Health District Problems Aired At Joint Meeting

After a lengthy discussion last night, Jefferson county commissioners, who had previously announced their intention to withdraw from the Olympic health district along with the Port Townsend city council, unanimously voted to remain in the health district, and approved the employment of Dr. Phillip Risser as full-time district health officer.

The health committee of the Port Townsend city council, present at the meeting, also agreed to recommend to the council that it take similar action.

The joint meeting attended by nine commissioners and council members in Port Townsend last night was called by health district Sanitarian Donald Morrison after Jefferson county and Port Townsend indicated they planned to withdraw from the district.

Also present were Superintendent William Carder of the Port Townsend school district, which previously withdrew from the health district, and District Nurse Superintendent Doris Stuart.

Morrison opened the meeting, stating that the purpose of asking all participants of the health district to meet was "to hash over the difficulties of the past and find out why Port Townsend and Jefferson county are withdrawing from the district."

Jefferson Commissioner Lyall Arey declared that their grievance against the health district was the hiring of a doctor without public health training to replace Dr. Shirley Benham, who left here this spring to take a position with Kitsap county.

Arey said that previously the state health department had emphasized the importance of having a trained public health man, so now the county opposed hiring Dr. Risser because he did not have such training. Dr. Risser is scheduled to arrive here in August.

Clallam Commissioner Robert O'Brien pointed out that if the two counties do not continue to operate as a district, neither of them can afford a full-time public health set-up. "Dr. Risser, who is closing out his practice in Oklahoma, will be in a bad pickle, because the district already has notified him that we wish his services," he said.

A letter from the state health department, stating that trained public health doctors are not available, was read to the group. The letter added that a scholarship to give a doctor a free public health course would be furnished within two years by the state health department, and previous to taking over Olympic health district duties the man would be given a month's training in an operating health district elsewhere in the state.

SHORTAGE OF DOCTORS

U. S. public health officer Dr. Dennis Davenport, Port Angeles, told the group it was fortunate to obtain the services of a full time doctor for the health district, because of the shortage of physicians throughout the United States.

Superintendent Carder said "I am not satisfied with the health district set-up. I would rather have the services of our local part time doctor."

Commissioner Arey said the local doctor didn't have time to do the health job and other members of the commission agreed with him.

Commissioner Fred Evans said there would be no competition between Dr. Risser and local doctors, but that the health district would benefit by services of a full time health officer.

Port Townsend Councilman Dennis Sullivan and Councilman Ralph Steele disagreed about previous services rendered by the Olympic health district. Sullivan said Port Townsend had received good services, but Steele said "the chief weakness of the health district in the past had been Dr. Benham."

EPPERSON CRITICIZES

Mayor Fred Epperson said he thought the health district had been poorly handled because of the commissioners' weakness. He pointed out that a health board consisting of members of county and city commissioners had never been set up as called for by law to carry out the administration of the district.

(State law organizing health districts calls for such a board to administrate and "perform all duties vested in the county or city or town board of health of any county city or town included in the health district." The law also authorizes this board to handle the health district finances.)

The group agreed unanimously that the commissioners had been negligent in their duty in not setting up such an operating board. To Superintendent Carder's objection that no health district budget ever had been available to the district's participants, other members of the group replied that this too was a "dereliction of duty on the commissioners' part." (A health district budget was printed in the Evening News in February, in the news columns.)

A motion by Jefferson Commissioner George Huntingford that the county commissioners favor the firing of Dr. Risser passed.

The meeting broke up with the promise of the two Port Townsend councilmen that they would recommend to the city council at next Tuesday's meeting that it take similar action and remain in the health district.

All the officials present agreed to participate actively in the reorganization of the health district and the formation of a board to administer the district in the future. Such an organization meeting will be announced after the meeting of the Port Townsend city council, if they take action similar to the county, Morrison said.

County's Farmers Find Strawberries Putting Extra Cash In Their Pockets

By Earl Clark

A lot of strawberry shortcake is in the making around Port Angeles. And next year there will be even more.

Clallam county farmers have discovered the value of strawberries as a cash crop. With County Agent Melvin Michel, I looked at some of the acreage devoted to strawberries, and followed them through until they were packed in tins and shipped to the freezing plant.

Ray Porsch, at the Olympic Seed Company, gave us an idea of the sudden interest in the lush red fruit.

"Last year we processed about a ton of strawberries," he said. "This year we expect to take in 15 to 20 tons. Next year we anticipate a minimum of 100 tons."

Out on the Don Phillips farm, three-fourths of a mile south of the Mount Pleasant service station, we saw where many of these strawberries originate. Phillips has five acres in strawberries, all Marshalls. He started a dozen pickers into the fields June 25, and expects to be harvesting berries for the next seven weeks.

REQUIRES PATIENCE

You have to have a little patience to grow strawberries. For the first two years, Phillips had nothing but blisters to show for his effort. During that period, the young plants are getting their growth — they will produce a few berries, but Phillips, in line with accepted practice, clipped the blossoms those first two years, and let the growth go into developing a strong plant. Last year was his first picking season. He also sold 170,000 plants from his fields before starting to harvest berries.

Phillips sells direct to Port Angeles grocers, who are glad to get the fresh, luscious red berries straight from the fields. Their waxy glow and large size make them a fast-selling item, compared to the berries formerly shipped in from distant points.

This farmer, incidentally, only cleared his land 10 years ago. When the strawberry season is over, he will turn his attention to the 1,400 turkeys on his farm. It's a busy life —no eight-hour day for him.

8 YEARS OF BERRIES

One of the county's veteran strawberry raisers is R. Q. Wallace, just west of Port Angeles. Wallace has been raising the fruit since 1940, and has about four acres in plants now. Largely he concentrates on the Marshall variety, although he has some Rockhills.

"You have to specialize on quality to get anyplace with berries," says Wallace. "People look at them and think that's a pretty fancy return for the acreage — but it takes a lot of fancy work to get those fancy berries, too."

The paths between Wallace's rows of plants are lined now with berries thrown aside because of over ripeness, bird picks, or other defects. As a result, the berries going into market command a top net return.

Wallace thinks overfertilization can defeat a good berry crop. Too much fertilizer, he says, builds up the plant at the expense of the berry. He also has experimented with planting the berries in solid mat rows, rather than each plant set off by itself. This leads to complications of blight, and more trouble in cultivation, but the yield triples that of ground devoted to single plants when weather conditions are good and the plants escape blight.

Wallace, like most growers, leans to the Marshall variety. The Rockhills turn up their toes and keel over when mill fumes are blown their direction, but this doesn't faze the Marshalls. Wallace finds that the plants have a maximum life of six years — after that the yield drops off to nothing.

BERRIES PROCESSED

The Olympic Seed Company has installed a brand new assembly line to handle the berries. Each farmer's consignment is run through separately as one lot. First the berries are dumped into a huge tray, which shakes the berries back and forth while sprays of water rinse them off. Then they travel on a long conveyor belt past girls who cull out poor and defective berries. The belt drops them into a slicer, from which they go into 30-pound tins, with sugar added. The tins are stored in freezers at the Pacific Refrigeration Company.

Porsch told us the company is getting berries from small growers, in lots of two or three flats, as well as from big growers. Returns average one to three tons per acre, and the company pays 21 cents a pound, based on the net weight in the tins.

Before strawberry raising can become a big thing in Clallam county, better processing facilities are needed, Michel points out, namely a freezing plant hooked up with the processing line to warehouse hundreds of tons of berries.

The local berries are proving popular — one local restaurant alone has its order in for 1,000 tins — but facilities now are inadequate to handle such an output as comes from Skagit or Kitsap counties.

That, Michel believes, might well be a project for the community to encourage.

E. C. Horton Files For Nomination As Co. Commissioner

Erwin C. Horton, Forks, democrat, filed for nomination to the office of county commissioner for the third district with the county auditor this morning.

Commissioner A. A. Fletcher's four year term expires this year. The commissioner elected from the third district will serve a two-year term.

Horton served two terms as commissioner for a total of six years between 1939 and 1945 while living at Neah Bay. Since, he has moved to Forks where he operated a restaurant and currently is the owner of La Poel resort, Lake Crescent.

Coast Guardsman Injured At Buoy

Seaman D. R. Tucker from the coast guard cutter Fir was flown to the Ediz hook air station this morning on an emergency flight after he was injured at Quillayute.

Tucker sustained head injuries, according to a report from Dr. Dennis Davenport at the coast guard base. He is being treated at the Ediz hook infirmary.

Lt. J. G. George made the flight to Quillayute to pick up Tucker after a radio report said the seaman was injured while working on the James island lighted whistle buoy.

USS Hamner Will Dock Here Saturday

The destroyer USS Hamner is expected to dock at the Port of Port Angeles terminal about noon Saturday, Port Manager Henry Davies said today.

She is coming here at special invitation of the city to join the July 4 celebration.

Davis said Comdr. R. C. Sleight told him in a telephone conversation the ship will tie up at the dock about noon and will leave early Tuesday morning, July 6.

Mayor Fred Epperson will head the welcoming committee composed of civic officials, members of the Chamber of Commerce and Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Erase Accusation Against Tito Is Plea to Stalin

By the Associated Press

Yugoslav communists urged Stalin today to blot out what they called the absurd "lies and slander" of the cominform against Premier Marshal Tito and the ruling party of his Balkan nation.

But Russia was busy building back fires against Tito. The cominform—the 9-nation communist information bureau — moved from Belgrade to Bucharest. Communists in Russia, Albania, Bulgaria, Romania, Greece, Britain, Hungary, Austria and the United States all rallied around the cominform and its Kremlin rulers.

Yugoslavia stood as firm as ever behind Tito. His Balkan neighbors for the moment didn't talk too big, because Tito has the largest army afoot in that region which has spawned so many wars.

KREMLIN MOVES SLOWLY

The Kremlin, its prestige shaken by the Tito case, moved slowly. The central committee of the Soviet Union's communist party approved, as expected, the cominform attack on Tito and the Yugoslav party. The cominform accused the Yugoslav government leaders of a hateful policy toward Russia, flirting with the west and leaving the Marx-Lenin line. It appeared unlikely that Stalin or the Russian communists would be swayed by such an expression as this from a mass meeting of 15,000 Yugoslav communists:

"Take off these false accusations that were slung at the whole country, party and central committee. Our love toward you and the whole Soviet Union and everything you did for humanity is unlimited, as well as our belief that you will do everything in your power that the truth will be brought out in a very short time."

The Yugoslav communists parlayed their appeal to Stalin with another telegram expressing faith in Tito and the Yugoslav party.

BLOCKADE CONTINUES

The Russians still blockaded Berlin by land, threatening starvation to 2,000,000 Germans in the western zones. U. S. officials asserted planes were beating the blockade and that by mid-July, enough food would be on hand to last six more weeks. The Russians had broken down the four-power control machinery for Berlin and all Germany.

The Russians cautiously offered to turn on power from north to south Korea if the U. S. occupants of the south will deal with the Korean communist regime in the north. That seemed unlikely.

Wallgren Explains Withholding Of Gilman Report

Governor Wallgren told the Associated Press in Olympia this week that the state will not release to the public the Gilman report on cross-sound traffic "until certain amendments and revisions have been made and we are ready to submit it to investment bankers."

The governor said the Gilman report fails to consider state exemption or elimination of certain costs carried by a private operator. He mentioned state exemption from taxes on oil and other items and a decrease in administrative costs by use of existing state legal and supervisory personnel.

The state toll bridge authority is using the report, prepared by W. C. Gilman & Co., New York traffic survey experts, in connection with its proposed state-owned ferry and bridge system on Puget sound.

North Kitsap and Olympic peninsula proponents of an Agate pass bridge are anxious to see the Gilman report because of its effect on state plans to build a bridge to Bainbridge island at Fletcher Bay instead of at Agate pass. King county commissioners want to see it because of its bearing on their charter of Black Ball ferries which connect Seattle with Kitsap county.

Governor Wallgren further explained that the report "will be kept by the toll bridge authority until we are ready to go ahead with the work. The report is for our use and we don't want a lot of conflicting statements made about it. It is used as a guide by both the toll bridge authority and investors."

$60,000 Treasure Sought By Men On Discovery Bay

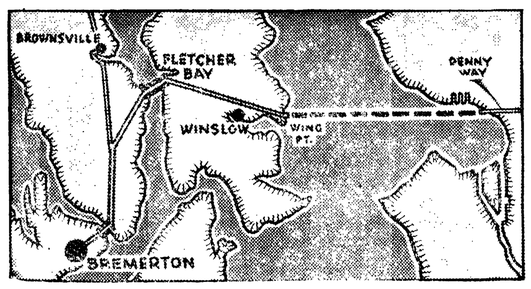
SEATTLE — (AP) — The Seattle Times said today three men are digging for a treasure estimated at $60,000 on Discovery bay, six miles west of Port Townsend.

Although the men have tried to keep it a secret, residents of the area learned about the expedition, The Times said. They are all from Seattle.

Search is being made on property now occupied by Chevy Chase Inn, which is owned by Philip W. Bailey, president of a shingle mill company in Ballard. The men are said to have sole exploration rights.

The story has it that a paymaster for a railroad in British Columbia stole the monthly payroll but was captured at Victoria and died in prison without telling what became of the money.

Several attempts have been made to find it.



PROPOSED FERRY ROUTE A proposed floating bridge between Bainbridge island and the Kitsap county mainland, six miles northeast of Bremerton, is a feature of a revised Puget sound ferry system under consideration by the state. This map shows how present ferry terminals at Winslow and Colman dock may be shifted to Wing Point on Bainbridge and the foot of Denny Way in Seattle, further shortening the cross-sound route. Engineers are considering a submerging center bridge pontoon to permit ship movements. (AP Photo).

14 State-Owned Ferries To Cost Between 11 And 12 Millions, It Is Learned In Seattle

SEATTLE —(AP)— An estimated cost between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000 for a proposed fleet of 14 state-owned Puget sound ferries was reported today.

The Times said it learned from an informed source that these figures had been submitted to Governor Wallgren by Seattle shipyards:

Three 100-car, 1,200-passenger ferries, estimated $1,500,000 each; two 60-car, 500-passenger boats, estimated $750,000 each; nine 60-car, 100-pasenger craft, estimated $600,000 each.

The number of ferries proposed for construction was reported subject to change.

The governor said at Olympia yesterday that naval architects have been directed to draw final plans for a ferry fleet for state operation. The plans would be the basis for a call for bids, he said.

The Times said the decision on the number of ferries depends on final plans for consolidating present routes and completion of financial arrangements for state operation. Bridge construction is another factor.

It said that under present plans the 100-car ferries would be used on the Seattle-Bainbridge run, and the two 60-car carriers on the San Juan island runs.

The paper said the ferry-assignment plans are based on the Gilman survey of the ferry system, which the governor has declined to release. He has described it as subject to revision.

The Times said it was informed the Gilman survey recommends consolidating the Seattle-Bremerton, Seattle - Suquamish, Seattle - Bainbridge and Edmonds-Kingston routes by construction of bridges between Bainbridge island and the Kitsap county mainland.

Olympic Highway Oiling About Done

A dustless Olympic highway for holiday traffic east of Port Angeles and west as far as the Clearwater river is insured by oil surfacing projects recently completed or nearing completion.

East of Port Angeles, the crushed rock cover coating has been removed from recently oiled sections. Unless the newly oiled sections start "bleeding" under a hot sun, the crushed rock coating will not be replaced, says Walter Scott, highway district maintenance engineer.

An oil seal coat is completed on 13.6 miles of the highway between the Indian creek bridge and Fairholme at the western end of Lake Crescent. The Doolittle Construction Company, contractors, will maintain the section until next Wednesday, when it will be turned over to the highway department.

Peter Kiewit Sons' company, contractors, put one of three coats of oil on the nine mile highway section between Riverside and Sappho.

By Saturday night Contractor R. O. Dail will have one coat of oil on a 20-mile section of the highway between the Clearwater and Hoh river bridges. A ten mile section between the Hoh and Bogachiel river bridges will be sprinkled with water in preparation for oiling next week.

Georgia Demo, In Convention, Ask Draft Of Eisenhower, Withdrawal By Truman

By Associated Press

By convention resolution, Georgia democrats today asked their party to draft Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the presidential nomination and called on President Truman to withdraw as a contender.

The "draft Eisenhower" talk also got a boost in New York state and three organizations joined in a boom for Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas for the democratic nomination.

In other political developments:

Some highly placed democrats in Washington were pushing the idea that President Truman should call congress back into session this summer and challenge the republicans, who control the national legislature, to deliver on their 1948 platform promises.

The Georgia democrats, when asking a draft of Eisenhower for the democratic presidential nomination, approved a petition to him calling the general "the only proper man to lead the fight for world peace and against communism, tyranny and slavery."

They also came out for Georgia's Senator Richard B. Russell for vice president.

In New York, former State Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney, a delegate to the democratic national convention, made public a letter urging an Eisenhower draft. He sent it to Democratic State Chairman Paul Fitzpatrick and told him he fears that if President Truman is the nominee "the national democratic ticket will be overwhelmingly defeated."

A "committee of New York democrats for Douglas" was formed by Maurice P. Davidson, New York city attorney, and lined up with two other groups booming Justice Douglas for the nomination.

There was no indication in Washington of much enthusiasm for the idea of calling congress back into session.

SHIPS LOANED TO RUSSIA NOT RETURNED

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States demanded in January, it was disclosed today, that Russia return immediately 28 naval frigates and three ice breakers "lend-leased" to the soviets during the war. The ships still have not been returned.

The fact that this country had asked return of the vessels came out incidentally during Secretary of State Marshall's news conference. He said the request was made during discussions with the Russian ambassador on a final lend-lease settlement.

The American government has been trying for the past 14 months to reach an agreement with the Soviets winding up the $11,296,000,000 lend lease account.

Other officials said later the state department had demanded the return of the 31 vessels in January. Thus far, they said, Russia has "stalled" about turning them back.

The original request for return of the vessels went out early in the negotiations. Apparently irritated by Russia's failure to comply, the state department in January then demanded their "immediate return."

Marshall said the Russians have returned eight merchant ships "lend-leased" to them but they still hold 87 others. The return of these is one of the main topics under discussion.

Marshall said the department is studying Ambassador Panyushkin's latest proposal for settling the lend lease account but that no decision has been reached yet.

Marshall said the United States is also asking Russia to pay American firms for the use of the patents during the war.

STEEL CHARGES LEWIS WITH 'UNFAIRNESS'

WASHINGTON—(AP)—U. S. Steel Corporation and 17 other steel companies have filed unfair labor practice charges against John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers, it was disclosed today.

The national labor relations board said the charges, filed with it, are based on the contract Lewis negotiated with principal commercial coal companies.

The steel companies have not signed the contract for their so-called "captive" coal mines which supply coal for steel making.

Lewis' insistance on a union shop was the basis for the unfair labor practice charge.

TRY AGAIN TO SETTLE RAIL STRIKE

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The White House resumed today its efforts to settle the rail wage dispute.

Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman called union leaders into a morning conference and arranged to meet later with management representatives.

Whether the two sides will meet jointly, Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said, depends upon developments at the separate conferences.

If Steelman doesn't have any luck in getting an agreement, there's a chance the army may try for a settlement with the three unions—the Locomotive Engineers, Firemen and Enginemen, and Switchmen. That prospect arose after the unions were placed under fresh orders against a strike.

Justice T. Alan Goldsborough granted a permanent anti-strike injunction at the government's request late yesterday. That means the 190,000 members of the three railroad unions must stay on the job until their dispute with the carriers is settled.

TRUMAN TO MISSOURI

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The White House said today that President Truman expects to act on 45 bills before leaving Sunday for a speech at Bolivar, Mo.

The bills are those remaining from a batch of approximately 300 which congress sent to Mr. Truman just before it adjourned.

The president has until Tuesday midnight to sign or reject some of the measures. He is allowed 10 working days after a bill reaches him.

The measures awaiting action include one to renew the terms of members of the atomic energy commission for two years.

Pitching Horseshoes With Billy Rose

GIVES AVERY BRUNDAGE A 'BREAK' IN COLUMN

During the second week of June, national magazines published pieces about Avery Brundage, chairman of the U. S. Olympic committee.

"Well, well, well," I said to myself. "It looks as if Amiable Avery has hired himself a press agent. Why not be a good fellow, Rose, and give him a break in your column? It's the least he can expect from the husband of Eleanor Holm."

To get the other side of the story, I went to the library and did some boning up on the man who had chucked Eleanor off the '36 Olympic team. I'd like to pass along my finding without comment. But before you read them, please fasten your safety belts. We're coming into a strong head wind. . . .

In 1935, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, president of the Amateur Athletic Union, protested to Brundage against American participation in the Olympic Games to be held in Mr. Hitler's Germany. He produced evidence of nazi discrimination against Catholic athletes. Later that year, Dr. Charles S. MacFarland, secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, made a similar protest and documented it with quotations from the official German publication covering physical training, by Dr. Bruno Malitz. Brundage replied that his committee would send a team to Germany — with or without the cooperation of the A. A. U. — and that the protests were part of a Jewish plot.

Quoting from Life, "This fixation had led him into some situations which were merely ridiculous, and some which were genuine disasters. In 1936, it led him to become an active partisan of nazi Germany and the conversion of the Olympic Games into a political and propaganda triumph for Adolph Hitler."

When Brundage returned to America after the Olympics, he was one of the principal speakers at a meeting sponsored by the German-American Bund at Madison Square Garden. He shared the platform with Fritz Kuhn who led his Bund buddies in singing, "Deutschland Uber Alles." Brundage, and I quote, "received more applause than Fritz Kuhn, Ambassador Hans Luther, or Karl Stroehlin of the German Foreign Institute," when, "after the singing of the Horst Wessel Song, he stated that 'We can learn much from Germany . . .'"

Brundage, and I'm still quoting, "has always been suspicious of athletic women. When Babe Didrikson was suspended by his committee, Avery defended the decision as follows: 'You know, the ancient Greeks kept women out of their athletic games. They wouldn't even let them on the sidelines. I'm not so sure but what they were right.'

"His suspicion is that some of them — perhaps even a considerable number — are really men . . . Just before the 1936 games in Berlin, he demanded in vain a thorough physical examination for every woman on every Olympic team."

Before Avery made his millions in the building business, he was quite an athlete himself. According to Life, "Heel-and-toe walking, which is almost a lost art today, was one of Brundage's favorite sports. 'That was a beautiful event,' he mused recently, 'and I excelled in it. It is the closest a man can get to the pangs of childbirth.'"

As the Saturday Evening Post tells it, Brundage had nothing to do with bouncing my missus off the '36 Olympic team. The decision was made by "the twenty or thirty members of the Olympic committee who made the voyage . . . It was up to Brundage, as the ranking committeeman present, to announce her disbarment."

"Is that true?" I asked Eleanor the other night.

"Definitely not," said the girl who placed first in the '32 Olympics and was never defeated after that. "The committee was composed of athletic coaches and other sports-struck people who were getting a free trip to Europe only because Brundage had okayed them. They voted his way or else."

"Give me the straightaway or the champagne story," I said.

"It's simple," said my favorite mermaid. "An Olympic team is made up of athletes who are the products of coaches from all parts of the country. Virtually every coach has his own training mehtods. The man who trained me was always afraid I might get stale. He worked me like a washerwoman six days a week, and on the seventh let me relax. If I felt like a smoke or a few drinks, it was okay with him. His method must have been pretty good because I won several hundred A.A.U. medals. Incidentally, these so-called gold medals have tarnished and turned green.

"When I went to Europe with the team in '36, I traveled third class. Mr. Brundage refused to let me travel any other way. When the newspaper boys invited me to their party, I was glad to come up out of steerage. I wasn't training that day, and I saw no harm in having a few glasses of champagne with them. I have no apologies for what I did, and if I were going over with the team this year, I wouldn't act any different."

These, ladies and gentlemen, are the highlights of my research. As promised, I'm passing them on without comment. Speaking for myself, I shall always be indebted to Avery Brundage. If he hadn't fired Eleanor, she might not have turned pro, starred in the Aquacade, and gotten hitched to the guy who owned the show. And I wouldn't be looking forward to going up to Mt. Kisco this weekend.

SEEKS MONEY RECOVERY

TACOMA—(AP)—Recovery of $2,317.16 paid as transportation taxes is asked by the Weyerhauser Timber Co. in a suit filed in federal district court here against Clark Squire, collector of internal revenue.

The firm accused the federal office of illegally collecting the taxes on the delivery of logs and on the rental of trucks for such work performed near Longview from Dec. 1, 1942, to Jan. 11, 1946.

Bears Tear Bark High On Trees; Prove Menace To Second Growth Fir, Say Hunters

ABERDEEN—(AP)—Bears, says a veteran Grays Harbor big game hunter, are becoming an increasing menace to the second growth fir tree crop.

Jack Ekstrand, a hunter for 38 years cites a case of more than a dozen fir trees killed within a 50 by 150-foot area in the Humptulips river sector.

He says the marauding bears do their damage by tearing off bark. On his Humptulips tract, he said, they picked 60 to 70-foot trees mostly. The bark-tearing begins about 25 feet up.

He said the same destruction is widespread in the Grays Harbor second growth stands.

Ekstrand says the bears go after the sap during the early spring when there is little to eat. This year's late spring, delaying growth of salmon berry bushes and other foliage, is blamed by Ekstrand for the heavier raiding of trees.

The hunting veteran expressed the belief there are three to five times as many bears in the Harbor area as there were 25 years ago and that they are becoming more destructive than cuogars. Ekstrand suggests the state should brand the bruins as predators and let hunters bang away at them freely. He says it would save livestock and poultry as well as timber.

JAIL BREAK FAILED

TACOMA—(AP)—Discovery of a hole cut in the wall of the city jail foiled an attempted jail break by nine federal prisoners, police said today.

The hole was discovered recently during a routine inspection. It had been made by removing a sink from its base and enlarging the plumbing holes beneath it.

OLD ELWHA BRIDGE—For 40 years to about ten years ago the covered bridge shown spanned the Elwha river at the lower gorge near the Sisson ranch. Built almost 60 years ago as part of the county road system the wooden bridge became part of the Olympic highway but was abandoned and torn down when the highway was re-routed and the present concrete bridge built across the river near Indian creek. The section of river shown is a famous trout fishing spot.

Mother's Plea That 'Every Wash Day Is Tear Day' Moves U. S. to Get Scarce Pipe to Her

By Charles Molony

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The government hasn't become so big that it can't lay aside its own troubles sometimes to help a lady in distress.

Not when she writes the president that "every wash day is tear day for me" because she couldn't get the pipe her modest home needed to bring in city water.

So a whole truckload of pipe was gone today at the home of Mrs. Paul Ondrey of Hillsboro, Ill., who hit a responsive chord with this plea:

"Dear Mr. President:

"I am a mere housewife and realize I am taking your too valuable time but I am frantic.

"Today (June 21) is the longest day of the year and extra long for me. I am trying to do a wash for five of us and we have no water to do it with. Every wash day is tear day for me.

"For one year we've done everything in our power to get two-inch pipe for our water which is 700 feet from us (city water). We are one of four families who need the pipe. We are all building our own homes (ourselves) and have only the basements finished and are living in these until we have money to finish. * * *

"I have a son seven, a daughter and to really make my (water) problem worse we have a surprise visit from the stork in April. * * *

"A family of four needs a lot of water — and then a new baby! He must be kept clean. * * *"

A White House secretary relayed Mrs. Ondrey's letter to the commerce department.

The letter drifted along to the desk of a steel company official on loan to the office of industry cooperation.

It found the right man there, all right.

LEARNS IT CAN'T BE DONE SO HE DOES IT

DENVER —(AP)— About 25 years ago some agriculture experts told Charles W. Savery mushrooms could not be grown profitably in Colorado's high and dry climate. But Savery rigged up some caves under a viaduct. He began to have hopes of a going business when the chief of police called to say citizens objected to fertilizer being hauled through the streets every few days, bound for the mushroom caves.

So Savery bought a hilltop farm seven miles north of Denver. Then he and his son, Robert, went back to Chester county, Pennsylvania, and really studied the mushroom business. Now the farm is one of the three largest mushroom producers in the west, turning out 2,700 pounds of buds daily.

PUSH RADIO PRODUCTION

MOSCOW —(AP)— A new type of five-tube home radio receiver with shortwave has been put into production at a Riga factory. The USSR, "Pravda" reported, is now in the midst of an intense radiofication plan for the whole nation. More than 7,000,000 "radio points," including wired speakers and regular tube receivers, are functioning in listeners' homes and millions more are planned in the next few years. Listeners pay a small listerners' tax.

Americans, on the average, consume about four pounds of cheese per person every year.

Brothers Meet Here After 37 Years

Two brothers separated 37 years ago, met in Port Angeles this week when Mr. and Mrs. Antti Lahti arrived Monday to visit his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Leskinen.

The men parted in 1911 when William left his native Finland for the United States to settle in the northwest. His brother followed a year later but settled in the east. Antti changed his family name from Leskinen to Lahti when he became an American citizen.

A trip next week to Canada and Yellowstone park is planned for the entertainment of the eastern visitors.

Tent Caterpillars Under Control After Spraying Program

A month-long program of spraying with lead arsenate and DDT by city firemen has resulted in the control of tent caterpillars along Port Angeles streets.

Authorized by city commissioners in May to take immediate steps to eradicate the pests, a fire department crew of two men began spray operations along streets and on city-owned vacant lots. Firemen Harold Thompson and Harold Beach used 4,000 gallons of lead arsenate and 6,000 gallons of DDT spray beginning about May 15.

They employed the department's tank truck for the work. The men reported that the department's spraying last year was effective although it was started late in the caterpillar season. In some areas sprayed last year caterpillar tents were not found, they said.

PESTS COMING BACK

County Agent Melvin Michel warned today that caterpillars will come back next year, and effective measures for control should be made now. Michel suggests clubs and individuals organize now to plan a campaign for next year and see that spraying equipment is available.

While the city was taken care of this year, the county suffered. Heavy infestation along roads and on private property resulted in the loss of many trees, including fruit trees, he said.

Spray formulas for home use were distributed through Port Angeles schools and this plan could be carried out in the county next year, Michel advised.

'Sinking Pontoon' Plan Favored In Building Fletcher Bay Bridge

SEATTLE —(AP)— Possibility of a "sinking pontoon" plan in the proposed Fletcher Bay floating bridge between Bainbridge island and the Kitsap county mainland was disclosed for the first time yesterday.

The 500-foot pontoon would be designed to submerge far enough to allow passage of the largest navy ships.

Charles E. Andrew, chief consulting engineer of the Washington state toll bridge authority, reported the possibility of the radical departure in floating bridge technique in an interview.

He said it is one of two alternative plans for the structure. The other would be for a pull-back pontoon, like the one used for passage of ships through the Lake Washington span.

DRAWING BOARD STAGE

Andrew said the submerging pontoon plan now is in the drawing board stage and there is no doubt of its being practical. He indicated he will favor the submerging section.

A bridge at Fletcher Bay, about the middle of Bainbridge island, is one of the proposed links in a state-directed Puget sound transportation system.

Governor Wallgren said Wednesday that investment bankers favor the Fletcher Bay bridge ahead of the proposed Agate pass site to the northward.

Andrew said that if and when the bridge is built, the connecting ferry terminals probably would be shifted to shorten distances and speed up cross-sound service.

3,500 FOOT STRETCH

The bridge would stretch 3,500 feet across Port Orchard passage, about six miles northeast of Bremerton. It would be the first floating bridge over waters with large tides.

Andrew said a "shotgun" estimate of the bridge cost would be about $5,500,000. He said a standard cantilever type bridge would cost at least $14,000,000.

He said plans for the bridge will not be submitted to the toll bridge authority for at least six months. He estimated a year and a half for building it.

MAY SHIFT TERMINALS

He said a possible shift of ferry terminals from Winslow to Wing point on the island and from Colman dock to the foot of Denny way in Seattle would cut ferry distances. A direct road would link the bridge on the west side of the island with the ferry terminal on the east.

In discussing the possible submerging span, Andrew said it could meet the navy requirements for a 500-foot opening, to allow a battleship with tugs on each side to pass. Submerging 50 feet, it would give plenty of clearance.

Smaller boats could pass under one of the bridge approaches.

OTHER ASPECTS

Andrew reported these other aspects of the project:

The pontoon would be submerged by filling water compartments and refloated by pumping them out.

It would run up and down on tracks.

The 17-ft. range between extreme high and low tides would not be a problem. The bridge would be "fitted" to midtide, leaving only about 8 feet range up and down. Cables extending outward from the pontoons could easily handle the variations.

The pontoons would be linked to fixed structures at each end of the bridge by transition spans, which would be hinged to the piers, just as on the Lake Washington bridge. Depending on the tide, motorists would drive slightly uphill or down on the transition spans.

New 200-Inch Telescope Will Complete Yardstick 10 Million Light Years in Length

By Rennie Taylor

PALOMAR MOUNTAIN, Calif.—(AP)— The foremost job of the 200-inch telescope will be to complete a highly accurate yardstick for measuring the universe.

This yardstick is partly ready now. It consists of an imaginary line 60 million million million miles long with equally imaginary marks on it like inches on a foot ruler. But out toward the end of the yardstick the marks are not now accurately spaced.

The problem is like that of a man at the starting end of the stick trying to establish marks out to the other end by sighting along the straight line. The farther out he sees the more difficult it is to peg the places on it where the marks should be.

To do this will require some highly complex observations of known stars and galaxies and a final venture into using the peculiar behavior of light from far distant island universes, Dr. Walter Baade, of Mt. Wilson observatory, told the American Astronomical Society today.

In the shadow of the "big eye," now known as the Hale telescope, Dr. Baade outlined the working program for the $6,500,000 instrument upon which scientists are relying heavily in their drive to find the outward fringe of creation.

The first step, Dr. Baade said, will be to redetermine the brightness of some known, relatively nearby stars whose distances already have been pretty well calculated.

Strawberry Diseases Discussed in Booklet

PULLMAN — Strawberry growers in the state will be able to identify diseases in their patches better with the aid of the new full color bulletin just put out by the agricultural experiment stations at Washington State College, Leonard Young, experiment stations editor, said today.

"Strawberry Diseases in Washington," the first full color bulletin printed on the state college campus, has been published in cooperation with the strawberry processors and growers of Washington.

The bulletin discusses cause and cure of the diseases that affect a five million dollar industry in the state. Only those common or sufficiently serious here to warrant control measures are fully discussed.

The use of color allows more accurate and lifelike presentation of the actual appearance of the disease in the field, and makes identification easier for the grower.

American dairy production totals more than one billion dollars worth every year.

Vest Pocket Grocery Goes With Pencils

By William J. Conway

CHICAGO—(AP)— When salesmen call on Charles E. Bradley they hand him a pencil instead of a cigar.

He doesn't smoke. His habit is collecting automatic pencils.

Bradley, an importer, has 650 of them. They come in all shapes and sizes. No two are alike. Nine out of ten of them write. But he doesn't care about that. He is interested in the odd attachments.

One has a knife on the upper end. Another is equipped with a postal scale for weighing letters. A third has a built-in- calculating machine.

Bradley needs only to pull a pencil out of his pocket when he is uncertain which club to use on a golf course. The printed legend on it suggests the best stick for a given distance—eg., 145 yards, No. 5 iron. He has what it takes to measure shorter distances, too. This is a thin steel model that projects a yardstick. Works like a collapsible telescope.

Pencils bearing multiplication tables and calendars come in handy, too. One job has a whisk broom on the top end. Another is capped with a cigarette lighter.

The stuff that is in the hollow cylinders of many of his pencils fascinates Bradley—such stuff as sand, oil, varnish, tobacco and surgical sutures. Others contain peanuts, corn kernels, sausage, milk, orange juice, soft drinks, beer, garden seed and fertilizer.

Chinese Commies Release 4 Yanks Held Since May 5

TSINGTAO, China—(AP)—Four U. S. marine fliers held captive by Chinese communists, since May 5 were released today, the navy announced.

The fliers were forced down in communist territory on Shantung peninsula while on a routine flight. They were captured 18 miles west of here.

Navy officials said they were in good health when returned here today.

The navy said negotiations for their release were conducted at Haiyang, 60 miles north of Tsingtao, under the direction of Vice Adm. Oscar C. Badter, commander of navy forces in the southwest Pacific.

The navy public information officer, H. E. Reice, told newsmen: "They are in fine physical shape. There was no rough stuff."

Lt. Hawkins said the quartet had nothing to do but play cards during the three months they were held. He said the communists lectured them and gave them communist literature but that they were free to disregard both.

They were fed an average Chinese soldier's diet, Hawkins said.

The fliers were forced down due to engine trouble. Two of the men parachuted to safety on the beach and Lt. Shaw asked and was granted permission to land the plane on the beach near Haiyang.

"Thanks to him none of us suffered any injuries," Hawkins said.

OLD ROMAN HOUSE FOUND

CANTERBURY, England —(AP)— Foundations believed to be those of a second century Roman town house have been discovered during excavations here on the sites of the Royal Fountain and Rose hotels which were destroyed during the war. Some of the foundations are five feet thick. A large Roman bath room, thirty feet square, and a cobbled quadrangle between two wings of the ancient house are among the discoveries.

The smaller finds include numerous urns, one of the Emperor Claudius era (A.D.-41-54), as well as Samian ware, some decorated and others bearing the potters' names, bronze rings and pins and part of a gold necklace.

They returned to Spokane last night—presumably to start all over again.

Budget Surplus Is Biggest In History

WASHINGTON—(AP)— Secretary of Treasury Snyder said today the government's "true" budget surplus for the fiscal year 1948 was $8,419,469,843.81, by far the biggest in history.

Snyder said the figure represents "the actual excess of receipts over expenditures in the fiscal year," which ended June 30.

By congressional reckoning it would be $3,000,000,000 less, Snyder said, reflecting what he called a "bookkeeping switch" ordered by congress in its closing moments.

What congress did was to direct the treasury to take $3,000,000,000 from the past fiscal year's surplus and set it up on the books as an advance credit against spending in the 1949 fiscal year. The money was placed to the credit of the European recovery program yesterday. It will be spent as needs of the program arise.

The effect will be to make spending in the new fiscal year seem $3,000,000,000 lower than it would be otherwise. The shift will bolster the fiscal 1949 budget so as to avert a possible deficit at the year's end June 30, 1949.

Taking either the administration's "true" $8,419,000,000 figure or the $5,419,000,000 figures of congress, the surplus is the second in a row after deficits for the preceding 16 straight years.

Dennis Finds Chicago Stranger Than His Native County Cork

CHICAGO —(AP)— Dennis Ahern, 28, of County Cork, Eire, was in the Cook county hospital Thursday suffering from head wounds and dazed at the turn of events during his first night here.

Policemen John Collins and Carmen Salerno found Ahern near the White Sox baseball park and he told them he had been attacked by three men. He said he had stopped in Chicago while on his way to visit relatives in Merrill, Ore.

The policemen took Ahern to Victory hospital. But Collins said when physicians and nurses prepared to sew his wounds he grabbed an iron rod, fended off the doctors, nurses and policemen and ran into the street.

Four police squads were sent to look for Ahern. The policemen found him some distance away, put him in a straightjacket and took him to the county hospital.

Police said Ahern's wallet contained $129. They theorized that the three men who attacked him were unsuccessful in robbing him.

Pensioners Fail To See Governor

OLYMPIA — (AP) — Old age pensioners massed on the capitol steps yesterday to hear their leaders shout denunciations of Governor Wallgren.

The blasts followed failure of the group to see him in his offices. Pension leaders said they had a 2 p.m. appointment. Miss Reatha Chance, Wallgren's secretary, said the appointment was for last Thursday.

Here to file petitions for initiative 172, the old age pension measure, the group also wanted to ask Wallgren to call a special legislative session "to meet a social security crisis."

Earlier, William J. Pennock, Washington pension union president, said the group had a 2 p.m appointment with the governor They arrived about 2:30 p.m. Wallgren was conferring with Sheldon Williamson, American Red Cross area director.

When, 25 minutes later, State Sens. Albert Rosellini and Robert Grieve were taken into the governor's office ahead of them, the pensioners stalked out.

From a loudspeaker system on the capitol steps, speakers took turns calling the governor's action a "stall" or a "slap in the face" for the pension union.

The speakers included Edward L. Pettus of Tacoma and Mrs. Helen Mitchell of Longview.

BOUNCES BABY ON FLOOR

TACOMA—(AP)—An Indian mother is accused in an assault warrant of gravely injuring her three-year-old son by holding him by the heels and bouncing his head on the kitchen floor of their Tacoma home.

Angry witnesses said the mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Caisse, 29, tossed the unconscious baby onto the floor of an adjoining room, where he was revived 20 minutes later by a young girl whose identity police withheld.

Attendants at U. S. Cushman (Indian) hospital said the seriously injured child would have to undergo a delicate operation.

Melons Never Cross With Other Vine Crops

Different varieties of vegetables, grown together in the same garden, often "cross," that is pollen from one variety is carried by bees to the flowers of another.

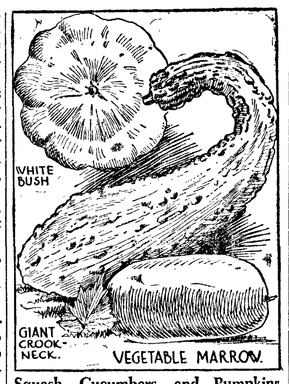
This never affects the leaves, roots or fruit of the parent plant but only the seed, so gardeners are quite unconscious of the mixture, unless they save the seed and sow it; then instead of having a pure strain, of one variety, they will have a mixture of types.

But when they try to grow melons, and harvest one which is not as sweet as it should be, they look about for squash or cucumbers growing near, and often assert that the lack of flavor in the melon is due to the proximity of the other vines.

The idea that squash and cucumbers can be crossed with melons is so deeply rooted that it is difficult to combat, and in some community gardens a ban is placed on any vine crops except melons being grown.

If such a cross could be made it would not affect this year's melons, except in the seed. But it cannot occur. Two varieties of melons will cross, without effect on either except for their seed; the same is true of two varieties of squash, or of cucumbers; and squash will cross with pumpkins, all without effect on the current crop. The seed, however, should not be saved.

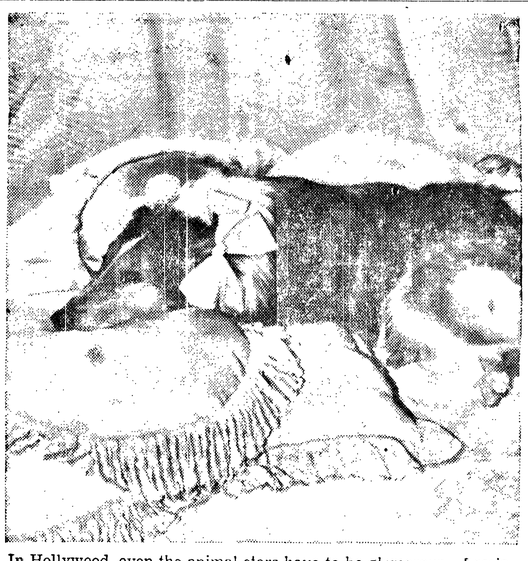
Breeders have repeatedly tried to hybridize (cross) melons with squash and cucumbers, but have never succeeded. This is something that can only be determined by experience, in the case of species closely related, as there seems to be no uniform rule.



Squash, Cucumbers, and Pumpkins have Never Been Known to Cross with Melons.

Squash and pumpkins belong to different species, but will cross; but the seed which results either refuses to grow, or if it does grow produces a seedless fruit of no value.

Poor flavor of ripe melons is usually due to lack of sunshine. They must be fully ripe when picked as the flavor never improves after that.



In Hollywood, even the animal stars have to be glamorous. Lassie, famed collie leading lady, strikes a pose reminiscent of the screen's most alluring blondes. The beribboned canine cutie lounges on a satin bedspread and fluffy pillows.

BREMERTON COMING BACK IN WIL RACE

By Associated Press

Bremertons' Bluejackets are inching their way back into the Western International league pennant fight.

They chopped another half game from the margin separating them from the first place Tacoma Tigers last night as the two leaders tangled with the league's Canadian entries in Dominion Day doubleheaders.

Tacoma divided with Victoria, winning the opener 9-8 but dropping the nightcap 16-8, while Bremerton downed Vancouver 6-5 and battled to a 13-inning 9-9 draw. It narrowed the Tacoma lead to two games.

Salem bounced back at Spokane to edge the Indians 3-2 while Wenatchee won its third in a row over Yakima 7-2.

'Ike-for-President' Drums Whammed With Renewed Vigor

By Associated Press

Anti-Truman democrats pounded their Eisenhower - for - president drums with fresh vigor today.

Elliott Roosevelt set off the parade by disclosing a new letter from the general which he said made him optimistic Eisenhower could not refuse "a true draft movement" at the democratic national convention.

The son of the late president read the letter last night at a New York rally sponsored by the Americans for Democratic Action. He said it was written June 15 to Leslie E. Schwartz, an Ada official. The letter said:

"When I made a public statement last January referring to a possible political career, I did it only after earnest study to determine the field in which I might possibly be of some future usefulness.

"I am anxious to do my duty, but felt that it was my own problem to determine whether or not a sense of duty could call me into the political field."

It was last January that Eisenhower, now president of Columbia University, silenced a similar effort by some republicans to stir a draft move at the GOP convention. Since then he has repeatedly reaffirmed that position.

Another democratic group meanwhile sought to arrange a meeting with the general today. Harry Cargon, New Hampshire democratic national committeeman, said last night that he and party leaders from several southern states would seek the Eisenhower interview. The general's office said, however, that his calendar "is filled with university appointments."

Plant Gladiolus Bulbs Late for Fall Flowers

Gladiolus bulbs for late flowers can be planted up to July 1, since they flower in 80 days or less; some bulbs should always be planted late to provide flowers in the early autumn, when the best quality is produced.

There is no better flower to plant in the Freedom garden, or as a border to it. They grow straight as an arrow, having no leaves that droop over between the rows and interfere with cultivation. They will thrive in any soil that produces good vegetables.

When planting them in rows, place them six inches apart, three to five inches deep. Deep planting makes it less likely that staking will be necessary. Plant food is best applied in bands on either side of the row, as in the case of vegetables.

Because of danger from the gladiolus thrips it is necessary to dust or spray the plants weekly with DDT from the time they are six inches tall.

Late plantings should usually be made of large bulbs which give flowers soonest. Smaller bulbs of planting size produce normal flowers but take longer to do it. Except for the weekly spraying gladioli require no attention except that given vegetable crops. They should be watered the same way, by soaking the soil deeply when it becomes too dry.

The variety of colors among the gladioli is equalled by few flowers. The pink flowers are favorites, but in recent years white and yellow varieties have shown the greatest improvement, and have taken many prizes at gladiolus shows. The largest varieties produce spikes 70 inches tall, with florets 8 inches across, when grown in fertile soil and regularly watered.

'Summer Holiday' Given Approval By Hollywood Women

"Summer Holiday" coming to Port Angeles this weekend is recommended as good entertainment by representatives of Hollywood womens' clubs.

A musical version of O'Neill's play "Ah, Wilderness!" this is a story of a small-town family life, revolving around the adolescent experiences of a boy whose behaviour bewilders and shocks his elders, who have lost touch with innocence and summer dreams.

This adaptation of Eugene O'Neill's play combines farce, comedy, romance and serious drama. Splendid musical numbers and perfect rhythm set a gay tempo. Its outstanding feature is the beautiful color photography of the small town and surrounding community in the early summer where the action takes place. Laid in the early 1900s, there are many charming and nostalgic episodes—notably the high school graduation. The beer drinking contest, and the unhappy experience in a night club of the adolescent boy, seem to be somewhat overemphasized and overglamorized, although the ethical values are right.

Cast includes Walter Huston, Mickey Rooney, Butch Jenkins and Agnes Moorehead.

Northwest Power Group Will Meet Here During August

On August 11 between 300 and 400 members of the Northwest Public Power Association will hold their convention here, according to City Light Superintendent B. W. Lean, who is in charge of arrangements. Convention dates are August 11 through August 13.

Lean has outlined a full program of business and entertainment for the visitors and their wives. In order to cover all the important discussions, evening sessions are scheduled.

One of the most important matters which power men will try to settle at the meeting is the program of power curtailment necessary in the northwest until 1954, Lean said.

Power demand is expected to get increasingly heavy until 1951, but by then new generating equipment installed throughout the area should be able to catch up with the load, he explained.

Speakers include Col. Theron D. Weaver, in charge of the army corps of engineers developing the Columbia river and its tributaries for hydro-electric power. Weaver will report on planned forthcoming developments, and his talk will be a long-range answer to the power shortage in the northwest, Lean says.

Ben Creim of the Sacramento office of the bureau of reclamation will speak on the California power shortage. William Fordyce of a Portland investment firm will speak on important factors in electric utility financing.

Lean said he also expects Dr. Paul Raver, administrator for the Bonneville power adminstration, members of the northwest congressional delegation and the federal power commission.

Tubeless Radio Heralded As Scientific Wonder

NEW YORK—(AP)—A new scientific wonder, a radio set with no vacuum tubes, that plays instantly when turned on, was unveiled here.

The heart of this set is a few bits of metal, as big as match heads. These are solid, but they do the same work as intricate, conventional radio tubes.

Smaller sets seem possible. But whether the size of wrist watches is not yet known.

The new set, shown by the Bell Telephone laboratories, does not need to warm up before it plays. It neither lights nor glows nor produces any heat. Less juice than a flashlight runs it.

The set still is under experiment, and is not seen to be on the market. Bell scientists, who made it, have discovered a new principle of electronics, and expect this principle to have many uses in addition to radio sets.

Fastballers Play 2 Games Tonight

Rayonmakers and Coastguardsmen wind up the first half of the fastball league schedule on the Pine hill playfield at 8 this evening.

The KC's and Hi-Y's play the first game of tonight's doubleheader.

In games this week Coastguardsmen beat the Motors, 4 to 3 and Rayonmakers defeated Merchants 11 to 1.

PLEADS GUILTY, IS SENTENCED AND WED IN JUST 15 MINUTES

WALLA WALLA — (AP) — Gayle Houk of Salt Lake City had a busy afternoon.

1. He pleaded guilty to first degree forgery and was sentenced by Judge T. A. Paul to 20 years in the state prison.

2. Stepping into the next office, he was re-married to his wife, the former Grace Maddux of Buckley, Wash.

3. Fifteen minutes later he was on his way to prison; Mrs. Houck looked for an apartment.

Officers said the couple explained they had been married a year ago under an assumed name but wished to make it "legal and permanent."

ONE LITTLE BUG

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng.—(AP)— A ministry of agriculture expert, summoned by radio when the ship was still 800 miles at sea, met the liner Aquitania when she docked today with a dead potato bug on board.

Discovery of the Colorado beetle on the Aquitania's bridge after she left New York touched off a 24-hour search of every section of the ship.

56 Hats Go Into Ring On First Day Of Filings

OLYMPIA — (AP) — The political game of "hats-in-the-ring" is under way.

Fifty players put their money on the line with Secretary of State Earl Coe yesterday. New players may join in up until July 20.

The best runners will get an elective office.

Those who don't wish to pay to play can sit on the sidelines and guess—for free.

One guess might concern former U. S. Sen. C. C. Dill of Spokane. He stuck his head into Coe's door yesterday and looked around. He wouldn't say whether he will seek the democratic nomination for governor.

Most of yesterday's contestants showed up early. Some didn't. Among the latter were James M. Greene, Cashmere, republican, for governor; Cliff Yelle, Olympia, democratic incumbent, auditor; Smith Troy, Olympia, democratic incumbent, attorney general.

Two positions went begging on opening day. No one filed for state treasurer or superintendent of public instruction.

Memory Honored

An advertisement in the Thursday issue of the Evening News erroneously said the First Federal Savings and Loan Association will close.

Petition Against Dogs

Attorney Andrew Severyns presented a petition to city commissioners Wednesday on behalf of 17 persons who asked that residents at 314 West Eighth street be stopped from maintaining a noisy dog kennel, and breeding dogs. The matter was turned over to Police Chief R. O. Ide who reported he has already visited the premises twice. Both times, Ide said, he found only 3 dogs, and the grounds were exceptionally clean and neat. He promised further investigation.

Building Permits Compared

Port Angeles ranked fifteenth among Washington cities in building permits issued during May, according to the monthly compilation made by the Equitable Savings & Loan Association, Portland. The month's total of $119,527 here was a 97 per cent gain from the preceding year, although 21 per cent under April permits. The city was ninth in Washington for April. May volume for 45 northwest key cities was up 75 per cent over May 1947, and up nine per cent from April. Portland, with $7,177,410 building permits in May, led the entire list

Fishermen Put 19 Salmon On New Ladder

Nineteen salmon were put on the Port Angeles Salmon Club qualifying ladder Thursday, the starting day. The largest registered weighed 16 pounds.

The current 87-rung ladder that started Thursday morning ends Sunday evening, July 11. With the double holiday coming, giving club members more fishing time, Salmon Club officials predict that many rungs will be filled during the next week.

Trout fishing will lure many anglers during the two-day Independence Day holiday. River fishing has improved in the past ten days. Good catches were reported in the Elwha river by bait fishermen and some trout have been taken on flies in the rivers and lakes.

Cutthroat trout are running in the county's west end rivers and are being taken in the Soleduck, Bogachiel, Calawah and Quillayute rivers.

If weather remains fair, trout fishing should be good in lowland lakes. Hardy mountain climbers will take some trout from upland lakes which open to fishing Sunday

Olympic National Park trails to Lakes Angeles, Mink and Deer are open to foot travelers and horses. Deer lake has floating ice. The Boulder lake trail is open for horses to within a quarter mile of the lake and foot travelers can go all the way. The trail to Black and White Lake, in the east end of the park, is open.

Snow blankets the upper part of the Hurricane ridge road and the trails to PJ, Moose and Etta lakes in that area. All lakes in Seven lakes basin, including Hoh lake, are covered with deep snow.

Zookeeper Dick Houlihan turns high-pressure hose on Tuffy, 250-pound black bear, to make him drop the arm of 12-year-old John Dickerson. The boy climbed over the safety fence of the Peoria, Ill., Zoo to get near enough to the cage to feed the bear some grapes and the animal tore his arm off above the elbow. The boy was taken to St. Francis Hospital, where his arm was amputated at the shoulder. As this photo was taken, the bear was holding the severed arm in his mouth. The joint is barely visible, the flow of water making identification difficult.

Bicycle Riders Should Observe Same Rules In Traffic As Motorists, Police Chief Says

Bicycle riders in Port Angeles are under the same traffic rules and regulations as drivers of motor vehicles, Police Chief R. O. Ide tells the Evening News.

Chief Ide says the police department contacts every school child in the city during the year with safety talks given at local schools, in which a police officer explains rules governing bicyclists, and how they can ride their bikes in safety.

Police do not give youngsters safety and traffic law instructions when the licenses are issued, Chief Ide says. With about 1,200 bicycles licensed in the city, there just isn't time to explain these things to each licensee, the chief says.

Police do, however, insist that small children not ride their bikes downtown, or on arterial streets. Police on patrol also make a practice of flagging down bicyclists riding in an unsafe manner, he said. The most common offense is riding two on a bicycle, a violation of city ordinance.

Children on bicycles are governed by the same laws regarding hand signals as autoists, Chief Ide says.

The police chief's remarks were given in an interview with the Evening News following a letter received Tuesday from Ivan C. Wefel, 1104 East Columbia.

"I haven't noticed a child give a signal yet before stopping or turning right or left," Wefel writes. "They just dart in front of cars or trucks. Then you, the driver, hope and pray your brakes can stop you. In the larger cities like Seattle they give the signals so the car driver knows what's up. If they don't the police warn them. They also have a test to see if they know the signals.

"If parents or guardians would teach children the signals and the importance thereof, then test them to see if they know them, I'm sure motorists would approve, and it would be safer for the children of Port Angeles. Three-fourths of the time a car can't stop, due to the fact they dash only a few feet in front of you."

Issues Instructions For Boys At Camp

Advisory group member Claude Phifer issued a list of "don't forgets" today to boys planning to attend Camp David Junior for the first camping period next week. Registration for boys 8 to 14 will continue throughout the county until Saturday night, Phifer said.

Here are the reminders:

Don't forget the free Kiwanis bus leaves the firehall in Port Angeles at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, July 6. Out of town children who need transportation should contact registration headquarters in their locality.

Don't forget to get a health certificate from a doctor. (Dr. L. A. Scheuler, president of the medical association, says family doctors are issuing these free of charge).

Don't forget blankets and toothbrushes.

Don't forget to bring a lunch. In getting the campers organized and because of late comers, there may be delay in serving the first meal or boys might get hungry before they reach camp, Phifer says.

A dramatic 93-mile race with death was assisted by police of four California counties as they escorted in relays an automobile carrying a desperately ill three-week-old "blue baby" from Modesto to San Francisco. The child, Patricia Sterling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Sterling of Ceres, near Modesto, was provided oxygen from a portable respirator applied by Nurse Mrs. J. M. Lesher, shown here with the baby.
