RANCHERS WILL TAKE UP BERRY CULTURE

Mr. J. J. McDonald says that the ranchers in the vicinity of Port Angeles are much interested in his statements in regard to the growing and drying of Logan berries for market, as reported in the Olympic-Leader of last week. He visited a number of ranchers during the week and all were interested in what he had to say, many expressing a desire to set out a small tract if they could secure the plants at a reasonable price and be assured the use of a drier when the berries were ready for market. Mr. McDonald thought he might be able to supply a limited quantity of the young plants at a price not to exceed $5 per hundred. Also that he might be prepared to return to Angeles two years hence, when plants set out next spring would be in profitable bearing, and erect a drier, but he could not say positively as to the last proposition. Mr. McDonald returned to his home at Salem Wednesday.

It might be a wise thing for the Commercial Club to look closely into this matter, and assist ranchers who are disposed to make a trial, in securing the plants.

BROTHERHOOD HAS INTERESTING SESSION

Work of Rev. Edwards and Mr. Celian for the Boys Will Be Continued by Mr. Edgar.

A very interesting session of the Brotherhood of the First Congregational Church of Port Angeles was held in the church last Monday evening, nearly fifty members being present. This was the annual meeting, and election of officers occurred, and the annual reports of the secretary and treasurer were read; the reports showing a membership of eighty in good standing and the Brotherhood in a flourishing condition, financially and otherwise.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in a good natured rivalry for favorite candidates. But a few moments were required, however, to demonstrate that a large majority of those present favored the re-election of the present officers. The only exception being the election of Dr. D. E. McGillivray vice-president instead of G. M. Lauridsen, who expects to spend the winter in California. The rules were suspended, and the present efficient president, R. D. Willson, was unanimously re-elected by a rising vote. The secretary was then instructed to cast the vote of the Brotherhood for the re-election of Conrad Luppen as treasurer, and Mr. Luppen, upon request, returned the compliment by casting a unanimous vote for R. A. Gilmore for secretary. Each officer, as re-elected, was called upon for a speech, and much felicitation and good will prevailed.

After the reading, by the secretary, of the report of the Outlook committee, Mr. Boyd Edgar was called upon for a report of the progress of the proposition for the organization of a Boys' Club, which proposition Mr. Edgar had presented at a previous meeting of the Brotherhood. Mr. Edgar reported that the boys' club was organized November 18th, under the title of "Angeles Boys' Club," with a good charter membership. He read the by-laws and constitution of the organization, The object of the club is to "instill in the minds and hearts of its members a love for all that is clean and manly in athletics, politics, and business; to respect religion; to honor the flag of our country; to cherish virtue and conduct ourselves with decorum always."

The membership of the club is to be limited to the members of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the Central schools of Port Angeles. The officers to consist of a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and athletic director and sergeant. The board of directors to be selected from the business men of Port Angeles and to consist of three members. Dues to be 25c per month, payable in advance; a fine of five cents to be assessed against each member for failure to attend a regular meeting. Regular meetings to be held on Wednesday and Saturday nights of each week.

Mr. Edgar stated that the membership was to be confined to these three grades of our public schools for the reason that he felt that these were all the boys he could properly handle at this time, but hoped to be able to branch out later, and eventually effect an organization and affiliate with the Boy Scouts of America.

It was decided that the next monthly meeting of the Brotherhood should be an open one, and the ladies, the wives and sweethearts of the members, be invited to join in a Christmas feast and greeting of good cheer.

Stephen Smith, Jr., was elected janitor at a salary of $4 per month.

As the church is to have an elegant new carpet, covering the entire floor, before the next meeting of the Brothhood, when the banquet to the ladies is to be given, it was decided that this carpet should be covered with matting for the occasion, whereupon a committee was appointed and sufficent funds subscribed on the spot to buy half dozen mattings for the purpose.

The supper, as upon all former occasions, was an excellent one, graciously served by young ladies, and a vote of thanks was extended the ladies of the aid society of the church for the same.

At the first regular meeting of the Angeles Boys' Club held Wednesday, Nov. 22nd, the following officers were elected:

President, Oliver Mitchell;
Vice President, Frank Fisher;
Secretary, Jerry Wilson;
Treasurer, Lester Allen;
Sergeant, Carl Fisher;
Athletic Director, Boyde Edgar.

Twelve charter members signed the by-laws and three names were proposed.

MICHAEL EARLES IS PRESIDENT

Seattle and Olympic Peninsula Railway Incorporated This Week the Line that Will Be Built.

Michael Earles, one of those notable men of the Puget Sound country who do big things, and who always do big things in a big way, has taken hold of the railroad proposition as president of a new incorporation, and it would be difficult today to find a man in the entire Olympic Empire who is not absolutely certain railroad building will be in progress within a year at the most.

With the announcement by Mr. Aldwell Sunday, upon his return from Seattle, that there would be but one right-of-way secured and a united effort upon one road, all felt a distinct sense of relief. Details are not yet to be given out, but it is understood that within thirty days matters will be adjusted as between Morrow and his friends, the electric company of which Aldwell is president, and the new incorporation.

Articles were filed Tuesday at Olympia for the Seattle and Olympic Peninsula Railway, with Michael Earles, T. T. Aldwell and Jas. A. Kerr incorporators, and directors for the coming ninety days. The question of whether the road shall be steam or electric was not taken up. It is understood that Earles and Glines each put in $100,000 and the money for construction is practically guaranteed.

The two crews of surveyors are still at work here at Angeles, as well as a third crew which started at the other end of the line Monday.

The whist tournament given last Friday evening in the opera house by the Women's Auxiliary, was a decided success in every way and the ladies will have a nice little sum to assist the Commercial Club in buying chairs for their club room. These entertainments seem to grow more and more popular, but the ladies will not hold another until after the New Year. It is the plan now to give a masquerade on the eve of New Years day at which time provision will be made for those who wish to play cards. On Friday evening the prizes distributed as follows: 1st married ladies', Mrs. F.A.Lewis; 2nd married ladies', Mrs Horace White; 1st single ladies', Athlene Fisher; 2nd single ladies', Miss Mathewson; 1st married men's, Ed. Shields; 2nd married men's, A.R. Pringle; 1st single men's, Clay Wolverton; 2nd single men's, Dr. Taylor.

A good many people in Port Angeles had no water with which to wash their faces Sunday morning last, to say nothing of the necessary liquid to make coffee, wash the dishes and do other numerous household stunts for which water is commonly used. The trouble was caused by the water plant being out of repair. The weather clerk was on hand, however, with copious showers, and everybody filled pans and tubs to tide them over the city water famine, which proved to be of short duration.

Sportsmen at Port Townsend will also organize a game protective association and work in conjunction with the recently organized Angeles association.

"The movers in these protective organizations believe that the game of the Olympic peninsula is one of its chief assets and should be conserved for the benefit of the peninsula and to all sportmen who may visit this section.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Commercial Club, held Wednesday evening, Secretary Cosser was authorized to advertise, throughout Canada, Port Angeles as an ideal place to locate for those intending to retire from business and seeking a new home. Also those seeking a desirable winter resort at nominal cost.

A well authenticated report says that development work on the Clallam coal mines is to be resumed. The steamer Bellingham landed supplies, men and machinery and the flooded mines are now being pumped out. It is said that the new company will construct bunkers from which vessels can load.

The case of Leadbetter vs. Kerkes was settled in court this week by the former receiving the $1250 cash he put into the business and giving up the notes and mortgages he held, and Kerkes will resume the proprietorship with Erb Nichols as partner, it is rumored.

WOMEN'S LITERARY CLUB TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT

Lillian Whitman, in Pianologues and Monologues, Opera House, Wednesday, Dec. 6th.

The people of Port Angeles are tendered the opportunity of a rare treat in the entertainment given by Miss Lillian Whitman to be held in he opera house Wednesday evening, December 6th, at 8 o'clock, under the direction of the W. L. C.

Miss Whitman comes very highly recommended as an entertainer. She is a graduate of Dean Academy, Franklin, Mass., and was for three years a student in the Boston Conservatory of Music. Her elocutionary studies were pursued under the late Prof. S. R. Kelley. Miss Whitman has also had the advantage of two years' travel in Europe and South America; and during her residence of a year in Brazil received a diploma from the Centro-Musical de Rio de Janeiro. Combined with her extraordinary educational advantages, Miss Whitman possesses in an unusual degree that charm of manner and fascinating personality which goes so far toward an entertainers success.

Her entertainment consists of pianologues and monologues and is something bright, humorous and refined. From her many credentials we append the following:

"What can a pastor say in grateful appreciation of a lady who has helped so royally. Here, we all trust you, and the mere statement that you are responsible for an entertainment will fill the house. We all wish you success, but we want you at home."—Chas. W. Bates, Pastor West Parish Cong'l Church, West Barnstable, Mass.

WILL HAVE OLD FASHIONED SPELLING BEES

Clallam and Jefferson to Have Joint Contest Between Best Spellers in Each County.

A plan to improve the spelling of the grammar school children of the counties of Jefferson and Clallam, which was discussed at the late joint teachers' institute held in this city, will shortly be put into effect, says the Townsend Leader, and it is hoped that this and similar tests will do much to revive interest in this important branch of a child's education, which, it must be sadly admitted, is very much neglected by the present educational system, which aims more at preparing students for the institutions of higher education, rather than ground them in anything which might prove of value to the student whose plan of life does not include a course at one of the universities.

At the recent institute a resolution was adopted endorsing the plan of holding inter-county spelling matches, and Superintendents Phillips and McNutt are now preparing to launch the campaign for a more thorough knowledge of the young people with the commoner words of the English language.

A list of 1200 words in common usage has been prepared and printed. These will be distributed among the many schools of the two counties, giving the pupils of each an opportunity to familiarize themselves with all the words on the list. The schools of each county have been

Woodland, Wash.—Seven men of a log-driving crew of 13 went to their deaths Friday afternoon in the rain-swollen waters of the North Fork of the Lewis river, near the mouth of Speilei creek, 22 miles above this city, when their skiff was borne by the turbulent current into an eddy and capsized.

Tumbled into the chill mountain stream, even the few expert swimmers among them had little chance.

Their heavy caulked boots and thick clothing pulled them down and most of them sank after a few struggles.

Of the six who escaped, two were swept by the whirlpool against the sides of their overturned boat. They managed to cling there until the bobbing craft was cast against the bank. Two others, keeping themselves above the current, were carried a quarter of a mile down stream before they could crawl on the saving gravel.

Two others, unable to swim, by the merest chance arose near the bank and managed to clutch the branches of overhanging trees, by which they pulled themselves to land.

Those who escaped were Gilbert Murk, Justus Murk, Frank Reid and Riley McCarty, foreman of the crew, all of Woodland, and two others who had been working only a few days and whose names were not contained in the meager long-distance telephone report of the disaster.

The three Murk boys were brothers. When Gilbert and Justus reached shore, after a fierce struggle in the freezing waters, it was to find that Arnold had gone down almost at the moment when he might have dragged himself to safety.

PUMPING UNITS PROPOSED.

Extension of Okanogan Irrigation Project is Contemplated.

Washington, D. C.—The reclamation service is making an investigation of the feasibility of extending the Okanogan project in Washington by the addition of two units. Both will be irrigated by pumping.

One unit includes 1,100 acres in the present project limits, known as the Robinson flat, and requires a lift of 180 feet. The other will take in lands in the Colville Indian reservation. To perfect this it will be necessary to construct a power plant on Salmon River and transmit power to the various points from which water will be pumped into canals from the Okanogan river.

The feasibility of the scheme depends upon the cost and in some measure upon the ability of the service to dispose of the surplus power which can be developed from its plant. Up and down the Okanogan River are numerous fine benches which might be irrigated from pumps operated by this power.

GRANGE SHOWS GROWTH.

Washington and Oregon Branches Organizing Busily.

Columbus, O.—Wide and prosperous growth of the National Grange was show in the report of Secretary Freeman. There were organized, among others, 51 new granges in Washington and 46 in Oregon in the past year.

C. B. Kegley, master of Washington State Grange, demanded that the charges preferred against him by S. J. Hill, of Washington, be heard at once. He objected to the referring of the charges to a committee which quashed them. The matter of reopening the charges was referred to the committee on grievances.

The insurgents declared that the effort to quash the charges was inspired by fear that complications would arise because Kegley is master of the Washington Grange, although a resident of Idaho, and because National Master Batchelder placed Idaho under the Washington Grange's jurisdiction.

The regulars say Kegley's desire to press the reading of the charges is inspired by the belief that irregular organiaztion methods may be exposed.

Bodies Burned in Wreck.

Butte, Mont.—An empty passenger train returning to Livingston struck a Northern Pacific work train at Spys Rock, three miles west of Pipestone, killing six men who were riding in the caboose of the work train. It is believed that the work train backed up through the canyon beyond the flag limit. The passenger was traveling down grade at good speed when the work train was struck. The cars took fire immediately and before the wrecking crew could be summoned were burned and four bodies were cremated.

Admiral Suicide at 82.

Washington, D. C.—Rear-Admiral John Yeatman Taylor, U. S. N., retired, shot himself in his residence here Saturday, dying within a half hour. He was 82 years old. Despondency over failing health is believed to have prompted the suicide. Admiral Taylor was one of the most distinguished naval surgeons of the country. Before the Civil war he saw service as an Indian fighter in what was then the Territory of Washington.

Dozen Lashes is Penalty.

Vancouver, B. C.—Five years' imprisonment and 12 lashes was the sentence imposed on Clarence Thompson, who robbed an elderly man during a walk home after they had made acquaintance on the street.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT AND PROGRESS OF OUR HOME STATE

RAILROAD BUILDING TOWN.

O.-W. R. & N. to Spend $500,000 Improving Tono, Wash.

Centralia — The Washington Coal company, a subsidiary of the O.-W. R. & N., has appropriated $500,000 for improving the town of Tono, 12 miles northeast of Centralia. Of this amount $250,000 will be expended for a light and power plant, and in addition 60 new houses will be built and a new mine opened.

The company is now employing 125 men and mining 800 tons of coal a day, but the daily output will soon be increased to 2,000 tons. All the lignite to be burned in the 100 new locomotives recently purchased by the Harriman system will be taken from the Tono mines.

There is considerable speculation as to the ultimate purpose of the power plant. Several months ago it was rumored that the O.-W. R. & N. intended to electrify its line from Centralia to Tono, as well as the Gray's Harbor branch as far west as Rochester. It was proposed at that time to inaugurate a three-hour service between Tono and Rochester, and the appropriation for the power plant seems to indicate that the company intends carrying out the project.

The fact that a $250,000 power plant would furnish much more power than could possibly be used in the Tono mines strengthens the belief that the lines will be electrified. The company will also expend $200,000 in sinking another shaft at the mines preparatory to increasing the output.

LAST OF APPLES SHIPPED.

200 Cars of Fruit Sent From Walla Walla Completes Harvest.

Walla Walla—With the shipment of 200 cars of apples the harvest in the Walla Walla valley is complete. This is less than half the amount sent out last year, but it is close to a normal crop. Cold weather has stopped all fruit shipments, except a few rush orders in refrigerator cars.

Late frost, a warm winter and overbearing the year before are causes to which the low yield may be attributed. In few places did fruit escape damage of some kind.

One consolation in the low yield is that correspondingly high prices are paid. Good apples have been shipped and there is difficulty in finding good fruit.

WENATCHEE FRUIT AT SHOW.

Red Apple Center is Preparing Display for National Exhibit.

Wenatchee—Wenatchee is preparing to exhibit at the national apple show at Spokane and also at other shows throughout the East this winter. The quality of apples for exhibition purposes this season is first class and it is expected that much beneficial advertising will result.

The fact that the Wenatchee valley produced over one-half of the apples harvested this season in the Northwest has already brought its results and many people are now visiting this section with a view of making the valley their home.

Cows for Prosser Dairy.

Prosser—E. J. Ward arrived this week with a shipment of dairy cows to be placed among farmers of the Prosser district who are interested in the establishment of a creamery in this city. The herd comprises 30 head of the best dairy cattle ever brought to the Yakima valley and makes the second shipment for Mr. Ward within a month. The building in connection with the Prosser Ice and Cold storage plant, to be used for the creamery is nearing completion and by the end of the month machinery will be intsalled.

12-Mile Road Planned.

Walla Walla—A 12-mile macadam highway connecting Milton, Freewater and Walla Walla is planned, half to be built by Umatilla county and half by Walla Walla county. The Oregon part is to be built by farmers, who are to haul the rock to and from the crusher furnished by the county. Walla Walla county will build its end under the state-aid law. Two miles of macadam, already finished, will be utilized.

No Germs in Ellensburg Water.

Ellensburg—H. B. Humphrey, bacteriologist of the Washington State college, has written to Samuel Kreidel, chairman of the special water committee of the city council, to the effect that the water in the municipal test well is first class in every respect. Mr. Humphrey, in a letter free from technical terms, informs the people of the city that there is not the slightest presence of typhoid in the sample submitted and no sign of contamination.

Potatoes Pay at Waitsburg.

Waitsburg—The Touchet valley Apple company, composed of Waitsburg business men, realized returns from the crop of potatoes planted in its young orchard of 46 acres, the yield being 100 sacks to the acre. Besides potatoes they raised a good crop of squashes.

Herring Crop $2,000,000.

Seattle—The British Columbia herring output this year is valued at $2,000,000. The fish are salted and most of them are sold in Japan and China, where the market is unlimited.

MINE MEN TO BOOM DISTRICT

Attempts Will Be Made to Secure Investments of Capital.

Chewelah — As a result of the enthusiastic meeting of the federated commercial clubs of Stevens county at Chewelah, mining men of the district will hold a convention in February to interest capital in legitimate workings and to put a damper on wildcat promotions. W. H. Brownlow, of Chewelah, addressed the club on the mine industry.

The club has collected 260 boxes of apples for display at the National Apple show at Spokane.

Senator Anderson asked that a legislative committee be appointed to look after the interests of Stevens county and the following were named: Senator Anderson, chairman; W. H. Brownlow and J. O. Cline. An attempt will be made to secure a topographical survey. The next meeting will be held at Marcus December 19.

COLFAX FIGHT WILL BE HOT.

Colfax—The registration at Colfax has passed the 1,000 mark by several hundred, the highest previous mark. Nearly half of those who have registered are women, according to City Clerk Bramwell. Clerk Bramwell has not yet footed up the totals. W. R. Anderson is making a hard fight to defeat H. G. DePledge for city treasurer, and is backed by the Farmers' State bank, of which he is cashier. Mr. DePledge has been treasurer for 11 years, and is backed by the Colfax National and the First Savings & Trust bank of Whitman county. Mr. DePledge is also clerk of the school board.

"Pen" to Have Auditorium.

Walla Walla—Plans for the new auditorium to be built at the state penitentiary are being prepared by John K. Dow, a Spokane architect, and the contract for the structure will be let shortly.

The building will occupy a site a short distance from the women's building and will be built of brick and thoroughly fireproof. The site to be occupied is 110x90 feet. The lower floor will contain sufficient room for 900 convicts, while a balcony capable of seating 150 spectators will be constructed. A stage with drop curtain will be installed and the floor will be elevated, with opera chairs.

New District in Lincoln.

Davenport—County Superintendent George E. Craig is near Krupp investigating setting four sections of land from District No. 122, in Lincoln county, into a district abutting in Grant county. The Grant county district, petitioners state, has an insufficient valuation to maintain a school without individual subscription of the settlers, while with the addition of the four sections lying in Lincoln county, they are enabled, they believe, to maintain an average school until the assessed valuation shall increase.

Buff Paper for County Records.

Walla Walla—Buff paper instead of the regulation white, of which all the county records have been made up to this time, will take the place of the conventional paper in the large volumes which Clerk of the Court E. L. Casey has just ordered from the Washington Printing & Bookbinding company. This paper is to be used, Mr. Casey stated, because of its less glaring effect upon the eyes of the transcribers.

Snow Melting in Palouse.

Pullman — A heavy rain took off much of the deep snow which covered the Palouse country but the ground being soft absorbed most of the moisture, and the streams were not raised perceptibly. The weather is mild and balmy, and farmers are predicting plowing weather before Thanksgiving, and many are planning to do much farm work yet this winter.

From Four Acres 50 Tons.

Sunnyside — C. W. Drake, whose place is one mile north of Sunnyside, obtained 775 sacks of commercial potatoes and eight tons of culls, or over 50 tons in all, this season from four and one-half acres. This is an average of more than 10 tons to the acre. These potatoes sold at an average price of $19.25 a ton.

Snow Melting at Elberton.

Elberton—The heavy snow is going off. In many places the roads were drifted six to eight feet deep. W. H. Birchard, the rural mail carrier, was forced to return after making nine miles of his route. To make that distance he traveled 22 miles.

Mansfield Crops Thrive.

Mansfield—Winter has settled down in this part of the Big Bend country under almost ideal conditions. There is every indication that a bumper crop will be harvested from the fall sowing. A greater acreage than ever before has been put to winter wheat.

Smallpox at Chattaroy.

Chattaroy—The public schools were closed here on account of smallpox, one of the high school students having developed a slight case.

PRICES GOING SKYWARD.

Food Frozen in Transit and Crops Hurt by Frost.

Chicago — Winter, which arrived snprting and snarling, did more than freeze a few persons to death. The sudden advent of cold weather sent the prices of all foodstuffs skyrocketing, so that those who survived the initial blast will become painfully aware that winter has set in in earnest.

The reasons given for the advance in food staples are that hens cease laying, cows give a limited supply of milk, carloads of fruit and vegetables were frozen in transit and the source of much of this supply damaged by frost. There is also the further reason that snow is falling heavily over a wide area and trains are likely to become stalled and food supplies will be slow in arriving. Here are some of the advances following the cold weather:

Potatoes, 35 cents a peck, and the price will go much higher.

Creamery butter, 38 cents a pound.

Ham, 17 cents a pound.

Dressed chickens, 16 cents a pound.

Coal dealers have given notice that they will advance prices at once. They have had two lean years, due to the strike and overproduction in mild seasons, and prospects of a long, hard winter affords them an opportunity to even matters up.

The charitable organizations of Chicago are fortifying themselves against unusual demands this winter.

WOOL MEN SCORE TARBELL.

$1,000 Raised to Tell Public Truth About Industry.

Baker, Or.—To bring out the real truth about the wool business as opposed to what has been told by writers like Ida Tarbell, who, by fictional magazine and newspaper articles, they declare, have put the wool industry before the public in an entirely false light, delegates to the 14th annual convention of the Oregon Woolgrowers' association, subscribed $1,000 for publicity purposes.

The subscription was raised in a few minutes by the delegates, whose enthusiasm had been stirred by an address by W. S. McClure, secretary of the National Woolgrowers' association, who spoke on "Woolgrowing and Its Relation to the Tariff." McClure scathingly arraigned writers like Miss Tarbell for giving untrue statements and denounced the present laws, which he said make the wool industry a precarious calling, where in the past it has been one of the substantial natural resources of the country.

"How is it that woolen goods, the raw wool for which I purchased for $1.67, could not be made into a suit for less than an added cost of $35?" asked McClure. "Going to Washington with goods for a suit, the wool for which cost me $1.67, the first tailor I asked agreed to make it into a suit for $45. Others varied some, with the lowest bidder asking $35."

ZIONITE OPPOSES CEMENT.

Christ Would Avoid New Sidewalks, Reason for Asking Injunction.

Zion City, Ill.—Rupert Deveraux, a member of the old Dowie faction in Zion's affairs, filed a petition with the Zion City board of aldermen objecting to the proposed construction of cement sidewalks here, on the ground that Christ never walked on cement and therefore "would avoid Zion City on the Savior's approaching second coming to earth."

The petition said that Dowie would return to life with the second coming of Christ.

One of Deveraux' followers, it was said, recently attempted to get some word from the late Alexander Dowie by sleeping three successive nights on Dowie's grave in the cemetery here. He is said to have reported to Deveraux that the expected message did not come to him.

Sahara to Know Burbank.

Los Angeles—Negotiations are under way between local men and the authorities in various parts of the Sahara which are excepted to result soon in the introduction of Burbank's spineless cactus on the African desert. Experiments with the various kinds of spineless cacti have demonstrated, the experts say, that some of them will thrive on any desert in the world where the temperature does not go too low, and they believe the Sahara is peculiarly adapted to their cultivation.

Los Angeles Faces Election Troubles

Los Angeles—With a total registration of more than 190,000, election officers in Los Anglees are now facing one of their most vexing problems. How to arrange voting booths so all can vote is the problem. In some precincts more than 2,000 voters are registered. In others it ranges from 500 to 1,800. According to officers, it is a physical impossibility for all of those registered in the larger precincts to vote within the 12-hour limit.

Thief Returns Sermon.

Wilkesbarre, Pa. — A sermon entitled, "Prepare to Meet Thy God," which was taken from the pocket of Rev. M. E. Williams, a Methodist minister at Athens, Pa., when he was in this city recently, by pickpockets who extracted a large wallet, has been returned to him.

FOUR FREEZE TO DEATH IN STORM

British Columbia Blizzard Buries Bodies in Snow

Three Bodies Found in Field Near Roadside—Victims Had Tried to Make Camp.

Victoria, B. C. — Overtaken by a blizzard while returning to their home from Kamloops, B. C., a family of four lost their way and were found frozen to death. The dead:

John Keefer, a rancher; James A. Tronson, Keefer's brother-in-law; Elizabeth Keefer, aged 14; May Keefer, aged 11.

The first intimation of their fate came through the discovery by Joseph Frolic of the bodies of Keefer, Tronson and the youngest child, which since have been brought to Kamloops. The body of Elizabeth Keefer has not been found.

The snow is smooth and level, from three to five feet deep in the vicinity, and there is small probability of recovery of this body until the snow melts with the advent of spring.

The Keefer farm is a little off the Nicola road, along which Joe Frolic was driving into Kamloops when this gruesome discovery was made, this being at a point nine or ten miles from the Keefer place.

The bodies of the three were located in one of Rancher McConnell's fields at the side of the road, partially covered with blankets. This is cited as circumstantial evidence that the quartet of unfortunates had stopped possibly with the thought of making camp, fearful of losing their way if they continued. The horses had been unhitched and it was the neighing of one that first attracted Frolic's attention.

James Tronson's body was discovered a few feet from the sleigh, covered with about two feet of snow, with about two feet more underneath it.

Keefer's corpse was in the seat of the sleigh and the younger child in a pitiful, huddled heap between his knees. The little girl was warmly clad and had probably lived some hours longer than the men.

APPROVE PARCELS POST.

Trans-Mississippi Congress Will Meet on Pacific Coast.

Kansas City—After selecting Salt Lake City as the meeting place for 1912 and Kansas City, Mo., as official headquarters, the 22d annual session of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial congress adjourned Saturday.

Although the date for holding the next meeting was not definitely decided upon, it was tentatively agreed upon to convene in the last week of August. The official headquarters were located for only one year, E. J. Becker, of this city, was elected secretary, to succeed Arthur T. Francis, of Cripple Creek, Colo., after which Mr. Francis was elected an honorary member of the congress for life. George B. Harrison, a banker of this city, was elected treasurer.

A resolution was adopted recommending that the congress meet at a Pacific Coast city in 1915, the year of the Pacific-Panama exposition. San Francisco and Seattle are rival aspirants for the meeting at that time.

Consideration of the report of the committee on resolutions occupied most of the session. The resolution declaring that the congress was against the parcels post, which was adopted, provoked acrimonious discussion The vote was 90 for and 16 against the resolution. A vigorous verbal scrimmage followed, in which charges were made that a "steam roller" was being operated by those in control of the meeting and that the tendency of the congress was to take no definite stand on anything.

Express Robbers Kill.

Scranton, Pa.—Irving D. Barger, an express messenger, was killed and the safe in his car on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western road looted of a sum said to be from $1,500 to $2,000. Barger was seen by train hands at work in his car as the train stopped a minute at Taylor. Four minutes later, when it arrived in Scranton, Barger's body was found lying on the floor of the car with his head battered in and a bullet in his brain. One report has it that the robber got no booty.

Launch Party in Peril.

Marshfield, Or. — A. H. Powers, head of the Smith-Powers company, and a party of friends in his speed boat, narrowly escaped death from being caught in a water spout which swept across Coos bay when the recent big storm was at its height. A column of water was drawn up 150 feet high by a whirlwind with such force that big logs were thrown up out of the bay. The awe-inspiring column was at times 10 feet in diameter.

Germs Lurk for Horses.

Los Angeles — Individual drinking cups for horses will be a reality in Los Angeles if a recommendation by the Los Angeles board of veterinary surgeons is carried out. Watering troughs are breeding places for glanders germs, say the veterinarians. The report urges each driver of a team to provide himself with a bucket, from which his horses, and no others, may drink.

FREQUENT FAILURES MADE IN CONSTRUCTION OF THE SILO

Mistake Most Commonly Encountered Is That of Not Preparing for Outward Pressure of Silage—Walls Should Be As Nearly Perpendicular As It Is Possible to Make Them.

Some of the failures of silos have been due to carelessness in filling, but more often to faulty construction of the silo.

Formerly many silos were made by sheathing one of the bays in the barn. With these silos and other forms of wooden square silos a lining must be built across the corners and the silage well tramped down along the edges or there will be considerable loss of what would otherwise be valuable stock feed. This style of silo, however, has become less common, and but few square silos of any kind are built at the present time. Even when silos are built inside of a barn they are often circular. The octagon silo is an improvement over the square form, but as a rule the walls of this form of silo have not been made rigid enough.

Too often the walls of silos are not made air-tight. Unless the walls of wooden silos are made air-tight, with tar paper, felt pads, or clay worked into the joints, much silage will be wasted. Ninety per cent of stave silos are not air-tight at the foundation. The shrinkage and swelling of staves breaks the cement, which must be frequently mended. Some losses have occurred because the ends of the staves have been decayed.

The iron bands of a stave silo must be examined frequently, or they will fall down as the staves shrink. Sometimes the iron splices rust. Unless a stave silo is well anchored it may be moved from its foundations or even blown down.

The walls of a silo must be rigid or they cannot stand the pressure. When the sides begin to bulge, air can get between the silage and the walls.

Brick silos without reinforcement have been failures because of the pressure from the inside.

The modern silo is a structure with air-tight walls and a height usually twice its diameter, and is strong enough to withstand the natural pressure of its contents when full. This pressure is greatest from two to six days after filling. The silage at this time begins to heat and settle, and, if the walls are not sufficiently rigid to prevent any bulging, a considerable loss of silage will result. The walls should be as nearly perpendicular as possible, and the diameter should be the same from the bottom to the top.

A mistake sometimes made was in building the silo of too large a diameter for the size of the herd so that the silage spoiled by too long exposure of the surface. In one case a man with a small herd built a silo in his barn 18 feet square and 16 feet high. After two years' trial he gave up the use of the silo in disgust because the silage did not keep.

A year or so later he sold his farm to a more progressive man, who built partitions across the same silo, making four small silos out of the large one, and had no difficulty in obtaining good silage for his stock. The silo should be deep. The deeper the silo the better the silage.

The diameter should conform to the size of the herd, and if two inches of silage are fed each day there will be no loss from surface exposure.

It is desirable to prevent silage from freezing. The double wall concrete silo and those built of rectangular building tile accomplish this object as well as any. Stone silos prevent freezing, but many owners of stone silos do not like them because moisture collects on the inside of the walls and rots silage along the edge. A roof helps to keep out the frost, snow and rain.

Don't Burn Off Pasture.

In the opinion of Professor Ten Eyck, it is a poor practice to burn off the pasture in late fall or early spring.

LABOR SAVING FARM MACHINE

Portable Gasoline Engine Can be Used for Shredding Corn, Sawing Wood and Other Jobs.

(By L. G. JOHNSON.)

Those who have never used a gasoline engine can hardly realize what a labor saving and profitable machine it is on the farm.

To do any and all kinds of work the farmer wants at least a ten-horse-power as the purchase price and the cost of running one is but very little more than the cost of a smaller one and with the larger engine you can do a great deal more work than with the smaller one.

With my engine I can drive a corn-shredder just as easily as a steam engine would and with much less cost as the engineer's wages are saved, besides the cost of fuel for steam power, which is greater than the cost of gasoline for the same power.

For ten hours' running of my engine, which is ten-horse power, it takes ten gallons of oil per day. This at eleven cents per gallon, makes the cost of running for ten hours $1.10—that is when running up to its full capacity.

But, when the work is not so heavy you can run on less oil. This depends altogether on what you are doing, or the power necessary to do it.

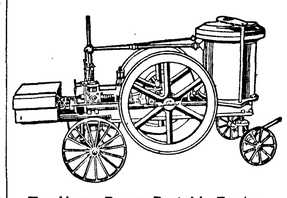
This same engine may be used for driving a wood-saw. All you need is a saw frame, a good-sized circular cut-off saw and about 40 feet of six-inch belt and you are well equipped for wood-making.

With this outfit two men will saw as much wood in five hours as four men will saw in ten hours with the common cross-cut saw and do it so much easier and cheaper.

I also use my engine for pumping water and running a cream separator. Through my milk house I have a line shaft and by means of small belts and pulleys I can attach my cream separator, my pump and a grindstone. By means of tight and loose pulleys I can run one or all of them at the same time.

This line shaft extends through the milk house and six feet into the shed. To this end of the shaft I connect my engine by means of a clutch coupling and when I want to use any of the above-named machinery all I have to do is to turn on the oil and let it go.

Of course to do several kinds of work with the same engine it is necessary to have the machine on portable skids so as to be able to move it from one place to another.



Ten-Horse Power Portable Engine.

The skids should be large and long enough to place the engine and tanks on the same base by having one end of the skids slanting like a sled runner.

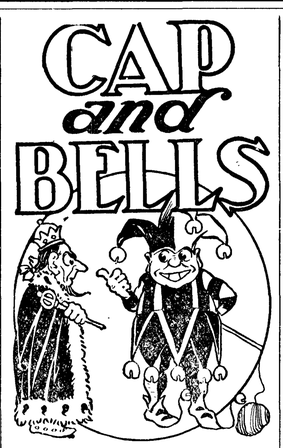
It is an easy matter to move the engine from one place to another with a pair of horses.

Outbreak of Cholera.

When an outbreak of hog cholera occurs on a farm the herd should be quarantined and all possible precautions taken against the spread of the infection in the neighborhood.

Avoid Close Grazing.

Close or late grazing should be carefully avoided because the young plants need their green leaves in order to produce a vigorous root growth.



FOOT-ROPES WERE NOT SAFE

Boatswain's Mate Satisfies Skipper by Long Fall That He Was Entirely in Wrong.

The skipper was a man who had a good opinion of himself and his notions. He had pulled through shipwreck, mutiny, and other perils of the deep, but he came a cropper once. For one of his voyages he had shipped a boatswain's mate who bore something of a reputation.

One day the skipper ordered him aloft to examine a sail on the royal yard.

"'Tain't safe, cap'n!" protested the boatswain's mate; "the foot-ropes has got to be fixed first."

"Do as I tell you!" thundered the captain. "The foot-ropes are all right. I know they are."

The man went up.

Five minutes later he came tumbling down through the rigging from the top of the mast, a distance of over 100 feet.

With a bang he handed on the belly of the mainsail and bounded into one of the canvas-covered boats.

The sailors, thinking him dead, crowded about him in a circle.

To their amazement he sat up.

His eyes wandered vacantly about until they rested on the leathery face of the skipper, when they lighted up with intelligence.

"Cap'n," he said, slowly; "you was mistaken about them foot-ropes."

RIVALS GOSSIPING CIRCLES.

Mrs. Bronson—Well, where did that bit of gossip come from? From the sewing circle?

Mrs. Woodson—No, indeed; it came from my husband's whist club on the 4:35.

What She Wanted.

They had been married but two months and they loved each other devotedly. He was in the back yard yard blacking his shoes. "Jack," she called at the top of her voice—"Jack, come here, quick!"

He knew at once that she was in imminent danger. He grasped a stick and rushed up two flights of stairs to the rescue. He entered the room breathlessly, and found her looking out of the window.

"Look," she said, "that's the kind of bonnet I want you to get me."—Harper's Magazine.

Her Specialty.

"I thought you said George had married a good manager."

"He did."

"I called on her yesterday and the house was in terrible disorder. It looked as if everything had been left to take care of itself."

"But you should see her managing George."

Can See Everything but That.

"Fired a policeman, have they? What for?"

"They found he had defective vision."

"Color blind?"

"No; gambling joint blind."

She Capitulated.

"Would you like to fly with me?" asked the aviator, addressing Miss Fadedout.

"Oh, sir," she cried, grasping him around the neck, "this is awfully sudden, but if you insist."

Just as Good.

"Is your wife in?" asked the friend of the druggist.

"No," replied the druggist, absentmindedly, "but I can show you something just as good."—Puck.

An Exception.

"You know it is a matter of pride with me to let nobody pass me."

"Glad to hear it. I'm a theatrical manager."

Don't Expect Kindness.

There are six sorts of people at whose hands you need not expect much kindness. The narrow minded think of nobody but themselves, the lazy are too indifferent, the busy have not time to think, the rich disregard appeals for kindness, the poor have neither spirit nor ability, and the good natured fool is not capable of serving you.—Home Notes.

Strange.

In Japan there is a kind of frog very celebrated for his sweet voice. He is called kajika, and people pay as much as $10 for a pair of these marsh musicians. A poet in Japan keeps scores of singing frogs at his home, and he sometimes gives a party to his friends, when after listening to the music every guest is asked to write a poem in honor of the event.

Uses of Nitrate of Soda.

Sodium Nitrate is the only nitrogen salt that can be used in solution, as all the other soluble salts of nitrogen become fixed as soon as they come in contact with the soil. However, they become available in a short time. The released sodium may correct soil acidity or may liberate calcium, potassium or magnesium from the soil.

Do your feet feel tired, achy and sore at night? Rub them with a little Hamlins Wizard Oil. They'll be glad in the morning and so will you.

Noiseless Furniture.

Irritating noises can be avoided by taking some old felt hats, cutting out from these disks about the size of a quarter and securely fastening them to the bottoms of the legs of all chairs, tables and other movable articles not provided with casters. This also prevents the scratching of polished floors.

Caution.

"Are you giving credit now?" asked the man who had returned to his old home. "No," answered the proprietor of the general store." "What has become of that old sign you had over the counter, 'No Trust'?" "I decided to take it down. I was afraid some of the corporations that supply me with goods would misunderstand it and take offense."

Still a Woman.

Tillie Clinger says that although she is naturally strong-willed and self-governed, practiced in restraint and poise, if a rich widower were to get down on his knees to propose to her she is afraid she would fall on hers and thank the Lord.

Where He is Wrong.

In reality anything is good enough for the man who thinks nothing is too good for him.

Particularly the Ladies.

Not only pleasant and refreshing to the taste, but gently cleansing and sweetening to the system, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is particularly adapted to ladies and children, and beneficial in all cases in which a wholesome, strengthening and effective laxative should be used. It is perfectly safe at all times and dispels colds, headaches and the pains caused by indigestion and constipation so promptly and effectively that it is the one perfect family laxative which gives satisfaction to all and is recommended by millions of families who have used it and who have personal knowledge of its excellence.

Its wonderful popularity, however, has led unscrupulous dealers to offer imitations which act unsatisfactorily. Therefore, when buying, to get its beneficial effects, always note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package of the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

For sale by all leading druggists. Price 50 cents per bottle.

Immense Bird's Eggs.

The largest known bird's egg is that of the extinct aepyornis of Madagascar, of which the museum of New York has now a specimen. It has a capacity of two gallons, measures 26 inches round the middle, and the shell is one-eighth of an inch thick. The largest egg of a living bird is that of the ostrich, which is equal to about thirty-six hens' eggs.

Homemade Perfume.

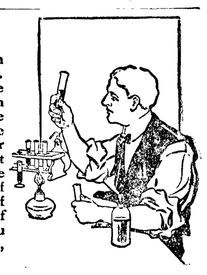
A Drop of Blood



Or a little water from the human system when thoroughly tested by the chief chemist at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., tells the story of impoverished blood—nervous exhaustion or some kidney trouble. Such examinations are made without cost and is only a small part of the work of the staff of physicians and surgeons under the direction of Dr. R. V. Pierce giving the best medical advice possible without cost to those who wish to write and make a full statement of symptoms. An imitation of natures method of restoring waste of tissue and impoverishment of the blood and nervous force is used when you take an alterative and glyceric extract of roots, without the use of alcohol, such as

Dissolving Alum.

When alum is intended for external use, where it is purposely to callous the flesh, as in the case of fever blisters and heated or even frost-bitten feet, if it is dissolved in alcohol it will be twice as effective. The alcohol is quickly absorbed by the flesh, carries some of the dissolved alum with it, and, therefore, less applications will be required to achieve the desired results.

Would Change Sleeping Position.

A French doctor, M. V. Fischer, advocates a complete reversal of the present method of making up beds. You must have your head on a level with, or lower, than your feet. If pillows are to be used they must be under the feet instead of the head. The result, he claims, will be amazing, being a sure cure for insomnia as well as a preventive of nightmare.

James Wolverton, Great Northern section foreman at Peshastin, and son of Thomas Wolverton and brother of A. D. Wolverton of this city, was struck by a passenger locomotive the other day and tossed from the high trestle crossing the Wenatchee river near Leavenworth to the bank, sustaining serious injuries. In company with another man, Mr. Wolverton was crossing the trestle afoot, and was not aware of the approaching train. Mr. Wolverton was taken to the Wenatchee-Chelan hospital where he was found to have sustained a fracture of the right leg in two places below the knee, both bones being broken. His left arm was broken between the elbow and wrist, both bones being fractured. There were several scalp wounds and bruises on the head and his back was wrenched. No internal injuries, however, developed, and the doctor thought none may be apprehended and that the complete recovery of the patient would only be a matter of time.

The Sequim Press says that L. L. Ramalia of that place "has applied for patent on a stump burning process which will provide an easy and inexpensive method of getting rid of stumps. The appliance is a brick oven of simple construction attached to the stump. After the fire is started alongside the stump the oven keeps the fire and heat in and the stump is slowly consumed. Mr. Ramalia's invention appears to be of practical use and to have considerable merit in it."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The schools closed Wednesday for the two days Thanksgiving vacation. Work will be resumed Monday, December 4th.

The pictures bought with the proceeds of last year's school exhibit have arrived. A number have already been framed by the pupils of the different departments. The collection consists of eighteen large pictures ranging in price from $3 to $10 and a number of prints. The list price of pictures purchased was $105, from which there was a reduction of 20 per cent to the school. The largest and most expensive picture, Cicero's Oration Against Cataline, will be framed by the Juniors and Seniors and placed in their room. The appearance of the school rooms is greatly improved by these beautiful pictures.

The management of the opera house has contracted for an entertainment course of three numbers:

The Strollers, December 11, 1911.
Edward Reno, January 23, 1912.
Julius Herbsman, February 12, 1912

The Lyceum Bureau has offered a prize to the one selling the largest number of tickets for the course and the candidates for the prize will be limited to the pupils of the public school. The following pupils have entered the contest and have already sold a number of tickets: Sarah Foster, Harvard Stovel, Will Thompson and one other pupil from Lincoln Heights. The prize to be given by the Bureau is a chafing dish and two course tickets. The local management has added a second, third, and fourth prize consisting of three, two, and one course tickets respectively.

Through Tickets

The O-W. R. & N. - Union Pacific System has for years encouraged the purchase of Through Railroad Sleeping Car and Steamship Tickets.

The advantages of this arrangement are many. It enables the thorough checking of baggage. Baggage may be checked from your residence if desired, thus relieving you of all worry and responsibility in that direction, and when you arrive at your destination your baggage is waiting for you. Again, holding thorough railroad and sleeping car tickets insures you against difficulties in securing accommodations at at distant point.

There are other advantages in buying through tickets and you are invited to call on or write any of our representatives for information, fares and tickets to any point in Misuse of Via.

A stroll through the shipping district gives many a wrench to the purist's soul. "In front of all the commission houses," he said, "I see bales and barrels labeled 'via boat' or 'via train.' Why does not somebody tell the shipping clerks that every time they write that they are insulting the English and every other language? 'Via' can be applied properly only to the place through which a parcel passes, not to the means of transportation."

A Rainfall of 450 Inches.

The rainfall of a village among the hills of Assam, during ten weeks this year, was 250 inches. The village is Cherrapunji, the rainiest spot in Asia and presumably in the world. Its annual rainfall is something over 450 inches—say, fifteen times as much as London. Cherrapunji stands on a plateau, overlooking the plain of Sylhet, and it is 4,455 feet above sea level.—Westminster Gazette.

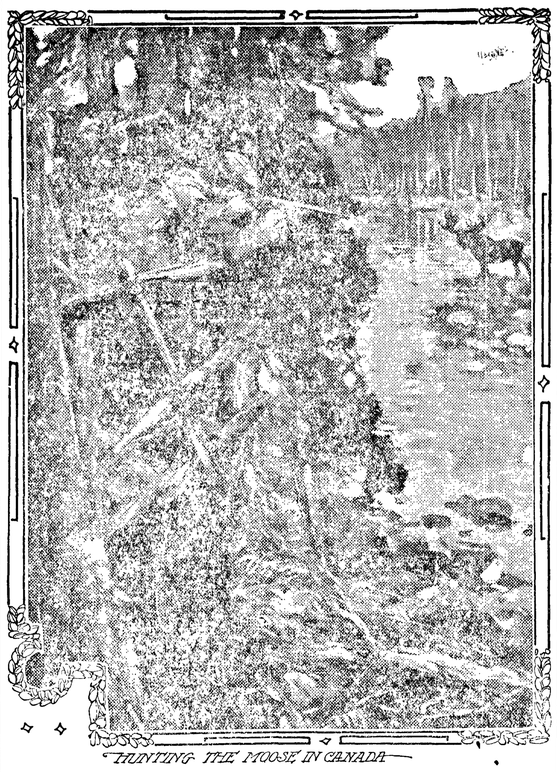
LURE OF THE WILD FOR SPORTSMEN



HUNTING THE MOOSE IN CANADA

LIKE ash-buried coals, there smoulders within the breast of of almost every man a spark of the original fire that animated his savage ancestors of the caves and the wilds. Periodically there occurs in his life moments of intense longing to escape from the turmoil and trouble of life to the fair, free forest of his dreams. Like a tired child who loves at eventide to climb within the protecting shelter of its mother's lap where it may be soothed and crooned into dreamy forgetfulness, the grown-up is filled with a longing at times to seek the lap of Mother Nature where he may cuddle down and be calmed by the music of windswept pines or lulled into blissful oblivion by the somniferous tinkling of the rills. Secure in his chosen retreat he rests at ease.

In the autumn one may be sure the forest stretching from coast to coast along the northern border of the United States and across the line in our sister nation, the Dominion of Canada, is pretty thoroughly invaded by parties of hunters, each in pursuit of the game native to the locality it has selected for a hunting ground. The ponderous moose, the noble caribou, the agile deer, the fierce grizzly and his smaller brother, the black bear, are among the larger varieties of game that are to be found in this forest belt, any one of which calls forth the best skill of the hunter.

Within this vast expanse of forest it matters not where one erects his camp, for pleasure abounds. A typical region is that charming spot where nature in her birth-agony thrust toward the sky those magnificent peaks of the Adirondacks. There, in the great Empire state and forever preserved as a public park, lies a beautiful expanse of forest-covered mountain and valley, gemmed with lakes and filigreed with streams. It is sufficiently attractive in itself, but because of its ease of access and nearness to millions of inhabitants it is perhaps more frequented by fishermen and hunters than any other spot of like size in the region mentioned.

Getting to the camp these modern days is usually accomplished with far greater ease than in the time of our forefathers, but the requirements of a present-day camper are vastly different. The modern hunter can ride in a comfortable train to the very border of his camping ground. Hunters in the earlier days were usually compelled to make long trips in cumbersome wagons that bounced and swayed over the rough roads of a country in the making before arriving anywhere near their final destination and then there was the wearisome pack trail still ahead of them. But the latter had this advantage—they carried far less into the woods.

The hunter of today usually thinks he must carry with him a thousand and one essentials of the civilized life to which he has become accustomed Aside from his expensive gun and its elaborate appurtenances there are a tent, a kit of aluminum cooking utensils, tableware, a collapsable stove, a sleeping bag, lantern, ax, and no end of personal conveniences as well as a medicine chest. Really, one may be pardoned for wondering if the fellow ever gets through his daily grooming in time to shoot at a deer with his nice, shiny gun before sundown.

What a compaison with the outfit of the old-time hunter? The idea of a safety razor being added to his pack would have convulsed the old fellow with laughter. Given a gun and plenty of ammunition, a hunting knife, flint and steel, a camp kettle and perhaps a bit of salt, with the addition of a blanket in cold weather and perhaps the luxury of a small sack of meal, he would roam the interminable forests of his day at will. More often than not he quietly slept beside a log or beneath some sheltering bush, although the gloomy forest aisles about him resounded to the barking of wolves or the yelling of panthers. Under similar circumstances and surroundings the average modern hunter would starve if he did not first die of fright.

Life in camp is replete with pleasures for those who enjoy a bit of roughing it. The pure and invigorating air exhilarates the brain-fagged city toiler when he reaches "a lodge in some vast wilderness." The petty worries of his daily grind are speedily forgotten amid the beauties of his enchanting environment. Life discloses a new meaning to the man in a forest.

A Beckoning Fire.

At night there greets his eyes when returning from a day's hunting the inviting camp. Soon a cheery fire of blazing logs before its entrance sends forth curling flames that beckon him to an hour of ease and comfort while recounting with his companions the various haps and mishaps of the day. His ravenous hunger having been satised the pipes are filled and the stories begin. Good luck if the ruddy glow of the fire discloses in the outer circles of its light the hanging carcass of a fine deer some one of the party has succeeded in bringing down during the day. Minute details of the tragedy, for it is at once a tragedy and a triumph when a deer is done to his death, are told by the successful hunter, which recalls other instances of like nature, and so the stories go on. They are usually ended by the guide, who, if he is worth his salt, can tell a bigger and better story than any of the others.

In restful attitudes about the cheering fire, their pipes aglow, the hunters are silent a moment after the last story while they watch the sparks streaming in threads of wavering light toward the black dome above. The guide has completed his preparations for the night and joined the group. Somewhere in the awesome darkness without a night bird utters a plaintive note and then from down toward the landing there echoes through the forest with startling force a deep-voiced questioning call.

"Whoo-whoo-whoo, who-whoo, to-whoo-ah?"

"What's that?" cries out the nervous young fellow who is having his first experience in camp life. He springs to his feet and peers into the gloom whence came the solemn interrogation, but before answer is made to his wild question a thrilling, weird shriek sends his hair-raised hat aloft and he nearly plunges through the fire in a hasty retreat to the side of it next the camp. The unrestrained laughter of his companions is so reassuring that he tremulously joins in; but he does not return to his former place in the circle.

"Nothin' but an owl," explains Nick, the guide. "Pesky critters Sometimes they'll keep a feller awake half the night with their 'tarnal racket."

"Drat the pesky critters!" cries the irate guide, and flings a last brand of the dying fire aloft to frighten them away.

After all is quiet again the solemn, mysterious silence of the forest night is broken once more. This time it is the booming crash of a dead tree that falls with startling effect.

"Going to storm tomorrow, sure," grumbles Nick. "Always does when a dead tree falls on a still night, like this."

The sleepy hunters once more settle down to their repose, reassured by his explanation. The fire gives a last flutter of flame. A rabbit patters by on the dry leaves and then—silence.

FARM AND ORCHARD

Notes and Instructions from Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations of Oregon and Washington, Specially Suitable to Pacific Coast Conditions

"SOIL BACTERIA—THE FARMER'S FRIEND."

By Theodore Day Beckwith, Professor of Bacteriology, O. A. C.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Oregon.—It has been stated by certain authorities that the soil is a great workshop, and this statement is well founded on fact because recent development, during the last twenty years particularly, have shown definitely that every farmer who tills his land properly is raising a great crop which he cannot see, the magnitude of which he little understands, and the volume of which, numerically speaking, is far beyond his possible conception. Likewise, another authority recently has told us that the farmer who follows the older methods, and many of them still do follow them, is simply a miner who is delving into the soil, removing from it the fertility and its wealth without replacing it properly. Thus a man may be raising this great crop which he knows little about, and at the same time may be undoing its work as rapidly as he can.

It will surprise many to know that soil is filled, in its upper layers, with small growing plants, altogether too minute to be seen with the naked eye. These plants are called germs, or bacteria, and upon their successful and well-regulated activities depends much of the fertility of the soil. In fact, although a farmer naturally thinks that by his plowing, harrowing, under drainage, etc., he is working directly toward bettering his crops, in reality the benefit is obtained indirectly, for he is bettering the conditions for the growth of these bacteria upon which depends much of the fertility of the soil.

It has been found that in the layer of soil which is most densely filled with these germs, or microbes, there are approximately three hundred million germs per ounce of dry fertile soil. When one considers the fact that the first six inches of soil per acre will weigh nine hundred tons, one can, if he feels mathematically inclined, arrive at some idea of the extent of this crop which he is cultivating but which he never sees.

These bacteria are, as has been stated, exceedingly small. They are so microscopic that approximately twelve thousand of them might be placed together, just touching each other, end to end, and the line would be about one inch long. Most of them are little rods, possibly twice as long as they are wide, consequently one may also arrive at some possible conclusion as to how many would be necessary to make a pile large enough to be seen with the naked eye, remembering that an average human eye does not distinguish anything readily which is smaller than .005 of an inch.

Also it must be borne in mind that each single germ is a living organism, having its own processes of life, performing its own duty, subject to general changes in its life history just as the higher animals and plants undergo change.

People generally have a misconception concerning bacteria; they associate germs with diseases, when as a matter of fact a very small proportion of the entire number of bacteria ever produce diseases. Just as there are thousands of kinds of plants, so there are many kinds of germs, which indeed are but very low plants, speaking now from the standpoint of classification. Because there are a few poisonous herbs like poison ivy we do not consider that all shrubs are harmful to health and produce diseases, and there is no more reason for considering that bacteria produce diseases simply because there are a few transgressors in this respect in the total number known. On the other hand, germs produce a great deal of good in the world; they ret our flax so that we are able to produce fine linen; they cause our milk to sour instead of undergoing other changes which sometimes take place instead of ordinary souring and which make such milk poisonous; they cause garbage and other offal, thrown on the soil so carelessly in most rural communities, to disappear, and thereby they are preserving health; in fact, our very life depends upon them because occurring in such immense quantities in the intestines as they do they are very beneficial helpers in the processes of digestion of food. Likewise it is through their action that soil is rendered fertile, that it becomes enriched in nitrogen, carbonates, sulfates and humus.

Speaking now more particularly of bacteria in relation to the soil itself, we may see that they are governed by certain physical conditions and laws, and upon these points depends the success of the ordinary farmer's methods of tilling and cultivating. In the first place, the ordinary bacteria which produce humus require air. Some kinds of bacteria there are which grow better without the presence of free air, but almost all of those which work to the best advantage in soil depend upon an open texture, consequently we find that a hard and compact soil does not turn black as readily, is not as fertile as a soil which is laid open and light. Air circulates between the small particles which make up the soil and thus we find bacteria receive this element, oxygen, which is so necessary to their growth. For this reason it is known that many of these bacteria which produce such a degree of fertility thrive fully as well in a sandy soil as they do in a heavy clay loam. There are other factors, however, to be considered which produce broad variations in themselves.

WRITES ON CHERRY GUMMOSIS.

Oregon Man Publishes Article in "Science" on Investigations at College.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Oregon, Nov. 9.—"A Bacterial Gummosis of Cherries" is the title of an article in "Science" by Fred L. Griffin, formerly a graduate student and assistant in plant pathology at the Oregon Agricultural College.

Mr. Griffin's article is a preliminary report of some of the results of investigations which he carried on in the department of botany and plant pathology at O. A. C.

"Certain varieties of the cultivated sweet cherries found in the Pacific Northwest are very subject to a diseased condition which is commonly known as 'cherry gummosis,'" says Mr. Griffin. "The disease is characterized by more or less copious exudation of gum from the trunk, branches, spurs and buds as well as by a pustulated appearance of the bark near the diseased areas. Often but little gum is exuded, but in such cases an examination of the affected trees generally discloses discolored tissues which are infiltrated with gum. Such areas are spongy to the touch and are usually discernible by the variation in color of the bark as compared with that of the normal.

"Cherry gummosis appears in both a localized and generalized form. In the former, the disease is apparently confined to rather limited areas on the trunk or branches, such areas being most often associated with a blighted spur or bud. In the generalized form, large areas of the trunk or branch may become involved, and it often results in complete girdling. This latter type of gummosis often appears to originate in the crotch of the tree."

FASHION HINTS

Crepe de Chine may be used for this model, if a more dainty garment is desired.

Daily Thought.

Ideals are like stars; you will not succeed in touching them with your hands; but, like the seafaring man on the desert of waters, you chase them as your guides, and, following them, you reach your destiny.—Carl Schurz.

Healthy Old Lady.

In order to celebrate her eighty-first birthday Miss Sue Vorhees, an inmate of the Old Ladies' Home in New York, skipped with a rope twenty-one times, and was not in the least fatigued when she finished.

Something About Names.

A person will grow to look like and be like his or her name. Algernons and Reginalds of modern times look the part, and owe a deep debt of ingratitude to their parents. A young man named Harold or Montmorency would be justified in hiring an automobile and running over his aged parents as they are attempting to cross the street on the way home from church.—New York Times.

The Pity of It.

Just about the time that a woman finds out how to preserve her beauty she discovers that she is so old that it will not be worth while.

In Praise of Poetry.

The old hymn says: "Religion never was designed to make our pleasures less," and the same thing ought to be said about poetry. The distaste for poetry arises from the habit of treating it as if it were only a more difficult kind of prose. . . . The prosaic commentary obscures the beauty of the text.—C. M. Crothers.

Delicately Expressed.

We know a young woman of 20 summers who has a twin brother 31 years old, but this is a very rare case.—Blue Mount (Kan.) Sun.

NORTHWEST WINS RATE REDUCTION

Commission Orders Cut of 20 Per Cent Eastward.

No Serious Loss Threatened—Plea of Roads Unheeded and Own Figures Taken.

Washington, D. C. — Portland, Seattle and Tacoma jobbers won an important victory before the Interstate Commerce commission Saturday when that body ordered a 20 per cent reduction of all interstate class rates from these cities to points in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, and directed that the new rates be put into effect January 2, 1912.

The fight for this reduction was made by the chambers of commerce of Portland and Seattle. This order indorses the tentative decision of the commission, announced some months ago, the railroads having utterly failed in their endeavor to show that 20 per cent reduction would be ruinous or even unfair to them.

When the commission first announced its belief that a 20 per cent cut should be made the railroads obtained six months in which to submit figures showing what losses they would sustain if such regulation should be made. The commission, after studying these figures, lost no time in promulgating its order, for it discovered from the statistics compiled by the railroads themselves that a 20 per cent cut in class rates would deprive the railroads in question of less than 1 per cent of their operating revenue. In view of the financial condition of the four roads affected, the commission holds that they will not be adversely affected by this reduction.

ALLOPATHS ARE GRILLED.

Senator Works Also Objects to Inspection of School Children.

Chicago — United States Senator Works, of California, addressing the National League for Medical Freedom here, assailed the allopathic school of medicine, which he charged was seeking to form a trust to the exclusion of all other methods of healing and particularly denounced the medical examination of public school pupils. His remarks were directed chiefly to the part of the school inspection involving girls in the upper grades. He said:

"I sincerely hope you never have medical inspection here. Do you know that in many states, under medical inspection practice, girls of from 14 to 20 are required to bare their bodies to the waist and submit to an inspection, usually by an unsucessful or under-doctor just out of school, and all this without the knowledge or presence of their mothers?"

ARMY DESERTIONS FEWER.

Falling Off Attributed to Severe Punishment Prescribed.

Washington, D. C.—The extraordinary decrease in desertions from the army in the past two years was attributed by General Ainsworth, adjutant general, in his annual report just made public, to the vigorous measures that have taught the enlisted men how relentlessly desertion is punished. There were 2,489 desertions in the last fiscal year, or 2.06 per cent of enlisted strength of the army. This is the lowest rate for 90 years, save in the Spanish war in 1898.

General Ainsworth voiced the hope that relaxation of severe measures of punishment "will not be brought about through the clamor of sensation mongers or the urging of theorists seeking to exploit themselves or their views in the face of adverse experience and regardless of the interests of the service."

The army cannot be made a reformatory without grave injury to its morals and its efficiency, said General Ainsworth.

33 Killed By Explosion.

Liverpool—Thirty-three workers are known to have been killed and upward of 100 others injured by a boiler explosion at the oil cake mills of J. Bebby & Sons. Many of the injured were terribly mangled. The force of the explosion was so terrific that the roof of the mill was blown off, while the walls split and crumbled. An outburst of flame followed. There were 400 workers in the building. Twenty-two bodies have been recovered and it is believed others are still beneath the debris.

Miners' Head Accuses.

Columbus, O. — The Columbus Dispatch says: One of the biggest sensations in the history of the United Mine Workers of America, involving the direct charge by President White that fraud prevailed in the election contest for president of the order between himself and Tom L. Lewis last January and that the returns of 49 unions in Illinois disappeared after they had reached international headquarters in Indianapolis, has been disclosed.

Picture Thief Caught.

Florence, Italy — Fra Angelico's famous painting, "The Madonna Della Stella," which was stolen last Sunday night from the monastery at San Marco, now used as a museum, has been recovered by the police, who arrested a man with a package under his arm. "The Madonna" was found in the package undamaged.

WARSHIPS ORDERED SOUTH.

Government to Look After Affairs in Santo Domingo.

Washington, D. C.—The cabinet has decided that the situation in Santo Domingo is such, as the result of the assassination of President Caceres, as to make it expedient for the United States to have naval forces there sufficient to meet any demands for the protection of American lives and property and to insure the maintenance of order.

No American warship was within hundreds of miles of Santo Domingo, but as soon as the decision of the cabinet was communicated to Admiral Wainwright, chief of operations, he sent orders by wireless to the commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet, directing him to dispatch the two big armored cruisers Washington and North Carolina to Hampton Roads.

No one at the Navy department knew the exact location of the Atlantic fleet, which was conducting a search problem somewhere off the Maryland and Virginia coasts. But precisely 11 minutes from the moment he had sent the order, Admiral Wainwright had before him an answer from the fleet commander saying that the two big ships were on their way to the roads, where they arrived within a few hours.

Mr. Russell, the American minister to Santo Domingo, left Washington for the roads and will sail on the Washington, which will be accompanied by the cruiser North Carolina. He should arrive in Santo Domingo within four days.

There is nothing on the surface indicating danger of serious trouble in Santo Domingo, but the decision to send this powerful naval force to the island was inspired by a desire to relieve any other nation from apprehension as to the safety of its citizens or their property.

Incidentally, the Dominicans will be given to understand that the Washington government feels that the obligation that it has assumed under treaty to administer the finances of the republic warrants it in requiring a strict observance of the terms of the Dominican constitution in the election of a president.

OFF FOR HAWAII.

Fleet of Armored Cruisers Will Maneuver in Pacific.

San Francisco—Five armored cruisers, representing the first and second divisions of the Pacific fleet left San Francisco harbor for Honolulu. The ships steamed slowly through the Golden Gate and night had fallen before they had passed the heads.

The squadron was led by the flagship California, in command of Admiral Chauncey Thomas, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet. The California represented the first division. At the head of the second division was the West Virginia, the flagship of Rear Admiral W. H. H. Southerland. The other ships are the Colorado, the Maryland and the South Dakota.

The voyage, which the Navy department plans to designate as the annual cruise for the Pacific fleet, is for the purpose of maneuvers at sea and lessons in naval preparedness and long-range practice. All the vessels are heavily stocked with ammunition, although part of the consignment sent from Mare Island was returned. According to present plans the fleet will return to San Francisco January 15.

Manifesto Charges Fraud.

San Antonio, Tex.—Copies of three manifestoes calling on the Mexican army and the Mexican people to revolt against the Madero government, and signed in print with the name of General Bernardo Reys, are in the hands of the local secret service men and will be laid by them before the United States district attorney here. Reyes is under arrest accused of violating neutrality laws. All three pronunciamentoes are dated at Soleda, in Tamaulipas, which is considered the state that would first rise in insurrection.

Woman's Status Doubted.

Los Angeles—A conflict of opinion among the Superior court judges of Los Angeles county regarding the qualifications of women to act as jurors is delaying the completion of their jury lists for the coming year. The judges hold frequent meetings, the results of which are not made public, but it is understood that the question of including the names of women with men for jury duty in the Superior court has received much consideration.

Cancer Expert Claims Big Prize

Cologne, Germany — Dr. Otto Schmidt, the well known cancer expert of this city, has applied for the Italian Mariani prize of $20,000 offered to the discoverer of a cancer serum who can prove that he has been successful in healing five cases by means of his remedy. Dr. Schmidt asserts he is able to prove he has made 40 cures.

First Ice Movement Out.

Nome—The first ice movement in the Bering sea this season has moved down from the Arctic and drifted into the roadstead. The floes did not remain long and soon were carried out to sea by the tide. The oldest pioneer can recall no season in which the ice has been so late. The floes are moving southward and it is believed the roadstead will soon be closed.

Captain Patten Relieved.

Washington, D. C.—The War department, having decided to detail only lieutenants to duty as military instructors at colleges, has relieved Captain William T. Patten, Thirteenth infantry, from duty at the University of Washington, after the close of the present year.

REBELS UNITING AGAINST MADERO

Gomez, Reyes and Zapata Plot Overthrow of Government.

Triple Combination Regarded as Very Powerful, Each Possessing Elements of Success.

Mexico City—Emilio Vasquez Gomez, General Reyes and Emilio Zapata, have joined hands in an effort to overthrow the Madero government, according to information received by the president from the secret service agents of the government now in San Antonio. Zapata has been in open rebellion since the close of the revolution. Vasquez Gomez will be arrested, in the opinion of government officials who received advices from their agents in the North.

At the department of the interior, official advices were received of engagements at the Hacienda Cholas, Gaunajata, in which the federals defeated the insurrectionists under Candido Procel. Procel announced that he was fighting against the central government. The war cry of his men is "Viva Reyes."

Another insurrection is in the neighborhood of Santigato Papasquiado, Durango, where the rebels are also crying "Viva Reyes." It was reported but not confirmed that they had captured the town.

Several engagements have been fought, in one of which Zapata's brother, Eufemio, was killed, but Zapata himself continued elusive. At Tlalmoc, rebels had planned to rob a passenger train from Vera Cruz. Mistaking a special loaded with federal troops for the regular train they stopped it. The federals poured a heavy volley from the windows into the Zapatis, who fled.

Unofficially the triumvirate—Reyes, Vasquez and Zapata — is regarded as not impracticable. Reyes is considered a military expert of higher order; it is granted that Gomez can count upon several disgruntled Maderistas through his affiliation with them while Minister of the interior, and Zapata has proved himself formidable both during the Mexican revolution and since.

INSURGENTS WIN.

Spokane Selected for Next National Grange Meeting.

Columbus, O.—Spokane, Wash., was chosen for the next annual meeting of the National grange, following a contest between the regular and insurgent factions.

Opposition was inspired by the fact that the Washington State grange has been largely controlled by insurgents and because J. C. Kegley, Washington state master, leader of the insurgent faction in the National grange, extended the invitation to the National body.

In a statement, Oliver Wilson, of Illinois, National master-elect, said:

"I do not know that there exists a Jones-Bachelder ring dominating the affairs of the National grange. If there is such a faction I am not a member of it, nor have I been advised of any of its policies or methods. My first association with the so-called insurgency came when it met with members of this faction for the purpose announced before I accepted their invitation, to ascertain their motives and desires, in the hope of bringing about complete harmony in the organization."

Votes Blow to Chivalry.

San Francisco—Mrs. Grace Hamilton, wife of Alexander Hamilton, millionaire hardware man, and daughter of John D. Spreckels, appeared before Police Judge Weller and plead guilty to a charge of having violated the local automobile speed law. Mrs. Hamilton was fined $10, the judge pronouncing the penalty after a nifty little speech in which he said that in his opinion the time had gone when women might, as a privilege to their sex, expect leniency when they infringed the law.

Club in Chihuahua Stoned.

El Paso, Tex.—The Foreign club at Chihuahua was stoned by a mob in the celebration of the anniversary of Madero's revolution. The library window was broken by bricks, which fell in among several members of he club sitting in the room. The Chihuahua Foreign club, one of the largest in Mexico, is regarded by most Mexicans as the visible evidence of the envied American commercial supremacy in the northern part of their country.

Suffragists Not Sorry.

London — Suffragettes who participated in riots resulting from their attempt to enter the house of commons, are not sorry. Two hundred and twenty-two of them, many mere schoolgirls, accepted punishment in Bow Street Police court without repentant tears. They were sentenced to fines or alternative terms of imprisonment varying from a fortnight to several months. The women invariably chose prison instead of a fine.

Troops Move to Arizona.

Bisbee, Ariz.—What is believed to be the extension to Arizona of the patrol of the Mexican border already in effect in Texas was forecast by the ordering of the second squadron of the Sixth United States cavalry, stationed at Fort Huachuca, to Warren, Ariz.

REBELS ARE GATHERING.

Beseigers at Nanking Well Armed and Attack Imminent.

San Francisco — Revolutionary troops are assembling in great numbers just outside of Nanking, according to a cable dispatch received by the Chinese Free Press. Advices say that the troops are commanded by General Chao Shu Ching, former general under the Manchu government. The attack on Nanking is expected to begin at any time. The revolutionists are well supplied with arms and ammunition.

Hongkong advices to the Chinese Daily Paper say that the former viceroy of Canton, Chong Ming Chi, has cut off his que and gone to Europe.

District Magistrate Yen Ping has abandoned his post to the Republican party and fled. The commander in chief of the Republican army in Canton is sending one regiment north and will head the other troops in his command in the attack on Pekin.

American Woman is Slain.

Pekin—The killing of foreigners at Sian Fu, Shan Si province, has been further confirmed by two Chinese students who have arrived from that city.

During the fighting in Sian Fu a mob attacked the China Inland mission, just outside the city. The mob murdered Mrs. Beckman, who is said to be an American, and five of the mission children. Mr. Beckman was wounded, but escaped, saving an infant.

SUFFRAGETTES BEATEN.

Attempt to Storm Parliament Fails—Many Arrested.

London — The suffragettes fared badly at the hands of the police in this city Wednesday. They had threatened to force their way into the house of commons and make a protest on the floor against the prime minister's refusal to pledge the government to a bill giving equal suffrage to both sexes, but they failed to reach the entrance to parliament.

Thwarted by the police, who arrested 220 women and three men, the suffragettes resorted to a campaign of window smashing. Driven from parliament square by the police, 1,800 of whom were on duty, the women, accompanied by sympathizers and gangs of rowdies, proceeded through Whitehall, armed with bags of stones, concealed under their coats, and broke windows in public offices, the Liberal headquarters and the National Liberal Club. They extended their operations to the Strand, where windows of the Postoffice bank and other private concerns suffered from the onslaught.

The militant tactics of the suffragettes followed a statement by Premier Asquith that the government was unable to introduce a bill to enfranchise women, as the cabinet was divided on the question, but would allow an amendment to be introduced to the proposed manhood suffrage bill, leaving it to the house of commons to decide whether women should be given a vote.

STRIPPED BY JOHN D.

Michigan Miner Claims Financier Got Millions By Trickery.

Washington, D. C.—Alfred Merritt, of Duluth, Minn., first president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, who styled himself a "lumberjack," unacquainted with the methods of the "money trust," told the house Steel trust investigating committee that through loans of less than $1,000,000, from John D. Rockefeller, he had lost his holdings in the Missabe iron mines and the railroad property now owned by the United States Steel corporation and estimated to be worth $700,000,000. Merritt declared that he was induced through F. D. Gates, Mr. Rockefeller's secretary, "in charge of his charitable work," to put up all his holdings as collateral for loans. Two months after he had put up his collateral with Mr. Rockefeller during the panic of 1893, Rockefeller called in the loan, giving him 24 hours to raise $420,000, and that being unable to raise the money, he and his brother lost their property.

Child Kills Her Mother.

Watsonville, Cal. — Mrs. George Ball, of Vega, a station five miles from here, was accidentally shot and instantly killed by her 7-year-old daughter, who was trying to shield her from attack by the girl's father. According to local officials who investigated the tragedy, Ball returned home in a drunken condition and began abusing his wife, when the little girl interfered. The pistol the child held was discharged twice, one of the bullets striking her mother just above the heart.

Italians Repulse Turks.

Tripoli—The Italians report that the Turks were repulsed Wednesday in three outpost attacks with 29 killed. Five aeroplanes, returning to camp, reported that there had been no change in the Turkish position. They succeeded in dropping bombs inside the Turkish camp, which was destroyed. At the same time the Italian armored cruiser Carlo Alberto bombarded the village of Amrus and the fort of Henni, 3 miles from Tripoli.

Castro Victor in Battle.

Mexico City—A dispatch to the Nuevo Era from Caracas says that General Cipriano Castro, ex-president of Venezuela, has won in a battle which occurred in Venezuela, having entered his native country with thousands of followers.

Thanksgiving Day in Washington

by Edward D. Clark

PRESIDENT TAFT'S method of celebration of Thanksgiving Day is in keeping with the traditions of his New England ancestors The substantials which find Thanksgiving Day place on the president's table are New England products. Rhode Island turkey, Cape Cod cranberries, and Massachusetts pumpkin pie, three absolutely necessary adjuncts of the holiday's keeping, form a part, perhaps the chief part, of the president's feast day's provender.

The president has eaten many Thanksgiving dinners in Ohio, at least two in the Philippines and if memory is not at fault, he ate one in Cuba. He never has missed his turkey, for be it known that persons of New England ancestery, no matter where they live, always take precautions to see to it that when the last Thursday in November comes, turkey, cranberry and pie shall have a place within the larder.

Holiday at the Capital.

Washington's native population does not make as much of Thanksgiving day as it does of Christmas, for Christmas is the great day in the south and a large part of the capital city's population is composed of southern people. It is a general holiday, however, and it is marked in every home by what the children of the family call a "big dinner." The markets of the city are filled with game, and in fact, game in many households which can afford the luxury, takes the place of turkey.

The cook at the White House excels at southern dishes. It is a good many years since a southerner sat in the chief chair of state, but northerners coming to Washington to live always have a first desire to taste the famed cooking of the south. So it is that whether Ohio or New York, or Indiana or any other state north of the line is represented in the White House a goodly share of the dishes prepared for the three daily meals have the flavoring of Virginia, South Carolina, and Louisiana. But on Thanksgiving day everything but food and cookery which have the savory essence of New England in them, is put under the ban and the president and family eat what the Puritan fathers ate in the days which now are only memories.

Thanksgiving day is a good deal of a church-going day in Washington, notwithstanding the fact that the holiday is regarded largely, as it is in fact, a New England institution. The president is a Unitarian, but last Thanksgiving day he attended a great Thanksgiving service in St. Patrick's Catholic church, where there were gathered all the representatives of countries where the Catholic religion prevails and nearly all the representatives of the other countries as well. Episcopalians, Methodists, Catholics, Congregationalists, Unitarians, Lutherans, and all the rest hold Thanksgiving day morning service in the capital, and let it be said that while the holiday is in every respect one surcharged with New Englandism the church attendance in this part of the country is larger than it is in many places in the land where Thanksgiving was instituted. The southern and semi-southern people are greater churchgoers than are those of the north.

Markets Worth a Visit.

The markets in Washington for Thanksgiving day are a delight to the eye, and a journey through them is a fine appetizer for the turkey dinner. Wild turkeys frequently are found in the capital's meat shops, for the great game bird is still fairly abundant in some sections of the wooded mountain regions to the south of the Potomac. The original Thanksgiving dinner was a wild turkey dinner, for the big bird once was abundant in the woods of Massachusetts and New England generally. It ought to be abundant there today, so the ornithologists say, but man was so sure that the birds never would become extinct, because of thier apparent abundance that he killed ruthlessly, having no heed for the needs and the appetites of posterity. The last New England wild turkey was killed on Mount Tom in Massachusetts about the year 1850.

All the foreigners in Washington, and they are legion, celebrate Thanksgiving with the spirit of the New England people. The foreign colony looks on the holiday as a peculiar American one, and when in America they want to do as the Americans do. The Europeans temporarily resident here regard the turkey as an admirable American institution. They have turkeys in Europe, to be sure, but they must admit that the bird originally came from this country, and the diplomats "diplomatically" say that the native bird is better than its brother birds which have been raised in an environment which was not natural to the ancestral fowl.

Soon Learn to Cook Turkey.

Some of the foreign ambassadors and ministers bring their own chief cooks to Washington with them, and one of the first lessons which the kitchen artist must learn is how to cook turkey in American fashion. A Washington story is that President

Chief Executive Has Eaten Thanksgiving Dinner in the Philippines.

Arthur once broke a White House rule and dined with a European minister who happened to be an intimate personal friend, on Thanksgiving day. Mr. Arthur told his host that the turkey tasted as if it had been cooked in the kitchen of a New England housewife of unmixed Plymouth descent. He was told that it was cooked by a man who had come from Austria within three months and that he had never cooked a turkey before in his life. This story is told in Washington as an example of the adaptability of foreigners to America's ways, even to the ways of the kitchen.

There are comparatively few senators and representatives in Washington, although the opening of congress is but a few days in the future. The home instinct is strong at Thanksgiving time and it keeps most of the national legislators away from the capital at this early holiday season. The New England states are represented in the departments of Washington in the ranks of the clerks just as numerously as other states are represented. New Englanders always go home to spend Thanksgiving day, if they have the money, and if father and mother, or either, or brothers and sisters are living in the old homestead to prepare the old Thanksgiving day dinner and to welcome the wanderer.

Presidential Game of Golf.

President Taft likes his holiday game of golf, and his Thanksgiving day appetite is whetted by a journey over the links in company with Secretary of State Knox, Brigadier General Clarence R. Edwards, or some other official golfer of renown. From the golf links the president, if he looks far off across the Potomac, can get an occasional glimpse of the redcoated fox-following members of one of the great Potomac hunting clubs. Thanksgiving day in Washington is marked as the day of the openig of the fox-hunting season in Virginia, which lies just over the river.

The old-time Virginians still follow the fox, and the ranks of the natives have been augmented in recent years by northerners who have come south to make their winter homes. Along the Potomac westward and a little northward from Washington a good many "great houses" are in process of erection. They lack the age and distinction of the old-time residences of Virginia and it may be that the native born ones resent somewhat this intrusion of the wealth of the north, wealth accompanied as it is frequently by an ostentataion that is nothing short of vulgar. The new rich element, however, which is erecting homes in Virginia, is confining itself largely to the section of the Old Dominion near the capital and there it does not intrude to any considerable extent upon the time-honored reign of the old families who have lived in the state themselves and through their ancestry for hundreds of years.

Washington led the whole United States in the manufacture of lumber in 1910, according to figures just issued by the census bureau. The state will, undoubtedly, duplicate its performance of last year for it is far ahead in the 1911 cut. During 1910 Washington cut more than one-tenth of all the lumber manufactured in the country.

The Aberdeen Chamber of Commerce plans the calling of a good roads convention for the purpose of taking up the matter of bonding Chehalis county for $1,000,000 for building of good roads throughout the county on a broad guage plan. The people of that section appear to be alive to the fact that nothing will add more to the material prosperity of a community than good roads.

T. A. Parish, State Tax Commissioner,, and formerly assessor of King county, is a candidate for mayor of Seattle. Mr. Dilling will not be a candidate for re-election. It is understood that M. J. Carrigan—our Mr. Carrigan—will succeed Mr. Parish on the tax commission board. Mr. Parish being quite popular in King county, it is thought he will make a strong candidate for mayor of Seattle.

That the completion of the Panama canal will mean millions of dollars annuallly to the fruit growers of the Pacific Northwest, was the statement of J. N. Neal in an address to the Oregon State Horticultural society at its annual meeting. He believes the fruit grower will profit more by the opening of the canal than the man engaged in any other industry, with the possible exception off the lumberman, although producers generally will be benefitted.

Mr. Neal told of the reduced freight rates to the markets of the world that will follow when the canal is opened, while at the same time lower rates will lessen the cost of almost everything the horticulturist uses. Markets for fruits will be widened greatly because of cheapening of transportation and Mr. Neal estimates a saving of approximately 20,000 a year in freight charges to growers of the Pacific Northwest.

Mexico has another revolution that is most promising of success. The revolution that placed Madero in the presidency was remarkable for the fact that it was led by himself, a civilian. Until a little over two years ago, he was a planter, educated in the United States and Europe. He had traveled a great deal, studying men, books, and institutions. He wrote a book that disturbed Diaz and placed the author's life in jeopardy. He ran for the presidency against Diaz and for his audacity was placed in jail. After he got out the revolution began, he furnishing the money. He was successful and Diaz left the country a broken down old man.

Madero was elected president and entered the Capitol as a hero, not as Diaz in 1876 at the head of an army. The country is yet turbulent and it will require a strong hand and great skill to bring about any lasting peace. Hence Uncle Sam proposes to watch of affairs along the border.

The Winnipeg Saturday Post, in commenting on the trial of the McNamaras on a charge of blowing up the offices of the Los Angeles Times and killing a number of men, says it is one of the grimmest comedies of American justice furnished to the public in a number of years. The case came before the court several weeks ago and ever since that time the lawyers have been busy wrangling over the selection of a jury. In Canada the jury would be selected in forty-eight hours at most, and within a week a verdict one way or the other would be rendered. Is it any wonder that conditions which permit socalled justice to be converted into a howling farce, performed merely for the enrichment of lawyers, should have created agitation throughout the United States for legal reforms.

The Irondale Light and Power Co. is a new incorporation organized for the purpose of erecting a transformer station on the Olympic Power Co.'s line and stringing wires to such places and districts as may desire the power. The company intends covering all sections of eastern Jefferson.

Survey of a road from Moclips to Neah Bay, one from Lake Cushman, through the Olympic Forest Reserve, to Quinault reservation and the coast, and a third from Union City to Port Townsend, as highways, which would increase the population and open a country of wonderful scenic beauty, will be urged upon Congress at its coming session by the new Chamber of Commerce of Seattle, through the recommendations of its Progress and Prosperity committee.

Indorsement has also been given by the committee to the resolution adopted by the Good Roads convention, calling upon Congress to construct a road to start from Longmire springs, in the Rainier National Park, extending thence upward and around the westerly end of the Tattoosh range, thence continuing upward along the southerly side of this range to the Cascade range and thence southerly to or near the summit of Mt. Adams, and thence westerly to or near the summit of Mt. St. Helens.

It is recited in the resolution prepared by the committee that the elevation of such a road would give panoramic views and vistas of immense and magnificent areas and would add another asset to the state in opening up the beauties of the section traversed to tourist traffic

Congressman Warburton reports that our streams and rivers will be well supplied with Rainbow trout from the Department commencing April next. Game Warden Pike, as we mentioned last week, has also received word from the Department to this effect, the only condition imposed being that the county must take care of the young fish until they are of sufficient size.

Mr. Warburton, as shown by the above, is taking an interest in this section of his district and is attending to our wants promptly. He states he will endeavor to have favorable action on our needs and demands, but wishes to impress upon the community that it will be necessary to send along all the data possible regarding the several propositions brought before him when visiting us a short time ago. So it is up to our Commercial Club and the several separate committees who have this matter in hand to see that all the required information is supplied as the winter session of Congress opens early next month.

Townsend's Commercial Club has taken up the question of building an electric railway to Fort Worden and the fair grounds, a distance of three miles. It is estimated the cost would be thirty-five thousand and with daily receipts of thirty dollars could be successfully maintained.

California, when she adopted women suffrage, adopted the referendum at the same time. In California the referendum applies to any law as well as to any office holder.

Don't fail to vote Tuesday. While apparently there is little interest, except for one or two offices, the way to block a quiet surprise is to turn out and vote.

The Sedro Woolley Courier tells how, on Sunday, Nov. 19th, "the mighty Skagit river solved a problem which has bothered the minds of the people of the valley for nearly twenty years, by cutting across a narrow neck of land near Sterling, termed the Sterling cutoff, and shortening the channel by about two and one half miles, the distance across the neck being 600 feet. Some who have been all over the ground say that water has been seeping through underneath for some time, and the chances are that the ground was honeycombed, for when the break came earth and trees commenced tumbling, and in a short time the channel was several hundred feet wide and carrying most of the water of the river, leaving the old channel with little current."

Port Townsend does not lack supporters in her fight to retain the customs headquarters. Practically every port in the district is favorable to its retention at Townsend, including Tacoma. All recognize that the only reason for the agitation for removal to Seattle comes from the selfish desire of that city to grab it, if possible.

"Booster Day" was such a grand success in the State of Washington last August that Governor Hay has decided to make them regular semi-annual occasions in the future. The second one to be called will be sometime in January or February next.
