SUCCESS ATTENDS FLAG CELEBRATION

First Public Observance of the Anniversary Brings Out Large Crowd.

"The flag is the symbol of the principles for which our fathers fought. It is the banner that Washington's army, footsore and weary, half fed and half clothed, followed on land, and that John Paul Jones carried to victory upon the sea," said Judge A. R. Coleman, in his address at the Flag Day exercises at Civic Park Friday. "It is the banner under which our army humbled the power of Britian and won the freedom and the liberty we enjoy today. It is the banner that floated over our army and navy in our triumph over England, in the war of 1812. The flag under which our soldiers fought and won in Mexico.

"The flag under which the boys in blue won our Civil War, the bloodiest war of modern times, on each side of which were armies of as brave and good men as ever went forth to battle, but, thank God, the remnants of those armies, these old veterans here, and the old men of the South who wore the gray, they and their children, North and South, are united today in their love and reverence for that flag and are ready to vie with each other in its defense against all the world. Yes, friends, they have vied with each other in honoring that flag since then, for it is the flag that flew from the mastheads of Dewey's ships in Manila bay, and from those of Samson and Schley and Evans in Cuban waters.

"My friends, such are a few of the glories of battle through which we have carried that flag, but the greatest glory this nation has achieved has been in times of peace. The progress we have made in the arts and sciences, in agriculture and manufacture, in carrying civilization from a narrow fringe along the Atlantic seaboard to the blue waters of the Pacific, and on to the islands of the sea; the security to property, life, and liberty that has everywhere been established and maintained; the best, freest and most just government the world has ever seen, all has been achieved under that flag.

"Shouldn't we love 'Old Glory' that stands for all these things? Shouldn't we be ready to make any sacrifice in defense of that flag and that for which it stands?

"Ah, about this, like everything else in this world, there are those who are dissatisfied—not only dissatisfied, but who would, if they could, pull down that flag and overturn the glorious institutions that have been built up under its protection. True, there have been wrongs perpetrated; our institutions and the workings of our government are not perfect, but government, like everything else in this world, has to be carried on by human agencies, and human nature is not perfect.

"Do these critics, those who would destroy this glorious fabric of liberty, imagine that their ideas of government, if put into force, would change men's natures and make them perfect? No, my friends, you can't do that. Give up such theories and come along with those of us who love that flag and mean to protect and defend it against all attacks, whether from without or from within. Come with us and by constitutional and orderly methods let's correct the wrongs as far as we can, and let's continue to live under the most glorious flag and most just government in all the world.

"Let us all pledge our lives, our fortunes and sacred honor to the love and defense of that flag which has been moistened by the tears of noble women and

MRS. BREWSTER FESTIVAL QUEEN

Ladies' Auxiliary Selects Queen, Goddess of Liberty, Uncle Sam, and Attendants.

Mrs. Marietta Brewster is to be the Queen of the Rose Festival. She was selected at a meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary Tuesday. So great is the esteem in which she is held, that, although there were a number of names presented, Mrs. Brewster was the unanimous choice of the Club. The selection of Mrs. Brewster will be particularly pleasing to our people. She is one of the oldest residents of this community, having come here more than twenty-four years ago. She is known by almost every one, and because of her kindliness and sweetness of disposition she is loved by all who know her. Her subjects will be as loyal as ever a queen had.

The Queen will be attended by these Maids of Honor: Alice Beam, Margaret Delabarre, Verna Wolverton, Laura Hopkins, Gertrude Willson, and Frances Hoar.

The Queen's Bodyguard: Duane Allen, Ed Abbott, Lyle Beam, Jas. Hooker, Robt. Gould and Tom Fitzgerald.

Miss Vivian Stovel was elected Goddess of Liberty. She will be attended by forty-eight little girls, representing the various states.

Mr. O. W. Burdick, who has taken that part so acceptably in the past, will act as Uncle Sam.

THE ENTERTAINMENT

The admission to the entertainment on the evening of the Third will be 25c, and 15c for children: The program:

Opening Selection by Marine Band.

Maypole Dance by little girls:
Christine Stakemiller, Dorothy Guy, Emma Abbott, Susie Foster, Juanita Lindsay, Yettie Kerkes, Dorothy Gherke, Blanche Guy, Hannah Lonsdale, Edna Wold, Eila Haynes, Lucille Hooker, Wilda Smith, Marion Day, Josephine Govan, Margaret Stovel, Margaret Fisher, Mable Nicols.

Tableau with little Irene Mitchell as Queen of the Maypole.

Song by Miss Ethel Welch.

Flag Drill:
May Thompson, Emma Abbot, Hannah Lonsdale, Christine Stakemiller, Nona Haynes, Yettie Kerkes, Imogene O'Neil, Myra Styles, Susie Foster, Edna Wold, Lucille Hooker, Dorothy Gherke.

Tableau with Vivian Stovel as Goddess of Liberty.

Selection, Band.

Comic Songs, Juanita Lindsay and Blanche Guy.

Delsarte Drill of Dramatic Poses:
Ellen Finch, Vivian Stovel, Mayme Thompson, Helen Hooker, Anna Albertson, May Thompson, Eila Haynes, Willie White, Dorothy Gherke, Wilda Smith.

Dramatic Recitation by little Wilda Smith, ending with a beautiful tableau.

Song, Dorothy Guy.

Selection, Band.

Doll Drill by six little misses:
Janice Dilling, Bettie Wood, Dorothy Webster, Iris Gherke, Irene Mitchell, Jeanette Shields.

CAMPAIGN WILL BE INTERESTING

Louie Klahn of Shuwah, who is out as an active candidate for the republican nomination as commissioner to succeed K. O. Erickson, was an Angeles visitor yesterday. Louie says they will likely have a three-cornered race, J. S. Maxfield and Jim Clark being the other candidates. Louie claims to be the only Simon-pure, dyed-in-the-wool, progressive candidate; he says there is something rotten in Denmark, in fact, that conditions are particularly exasperating in regard to road work, and he pledges himself to the remedying thereof. We judge the campaign will have its points of interest.

CANNERY TO RUN THRUOUT SEASON

Thirty-five Hundred Cases Already Packed. New Tender "Driva" Arrives.

The Gorman cannery will run continuously from now until November, according to a statement made at the cannery yesterday. The new cannery at Neah Bay will not be ready for operation until the middle of July. In the meantime the cannery here will take care of all the fish it can handle. Even after the opening of the Neah Bay plant large quantities of fish must be sent here for packing.

It is expected that the catch of salmon off Neah Bay will be much larger this year than ever before. The run of fish seems to be good this early in the season. There are hundreds of new boats on the banks and large quantities of fish are already being shipped. The Grant brought in 2,500 fish on her last trip.

The fine new eighty-five horse power tender "Driva" has arrived, and she will be used in connection with the plants here and at Neah Bay.

Over 3,500 cases have been packed at the cannery here to date.

WEST END RANCHER LIVED TOO LONG ALONE

Joe Legalis of Bogachiel was brought to Angeles Sunday by Sheriff Gallagher for trial before the insanity board. He has been living alone a number of years, having, it is said, only been out to Clallam two or three times in six years, and often not leaving his ranch for six weeks at a stretch. During this time he has cleared several acres in a dense spruce forest, the trees of which run from four to twelve feet in diameter—a sort of voluntary imprisonment that would make any man go mad.

Some of the people about Forks had become afraid of Legalis. While normal on most subjects, he believed he was being persecuted by a host of devils. He said he had shot several women who had been prowling around in the bushes at night. He had his place posted and told the sheriff he would shoot any one who came around at night unless they called out to him so he could know they were not devils. Game Warden Pike accompanied Gallagher, but no difficulty was experienced in getting Legalis to leave home.

CRESCENT LANDS WILL FIND READY SALE

J. E. Barnes, publicity expert who has taken in hand the colonization of the Port Crescent logged-off lands, was in the city yesterday, boosting the new enterprise. He says there has already been a considerable interest commenced by homeseekers, the low price of $35 per acre for lands of exceptional fertility in a neighborhood provided with good roads and schools and located not far from tide water, proving a decided attraction. Being divided into ten and twenty acre tracts, which limits will include the majority of small dairy farms in the county, and for sale on easy terms, there is little doubt that it will all be taken up during the next few months.

Ennis creek bridge is almost ready for travel, requiring only a top dressing of gravel on the road at either end. However, it may be some days before it is open to the public, as the State must formally accept the work.

ANNOUNCES NEW LIBRARY SCHEDULE

Library to Be Open Six Days in the Week. Children's Hour Monday Afternoon.

Miss Winifred Romney, who arrived from the University last week to have charge of the library during the summer, has assumed her duties. She announces Library Hours as follows: Open for borrowing books from seven to nine on Saturday evening, and from two-thirty to five-thirty on every afternoon except Saturday and Monday.

Monday afternoon from two-thirty to five-thirty will be given to a Children's Story Hour. Miss Romney will tell and read stories, and she will teach the children to play new games. Mothers are invited to send their children to the library on Monday afternoon. It is desired that wide publicity may be given this.

The five hundred books donated by the Seattle Library are now on the shelves and may be taken out. Owing to the fact that these were among the most popular in the Seattle Library they are considerably worn, but most of them are late novels and very interesting. Some of the very best of the late books are included. They make an excellent addition to the library.

Applications for membership are coming in rapidly.

MANY GOOD CLUBS TO COME TO ANGELES

According to Manager Merrill, the new boat service will insure an excellent baseball schedule. Heretofore there has been trouble in signing teams that could spare the three days necessary to play here on Sunday. With the inititation of the new service by the Sol Duc, it will be possible for Seattle teams to play here on Sunday without the loss of any working time. Manager Merrill has been swamped with applications for games, and has been compelled to turn down more than half of them. He has already signed with the Albers Club, the Knights of Columbus Club, the Shaner & Wolf, U.S.S. Virginia team, the James Bay Club of Victoria, besides having several dates with the Fort Casey boys.

New suits have been ordered and are daily expected. Port Angeles has a baseball team that is a credit to the town. It is valuable from an advertising point of view and should receive the support of the citizens.

ONE HUNDRED MOOSE INITIATED TONIGHT

More than one hundred candidates will be initiated into the Inner Shrine of the Loyal Order of Moose tonight at Haning Hall.

National Organizer H. L. Replogle, at present instituting a lodge in Vancouver, B. C., will have charge of the initiation. He will be assisted by the officers of the Port Townsend lodge.

The charter will be closed on July first, at which time the charter fee will be raised from $5 to $25. Those contemplating joining the order should get in before the raise takes place.

The work here is being conducted by state organizer J. C. Monahan, with headquarters at the Merchants Hotel.

The lodge here will be known in the future as Port Angeles Lodge 991, L.O.O.M.

FRIDAY, JUNE 21, 1912

The building of home political fences will now begin to absorb the minds of some of our citizens.

Everybody reads the Olympic-Leader because it is the only paper that gives all the city and county news.

Champ Clark is a wiley politician. While he is a candidate for the presidency with good hopes, he did not fail to file for the nomination for congress, so he stands to win either one way or the other.

John Northstrom, eleven years old, and his younger brother Elfred were drowned near Tacoma Tuesday, while wading in the sound. The little fellows were trying to see which could wade out the farthest.

More than 600 students were graduated from the high schools of Seattle this week. Prof. Edmond S. Meany, who is known as the Ideal Alumnus of the University, spoke at the Baccalaureate exercises at the Plymouth Congregational church on Sunday evening.

Burglars entered the postoffice at Langley, on Whidby Island Tuesday night. They carried the safe off bodily to a boat, and no further trace of it has been found. The safe weighs three hundred pounds, and it contained $700 in stamps and money.

During the Rose Carnival in Portland last week Silas Christofferson soared in an aeroplane from the roof of the Hotel Multnomah, and twelve minutes later alighted on the artillery drill grounds in Vancouver, Washington. He made the trip across the Columbia river without mishap.

Three University of Washington football stars, Tom Wand, Speedy Jensen, and Owen, are in port with the six ton gasoline fishing boat Moac. They will spend the summer fishing for salmon off Neah Bay. Capt. Ackles, for many years a well known tugboat man on the Sound, is their skipper.

Seattle is finishing a campaign to raise $300,000 for a new Young Woman's Christian Association building. Already more than $250,000 has been subscribed, and the remaining $50,000 is to be pledged at once. The new building will have 149 sleeping rooms for regular and transient boarders.

Of the 2,242 applicants for teachers' certificates at the May examination conducted by H. B. Dewey, state superintendent of public instruction, 1,418, or a little less than two-thirds passed the examination. Most of those who failed stumbled in arithmetic. It is shown that 586, or more than one-fourth of the applicants have had no previous experience as teachers. This is the largest number of inexperienced persons recorded.

Comptroller Tracewell, of the Treasury Department, has decided that Louis R. Glavis must pay the expenses of the trip across the continent to present his charges to President Taft. The trip from Spokane to Beverly, Mass., and return in 1909, cost $322, including $55 for typewriting Glavis' 146-page report to the president. Comptroller Tracewell held that Glavis made the trip of his own accord, and not under the orders of his official superiors.

The electrical storm Wednesday night, followed by the generous rain yesterday, unusual for this section at this season of the year, put out the forest fires and improved crop conditions beyond measure, save the hay where down will be injured.

Convention Moving Slowly

The Republican national convention, meeting at Chicago on Tuesday, named Elihu Root temporary chairman by a vote of 558 to 502 for Governor McGovern of Wisconsin, decided upon at the last as the Roosevelt candidate.

Immediately following the opening exercises of the convention, Governor Hadley of Missouri, leader of the Roosevelt forces on the floor, moved to substitute the rolls of the convention prepared by the Roosevelt forces for the national committee's roll, in part fraudently made up of wrongfully seated contested delegates from California, Texas, Washington and other states. This precipitated the fight. Governor Hadley vigorously addressed the convention in favor of his motion and was answered by James Watson of Indiana for the Taft faction. After much discussion, the motion was ruled out of order. This matter temporarily brushed aside, the roll call on temporary chairman proceeded, with the result that Root was chosen by a majority of 56.

An analysis of the vote developed that the president's renominating strength rested upon a very narrow margin, a little less than 550 votes, when 540 were necessary for a majority. Five Taft men in Illinois, eight in Maryland and three in Oregon, who were under instructions to vote for Roosevelt's nomination, stood for Senator Root, while six Hawaiian delegates, instructed for Taft, voted for McGovern.

The second test of strength of the contestants came Wednesday, when the convention voted 563 to 510 to lay on the table Governor Deneen's motion that none of the contestants should be permitted to vote on their own cases. The vote was preceded by a bitter fight over the motion of Mr. Watson of Indiana to proceed to the appointment of regular committees, as amended by the substitute of Governor Hadley that the Roosevelt list be submitted for the temporary roll. In the midst of the debate, and while Governor Hadley was speaking, someone proposed three cheers for Herbert S. Hadley, "the next president of the United States," and the first ovation of the convention, lasting forty minutes, was given Missouri's governor.

The convention adjourned at 5:50 p. m. to meet at 12:00 m. Thursday, when it again adjourned to 4 p. m. A wire from Seattle yesterday said that Col. Roosevelt, at 10:40 a. m. released his delegates from further support of his candidacy. Up to the time of going to press no further word has been received from Chicago. This is caused by the fact that the Metropolitan press controls the dispatches and no bulletins are given out, the smallest communities being at the mercy of the monopoly in such cases.

She Provided a Substitute.

A very pretty young woman had been asked to dinner by the mother of a young man who admired her very much. While waiting for dinner to be announced the four-year-old niece of the young man came into the room and climbed into the lap of her uncle, of whom she seemed very fond.

The young lady said coaxingly, "Come, Mary, give me a kiss." But the child hid her face on her uncle's arm. The young woman urged the child to come to her, saying again, "Won't you give me a kiss?"

The little girl said, "No, I don't want to." Then she brightened up and said, "Uncle Fred, you do it." —Exchange.

Russia's Royal Train.

The Russian royal special train is the heaviest and the most luxurious in Europe. When it was constructed it was devised to stand a charge of dynamite, and it cannot be taken fast over most of the European lines because their rails are too light. The train contains a chapel, a library, bathrooms, drawing room, dining room and bedrooms. The servants' quarters are at the rear and consist simply of an ordinary vanlike carriage arranged with sleeping bunks as if on board ship. The train is so made that it can be changed to fit the Russian or the mid-European gauge.

The Doings of Our Neighbors

EDEN

Mr. Wm. Clark spent Sunday with his mother and brothers and sister at this place.

The biweekly spelling contest at Eden school was held on Friday evening, June 14. The first contest of the evening was won by Miss Bertha Miller; the second by Miss Lucy Blater. Between the two contests an interesting program was given as follows: Song, Battle Hymn of Republic. Recitations by Marie Oxenford, Nellie Nelson, Eva Long, Jennie Marletti, Ethel Long. Songs by Mrs. Richter, Miss Robison, Miss Elsie Oxenford. Recitations by Hilda Larson, Miss Richter, Miss Robison and Nellie Nelson.

Sunday afternoon, following the Sunday school, Rev. Todd, state officer of the Methodist church, spoke to a large gathering of the people in this neighborhood. We hope for another visit from him.

Abe Bradshaw started Thursday on his work as forest guard in the West End of this county.

Among the sick of this neighborhood, during the past week, were Edith Larson and Ethel Donahoe.

Elmer Bradshaw and Lee Singhose started for Port Townsend, Tuesday, to look up prospects of entering their fast stock in the races on July Fourth.

The Johnson shingle mill at Freshwater will begin work soon.

CLALLAM

A delightful program was given by the pupils of Clallam Bay school and their teacher, Miss Mackechnie, on Friday night, May 31st. The program was arranged to represent a magazine publication. The name being "The Clallam Bay Crest." The contents read as follows:

Cover Design, Vera Howard.

Editorials, Miss Mackechnie.

That Reminds Me, Clement Fairservice.

Music, Edna Score and Vera Howard.

Who's Who and Why, Vera Howard.

Poems, Earl Coker and Hazel Fairservice.

Athletics, India Club Swinging, Seventh and Eighth Grade. Dumb Bell Exercises, Fourth and Fifth Grade.

School Item, getting the History Lesson, Stanley Murray and Clement Fairservice.

Music, Lee Ora Copeland.

Word Pictures, Edna Score.

Advertisements, Vera Howard.

Hazel Fairservice and Earl Coker were awarded medals for being neither absent or tardy, for deportment and scholarship during the school year. Their averages being 98 and 94 respectively.

FAIRVIEW

Miss Viola Cary is visiting with her sister Mrs. Jackson, of Blue Mountain.

Mrs. McCumber has gone with her husband out to the S. and P. Mill to spend the summer. Mrs. McCumber was an active member and a good president and the F. L. C. will miss her very much.

Grace Babcock was a guest of her cousin Esther last Saturday and Sunday.

Fifteen went up to the dance at Blue Mountain last Saturday and all had a fine time.

Mr. Cary has sold his automatic cow to Philip McCumber. She's a mighty handy cow because she milks herself, but the worst of it is no one else but bossie gets the milk—wise cow.

Mrs. Lilly Winters spent last week in town visiting friends and relatives.

Mrs. Dorothy Brown is a guest of Mrs. Burlingett.

At this writing Mrs. Fossett is still in Seattle. Her father is no better.

Judging from the looks of the healthy looking thistle stocks that are growing along the new grade at Morse creek there will be a fine patch there another year. They are an enemy to man and beast and an eyesore to people coming to our beautiful country. A day, a man, and a good sharp hoe vigorously used would be the means of destroying hundreds of millions of the seed that later will float through the air and light in all manner of places, but then, who will see to it?

The date for the basket social and dance is June 29. Everybody welcome.

As you are coming down the beautiful winding road on Morse creek keep your eye out for spooney couples that haven't time to look out for anybody else only each and the other.

DE FUCA

Born, to Mrs. McLeod, on June 11th, a baby girl. Mother and child are getting along nicely at the Olympic Hospital in Port Angeles, but Grandpa and Grandma Reeve have hardly recovered. We think with four generations here in one family there ought to be a treat coming from some one. How about it, grandpa?

Mr. and Mrs. Forest of Blue Mountain, and Mr. and Mrs. McDonold of the Fernwood poultry farm, spent Sunday with the Richards family.

The piling is hauled for Seiberts creek bridge, and Mr. Woods has quite a crew of men at work driving them. They have several bents drove already. Every one will be glad when it is finished. Two new bridges will certainly be a great improvement on the road between Angeles and Sequim.

Mrs. W. K. Turner and daughter Janie, also Mrs. C. J. Witbeck, spent Saturday and Sunday on the Troy ranch. Uncle Chas. Agnew was invited up on Sunday to help them eat chicken and strawberry shortcake.

THE EAST END

From the Press.

Frank Collins sold block 2, Keeler's plat of Sequim, to C. E. McKinnis and C. N. Sprague this week for $2500. This block contains 24 lots and the block contains 5 acres of land platted into lots and streets. Mr. Collins paid $250 for the block 4 years ago. Block 3 adjoining and of similiar size was sold to George Hannum about the same time for $225. Mr. Hannum has sold off his lots at good price, selling one corner lot last fall for $225, the price originally paid for the whole block.

Postmaster Jens Bugge received notice this week from the postmaster general that a postal savings bank would be opened in the Sequim postoffice on July 1st. An inspector will be here in a few days to assist in in opening the bank. Sequim is the third postoffice in the two counties of Jefferson and Clallam to get a postal savings bank, Port Angeles and Port Townsend being the other two offices.

Over two thousand white leghorn chickens can be seen on the McDonald ranch near Seiberts creek. Upon this farm is the most complete plant for chicken raising in the county. The heating apparatus and incubators and all other appliances and houses for successful chicken raising are all up-to-date and of the best approved type. Frank McDonald, the owner, began business here last January. He came from British Columbia where he has had a number of years experience in the chicken business.

Gratitude!

An unusual form of testamentary gratitude is recorded in the diary of Henry Greville. "A man who had spent much of his time in fishing left a direction in his will that as he had derived much nourishment as well as pleasure from the fish he had caught at Chertsey it was only fair to the descendants of those fish that he in return should become their food. He therefore desired that his body should be cast into the Thames at Chertsey." —London Tatler.

A Nautical Explanation.

A New York woman, recounting her impressions of a recent trip abroad, said:

"One thing at least I learned. That was the meaning of 'windward' and 'leeward.' The captain of the liner I crossed on explained this difference to me in a way that, if a little vulgar, was yet unforgetable.

"'Captain,' I said, 'I never can tell the difference between the windward and the leeward. Explain it to me, will you?'

"'Well, madam,' said the gruff old captain, 'if I were to spit to the windward and you were to stand to the leeward of me you would be a fool.'"

THE FOURTH OF JULY PARADE.

Uncle Peter's Flag

A Fourth of July Story

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"IT'LL be the first time in my life that a flag hasn't flown from the pole on a national holiday," murmured Uncle Peter Mason sorrowfully as he squinted up at the tallest flagstaff in Little River. It stood in the middle of his front yard, and it's gilded ball reflected the sunlight high above the highest tree.

His wife, Aunt Rebecca, held at arm's length a dingy object that once had been an American flag. Now the red and white stripes had been beaten by weather until they took on a uniform gray color, and there was little enough of it, too, for the wind had whipped the emblem to a few tattered rags that might not have been recognizable had it not been for the stars carefully stitched by hand and the faded fragments of hand sewed stripes.

"It don't look like this had once been ten foot long," remarked Aunt Rebecca. "After your father always flying the biggest flag in Little River and you carrying out the same idee I hate like poison to run up a small, cheap one, but I don't know what to do. That interest comes due the 1st of July, and there ain't a cent to spare over, even for patriotism."

"I know it, Rebecca. I haven't done more than price these big flags—$15 for this size unless I get a cambric one. You can always tell what a flag's made of by its hang and by its float. Job Little offered to let me have the flag and said I could pay him up by installments, but I says to him that was poor patriotism."

"A cambric flag is better than none," said Rebecca sensibly. "I was telling Etty about it the other day, and she says, says she, 'If I had time I'd make pa a flag, but I'm always so busy with the children's clothes it seems as if I was tired from morning to night.' I told her if anybody made a flag it would be me, but the material would cost a sight if 'twas made of wool or silk."

"My mother made this flag, every bit," said Uncle Peter.

"I wish I'd thought of it before," said Rebecca to herself. "I might have done something to get him a flag. The Fourth of July is his birthday. There's a hull week yet. I'll see what I can do in the meantime."

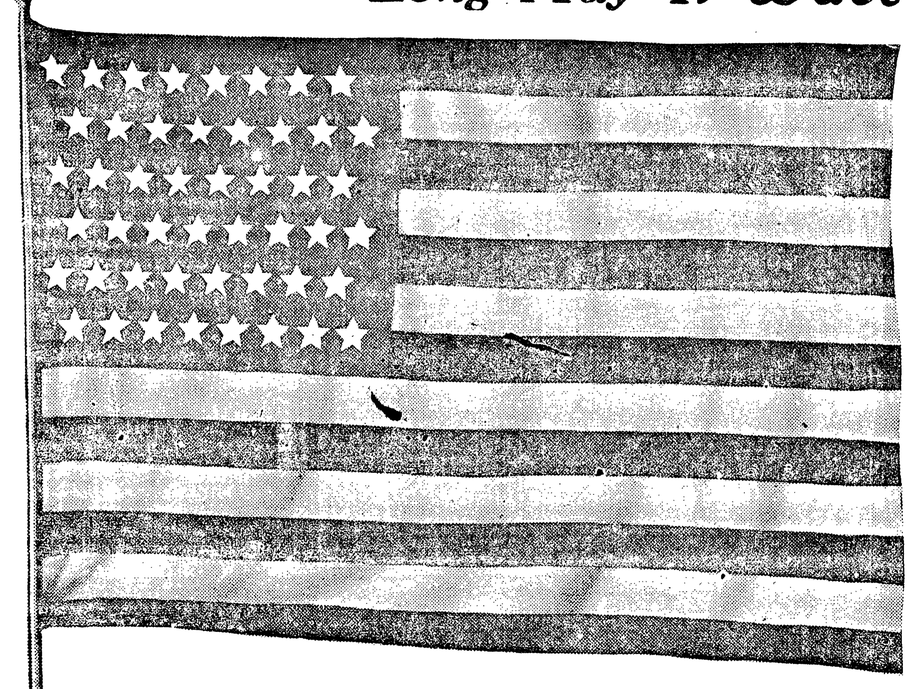
Rebecca Mason went up in the garret that morning and turned out the contents of a dozen trunks. Garments of every color were spilled on the clean floor, and while the wasps hummed about in the shadowy rafters Rebecca turned and sorted and shook and discarded until a pile of white garments lay beside her, and in her lap was heaped her wedding gown, a bright blue delaine.

During the next week Aunt Rebecca was mysteriously busy. She washed great quantities of white poplin, and her dye kettle bubbled secretly in the cellar wash room. Her hands were stained with red, and the sewing machine in the spare chamber hummed busily in every spare moment.

Uncle Peter Mason was busy with the June work in his garden, where the long, straight rows of carefully tended vegetables looked just like the pictures in the seed catalogues which he studied all winter. He had not mentioned the matter of the flag again, and Rebecca had been too busy with her own plans and the fear of discovery to broach the subject. Her daughter Etta, who lived over the river, was up to her ears in sewing for her two children, so Rebecca was quite undisturbed in carrying out her pleasant plans.

The day before the Fourth Aunt Rebecca, looking tired, but very much pleased with herself, carried some neatly rolled bundles up to the garret and stored them away in the trunks. There was a roll of blue delaine and another of white poplin. This latter was very small indeed, for there were a great many stars to make now.

The Star Spangled Banner— Long May It Wave



ONE HUNDRED years ago marked the beginning of the war of 1812, a conflict which was made memorable by the successes of the American forces on the seas and which toward its close gave rise to the incident that led to the writing of "The Star Spangled Banner," the song now generally regarded as our national anthem. This poem was written by Francis Scott Key, an attorney who had gone to the British fleet in Chesapeake bay under a flag of truce in an effort to arrange for the release of a prisoner of war. Mr. Key was detained on board a ship while the attack was made on Baltimore, Sept. 10, 1814. The flag was still flying when darkness hid the scene, and toward morning the firing ceased. Key knew that the battle was over, but he did not know which side was victorious, and while pacing the deck of the British vessel in restless anxiety he thought of the theme and composed most of the lines of "The Star Spangled Banner." When dawn came he saw the flag still waving.

At supper Aunt Rebecca mentioned the coming anniversary for the first time in a week.

"What you going to do about a flag?" she asked.

"Nothing, except run up the old one," said Uncle Peter dispiritedly.

"Seems too bad you couldn't have a new one! How much was the big cambric ones, Peter?"

"I've forgotten, Rebecca—more'n I can afford anyway. I've been counting if I'd hadn't had any terbaccer for three years I might have had that new flag. Shows how a bad habit will trip you up sooner or later."

"'Tain't a bad habit the way you smoke," defended Rebecca warmly. "My land, I guess you're entitled to that little comfort the way you've worked all your life!"

"'Tain't no credit to me that I've worked. It's what I was put in the world for. Never mind about the flag, Becky. There'll be just as much patriotism in my soul when I run her up as if she was made of the finest silk. That's all that counts—what's inside your heart."

"I suppose you're right, father," said Rebecca, a little smile curling her lips as she arose to clear the table. After the dishes were washed and put away Rebecca tied on her white apron and went on to the porch, where the setting sun was gilding Uncle Peter's white head into a roseate crown.

"What you doing?" inquired Rebecca.

"Going to run up the flag. No one in Little River ever got a flag up ahead of me yet," muttered Uncle Peter between his teeth clinched around his pipestem.

He moved across the grass to the flagpole and fumbled with the halyards.

Rebecca bustled into the house and came out with a mass of red, white and blue folds in her arms. She stood close to Peter's elbow before she spoke, and when she opened her lips her voice trembled.

"Peter, look here," she quavered.

Uncle Peter Mason looked and gasped: "What in land, Becky Mason!

HE GOT STILL ANOTHER FLAG.

Where did you get it? It ain't—it ain't the one that was down to Little's, but it looks like it! Where did you get it?"

He was excitedly shaking out the folds of the big flag, and his feeble old fingers trembled as he saw that it was quite as large as the one his mother had made so many years ago.

Aunt Rebecca was crying with delight. She helped him spread the stars and stripes on the grass.

"This blue," she said, touching the star sprinkled field, "is made from my blue delaine—my wedding gown, Peter."

"Oh, Becky!" uttered her husband reverently.

"And the stripes was made from all the white poplin dresses I've had, and there was a sight of the stuff—some of it I dyed red—and"—

Uncle Peter had her in his arms, and they were kissing each other, and Uncle Peter was trying to tell his wife that he would rather have hung up his best Sunday shirt than have her cut up her wedding gown. "I know how wimmen feel about such things," he apologized, trying to keep his delight out of his faded eyes.

"Don't say a word, Peter. It's the happiest day of my life!" cried Aunt Becky warmly. "Let's h'ist her up now, Peter, and show Little River we're still on deck!"

Just then there was a light step on the graveled path, and Etta came around the corner of the house with a huge bundle under her arm. When she saw the flag she stopped and stared.

"Why, where did that come from?" she gasped.

Aunt Rebecca proudly explained.

"Would you believe it?" exclaimed poor Etta. "Look here, ma and pa!" She unrolled the bundle under her arm and spread it on the grass.

It was another flag, just as large as Rebecca's, but made of new material—some sort of cheap bunting neatly sewed into a flag. Uncle Peter was openly crying.

"Did you make this, Etty?" he demanded.

"Every stitch!" she said proudly. "If I'd only known ma was going to make one—but there, ma, if I'd only told you you might have saved your wedding dress, but ain't you smart to make it?"

"I've got two flags," sobbed Uncle Peter, "made by the two best women in the world."

"Look at what's coming!" cried Etta, alert with new interest. "It's Job Little and three men from the lodge."

When Job Little's speech was concluded Uncle Peter found himself the possessor of another immense flag, a gift from a few of his closest friends who wanted it to fly from the tallest staff in Little River.

And that was not all. Later the express wagon drove up and left Peter a box which turned out to contain another flag—this one made of silk that rustled richly as it fell from the box.

"Who the land?" gasped Aunt Rebecca.

"Compliments and best wishes of John Hamilton and family—for Uncle Peter Mason. Long may she wave!" read Uncle Peter brokenly from the card in his hand.

"Who would have believed them summer boarders would have remembered our old flag was wore out," commented Etta practically. "Now, pa, what you going to do? Here you've got four flags. You can't hang 'em on the pole all to once without some being half mast."

Uncle Peter's hat had been removed long ago, when he had brought out the tattered remnant of his mother's flag and the setting sun gilded his white head and glorified the faces of the men and women who stood about him.

"I shall use 'em alternate," announced Uncle Peter at last; "first one and then another. Tomorrow, being the Fourth of July, I shall divide the day into four watches of three hours each and give every flag its turn. I can't thank anybody yet. I'm too happy. I hope nobody will be offended, but I feel like I'll run up my mother's flag first with Rebecca's. She made it from her wedding dress. Nobody object?"

"Of course not!" they cried heartily, and in a trice the faded bit of bunting that had been flung to the breeze so many years once more floated over Little River, and beneath it rippled out the splendid folds of Rebecca's flag.

"I think them two flags better float all day tomorrow," said Job Little decidedly, "and these three others—Etty's and Hamilton's and ours—we'll jest drape on the piazza. What say?"

ADOPTING THE DECLARATION.

How the Immortal Document Was Put Through Continental Congress.

ALTHOUGH the Fourth is the day that is celebrated by many as that on which the Immortal Declaration of Independence was signed, sealed and promulgated, as a matter of fact such is not true. The great document was read to the people on the Fourth after having been approved by congress, but it was not signed on that day.

On July 2 Jefferson presented for adoption the immortal Declaration after congress had adopted a resolution presented by Richard Henry Lee of Virginia, which had been placed before the body on June 7, 1776:

Resolved, That these united colonies are and of a right ought to be free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is and ought to be totally dissolved.

This resolution was debated for nearly a month, and, owing to the absence of Lee, who had been called home, the defense of it fell on his colleague, Jefferson. It needed defense, for in that congress were able men who opposed its passage and revolution. Great, therefore, is America's debt to Jefferson and Lee. On July 2 Lee's resolution was adopted, and Jefferson's draft of the Declaration was adopted on July 4, 1776.

John Hancock, president of congress, and Charles Thompson, its secretary, immediately signed the document and became thus the first official traitors from an English point of view. It was made public to the citizens by John Nixon, who read it to the citizens of Philadelphia in Independence square. On July 15 it was ordered to be engrossed, and on this being done the signers appended their names on Aug. 2.

Meanwhile there had been some changes in the personnel of congress. John Dickinson, Edward Biddle, Thomas Willing and Charles Humphreys of Pennsylvania fought the Declaration, and the commonwealth sent Benjamin Franklin, Robert Morris, George Ross and James Wilson to congress in their places to sign the great paper.

His Best Role.

Recently a letter of introduction was handed by an actor to a manager which described the presenter as an actor of much merit and concluded: "He plays Macbeth, Richelieu, Hamlet, Shylock and billiards. He plays billiards best."

BRYAN IN CONTROL

Although vigorously opposed by Bryan, Judge Parker was elected temporary chairman of the democratic convention at Baltimore on Tuesday. After Parker had been placed in nomination, Bryan took the floor, and in an impassioned plea for progressive democracy, nominated Senator Kern, of Indiana. Kern immediately took the floor, withdrew, and nominated Bryan. The vote gave Parker 579; Bryan 506.

After refusing the chairmanship of the committee on resolutions, offered him on a silver platter on two occasions, Wednesday, Bryan demonstrated his strength by having that body vote, 41 to 9, to recommend to the convention that it upset all precedent and nominate a candidate for president before the presentation of the platform.

Bryan claims that the convention is in the hands of the reactionary forces.

Later the convention adopted this recommendation. Kern was made chairman of the committee on platform, which means that Bryan will dictate the platform. Bryan appears to be in full control of the convention, and the indications are that a progressive will be nominated. Wilson appears to have the best chance at present.

ANGELES DAY AT SOLDUC

There were about fifty in attendance from this city on Angeles Day at the Sol Duc Hot Springs. The exercises started at 9.00 p. m., Chairman T. T. Aldwell opening with a story of early life at the springs. Mr. Ritchie presented the engrossed copy of the resolution adopted by Angeles citizens at an earlier date. Mr. Earles responded feelingly in accepting the framed token. Talks were then made by others in attendance, followed by dancing, in the hotel lobby. The balance of the stay of the Angeles contingent was spent in viewing the spacious grounds and buildings which proved beyond the fondest dreams of the visitors who had not before been there and which are not done justice by the beautiful books describing the springs. Drinking the water and indulging in the famous baths proved popular, and he who did not participate in this latter surely missed a great treat.

A PLAIN GIVE-AWAY

Two Taft men were discussing the political attitude of a well-known Republican National Committeeman a fortnight before the Chicago convention.

"How does he stand?" asked one.

"Oh, I guess he's switched to Roosevelt!"

"What makes you think that?"

Well, I heard him talk about deciding the contests for delegates on their merits, and a lot of other blamed treachery like that."—Saturday Post.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM ADOPTED AT CHICAGO

Declares Against Recall; Says Party Is One of Progress, Not Reaction.

With the exception of a few unimportant planks the following is the national republican platform:

The republican party, assembled by its representatives in national convention, declares its unchanging faith in government of the people, by the people, for the people. We renew our allegiance to the principles of the republican party and our devotion to the cause of republican institutions established by our fathers.

It is appropriate that we should now recall with a sense of veneration and gratitude the name of our first great leader, who was nominated in this city and whose lofty principles and superb devotion to his country, are an inspiration to the party he honored—Abraham Lincoln. In the present state of public affairs, we should be inspired by his broad statesmanship and by his tolerant spirit toward men.

The republican party looks back on its record with pride and satisfaction and forward to its new responsibilities with hope and confidence. Its achievements in government constitute the most luminous pages in our history. Our greatest national advance has been made during the years of its ascendancy in public affairs. It has been genuinely and always a party of progress; it has never been either stationary or reactionary. It has gone from the fulfillment of one great pledge to the fulfillment of another in response to the public need and to the popular will.

We believe in our self-controlled representative democracy, which is a government of laws, not of men, and in which order is the prerequisite of progress.

Government is Stable.

The principles of constitutional government which make provision for orderly and effective expression of the popular will, for the protection of civil liberty and the rights of men and interpretation of the law by an untrammeled and independent judiciary have proved themselves capable of sustaining the structure of a government which, after more than a century of development, embraces 100,000,000 of people, scattered over a wide and diverse territory, but bound by common purpose, common ideals and common affection to the constitution of the United States. Under the constitution and the principles asserted and vitalized by it, the United States has grown to be one of the great civilized and civilizing powers of the earth. It offers a home and an opportunity to the ambitious and the industrious from other lands. Resting upon the broad basis of a people's confidence and a people's support, and managed by the people themselves, the government of the United States will meet the problems in the future as satisfactorily as it has solved those of the past.

The republican party is now, as is always, a party of advanced and constructive statesmanship. It is to go forward with the solution of those new questions which social, economic and political development have brought into the forefront of the nation's interest. It will strive, not only in the nation but in the several states, to enact the necessary legislation to safeguard the public health; to limit effectively the labor of women and children; to protect wage earners engaged in dangerous occupations; to enact comprehensive and generous workmen's compensation laws in place of the present wasteful and unjust system of employers' liability; and in all possible ways to satisfy the just demands of the people for the study and solution of the complex and constantly changing problems of social welfare.

No Interfering with Individual Rights

In dealing with the questions it is important that the rights of every individual to the freest possible development of his own powers and resources and to the control of his own justly acquired property, so far as those are compatible with the rights of others, shall not be interfered with or destroyed.

The social and political structure of the United States rests on the civil liberty of the individual; and for the protection of that liberty the people have wisely, in the national and state constitutions, put definite limitations on themselves, on their governmental officers and agencies. To enforce these limitations, to secure the orderly and coherent exercise of governmental power and to protect the rights of even the humblest and least-favored individuals are the function of independent courts of justice.

The republican party reaffirms its intention to uphold at all times the authority and integrity of the courts, both state and federal, and it will ever insist that their powers to enforce their process and to protect life, liberty and property shall be preserved inviolate. An orderly method is provided under our system of government, by which the people may, when they choose, alter or amend the constitutional provisions which underlie that government. Until these constitutional provisions are so altered or amended, in orderly fashion, it is the duty of the courts to see to it that when challenged they are enforced.

That the courts, both federal and state, may bear the heavy burden laid upon them to the complete satisfaction of public opinion, we favor legislation to prevent long delays and the tedious and costly appeals which have so often amounted to a denial of justice in civil cases and to a failure to protect the public at large in criminal cases.

Recall of Judges Unwise.

Since the responsibility of the judiciary is so great, the standards of judicial action must be always and everywhere above suspicion and reproach. While we regard the recall of judges as unnecessary and unwise, we favor such action as may be necessary to simplify the process by which any judge who is found to be derelict in his duty may be removed f office.

Together with peaceful and orderly development at home, the republican party earnestly favors all measures for the establishment and protection of the peace of the world and for the development of closer relations between the various nations of the earth. It believes most earnestly in the peaceful settlement of international disputes and in the reference of all justiceable controversies between nations to an international court of justice.

Monopoly and Privilege.

The republican party is opposed to special privilege and to monopoly. It placed upon the statute books the interstate commerce act of 1887, and the important amendments thereto, and the anti-trust act of 1890, and it has consistently and successfully enforced the provisions of these laws. It will take no backward step to permit the re-establishment in any degree of conditions which were intolerable.

Experience makes it plain that the business of the country may be carried on without fear or without disturbance and at the same time without resort to practices which are abhorrent to the common sense of justice. The republican party favors the enactment of legislation supplementary to tthe existing anti-trust act which will define as criminal offenses those specific acts that uniformly mark attempts to restrain and to monopolize trade, to the end that those who honestly intend to obey the law may have a guide for their action and that those who aim to violate the law may the more surely be punished. The same certainty should be given to the law prohibiting combinations and monopolies that characterize other provisions of criminal laws, in order that no part of the field of business opportunity may be restricted by monopoly or combination; that business success honorably achieved may not be converted into crime and that the right of every man to acquire commodities, and particularly the necessaries of life, in an open market, uninfluenced by the manipulations of trust or combination, may be preserved.

Federal Trade Commission.

In the enforcement and administration of federal laws governing interstate commerce and enterprises impressed with a public use engaged therein, there is much that may be committed to the federal trade commission, thus placing in the hands of an administrative board many of the functions now necessarily exercised by the courts.

This will promote promptness in the administration of the law and avoid delays and technicalities incident to court procedure.

The Tariff.

We reaffirm our belief in a protective tariff. The republican tariff policy has been of the greatest benefit to the country, developing our resources, diversifying our industries and protecting our workmen against competition with cheaper labor abroad, thus establishing for our wage earners the American standard of living. The protective tariff is so woven into the fabric of our industrialism and agricultural life that to substitute for it a tariff for revenue only would destroy many industries and throw millions of our people out of employment. The products of the farm and the mines should receive the same measure of protection as other products of American labor.

We hold that the import duties should be high enough, while yielding a sufficient revenue, to protect adequately American industries and wages. Some of the existing import duties are too high and should be reduced.

Readjustments should be made from time to time to conform to changed conditions and to reduce excessive rates, but without injury to American industry. To accomplish this, correct information is indispensable. This information can best be obtained by an expert commission, as the large volume of useful facts contained in the recent reports of the tariff board has demonstrated.

The pronounced feature of modern industrial life is its enormous diversification. To apply tariff rates justly to these changing conditions requires closer study and more scientific methods than ever before. The republican party has shown by its creation of the tariff board its recognition of this situation, and its determination to be equal to it. We condemn the democratic party for its failure either to provide funds for the continuance of this board, or to make some other provision for securing the information requisite for intelligent legisiation. We protest against the democratic method of legislating on these vitally important subjects without careful investigation.

We condemn the democratic tariff bills passed by the house of representatives of the sixty-second congress as sectional, as injurious to the public credit and as destroying business enterprises.

Banking and Currency.

The republican party has always stood for a sound currency and for safe banking methods. It is responsible for the resumption of specie payments and for the establishment of the gold standard. It is committed to the progressive development of our banking and currency system. Our banking arrangements today need further revision to meet the requirements of current conditions. We need measures which will prevent the recurrence of money panics and financial disturbances and which will promote the prosperity of business and the welfare of the laboring people by producing constant employment.

We need better currency facilities for the movement of crops in the west and south. We need banking arrangements under American auspices for the encouragement and better conduct of our foreign trade. In attempting these ends, the independence of individual banks, whether organized under national or state charters, must be carefully protected, and our banking and currency system must be safeguarded from any possibility of exploitation by sectional, financial or political interests.

It is of great importance to the social and economic welfare of this country that its farmers have facilities for borrowing easily and cheaply the money they need to increase the productivity of their land. It is as important that financial machinery be provided to supply the demands of farmers for credit as it is that the banking and currency systems be reformed in the interest of general business.

Therefore, we recommend and urge an authoritative investigation of agricultural credit societies and corporations in other countries, and the passage of state and federal laws for the establishment and capable supervision of organizations having for their purpose loaning of funds to farmers.

Campaign Contributions.

We favor such additional legislation as may be necessary more effectually to prohibit corporations from contributing funds, directly or indirectly, to campaigns for the nomination or election of the president, the vice-president, senators and representatives in congress.

We heartily approve the act of congress requiring the fullest publicity in regard to all campaign contributions, whether made in connection with primaries, conventions or elections.

Conservation Policy.

We rejoice in the success of the distinctive republican policy of the conservation of our national resources, for their use by the people without waste and without monopoly. We pledge ourselves to a continuance of such a policy.

We favor such fair and reasonable rules and regulations as will not discourage or interfere with actual bona fide homeseekers, prospectors and miners in the acquisition of public lands under existing laws.

Parcels Post.

In the interest of the general public and particularly of the agricultural or rural communities, we favor legislation looking to the establishment, under proper regulations, of a parcels post, the postal rates to be graduated under a zone similar in proportion to the length of carriage.

The Navy.

We believe in the maintenance of an adequate navy for the national defense and we condemn the action of the democratic house of representatives in refusing to authorize the construction of additional ships.

Merchant Marine.

We believe that one of the country's most urgent needs is a revived merchant marine. There should be American ships, and plenty of them, to make use of the great American inter-oceanic canal now nearing completion.

Reclamation.

We favor the continuance of the policy of the government with regard to the reclamation of arid lands, and for the encouragement of the speedy settlement and improvement of such lands. We favor an amendment to the law that will reasonably extend the time within which the cost of any reclamation project may be repaid by the land owners.

Rivers and Harbors.

We favor a liberal and systematic policy for the improvement of our rivers and harbors. Such improvements should be made upon expert information, and after a careful comparison of cost and prospective benefits.

Alaska.

We favor a liberal policy toward Alaska to promote the development of the great resources of that district, with such safeguards as will prevent waste and monopoly.

We favor the opening of the coal lands to development through a law leasing the lands on such terms as will invite development and provide fuel for the navy and the commerce of the Pacific ocean, while retaining title in the United States to prevent monopoly.

Republican Accomplishment.

The approaching completion of the Panama canal, the establishment of a bureau of mines, the institution of the postal savings bank, the increased provision made in 1912 for the aged and infirm soldiers and sailors of the republic and for their widows, and the vigorous administration of the laws relating to pure food and drugs, all mark the successful progress of the republican administration and are additional evidence of its effectiveness.

Economy and Efficiency.

We commend the earnest effort of the republican administration to secure greater economy and increased efficiency in the conduct of the government business.

Republican Administration.

We challenge successful critism of the 16 years of republican administration under Presidents McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft. We heartily reaffirm the indorsement of President McKinley, contained in the platform of 1900 and of 1904, and that of President Roosevelt, contained in the platforms of 1904 and 1908.

We invite the intelligent judgment of the American people upon the administration of William H. Taft. The country has prospered and been at peace under his presidency. During the years in which he had the co-operation of a republican congress, an unexampled amount of constructive legislation was framed and passed in the interest of the people and in obedience to their wish. That legislation is a record on which any administration might appeal with confidence to the favorable judgment of history.

We appeal to the American electorate upon the record of the republican party and upon this declaration of its principles and purposes. We are confident that under the leadership of candidates here to be nominated our appeal will not be in vain; that the republican party will meet every just expectation of the people whose servant it is; that under its administration and its laws our nation will continue to advance; that peace and prosperity will abide with the people and that glory will be added to the great republic.

UPLIFTING A MAN

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.

Deacon Goodhue was a good man. You could be sure of that by his name alone.

He loved his neighbor as himself and wronged no man. He gave to the heathen and was grieved when he read of the wickedness at home.

For a good many years the deacon went on just being good in a general way, although there were times when he wished he had a specialty. One came his way at last and he was surprised that he had never thought of it before.

But a few tramps came to the village where the deacon lived. Constable Baker had the reputation of being a hard kicker, and the knights of the road took in other towns instead. Therefore the good man had never had a chance to study the tramp at close range.

Constable Baker was taken ill of fever, and while he tossed to and fro on his bed a tramp took advantage of the occasion to make his appearance and do business. He came across Deacon Goodhue almost the first thing, and he told the old, old story of the great Chicago fire—loss of his all—suicide of his wife—loss of his children and the other particulars. Tears came to the eyes of his listener.

Here was what the deacon had longed for—a specialty.

Mrs. Deacon Goodhue was a good woman, as every deacon's wife ought to be, but she was not too good. When the deacon brought his tramp home there were some words about it.

"Why didn't you bring a pig and done with it?" was asked, after the ragged and dusty wayfarer had been looked over.

"Hannah," replied the deacon, "this man has a soul."

"If he has it ought to be scrubbed with soft soap and hot water!"

"Hannah, he stays!" said the deacon as he set his jaw and that ended it. He was a good man, but now and then it became necessary to let it be known who was running that house. The tramp had a hair cut and a shave and was filled up. When his rags had been exchanged for a whole suit the change in him was great. He looked himself over and wept. As he wept he said that his gratitude overpowered him.

"Overpower nothing!" snorted the deacon's wife, and he came back with:

"Hannah, it's as he says. No one can deceive me. You can see gratitude sticking right out of him."

"You just wait awhile," the deacon's wife replied when he boasted of the success of the upbuilding.

"Hannah, he'll grow better every day. What do you think he asked me yesterday?"

"For a dollar, probably."

"No, he didn't. He asked me if he might ring the church bell on Sunday mornings to call out the congregation."

"And you told him he might?"

"Of course. Don't that show that the man is having serious thoughts?"

"No. It shows that he's getting ready to steal the rope and the bell."

Samuel Smith, a villager, had left his hoe hanging on the limb of a cherry tree in the garden. It disappeared. Mr. Jones had some tools in his barn. The tools went. Mrs. Adams left the Monday wash on the clothes line that night, and not a garment was to be found next morning. Theft after theft occurred, and the whole village became excited.

After that a house was entered and robbed—then another and another. Constable Baker had been getting along, but these things brought on a relapse. Six houses were entered and robbed, and as many as a score of thefts took place before Deacon Goodhue became aware of the fact that his "patient" was suspected. Then he met his fellow men to exclaim:

"Can it be possible! No, you can't be so cruel and unjust! You might as well suspect me!"

They couldn't go against the deacon, and so they hunted the county over, though without striking a trail. The deacon felt it his duty to mention things to Moses, and Moses wept after hearing them. The robberies also ceased for a week.

"See how unjust the world is!" signed the deacon. "Because misfortune has dragged you down I alone am a believer in your integrity."

"I knew the world would not give me a chance!" wailed Moses.

"But it must. It shall. You shall be uplifted."

The night after that there were two robberies, and it was found in the morning that Moses had departed. He had left behind him a note that read:

"You have been good to me and I have tried to show my gratitude and appreciation. Look under the hay in the barn."

The deacon went out to look. There were four or five of his neighbors there before him. Under the hay had been found everything the community had been robbed of. The tramp had done it to reward the man that was uplifting him!

Of course the good man was asked to explain matters, and of course he tried his best. That was ten years ago and he's explaining yet. Sometimes the villagers seem to take his view of things, and sometimes they shake their heads and say:

"Mebbe so, deacon, mebbe so; but, you see, when you are trying to uplift a man it's your duty to tie him to the bedpost o' nights so's you can tell where he is."

The Scrap Book

The Brass Ornament.

The junior member of the old law firm of Goldsmith, Colston, Hoadley & Johnson having used the phrase "a shining ornament of the Cincinnati bar" in referring to some other lawyer, Murat Halstead seized upon the phrase and thereafter invariably referred to Mr. Johnson as "the brass ornament of the Cincinnati bar." At an evening gathering Mr. Halstead saw a handsome woman. He begged to be presented and was—to Mrs Johnson. It did not occur to him who the lady might be. He was curious about her. "Johnson, Johnson?" he repeated. "I have never had the pleasure of meeting you before, Mrs. Johnson. Do you live in Ohio?" "Oh, yes," replied the lady, brimming over with smiles; "I live in Cincinnati." "Indeed!" said Mr. Halstead, quite astonished. "May I inquire of what family of Johnsons you are?" The smiles were more than merry this time. "Mr. Halstead," she replied, "for fifteen years I have been trying to polish up the brass ornament of the Cincinnati bar."

The Way to Live.

Let me but live my life from year to year
With forward face and unreluctant soul,
Not hurrying to nor turning from the goal,
Not mourning for the things that disappear
In the dim past, nor holding back in fear
From what the future veils, but with a whole
And happy heart that pays its toll
To youth and age and travels on with cheer.

—Henry van Dyke.

Her Leap In the Dark.

The wife of a leading minister in a New Jersey town was sitting on the porch of the manse when a man with a grip in his hand started to come up the steps. Spotting him at once for a book agent or a peddler, she said firmly, "Nothing today."

"Have you one?" queried the stranger.

Fearing that an affirmative answer might lead to further conversation in which the salesman would try to demonstrate the improvements made in the article since she had purchased hers, the minister's wife answered shortly, "No!"

Shaking his head, the man retreated down the steps, repeating this sentence several times, "Hasn't got one, doesn't want one."

The man's manner and tone of voice awakened the woman's curiosity, so very soon she went over to a neighbor's house where she had seen the man stop and asked:

"What was that man who was here a few minutes ago selling?"

To her astonishment and chagrin the neighbor replied, "Bibles."—Lippincott's.

Looking Ahead.

David A. Ball of Pike county, Mo., was once state senator and acted as lieutenant governor during the two years he presided over the senate. He had an ambition to be lieutenant governor in fact.

One day he confided this ambition to his old family doctor. "The old man," Ball says in telling the story, "walked two blocks with me without making any comment. Then he turned and said:

"'That's all right, Dave, but look here: Suppose you were elected and the governor should die. Wouldn't that leave Missouri in a mighty bad fix?'"—Saturday Evening Post.

The Doings of Our Neighbors

BLUE MOUNTAIN

By waiting to report the meeting scheduled for Wednesday evening, the news items were behind last week. We were expecting Rev. Phillips and Mr. Fulmer out to arrange for church services on certain Sundays of the month and the majority of the Bluemountaineers were at the school house to meet them. Mr. and Mrs. Brauer brought their infant daughter, thinking to take advantage of the presence of a minister, to have her christened, thus avoiding a long ride to town.

Messrs. King and Fries spent Sunday with their families.

Mr. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs of Fairview were at Mr. Emory's Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Chambers were at Mr. Neuenschander's.

Mrs. Wiley Orr returned to Victoria Tuesday. She took advantage of a direct boat service from British Columbia's capital city to spend a week with her sister, Mrs. Elves.

Frank Broughton is again one of the crew at the Elwha mill.

Alfred and Emily Campbell came out Saturday for a short visit with cousins Broughton. Dorothy, who had spent three pleasant weeks at Elwha, came home with them.

Mr. and Mrs. McDonald spent Tuesday at the Broughton home. Messrs. McDonald and Broughton testing the trout fishing in McDonald creek.

Sam Emery is at home nursing a sore hand. He was thrown into the air by a swinging log, coming down near an ax sticking in a log. A piece of flesh was gouged out of his little finger and the third finger laid open. It is a miracle that he escaped with such a slight injury.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Jackson and his mother, Mrs. H. C. Breckenridge, spent several days in Port Angeles, visiting the lakes while there.

Mrs. Aaron Lewis returned from her visit in Oregon on Monday.

We were agreeably surprised that so many joined us in our social meeting, but we were prepared, there being enough ice cream for all and more to spare. Elwha, Fairview, DeFuca and Port Angeles were represented.

FAIRVIEW

Mrs. Fossett came home last Friday, bringing with her the news of the death of her father, Mr. Perry, who had been sick for some time.

Miss Lillian Perry of Seattle is a guest of her sister, Mrs. Fossett.

Mr. O. W. Winters made a business trip down to Gettysburg last week.

A new colt arrived at the Page home last week.

Mr. Berlingette is building a new barn. Charley Cary did some of the hauling for him.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs went thru the trail to Blue Mountain last Sunday.

Rown Luke came down from Dungeness last Sunday and stayed until the "taters" were plowed.

W. P. Nicholls, a former resident of Fairview, but late of town, has gone to England to spend a few months with his mother and brother.

Jim Jacobs, who is working at the Merrill mill, was home last Sunday.

The work on the new barn at Wayside is going steadily on.

Mr. Subik and family were callers at the John Winters home Sunday.

If there are any misspelled words or names twisted in these items just lay it to the editor, and if he says twasn't him, lay it to the other fellow.

EDEN

The mills of this vicinity are running at full capacity and good cuts of shingles are reported.

Abundant rains have assured good crops for the farmers.

The Ladies Thimble Club met Wednesday with Mrs. Ruth Pellerin.

The Eden Choral Club met for singing practice Friday night, June 21, at the home of Mr. C. Larson.

The McDermid family moved to the Johnson mill on last Saturday. Their friends here welcome them back. Three of the boys entered school Monday.

The biweekly spelling contest and program will be held at Eden school house on Friday evening next.

Major Harding returned from a business trip to Seattle Wednesday.

About People of Local Interest

Children's Day Exercises were observed last Sunday evening at the Methodist church. As usual the parents and friends filled the church to overflowing and were appreciative listeners to the program rendered by the Sunday school scholars. The interior of the church has just been newly refinished in an attractive tan color which showed off prettily with the decorations of ferns and roses. All those helping in the preparation of the program deserve much credit.

Charley Woods is home after a three months' trip among the Alaskan islands, fishing and trapping. He traveled several thousand miles by launch and reports a successful trip, securing quite a number of mink which brought from $3.50 to $7.00 each, or an average of $5.00 per skin. Together with his brother Winfield, he is building another 26 foot launch and when completed they intend making another trip north.

The ladies of the Auxiliary ask all those having flowers to send what they can spare to the opera house in the morning of the 3rd, to be used in decorating. It is hoped to make the hall a veritable bower of beauty and this can easily be accomplished if those who have flowers will take the trouble to send them down.

Fresh vegetables at Fish Market

Game Warden Pike and Sheriff Gallagher arrested, the first of the week, two well-known ranchers living on the Clallam-Jefferson county line for shooting deer. One of them said deer hunting had become a common practice in that vicinity.

Paul Farmer met Fred Farmer and the Misses Grace Parkhurst and Ratheryn Hayes at Port Williams last Saturday and brought them home in his car. The party, joined by Mrs. Farmer, went to Sutherland for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Singer of Tacoma spent Saturday at the Hot Springs and at their new home adjoining the Deckman plot on Lake Crescent. They made the trip with Mr. and Mrs. Day.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Gutenberg spent Sunday at the Lakes, accompanied by their son Ed, who is here from Portland, and a young lady who is visiting at the Gutenberg home.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational Church will conduct a Food Sale at Stiles' grocery, from 10 a. m. to 5 p.m., on July 3rd.

The ladies of the W. R. C. will hold a Strawberry Market in the G. A. R. Hall Saturday evening, June 29. Everybody invited.

Miss Margaret Delabarre very delightfully entertained at a luncheon Wednesday afternoon in honor of her guest, Miss Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Cochran are entertaining their daughter and her four children, who arrived Thursday.

Mrs. E. B. Webster returned from Seattle Thursday, accompanied by her little neice, Barbara Trumbull.

Miss Margaret Fitzgerald went to Dungeness Wednesday as the guest of Mrs. Spath for a couple of weeks.

C. L. Finch has the frame of his new bungalow up at the corner of Fifth and Eunice streets.

Miss Cora Tillman returned from a few weeks visit to Seattle and Portland Thursday.

Ralph Chambers is down from Seattle visiting his sister, Mrs. C. L. Babcock.

Many who read this have been in the retail grocery business; they alone can appreciate the fight the retailer has to make to even live. A glance back into the past proves this.

We have just passed our Seventh Birthday in our business and wish to thank our many patrons for their patronage and consideration of the past.

We have successfully met all competition in service, quality of goods, and prices, and today we are the only retail grocers doing a credit business, that were in business when we began, May 15, 1905.

Local W. C. T. U. Column

Edited by the Local Union.

Question. What is the W.C. T.U.?

Ans. THE WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION, a world-wide organization of women working along many lines and in forty distinct departments, to secure better laws, better living, better men and women, better homes, more prosperity of the masses, through the destruction of evil environment and corrupt practices.

Ques. Why is the W.C.T.U. best known as a temperance society?

Ans. Nine tenths of the evil in the world is the direct result of the liquor traffic, or is sustained by that traffic, which resists all moral and social progress, making nearly every effort for better things a battle against the saloon.

Ques. What would the success of the W.C.T.U. teaching and training do for humanity?

Ans. Children would be born free from heriditary vices, reared by intelligent parents, in homes free from evil environment, educated and trained to sustain and enjoy higher Christian,civilization. Then will "the nations of this earth become the nations of our Lord and His Christ."

Ques. Why is the work of the W.C.T.U. separated into many departments?

Ans. To secure effective results through definite supervision by women specially fitted for the task, and to enable members to choose work that accords with their tastes and the needs of their communities. We have World's, National, State, County and local superintendents of each department, and by this can educate experts on all our lines of work.

That was a piece of fine oratory recently when a lecturer, speaking of the drinking young men,said: "The railroads didn't want him, the ocean liners don't want him, the banks don't want him, the merchants don't want him." Then, referring to an advertisement of a saloonkeeper for a bartender who does not drink, "the saloonkeeper does not want him."

Turning with his most winning smile to the audience, he said: "Now, girls, do you want him?"

There is a moral sense that we cannot afford to offend; there is a public conscience that we cannot afford to defy. If the modern Pharaoh, the liquor interests, will not let the people go; if the people are to be denied the right to vote on public questions merely because they may want to vote on the liquor question, let the fate of the ancient Pharaoh be remembered. — William Jennings Bryan.

Every wife, mother, daughter, and sister has a vital interest in, and responsibility for the destruction of the liquor traffic and other evils and all should be glad to join for this service, an organization so strongly equipped, and signally called of God, as the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, the world-famous clergyman and author, writes: "Constitutional prohibition has done more than any other one thing to make Kansas the garden spot, morally, of the universe. It has educated thousands of the finest young men and women to abhor intoxicating liquor as they would abhor any kind of sin and crime. It has helped educate the entire population in ways of sobriety and sober, healthy thinking and conduct;and has raised the entire moral tone of the State to the highest level of citizenship. Prohibition in Kansas is not a question mark but a permanent fact. The saloon and all that goes with it in Kansas is deader than Pharaoh's army."

Are our officials enforcing our State Law regarding minors? If not, why not? Haven't we got a man in Port Angeles who is interested enough in the welfare of our boys to see to it that the law is enforced? What is the matter with the Curfew? Has the Curfew Ordinance been revoked?

A LOT OF FUN FOR 21

Monday afternoon twenty-one little boys and girls went to the Library and had a lot of fun. They had stories read them,—stories about "Nix-Not-Nothing" and about "The Cook and the Brownie." Then one little girl told the story about Bluebeard, the pirate. And after the twenty-one little boys and girls had enough stories, they took Miss Romney over to the park and played some games. They played on the soft green grass under the trees,—and the music they had was made by the wind in the trees, and by the birds and the little singing brook. And when the twenty-one little people were tired they went home happy,—and they are coming again next Monday afternoon, and every Monday afternoon all summer long,—because they had such a lot of fun.

REQUEST TURNED DOWN

Senator Jones has notified the Seattle Chamber of Commerce that the department has no cutter available for the protection of the fishermen at Neah Bay. The Purse Seine Assn. had asked for a revenue cutter patrol of the fishing banks off the Cape, there being about 100 seine boats having a crew of eight men each; 400 salmon trollers, each with two men, in addition to the halibut fleet. In all, at least 2,000 men would be in great danger in event of a severe storm.

The fishermen justly point out that the Snohomish might as well be cruising over the banks fifteen miles off shore, as to be lying at Neah Bay or at the dock or coal bunkers at Port Angeles.

The Congregational church was filled to overflowing Sunday morning, the occasion being the annual memorial service of the local orders of I.O.O.F., and auxiliary, the Rebeccas, these organizations occupying seats in the church reserved for them.

The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Stephen Smith, assisted by the church choir and others, the music being exceptionally fine and appropriate. Rev. Smith gave a splendid sermon on helpfulness, one of the cardinal principles of Odd-fellowship.

The Snohomish saved the brig Irwin, belonging to the Roache Harbor Lime Co., by towing the sailing craft off shore Monday. The Irwin, loaded with lime and lumber, left Angeles on the 20th for Frisco. A dead calm prevailing outside the Cape, she drifted about until the tide threatened to throw her upon the rocks, when signals were hoisted.

ON LINCOLN HEIGHTS

Mrs. Lucy Hooker was hostess to the W. L. C. June 24th. Fourteen members present. A new member Mrs. Thirza Nicholls, was a welcome addition to our club. Mrs. Mary Burdick read an article on "Club Women". Mrs. Hattie Sullivan read from "Correct English," and a general discussion by the members, concerning correct pronunciation of words followed. Through a mistake of the writer, the report of the preceding week failed to materialize. We had a good meeting and did not fail to show our loyalty to the flag.

They go and they come. The Oaks family moved from the Heights to the eastern part of the city, and Chris Steikes and family moved into the Ristine house.

Bert Ferguson has gone to the Victoria side, to work with his relatives.

O. D. Burgman arrived home Sunday morning to visit his family and endeavor to get rid of Job's Comforters which have been annoying him. He has been working at the cannery which Mr. Gorman is building at Neah Bay, the last two months.

O. B. Fleming arrived home Monday from Idaho, where he has been visiting friends of old times. He expects to teach there the coming winter.

Mrs. Henry Hemme, with her daughter and son, is spending the week in the city, visiting old neighbors and friends.

Mrs. David Law is not recovering as fast as was hoped for.

Mr. Dunn is also on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Harding have moved into their new house. They have a fine view of the city, a nice home, and we hope they will live to enjoy it many years.

THE EAST END

From the Press.

R. C. Button, formerly of Sequim, now of Centralia, is reported in the Seattle Times to be the inventor of a patent bath tub for rights to which he has refused $100,000. Further that a Centralia company is about to erect a factory at a cost of $20,000 to make the bath tubs. Some folks here think the bath is a waterless one, the work being done by hot air.

F. E. Ullstrom of Port Angeles and daughter Hedvig visited Sequim last week and were very much impressed with the substantial and as he put it, "very healthy look" of the entire east end county. What seemed to draw his attention most was the big and up-to-date barns and cattle stables. Sequim has a future, "railroad or no railroad." With its irrigation and great stretch of level lands there is nothing in the state that looks more promising.

C. N. Sprague has a new bungalow, 24x40 feet in size, well under way in the Stanley Stone addition.

Frank Swanson is at work building a one and a half story dwelling house on his place.

The River side sawmill has about finished sawing out the bridge timbers for the Seiberts creek bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. E.E. Hopkins and Mr. and Mrs. Kerkes of Port Angeles were visitors at Sequim last Sunday.

J. A. Adams received a fine new Overland automobile last week. E.F. Gierin also has a handsome new car.

Mr. Vernon Adams of Memphis and sister Miss Catherine of Trezevant, Tennessee, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Adams of Sequim. They are the nephew and niece of Mr. Adams.

THE CITY NEWS

Last Sunday two automobiles running between Lake Crescent and Sol Duc Hot Springs were approaching the same curve from opposite directions. Neither one thought that the other could be near, so both were hurrying along so fast that when they met at the curve they bumped each other. Both machines were slightly damaged, and the people were badly scared. That was all.

The many Port Angeles friends of Miss Laura E. Babcock, formerly a teacher in our public schools, now an instructor in the schools at Sedro Woolley, will be pleased to learn that she is to spend the summer vacation with friends at Silver Leaf, North Dakota.

Mrs. Hutton, of Spokane, the only woman member of the Washington delegation at the Baltemore convention, has created quite a stir in convention circles because of her commanding appearance. She is a Clark pledged delegate, but personally favors Bryan for nomination.

points the way to success, because it shows the opportunities open in the logged-off lands of Clallam County. What this man has done others can do. His eighty acres are no different from the thousands of acres all about them. His land is no better than the average. It is no easier to clear. The same industry and intelligence will bring the same results in countless other places.

Pioneer Shingle Mill

A rambler through the woods out three or four miles west of town may occasionally come across the rotted remnants of an old wooden tram road. Over this road was hauled to water the product of the mill which was the beginning of the shingle industry in this community. The tram road ran from the lagoon at the head of the bay, where the shingles were loaded upon boats, to the mill on Dry Creek— about six miles west of town.

This mill was built 22 years ago and ran for six years. In 1896 it was reduced to a junk pile by fire. Will Eacrett bought this junk pile and removed such of it as could be used again to a point a mile southwest of the old site, where he rebuilt the mill. Since then fire has twice destroyed it. Each time it was rebuilt, and it is running today—the pioneer in the shingle industry of this section.

When the mill was moved the old tram road fell into disuse, and since then the output has been hauled into town on wagons. At present the daily cut is 35,000 Star A Star shingles, giving employment to ten men.

The Eacrett Farms

Will and Albert Eacrett, cousins, went into the Dry Creek country twenty seven years ago, when they had to carry everything in on their backs. Since then they have peen engaged in lumbering and farming, and now own two fine farms, among the best improved in this section.

Will Eacrett owns forty acres, of which 25 acres is cleared. He raises hay, potatoes, and garden truck and fruit for home consumption. A fine orchard shows the possibilities of fruit raising.

Mrs. Eacrett is the Postmistress of the new Myrtle, and their home is the Postoffice.

Albert Eacrett settled on his place thirteen years ago. His farm of eighty acres is half cleared. Besides this place he owns land on the lower Elwha, He has excellent improvements, among them being a fine three-acre orchard. Mr. Eacrett devotes all his time to his farm and the farm shows the results of his industry and thrift. It is interesting to note the excellence of this farm is the result of the intelligence with which it has been farmed, and not to any peculiarity of the soil. The soil is no better than the average. As good results can be obtained on any of the wild land surrounding it.

PENNSYLVANIA HERE WITH TORPEDO BOATS

The cruiser Pennsylvania, with the naval militia on board, arrived in port Monday from San Francisco, having left the Bremerton navy yard on the 16th for a cruise. The ship was joined here by the torpedo boats Davis and Fox and target practice was held in our bay. On the voyage to Frisco the ship was almost entirely manned and navigated by the officers and men of the naval militia, only a skeleton crew of regulars being aboard.

Accepting the invitation of the Commercial Club extended by Mayor Mead and Collector Fisher, who called on Admiral Reynolds Tuesday, several of the officers enjoyed an outing to Lake Crescent, John Hanson accompanying them as host. While at the lake they visited the Dr. Deckman sanitarium, being welcomed at the wharf with a salute of twenty-one guns, or whatever number should be fired when one's guest is an admiral, and at the door of the lodge with America, on the piano. They spent a pleasant hour about the grounds, which the Doctor has already transformed into a beautiful park, being more than surprised and pleased — in fact, Admiral Reynolds said that not in ten years had he spent so pleasant an afternoon.

Wednesday evening the officers entertained a dozen members of the Club during torpedo boat practice, when the Fox and Davis attempted to get within striking distance of the Pennsylvania before being seen. At ten o'clock the searchlights, eight in number, began to sweep the bay and straits, lighting up the spit over two miles away so brightly that every launch could be seen without glasses. According to the rules of the game, a rocket was fired the moment those on ship picked up the boats; the boat was then allowed one minute to get within 3,000 yards, that being the torpedo range. It is held that within one minute after being sighted, the torpedo boat would be put out of commission by the ship's guns. Tuesday evening, the red rockets were fired from the torpedo boats, which were coming up one after the other from toward Dungeness, just a moment before the expiration of the minute. Theoretically the Pensylvania was torpedoed, but practically speaking the officers and men are now enjoying the carnival at Tacoma; after the Potlatch, it is more than likely they may visit us again — at least, the admiral thought there would be no difficulty if the Club went after it, and he also suggested the Pennsylvania be asked for particularly, as otherwise the flagship might not be the one to be sent and he would be deprived of the pleasure of another visit.

The Pennsylvania's chief officers are:

Rear Admiral Alfred Reynolds, Commander-in-Chief.

Lieut. J. D. Little, Flag Lieutenant and Aid.

Lieut. Comdr. H. N. Jenson, Commanding.

Lieut. (J.G.) G. A. Alexander.

Ensigns: E. D. Almy, C. M. James, S. S. Brown, J. C. Thom, F. Welden, F. B. Melendy.

BAND CONCERT AND DANCE TOMORROW

The Port Angeles Marine Band will give a promenade concert and dance at the Opera House tomorrow night. A feast of good music is in store for those who come.

The band deserves your support. A town can have no better advertisement than a good live band. Ours is a good band. It is an exceptional band. It is known over the whole Sound country. It plays high class music. The programme tomorrow night, with one exception, is the same as that given by Wagner's Seattle Band.

Bands don't grow like kelp—they cost time and money — lots of it. Our band costs the time of twenty men two nights a week. It costs in money for a leader and other expenses, $82.50 every month. It pays its own expenses. It gives free concerts in the park. The concert tomorrow night is for the benefit of the band treasury. It is worthy of your support. If you don't dance, come to the concert anyway. You'll get more than you pay for. Here is the

BEGINNING JULY 1ST

The Kinneys will appear at the Star Theater for one week, featuring La Petite Elva, in high class singing and dancing. Baby Kinney, who is five years old, is one of the most clever little actresses of her age on the American stage today. Her acting comes natural. She has never seen the inside of a traning school, but she will surprise you with her cleverness. Baby Kinney has drawn big houses in every theater where she appeared, from Seattle to Chicago.

The program will include three sets of pictures, and change four times. Admission 10 and 15c. Babies only admitted free.

LODGES PREPARING FLOATS

Announcement was made yesterday that the new lodge of Moose will have a fine float in the parade on the Fourth. Three hundred Moose from Victoria will arrive on the early boat and march with the local lodge.

The Woodmen of the World will have a float, as will also the Women of Woodcraft. These, together with the two large floats of the Festival Queen and the Goddess of Liberty, assures the success of the parade.

It now remains for other organizations and other owners of autos and carriages to prepare to enter so that this part of the program may be made one of the most successful features of the day's celebration.

NEW SHINGLE MILL AT PORT CRESCENT

Mr. William Vert, wife and son of Tacoma, are visitors at Port Crescent this week; came over to look at the Port Crescent Farm and Dairy Tracts. They are more than pleased with the country and expect to make this their future home.

Machinery for the Howell-Hill Shingle Company mill was unloaded here this week and construction of the mill has commenced. This company will be located about three miles southeast of Port Crescent and will ship from the Port Crescent dock. Port Crescent is becoming one of the largest shingle shipping points on the straits, about 3½ million per week leaving here for Seattle, and the remarkable thing about it is that they are all being taken from the old loggings around Port Crescent. The coming in of more settlers will mean the opening of other mills.

Mrs. George has resigned her position as teacher of the Port Crescent school and will return to her home in the south. Miss McLaughlin, of Port Angeles, has been employed to finish the term.

John and Tom Earles, of Seattle, have been visiting their uncle, Miles Earles, for a few days. They will spend the summer here and at the Sol Duc.

Every Sunday sees a large crowd at Agate Beach. This little stretch of beach, without doubt the most beautiful spot on the straits, will no doubt soon become a famous summer camping ground. A great number of very fine agates have been found this year and the supply never appears to grow less.

Fishing on the Lyre is getting good now and they have began to take the fly. When the road to the river is put in shape it will become accessible to picnic parties and a favorite resort with the angler.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Barnes are expecting quite a number of visitors from the Southwest part of the state this summer.

Blackberries are beginning to turn and this means that the festive bear has started down out of the mountains, two or three having been killed already near the road to the Springs.

John Fitzgerald, manager of the store, is a Seattle visitor this wee. John has gone over to meet 's mother and sister who are the from the East, and to incidentally whether the arrangemeuts for i Potlatch are complete.

HOWDY PAP! ARE YOU A MOOS

The newly organized Port Ang Lodge of the Loyal Order of Mo was instituted last Friday n under the most auspicious conditi with approximately 110 cha members.

Many of the leading men of city, doctors, lawyers, merchants a and mechanics, were among the new class which took the oath which forever binds them to Moosedom.

The charter fee will remain op only until the first of July. The ee now is 5.00; after the charter closes it will be 25.00.

The new members are requested to be present at the next meeting at Haning Hall, at 8 p. m., July 1st.

Representative E. E. Fisher has received word from State Highway Commissioner W. J. Roberts that he, with Representatives L. D. McAlie and E. A. Sims of Jefferson, will go over the entire line of State Rad No. 14 at an early date. Mr. Fiser has been urged to join in this investigation, which is being made tat the fullest data may be secured atn early date. Dr. Beach of Shelton as agreed to join the party. Robts writes that there are many wan friends of this proposed construction in Southwestern Washington.

Uncle Joe Cannon says: "Could't run the roller any better myself."
