The Meaning of Christmas...

It seems that there is nothing one can say of Christmas and its effects, and with the utmost sincerity, that has not been said before. Yet, as the years roll by, and with the passing of the centuries, the great figures of religion, art, music and literature continue to pay their respects and tributes. Old as the observance is, it is always new. And it always will be, for it is a time of feasting and the renewing of the spirit of giving, for all who profess Christianity; it is a time for reflection and for probing into the meaning of the equal as of wars, of bitter jealousies and enmities, of sadness and often despair, of greed and want, in an age in which discouragement and depression come easily. But the spirit of Christmas can give us an age in which discouragement and depression come easily. But the spirit of Christmas can give us perspective we sorely need. We can believe that the problems of this world are not insurmountable, that —while the ideals that Christmas stands for are eternal.

Let us pray that for a little while all, for children. Over the centuries, their eyes have sparkled as they looked upon the tree, and found their gifts, the joy of the season has touched all ages. Let us hope that this year, for every child, wherever he may be, the spirit of Christmas will bring will live to know a happy and truly peaceful world.

NOTE: This poem was taken from a book of poems by a soldier, Private James Day, A.E.F., of NYC, and forwarded to his wife in Washington.

Made it polite.

Look God, I have never spoken to you,
But now I want to say, "How do you do."
You see, I hear about you every day,
And like a fool I believed all this.

Last night from a shell hole, I saw you pass
I flew right then, they had told me a lie,
Had I taken time to see all the things you made,
I'd have known they weren't calling a spade a spade.

I wonder God, if you'd shake my hand,
Somehow, I feel that you understand,
Funny I had to come to this hellish place,
Before I had time to see your face.

Well, I guess there isn't much more to say,
But I am sure glad, God, I met you this way,
I guess the "Zero Hour" will soon be here,
But I'm not afraid since I know you're near.

The Signal! Well, God, I'll have to go,
I'll miss you lots, this I want you to know,
Look now, this will be a horrible fight,
Who knows, I may be at your Home tonight.

Though I wasn't friendly to you before,
I wonder, God, if you'd wait at the door,
Look, I'm crying! Me! shoddying I was!
I wish I had known you these many years.

Well, I have to go now, God, goodbye!
Strange how I met you, I'm not afraid to die.

Heavy Outbreak Flu Predicted

When winter comes, can flu be far behind? Not this year, according to the nation's medical forecasters.

The prediction is for a heavy outbreak of respiratory illnesses, with on the twenty-three year cycle typical of the disease. The last major outbreak was in 1957-58, and, on the West Coast, in 1963-64.

Because people with a heart or circulatory problem are far more seriously affected than others if they develop flu, Washington State Health Department officials recommends that they check with the doctor on the advisability of vaccination. Persons who receive the vaccine has been recommended by public health authorities for a number of other high risk groups. These include:

Persons of all ages suffering from chronic lung disease, or rheumatic heart disease, other respiratory ailments and diabetes.

Persons in older age groups, influenza deaths are disproportionately high among the aged, and much higher in the over-65 bracket.

Pregnant women.

Patients in nursing homes and chronic disease hospitals.

The vaccine is safe for use this season offers protection against five different types of virus, with half of causing epidemics. Will take effect in about two weeks. Will take effect in about two weeks.

Immunization has a marked record of protection for a large majority of those who received it.

Flu vaccine is administered in two doses, the first in late November or early December, the second about two months later. However, the interval can be reduced if a sudden outbreak of flu is believed imminent.

Persons who have received the vaccinated within the past two years need only one booster dose this fall.

How Big Is War In Viet Nam?

Just how big is this war in Viet Nam? How much bigger will it become? How long may we expect to last, and what will be the cost in men, material and money?

These are potent questions to which you may find a wide variety of answers, depending on the source. There are point questions to ponder, public officials, and the reporters, public officials, and the reporters, public officials, and the reporters

Bringing Meat To Your Table

Most of us take the good things of life for granted, giving scant thought to the organizations, systems and technologies that make them possible.

Meat is an excellent example. At any time, anywhere in this huge nation, we can go to a market and get whatever kind and cut we want. We are assured of top quality. And the price is well within the reach of the average American family.

Back of this is a complex and extraordinarily efficient industry. Every phase and factor of it—the producers, the packers, the processors, the transporters, the retailers—are geared to satisfy, without fail, the huge demands of the public. They must deal, day in and day out, with all manner of problems and situations—not the least being that meat is a perishable commodity that must be moved swiftly.

And there is still more. Take, for instance, the American Meat Institute, which is the national trade association of the packers. Though its many committees and staff, it works with representatives of government, public agencies, colleges, livestock and farm groups and other industry organizations in helping to improve products and services. Closely allied with it is the American Meat Institute Foundation, which administers a grants-in-aid program to foster research in all scientific and technological aspects of livestock production and processing, and utilization of the products derived from livestock.

It took a lot of people, a lot of work, a lot of planing, and a lot of know-how to bring to your table that luscious cut of meat you're going to eat tonight.

VFW News

Only five months remain for eligible veterans to take advantage of the newly re-opened National Service Life Insurance, John B. Kirsch, Manager of the Seattle Veterans Administration Regional Office, pointed out.

Deadline for obtaining the new GI policies is midnight, May 2, 1966, Kirsch said.

This insurance is open to those veterans who were originally eligible for GI insurance between October 8, 1940, and January 1, 1957, and who either failed to take it out or let all or part of it lapse after purchasing it.

The eligible veteran must have a service-connected disability or a nonservice-connected disability so severe that he cannot purchase commerical insurance at the highest rates.

Veterans have several choices of insurance plans—ordinary life, 20-payment life, 20-year endowment and modified life—and they may take out the full $10,000 coverage or as little as $1,000.

Any VA office will supply full details.

ZIP CODES REQUIRED FROM VETS

Beginning January 1, 1966, the Veterans Administration will be required to include ZIP Codes in the addresses of all outgoing mail, according to John B. Kirsch, manager of the Seattle WA Regional Office.

Kirsch urges all veterans and beneficiaries who write the VA to include their ZIP Code in their letter. The number should be placed in the letter, rather than on the envelope, since most envelopes are discarded and only the veteran's letter is retained in Regional Office mail handling.

Kirsch said that his office receives an average of 1,800 letters each day which requires answers. To look up ZIP Codes for each of these letters would be most time consuming, and might delay replies to veterans.
