

The progressive Republicans who voted for the cotton bill today were: Representatives Akin, New York; Anderson, Davis, Lindbergh, Miller, Steenerson and Volstead, of Minnesota; Esch, Kopp, Lenroot, Morse and Nelson, of Wisconsin; French, of Idaho; Hanna and Helgeson, of North Dakota; Haugen, Hubbard and Woods, of Iowa; Jackson, Madison, Rees and Young, of Kansas; Lafferty of Oregon; Kent and Stephens, of California; Kinkaid, Norris and Sloan, of Nebraska; La Follette and Warburton, of Washington.

Caucus Methods Attacked.

Bitter attacks on Democratic caucus methods by Representative Payne of New York, and other Republican leaders, and a charge by Representative Prouty, of Iowa, Republican insurgent, supported by Representatives McCall, of Massachusetts, and Hill, of Connecticut, that the Underwood bill made enormous incerases in the tariff on certain cloth manufactured in Southern mills, marked the closing hours of debate on the cotton bill.

AEROPLANES AND WARSHIPS IN MIMIC WARFARE.

Washington, D. C., Aug 7.—Battle practice between aeroplanes and battleships, a mode of warfare which navies of the world have begun to investigate, will have its first trial in connection with the United States navy off Provincetown, Mass., a week from today, when a series of tests between flying machines and the guns of the great Atlantic fleet will take place.

Trout for Eastern Washington.

Spokane, Wash. ,Aug. 7.—Two million rainbow, cut-throat and Eastern brook trout were distributed in the lakes and streams of Eastern Washington by the State fish hatchery on the Little Spokane river this season, according to Superintendent S. S. Drew, who announced today that the plant will resume early in December to double the output. The efforts of the hatchery officials have been largely directed to the introduction of Eastern brook trout, this species being well adapted to the local waters.

Build Canal Forts at Once.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The construction of fortifications of the Panama canal will begin this week at the Pacific entrance of the waterway, said Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, who returned to Washington today from Panama, and soon after arrival reported to the president. The war department will endeavor to complete the fortifications simultaneously with the opening of the canal.

LUMBERMEN OFFER LOGGED LANDS

DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION PLANS PLACED IN HANDS OF PROMINENT MEN.

Will Form a Holding Company Which Will Create Conditions Attractive to Newcomers in This State—Long Time and Low Interest.

Chehalis, Aug. 7.—Plans of the executive committee of the Southwest Washington Development Association for the development of the logged-off lands of this section of Washington have been placed in the hands of a body of prominent lumbermen, millmen and timber owners, including the following: George S. Long, of the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company, Tacoma; F. C. Mumby, Bordeaux; F. B. Hubbard, of the Eastern Railway & Lumber Company, of Centralia; H. W. Leadbetter, Portland; William B. Mack, Aberdeen; Ralph H. Burnside, Raymond; L. I. Wakefield, Elma, and George McCoy, Vancouver.

To Form Holding Company.

At the Chehalis meeting early in June plans were put forward for perfecting a permanent organization to operate as a holding company with which to list for sale the logged-off and unimproved agricultural lands of Southwestern Washington, for the purpose of making them available for settlement and production. To N. B. Coffman, of Chehalis, as head of the executive committee, was left the selection of eight men who are to act with him in arranging the details for the future work. The further study of this great question of logged-off land development and intensive farming, with the purpose of bringing about the early settlment and improvement of the lands, is now up to the committee.

The first meeting has been called for Chehalis, Monday, September 4. The plans and purposes of the association have been carefully explained personally to most of the larger lumbermen and land owners, resulting in assurances of approval and hearty co-operation. The men above named have given personal assurances not only of their willingness to serve, but also of their heartfelt interest in working out a great problem so important to the whole Northwest.

Plan to Incorporate.

The plans of the organization contemplate the incorporation of either the Southwest Washington Develoument Association itself, or the committee that will have charge of the logged-off land matter, the creation then of the committee into a permanent commission with terms of office to expire one-third annually and successors to be elected by the association. The plan would necessitate the establishment of a head office, in charge of a general land agent, and the opening of branch offices with local agents in charge, in each town where there is a club orlonging to the association.

Lands Are Offered.

The Weyerhaeuser Timber Company and most of the larger land owners in Southwest Washington have signified their willingness to list their agricultural lands with an organization framed along these lines. Listed lands could be offered either cleared ready for cultivation, or partly improved, or unimproved and subdivided into small tracts, with roads opened up and constructed, or otherwise made attractive for settlement. It is generally recognized that the more inviting the offerings are made the more quickly they will sell and the higher the prices that may be obtained.

Further details of the plan provide that the lands be listed for perhaps five years, with provision for adding taxes and interest and cost of subsequent improvements to the sale price, and that the prices for the acreage be determined by expert appraisers employed by the commission, or if fixed by the owner, to be accepted by the commission only after due appraisement and approval of values. Terms of sale are to be easy, the contracts covering a period of ten years, if desired, at an interest rate not to exceed 6 per cent. The maintenance and expense of the organization will be paid out of the sales, allowing probably 5 per cent for general maintenance and 5 per cent for commission to sales agents.

In Interest to Settler.

The early settlement of the lands is the most earnest desire of the association, and the work of the commission, therefore, would be primarily to act as agent for and in the interest of the immigrant or settler; to see that he is located where he can prosper and where by previous training he can by industry make a success in his new home; where his social surroundings will be agreeable; where there will be proper educational environments and if necessary a religious organization to his liking. The betterment of the land owner is only incidental to the larger desire for general industrial development.

Railway to Help.

Offers have already been made by the Northern Pacific of any information in possession of its land department that might serve as a guide in the organization of the proposed project. This is of especial value, as it embraces reports of surfaces, soils, etc., of granted lands in this portion of the state. Other large land owners have made similar offers.

At the meeting at Chehalis, September 4, the committee is expected to make more definite plans as to its work.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT OF OREGON CROP STATISTICS.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Statistics relative to the leading crops for the state of Oregon, collected at the Thirteenth Decennial Census, April 15, 1910, are contained in an official statement issued today by Acting Census Director Falkner.

The leading crops of the state for 1909, ranked in the order of valua- FOUR—AMERICAN 1 tion, were: Hay and forage, $15,221,000; wheat, $10,797,000; oats, $5,036,000; hops, $2,838,000; potatoes, $2,098,000; and barley, $1,507,000.

Increase in Hay and Forage.

Between 1899 and 1909 hay and forage showed an increase of 207,539 acres, or 28.4 per cent.

Wheat decreased 172,196 acres, or 19.7 per cent. The average yield per acre was 18 bushels; the average value per acre, $15.40.

Oats increased 77,676 acres, or 29.7 per cent. The total yield in 1909 was 10,874,196 bushels; the average yield per acre, 32 bushels; the average value per acre, $14.85.

The gain in hops for the decade from 1899 to 1909 was 6,329 acres, or 41 per cent. The total yield in 1909 was 16,593,362 pounds; the average yield per acre, 763 pounds; the average value per acre, $130.40.

During the decade prior to 1909 potatoes increased 14,206 acres, or 47.3 per cent. The aggregate yield in 1909 was 4,821,705 bushels; the average yield per acre, 109 bushels; the average value per acre, $47.40.

Barley Nearly Doubled.

For the decade ending 1909 barley showed an increase of 51,662 acres, or 85.6 per cent. The total yield in 1909 was 2,365,722 bushels; the average yield per acre, 21 bushels; the average value per acre, $13.45.

AUBURN FARMERS TAKE OVER CO-OPERATIVE STORE.

Auburn, Aug. 5.—The Auburn Farmers Co-operative Company, a Washington corporation, began actual operation this week when the board of trustees took over the general store and properties of the Green River Transfer Company, heretofore a partnership. The former partners are to be employed by the corporation to assist in the management.

The corporation is composed of farmers who hold stock and each stockholder is entitled to one vote. The corporation is empowered to engage in most forms of commercial activity.

Dividends are not to be paid on the stock, but to share in the dividends or profits one must be a stockholder. The stock merely draws such rate of interest, not to exceed 8 per cent, per annum, as the stockholders shall determine.

But if a stockholder patronizes the store of the corporation he will receive such portion of the net profits as is expressed by the ratio of his patronage to the total patronage.

EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION SELECTS ITS OFFICERS.

Pacific Beach, Wash., Aug. 7.—The 25th annual convention of the Washington Press Association today concluded one of its most successful gatherings at Pacific Beach, selecting Mount Vernon as the next place of meeting.

Engine Thrown Off Track.

The convention arrived here on a special train from Hoquiam after being delayed by a near-wreck, when the engine killed a bull, which threw the locomotive from the track.

Forerunner to World Peace.

Paris, Aug. 5.—The signing of the treaty is hailed in France as meaning the extension of a movement in all countries for the reduction of armaments and the absolute prevention of wars. The general view is that a tremenduous impetus has been given to the world-wide peace campaign.

MANUFACTURES OF WASHINGTON

STATEMENT OF INCREASE FROM 1904 TO 1909 GIVEN BY CENSUS BUREAU.

Nearly Four Thousand Manufacturing Establishments With Invested Capital of $222,261,000—Value of Manufactured Products Placed at $220,746,000 — Raw Materials Used Valued at $117,888,000.

Washington, Aug. 7.—A preliminary statement of the general results of the Thirteenth United States Census of Manufacturers of the state of Washington was issued today by Census Director Durand. It includes a summary comparing the figures for 1904 and 1909, by state totals, prepared under the direction of William M. Steuart, chief statistician for manufacturers, Bureau of the Census. The figures are subject to such revison as may be necessary after a f rther examination of the original reports.

Th reports were taken for the calendar year ending December 31, 1909, wherever the system of bookkeeping permitted figures for that period to be secured, but in case the fiscal year of an establishment differ d from the calendar year a report of its operations was obtained for the fiscal period falling most largely within 1909.

The Rates of Increase.

The summary for the state shows increase in all items at the census of 1909, as compared with that for 1904. These are exhibited, in percentage order, as follows:

Capital, 129 per cent; number of salaried officials and clerks, 111 per cent; cost of materials used, 78 per cent; primary horsepower, 77 per cent; salaries and wages, 74 per cent; value of products, 71 per cent; miscellaneous expenses, 70 per cent; value added by manufacture, 64 per cent; average number of wage earners, 53 per cent; and number of establishments, 34 per cent.

There were 3,674 manufacturing establishments in 1909 and 2,751 in 1904, an increase of 923, or 34 per cent.

The capital invested, as reported in 1909, was $222,261,000, a gain of $125,308,000, or 129 per cent, over $96,953,000 in 1904. The average capital per establishment was approximately $60,000 in 1909 and $35,000 in 1904. In this connection it should be stated that in the census schedule the inquiry concerning capital invested calls for the total amount both owned and borrowed and invested in the business, but does not include the value of rented property, plant, or equipment which was employed in the conduct of manufacturing enterprises. In the final bulletins and reports there will be separate statement of the rental paid for such property.

The cost of materials used was $117,888,000 in 1909, as against $66,166,000 in 1904, an increase of $51,722,000, or 78 per cent. The average cost of materials per establishment was approximately $32,000 in 1909 and $24,000 in 1904. In addition to the component materials which enter into the products of the establishment for the census year there are included fuel, rent of power and heat, and mill supplies. The cost of materials, however, does not include unused materials and supplies bought either for speculation or for use during a subsequent period.

Value of Products.

The value of products was $220,746,000 in 1909 and $128,822,000 in 1904, an increase of $91,924,000, or 71 per cent. The average per establishment was approximately $60,000 in 1909 and $47,000 in 1904.

The value of products represents the product as actually turned out by the factories during the census year, and does not necessarily have any relation to the amount of sales for that year. The values under this head also include the amount received for work done on materials furnished by others.

Value Added by Manufacture.

The value added by manufacture was $102,858,000 in 1909 and $62,656,000 in 1904, an increase of $40,202,000, or 64 per cent. This item formed 47 per cent of the total value of products in 1909 and 49 per cent in 1904. The value added by manufacture represents the difference between the cost of materials used and the value of products after the manufacturing processes have been expended upon them.

The miscellaneous expenses amounted to $18,784,000 in 1909 and $11,035,000 in 1904, an increase of $7,749,000, or 70 per cent. The average per establishment was approximately $5,000 in 1909 and $4,000 in 190. Miscellaneous expenses include rent of factory or works, taxes, and amount paid for contract work, and other expenses as can not be elsewhere classified, will appear separately in the final reports.

The salaries and wages amounted to $59,593,000 in 1909 and $34,180,000 in 1904, an increase of $25,413,000, or 74 per cent.

The number of salaried officials and clerks was 7,734 in 1909 and 3,658 in 1904, an increase of 4,076, or 111 per cent.

The average number of wage earners employed during the year was 69,120 in 1909 and 45,199 in 1904, an increase of 23,921, or 53 per cent.

The primary horsepower was 297,897 in 1909, and 168,342 in 1904, an increase of 129,555, or 77 per cent.

GOMPERS DENOUNCES STRIKE INJUNCTION AS ABUSE OF AUTHORITY.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in discussing today the injunction which has temporarily broken the street car strike in Des Moines, said.

"The judge's order is simply the logical result of an illogical premise. It is the natural development of the unnatural abuse of the injunction. The whole policy of this species of injunction has been to tie the men of labor to their work and to make ineffectual any effort to secure improvement in the condition of the worker or effectually to protect against the deterioration in the conditions of the workers."

The injunction toward which Mr. Gomper's criticism is directed was issued by Judge De Graff at Des Moines Saturday. It directed the street railway company to re-instate the man whose discharge caused the strike and at the same time ordered the street car men to resume work.

DEADLOCK IN CONFERENCE OVER THE WOOL SCHEDULE

Washington, Aug. 7.—Snator La Follette and Chairman Underwood, of the house ways and means committee, who have undertaken to reconcile the differences between the senate and the house on the wool and the farmers' free list bills for the full conference committee, are in an unquestioned deadlock, with the possibility of remaining so, and thus forcing an adjournment of the session without final action on either of these measures.

La Follette Firm.

The tie up is due to the uncompromising opposition of Mr. La Follette to the house bill. He has told Mr. Underwood that a reduction of the rates below those fixed by the bill as it passed the senate is an impossibility, and in reply the chairman of the ways and means committee, who had great difficulty in getting an agreement in the house to the rates fixed in his bill, has said that the house never will accept the senate figures.

The Main Contention.

Mr. La Follette's contention is that the senate rates constitute a reduction of about three-fourths of the difference between the rates of the Payne-Aldrich law and those of the house bill; that it is impossible to go lower and hold anything like the progressive Republicans, and that it is better for the Democrats to take half a loaf than to get nothing in the way of tariff bread.

Repudiates Figures.

Mr. Underwood did not accept the senate figures, but is canvassing the house to ascertain what increase over the house rates may be possible. He has told some of his friends that the house might be persuaded to "meet the senate half way," but the progressive leader merely smiled in response to suggestions of this character. He told Mr. Underwood that the difference was with his party friends, rather than with himself, and they sustained him in the statement.

433 IN CONGRESS AT NEXT SESSION.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The senate adopted, without roll call, the house bill fixing the number of representatives in the next congress at 433.

The bill as passed provides for an increase in representatives as follows:

Alabama 1, California 3, Colorado 1, Florida 1, Georgia 1, Idaho 1, Illinois 2, Louisiana 1, Massachusetts 2, Michigan 1, Minnesota 1, Montana 1, New Jersey 2, New York 6, North Dakota 1, Ohio 1, Oklahoma 3, Oregon 1, Pennsylvania 4, Rhode Island 1, South Dakota 1, Utah 1, West Virginia 1, Texas 2, Washing- 2.

Potlatch for Chief Barnaby.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 7.—Captain John McA. Webster, superintendent of the Colville Indian reservation has announced there will be a great potlatch at Daisy, Wash., the middle of August, when tribesmen will mourn the passing of Chief Barnaby. At the potlatch the crowning incidents of Chief Barnaby's life will be recited, after which his possessions will be distributed among his friends. Barnaby was 75 years of age at the time of his death.

His most notable speech was before President Roosevelt and Indian officials five years ago, to intercede for the payment of $1,500,000 due on land sales.

DEATH BEFORE 100 YEARS IS SUICIDE

IGNORANCE OF LAWS OF HEALTH EXPLAINS EARLY END OF LIFE.

Noted Scientist Has Encouraging Word for Despondent Men and Women.

"Death before 100 years of age has been reached is nothing more or less than slow suicide. A man (or woman) who dies at an earlier age is simply ignorant of the laws of health."

Such was the original and rather startling statement made by Professor James M. Munyon, the famous Philadelphia health authority, who is establishing health headquarters in all the large cities of the world, for the purpose of getting in direct touch with his thousands of converts.

Professor Munyon is a living embodiment of the cheerful creed he preaches. Virile, well-poised, active and energetic, he looks as though he would easily attain the century age limit which he declares is the normal one. He said:

"I want the people of the world to know my opinions on the subject of health, which are the fruit of a lifetime devoted to healing the sick people of America. There isn't a building in this city big enough to house the people in this State alone, who have found health through my methods. Before I get through there won't be a building big enough to house my cured patients in this city alone.

"I want, most of all, to talk to the sick people—The invalids, the discouraged ones, the victims of nerve-wearing, body racking diseases and ailments—for these are the ones to whom the message of hope I bear will bring the greatest blessing.

"I want to talk to the rheumatics, the sufferers from stomach trouble, the ones afflicted with that noxious disease, catarrh. I want to tell my story to the women who have become chronic invalids as a result of nervous troubles. I want to talk to the men who are 'all run down,' whose health has been broken by overwork, improper diet, late hours, and other causes, and who feel the creeping clutch of serious chronic illness.

"To these people I bring a story of hope. I can give them a promise of better things. I want to astonish them by showing the record of cures performed through my new system of treatment.

"I have taken the best ideas from all schools, and embodied them in a new system of treatments individually adapted to each particular case. I have no 'cure alls,' but my present method of attacking disease is the very best thought of medern science. The success which I have with these treatments in this city, and all over America proves their efficacy. Old methods must give away to new medical science moves. I know what my remedies are doing for humanity everywhere. I know what they will do for the people of this city. Let me prove my statements—that's all I ask."

The continuous stream of callers and mail that comes to Professor James M. Munyon at his laboratories, 53rd and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa., keeps Dr. Munyon and his enormous corps of expert physicians busy.

Prof. Munyon makes no charge for consultation or medical advice. Not a penny to pay. Address Prof. J. M. Munyon, Munyon's Laboratories, 53rd and Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

Way of the World.

Every man has a bag hanging before him, in which he puts his neighbor's faults, and another behind him in which he stows his own.

Self-Evident.

"They say she has never quarreled with her husband." "Then she must get up and close the windows herself every time it rains at night."—Detroit Free Press.

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The favorite family laxative.

Great Writer Not Fond of Music.

Dr. Johnson was among those who had no high opinion of music. He admitted that "if he had learnt musick he should have been afraid he would have done nothing else but play," but explained that "it was a method of employing the mind without the labor of thinking at all and with some applause for a man's self." He also confessed that "he knew a drum from a trumpet and a bagpipe from a guitar which was about the extent of his knowledge of musick."

Mothers will find Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup the best remedy to use for their children during the teething period.

Dainty Cuff Links.

Dainty cuff links may be made of crochet buttons, sewing two together, like the parts of a dumb-bell link, with a strong thread loop of the right length, and buttonholing over it. These links will not be lost like many others.

Smoky Achill.

One of the smokiest places on earth is undoubtedly Achill, off the coast of Mayo, Ireland, says Harper's Weekly. A smoky atmosphere is not an unknown thing in any Irish cabin, but in Achill the greater the smoke the higher the satisfaction of the natives, for these smoke means potatoes, and potatoes mean food.

It is to one of the methods of procuring soot that the islander owes the smoky condition of his cabin. Soot he must have, or the potatoes will not grow. In the tiled fields he erects little huts called "scrawhogues," formed by the "scraws" or sods of heather from the mountains. Within these huts he keeps a fire of peat burning for six weeks or two months, at the end of which period the scraws are, from their continual impregnation with smoke, transformed into soot.

Turf or peat is abundant on the island, and the largest fires cost nothing.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies have done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctors said I had tumors, and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. Your Liver Pills have no equal as a cathartic. Any one wishing proof of what your medicines have done for me can get it from any druggist or by writing to me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PEYROUX, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

SAND SUPPORTS 40 STORIES

One of the Greatest Tests in History of Engineering Made in New York.

New York.—Loaded with a dead weight sufficient to crush a solid cast-iron column eight and three-quarters inches in diameter, one of the 106 concrete piers that will support a 40-story skyscraper in this city settled less than an inch, although resting on a sand foundation. This remarkable test entirely demonstrated the safety of building part of the immense structure on sand, for the test load of 908 tons of the concrete pier exceeded by 66 per cent. the maximum load that will ever be put on this particular support, even under the most extreme conditions of wind pressure, and the pier used for the test was purposely chosen as being the weakest link in the chain of piers comprising the foundations of the building.

This 40-story structure, the latest of New York's mammoth skyscrapers, is the municipal building being erected at the Manhattan terminus of the Brooklyn bridge. The engineers have calculated that a total vertical load of 65,000 tons will have to be supported by the foundations under the most extreme conditions of loading and wind pressure, a force that would absolutely crush a solid castiron column of about ten feet in diameter.

Owing to the fact that a quicksand underlies the site of the building, some extraordinary engineering problems had to be solved in its construction, and these were rendered still more difficult inasmuch as only 68 of the 106 concrete piers could be sunk by the pneumatic caisson process to reach the solid rock. The others had to bear on sand and this was the reason for making a direct bearing test on the most unfavorably situated of the remaining 38 piers, to make sure that they would support and transmit through the sand to the underlying rock the load of six tons per square foot they have to bear. The rock-supported piers carry 15 tons per square foot.

The test was extended over a period of 24 days, the load being added gradually for 17 days and left in position for a week before being removed. The pier tested is 10 feet 9 inches in diameter and 34 feet 5 inches deep. A grillage of two tiers of 24-inch I-beams was laid over a bed of 3-inch plank placed on top of the pier, so as to form a cross measuring 15 feet by 20 feet in extreme dimensions. On this were placed the loading blocks of cast iron, weighing about 3,500 pounds each.

Bible on Long Trip.

Chicago.—In the fall of 1900 Masons of Chicago started a Bible on a long journey. It is to be kept for a time in the possession of at least one lodge in every principal city of the country and ultimately returned to its starting point to be placed among the precious archives of the Chicago Masons.

It is expected that 25 years will be required for the Bible to complete its passage from lodge to lodge until all the blank pages provided for the record of its custodians shall have been filled. A lodge in Columbus, O., sent a special train to Springfield in that state to convey the traveling Bible to a lodge there, where it was received with impressive ceremonies. Before reaching Columbus it had been in the possession of lodges in Cincinnati and Dayton.

Decline of the Boatswain.

The rumored disestablishment of boatswains, as an anachronism dating from the days of sail, is no more likely to come to pass than the extermination of the carpenters as a survival of the wooden age. But the former class have little enough share in the general improvement of service conditions. What was said in Truth the other day as to the gunners getting all the plums out of the pudding is particularly borne out by one grievance under which the bo'suns labor. In 1891 there were nearly 400 boatswains and a like number of gunners. The respective proportion of chiefs and warrants were about equal. Today there are 262, including 12 lieutenants and 27 warrants; while there are 890 gunners, including 36 lieutenants and 78 warrants. The expansion of the latter branch is a natural and necessary corollary of the growth of the fleet, but it is equally true that the shrinkage of the former class is unnatural and unnecessary—London Truth.

Pleasure of the Children.

There should be some time during the day, even in the busiest household, an hour at least, set apart in which the older members of the family should devote themselves wholly to the children. Little object lessons or stories containing practical knowledge told in an interesting way will be sure to hold their attention. The story of the gradual formation of the fruits, flowers and vegetables will delight them and will be eagerly looked forward to and always remembered.

Two large bottles of Hessian rum 150 years old are among the latest finds of historical experts who are excavating in the ruins of old Fort Washington on the Hudson river just above Riverside drive, New York. The excavations are on the site of the Hessian barracks, in what was for a long time known as "Death gulch" from the large number of Hessians who fell in the rout of Washington's army from the heights. The rum bottles were found 12 feet under ground.

When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps.

Chivalrous New Yorkers.

"New York," said an ex-Washingtonian, "has always been held up to me as a place where chivalry was largely forgotten in the race for material things, but I'm of a different opinion after what I witnessed the other night. A woman boarded a Seventh avenue car at the Pennsylvania station, carrying a baby with one arm and with the other a large suit case to which was strapped a violin and a sword. A queer mixture it was. At Forty-second street when she started to get out to take the subway the conductor without saying a word stopped his car, picked up all her belongings except the baby and carried them to the sidewalk. There another man who had been on the car picked them up and carried them down the stairs and on to a train. Then at Seventy-second street, when she got out to change for an express, if a man sitting next to her didn't grab her luggage and carry it aboard the express train. I left the train before she did, but I'll be willing to bet that she got some help before she got home. And this was New York."

Peculiar Firm Names.

"In Honolulu," writes a New York Sun correspondent, "I saw a few interesting signboards evincing Oriental enterprise. One was that of an ambitious firm, 'On, On & Co.' Another was that of a ladies' tailor, 'Hook On.' A third stood for a dealer in foods, 'Ah Chew.' On my way home through Texas I came into touch with the two law firms named below: 'Saner & Saner,' 'Head, Hare & Head.' In such harmony do the celestial orbits move and give voice to their delightful consonance."

"TRIP WORTH THE TAKING"

The trip to Lake Crescent made from here by automobile is one of unusual beauty and is rapidly gaining in popularity. It is hard to find a trip of similar distance which offers more sights of interest than is found in covering the sixty-eight miles separating Irondale from this picturesque mountain lake.

The road connecting the two places is excellently kept up and in passing over it, one is met with a constantly changing view of woods, straits, mountains, fertile fields and rushing mountain streams. Its beauties appear to be more generally appreciated by outsiders than people living right here, but those who are fortunate enough to make the journey return more than repaid for the time and expense of the trip. One idea is, however, always expressed by these travelers, and this is that the Olympic peninsula country needs more roads and better ones. While at present the system of county highways both of Clallam and Jefferson, is exceptionally good, the heavy teaming carried on in many places calls for constant repairs. This, if attended to at once, it is claimed, can easily be remedied and the roads kept in splendid condition with little expense.

One who made the Lake Crescent trip has the following to say concerning it:

Our party left Irondale about 9 o'clock in the morning and as an objective point had one of the delightful hotels on Lake Crescent in view. We were well fitted for the seventy-mile automobile journey and our host drove a machine which was perfection of its kind. Leaving the Steel City by the county road, Discovery bay was soon reached by way of the Keymes road. From there we were carried swifty over the delightful winding thoroughfare circling the head of the bay, and the mountain road leading to Washington Harbor.

Probably one of the most beautiful scenes of the trip is noted from the high shores of Discovery bay. Magnificent fields overlooked the blue waters and for several miles the road follows closely the curves of the bay shores. Across the bay "Crybaby" mountain looks high and dark, and one naturally thinks it will be a matter of hard work in crossing its divide. But like many other threating troubles, these disappear as one reaches it, and the road crosses the Clallam county line after a smart climb up a road which is easily negotiated by horse or automobile. From the top of the divide down to Sequim bay or Washington Harbor, the way drops gradually and much less noticeably than is found on this side. Through a country, a short time ago covered with heavy timber but now rapidly disappearing through the efforts of the lumberman, the journey carries the traveler past clearings and comfortable homes, all forerunners of an agricultural prosperity which is now making rapid encroachments on the forest lands.

Washington Harbor is one of the beauty spots of the trip. More like a lake it appears and its narrow entrance conveys an impression that it has no connection with the straits, which stretch their length far to the north. From the head of the bay a beautiful valley opens to view, and here commence the big black line of the foothills, guarding the higher mountains of the Olympic range. They tower one back of the other, each growing higher and higher until they carry the vision right into the great hills whose high heads are crowned with everlasting snow.

It is but a few short miles between the bay and the prosperous town of Sequim. To those who are familiar with the Sequim prairie of a few years back, the transformation is hard to realize. A one-time valuless area of land has been made to blossom and support prospercusly a large population of enterprising agriculturists and fruit growers. It is but another example of what water will do for a dry region and Sequim prairie is a marvel of modern farming.

Leaving Sequim with its beautiful homes and thriving places of business, one journeys for miles through as rich a farming country as is found out of doors. It was the time of the year when grains and grasses were at their best, and the fields presented a wonderful sight. Wheat and oats stood fence-high and so thickly together that one was tempted to try an overland walk on their tops. Watered by numerous streams, the largest being the Dungeness river, the country between Sequim and Port Angeles is impressive and beautiful; on the one hand extend the Straits of Juan de Fuca, while on the other, getting closer and closer, are the mountains and dense forests. Evidences of agricultural progress are nearly always visible, and there is ever so much of the untramelled forest to attract and hold the attention.

It is after leaving the thriving city of Port Angeles one really commences on the scenic part of the Lake Crescent trip. The foothills grow rapidly and mountains that seemed ever so far away a short time before now are almost within reach. Passing scattered clearings, the woods steadily grow deeper and thicker and after several miles the roar of the Elwha river is heard, adding new tones to the forest murmurs. Until the road leading to the plant of the Olympic Power company is reached, one is jostled rather frequently by the cuts and ruts caused by transporting heavy loads of cement and building material to the site of the enormous power plant of the company. But these irregularities of the roadway are easily forgotten when one realizes the great work being done; transmission wires were being strung, and over these will flow the electrical currents which will work greater changes to the west side than is realized at first sight.

Into the forest reserve, among great trees of wonderful girth, cedars whose tops rival the big hills for distance above the earth and moss-covered spruce and Douglas firs, the smooth, hard road winds its way through deep valleys and slowly up the sides of the mountains. Decending from a small eminence possibly eleven miles from Port Angeles, it comes to the level of the Elwha, which is a glacier-fed stream of more than usual size found on the Straits side of the Olympics. A hollow cedar stump, shake thatched, calls for attention as it stands lonely in a bit of cleared meadow land It was the first postoffice building for the locality and from it was distributed the scanty mail consigned to the early pioneers of the Elwha valley Again the road leaves the river and after crossing it, by means of a covered bridge, and on gaining the top of the hill, one looks up the valley to where the sight is blocked by a huge, snow topped peak. You are told that near this are the newly found thermal springs, known as the Olympic Hot springs. Already they have become widely known and a party of Port Townsend people were then preparing for the twelve-mile horseback journey to enjoy the beauties of their situation and the benefits of their medicinal qualities.

Six miles from the covered bridge the road breaks suddenly into a depression, surrounded by enormous rocks of volcanic origin and brings into view Lake Sutherland. Set in its grim surroundings, the lake shows like a keen-cut emerald Smaller than its companion, Crescent, the little lake asks favors from none for attractiveness. Its fishing is something to talk about. But it was not to Lake Sutherland we were bound.

Less than three miles separate the two lakes, and this distance is perceptibly diminished by the splendid road over which one travels. Built by joint county and state aid expense, this highway is one of the most appealing found in the country. Its smooth surface and easy grades are the delight of the automobile driver's heart and it is a struggle to decide which should be most observed; the natural magnificence of the country or the calls for speed tests on the part of the machine.

Lake Crescent broke into view with a rush. Its sparkling waters reflected the tremendous hills and the deep green of the forests lent their depth of color to the darkening depths of the huge mountain pool. The eleven miles of length of Lake Crescent is materially dwarfed by the enormity of its mountains and the clearness of the atmosphere. Distances are diminished and it is hard to realize that so many miles are represented when one contemplates its shore line.

But evening was rapidly drawing near when the end of the road was reached. East Beach is the name given this picturesque spot and at this point is found a snug little hotel, landing pier and garage. This latter was already occupied by two formidable looking touring cars, and these had been carried by steamer to Port Townsend in order that a former secretary of war might view some of the district of the farthest northwestern corner of the United States. Leaving the machine safely housed, we took passage on a small launch and after a five-mile voyage were deposited on the landing marking the entrance to the Marymere hotel grounds. A late dinner was cheerfully provided by the attendants and, strange to relate, no subdued mutterings emanated from the lips of the young women who served the tables.

Comfortable tents, and sleep-producing mattresses worked more soothingly on tired bodies than any opium ever grown in the poppy fields of the far east. The last glimpse before sleep overtook us was that of a solitary star blazing brightly over the rugged top of Storm King mountain. It blinked so easily that weariness could not resist, and again it was morning.

A trip of two miles up the little river entering the lake at Marymere brought us the next morning to the falls of the same name, and the filmy waters, spun into silver threads by their long fall from the cliffs above, made a sight well worth the trail journey in reaching. But our time was limited, and after breakfast a look about the rest-bringing resort ended our time for the lake, and the return must be thought of.

Home was reached by early night, and the trip was pleasantly varied by returning by way of the prosperous town of Dungeness. There was not a dull moment in the two days; there may be more beautiful and alluring journeys but it is to be doubted. To those who want a trip worth while; an outing that will leave a pleasant memory, one should journey from Irondale to Lake Crescent by way of the overland route.

ORGIES IN NEW GUINEA.

Of the unpleasant drinking customs of certain nations in New Guinea Walter Goodfellow writes: "We did not find the people down by the coast nearly so tractable or companionable as those at the headwaters of the river. They were also much more quarrelsome among themselves. They tap a species of sugar palm up the river and make fermented drink out of it. On this they get fearfully intoxicated, and wild orgies take place all day. Parties of them would go off in canoes and sit under the palms from which the drink was obtained. In the morning they would return extremely drunk, and fights used to be the result.

"Sometimes these fights lasted for two days at a time. In our vicinity they more often than not took place at night. The natives then made such an indescribable din with their howling and their noises that we could not sleep at our base camp. Spears and showers of arrows were discharged in all directions, and one could hear the sound of their axes dealing blows on the bodies of the combatants.

"After a time the women would join in the fray, and their shrill voices added to the babel, making the noise greater than ever. When they became involved in the fights they seemed to be worse than the men. The cries were not like sounds emitted by human beings, but rather like the cries of animals."—Chicago News.

Wanted to Make Sure.

Under ordinary conditions he was a man of prominence, but as he ascended the steps of his residence very early in the morning it was very evident that he desired to be as much otherwise as possible. The cabby was lingering near by to see that his charge was safely disposed of for the night. The door opened before the man on the steps could get the key to work, and he was greeted with the question, "Henry, where have you been?" (Silence.) "Hen-ry, where have you been?" (He turns to descend the steps.) "Are you going to answer my question?" "Yes, dearie heart, I sure am. From my personal knowledge, beloved o' my soul, I can't give th' desired inf'mation. So you jest lay down again while I go back an' ask th' hack driver!"—Argonaut.

They Go Into Particulars In High Life In England.

In this country, when the contracting parties to a marriage desire to inform the public of the event, you will see inserted in the proper column a little notice like this:

"Brown-Smith.—Married on Saturday, March 4, at St. Joseph's church, Mary Smith to William Brown."

It's simple and sufficient. But did you ever take up one of the English social weeklies and see how a marriage is recorded? It will read something like this:

"Married at Ramsgate Rookery, near Oakley, Stafford, at noon on Thursday, 30th instant, by the Rev. Plantagenet Clutterbuck, LL. D., F. R. S., A. T. S., M. N. O., Q. R. D., uncle to the bride, rector of St. Bartholomew's church, Elephant's Head, Briary lane, Berkeley, assisted by the Rev. Theophilus Timoleon Titmouse, J. O. B., R. R., R. X. Y. Z., D. B. F., cousin of the bridegroom, rector of Cavalry church, St. Martin's-in-the-Back-Cellar, Man's Nose, Grantley, Gertrude Maude Beatrice Constance, daughter of Grantville Neville Bollingbroke Bopgappers, Esq., L. RESEMBLES A MERMAID.

If the Dugong Had Long Hair It Would Make a Real Sea Woman.

The old stories about mermaids do not seem so improbable after all when one looks at a full sized dugong. The only thing it lacks to make it a real sea woman is long hair.

This enormous fish has flippers instead of fins and rudimentary arms. The flippers end in four distinct fingers and are startingly like the human hand. The shoulders of this weird marine creature slope in to a short but perfectly defined neck, on which is set a round head. The eyes are like a human being's in shape and expression, but very much larger. They are set far apart on each side of the head and have a brown iris swimming in a white ball, but are lidless. The dugong has no nose, but the forehead is broad and well developed, and while the mouth is "fishy" in shape there is a distinct under lip.

The dugong is twice the height of a tall man when it is full grown, and a mother dugong moving about through the water holds her baby tenderly in her "arms" pressed to her breast, just as a human mother does.

Glimpses of this strange inhabitant of the sea no doubt gave rise to the old time belief in mermaids. The dugong is rapidly becoming extinct, but still can be found in fairly large numbers in the Indian ocean.—New York Press.

SICKROOM PLANTS.

Why They Should Be Put Out of Doors During the Night.

In his random suggestions to his students, printed in the Medical Record, Robert H. M. Dawbarn, M. D., tells why it is considered best not to keep flowers or growing plants in a sickroom at night. Flowers give off moisture taken up from the soil; hence air becomes somewhat humid if many—particularly growing plants—are kept in the room. Flowers having a method of breathing, they use up the oxygen as human beings do and in exchange give off carbonic dioxide as waste matter

The action of sunlight upon the stems, leaves and all green parts of flowers is to store carbonic dioxide within the plants and release oxygen. Thus in daylight there is a fair balance between the carbonic dioxide and the oxygen given and taken, leaving neither good nor ill results. But during the entire night the plant continues to breathe, and until the return of daylight the oxygen is used just like an additional person breathing in the room, thus leaving less oxygen for the use of the invalid. Therefore the standing order to remove all plants and flowers at night is based upon the facts of plant physiology and is right.
